

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

NOTICE.

IN the preparation of this and the preceding Editions the Editor has been most materially aided by the communications of numerous obliging correspondents, many of them personally unknown to him, to whom he takes this opportunity of returning his acknowledgments. He begs, at the same time, to repeat his request that travellers who may in the use of the Handbook detect any faults or omissions which they can correct from personal knowledge, will have the kindness to mark them down on the spot, with the date when they are made, and communicate to him a notice of the same, favouring him at the same time with their names—addressed to the care of Mr. Murray, Albemarle Street. The Editor ventures to remind his correspondents that by such communications they are not merely furnishing the means of improving the Handbook, but are contributing to the benefit, information, and comfort of future travellers.

. No attention can be paid to letters from innkeepers in praise of their own houses; and the postage of them is so onerous that they cannot be received.

CAUTION TO TRAVELLERS.—The introduction into England of foreign pirated Editions of the works of British authors, in which the copyright subsists, is totally prohibited by Act of Parliament. Travellers should therefore bear in mind that even a single copy is contraband, and is liable to seizure at the English Custom-house.

CAUTION TO INNKEEPERS AND OTHERS.—The Editor of the Handbooks has learned from various quarters that a person or persons have been extorting money from innkeepers, tradespeople, artists, and others, on the Continent, under pretext of procuring recommendations and favourable notices of them and their establishments in the Handbooks for Travellers. The Editor, therefore, thinks proper to warn all whom it may concern, that recommendations in the Handbooks are not to be obtained by purchase, and that the persons alluded to are not only unauthorised by him, but are totally unknown to him. All those, therefore, who put confidence in such promises, may rest assured that they will be defrauded of their money without attaining their object.

Map wanting.
HANDBOOK

FOR

NORTH GERMANY

FROM THE BALTIC TO THE BLACK FOREST,

AND

THE RHINE

FROM HOLLAND TO BASLE.

INCLUDING

THE HARTZ, THÜRINGERWALD,
SAXON SWITZERLAND, RÜGEN, THE GIANT MOUNTAINS,
TAUNUS, ODENWALD, ELSASS, AND LOTHRINGEN.

NINETEENTH EDITION, CORRECTED.

WITH MANY MAPS AND PLANS.

✓
LONDON:

JOHN MURRAY, ALBEMARLE STREET.

PARIS: GALIGNANI AND CO.; AND BOYVEAU.

LEIPZIG: BROCKHAUS.

1877.

The Right of Translation is reserved.

THE ENGLISH EDITIONS OF MURRAY'S HANDBOOKS MAY BE OBTAINED OF THE FOLLOWING AGENTS.

Belgium, Holland, and Germany.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE . } MAYER.
AMSTERDAM . MULLER.—KIRBERGER.
ANTWERP . KORNICKER.
BADEN-BADEN . MARX.
BERLIN . ASHER.—MITSCHER & ROSTELL.
BRUSSELS . MUQUARDT.—KIESSLING.
CARLSRUHE . A. BIELEFELD.
COLOGNE . GREVEN.—DUMONT.—EISEN.
CONSTANCE . MECK.
DRESDEN . BURDACH.—PIERSON.
FRANKFURT . JÜGEL.
GRATZ . LEUSCHNER & LUBENSKY.
THE HAGUE . NIJHOFF.
HAMBURG . MAUKE SÖHNE.
HEIDELBERG . MOHR.

LEIPZIG . BROCKHAUS.—TWIETMYER.
MANNHEIM . BENDER & FONTAINE. — LOFFLER.—KOTTER.
METZ . ALCAN.
MUNICH . MANZ. — ACKERMANN. — KAISER.
NÜRNBERG . SCHRAG.—ZEISER.
PESTH . HARTLEBEN.—G. HECKENAST —OSTERLAMB.—RATH.
PRAGUE . CALVE.
ROTTERDAM . KRAMERS.—PETRI.—ROBBERS.
STRASSBURG . GRUCKER.—TRÜBNER.
STUTTGART . METZLER.—NEFF.
TRIESTE . COEN.—SCHIMPF.
VIENNA . GEROLD.—BRAUMÜLLER.
WIESBADEN . KREIDEL.

Switzerland.

BASLE . GEORG.—AMBERGER.
BERN . DALP.—JENT & REINERT.
COIRE . GRUBENMANN.
GENEVA . MONROE (METFORD).—DESROGIES CHERBULIEZ.—E. RICHARD.
LAUSANNE . ROUSSY.
LUCERNE . KAISER.

NEUCHÂTEL . GERSTER.
SCHAFFHAUSEN . HURTER.
SOLEURE . JENT.
ST. GAILLEN . HUBER.
ZURICH . ORILL FUESSLI & CO.—MEYER
& ZELLER.—LEUTHOLD.

Italy.

BOLOGNA . ZANICHELLI.
FLORENCE . GOODBAN.—LOESCHER.
GENOA . GRONDONA.—ANTOINE BEUF.
LEGHORN . MAZZAJOLI.
LUCCA . BARON.
MANTUA . NEGRETTI.
MILAN . SACCHI. — DUMOLARD. —
HOEPLI.
MODENA . VINCENZI & ROSSI.
NAPLES . BRITISH LIBRARY, (DORANT)— HOEPLI.

PALERMO . PEDONE.
PARMA . ZANGHIERI.
PISA . NISTRI.—HOEPLI.
PERUGIA . VINCENZ. BARTELLI.
ROME . SPITHOVER. — PIALE. — MO-
NALDINI.—LOESCHER.
SIENA . ONORATO PORRI.
TURIN . MAGGI. — L. BEUF. — BOCCA
FRÈRES.—LOESCHER.
VENICE . ONGANIA.—COEN.—MEINERS.
VERONA . MÜNSTER.—MEINERS.

France.

AMIENS . CARON.
ANGERS . BARASSÉ.
AVIGNON . CLÉMENT ST. JUST.
AVRANCHES . ANFRAY.
BORDEAUX . CHAUMAS.—MÜLLER. — SAU-
VAT.—FRET.
BOULOGNE . MERRIDEW.—WATEL.
CAEN . BOISARD. — LEGOST. — CLE-RISSÉ.
CALAIS . BIGAUX CAUX.
CANNES . BOBANDY.
CHERBOURG . LECOUFFLET.
DIEPPE . MARAIS.
DINANT . COSTE.
DOUAI . JACQUART.—LEMÂLE.
GRENOBLE . VELLÔT ET COMP.
HAVRE . BOURDIGNON. — FOUCHER. — BUYS.
LILLE . BÉGHIN.

LYONS . AYNÉ.—SCHEURING.—MÉRA.
MARSEILLES . CAMOIN FRÈRES.—MEUNIER.
NANTES . PETIPAS.—POIRIER LEGROS.
—ANDRÉ.
NICE . BARBERY FRÈRES.—JOUGLA.
ORLEANS . GATINEAU.—PESTY.
PARIS . GALIGNANI.—BOYVEAU.
PAU . LAFON.
RHEIMS . BRISSART BINET.—GEOFFROY.
—GIRET.
ROUEN . LEBRUMENT.—HAULARD.
ST. ETIENNE . DELARUE.
ST. MALO . HUE.
ST. QUENTIN . DOLOY.
TOULON . MONGE ET VILLAMUS.
TOULOUSE . GIMET ET COTELLE.
TOURS . GEORGET.
TROYES . LALOY.—DUFÉY ROBERT.

Spain and Portugal.

GIBRALTAR . ROWSWELL.
LISBON . LEWTAS.

MADRID . DURAN.—BAILLIÈRE.
MALAGA . DE MOYA.

Russia, Sweden, Denmark, and Norway.

ST. PETERSBURG . WATKINS.—WOLFF.
MOSCOW . GAUTIER. — DEUBNER. —
LANG.

ODESSA . CAMOIN.
CHRISTIANIA . BENNETT.
STOCKHOLM . SAMSON & WALLIN.—FRITZE.

Malta.

L. CRITIEN.—WATSON.—CALLEJA.

CORFU . J. W. TAYLOR.

Constantinople.

WICK & WEISS.

Greece.

ATHENS, KARL WILBERG.

Ionian Islands.

Alexandria and Cairo.

MONFERRATO.—ALEXANDRIA BOOK COMPANY.

SECT. I.—RHENISH PRUSSIA—continued.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
39. The Ahr Valley — Remagen to Ahrweiler and Altenahr . . .	88	bach, Marienburg, Alf, Cochem [Schloss Elz], Cobern . . .	102
40. The Lower Eifel—Brohl on the Rhine to the Lake of Laach , Mayen , and Lützerath . . .	91	43. Aix-la-Chapelle to Treves . . .	108
41. Coblenz to Treves [Bertrich Baths]	93	45. The Upper Eifel—Aix-la-Chapelle to Treves, by Düren , Euskirchen , and Gerolstein —RAIL . . .	110
42. The MOSEL—Treves to Coblenz, by Berncastel , Trar-		46. Bingen to Treves	113
		47. Cologne to Frankfurt-a.-M., by Siegburg , and Giessen . . .	114

SECT. II.—PRUSSIA, continued.—MECKLENBURG—HANOVER—BRUNSWICK—HESSE-CASSEL—THE HANSE TOWNS, &c.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
56. London to Hamburg (Heligoland)	116	66B. Madgeburg to Leipzig, by Zerbst , Dessau , and Bitterfeld —RAIL	185
57. Hamburg to Lübeck [Travemünde]—RAIL	122	67. Düsseldorf to Berlin, by Elberfeld , Cassel , Eisleben , and Halle —RAIL	186
58. Hamburg to Stralsund, by Schwerin , Dobberan , and Rostock	127	67A. Hagen to Betzdorf, by Siegen [Iserlohn]—RAIL	190
59. Hamburg to Hanover—RAIL	129	68. Cologne to Brunswick, viâ Soest , Paderborn , and Kreiensen —RAIL	191
60. Hamburg to Bremen direct—RAIL	130	69. Düsseldorf to Bremen, viâ Vanne , Münster and Osnabrück —RAIL	194
60A. Bremen to Oldenburg [Wilhelmshafen]—RAIL	131	69A. Altenbeken to Hanover, viâ Pymont , Hameln , and Weetzen [Detmold]—RAIL	197
61. Hamburg to Berlin, viâ Buchen and Hagenow —RAIL	132	70. Frankfurt-a.-M. to Cassel—RAIL	200
61A. Hamburg to Berlin, viâ Lüneburg and Wittenberge	156	71. Descent of the Weser from Hanoverian Münden to Hameln , Minden , and Bremen	205
62. Berlin to Magdeburg, by Potsdam and Brandenburg —RAIL	157	72. Cassel to Hanover, by Göttingen —RAIL	209
63. Berlin to Leipzig, by Wittenberg —RAIL	162	72A. Hanover to Bremen [Bremerhafen]—RAIL	212
64. Hamburg to Leipzig, by Magdeburg , Cöthen , and Halle —RAIL	164	72B. Bremen to Berlin, viâ Uelzen and Stendal —RAIL	216
65. Berlin to Dresden, by Jüterbog —RAIL	167	72C. Bremen to Berlin, by Buckholz and Wittenberge	216
65A. Cologne to Berlin, viâ Minden , Hanover , Lehrte , and Stendal —RAIL	168	73. THE HARZ. — Göttingen to Clausthal , Goslar , the Brocken , the Rosstrappe , Vale of the Bode , and Alexisbad	217
65B. Berlin to Dresden direct—RAIL	168	74. THE HARZ. — Nordhausen to Magdeburg	225
66. Cologne to Berlin, by Düsseldorf , Oberhausen , Minden , Hanover , Brunswick , Magdeburg —RAIL	169
66A. Cologne to Berlin, by Elberfeld , Soest , Kreiensen , and Magdeburg —RAIL	184

SECT. III.—PRUSSIA—continued.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
75. Berlin to Danzig, viâ Stettin [Swinemünde] —RAIL . . .	229	82. Dresden to Breslau —RAIL . . .	254
76. Stettin to Stralsund . [The Is- land of Rügen and the Baths of Putbus] —RAIL . . .	233	83. The RIESEN GEBIRGE — (1). Lauban to Altwasser , viâ Hirschberg [Warmbrunn and Schmiedeberg] and Buhbank [Excursion to Adersbach] — RAIL . . .	257
77. Berlin to Danzig, viâ Küstrin , Schneidemühl [Bromberg] and Konitz —RAIL . . .	237	83A. Liegnitz to Schweidnitz , Rei- chenbach , and Frankenstein — RAIL . . .	262
78. Danzig to Königsberg , by Ma- rienburg —RAIL . . .	241	84. The RIESEN GEBIRGE (2). — Breslau to Prague , viâ Kö- nigszell , Waldenburg [Aders- bach], Trautenau , Alt-Paka , and Kolin —RAIL . . .	263
79. Königsberg to Memel , viâ Inster- burg and Tilsit —RAIL . . .	245	84A. Dresden to Reichenberg , viâ Herrnhut and Zittau — RAIL . . .	265
80. Stettin to Breslau, viâ Posen — RAIL . . .	246	85. Breslau to Prague , viâ Wartha , Glatz , and the Heuscheuer .	266
81. Berlin to Breslau , viâ Frankfurt on the Oder —RAIL . . .	247	85A. Breslau to Cracow —RAIL . . .	268
81A. Berlin to Tilsit , viâ Frankfurt on the Oder , Posen , and Thorn —RAIL . . .	252	85B. Breslau to Vienna , viâ Cosel and Oderberg —RAIL . . .	270
81B. Berlin to Görlitz , viâ Cottbus —RAIL . . .	254
81C. Breslau to Dzieditz , by Oels and Vassowska —RAIL . . .	254

SECT. IV.—SAXONY.

PRELIMINARY INFORMATION—THE THURINGIAN FOREST	271
---	-----

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
86. Frankfurt-on-the-Main to Leip- zig , by Fulda , Eisenach , Gotha [the Thuringian Forest], Erfurt , and Weimar —RAIL . . .	272	88. SAXON SWITZERLAND and the Elbe . (A) Dresden to Boden- bach [Pillnitz , the Bastei , Schandau , Kuhstall , Pre- bischthor , and Herrnskret- schen] —RAIL . . .	318
86A. Gotha to Hildburghausen , by Ohrdruf and Schleusingen .	290	90. Dresden to Hof in Bavaria , by the Valley of Plauen , Freiberg , and Chemnitz —RAIL . . .	326
86B. Gotha to Rudolstadt , viâ Ilmenau [Schwarzburg] . . .	292	91. Leipzig to Hof , by Altenburg and Werdau —RAIL . . .	330
86C. Leipzig to Eichicht , by Zeitz , Gera , and Saalfeld —RAIL .	293	91A. Leipzig to Carlsbad . . .	332
86D. Leipzig to Cottbus , by Eilen- burg and Torgau —RAIL . .	294	92. Cassel to Bamberg , viâ Eisen- ach , Meiningen , and Coburg — RAIL . . .	333
87. Leipzig to Dresden , viâ Riesa —RAIL . . .	294	93. Gotha to Leinefelde , by Mühl- hausen —RAIL . . .	337
87A. Dresden to Leipzig viâ Döbeln —RAIL . . .	317

SECT. V. — NASSAU — FRANKFURT — HESSE - DARMSTADT — RHENISH BAVARIA — BADEN — THE RHINE from MAYENCE to BASLE.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
95. Coblenz to Frankfurt-on-the-Main , viâ the rt. bank of the Rhine and Main [Schlangenbad , Schwalbach , and Wiesbaden] —RAIL	339	103. Mannheim to Metz, by Ludwigshafen , Kaiserslautern , and Homburg —RAIL	387
96. Giessen to Coblenz, by Weilburg , Limburg , Nassau , and Ems —RAIL	353	104. Mayence to Strassburg , by Alzey , Monsheim , Dürkheim , Neustadt , Landau , Annweiler , Trifels , and Hagenau —RAIL	389
97. The Taunus Mountains, from Wiesbaden to Frankfurt , by Eppstein , Königstein , Soden , and Homburg	359	104A. Strassburg to Baden-Baden , by Kehl and Appenweiler —RAIL	399
98. Bingen to Frankfurt-on-the-Main , by Ingelheim and Mayence —RAIL	363	105. Frankfurt to Basle , by Darmstadt [the Bergstrasse and Odenwald], Heidelberg , Carlsruhe , Appenweiler [for Strassburg], and Freiburg —RAIL	399
99. Bingerbrück to Metz , viâ Kreuznach and Saarbrücken [Vale of the Nahe]—RAIL	364	106. Carlsruhe to Baden-Baden —RAIL	419
99A. Metz to Luxemburg , by Dieudenhofen (Thionville)—RAIL	373	107. Strassburg to Basle , viâ Schlettstadt [Markkirch], Colmar , and Mülhausen —RAIL	424
99B. Metz to Strassburg , by Saargemünd and Hagenau —RAIL	374	106. Offenburg to Constance , by the Valley of the Kinzig , Donaueschingen , and Singen [Schaffhausen]—BLACK FOREST—RAIL	427
99C. Nancy to Strassburg , viâ Avricourt , Saargemünd [Pfalzburg], Zabern , and Vendenheim —RAIL	375	109. Freiburg in Breisgau to Schaffhausen , by the Höllenthal [Lenzkirch to St. Blaize and Albbrück]	432
100. Saarbrücken to Trèves , by Saarlouis —RAIL	377	110. Heidelberg to Würzburg , by Mosbach —RAIL	433
102. The Rhine (E). Mayence to Strassburg , by Worms , Mannheim , and Spies —RAIL	378

LIST OF MAPS AND PLANS.

	Page
Aix-la Chapelle	28
Cologne	to face 34
The Rhine : Coblentz to Mainz	„ 45
Bonn	51
Coblenz	63
Mainz	to face 85
Treves	96
„ Environs of	97
The Eifel District and River Mosel	to face 110
Hamburg	„ 117
Lübeck	„ 122
Berlin	„ 134
„ New Museum	142
„ Old Museum	143
Potsdam—Gardens and neighbourhood	to face 157
Hanover	„ 173
Brunswick	„ 177
Münster	„ 194
Bremen	„ 213
The Harz Mountains	„ 217
Island of Rügen	„ 234
Leipzig	„ 283
Dresden	„ 295
„ Picture Gallery	302
Saxon Switzerland	to face 319
Frankfurt-on-the-Main	„ 347
Course of the Nahe and Lahn Rivers	„ 353
Metz	„ 368
Battle of Gravelotte	„ 372
The Rhine : Mannheim to Strassburg, Baden, Wildbad	„ 389
Strassburg	„ 394
Odenwald and Bergstrasse	„ 402
Heidelberg and the Castle	„ 408
Black Forest	„ 422
Clue Map to Routes in Germany	at end.

ABBREVIATIONS, &c., USED IN THE HANDBOOK.

The points of the Compass are marked simply by the letters N. S. E. W.

(rt.) right, (l.) left. The right bank of a river is that which lies on the right hand of a person whose back is turned towards the source, or the quarter from which the current descends.

m.=mile; Rte.=Route; Stat.=Railway Station.

Eng. Ch. Service = English Church Service.

An asterisk (*) to call attention of travellers to objects of note, Inns deserving commendation, and the like.

When miles are spoken of without any descriptive epithet, English statute miles are to be understood.

The names of inns precede the description of every place (often in a parenthesis), because the first information needed by a traveller is where to lodge. The best inns, as far as they can be determined, are placed first.

Instead of designating a town by the vague words "large" or "small," the amount of the population, according to the latest census, is almost invariably stated, as presenting a more exact scale of the importance and size of the place.

Every Route has a number, corresponding with the figures attached to the Route on the Map, which thus serves as an index to the Book; at the same time that it presents a tolerably exact view of the great high roads of Europe, and of the course of public conveyances.

§ 2. MONEY.

The establishment of the German Empire has led to the introduction, by the law of Dec. 1871, of a new uniform decimal monetary system, of which the unit is the mark or shilling, and gold a legal tender and the standard of value. The Imperial gold coins are 20 and 10-mark pieces, having a common obverse of the Imperial eagle with the words "Deutsches Reich" (German Empire), and the reverse varying according to the State which mints the piece. The values are:—

GOLD—		Piece of 20 marks = 1l.	(strictly 19s. 7d.)
	" 10 "	= 10s.	" 9s. 9½d.
	" 5 "	= 5s.
SILVER—	" 5 marks	= 4s. 10½d.
	" 2 "	= 2s.	" 1s. 11½d.
	" 1 "	= 11¾d.
	" ½ "	= 6d.
NICKEL COINS—		Pieces of 16 pfennigs = 1 groschen = 1½d.
	" 5 "	= ½ "	= ¾d.

GOLD COINS.

	North German Value.		South German Value.		Lubeck or Hamburg customary Value.	Bremen Value Gold reckoning.	English Value.
	Thalers.	Sb. gshn.	Florins.	Kreuzers.		Thalers.
10 Marks . . .	3	10	5	50	8 5½	3 ⅓	£	s.	d.
20 "	6	20	11	40	16 10⅓	6 ⅔	0	9	9½
							0	19	7

139½ ten-mark pieces contain a Zollverein pound, i.e. 500 grammes, or 7716 troy grains of pure gold.

Accounts in future will be kept according to the following system:—

10 pfennigs	= 1 groschen = 1·175d.
10 groschen or	} = 1 mark = 11¾d.
100 pfennigs

OLD COINAGE.

Prussian Silver Coins:—

The Dollar (Thaler), containing 30 silver groschen (S. gr.), or 24 gute (good) groschen, = about 3s. English, is divided into pieces of

	Marked	containing	English value
½rd,	3 einen thaler	10 silver groschen	- = 1s.
¼th,	6	5	- = 6d.
⅓th,	12	2½	- = 3d.
⅔th,	24	-	- = 1½d.
⅓th,	ein silber groschen.

MONEY TABLE.

Foreign Coinages compared with English Money.

English Money.			United States.		Germany. New Imperial Currency.		Prussia. Old Currency.		Bavaria. Wurtemberg. Baden. Old Currency.		France. Belgium. Switzerland. Italy.
£.	s.	d.	Dols.	Cts.	Mks.	Pfg.	Th.	S. Gr.	Fl.	Kr.	Fr.	Cts.
0	0	1	0	02	0	8	0	0 $\frac{5}{8}$	0	3	0	10 $\frac{5}{12}$
0	0	2	0	04	0	16	0	1 $\frac{1}{8}$	0	6	0	23 $\frac{10}{12}$
0	0	3	0	06	0	25	0	2 $\frac{3}{8}$	0	9	0	31 $\frac{3}{12}$
0	0	4	0	08	0	33	0	3 $\frac{3}{8}$	0	12	0	41 $\frac{8}{12}$
0	0	5	0	10	0	42	0	4 $\frac{1}{8}$	0	15	0	52 $\frac{1}{12}$
0	0	6	0	12	0	50	0	5 $\frac{1}{8}$	0	18	0	62 $\frac{6}{12}$
0	0	7	0	14	0	58	0	5 $\frac{5}{8}$	0	21	0	72 $\frac{11}{12}$
0	0	8	0	16	0	67	0	6 $\frac{1}{8}$	0	24	0	83 $\frac{4}{12}$
0	0	9	0	18	0	75	0	7 $\frac{3}{8}$	0	27	0	93 $\frac{9}{12}$
0	0	10	0	20	0	84	0	8 $\frac{3}{8}$	0	30	1	4 $\frac{2}{12}$
0	0	11	0	22	0	92	0	9 $\frac{1}{8}$	0	33	1	14 $\frac{7}{12}$
0	1	0	0	24	1	0	0	10	0	36	1	25
0	2	0	0	49	2	0	0	20	1	12	2	50
0	3	0	0	73	3	0	1	45	1	48	3	75
0	4	0	0	97	4	0	1	10	2	24	5	0
0	5	0	1	21	5	0	1	20	3	0	6	25
0	6	0	1	46	6	0	2	0	3	36	7	50
0	7	0	1	70	7	0	2	10	4	12	8	75
0	8	0	1	94	8	0	2	20	4	48	10	0
0	9	0	2	18	9	0	3	0	5	24	11	25
0	10	0	2	43	10	0	3	10	6	0	12	50
0	11	0	2	67	11	0	3	20	6	36	13	75
0	12	0	2	91	12	0	4	0	7	12	15	0
0	13	0	3	16	13	0	4	10	7	48	16	25
0	14	0	3	40	14	0	4	20	8	24	17	50
0	15	0	3	64	15	0	5	0	9	0	18	75
0	16	0	3	88	16	0	5	10	9	36	20	0
0	17	0	4	13	17	0	5	20	10	12	21	25
0	18	0	4	37	18	0	6	0	10	48	22	50
0	19	0	4	61	19	0	6	10	11	24	23	75
1	0	0	4	86	20	0	6	20	12	0	25	0
2	0	0	9	71	40	0	13	10	24	0	50	0
3	0	0	14	57	60	0	20	0	36	0	75	0
4	0	0	19	42	80	0	26	20	48	0	100	0
5	0	0	24	28	100	0	33	10	60	0	125	0
6	0	0	29	13	120	0	40	0	72	0	150	0
7	0	0	33	99	140	0	46	20	84	0	175	0
8	0	0	38	84	160	0	53	10	96	0	200	0
9	0	0	43	70	180	0	60	0	108	0	225	0
10	0	0	48	56	200	0	66	20	120	0	250	0
20	0	0	97	11	400	0	133	10	240	0	500	0
30	0	0	145	67	600	0	200	0	360	0	750	0
40	0	0	194	22	800	0	266	20	480	0	1000	0
50	0	0	242	78	1000	0	333	10	600	0	1250	0

Copper Money:—

12 Pfennige - - - 1 S. gr.
 Pieces of 4, 3, 2, and 2 Pfennige were coined.

Gold Coins:—

	Marked
Double Friedrichs d'or	10 thaler	=	11 dol. 10 S. gr.	= 17. 13s. 7½d.
Single Friedrichs d'or	5	=	5 dol. 20 S. gr.	= 16s. 9½d.
Half Friedrichs d'or	2½	=	2 dol. 25 S. gr.	= 8s. 4d.

It may be useful to warn English travellers that the values marked on the old German coins are sometimes not the value at which the coin passes. Thus the double Friedrichs d'or (not of Prussian coinage), though current at 11 dollars 10 S. gr., are marked X thaler.

The safest and most convenient way of carrying large sums to meet the expenses of a long journey is in the form of Circular Notes, which are now issued by all the leading bankers without charge, but the traveller will generally get a better exchange for 5*l.* Bank of England Notes, and English Sovereigns usually command at least their full value all over Europe. The new German Gold Coins of 20 and 10-mark pieces are very useful, and are nearly equivalent in value to sovereigns and half sovereigns.

§ 3. PASSPORTS.

Passports are no longer insisted upon in Germany, but it is not prudent for travellers to be without this important certificate of identity, and pedestrians in remote and frontier districts may be subjected to constant annoyance from the police if they neglect to carry one about with them. A Foreign Office passport can be procured (charge 2s.) at the Foreign Office between 11 and 4, by leaving or sending on the preceding day a letter of application from any Banking firm in the United Kingdom, or a certificate of identity, signed by any mayor, magistrate, justice of the peace, minister of religion, physician, surgeon, solicitor or notary resident in the United Kingdom.

§ 4. INNS.

Great care has been taken in this work to furnish the traveller with the names of the best inns throughout Germany, derived principally from personal experience, or that of friends. As it is the first information which a traveller requires on reaching a place, the names of the inns in all instances stand first.

German Innkeepers are, on the whole, of a higher class, and hold a superior position in their respective towns, to that occupied by persons of a similar calling in England. They often preside at their own tables-d'hôte, entering familiarly into conversation with their guests, and it is rarely necessary to make a bargain beforehand with a German landlord.

When, however, a traveller intends to take up his residence for several weeks, or even 6 or 8 days, in an hotel, it is a good plan, as well as customary, to come to an agreement with the landlord, who, under these circumstances, is usually willing to make an abatement of one-third from his usual charges. The apartments are classed, as to price, according to the storeys on which they are situated, the size, and the look-out—the highest and those turned to the back being least expensive.

Persons who travel for pleasure must expect to pay liberally, and any attempt on their part to make close bargains will generally fail; there is a sort

-

2

§ 5. GERMAN BEDS.

One of the first complaints of an Englishman in the remote parts of Germany will be directed against the beds. It is therefore as well to make him aware beforehand of the full extent of misery to which he will be subjected on this score. A German bed is made only for one; it may be compared to an open wooden box, often hardly wide enough to turn in, and rarely long enough for any man of moderate stature to lie down in. The pillows encroach nearly half-way down, and form such an angle with the bed that it is scarcely possible to lie at full length, or assume any other than a half-sitting posture. Curtains are almost always wanting. The place of blankets is sometimes supplied by a light puffy feather-bed, which is likely to be kicked off, and forsake in his utmost need the sleeper, who, on awaking in cold weather, finds himself frozen: should it remain in its position in warm weather, the opposite alternative is that of suffocation beneath it. Mr. Coleridge has recorded his abhorrence of a German bed, declaring "he would rather carry his blanket about him, like a wild Indian, than submit to this abominable custom." The Germans themselves say that they use the feather-bed merely to cover their feet in cold weather.

The stranger who appreciates this nuisance to its full extent is recommended to ask the chambermaid for a counterpane (bett-decke), instead of the usual federbett.

§ 6. VALETS-DE-PLACE; OR, LOHNBEDIENTER.

It has been the custom of many travellers who have published tours to speak very contemptuously of the class of guides who go by the name of valets-de-place, though it may fairly be suspected that they owe much of the best part of their books to that despised caste. There are always a certain number of persons experienced in the duties of a guide attached to every inn; and if the traveller, instead of engaging a person nominated by the landlord, for the sake of sparing a franc or two, put his trust in the boys who may accost him in the streets, he runs the risk of falling into bad hands, or of finding himself in situations in which it will be neither agreeable nor creditable to be placed.

The utility of a valet-de-place consists in his knowledge of the hours at which each church, picture-gallery, palace, or other sight, is open, or visible; how to procure tickets of admission, and where to find the keepers of them, which spares the traveller much time in running about in search of them, and, if he have a spare hour, furnishes the means of spending it advantageously.

At the same time, it is necessary to put the traveller on his guard against the tricks of a valet-de-place. For his own advantage, and the interest of the inn-keeper his patron, he will often endeavour to detain the traveller by framing excuses—that collections are not open, &c. It is better to state beforehand to the man what objects you desire to see, and how much time you can devote to seeing them; to ascertain from him at once at what hours different sights are thrown open to the public, and to make him arrange the order of proceeding accordingly.

The fee paid to a valet-de-place varies in different parts of Germany; and it will be found particularised in the description of almost all the great cities. It is not always necessary to engage him for the whole day: he may be hired by the hour, and paid accordingly.

Travellers are warned on no account to take a valet-de-place with them into a shop where they wish to make purchases, since it is an acknowledged practice of the valet-de-place to demand of the tradesman a fee of 5 per cent. on the sum laid out by the stranger whom he conducts, and this is, of course, added to the price

§ 9. POSTING; OR EXTRA POST.

Posting throughout Germany has become nearly obsolete since the introduction of railways.

A copy of the printed Posting Regulations for Prussia may be obtained at every post-office. The traveller will find them very much in his favour, and in no country is he better protected against imposition.

The posting establishments of Prussia are managed by the Government, and are very well conducted. The postmasters are a respectable class of men, often retired officers: in any disputes with postilions, &c., the traveller may generally refer to them with safety. At every stage the postmaster must present (without its being asked for) a printed receipt (quittung), including the charge for horses according to the number, for greasing wheels (schmiergeld), ostler (wagenmeister), and tolls (Chaussée Damm and Brücken-geld), which must be paid in advance before setting out.

The postilion is not allowed to ask for anything above the tariff, but he expects something extra. In the Rhenish provinces they are usually paid at the rate of 1 horse.

Post Calèches.—Travellers not having a carriage of their own can be accommodated with a calèche (equivalent to our post-chaise), but open, and not equally good at every post station.

Tolls.—In posting, all charges for roads and barriers are included in the postmaster's ticket, and paid to him—a great convenience.

The Wagenmeister (coachmaster), a kind of superior ostler, who superintends the postboys, is sometimes entitled to a small fee on putting the horses to.

Laufzettel.—Travellers pressed for time, and desirous of avoiding all delay at post-houses, may bespeak relays of horses along the road they are about to travel, if it be provided with post-horses, on application at the Poste aux Chevaux or the post-office of the town from which they set out. They must apply at least 12 hours before the time they intend to start, must state in writing when they intend to depart, the route they propose to follow, and the number of horses they require; and the post-master will send on beforehand and make arrangements accordingly. This order is called a Laufzettel, and may be obtained at a trifling expense wherever a diligence or schnellpost travels.

§ 10. DILIGENCES

(called in Prussia Schnellposten, in Austria Eilwägen) are now almost superseded by Railways, except on bye roads.

The post-office and public conveyances belong to the Government, and are managed by its officers, with very few exceptions, in all the German states. The Schnellpost, or Eilwägen, is placed under the care of a guard, called Conducteur, or Schirrmeister. In most cases the seats are numbered, and passengers are placed in the order in which their places are engaged. The first numbers are affixed to the corner seats, which of course are more desirable than those in the middle, especially for night travelling. On this account, it will be perceived how advantageous it is to engage the place as long as possible before the time of starting. The fare must be paid beforehand, and a receipt is always given for it, and for baggage, whether the passenger takes it with him or sends it by the wagon. Every package must be distinctly addressed, with the name and destination of the person to whom it belongs; otherwise the post-office will not be responsible for it if lost.

The Prussian coaches have no outside places; and no difference is made in the price of the front or back part of the carriage, as is done in France. The places are all numbered, and those who apply first have the corner seats. In most cases, when all the places in the coach are taken, a traveller will be forwarded be mentioned that the hire of a carriage for 4 persons should not exceed $\frac{3}{4}$ or $\frac{3}{4}$ the fare of 4 for the same distance in the eilwägen.

Upon much frequented roads the German Lohnkutscher has no right to claim back fare, as he hardly fails to pick up passengers on his return; and indeed he will not hesitate to go to the most distant corner of Europe if he meets with a good offer.

Before hiring a carriage expressly for a journey, it is advisable to ascertain whether there be no return carriages (retour chaisen) about to take the same route, as such may be engaged at a very reduced rate.

A single individual has no occasion to take a whole coach to himself; he may secure a single place, paying proportionately; but then he must take his chance of the company he may have to encounter as fellow-passengers. He should make his bargain and secure his place over night; if he wait till the morning, he will probably find that all the Lohnkutschers have departed before he was up, as they set out betimes, and he will either be compelled to remain on the spot till the following day, or to hire a carriage expressly for himself.

When the journey will last for several days, it will be well not to engage the coachman at once for the whole distance, but, if satisfied, to take him on day by day. It is better not to employ a driver upon a road which he has not travelled before, but to seek out one who will serve as a guide, and be able to give some information about the inns and country through which he has to pass.

In Germany it is not customary or necessary to draw up a written agreement with the driver, as in Italy; but it is sometimes the practice for him to deposit in the hands of the person who has engaged him a small sum of money (hand- or darauf-geld; in Italy, la caparra) as a surety that he will not fail in his engagement, and run off, in case he can make a better bargain elsewhere. The receipt of this money is also binding on the part of the employer, who cannot afterwards put off the driver without paying him a consideration.

Before engaging the whole carriage a verbal stipulation should be made with the driver, that he is to take up no person by the way without his employer's consent; that he is to stop when and where he is bid; and, though it is an understood thing that he is to pay all tolls, &c., a foreigner had better mention this also. The time of starting and the length of the day's journey should also be fixed.

The German Voiturier does not engage to provide you with meals, as the Italian; but he expects to be allowed to stop at inns of his own choosing—a condition to which travellers are not compelled to agree, though they rarely object. He never fails to regulate his daily journey so as to make his mid-day halt at some place where there is a good dinner just ready to be served up. This mid-day halt of 2 or 3 hours' duration will often suffice to enable the traveller to see as much as he can desire of many places where he would have no inclination to spend a whole day, and which he would merely drive hurriedly through in the public diligences.

§ 12. RAILWAYS.

Railroads have extended rapidly in Germany. The map, and the following routes, will show what lines are now open, or about to open.

Many of the German rules and regulations are in the highest degree cumbrous, frivolous, and vexatious; none more so than those relating to overweight (übergewicht) of baggage. 50 lbs. weight is the usual allowance free; if you have 51 lbs. you pay as for 100. Travellers should be at the station, if they have luggage, some time before the train starts, as the weighing, ticketing, and paying for the luggage is a very tedious process.

Numbered tickets are affixed to every article, and a corresponding receipt is given to the owner, which he must produce at the end of his journey in order to reclaim his property.

The best Time Tables are :

The Imperial Cours-Buch, published in Berlin, of which Part I. (1 mk.) contains the whole of the German and Austrian Railways, and Part II. (1 mk.), the Diligences and Steamboats, and Foreign Railways.

Hendschel's Eisenbahn Telegraph, published in Frankfort-on-the-Main (2 mks.), a sort of German Bradshaw.

The Germans seldom travel in the 1st-class carriages, the 2nd-class being generally as good as our English 1st-class. The fares are very much less than in England. Return tickets and circular-tour tickets are issued on all the principal lines. Non-smoking and ladies' carriages are attached to all trains, and most of the great trunk lines run through sleeping cars.

§ 13. SOME PECULIARITIES OF GERMAN MANNERS.

A fondness for titles, orders, and high-sounding forms of address, which was ever the characteristic of the Germans, though perhaps less intense than formerly has by no means yet disappeared. The German is scarcely happy until he can hang a little bit of striped riband from his button-hole, and every effort of interest and exertion is made to increase the number of them, and of the crosses and stars which dangle from them. This is the eagerly coveted object of every placeman. "There are two things," says the Eckensteher, "that a Beamte cannot avoid—Death, and the third class of the Red Eagle."

At one of the diplomatic meetings during the Congress at Vienna, when all the members were assembled in the hall of conference, a foreign envoy approached Prince Metternich, and begged him to point out Lord Castlereagh. The Prince indicated to him the English minister, who wore neither star nor uniform. "Comment?" said the doubting diplomatic; "il n'a pas de décoration?"—"Ma foi," replied Prince Metternich, "c'est bien distingué."

One habit of German society, which cannot fail sometimes to occasion a smile to an Englishman, though it costs him some trouble to acquire it, is the necessity of addressing everybody, whether male or female, not by their own name, but by the titles of the office which they hold.

To accost a gentleman, as is usual in England, with Sir (Mein Herr), if not considered among the Germans themselves as an actual insult, is at least not complimentary; it is requisite to find out his office or profession. Madame and Mademoiselle, addressed to German ladies, are equally terms of inferiority. The commonest title to which everybody aspires is that of Councillor (Rath), which is modified and extended by various affixes and prefixes: there is a rath for every profession: an architect is a Baurath; an advocate a Justizrath, &c. &c.; and a person with no profession at all contrives to be made a Hofrath (court councillor), a very unmeaning title, which is generally borne by persons who were never in a situation to give advice to the court. The dignity of Staatsrath (privy councillor) is given to members of the administration; some real dignity is attached to it, and the persons bearing it are further addressed by the title of excellency. The title Professor is much abused, as it is certainly appropriated by many persons who have no real claim to it by their learning or office. It is better, in conversing with a German, to give a person a rank greater than he is entitled to than to fall beneath the mark. Geheimrath, for example, is higher than Professor. It is upon this principle that an Englishman is sometimes addressed by the common people, to his great surprise, as Herr Graf (Mr. Count), and often as Euer Gnaden (Your Grace).

"Every man who holds any public office, should it be merely that of an under clerk, with a paltry salary of 40*l.* a year, must be gratified by hearing his title, not his name. Even absent persons, when spoken of, are generally designated by their official titles, however humble and unmeaning they may be. The ladies are not behind in asserting their claims to honorary appellations. All over Germany a wife insists upon taking the title of her husband, with a feminine termination. There is Madame general-ess, Madame privy councillor-ess, Madame daybook-keeper-ess, and a hundred others."—RUSSEL.

Read and see Kotzebue's amusing ridicule of this, in his comedy called Die Deutschen Kleinstädter.

These titles sometimes extend to an almost unpronounceable length; only think, for instance, of addressing a lady as Frau Oberconsistorialdirectorin (Mrs. Directress of the Upper Consistory Court). This may be avoided, however, by substituting the words Gnädige Frau (Gracious Madame) in addressing a lady. It must at the same time be observed, that this fondness for titles, and especially for the prefix von (of, equivalent to the French de, and originally denoting the possessor of an estate), is, to a certain extent, a vulgarity from which the upper classes of German society are free. The rulers of Germany take advantage of the national vanity, and lay those upon whom they confer the rank under obligation; while they, at the same time, levy a tax upon the dignity proportionate to its elevation; thus a mere Hofrath pays from 90 to 120 mks. annually, and the higher dignities a more considerable sum. If, however, the title is acquired by merit, no tax is paid, but merely a contribution to a fund for the widows and children of the class.

Certain forms and titles are also prefixed on the address of a letter: thus a Count of the high nobility and ancient empire must be addressed Erlaucht (Illustrious); a Count of the lesser noblesse, Hochgeborener Herr (High-born Sir); a baron and a minister, even though not of noble birth, and every captain is called Hochwohl geboren; a merchant or roturier must content himself with being termed Wohl-(well) geboren; while Hochedel (high noble) is ironically applied to tradesmen.

"In one respect, in Germany, I think politeness is carried too far—I mean in the perpetual act of pulling off the hat. Speaking ludicrously of it, it really becomes expensive, for, with a man who has a large acquaintance in any public place, his hat is never two minutes at rest."—NIMROD'S Letters from Holstein.

German civility, however, does not consist in outward forms alone, and a traveller will do well to conform, as soon as possible, to the manners of the country, even down to the mode of salutation, troublesome as it is. If he continue unbending, he will be guilty of rudeness: and on entering any public office, even the office of the schnellposts, the underlings of the place, down to the book-keeper, will require him to take off his hat, if he does it not of his own accord. An English traveller repaired to the police-office at Berlin to have his passport signed, and, having waited half an hour, said to the secretary to whom he had delivered it, "Sir, I think you have forgotten my passport." "Sir," replied the man of office, "I think you have forgotten your hat!"

In thus recommending to travellers the imitation of certain German customs, it is not meant, be it observed, to insist on the practice prevalent among the German men of saluting their male friends with a kiss on each side of the cheek. It is not a little amusing to observe this, with us feminine, mode of greeting, exchanged between two whiskered and mustachioed giants of the age of 50 or 60. It is to be noted that in Germany, on meeting a lady with whom he is acquainted, the gentleman bows first.

"Smoking is a most important branch of the business of life of almost every German of every condition; and to say the truth, I am rather inclined to think it a good thing for the common people. If they did not smoke, they would probably drink more."—Lord Dudley.

German Students.—The students of the German Universities, while not obliged to wear an academic dress, as in those of England, make themselves conspicuous by a costume which cannot but arrest the stranger's attention. This practice, it must be allowed, is confined to an exclusive few, who band themselves into societies, called Landmannschaften. Caps of odd shapes and various colours are adopted by them, according to the different Countries or Languages to which they may belong. Very long goat-like beards are cultivated on the chin, set off very often with high jack-boots, as an ornament to the feet. Whatever their attention to learning, no doubt can be entertained of their devotion to beer and pipes; and their favourite resorts are the beer-gardens and public-houses in the suburbs of university towns. The custom of duelling, to which they were formerly much addicted, is, it is believed, abating among them, and is discredited by the majority, being maintained only among the Corps of Landmannschaften, who are also the most absurd in their dress. (See Heidelberg, Göttingen, &c.)

Public Gardens and Taverns.—The outskirts of every German town abound in gardens and houses of public recreation, whither the inhabitants, not merely of the lower orders, but of the most respectable classes also, repair on summer afternoons, and especially on Sunday, to breathe the fresh air and forget the cares of business in the enjoyment of coffee, ices, beer, and the never-absent pipe. A band of excellent music is not wanting; indeed it forms the great attraction, and is usually advertised in the papers for a day or two beforehand; it performs for the entertainment of high and low, and the exciting tones of the waltz seldom fail to originate a dance, in which the citizens' wives and daughters, with their husbands and sweethearts, whirl round for hours in the dizzy maze.

It is true the time when these places are most frequented, and when the music and dancing are kept up with the greatest spirit, is the Sunday afternoon, which may, perhaps, shock the feelings of an English or Scotch man, accustomed to the rigorous Sabbath-keeping of his own country. A dispassionate examination, however, of the two systems, and of the effects produced by each, will probably induce him to pause before he gives unqualified approbation and preference to that of his own country.

These places of amusement do not open till after the hours of morning service in the churches, and most of the persons who resort to them have previously attended a church. A large portion are tradesmen who have been shut up in their shops, and artisans who have been working hard, all the week. They come in their best clothes, and accompanied by wives and children, who, be it observed, are always made parties in these amusements; they content themselves with coffee, beer, or wine, in moderate quantities; spirits are never seen, and instances of noisy turbulence and drunkenness are almost unknown on these occasions. Such recreation, even with the mirthful exercise of dancing superadded, is surely harmless in comparison with the solitary orgies of the pot-house and gin-shop, to which the same class of persons but too often devote their Sundays in our country, squandering in loathsome intemperance the earnings of the week, which ought to be devoted to the wants of the starving and neglected wife and family, who are left behind in their close and miserable home.

A certain intercourse and intermixture, also, is kept up between the upper and lower classes at these meetings, which cannot fail to have an advantageous influence in the relation between the different members of German society. The artisan does not jostle his superiors, or strive to imitate their dress and appearance, nor is he looked down upon as an intruder by them. All classes, high and low, mix together on an equal footing, and without restraint. The fact is, in Germany, perhaps more than in any other country, not only the privileges of nobility, but of all grades, are so clearly understood and kept distinct, that all parties, however intimate they may seem to be in public, know the exact boundaries of their position in society, and act accordingly; hence the noble feels at ease, and is conscious that his urbanity will not be abused; and the rest are influenced by a similar feeling.

Kirmes.—"The Germans are not ashamed of being pleased with trifles, nor of being pleased in very humble company; they think only whether they enjoy; and if their enjoyment costs little money and little trouble so much the better. They love their old customs and traditional festivals much better than we do, and keep to them more faithfully. Formerly, in England, many days were days not only of religious observance, but of festivity for the people; and each had its appropriate shows and pastimes: but these are nearly all forgotten; and the few which are remembered are turned into days of importunate begging, or coarse riot; and the pleasures are such as people of refinement and taste can take no share in, nor love to witness: and thus they sink lower and lower, and the chasm between rich and poor grows wider and wider, for want of some common enjoyment to which the high might give order and refinement, and the low cordiality and simplicity: and such an enjoyment is Kirmes.

"A yearly festival (Kirchen-Messe) is held in every village, when the poor people, who work hard all the year, meet together as on a Sunday, go to church together in their gayest clothes, and then make merry and enjoy themselves. It was, originally, the anniversary of the day on which the village church was consecrated;—[in some parts of Germany it is called Kirchweihe, the dedication of the church;]—but as it was found that these anniversaries often fell at inconvenient times for the country people, they are, by common consent, held in autumn, just after the vintage. At this joyous season the country people are in high spirits, and have more leisure and rather fuller purses than usual, and are well disposed to rejoice together in the blessing of their harvest. Every morning gay parties walk about on those beautiful hills, and those who can afford it dine at the inns, at every one of which is an excellent table-d'hôte at 1 o'clock; and after a merry dinner and a cup of coffee they adjourn to the ball-room. The Kirmes at considerable villages draws people from all the towns and villages for miles and miles round; the tables-d'hôte, as well as the balls, are of several degrees, so that even the poorest peasants may sit down to a good and social dinner adapted to their humble means. In the small villages there is most likely only one inn, and consequently only one table-d'hôte; but almost all have more than one ball-room, even though the village consists but of a few poor cottages. This ball-room is often a large shed without windows, but always with an excellent floor, and a little orchestra at one end: and this, when lighted up, and filled with happy faces, and with such a company of musicians as many a fashionable assembly in England cannot boast, is no despicable scene of festivity.

* * * * *

"I have nothing to tell you about the beauty and grace [of the rustic dancers], except that they had none; they had, however, cheerfulness and perfect absence of affectation, which are always agreeable. The kind and familiar deportment of their superiors inspires them with such confidence that they never seem to conceive that their innocent pleasures can excite disgust or ridicule; and you may be sure they take care not to do anything which may drive away those who share in their amusements. * * * The scene of the ball-room was one of hearty enjoyment; but I saw not the slightest approach to rudeness, indecorum, or drunkenness; it was the merriment of people who feel that others have a good opinion of them, and an interest in their comfort."—A Letter from Bonn.

§ 14. GERMAN WATERING-PLACES.

With the Germans an excursion to a watering-place in the summer is essential to existence, and the necessity of such a visit is confined to no one class in particular, but pervades all, from emperors and princes down to tradesmen and citi-officers obtain leave of absence from their posts—'the weary statesman' quits his bureau, and the merchant his counting-house—and the cumbrous retinue of the princes and their courts are put in motion about the month of July for some favourite scene of picturesque beauty—where nature has placed her fountains of health amidst the wildest and most beautiful features of landscape—as if to mark out the spot at once for the solace and invigoration of the sick and debilitated, and the recreation and indulgence of the sons of pleasure and of toil. During three months all that is distinguished in Germany is busied in the pursuit of health and dissipation. Festivity and forgetfulness of care are the general order of the day. State and ceremony, and titled hauteur, are in a great degree thrown aside in the easy intercourse of the bathing-place; all ranks meet at the balls, the concerts, the saloons, and the wells. A princess does not disdain a donkey-ride on the mountains, and a sovereign duke may be seen at the table-d'hôte side by side with a merchant or subaltern officer. Perhaps you will think that the mere circumstance of nature having so lavishly bestowed on the Germans these Hygeian fountains, with their picturesque scenes, is of itself a sufficient cause to account for the fondness with which they are frequented. But other causes will be probably found. The pleasures of a country life are as yet almost unknown in Germany; those mingled pleasures of enjoyment of scenery and rural beauties, domestic tranquillity and fire-side comforts, which so many of our own poets have enthusiastically described, and which every Englishman relishes. With the exception of the châteaux of a few nobles, and the villas near a few mercantile towns, a gentleman's country house is hardly to be seen in Germany. The picturesque scenes, which are so abundant, never appear habited or habitable. Nature has here always a character of wildness and loneliness. The summer season at the baths is thus the great object of desire, the rendezvous of friends, the indulgence to the young, and the relaxation of the busy and the careworn.

"The system of the day commences with a bath taken before breakfast. Afterwards follow excursions in the environs, walks in the gardens, visits to the cafés and billiard-rooms."—Autumn near the Rhine.

The Licensed Gaming-tables—long a disgrace and shame to the minor princes who derived revenue from them, and which were for many the chief attraction at these German watering-places—are now things of the past, the influence of public opinion throughout Confederated Germany having brought about the Acts of 1868, by which their existence was limited to the year 1872.

The evening's entertainment concludes with a ball once or twice a week. A gentleman may ask any lady to dance, without the formality of being presented to her; but this kind of introduction does not entitle him to approach her as an acquaintance on future occasions when he may meet her.

To be properly enjoyed, a German, like an English watering-place, should be visited in company with friends, and there is little society to be found out of your own circle; so that a solitary traveller, after having gazed about him for a day or two, will commonly not hesitate to take flight, in order to escape from ennui.

This work does not pretend to describe the medical properties and sanitary powers of the various mineral springs; those who repair to them with a view of taking the waters or the baths should consult their own physician before leaving home. It is also prudent and customary to ask the advice of the physician resident at the baths as well before commencing a course of waters.

Physicians' Fees.—The usual fee to a foreign physician, from an English patient, used to be 5 fr. a visit, but innovations spread, and many now exact a Napoleon. About 6 mks. is a fair sum.

The mode and extent of using the waters, whether internally or externally, can only be regulated by a medical man acquainted, if possible, with the case and constitution of each person, and decidedly experienced in the qualities of the celebration or festival, akin to our own provincial 'music meetings,' but different, inasmuch as the chorus mainly consists of amateurs. These meetings are, on the average, interesting in the music selected, excellent as regards execution from the heartiness, zeal, and patience in co-operation which pervade it, and most pleasantly social. It is the fault of bad English manners, if any Englishman, having claims on the good society of his own country, finds himself 'a stranger amongst strangers' on these occasions—a very slight introduction (and of course some power of communication) securing him a good-natured welcome. Those who winter in Berlin will of course make an effort to attend the meetings of the Sing Academie. This may be called the best and most renowned amateur vocal society in Europe, and its members occasionally, for purposes of charity, give public performances on a grand scale. Gentlemen, too, will do well to gain access to such meetings of the Lieder-tafel societies as may fall in their way. These are singing parties of gentlemen only, who execute the part-music of German composers with great spirit and energy; both the music and the execution calculated, by their difference of style, especially to interest those who care for glees and madrigals at home.

,

- -
/ 2

"The orchestra has by a formal decree been banished from the churches of Western Germany; the mass in the largest cathedral is now accompanied by the organ alone. The organs in Dresden, in the Sophien Kirche, the Catholic Church, and one or two others, built by the Silbermanns, are well worth an effort to hear.

"Lastly, for those who search less scientifically than the traveller to whom the above hints are addressed, most attractive cheap music abounds in Germany. Almost every town has its Casino or private subscription club; its pleasure garden, and other public resorts, to which every one is admitted, where a good band, often of wind-instruments alone, may be heard to play good music to good company for a very small price of entrance. And these unpretending concerts (the very absence of pretension of which is an evidence of popular taste, as distinct from fashion) are sometimes diversified by very fair quartett singing. For the characteristic of German musical execution is, that generally every one occupied in its production takes pains in its production because he likes it. In most of the above matters the traveller has better chance of gaining available and precise information from the landlord of his hotel than in the place where he would naturally seek it—at the music-shop. The want of accuracy, and backwardness, as regards the amusements of the day, to be complained of on the part of those managing the latter establishments, will often puzzle and inconvenience a prompt and impatient Englishman."—H. F. C.

§ 16. CLUBS AND READING-ROOMS.

In all the principal German towns Societies corresponding nearly with a London club, and known by such names as the Casino, Museum, Harmonie, or the like, are to be found. "They are very rational establishments, fitted up with a commodious elegance, which make their resources doubly attractive. The reading-rooms are stocked with a profusion of journals, reviews, and pamphlets, literary and political, from all parts of Germany; besides the French, and sometimes English and Italian newspapers. There is often a library of books of reference, and a conversation-room, where talkative quidnuncs may be relieved from the silence prescribed in the reading-rooms, besides billiard-tables and card-rooms, and sometimes a good table-d'hôte provided by a restaurateur of the establishment. The assembly-rooms, which form part of the edifice, are only open on occasions of balls, concerts, and evening societies: to these ladies are admitted, and they are kept sacred from the fumes of tobacco, which frequently perfume and tinge the other handsome apartments. The casinos are supported by subscriptions,—noblesse and bourgeoisie, including common tradesmen, being alike members. A foreign traveller obtains easy access to them by SECTION I.

RHENISH PRUSSIA.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE.	PAGE
34. The RHINE (B.) Arnhem to Cologne, by Emmerich, Wesel, Oberhausen, Duisburg, and Düsseldorf —RAIL (rt. bank) or steamer - - -	20	39. The Ahr Valley — Remagen to Ahrweiler and Altenahr -	88
35. Nijmegen to Cologne, by Cleve and Geldern [Xanten]—RAIL (l. bank) - - -	24	40. The Lower Eifel—Brohl on the Rhine to the Lake of Laach , Mayen , and Lützerath -	91
36. Aix-la-Chapelle to Cologne —RAILWAY - - -	27	41. Coblenz to Treves — [Bertrich Baths] - - -	93
36A. Aix-la-Chapelle to Berlin by Ruhrort and Oberhausen —RAIL - - -	44	42. The MOSEL— Treves to Coblenz , by Berncastel, Trarbach, Marienburg, Alf, Cochem [Schloss Elz], Cobern -	102
36B. Gladbach to Duren by Julich —RAIL - - -	45	43. Aix-la-Chapelle to Treves -	108
37. The RHINE (C). Cologne to Coblenz - - -	45	45. The Upper Eifel — Aix-la-Chapelle to Treves , by Düren, Euskirchen , and Gerolstein —Rail - - -	110
38. The RHINE (D). Coblenz to Mayence - - -	67	46. Bingen to Treves - - -	113
		47. Cologne to Frankfurt-a.-M. , by Siegburg and Giessen -	114

ROUTE 34.

THE RHINE (B) : ARNHEM TO COLOGNE, BY EMMERICH, WESEL, OBERHAUSEN, DUISBURG, AND DÜSSELDORF.—RAIL (RT. BANK) OR STEAMER.

Steamer every Monday from Rotterdam via Arnhem to Cologne in 23 hrs. (from Arnhem). In descending it takes 11 hrs. from Cologne to Arnhem and 17 to Rotterdam (via Nijmegen, steamers daily between Rotterdam and Cologne, 28 hrs. up, 22 hrs. down). As there is nothing to see in the lower part of the Rhine, it is better to proceed as far as Cologne by Rail.

Railway. Distance 101 m. ; time 4 to 6 hrs. ; 3 trains daily.

Arnhem is described in Rte. 5, and the lower part of the Rhine between Arnhem and Rotterdam in Rte. 11, Handbk. for Holland and Belgium.

The railway crosses the Ijssel and proceeds S.E. to 9 m. Zevenaar Junct. Stat. Dutch Custom House. [Branch Rly. S.E. 12 m. to Cleve in Rte. 35, entering Prussian territory and crossing the Rhine by a steam ferry at Elten Stat. (Inn, not good), a village with an ancient nunnery, secularised in 1803.]

About 8 m. above Arnhem, and about the same distance above Nijmegen, the 2 branches of the Rhine—the Waal, and the Lower Rhine, or Lek—unite. Before entering the undivided stream, it is worth while to give some little attention to the hydrau-

The Rhine is here divided into 2 branches by the island of Buderich, also fortified by block-houses, and is crossed by a bridge of boats.

A monument was erected in 1835 on the parade near the Stat. to the 11 Prussian officers engaged in Schill's revolt at Stralsund, who were mercilessly shot here by Napoleon, 1809. In the porch of the desecrated Church of St. Willebrord was born (1555) Peregrine Bertie (Ld. Willoughby d'Eresby); his father and mother, flying from the Marian persecution, were refused lodgings by the inhabitants of Wesel as vagabonds of evil repute. The register and marble tablet against one of the piers in the S. aisle record the event. Wesel nevertheless served as an asylum to many English Protestants, its inhabitants having early adopted the principles of the Reformation. Rapin here wrote his History of England, and died here, 1725.

From 1806 to 1814 Wesel, though on the rt. bank of the Rhine, was included in Napoleon's French empire.

[Rly. N.E. to Münster and S.W. to Venlo, completing the direct line between Paris or Flushing and Bremen and Hamburg. Branch Rly. in progress W. to Goch by Xanten.]

1. Immediately opposite Wesel lies Fort Blücher, tête-de-pont of Wesel, called Fort Napoleon while it belonged to the French. A small town was swept away to make room for it, and has since been rebuilt about 3 m. off.

Dinslaken Stat. The Rly. turns away from the Rhine.

Oberhausen Junct. Stat. (Buffet.) Five Rlys. diverge hence to Hanover, Berlin, Leipzig, and all parts of N. Germany (Rte. 66); also a short branch Rly. runs to rt. Ruhrort Stat. (Inn, Clever Hof), at the opening of the Ruhr into the Rhine, Pop. 7740, is the harbour and port of shipment for the coals brought down the Ruhr from the coalfield on its banks. Nearly 2,000,000 tons are exported annually to Holland, Antwerp, Strassburg, and North Germany.

There are very large boat-builders' yards here. Near the Rly. Stat. are the Iron Works of the Phoenix Co., 6 blast and 108 puddling furnaces. Travellers bound for Cologne or Berlin will gain time by quitting the steamer here, or at Duisburg, and taking the railway.

By means of Armstrong's hydraulic crane, rly. carriages are lifted into and out of a steam ferry-boat, furnished with rails, to convey trucks across the Rhine to and from

1. Homburg Terminus of the Railway from the Rhine to Aix-la-Chapelle. (Rte. 36A.) Thus, coals from the Ruhr are sent across to Crefeld, Viersen, Gladbach, &c.

rt. Duisburg Junct. Stat. (Inns: Europäischer Hof; Rheinischer Hof). A manufacturing town (Drusiburgum of the Romans) of 31,500 Inhab., near the Ruhr, which falls into the Rhine 3 m. below the town. St. Salvator's (1415), 1½ m. distant from the Rhine, is a fine ch., restored 1850. The University, founded here 1655, was suppressed 1802. Rly to Minden (Rte. 66.)

[The Valley of the Ruhr is distinguished not only for its active industry, its coal mines, iron works, &c., but also for its very picturesque scenery. It deserves exploring; the most interesting points being Hohen Siegburg (Rte. 47), Blankenstein, and Werden (Rte. 66.)]

1. Uerdingen, marked by the poplars round it. At Eichelskamp, near this, the French revolutionary army under Lefebvre, 25,000 strong, first crossed the Rhine, 1795, and, by violating the neutrality of the Prussian territory turned the position of the Austrians.

rt. Calcum Stat. [1½ m. from this is rt. Kaiserswerth (Inn: Pfälzer Hof), originally, as its name implies, an island, long the residence of the German Emperors. Pippin of Herstall built here a castle, from which the Emperor Henry IV., when a child 12 years of age (1062), was secretly carried off from his mother Agnes, the Jew-poet, born 1799, in the Bolker St., and of Cornelius the painter.

English Ch. Service on Sunday at the German Protestant Ch., 18, Berger-Strasse, at 10½ A.M.

At Pempelfort is the residence of the philosopher Frederick Jacobi, the resort of Göthe, Wieland, Herder, Stolberg, and other literary men of the last cent. It stands in a pleasant garden, and is now the Artists' Club, who have facetiously named it the Malkasten (Paintbox).

The mansion of Count Spee, at Helldorf, about 12 m. from Düsseldorf, near the Calcum Stat., on the railroad to Duisburg, contains Frescoes by modern German artists of great excellence:—1. The meeting of Pope Alexander III. and Fred. Barbarossa, in St. Mark's, Venice, by Cornelius; 2. Henry the Lion, the head of the Guelphic party, submitting to the Emp. Barbarossa; 3. The Humiliation of the Milanese to Barbarossa—both by Mücke; and, 4. Barbarossa seizing with his own hand the Saracen standard, by Lessing; two other designs by Mücke and Lessing.

Düsselthal, 3 m. from Düsseldorf, is a sequestered abbey, converted into an asylum for destitute children by the benevolent exertions of Count von der Recke. About 180 children of both sexes receive a plain, useful education, and are taught some trade by which they may maintain themselves.

Rly. to Cologne; trains in 1 hr. (see below)—to Aix-la-Chapelle, by Neuss (Rte. 36A)—to Elberfeld, Minden, Hanover, Magdeburg, and Berlin (Rte. 67).

The Steamer takes 5 h. in ascending, 2½ in descending the Rhine between Düsseldorf and Cologne. The Rhine winds so much as to render the distance by water about one-fourth greater than that by land.

1. Soon after quitting Düsseldorf the steeple of Neuss (Rte. 35) is visible.

Drusus is said to have thrown a bridge over the Rhine here: at present there is a flying bridge at Hetdorf.

rt. Benrath Stat., a handsome schloss, built by the Dukes of Cleve and Berg, and inhabited by Murat while grand duke, is seen at a distance.

1. Zons, a town of many towers. The river Wupper is crossed.

rt. Mülheim Junct. Stat., a flourishing town. Extensive manufacture founded by Protestant refugees from Cologne in the 17th cent. Steamers every hour across to Cologne. Close to it is Schloss Stammheim, the seat of Count Fürstenberg, with its modern Gothic chapel near the Rhine. [Branch Rly. to Elberfeld—to Gladback for the Abbey of Altenberg, see Rte. 36—to Vohwinkel, see Rte. 68.]

rt. Deutz Stat. Only express trains cross the bridge to

1. Cologne Junct. Stat. (Rte. 36.)

ROUTE 35.

NIJMEGEN TO COLOGNE, BY CLEVE AND GELDERN [XANTEN]. L. BANK RAIL.

Distance, 88 m.; time, 3½ to 4½ hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Nijmegen is described in Rte. 5, Handbk. for Holland and Belgium.

The line makes a wide bend southward, and away from the Rhine, crossing the Dutch frontier about 6 m. from Nijmegen.

9 m. Cranenburg Stat. Prussian Custom House.

6 m. Cleve Junct. Stat. (Inns: Maywald, S. of the town, near the castle; Robbers, in the Thiergarten; Bad H., both outside the town, near the baths; H. Laferrière. This town of 9700 Inhab. is $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the Rhine, but connected with it by a canal. It was formerly capital of the Duchy of Cleve, and long a disputed possession of the house of Prussia. It is built upon 3 gentle hills, and perhaps received its name from the Latin word clivus, a slope. The country around is charming from its beauty and fertility, and the pleasing variety of hills and valleys clothed with wood and verdure. In the centre of the town rises the Schwanenburg, an old castle, formerly the residence of the Dukes of Cleve, and in which was born the ill-fated Anne, whom Henry VIII. termed a "Flanders mare." It is now converted into public offices. The oldest part of it is a massive and picturesque Tower, 180 feet high, founded perhaps by Julius Cæsar, on the top of a rock, and overlooking the country far and wide. It derives its name of "the Swan's Tower" from a traditional story of a strange knight who appeared to a Duchess of Cleve in a vessel drawn by a swan; she fell in love with him, and married him, but after 10 years the swan returned and bore him away from his wife, who never saw him more. The tale forms the subject of one of Southey's poems. The Ch. (Stiftskirche—1345) contains monuments of the Counts of Cleve—effigies of Adolph VI. of Gueldern and wife, 1394; engraved brasses of John I. (1481) and II. The Prinzenhof is a handsome building, erected by Prince John Maurice of Nassau-Siegen, 1663, belonging to the Princess of Waldeck: and at Berg und Thal, 2 m. off (Restaurant), on the road to Xanten, within a grove of trees, is Prince Maurice's iron tomb. The Thiergarten is an agreeable pleasure-ground, containing a mineral spring, much resorted to as a watering-place, chiefly by Dutch families who lodge in the 2 hotels. The woods around are traversed by pleasant walks, commanding fine views. There is a fine panoramic view from the Cleverberg, where a monument is erected to men of Cleves who fell in the war.

Rly. N. across the Rhine to Zevenaar and Arnhem (see Rte. 34). Diligence twice daily to S. 9 m.

Calcar. In the Gothic Church (14th century) are several elaborate altarpieces, choir-stalls, &c., of carved oak, representing Scripture subjects and legends, of good execution, the productions of a school of art which flourished here in the 15th cent., when Calcar was the seat of a great cloth-trade. Some of these are the works of a family of carvers named Boegel, who seem to have furnished other Rhenish cities with similar carved screens, &c. Here is an altarpiece, the best painting of Johan von Calcar. There is also a stately Town-hall. Frederick the Great's general of cavalry, v. Seidlitz, was born here 1721. There is a monument to him in the Market-place.

Diligence to S. 10 m. Xanten, on the rly. from Goch to Wesel (see below).

The rly. from Cleve continues S. to

8 m. Goch Junct. Stat. [Rly. W. to Bortel from Breda and Flushing. E. in progress to Wesel, passing

Xanten (Inn: Ingenlath), a town of 3600 Inhab., $2\frac{1}{4}$ m. from the Rhine, near the Castra Vetera of the Romans. The camp of Varus, from which he led the Roman legions across the Rhine, was on the neighbouring hill called Fürstenberg. According to one version, the Emp. Maximian, 302 A.D., caused St. Gereon and the Theban Legion, amounting to 6000 men, to be slaughtered here, because they had become Christians. The scene of this event is also placed at Agaunum, now St. Maurice, in Switzerland; but of course this version is not received at Cologne, where the traveller may see the bones of the legion in St. Gereon's Church. The Ch. of St. Victor, centurion of the Theban Legion, surmounted by twin spires, is a beautiful structure of trass (or tuff), in the pointed style (date 1383), except the W. front, probably built 1128. The whole was restored 1486-1522. The roodloft dates from 1400. Over the high altar is the antique silver shrine (enamelled) of St. Victor. The Altar of the Virgin is of carved oak, like those at Calcar. The altarpiece is the best work of Barth. de Bruyn, a Cologne painter, 1534. On the S. side of St. Victor is the Chapel of St. Michael, the oldest building in Xanten. In the churchyard an obelisk erected by Napoleon, 1811, marks the grave of the learned antiquary Corn. de Paw. The country around affords abundant traces of its ancient masters, in the variety of Roman antiquities every day brought to light. At Xanten stood the castle of the Niebelungen, the heroes of the old German epic, and here Siegfried, the slayer of the dragon, was born, according to the legend.

Diligence twice daily N. to Cleve, passing Calcar, see above.]

The line from Goch proceeds S.E. and crosses the Ners to 13 m. Geldern Junct. Stat. (Inn: Schwarzer Adler). This town of 5000 Inhab. was, up to 1813, chief town of a Duchy of the same name, but now Prussian. Wool, silk, and cotton manufactories.

[Rly. N.E. to Wesel, and S.W. to Venlo, completing the direct line between Paris and Hamburg.]

11 m. Kempen Junct. Stat. This town of 4600 Inhab. was formerly a fortress, and as such was besieged over and over again, and in 1703 destroyed by Prussian cannon. The fine Pfarrkirche is of the 13th and 14th cents.

Thomas à Kempis was born here 1380, of poor parents.

6 m. Crefeld Junct. Stat. (Inn:

Wilder Mann), formerly capital of the Dukes of Mörs, a flourishing town of 57,000 Inhab. (13,000 Protestants), with straight spacious streets and handsome houses, which, by their neatness, give to this place all the appearance of a Dutch town. It owes its prosperity to the manufactures of silk and velvet, the largest in Germany, which employ 6000 persons, and were founded by the Protestants who fled here from Cologne, to the protection of the Princes of Orange (1600 to 1702). Part of the silk goods introduced into England as French are in fact manufactured here, and are equal in quality to the French. The annual value of the produce of the looms amounts to 1½ million sterling.

Railways to Aix-la-Chapelle:—to Oberhausen, Ruhrort, and Hanover;—to Venlo and Eindhoven.

5 m. Osterath Junct. Stat. [Rly. to Essen, crossing the Rhine at Rheinhausen.]

5 m. Neuss Junct. Stat. (Inn: Rheinischer Hof). Pop. 12,720. It was the Novesium of the Romans, mentioned by Tacitus. In his time it lay close to the Rhine, which at present flows 1½ m. from it. Drusus threw a bridge over the Rhine here. The picturesque Cologne gate, still called the Drusus Thor, is Roman in the lower part, the upper being of the 14th cent.: some cannon-balls from the batteries of Charles the Bold, who besieged the town in vain 48 weeks, 1474, have been built into it.

The Ch. of St. Quirinus, a splendid edifice, appears, from an inscription in the wall on the S. side of the interior, to have been built in 1208. It, especially the highly ornamented W. end and tower, is one of the most remarkable specimens of the transition from the round to the pointed style. Inside, although most of the side arches are pointed, the vaulting of the nave is round. The cross forming the E. end terminates in 3 apses, and is surrounded by a vaulted octagon dome. Beneath is a fine crypt. Obs. the peculiar form of the windows in the nave (W. end),

PLAN OF AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.

1. Cathedral.
2. Rathhaus.
3. Eisenbrunnen.

4. Post.
5. Kurhaus.
6. Police.

1413, is 120 ft. long, of great height (114 ft.), having the appearance of a stupendous lantern all of glass; but the tie-rods in the vaulting indicate that the lightness has been attained at the expense of strength. Its windows, 85 ft. high, are filled with modern painted glass from designs by Cornelius—gifts of Fred. William IV. and others. Its pulpit, or ambo, a gift of the Emp. Henry II., is covered with plates of silver gilt, ornamented with antique carvings in ivory, gems, and precious stones: this is concealed by a wooden case, which the sacristan will remove (fee 6 grosch.). The Emp. Otto III. was buried in front of the high altar. Full musical mass every Sunday, at 10 A.M.

The Treasury*, or Schatzkammer, in a chamber entered from the gallery, is a perfect museum of mediæval art, in jewellery gold. Admission, 9 to 1, 3 to 6; 1 to 3 pers., 3 mks. The church plate* and articles of goldsmith's work, shrines, ampuls, reliquaries, crosses, chalices, &c., render it a perfect museum, and a real treasure of the best period of Gothic art, deserving attention for the inventive skill shown in the designs, and the excellent execution of the ornaments. It is perhaps the richest collection of the kind remaining. The most remarkable pieces are 2 large shrines of silver-gilt enamelled, with figures and inscriptions, said to be gifts of Otto III. and Frederick II.; the golden plates that covered the throne of Charles the Great impressed with figures in the Byzantine style; a fine ivory cup; 2 Gothic reliquaries of gold, of beautiful workmanship, gifts of the Emp. Charles V. and Philip II. of Spain, but evidently of much earlier date. Golden cross, 9th cent., gift of Lothar II., has a cameo of Augustus in front; a sceptre and ornamented chest, gifts of Richard of Cornwall; the Pala d'Oro, and 12 gilt reliefs, for an altar decoration, 10th cent. The skull of Charles the Great, enclosed in a silver case, something like a barber's block, and his arm-bone, both taken from his grave. It is recorded of Charles the Great, that he was of tall stature, and this is confirmed by the immense length and thickness of this arm-bone; unluckily it has been discovered that the bone is no arm at all, but a leg-bone, or tibia! The case for the arm was the gift of Louis XI. of France, who had it made 1481. The rest of the bones of Charles the Great were discovered here, in 1847, in a chest, put away in a dark closet. Besides these are the hunting-horn of Charles the Great, an elephant's tusk, gift of Haroun-al-Raschid; also a locket of the Virgin's hair, and a piece of the true cross, 2 relics which he wore round his neck, in his grave, as well as while alive. The leathern girdle of Christ (on which may still be seen the impression of Constantine's seal), the cord which bound the rod which smote Him, a nail of the Cross, the sponge which was filled with vinegar, that arm of Simeon on which he bore the infant Jesus, some of the blood and bones of St. Stephen, some manna from the Wilderness, and some bits of Aaron's rod, are preserved here! It was upon these relics that the German Emperor swore at his coronation.

The Great Relics are shown only once in 7 years, from the 10th to the 24th of July. The last exhibition took place in 1874. In 1860 upwards of 500,000 persons, chiefly peasants, resorted to the exhibition! These relics were presented to Charles the Great by the Patriarch of Jerusalem, and by the Caliph Haroun-al-Raschid. They are deposited in a rich shrine of silver gilt, of the 13th cent., set with antique glass and enamels, and consist of—1. The robe worn by the Virgin at the Nativity; it is of cotton, 5 ft. long.—2. The swaddling-clothes in which Jesus was wrapped; they are of cloth, as coarse as sack, of a yellow colour.—3. The cloth on which the head of John the Baptist was laid.—4. The scarf worn by our Saviour at the Crucifixion, bearing stains of blood. Intermixed with these religious relics are many antique gems, some Babylonian cylinders, and the like, which serve as jewels to ornament the saintly treasury.

On the way from the rly. stat. you pass by the Marienkirche, built for the Jesuits, into a very handsome wide street terminating in the Theatre (built 1825) and the Elisenbrunnen. This is situated in a fine building with a semi-circular Doric colonnade, built 1824. It serves the purpose of a pump-room, and has a café and Restaurant attached to it, and a pretty Garden behind. The guests, or visitors, repair hither at 7 in the morning to drink the water, which, though conducted in pipes direct from the Emperor's spring, retains a temperature of 42° Réaumur. A band of excellent music plays at the spot from 7 to 8 A.M. until the end of September, which is considered the close of the season.

The Mineral Springs of Aix rise in the centre of the town; they are of 2 classes: the upper, which are the hottest; the lower, which are cooler. In the first class the principal spring is the Kaiserquelle, at the upper end of the street called Büchel, where is an extensive Kaiserbad—Bathing Establishment. This spring contains a larger quantity of sulphur than any other known in Europe; and when the vapour arising from it is confined, and not allowed to escape, it deposits crystals of sulphur. It has a temperature of 131° Fahr., and owes its disagreeable taste to the presence of supersulphuretted hydrogen gas. According to Liebig's analysis these springs contain iodine and bromine. These waters are efficacious in chronic cutaneous diseases, chronic rheumatism, gout, the effects of metallic poisons, in certain cases of neuralgia, and in lymphatic and strumous swellings and ulcers. The Emperor's spring supplies—2. The Bain Neuf (New Bath), in the Büchel, comfortable, and better lighted than No. 1.—3. Bain de la Reine d'Hongrie (Queen of Hungary's Bath), in the Edelgasse. The less hot Quirinus spring supplies the Bain St. Quirin (St. Quirinus' Bath), having only 38° Réaumur.

The baths supplied by the lower spring, situated in the street called Comphausbad, are—1. Le Bain de la Rose (Rose Bath).—2. Bain St. Corneil (St. Cornelius' Bath).—3. Bain St.

Charles (St. Charles's Bath).—4. Armenbad (Poor Bath), appropriated to the use of the poor.

Besides the warm spring there are also sources of chalybeate water, to receive which a Bath-house and Hotel are erected in the Theater Strasse.

The bath-houses are the property of the town, and are let to tenants: they contain lodgings, and are pretty much on a par.

The Kurhaus (No. 10), in the Comphaus-Bad-Strasse. The grand suite of rooms is devoted to the use of visitors. Here is a reading-room, supplied with English and foreign newspapers; open 10 A.M. unto 11 P.M. Ball-room and refreshment rooms. The band plays in the adjoining garden from 3 to 4½ daily. Every Saturday here is a ball paré, commencing at 8½. It is usual to subscribe to the Kurhaus for a month, or for the season. This building was formerly the Redoute. In the garden is the new Music Hall.

Portions of the ramparts remain, of 14th and 15th cent., and 2 old gateways. Pont Thor, on the N., retains its barbican, and Marschier Thor, near Cologne Terminus, is a small mediæval fort, with grooves for portcullis, a hall on the upper floor, and dungeon below.

The Manufacture of Cloth, the most important in Aix-la-Chapelle, employs more than 14,900 persons, who work either in the 48 factories in and around the town, or at their own houses. In 17 needle manufactories employment is found for 1500 persons. There are several manufactories of steam-engines, spinning machinery, &c.

H. Benrath has a well-furnished library and music-shop.

Physicians: Dr. Wetzlar, Dr. Brondis, Dr. Diemer, Dr. Sträter, Dr. Kilian, Dr. Reumont, all speak English.

Post Office: 23 Jacob Strasse, near the Town Hall.

English Ch. Service on Sunday, at 12 and 7, in the ch., 21 Anna Strasse.

Lovers of music will easily gain admission to the Liedertafel Saturday Evening Concerts, and those of other societies.

The Boulevard, above alluded to, is a pleasant promenade, occupying the place of the levelled ditch and walls of the town, prettily laid out, shaded by fine trees.

Opposite to the Rhine Rly. Stat. is a Monument erected, 1872, to the soldiers who fell in the campaigns of 1866 and 1870.

The Environs of Aix abound in beautiful walks. A pleasant walk of $\frac{3}{4}$ m. from the gates of Aix leads by an avenue of trees to Burtscheid (French Borcette), a small town of 5000 Inhab. and a watering-place, now connected by houses with Aix. On the way the noble viaduct is passed, which carries the Cologne railway (see below) over the valley of Burtscheid. Persons intending to take the waters, and desiring retirement, will find this a less expensive place of residence than Aix. Inns: H. St. Charles, Rose Hotel, very good;—Bain de l'Épée, board and lodging 5 fr. per day.

The principal source, called Kochbrunnen (i.e. Boiling Spring), is hotter than any at Aix (179° Fahrenheit); it resembles the Aix waters in its contents, but, while they are nauseous from the taste of sulphur, this is almost tasteless: all that can be detected is a slightly saline flavour, by no means disagreeable. It rises in the open air in the middle of the principal street. Burtscheid also contains springs of saline water not unlike that of Wiesbaden. The hot springs are so copious that the rivulet formed by the union of them runs warm;—der warme Bach.

Walks, Drives, and Excursions.—a. N. of Aix, on the opposite side to Burtscheid, $\frac{3}{4}$ m. beyond the Pont Thor, or Sandkaul Thor, is the Lousberg, a hill 200 ft. high, planted and laid out in winding walks, surmounted by an obelisk, raised for trigonometrical purposes, commanding a beautiful view of Aix, of the line of the Railway, and along the rich valley (Soersthal) strewn with country-houses, coal-pits, &c. The white pilgrimage church on the Salvatorsberg is a conspicuous object. The summit of the Lousberg may be reached in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. by an easy carriage-road. On the lower slope stands a Café, commanding a noble prospect.

The Hospital on the Boulevard, near the Cologne gate, stands in a garden of 30 acres well laid out.

b. An agreeable drive of 3 m. along the Burtscheid road, and by the Ronheid Stat., leads to Carlshöhe, pretty grounds on a thickly wooded ridge, laid out with walks.

c. The Frankenburg, described next page, 1 m. distant from the theatre, 20 min.'s walk from the Rhine Railway Stat. 1 m. farther is the wood of Drimborn, a grove whose refreshing shade is resorted to in the summer heats.

d. About 2 m. out of Aix, on the rt. of the post-road to Cologne, is the château of Kalkofen, in which General Elliott, the brave defender of Gibraltar, died.

e. About 7 m. S.W. of Aix., near the great railway viaduct over the Geul, is an old castle on a height, called Emmaburg, from the daughter of Charlemagne, who ran off with his secretary Eginhard. Near it are calamine-mines and zinc-works of the Vieille Montagne Company.

Railroads—to Cologne; to Liège 4 times a-day; to Brussels and Antwerp 3 times, and to Ostend twice a-day, in 7 hrs.; to Antwerp direct by Maestricht, 4 hrs. rail; to Düsseldorf, Hanover, and Berlin (Rte. 36A); to Paris 2 express trains daily, in $9\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.

The Rly. Stat. for Cologne is on the E. side of the town, between it and Burtscheid. A noble Viaduct, 892 ft. long, and 70 ft. high in the centre, consisting of 2 tiers of 15 small and 20 large brick arches, carries the rly. from the stat. across the narrow valley of the Wurbach, in which Burtscheid is built. A good view is obtained, a little beyond it, of Aix-la-Chapelle, and the Lousberg behind.

1 m. from Aix, on l., stands the Castle of Frankenburg, an ivy-clad and ruined tower of considerable antiquity, to which a more modern edifice (date 1642) is attached, surrounded by a pool of water, once a lake. Charles the Great is said to have for castle on this sp

Rhenish Prussia

ing to the leger queen Fastrada. to be enclosed and never quit neglecting the c and abandoning h until Turpin the day until he slep took off the golde
the dead queen's the castle moat, & emperor from the
is a café and resta

The village Niv
we enter the cu
Nirm Tunnel, 32' carries the rly. t hills which surrou beautiful wood c reach

6 m. Stolberg
Hiesel, Weltera) 3000) is seen on l valley studded w country seats. I picturesque old G hill. The princip of brass, and the wire, &c. In the million square fee made in a year.
and silver are ob
the vicinity. [Br

The district tr
and in which St ductive coalfield, manufactories of
It is scattered ove engines, and chim tensive ironwork furnished hence, & the steamboats on the shafts are mor

After crossing stream flowing ou berg, a second tun driven through th
berg in a curve, b

2 m. Eschweiler
Raisin). An inc 15,600) on the Ir
tures of silk, iron,

[N. G.]

valley of the Erft, which river is crossed on 3 bridges a little before reaching 7 m. Horrem Stat.

On l. rises the Castle of Frenz, whose ancient owners were descended from one of the 15 noble families of Cologne who traced their descent from colonists established in that city by the Emperor Trajan, A.D. 108!

The railway passes from the valley of the Erft into that of the Rhine by the Königsdorf Tunnel, 1 m. long, carried through a sand-hill 136 ft. below the summit, and lined with brick.

3 m. Königsdorf Stat.

On l. is the village of Brauweiler, with a large Benedictine convent, now a Penitentiary. In the fine Romanesque Ch. (13th cent.) is an engraved monumental slab, and some old fresco paintings on the roof.

A fine view is presented of Cologne, with its many towers and steeples; conspicuous among which rises the octagon of St. Gereon. Just where the railroad arrives abreast of the walls, it passes (rt.) one of the detached forts, capable of mounting 100 guns, surrounded by trees like an island in the open plain.

9 m. Cologne (Germ. Cöln, Dutch Keulen). Terminus, or Central Rly. Stat. near the Dom, ill-managed, officials careless of luggage, and uncivil. Buffet at the stat. Omnibuses to the several hotels. Cabs (Droschken) stand for hire.

Inns: In the middle of the town are—the H. Disch, Brücken Strasse, excellent; H. du Nord, near the Cathedral and Rly. Stat., first-rate, but somewhat noisy; Mainzer Hof, near the Post-office, good; H. Victoria, well managed, on the Heumarkt; H. de l'Europe, opposite W. end of Cathedral, small but comfortable. On the Rhine Quay, close to the steamers, are—Grand H. Royal, very good; H. de Cologne; H. de Hollande, clean and well conducted; Wiener Hof. 2nd class: H. Ernst, near the Cathedral; Laacher Hof.

Inns in Deutz, on the opposite side of the Rhine: H. Bellevue, commanding fine view of Cologne, and not far from the stat. of the Minden, Hanover, and Berlin Rly.; H. Prinz Karl. These inns have gardens in which there is commonly music every evening in summer.

Café and Restaurant, St. Paul, near the Central Bahnhof. Café du Dome.

Droskies (cabs). Fares: for 1 or 2 persons, 60 pf.; for 3 persons, 1 mk.; for 4 persons, 1 mk. 25 pf., for a drive within the walls. The fare is double to Deutz and the Cöln-Minden Stat., with the addition of a bridge toll. Luggage extra. Tariff of prices is hung up in every cab.

Post Office, 25 Glockengasse. Telegraph at the Central Rly. Stat.

—Cologne the largest and wealthiest city on the Rhine, and a free port, is a first-class fortress on the l. bank of the Rhine. Pop. 150,000 (14,000 Protestants, 7500 soldiers), including Deutz, its suburb, and Tête de Pont, on the rt. bank, with which it is connected by a boat bridge 1400 ft. long, removed in winter, and by a handsome permanent double iron tubular suspension Bridge, 1352 ft., for rly., carriage, and foot traffic, finished 1859. It rests on 3 piers, 313 ft. apart, calculated to resist the floating ice of winter, supporting 4 iron lattice spans of 344 ft. 6 in. each. At the Cologne end is a statue, by Bläser, of the late King Friedrich Wilhelm IV., and at the Deutz end an equestrian statue, by Drake, of the Emperor William I.

Cologne owes its existence to a camp pitched here by the Romans, under Marcus Agrippa, which was afterwards enlarged and rendered permanent by the removal, under Augustus, of a native tribe, called the Ubii, from the rt. bank of the Rhine (Tacitus, Ann. I. 36), and their settlement at the spot now occupied by Cologne. This first city was called Oppidum Ubiorum. More than 80 years after Agrippina, born here, in the camp of her father Germanicus, and the mother of Nero, induced her husband, Claudius Cæsar, to send hither a colony of Roman veterans, and gave to it her own name, calling it Colonia Agrippina. A part of its ancient appellation is still retained in the modern name of Cologne. Trajan here received the summons to assume the Imperial purple; Vitellius and Silvanus were proclaimed Emperors on this spot, and the latter was murdered in the Capitol.

Traces of the possession of this city by the Romans remain, not only in various fragments of walls, originally part of the outer defences, though now far within the city, and in the numerous altars, inscriptions, coins, &c., which come to light almost wherever the ground is turned up, but even in the features and complexions of its inhabitants, who are said to betray their hereditary blood, and to differ considerably from their German neighbours. The inhabitants were so proud of their Roman origin, that up to the time of the French revolution the higher citizens styled themselves patricians—the 2 burgomasters wore the consular toga, and were attended by lictors—while the town banners bore the pompous inscription S. P. Q. C. The foundations of the Roman walls may be traced in the very heart of the present city through the street Auf der Burgmauer, by the Zeughaus—and the Klarenthurm, a tower of brick in opus reticulatum, standing on the Roman wall.

The existing outer Walls present a nearly perfect example of the fortifications of the middle ages, with picturesque flanking towers and gate-houses. They were built between the 12th and 15th cent., the greater part about 1185.

In 508 Clovis was declared king of the Franks at Cologne. From the middle of the 12th, nearly to the end of the 15th cent., Cologne was the most flourishing city of Northern Europe, one of the chief emporiums of the Hanseatic League, concentrating the trade of the East, and keeping up a direct and constant communication with Italy. From this connection, not only the productions, but also the arts of the East, were at once transferred to the then remote

West of Europe. The architecture of many of the oldest churches is identical with that of Italy, and there is some similarity between the paintings of the early Italian and Rhenish schools; it is even probable that the Southern school of art was indebted to the artists of the North for some portion of its excellence. "In the middle ages, from its wealth, power, and the considerable ecclesiastical foundations of its bishops, it was often called the Rome of the North."—

Hope. Another relic of the ancient alliance with Italy is the Carnival, which is celebrated here, and nowhere else in the N. of Europe, in the same manner, and almost with as much spirit and pomp of masquerading, &c., as in Rome or Venice. The procession of masks is tolerated even in the streets here, and in one or two other towns of the Rhenish provinces, as an ancient custom. Another amusement common in Italy, but found nowhere in Germany but at Cologne, is the Puppet Theatre (Puppen Theater—Henneschen), Blind-Gasse, near the Hay-market, where droll farces are performed by dolls; and the dialogue, spoken in the patois of the country, and full of satirical local allusions, is carried on by persons concealed behind the scenes.

Cologne has an interest for the Englishman, from various associations. William Caxton settled here, 1470, and here learned the art of printing, which he speedily transferred to his own country.

In 1259 Cologne obtained the staple right by which all vessels were compelled to unload here, and ship their cargoes in Cologne bottoms. The Cologne merchants enjoyed important privileges in England; Henry VI. granted them the exclusive use of the hall of the Steelyard in London. After its period of prosperity and splendour, during which the city could send forth 30,000 fighting men, came the season of decay. Commerce took a new route across the continent of Europe, and Cologne fell under the domination of priests. Almost uninterrupted feuds arose between the citizens, bent on maintaining their privileges, and the archbishops, so that in 1262 Archbishop Engelbert removed first to Brühl, and afterwards to Bonn. The bigotry of ecclesiastical rulers, on three occasions, marred Cologne's prosperity, and finally completed its downfall. The first was the expulsion of the Jews, 1425; the second, the banishment of the weavers; and the third, the expatriation of the Protestants, 1618. The harm done to the city by these arbitrary acts is best proved by the desolate condition to which they reduced it, contrasted with the increasing prosperity of Crefeld, Verviers, Elberfeld, Düsseldorf, Mühlheim, Solingen, and other places, in which the exiles, who were almost invariably the most industrious citizens, settled themselves. During this period the number of churches and convents multiplied enormously. Cologne is said to have had as many steeples as there were days in the year. Before the French Revolution the number of buildings devoted to religious uses was 200; she is now content with 29, but many of the buildings remain, applied to secular purposes.

From 1749 to 1814 the city was in the hands of the French, but in the latter year it was handed over to Prussia. Since 1830 trade has greatly revived; improvements have followed increasing prosperity, and the town has thrown off the dirty and gloomy appearance for which it was notorious. Many of the streets have been widened and paved, new streets and houses built, and old ones repaired; and some of the thoroughfares boast of traffic, shops, and crowds like those of London. A large portion of the space enclosed within the walls, formerly the fields and gardens of conventual houses, is rapidly becoming covered with buildings.

One of the leading causes of the decline of the prosperity of Cologne in the 16th cent. was the closing of the navigation of the Rhine by the Dutch. This restriction was removed in 1837, pursuant to treaty, and Cologne now trades directly with countries beyond sea. Seagoing vessels are constructed here, and lie alongside the quay lined with bonded warehouses, just below the bridge. The transport of corn and Rhenish wine down the Rhine, and into the neighbouring countries of Holland, Belgium, and Westphalia, employs a great many vessels and persons. There are considerable sugar refineries here.

The yearly increasing prosperity, fostered by the long peace, and augmented by the convergence to this point of the Railroads from Paris, Antwerp, and Berlin have caused Cologne again to raise her head high among the chief cities of Europe. This huge carcass of ruined buildings and vacant enclosures, revived by increasing wealth, has expanded into its former proportions, and flourishing both in population and industry. A great part has been rebuilt since 1840, and, excepting the churches and Town-hall, it is now one of the most modern-looking towns on the Rhine. The fortifications, planned at great cost and skill, have been condemned in consequence of the improvement in modern artillery, and they are replaced by a system of 8 detached forts outside the city, and a new enceinte.

Plan of a Walk through Cologne.

The objects of interest being spread over a wide space, the following plan may be useful to the stranger:—

Begin with the Cathedral: thence by the Jesuits' Ch. close to the Stat. to St. Ursula (the curious in architecture should visit St. Cunibert's); to St. Gereon; passing the Roman Tower to the Apostles' Ch. (exterior); to St. Peter's, St. Mary's, in the Capitol (inside), the Gürzenich, the Rathhaus (outside), the Museum, and the Iron Bridge.

N.B. The names of streets running to or from the Rhine (E. and W.) are written in red letters, at the corners; those running parallel to the Rhine (N. and S.) in black letters.

The churches are commonly open from 7 to 10 A.M.

The Cathedral* (Domkirche) of St. Peter was begun in 1248 by Bishop Conrad v. Hochstedten on the site of an earlier ch. existing here in the 9th cent. but burnt in that year. The choir was consecrated in 1322 : but in 1509 a stop was put to the church's further progress, only the N. and S. aisles of the nave being then carried up as far as the capitals of the columns, and covered with a wooden roof. In this state it remained for more than 300 years. In 1830 the original plan was resumed. In 1842 the good work commenced with the thorough repair of the portion of the ch. then in existence. It is to be regretted that the name of the great architect who designed so splendid a structure—the St. Peter's of Gothic architecture—has been lost; one Master Gerhard, who was living 1252, is the builder earliest named, but nothing is known of him. The 2 principal towers, according to the original designs, were to have been raised to the height of 500 ft. The crane employed to lift the stones to the top of the tower stood until 1868, when the long-cherished notion of finishing the towers was on the eve of fulfilment, and is now replaced by the more efficacious steam-engine. The towers will be finished as fast as money is forthcoming.*

To King Frederick William III. is due the merit of rescuing the Dom from the state of a ruined fragment. During his reign nearly 50,000*l.* were laid out upon it, chiefly in repairs; in that of his successor, Frederick William IV., 225,000*l.*, more than half of which was contributed by the King, the rest by public subscription. In 1842 he laid the foundation of the transept.

An Association, called Dom-bau Verein, has been established, with branches in all parts of Europe, to collect subscriptions for completing the edifice according to the original design. In Sept. 1848, the nave, aisles, and transepts were consecrated; the magnificent S. portal was finished 1859 at a cost of 100,000*l.*; the N. portal, more simple in detail, is also finished—both are from Zwirner's designs. A handsome terrace has been raised round the church. All this has been done at a cost of not less than 400,000*l.*, raised between 1842 and 68.

* In order to see the Cathedral—Obs. The nave and painted glass are open to all, through the day; best hour from 8-9. The hours of service are 7-8, 9-10, and 3-3½; on Sunday, 10-11, 3-3½, and 5-6. During these hours the church is open, but is not shown. The Swiss, or Beadle, who may be found in the transept, is authorized to give out tickets (1 to 5 persons, 1½ mk.) to see the choir, chapels, and the Dombild; another ticket (1½ mk.) admits to the inner and outer galleries round the choir, which are well worth visiting; and a ticket for the Magi's Shrine and Dombild costs 4½ mks. A single person may readily join a party, on paying his share of the ticket. Reject the offers of intrusive guides, who are useless.

The restoration has been conducted in a masterly manner, the faulty stone from the Drachenfels, on the exterior, replaced by another of a sounder texture brought from Andernach and Mayen in the Eifel, of volcanic origin; and the workmanship in the new sculpture and masonry is excellent.

The entire length of the body of the church is 511 ft., equal to the height of the Towers when finished; the breadth, 231 ft., corresponds with the height of the gable at the W. end.

"The Choir consists of 5 aisles, is 161 ft. high, and internally, from its size, height, and disposition of pillars, arches, chapels, and beautifully coloured windows, resembling a splendid vision. Externally, its double range of stupendous flying buttresses, and intervening piers, bristling with a forest of purfled pinnacles, strike the beholder with awe and astonishment. This is at once the most regular and most stupendous Gothic monument existing."—Hope. The fine old stained windows of the choir (14th cent.) have been thoroughly cleaned and repaired: and the spandrels of the arches decorated afresh by Steinle and artists of the Düsseldorf school. Round the choir, against the columns, stand 14 colossal statues of the 12 Apostles, the Virgin, and Saviour, coloured and gilt, sculptured in the beginning of the 14th cent. Of the same date are the finely carved stalls and seats of the choir.

King Louis of Bavaria presented the 5 windows in the S. aisle of the nave. They are eclipsed by the 5 painted windows in the N. aisle, executed in 1508, of which the 4th from the W. entrance is the best. The reredos of the altar of St. Agilolphus, an ancient and fine work of mixed wood carving and Flemish painting, brought from the Ch. of Sta. Maria ad Gradus.

The apsidal E. end is surrounded by 7 chapels, in which are found the monuments and effigies, fine works of art, of various archbishops of Cologne: Engelbert (1264), Philip of Heinsberg (1191) surrounded by a mural parapet, marking him as the builder of the walls of Cologne; Conrad of Hochstedten (1261) of bronze. N.B. In this chapel is suspended the original elevation on parchment of the W. end and two towers drawn by the architect, from which the restoration has been completed. It had been lost at the time of the French invasion. The chapel immediately behind the high altar is that of the Three Kings of Cologne, or Magi, who came from the East with gifts for the Infant Saviour. Their bones were carried off from S. Eustorgio at Milan by the Emp. Frederic Barbarossa, when he took that city by famine (1162), and were presented by him to Reinhold Archbp. of Cologne, who had accompanied him on his warlike expedition.

The Shrine, or case in which they are deposited, is of plates of silver gilt, and curiously wrought, surrounded by small arcades, supported on pillars, enclosing figures of the Apostles and Prophets. The priceless treasures which once decorated it were much diminished at the time of the French revolution, when the shrine and its contents were transported for safety by the chapter to Arnsberg, in Westphalia. Many of the jewels were sold to maintain the persons who accompanied it, and have been replaced by paste or glass imitations; but the precious stones, the gems, cameos, and rich enamels which still remain, will give a fair notion of its riches and magnificence in its original state. The skulls of the three kings, inscribed with their names—Gaspar, Melchior, and Balthazer—written in rubies, are exhibited to view through an opening in the shrine, crowned with diadems (a ghastly contrast), which were of gold, and studded with real jewels, but are now only silver gilt. On the front of the shrine are these 2 leonine lines, asserting the possession of the entire royal remains, against all rival proprietors of relics:—

Corpora sanctorum recubant hic terna Magorum,

Ex his sublatum nihil est, alibi locatum.

Those who show the tomb assert that its treasures are still worth 6 millions of francs = 240,000*l.*: this is an exaggeration, no doubt.

This shrine is now deposited in the Treasury; and those who desire to see it must apply to the sacristan, and pay a fee of 1½ mk., which admits to it and the ch. plate, relics, &c.

Under a slab in the pavement, between the high altar and the shrine of the three kings, the heart of Mary of Medicis is buried.

In the side chapel of St. Agnes, on the right of the Magi, is a very ancient painting, in distemper, called the Dom-bild (the Cathedral picture), bearing the date 1410, by one Stephan Löthener or Master Stephan. It represents the Patron Saints of the city of Cologne, viz.—in the centre, the Adoration of the Magi, or the Three Kings; on the one side, St. Ursula and the 11,000 Virgins; on the other, St. Gereon with the Theban Legion. It is a masterly production for so early a period.

In the chapel of the Virgin is an Ascension from the pencil of Overbeck.

In the Sacristy, or Schatzkammer, N. of the choir, are many relics of Saints, including a bone of St. Matthew; St. Engelbert's shrine of silver, ornamented with reliefs of good workmanship, date 1635; much church plate, and the like curiosities—among them the Sword of Justice, with a finely chased scabbard, borne by the Electors of Cologne at the coronation of the Emperor; 10 elaborate carvings in ivory; the State Cross of the Archbishop, 7 ft. high, ornamented with enamel; and a Pax of solid gold, 5 in. by 4.

It is well worth while to climb up to the triforium gallery (entrance rt. of S. transept outside) to appreciate the grandeur of the edifice, and to examine the painted glass; or even to mount to the roof for the sake of the view of the town, and of the exterior of the edifice.

On the Domhof, opposite the S. door of the cathedral, is the Archbishop's Museum, devoted to mediæval art and ecclesiastical antiquities, church plate, missals, tapestries, metal-work, &c. It occupies the old chapel of the former Archiepiscopal Palace.

St. Andrew's, W. of the Dom, is remarkable for its Romanesque W. end and vestibule of 5 compartments domed, resting on cusped arches. Choir, late Gothic, contains the relics of Albertus Magnus.

St. Cunibert, finished in 1248, the year the Dom was begun, but in a style totally different from it, is a remarkable instance of the adherence to the older style after the pointed style had become prevalent and perfect. The W. tower fell down in 1830, and is replaced by a very inferior one. The interior is quite simple. It contains the oldest painted glass in the country, of most glowing hues, and has an elegant portal.

The *Ch. of St. Ursula, and of the 11,000 Virgins (of which the W. end only is Romanesque 12th cent., the choir poor Gothic, of 14th and 15th cent.), is too singular a sight not to be visited. Tarif: each person, $\frac{1}{2}$ mark. It is situated just within the walls, and is not remarkable in its architecture, but is filled with the bones of St. Ursula's companions. That saintly lady (according to the legend, a princess of Britain) set sail with her virgin train as the destined brides of an army which had migrated under Maximus, to conquer part of Gaul (Armorica) from the Emperor Gratian. The ladies mistook their way, however, and landed at Cologne, where the whole party was slaughtered by the barbarian Huns, because they refused to listen to their spontaneous and uncouth addresses. On entering the choir the hideous relics meet the eye, beneath, above, around: they are built into the walls, buried under the pavement, and displayed in gaunt array in glass cases about the walls. Among them Professor Owen, at a glance, detected numerous remains of lower animals. The Saint herself reposes in a coffin behind the altar. In the Golden Chamber the skulls of a select few of her associates are admitted, encased in silver, along with a number of other relics, such as one of the alabaster vessels which held the water that was turned into wine at the Marriage in Cana, &c. A bad picture in the church represents the landing of this female army of Saints at Cologne. Some, who have been staggered at the number of Ursula's maiden train, have supposed that the legend arose from confounding the name of one of her attendants, Undecimilla, with the number undecim millia (11,000).

The Church of the Jesuits (Maria Himmelfahrt) dates from 1636, and, like others erected by the Order, is overloaded with gorgeous decorations of marble, sculpture, &c. It contains the staff of St. Francis Xavier, and the rosary of St. Ignatius Loyola. Its bells were cast out of the cannon taken at Magdeburg by Tilly, and presented by him to this church.

Travellers interested in architecture will find in Cologne many excellent examples of the Romanesque style, with some specimens of the transition style from the round to the pointed. "The east ends of these [Romanesque] churches look like those of the Greeks, or the mosques of Constantinople."—Hope. The architects who designed these earliest churches at Cologne, and many similar along the Rhine, had evidently studied the Lombard churches of Pavia, which became familiar to the inhabitants of the Rhine-land by the residence of the Carolingian Emperors in that capital of their Italian dominions. The architectural traveller will visit Sta. Maria in Capitolio, the Ch. of the Apostles, St. Gereon, St. Martin, St. Cunibert, and St. Pantaleon.

St. Gereon's Kirche*, another ossuary, since it is lined with the bones of the Theban Legion of 6000 martyrs, slain, according to the story told here, either on this spot or at Xanten, during the persecution by Diocletian, is one of the finest and most ancient churches in Cologne. The nave dates from 1212; the rest of the church, including the choir and the spacious crypt, upon which it is raised, was built 1066-69. The earlier building is in the round style, except where some repairs were executed, as is thought, after a storm in 1434; the latter shows a preponderating mixture of the pointed. "By a singular and theatrical arrangement, arising out of these various increments, its body presents a vast decagonal shell and cupola, the pillars of whose internal angles are prolonged in ribs, which, centering in a summit, meet in one point, and lead by a high and wide flight of steps, rising opposite the entrance, to an altar and oblong choir behind it; whence other steps again ascend to the area between the 2 high square towers, and to the $\frac{1}{2}$ circular east end, belted, as well as the cupola, by galleries with small arches and pillars, on a panelled balustrade, in the style of the Ch. of the Apostles. The entrance-door, with square lintel, low pediment, and pointed arch, is elegant; and the crypts contain remains of handsome mosaics, which have been uncovered and cleaned, and beneath the altar are some ancient stone coffins. The elegant octagonal transitional baptistery contains a font of porphyry, said to be a gift of Charlemagne. The Gothic sacristy, in the pointed style, is apparently of the 14th cent. It contains some painted glass.

Near St. Gereon's, in front of the Archbp.'s palace, rises a monument to the Virgin (Marien Säule), erected 1858, to commemorate the reception of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception.

Between St. Gereon's and the Apostles' Church is the Roman Tower, circular, distinguished by coloured masonry, arranged like a mosaic, of Roman origin, and perhaps part of the oldest fortification. The outer coating is mediæval.

The Apostles' Church*, on the Neumarkt, was begun in 1020, and finished in 1035. It suffered from fire in 1098 and 1199, and was partly rebuilt in the beginning of the 13th cent. It has a double transept. To the earlier building belong the choir, the eastern transept and octagonal cupola, the 2 small towers, the lower part of the nave, and the great tower. The western transept and upper part of the nave are the parts rebuilt in the 13th cent. The vaulting of the nave, which had become ruinous, has been restored in wood, after the old pattern. This church has "3 apses, or $\frac{1}{2}$ circular cupolas, with slim octagonal steeples between them, rising undiminished to the top, from the transepts and the choir. Their common centre is crowned by an octagonal cupola, which, as well as the 3 apses, is belted, immediately under the cornice, by galleries of small arches, on small columns, coupled in the depth of the arch, resting on a panelled balustrade, such as is displayed by all the other churches here and on the Rhine of the same period, and covered with a low ribbed roof of lead, so as to present a striking resemblance to some of the oldest Greek churches in some of the remotest parts of Asia Minor; and at the same time in its proportions as airy and elegant, and calculated to magnify its apparent size, as the heavy, clumsy, English-Norman roof often does the contrary."—Hope.

The Church of St. Peter contains an altarpiece of the Crucifixion of that Saint by RUBENS, who was baptized in the brazen font still existing in this church. The picture is not one of Rubens's best; the subject is disagreeable, and many travellers think it scarce worth while to pay the fee ($1\frac{1}{2}$ mk. for 1 to 3 persons) to the sacristan to turn the picture round, and display the original at the back of the copy. On Sundays and festivals the original is turned outwards. "It was painted a little time before Rubens's death. The body and head of the Saint are the only good parts in this picture, which is finely coloured (broad light and shade), and well drawn; but the figure bends too suddenly from the thighs, which are ill drawn, or rather in a bad taste of drawing; as is likewise his arm, which has a short interrupted outline. The action of the malefactors (executioners) has not that energy which he usually gave to his figures. Rubens, in his letters to Gildorp, expresses his own approbation of this picture, which he says was the best he ever painted: he likewise expresses his content and happiness in the subject, as being picturesque; this is likewise natural to such a mind as that of Rubens, who was, perhaps, too much looking about him for the picturesque or something uncommon. A man with his head downwards is certainly a more extraordinary object than in its natural place. Many parts of this picture are so feebly drawn, and with so tame a pencil, that I cannot help suspecting that Rubens died before he had completed it, and that it was finished by some of his scholars."—Sir J. Reynolds.

"The composition is the best part of this picture: the bringing of the figures together is most original and skilful, and presents the difficulty of a bad subject overcome. Still the painting, except in the left shoulder and breast of the Saint, is below the usual run of this great master; though done indeed with great power, yet in the drawing of the figures the indication of anatomy is far from good."—Wilkie. The 3 painted E. windows are fine, representing—1. Christ bearing his Cross; 2. Crucifixion; 3. Descent from the Cross. They were executed 1528-1530.

Maria de' Medici died, 1642, in the house, No. 10 Sternengasse; her remains, except the heart, were carried to France. RUBENS lived in this house until he was 10 years old. He was born 1577, at Siegen (Rte. 47).

Santa Maria in Capitolio, so called from its occupying the site of the capitol of the Roman city, stands on a height surmounted by flights of steps. The Frankish kings had a palace here, to which, in 696, Plectrudis, the wife of Pippin of Héristal, retired, having separated from her husband on account of his attachment to Alpais, the mother of Charles Martel. She, in 700, removed the capitol, and built a church and a nunnery on its site. It has been contended that the existing church is nearly entirely of that period. It is more probable that the greater part at least was built about 1000, and it is in the early Romanesque style. In plan the ch.

has a W. narthex, nave with aisles, apsidal transepts with aisles both on N. and S. sides, as well as two chapels in each transept. The greater part of the interior is covered with modern frescoes. Inside the choir, the coupled columns, with their rich arabesque capitals, are in the style of the 11th or 12th cent. The lower windows of the choir have been filled with tracery of the latest period of the pointed style. The pointed vaulting of the nave is apparently a restoration of the latter part of the 14th cent. "Externally, in the same style with the Ch. of the Apostles; internally resembling a Greek church still more, and, in fact, a counterpart of one existing among the ruins of Seleucia, since round its semicircular apses and east end run internally semicircular rows of columns supporting round arches."—Hope. The effigy of Plectrudis, a very early work (10th cent.), is let into the wall outside of the choir. The doorways of the N. transept, carved with Scriptural subjects in relief, executed at the end of the 12th cent. at the latest, are very curious (compare the doors at Hildesheim). The walls of the Hardenrath chapel are covered with paintings by an old German master (1466); and the windows have some good stained glass. That of the Schwarz family, with groined vaulting, contains the brass Font (1594), surmounted by a figure of St. Martin on horseback. The tower was built after 1637, when the old one fell. The cloister of the 10th cent. has been restored: great part is modern.

The House of the Templars, in the Rheingasse, No. 8, supposed to be of the 12th or 13th cent., was repaired, 1840, and now serves as the Exchange and Chamber of Commerce.

The Casino is a handsome building, near the theatre, provided with ball and reading-rooms, where newspapers are taken in. The Regierungs Gebäude is also a handsome edifice.

In the ancient Kaufhaus or Gürzenich (so called from the person who gave the ground on which it stands), finished in 1474, restored 1857-59, several Diets of the Empire were held, and many German Emperors entertained at the hospitable board of the patrician magistrates, in the huge hall which occupies the 1st floor (admission 50 pf.). Here the carnival balls, concerts, and orchestral entertainments are given. It has two remarkably fine Gothic fireplaces.

The Rathhaus (Town-hall), fronting the Alten Markt and Stadthausplatz was erected at different periods; the ground-floor dates from the 13th cent.; the Gothic tower, containing the Archives, in 1414; the very pleasing Renaissance marble porch of 2 storeys was added 1571. In the restored Hansa Saal were held the meetings of that mercantile confederation which at one time carried on the commerce of the world.

Great St. Martin's Ch., on the Rhine, was dedicated 1172, but its lofty tower, resting on arches nearly 100 feet high, was not added until the beginning of the 16th cent. Its site, originally an island in the Rhine, was occupied by an earlier church, which, in 980, Archbishop Warin gave to the Scotch Benedictines. The interior was modernised in 1790. The octagonal white marble font, a Roman work of the 8th cent., was the gift of Pope Leo III.

St. Maria in Schnurgasse contains, over a side altar, the shrine of the British martyr St. Alban, a gilt coffer of 12th-cent. work, enriched with enamel and precious stones. The relics consist of his head and shoulder.

St. Mauritius is a good modern Gothic ch. (Stadtz, arch.).

In the Church of the Minorites, whose pointed Gothic choir, 13th cent., nearly contemporary with that of the Dom, has been restored along with the W. front, is the tomb of John Duns Scotus, the eminent English scholastic theologian (died 1309). The late Pointed cloister is included in the adjoining Museum.

The Wallraff-Richartz Museum is a Gothic edifice (built 1861) near the Church of the Minorites. It owes its existence to the munificence of 2 private citizens, Herr Wallraff (d. 1824), who bequeathed his pictures to his native city, and Herr Richartz (d. 1861), who built the edifice to hold them (open daily from 9 to 6 (fee 1 mk.); on Sundays and holidays 10 to 12½ free). The staircase is painted by Steinle. It is chiefly occupied with early and second-rate works of art. The greater part by unknown masters; 8 paintings of the Sufferings of Christ are attributed to the master of the Lyversberg Passion; 100 or more are early specimens of the School of Cologne,* 1250-1350, and of its later productions, when influenced by Van Eyck, 1450-1550. Among the more remarkable are—the Last Judgment, by Master Stephan Löthenar, painter of the Dombild (1410); the Death of the Virgin, by Schoreel; and a Descent from the Cross, by Israel von Mechenen (1488); also a Virgin and Child, and several others, by Master William of Cologne (1380);—by Alb. Dürer, a Drummer and Piper; a Holy Family with St. Anne, the Infant Saviour has a fig in his hand; by Rubens, St. Francis receiving the Stigmata, a carefully-painted work; a Holy Family; by Vandyk, Portrait of Jabach, a citizen of Cologne, fine; a Madonna, by Francia; a Madonna and Child, by Titian, is almost the only good Italian painting.

One wing is devoted to pictures by modern artists. Observe the Captive Jews at Babylon, by Bendemann, “no less remarkable for the simple beauty of the composition, than for the depth and earnestness of feeling it expresses;” the Convent Court, in a snow-storm, by Lessing, also good. Galileo in prison, by Karl Piloty: Archangel Michael protecting the body of Moses against Satan, by Plochhorst: 25 views of the Rhine, by Caspar Scheuren.

In the lower storey are rooms containing old armour, furniture, painted glass, pottery, &c.; in the lower cloisters many Roman antiquities, some of which were found in or near Cologne, such as mosaic pavement with figures of Plato, Aristotle, Socrates, &c.; besides these are busts and statues, and one specimen of sculpture, distinguished as a work of Grecian art, of great beauty and value—it is the Head of Medusa, resembling the famous “Medusa Ron-about 1214: they were converted into a manufactory of Prussian blue, and were destroyed in 1815 by a fire. In 1836 the Crown Prince of Prussia (Frederick William IV.) undertook the restoration of this exquisite relic of Gothic architecture. A dinner, with trout from the Dhün, may be had at Schmitz's Inn at Engelrath, near Strasserhof.]

* See Kugler's Handbook of Painting, § xi.

Railroads—Three stations. 1. Central Bahnhof, in Cologne, for the trains of the Rheinischer Rly. to Coblenz, Mainz, &c.—to Aix-la-Chapelle, Treves—to Crefeld and Cleves—or Venlo and Flushing, as well as for the express trains (at 7 A.M. and 8 P.M., in 11 hrs. 50 min.) of the Köln Mindener Rly. viâ Düsseldorf and Minden to Berlin. 2. Köln Mindener Bahnhof, in Deutz, for the ordinary trains to Düsseldorf, Minden and Berlin—to Giessen, &c. 3. Bergisch Markischer Bahnhof, also in Deutz, for the trains for Hagen, Steele, &c.

Steamers several times a-day, up the Rhine to Coblenz (Rte. 37), and down to Nijmegen and Arnhem (Rte. 34), and thence to Rotterdam (Rte. 12, Handbook for Holland and Belgium); to Mülheim, on the rt. bank, below Cologne; and to the Zoological Gardens, starting from the Quay below the bridge, near St. Cunibert's, many times a day.

ROUTE 36A.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE TO BERLIN, BY RUHRORT AND OBERHAUSEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 381 m.; time, 11½ to 13 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Travellers bound to Hanover, Berlin, or N. Germany, from England or Belgium, may proceed direct from Aix to Ruhrort by this railway. They will save time and expense by taking places from Ostend only to Aix-la-Chapelle, instead of going round by Cologne. They should take care, on arriving at Calais or Ostend, to have their luggage booked for Aix, and not for Cologne.

Aix-la-Chapelle is described in Rte. 36.

This rly. has 2 Stats., one near the Marschier-Thor (near the Rhenish Rly.); the other near the Pont-Thor. It breaks through the old walls of Aix, near a lofty watch-tower, and skirts the Lousberg, and soon leaves (on l.) the line to Maestricht (Rte. 27, Handbook for Holland and Belgium), through a rich coal-field.

8 m. Herzogenrath Stat. (French Rolduc), a small town, with an old Castle. See l. former Abbey Kloster-rath, now a boys' school.

12 m. Lindern Stat. The rly. crosses the river Roer.

8 m. Erkelenz Stat. has a picturesque Castle in ruins, and a fine ch., 14th cent.

8 m. Rheydt Stat. (Krüseman's Inn).

[6 m. E. is Schloss Dyk, residence of Prince Salm Dyck, who bears the title of Prince and Altgraf. The château is modernized and not remarkable, but it has beautiful grounds, and one of the largest collections of Cacti in Europe.]

3 m. Gladbach Junct. Stat., close to a gigantic Gothic cotton-mill (Herf's Inn). Pop. 25,000. The town is on the Ners, and the Minster dates from the 12th cent., except the crypt of the 10th, and the choir, pure Gothic, of 1275. Cotton-spinning was established here 1807, while England was shut out from the Continent, and flourishes greatly. [Rly. E. 15 m. to Düsseldorf, and S. 32 m. to Düren.]

5 m. Viersen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. for Venlo, thence to Flushing.] The line proceeds N.E. to

9 m. Crefeld Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 35.)

11 m. Hornberg Stat. on the Rhine

I.

re

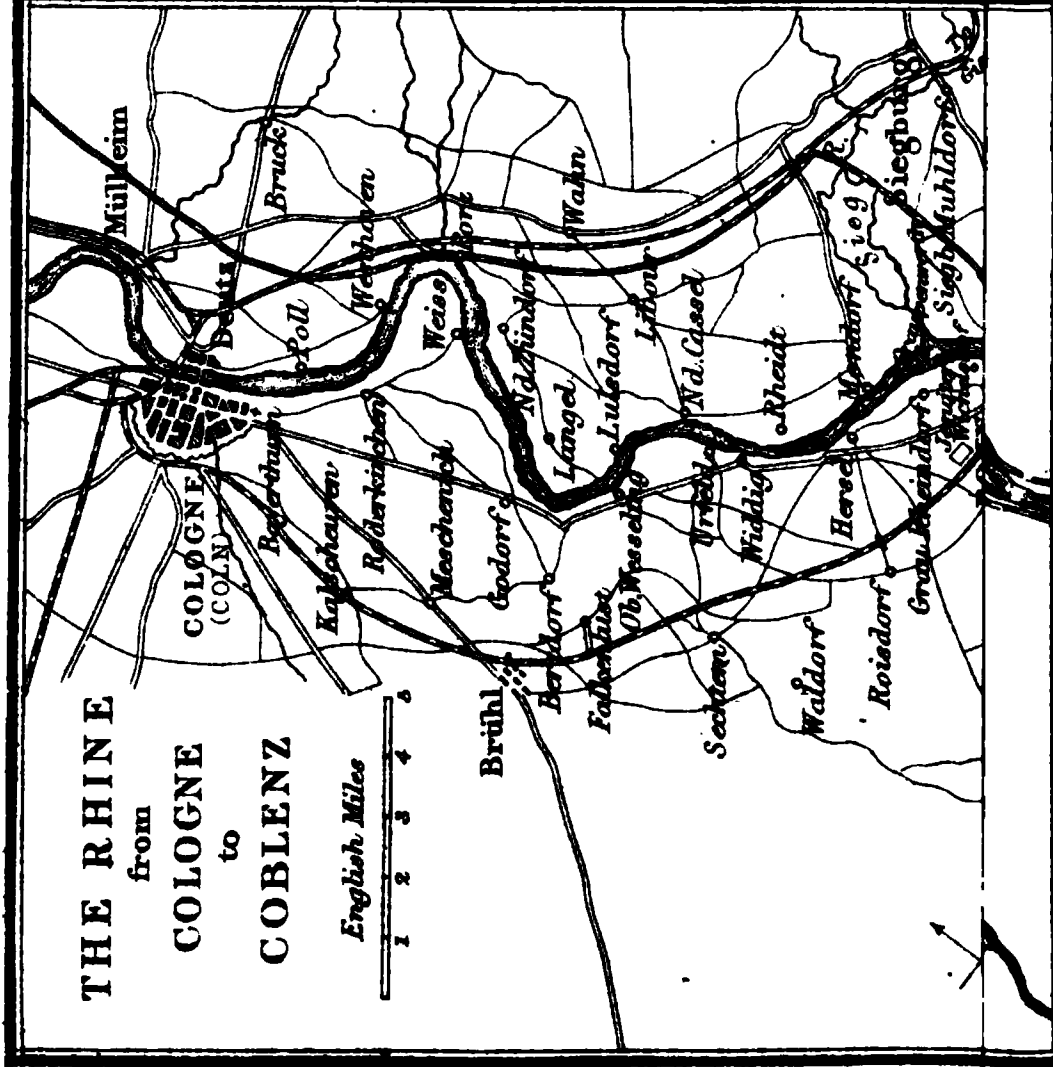

m

d

d r

d

Edw. Weller.

Edw. Weller.

Keen contest and destruction near allied,
And many a tower for some fair mischief won
Saw the discolour'd Rhine beneath its ruin run.

“ But Thou, exulting and abounding river!
Making thy waves a blessing as they flow Through banks whose beauty would endure for ever,
Could man but leave thy bright creation so,
Nor its fair promise from the surface mow
With the sharp scythe of conflict,—then to see
Thy valley of sweet waters, were to know
Earth pav'd like Heaven; and to seem such to me,
Even now what wants thy stream?—that it should Lethe be.

“ A thousand battles have assail'd thy banks,
But these and half their fame have pass'd away,
And Slaughter heap'd on high his weltering ranks;
Their very graves are gone, and what are they?
Thy tide wash'd down the blood of yesterday,
And all was stainless, and on thy clear stream
Glanc'd with its dancing light the sunny ray;
But o'er the blacken'd memory's blighting dream
Thy waves would vainly roll, all sweeping as they seem.

“ Adieu to thee, fair Rhine! How long delighted
The stranger fain would linger on his way!
Thine is a scene alike where souls united
Or lonely contemplation thus might stray;
And could the ceaseless vultures cease to prey
On self-condemning bosoms, it were here,
Where Nature, nor too sombre nor too gay,
Wild but not rude, awful yet not austere,
Is to the mellow earth as Autumn to the year.

“ Adieu to thee again! a vain adieu!
There can be no farewell to scene like thine,
The mind is colour'd by thy every hue;
And if reluctantly the eyes resign
Their cherish'd gaze upon thee, lovely
Rhine!
'Tis with the thankful glance of parting praise:
More mighty spots may rise—more glaring shine,
But none unite in one attaching maze
The brilliant, fair, and soft,—the glories of old days.

“ The negligently grand, the fruitful bloom
Of coming ripeness, the white city's sheen,
The rolling stream, the precipice's gloom,
The forest's growth, and Gothic walls between
The wild rocks shap'd as they had turrets been
In mockery of man's art; and these withal
A race of faces happy as the scene,
Whose fertile bounties here extend to all,
Still springing o'er thy banks, though Empires near them fall.”

BYRON.

To the above accurate description of the poet is added another in prose, from the pen of a German, because it serves to illustrate the feelings of pride and almost veneration with which the Rhine is regarded in Germany; it is indeed looked upon as the national river.

“ There are rivers whose course is longer, and whose volume of water is greater, but none which unites almost everything that can render an earthly object magnificent and charming in the same degree as the Rhine. As it flows down from the distant ridges of the Alps, through fertile regions, into the open sea, so it comes down from remote antiquity, associated in every age with momentous events in the history of the neighbouring nations. A river which presents so many historical recollections of Roman conquests and defeats, of the chivalric exploits in the feudal periods, of the wars and negotiations of modern times, of the coronations of emperors, whose bones repose by its side; on whose borders stand the two grandest monuments of the noble architecture of the middle ages; whose banks present every variety of wild and picturesque rocks, thick forests, fertile plains; vineyards, sometimes gently sloping, sometimes perched among lofty crags, where industry has won a domain among the fortresses of nature; whose banks are ornamented with populous cities, flourishing towns and villages, castles and ruins, with which a thousand legends are connected, with beautiful and romantic roads, and salutary mineral springs; a river whose waters offer choice fish, as its banks offer the choicest wines; which, in its course of 900 miles, affords 630 miles of uninterrupted navigation, from Bâsel to the sea, and enables the inhabitants of its banks to exchange the rich and various products of its shores; whose cities, famous for commerce, science, and works of strength, which furnish protection to Germany, are also famous as the seats of Roman colonies and of ecclesiastical councils, and are associated with many of the most important events recorded in the history of mankind;—such a river it is not surprising that the Germans regard with a kind of reverence, and frequently call in poetry Father or King Rhine." — Dr. LIEBER.

RAFTS ON THE RHINE.—Every traveller on the Rhine should have his attention called to the vast floating islands of timber which he will constantly meet with on that river. They are the produce of the forests which cover the remote hills and mountains traversed by the Rhine and its tributaries,—the Neckar, the Murg, the Main, the Mosel, &c. &c. They are first hurled down, in single logs, from the almost inaccessible heights where they have grown, and, having been felled, are committed to some rushing mountain rivulet, whenever its waters, swelled by rain or melting snow, suffice to float them. If the tree escape unshattered from the rocks against which it is dashed by the stream, it is caught, bound together with other logs, and again set afloat till it is conveyed by the tributary rivulet into the recipient river, and reaches other stations on its banks, where it is again enlarged, and entrusted to the care of boatmen to navigate. It may thus bear the same motto as the snowball, vires acquirit eundo, until, on reaching the lower part of the Rhine, it is carefully built into one prodigious fabric, which is then navigated to Dortrecht, and sold. These constructions have the appearance of a floating village, composed of 8 or 10 little wooden huts, on a large platform of oak and deal timber. The rowers and workmen sometimes amount to 400 or 500, superintended by pilots, and a proprietor, whose habitation is superior in size and elegance to the rest. The captain places himself upon a raised platform or stage, from which he can survey the float from end to end, and direct, by words and signs, its movements. It is steered by means of anchors and the immense oars or sweeps of a quadruple row of rowers, placed fore and aft. The vast fabric bends and twists like a snake, when passing near dangerous eddies and narrow straits, such as are met with in the Rhine under the Lurlei and the Binger Loch. The raft is composed of several layers of trees, placed one on the other, and strongly fastened together by chains and rivets, planked over with rough deals so as to form a deck, which is sunk nearly to the level of the water. Several smaller rafts are attached to it by way of protection, besides a string of boats loaded with anchors and cables, and used for the purpose of sounding the river and going on shore. The domestic economy of an East-Indiaman, or an English man-of-war, is hardly more complete. The boatmen are often accompanied by their wives and families, and spinning, knitting, tailoring, dressmaking, are carried on; poultry, pigs, and other animals are to be found on board—and several butchers are attached to the suite. A well-supplied boiler is at work night and day in the kitchen; the dinner-hour is announced by a basket stuck on a pole, at which signal the pilot gives the word of command, and the workmen run from all quarters to receive their messes. The consumption of provisions in the voyage is almost incredible. It has been stated to be, from the time the construction of the raft commences until it is sold at Dort, 45,000 lbs. of bread, 30,000 lbs. of fresh and dried meat, 15,000 lbs. of butter, 10,000 lbs. of cheese, 50 sacks of dried vegetables, 500 tuns of beer, 8 butts of wine, and several other articles in proportion. The expenses are so great that a large capital is necessary to undertake a raft. Their navigation is a matter of considerable skill, owing to the abrupt windings, the rocks and shallows of the river; and some years ago the secret was thought to be monopolised by a boatman of Rüdesheim and his sons.

At present the rafts are not so large as formerly; instead of 900 feet in length, they are now commonly not more than 600 or 700; they never exceed 250 in breadth, and are subjected to be measured at Caub, to ascertain that they do not exceed this width; if larger they could not pass through the narrow channel between the rocks at Oberwesel. They do not draw more than 2 or 3 ft. of water. The smaller rafts, which still often require 400 men to navigate them, are both more easily managed, and can also set out from a higher point up the river than the larger floats. A single float is commonly the property of a great number of shareholders. The timber is sold at the end of the voyage, and sometimes produces from 300,000 to 350,000 florins (25,000*l.* or 30,000*l.*). During the years 1839, 1840, and 1841, the average quantity of timber imported into Holland by the Rhine amounted annually to 110,500 tons Eng. weight, consisting principally of wood suited for ship and house building, wainscot logs, spars, weals, staves, and firewood; the whole of which is consumed in Holland, with the exception of some trifling quantity sent to the colonies. The value of the Rhenish timber consumed annually in Holland amount to about 170,000*l.* The voyage from Bingen to Dort may be performed, under favourable circumstances, in 8 days; but it sometimes takes up 6 weeks. It is curious to find that the boatmen who navigate the Rhine still call the l. bank of the river Frankland, and designate the rt. Hessenland,—though these names no longer apply to the present possessors of either bank.

STEAMBOATS ON THE RHINE. — (See Rte. 11, Handbook for Holland and Belgium). 1. The best are those belonging to the Amalgamated Cologne and Düsseldorf Company, who have built vessels in the American fashion, having lofty deck-saloons, with windows opening all round, so that the view is unimpeded, while the passengers are under cover. They travel from Cologne to Mainz in 13 hrs. Mainz to Cologne in 8 or 9 hrs.

The fares are moderate, being kept so by the competition of the rlys.

If you have not paid your fare before entering the steamer, it is advisable to do so as soon as you are embarked, or the conductor may summon you to pay from the steamer's farthest point of departure. Passengers are allowed to break the journey.

2. The Netherlandish or Dutch Company, between Rotterdam and Mannheim. At the rate of 10 or 12 m. against the stream, and of 15 m. with it.

Steamers daily in summer.

	Departure.	Eng. M.
Mannheim to Mayence	2 or 3	= 51
Mayence to Cologne	4 to 6	= 116
Cologne to Rotterdam, several		= 198

There are also night-steamers, furnished with sleeping-berths for passengers.

As the hours of departure and arrival are constantly changing, the traveller is referred to the Companies' printed bills, which he may obtain at their offices, and find in every inn or steamboat he enters; or to Hendschel's time-tables at Frankfurt-a.-M. It is not always prudent to take information from innkeepers, nor from bills of ancient date hanging in their halls. To obtain positive accuracy it is best to go to the steamboat office.

The steam-boats are divided into 3 cabins:—1. The pavilion, or small state cabin in the stern of the vessel, is seldom occupied except by invalids and persons of distinction. The charge for it for a party amounts to 12 or 15, ordinary fares. 2. The chief cabin. 3. The after-cabin, for servants and inferior persons.

Breakfasts and dinners are provided on board, at prices fixed by a printed tariff hung up in the cabin. Table-d'hôte, at 1 o'clock.

Caution.—Places are booked at all parts of the Rhine and at Frankfurt direct for London, daily, but the tickets so issued are available only for one set of steamers plying between Rotterdam and London. One of the Rhenish companies corresponds with the Batavier, which sails only once a week; consequently the unwary traveller may be detained 7 days at Rotterdam, unless he choose to sacrifice the money which he has paid, and take a passage in the other company's steamers. Even upon the Rhine it is scarcely worth while, for the sake of a small saving, to bind oneself down to go by the boats of a particular company. If the hour of departure happen not to suit the traveller, or he arrive too late for the boat to which he is engaged, he must either forfeit his money, or wait till the next day. If he pay the money in advance, he has probably only one chance in a day; if he is free, he has three or four up and down the river.

In 1827, when the Cologne company commenced, 18,000 passengers were conveyed up and down, between Cologne and Mayence; the number had increased to 800,000 in 1851, and is now not less than 1,000,000.

The completion of the Railways along both banks of the Rhine has diminished the use of steamers up the stream, except in that portion between Bonn and Mayence, where the deck of the steamer affords the best means of enjoying the scenery.

English is now very generally spoken in the inns, passport and coach offices, and public conveyances, from Cologne to Mayence and Frankfurt, and thence to Baden.

SCENERY OF THE RHINE.—The glories of the Rhine commence about 20 m. above Cologne with the beautiful cluster of mountains called the Siebengebirge; and the banks of the river afford, nearly up to Mayence, a succession of scenes of equal beauty and variety. English travellers are often under the erroneous impression that they have seen the Rhine in passing up and down in a steam-vessel, and they hurry onwards to something beyond the Rhine. It may be said of them, in the words of a homely phrase, that they “go farther and fare worse.” The views in many places, looking down upon the Rhine from its lofty banks, far surpass those from the river itself; and the small valleys, which pour in their tributary streams on the rt. hand and l., have beauties to unfold of which the steam-driven tourist has no conception, which are entirely lost to him. At the same time, to avoid disappointment at first, he should remember that below Bonn or Godesberg he will find nothing to admire in the scenery of the river. In order thoroughly to explore and appreciate the Rhine, it is necessary every now and then to make a halt, and the following places appear the most appropriate stations to remain at:—Godesberg, or Königswinter; Coblenz; St. Goar; Bingen; or Rüdesheim.

[N. G.]

RAILROADS run along both banks of the Rhine. The rt. bank rly. from Cologne to Coblenz (41 m., 5 trains daily), starts from the terminus at Deutz. The l. bank rly. (50 m., 10 trains daily in 2 to 3 hrs.) starts from the Central Bahnhof near the Dom. The seats on the l. side of the carriages alone command the view.

RAILWAY TO BONN.

Distance, 21 m.; time (express) 14 min., 14 trains daily.

Quitting Cologne, the train leaves rt. the line to Aix (Rte. 36), passes the goods dépôt, and skirts the city, making a wide sweep in view of its walls, towers, and spires. The line at first runs through a plain of corn-fields, at some distance from the Rhine.

10 m. Brühl Stat. (Inns: Pavillon and Belvedere). (Pop. 2000). In front of the stat. is the Château built by the Elector, Archbp. of Cöln, Clement Augustus, 1728: it was the residence of Marshal Davoust in the time of Napoleon, and now belongs to the German Emperor. The King of Prussia received Queen Victoria here in 1845, during the Beethoven festival at Bonn. It contains some portraits of Rhenish Electors and other German princes. The garden and an old-fashioned park attached to it are skirted by the rly.

The ancient Franciscan convent is now a seminary for schoolmasters.

The hunting-seat of Falkenlust, united to Brühl by avenues of trees, also belonged to the Electors.

3 m. Sechtem Stat.

At Waldorf are remains of a Roman aqueduct, which, extending up to the course of the Erft, conveyed its waters to the Rhine.

4 m. Roisdorf Stat. Here are mineral springs resembling the Seltzer water. The outline of the Seven Mountains beyond the Rhine is a pleasing feature in the view.

The Kreuzberg, with its ch., and the village of Poppelsdorf, are seen rt. before reaching 5 m. Bonn Stat., close to the horse-chestnut avenue leading to Poppelsdorf. Omnibus from the stat. to the steamers.

BY THE RHINE TO COBLENZ.

Several steamers start every morning from Cologne to Coblenz, 54 m., making the voyage in 8 hrs., descending in 5.

At the upper end of Cologne, at the margin of the river, rises the Bayenthurm, a stately and picturesque Gothic tower of the 14th cent. From its position, projecting into the river, it serves in winter to stave off the ice-shocks from the city below.

The château of Bensdorf, now a Prussian military academy.

From Cologne to Bonn the banks of the Rhine are as flat and uninteresting as in Holland, and the villages which lie on them do not require any notice, and on this account time may be well saved by taking the rly. as far as Bonn, on nearing which the picturesque outline of the Siebengebirge (Seven Mountains) on the rt. bank, rivets the attention.

rt. The abbey buildings of Siegburg, rising conspicuously on an eminence above the Sieg, about 3 m. E. of the Rhine (see Rte. 47).

rt. Mouth of the river Sieg. The Sicambri (Sieg - ambri), an ancient people, lived upon its banks.

rt. At Schwarz-Rheindorf, opposite Bonn, about $\frac{1}{2}$ m. below the Flying Bridge, there is a curious architectural monument, The Stift Kirche—a church of 2 storeys, now restored for divine worship. It was erected by Arnold von Wied, Archbishop of Cologne, in 1151, yet it is entirely in the Romanesque style, showing no traces of the pointed Gothic. It is surrounded outside by an elegant open gallery or arcade, supported by more than 100 little pillars, whose bases and capitals exhibit a prolific variety of ornament. It will interest architects and antiquaries.

1. Bonn Stat. (Bu.) Inns: *Goldner

Stern, good, comfortable, and moderate, in the market-place; Königlicher Hof, outside the Coblenz gate; Hotel Bellevue; Hotel Kley—these all have gardens down to the water-side. Boarding House: Château du Rhin, close to the river, quiet, comfortable, and well kept. The red Ahr wines, called Walporzheimer and Ahrbleichart, are very good here.

This flourishing town of 26,244 Inhab., lies on the l. bank of the Rhine. It has been greatly increased of late by new buildings, owing to its attractions as a pleasant place of residence. It is chiefly remarkable for its University, established by the King of Prussia, Frederick William III., in 1818. The Prince Consort was a student here. Among those who have filled chairs here, the most distinguished are Niebuhr and A. W. Schlegel, both dead.

At the present time Pfütger, the physiologist, and Kekuly, the chemist, have European repute. The chemical laboratory is first-rate.

The Electors of Cologne removed their court here from Cologne in 1273. Their huge palace, built 1730, nearly $\frac{1}{4}$ m. long, now serves to contain the University; and includes Lecture-rooms, Library of 200,000 vols., and Academical Hall, decorated with modern frescoes, painted under the direction of Cornelius by his pupils. The subjects are the four faculties, Philosophy, Jurisprudence, Medicine, in which Cuvier and Linnæus are conspicuous, and Theology, where Luther, Calvin, Wiclif, St. Jerome and the Fathers, Ignatius Loyola, and other divines, both Catholic and Protestant, are introduced.

The same building contains the Museum of Rhenish Antiquities, a small but interesting assemblage of local remains discovered on the banks of the Rhine, and relics of Roman settlements in this part of Germany, in three small rooms, but not named nor catalogued. The following seem to be the most remarkable objects:—A Roman altar, dedicated to Victory, which formerly stood in the square called Römerplatz, and is supposed by some to be the identical Ara Ubiorum mentioned by Tacitus (Annal.

PLAN OF BONN.

CHATEAU POTELAGORY.

I. 30). A bronze vase, bearing figures of Hercules, Mars, and Venus, in a pure style of art, found at Zülpick. Numerous weapons, trinkets, vases, glass vessels, a winged head of Mercury, found at Haddernheim; the gravestone of one M. Cælius, who fell in the great battle of Varus against Arminius, very interesting from the event it commemorates, as well as for its representation of Roman military costume; Jupiter's wig and a thunderbolt of bronze, from the Hunderück; tiles stamped with the numbers of several Roman legions (xxi. xxii.) stationed in these parts; a Roman millstone of Mendig tufa, and an ancient German shield of wood, dug up at Isenburg, in Westphalia, besides 200 bronzes. The Universitätspedell shows the hall (small fee) and the Museum. The collections are opened to the public Wed. and Sat., 12-1; the library on the same days, 2-4.

A double Avenue of chestnuts, about $\frac{1}{2}$ m. long, forming an agreeable walk, conducts to the Schloss Poppelsdorf, containing the Museum of Natural History. The collection of minerals and fossils is extensive and good, and especially interesting, as illustrating the geology of the Rhine, and of the volcanic deposits of the Siebengebirge and Eifel, arranged by Prof. Goldfuss. Among the fossil remains may be seen a complete series from the brown coal formation of Friesdorf, near Bonn. A set of fossil frogs, from the most perfect state down to that of a tadpole, discovered in the shale called paper-coal, deserves notice. Attached to the Château is the Botanic Garden, very spacious, very rich, and beautifully situated. $\frac{1}{4}$ hour's good walking brings you from this garden to the church on the Kreutzberg.

The Minster, a fine building externally, surmounted by 5 towers, was founded, it is said, by Helena, mother of Constantine the Great, and contains a bronze statue of her, of the style and age of Louis XIV. The circuit of the choir and its 2 towers were apparently built in the 10th cent.: the rest, including the middle tower, about 1177. The more remarkable parts are the central tower, seen from the rly., the windows of the nave formed of 5 small pointed arches, and the cloisters. The interior is very plain.

To the Reading-Rooms of the University admission may be obtained by a Professor's order.

The English Ch. Service is performed on Sunday by an English clergyman, in the University Ch.

There is a very good club here, called Lese- and Erholungs-Gesellschaft.

Dr. Wolff is a clever and safe physician; also Prof. Busch: both speak English.

Dr. Perry, an English gentleman (Poppelsdorfer Allée), receives a few pupils in his house, and prepares them for competitive examinations in the military and civil service; also for a mercantile career.

Beethoven was born (1770) in the house No. 934 Rheingasse. A bronze statue by Hähnel was erected to him in 1845, in the Münster-platz; and (in 1865) one in bronze of Arndt (d. 1860), the poet and patriot, on the Alten Zoll.

In the Churchyard, outside the Sternen Thor, Niebuhr the historian (d. 1831) is buried. His monument, raised to his memory by his pupil King Frederick William IV., is by Rauch. Here also lie A. W. Schlegel and Robert Schumann, the musician (d. 1856). Here also are the graves of several students killed in duels. A small 13th-cent. Romanesque chapel, brought from Romersdorf 1847, has been set up here.

Bonn, mentioned by Tacitus as Castra Bonnensia, was one of the chief Roman fortresses on the Rhine, founded probably by Drusus, and was the spot where Claudius Civilis, the rebel leader of the Batavi, was defeated by the Romans, A.D. 70. (Hist. iv. 20.)

The most notable events in the annals of Bonn are its capture after a long siege, in 1584, by Archbp. Ernest of Bavaria, from Archbp. Gebhard of Waldburg, who had been deposed from the see because he had become a Protestant; and its surrender to the English and Dutch army under Marlborough, in 1703, after a siege, conducted by the celebrated Coehorn. In the course of it a great part of the town was burnt.

Excursions.—At Bonn the beauties of the Rhine may be said to commence, and the view of the Seven Mountains on the opposite side of the river is striking. They are seen to great advantage from (a) the commanding terrace, called Alten Zoll, overlooking the Rhine, outside the Coblenz gate, or (b) from the summit of the Kreuzberg, one of the hills behind Poppelsdorf, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. from Bonn. Here is a Church formerly attached to a convent of Servites, built 1627. In a chapel behind the altar are shown the Sacred Stairs which led up to Pilate's Judgment Hall. They were built of Italian marble by the Elector Clement Augustus (1725), in imitation of the staircase at Rome called the Scala Santa; and no one is allowed to ascend them except on his knees. The church is annually visited by pilgrims, chiefly the rude peasants of the Eifel. In the crypt beneath lie 25 mummied monks. Let them rest in peace.

(c). A pleasant walk of 2 hrs. through woods and thickets will take you to and from the top of the Venusberg, which is one of the very best points of view.

Agreeable expeditions may be made from Bonn to—1. Godesberg Castle (see below), on the railroad to Coblenz, and the Alum Works at Friesdorf; 2. The Drachenfels and Siebengebirge, with the ruins of Heisterbach on the opposite side of the Rhine, described farther on; 3. The valley of the Ahr (Rte. 39). A direct carriage-road leads over the hills to Altenahr, 18 m.

Omnibus to Siegburg Stat. (Rte. 47), beyond the Rhine; crossing it by the flying bridge.

BONN TO COBLENZ.

Steamers in 4—4½ hrs.

Railway along the rt. bank of the Rhine, from Ober-Cassel Stat. opposite Bonn. Railway carriages are ferried over in iron boats.

Railway, l. bank, 1 hr. 10 m. to 1 hr. 40 m., traversing the Poppelsdorf Avenue, runs at first across the plains at a little distance from the Rhine.

After leaving Bonn about 3 m., see 1. a Gothic Cross called the Hochkreuz, erected by an Archbishop of Cologne, 1331.

[About a mile from this, to the rt. of the road, are the brown-coal mines and alum-works of Friesdorf. The stratum here worked is, in fact, a forest, buried in an early period of the world's existence, and now converted into lignite or brown coal. The trunks of trees are intermixed with clays and sands, and exhibit all the stages from fossil wood, in which the vegetable fibre and texture are quite discernible, down to bituminous earthy coal fit for burning as fuel. Many fossil fishes and freshwater shells are found in these beds. Associated with the coal is a stratum furnishing the ingredients for extensive alum-works. The alum of commerce is a compound of sulphuric acid, potash, and aluminous earth, and all these substances are obtained on the spot, from materials found in contact with the alum clay. The sulphuric acid is formed by the action of air and moisture upon iron pyrites (sulphuret of iron), previously gently roasted, and the potash from the ashes of the brown coal used as fuel in evaporating and crystallising the alum salt. The same mine furnishes a fine potter's clay, which is used in making the conical moulds employed in refining beet-root sugar, which is extensively manufactured hereabouts.

At Putzburg, near Friesdorf, gigantic trunks of trees, sometimes 10 or 12 ft. in diameter, occur embedded in the strata. The earthy brown coal worked here affords the valuable pigment known by the name of burnt umber, or Cologne earth.]

1. Plittersdorf, a village of quaint houses fronting the river. Here the steamer stops for passengers to or from Godesberg, 1½ m. distant from the Rhine, and 5 from Bonn. Here is a ferry to Nieder-Dollendorf Stat.

[About 2 m. inland S.E. from Nieder-Dollendorf lie the ruins of the Cistercian Abbey of Heisterbach (Inn near). A carriage-road leads to it. The pedestrian, after passing Ober-Dollendorf, will proceed by a wooded path into the Petersthal, a secluded valley at the base of the Petersberg, one of the Seven Mountains, in which the Abbey lies. A fragment—the apse of the choir—alone remains to attest its ancient magnificence. It is a beautiful specimen of the finest style of the transition from the round to the pointed styles—begun in 1202, finished 1233. The building was sold for the mere value of the materials by the French in 1806, and greater part was pulled down and removed to form the fortifications of Wesel. The beautiful fragment which still exists is carefully preserved by the Count Lippe-Biesterfeld, its present owner, and well-deserves the stranger's attention.]

rt. * Godesberg Stat. (Inns: Blinzler's—good; Adler). Donkeys ply near the stat. Hotel, to convey persons up to the castle.

This village of 1200 Inhab. is, on account of its situation, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the Rhine, an agreeable summer residence. Many merchants of Cologne, Elberfeld, &c., have villas here. Near it is a mineral spring, called the Draitscher Brunnen, known to the Romans, where there are baths, 1 mk. each.

$\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the stat., to be reached by numerous paths winding round the hill, is the ancient Castle Keep, a picturesque and conspicuous object for miles. It was built by the warlike Archbishops of Cologne, 1212, on the site of a Roman fort, and served them long as a stronghold. The Bavarians took it and blew it up, 1583, because it held out for the Protestant Archbp. Gebhard of Waldburg, who had become entangled with a Lady Agnes, Countess of Mansfeld. The cylindrical Donjon (100 ft. high, built 1340) commands a beautiful prospect over the Rhine.

Excursions.—1. The volcanic hill of Roderberg. 2. The Seven Mountains. The nearest way to them is to cross the Rhine by the Flying Bridge to Königswinter, at the foot of the Drachenfels. This excursion may be lengthened by ascending the l. bank of the Rhine as far as Rolandseck, and, after exploring its ruined castle, crossing in a boat to Nonnenwerth and then dropping down the river to Königswinter. The excursion will not take up more than a day, and is decidedly a very interesting one. 3. The short tour up the valley of the Ahr (Rte. 39). 4. A visit to the abbey of Heisterbach may be combined with the tour of the Seven Mountains, but is better made separately, crossing the Rhine by the ferry from Plittersdorf (l.) to Nieder-Dollendorf.

Mehlem Stat. is 5 min. walk from the Rhine, and from the ferry (flying bridge) across it to rt. Königswinter Stat. (Inns: H. de l'Europe, comfortable; Hôtel de Berlin both: overlooking the Rhine), avillage of 1500 Inhab., at the foot of the Drachenfels, which is most conveniently ascended from this in 30 min. Asses 2 mks., there and back 3 mks., for the ascent of the mountain. A 1-horse carriage 6 mks., there and back 7 mks.; 2 horses 7 and $8\frac{1}{2}$ mks. The footpath to Heisterbach Ch. (described above) is shorter than the road and very pleasant, but difficult to find without a guide. Boats to Nonnenwerth and back, 2 mks.

rt. The SEVEN MOUNTAINS (Sieben-gebirge). This group of hills, in reality more than 7 in number, forms a grand commencement to the beautiful scenery of the Rhine. They are the highest and wildest on its banks, entirely of volcanic origin, and consist of lava, trachyte, and basalt, ejected through the rocks, which form the basement of the surrounding country, by subterranean eruptions which took place previous to the existence of any human record or tradition. The names and heights of the 7 principal summits (for there are many minor heights) are as follows:—Lohrberg, 1355 ft.; Niederstromberg, 1066 ft.; Oelberg, 1429 ft. (the highest); Wolkenberg, 1001 ft.; Drachenfels, 1056 ft.; Petersberg, 1030 ft.; Löwenberg, 1414 ft. (the last commanding a view considered by some superior to that from the Drachenfels); and reached in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. from Honnef or Rhöndorf. They are almost all crowned with a chapel or the ruin of some ancient tower or hermit's cell, which adds much to their picturesque features.

The trachyte rock of the Wolkenburg is quarried to a considerable extent as building stone. It abounds in the mineral called glassy felspar.

The most interesting of the whole group, from its shape and position, but more than all from the verses of Byron, is the famed *DRACHENFELS (Dragon Rock), whose precipices rise abruptly from the river side, crowned with a ruin.

"The castled crag of Drachenfels
Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine,
Whose breast of waters broadly swells
Between the banks which bear the vine;
And hills all rich with blossom'd trees,
And fields which promise corn and wine,
And scatter'd cities crowning these,
Whose far white walls along them shine,
Have strew'd a scene which I should see
With double joy wert thou with me,

"And peasant girls with deep blue eyes,
And hands which offer early flowers,
Walk smiling o'er this paradise;
Above, the frequent feudal towers
Through green leaves lift their walls of gray,
And many a rock which steeply lowers,
And noble arch in proud decay,
Look o'er this vale of vintage-bowers;
But one thing want these banks of Rhine,—
Thy gentle hand to clasp in mine!

"The river nobly foams and flows,
The charm of this enchanted ground,
And all its thousand turns disclose
Some fresher beauty varying round:
The haughtiest breast its wish might bound
Through life to dwell delighted here;
Nor could on earth a spot be found
To nature and to me so dear,
Could thy dear eyes in following mine
Still sweeten more these banks of Rhine!"
BYRON.

The summit of the Drachenfels commands a noble view, and it may be reached in about half an hour from Königswinter without difficulty and without a guide. The slopes are covered with brushwood, through which the path winds, except near the summit where the rock breaks through. The traveller is shown the quarry from which the blocks of trachyte were originally taken to build the cathedral of Cologne, called, in consequence, Dombruch, and the cave of the Dragon (from which the mountain was named) killed, as it is reported, by the horned Siegfried, the hero of the Niebelungen Lay. On a terrace a little below the top is a tolerable Inn, where people may dine. The ruins of the keep of a castle on the top, reduced to 3 sides of wonderfully solid masonry, is of the 12th cent. It was destroyed in the 30 Years' War.

The View hence extends down the river as far as Cologne, 20 m. off; upwards, the Rhine is soon shut in by rocks, which, however, are very grand, while Bonn and its University, with old castles, villages, and farmhouses almost beyond number, fill up the foreground of the landscape. The principal objects are Remagen and the Apollinarisberg, the volcanic chain of the Eifel behind, Oberwinter and the island Nonnenwerth, the ruined arch of Rolandseck, the extinct crater of Roderberg, and the donjon of Godesberg.

Scarcely less interesting is the view in the rear of the Drachenfels, over the Seven Mountains and their intervening valleys. The ruins on several of their summits are remains of castles of the Archbishops of Cologne. In that which crowned the Löwenberg the reformers Melanchthon and Bucer passed some time with Archbp. Herman von Wied, who afterwards adopted the Reformed faith; and his successor, the Archbp. Gebhard of Waldburg, took refuge here, with his beautiful wife, Agnes, Countess of Mansfeld, 1585. The view from this summit extends back over part of the Westerwald and of Westphalia.

1. Near Mehlem Stat. is the Roderberg, one of the most interesting extinct volcanoes on the Rhine. Its crater is circular, nearly $\frac{1}{4}$ m. in diameter, and 100 ft. deep. It is now covered with fields of corn. The sides are composed in many places of tufa and scorïæ, exactly similar to those found on Vesuvius. From this crater you may walk through the gorge called Eliaschlucht to the ridge on which stand the ruined arch and modern tower of (1.) the Castle of Rolandseck, an admirable point of view for surveying the Rhine (see below).

Rolandseck Stat. Buffet, good, fine views. (Inns: H. de Roland, with pretty garden, at foot of the rock; *H. de Rolandseck, often full, good; H. Billau on the Rhine.)

The bold and precipitous rock of Rolandseck, composed of prismatic basalt, with one desolate arch, a fragment of its scanty and mouldering baronial fortress, is a striking object from the river. Its summit, $\frac{3}{4}$ m. from the Stat., 340 ft. above the Rhine, is crowned by a modern tower, erected 1848, and commands a view less extensive but more picturesque than that from the Drachenfels on the opposite bank. This ruin receives its name from a tradition that the famous nephew of Charlemagne chose this spot because it commanded a view of the Convent of Nonnenwerth, within whose walls his betrothed bride had taken the veil upon hearing a false report of his having fallen at Roncesvalles. He lived here a lonely hermit for many years, according to the story, which has furnished the subject of one of Schiller's most beautiful ballads, 'Ritter Toggenburg.' The scene, however, has been transferred by Schiller from the Rhine to Switzerland, and the tale to the time of the Crusades. The castle was, at one time, a nest of robbers, whose depredations rendered them the terror of the vicinity. Rolandseck projects so far forward, that the rail and high road have barely room to pass between its foot and the brink of the Rhine.

Exactly opposite, in the middle of the stream, is the island of Nonnenwerth (Nun's island), so called from the large building upon it, embowered in trees, an Ursuline nunnery, built 1673, on the site of that which was once the asylum of the bride of the unfortunate Roland. The amiable intercession of Josephine with Napoleon, on behalf of the nuns, is said to have preserved to them the possession of their ancient retreat, at the time when the other religious establishments on the Rhine were secularised by the French. A new wing has been added to the building in order to fit it for a girls' school, under the direction of a sisterhood.

rt. Honnef Stat. (Klein's Inn).

The greater part of the road and rly. from Rolandseck to Remagen is quarried in the rock. It was begun by the Bavarians, continued by the French, and completed by the Prussians. The Romans, however, have the credit of laying the foundations of this noble highway, as was proved by remains turned up by the modern road-makers, such as coffins, coins, and a Roman milestone, the inscription of which proved, that under Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus, A.D. 161-180, a road had been already formed here.

rt. Unkel Stat. (Clasen's Inn), whose market-place abounds with picturesque houses. l., opposite the village, is the Unkelstein, a hill composed of basaltic columns, resembling those of the Giant's Causeway. They are found both in a horizontal and vertical position, and extend far into the bed of the Rhine, where they formed an obstacle to the passage of timber-rafts, until the rock was blown up by the French. As it is, the current of the Rhine sweeps with great force past the Unkelstein. The basalt affords the best material for roads and pavements, on which account it is extensively quarried. In 1846 a landslip in the basalt lifted up the high road 40 ft. above its former level.

1. Apollinarisberg, a low rocky platform, named after a Saint, whose head is preserved here, bears on it a modern Gothic Church, designed (1839) by Zwirner (the restorer of the Dom of Cologne), for Graf Fürstenberg Stammheim. It is decorated internally with Frescoes, completed in 1853, which rank as some of the best works of the German school. Entering by the W. door: on the l. are scenes from the life of Christ, by Deger. In the N. transept, St. Apollinaris destroying, through prayer, the statue of Jupiter in the presence of the Roman Empr., by A. Müller. Figures of Saints, by Ittenbach. The Crucifixion, and, beneath, the Passion of Christ, by Deger. Justice, Prudence, Fortitude, and Temperance, by Ittenbach. Martyrdom of St. Apollinaris, by A. Müller. In the choir: on the l. the Resurrection of Christ, by Deger. Noli me tangere, and Delivery of the Keys to Peter, by Ittenbach. On the arch of the apse, the Adoration of the Lamb, and the Sacraments, by C. Müller. In the apse, Christ among the Saints of the old and new Covenant, by Deger. On the rt. of the choir, the Coronation of the Virgin, by C. Müller. In the S. transept, the episcopal consecration of St. Apollinaris, by A. Müller. SS. Theodore, Sophia, Francis of Assisi, and V. Paula, patrons of the founder and his family, by Ittenbach. Annunciation, Marriage, and Visitation of the Virgin (close to the window), by C. Müller. Faith, Love, Hope, and Humility, by Ittenbach. St. Apollinaris raises the daughter of the Governor of Ravenna, by A. Müller. On the rt. on entering by the W. door, Scenes from the Legends of the Virgin, by Ittenbach. Beneath the ch. is a Crypt. There is a very good distant view of the 7 mountains from the Apollinarisberg. Ch. open 9½ to 12 and 2 to 4. At the foot of the hill lies

1. Remagen Stat. (Inns: *H. Fürstenberg and König von Preussen, close together, at the water-side, one proprietor, good); the Rigomagus of the Romans, a town of 2500 Inhab. See the Romanesque Gateway, part of the Palace of the Frankish kings, now leading to the Pfarrhof, close to the church. The sculptures on it are quaint and difficult to explain;—on the l. jamb, a warrior trampling on another man; griffins; a man in a tub, dragon and serpent, figures male and female with fishes' tails and birds, a sow with 3 pigs, &c. The Apollinarisberg is 10 min. walk from the stat. Pleasant walks have been made up the Victoria-berg.

Excursions may conveniently be made from this—1, to Ahrweiler, Neuenahr, baths (8 m.) omnibus, and Altenahr, in the Ahr valley (Rte. 39); 2, to Brohl and the Lake of Laach (Rte. 40). One-horse carriage to Ahrweiler 4 mks., and back 7 mks.; two horses 7 mks. and 10½ mks. To Altenahr, 8½ and 11 mks., or 11½ and 16 mks. See the tariff.

The l. bank Railway above Remagen quits the side of the Rhine, crossing a flat plain to avoid a great bend which the river makes, to Niederbreisig.

rt. A little beyond Remagen, on the opposite bank, rise the basaltic precipices, 700 ft. high, called Erpeler Lei, hollowed into quarries of paving stones. The ingenuity of man has converted these barren rocks, which are almost inaccessible, into a productive vineyard. The vines are planted in baskets filled with mould, and inserted in crevices of the basalt. By this means alone can the earth be preserved from being washed away by every shower.

rt. The blackened walls of the ruined castle of Ockenfels. A little farther on is rt. Linz Stat. (Inn: Nassauer Hof), an ancient fortified town, partly surrounded by walls of basalt; it has 2200 Inhab. An Archbp. of Cologne, in 1365, built the tower, still standing, near the Rhine gate, to enforce the payment of tolls on the river, and to defend the place from the Burghers of Andernach, who were engaged in almost perpetual feuds with him and the townspeople of Linz. The Pfarrkirche, on the height behind, commands a fine view; it contains a monument to the Counts of Renneberg, 1257, one of the noble families of the neighbourhood, and a remarkable picture of 7 compartments, probably of the school of Cologne, bearing the date 1463. A cross 40 ft. high has been placed on the top of the Hummelsberg, a hill behind Linz, as a memorial of the battle of Waterloo. About an hour's walk from Linz are extensive and picturesque Quarries* of columnar basalt, like that of the Giant's Causeway, or Fingal's Cave in the Isle of Staffa, near the summit of the Minderberg; carriage-road to within 300 yds. of the top; fine view. The basalt quarries of Dattenberg are only 20 min. walk from Linz.

1. The river Ahr issues into the Rhine opposite Linz and is crossed by the rly.

Travellers by steamer may best visit Sinzig by landing at Linz, and crossing in a boat—ascending the Ahr, 1½ m.

1. Sinzig Stat. (Inns: Stern; Deutsches Haus), an old picturesque walled town of 2000 Inhab., about 1½ m. from the Rhine, was the Senticum of the Romans. The Parish Ch., restored, is an interesting building, of the time of the transition from the round to the pointed style, date beginning of 13th cent. Obs. the polygonal form of the choir, with a gable over each side. The interior resembles the ch. at Andernach, in having both pointed and circular arches, and over each aisle a gallery, called here the Mannhaus. According to an obscure tradition, near this spot the Cross appeared in the sky to Constantine, on his march to attack Maxentius. Out of the ruins of the Reichs-Pfalz (Palace of the Empire), rt. of the stat., a Gothic castle has been raised by Mr. Bunge, a merchant of Antwerp. [Diligence to Ahrweiler (Rte. 39) in 1½ hr. This is the best point to ascend the Ahr thal for those coming from Coblenz.]

rt. The gable-fronted Schloss Ahrenfels, the Stammhaus, or cradle of the family von der Leyen, is seen in the distance behind the ancient village of Hönningen. It has been restored by Graf Westerholt, and a chapel with spire added.

1. Niederbreisig Stat. Farther from the river lies Oberbreisig, with a curious ch. of the 14th cent.

1. The train passes under the Castle of Rheineck, an ancient watch-tower, 65 ft. high, to which a modern castellated residence was added, 1832, at a lavish expense, for Mr. Bethmann-Hollweg. It contains some modern pictures, and in its chapel are frescoes of the Beatitudes by Steinle. It is shown to strangers when the owner is absent. Its garden commands a fine view, and is always open.

1. Brohl Stat., a small village (Nonn's Inn, tolerable), at the mouth of the stream and valley of the Brohl. It possesses a paper-mill, and several others moved by the streams of the Brohl-Bach for grinding tuff-stone into trass (Dutch tiras—i. e. cement); and there are very singular cave-like quarries of tuff-stone up the valley. This rock resembles the tufa formed at the present day by Etna, Vesuvius, and other active volcanoes, and is probably the result either of a torrent of volcanic mud discharged from some extinct crater into the valley, or of showers of pumice and ashes, thrown up by one of the volcanoes of the Eifel, falling into a lake, mixing with the mud at the bottom of it, and now consolidated into a soft stone. This, when quarried and ground into powder, is called trass, and from its possessing the valuable property of hardening under water is in great request as a cement. Large quantities are exported from this to distant countries, especially into Holland, where it is employed in the construction of the dykes; it resembles the puzzolana of Naples, and the imitation of it, Roman cement. The ancients made use of this kind of stone for coffins; and from its property of absorbing the moisture of the dead body, gave them the name of sarcophagi, i. e. flesh consumers. Votive tablets, bearing Roman inscriptions, have been discovered in the Rhenish quarries, proving at how early a period they were worked. Trunks of trees reduced to the condition of charcoal, and even land-shells of various species, are embedded in the substance of the rock.

[The pleasant day's excursion to the Lake of Laach*, described in Rte. 40, may be made from Brohl, waggonettes, &c., may be hired at the stat.]

The rly. cuts through the lava stream descending from the Fornicherkopf.

rt. On the summit of a bold, black, precipitous rock, opposite to an island in the river, stand the broken walls of Hammerstein Castle, built in the 10th cent., the refuge in 1105 of the Empr. Henry IV., when persecuted by his son, and the place of deposit for the time of the regalia of the Empire. It was besieged by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War, and destroyed by the Archbp. of Cologne in 1660. The small old ch. within it is interesting.

1. Namedy has a pretty church.

(1.) Andernach Stat., 1 m. from the town. The rly. passes at the back of the town (Inn: H. Hackenbruck, not good), one of the oldest cities on the Rhine, 5000 Inhab. It was called by the Romans Antonacum, and originated in one of Drusus' camps pitched on the spot. Most of the present fortifications date from 1577-83. The picturesque telescope Watch-tower, at the lower end of the town, by the water-side, round below, and eight-sided above (date 1520), its side breached by French cannons 1668, and the Crane, a little lower down the stream, built 1554, add to its air of picturesque antiquity.

There are 2 articles of traffic peculiar to this spot: millstones obtained from very singular quarries near Nieder-Mendig, and exported to England, Russia, the East and West Indies, and of Monrepos, situated between the Wied and the Rhine, 6 m. N.N.E. from Neu-wied, form a pleasant excursion, and afford beautiful prospects.]

(1.) The train passes between the Rhine and the village of Weissenthurm (White Tower) (Inn: Riese), so called from the square watch-tower, built 1370, by an Elector of Treves to mark the frontier of his domain. Its modern Church is decorated with frescoes. Here the French crossed the Rhine in spite of the opposition of the Austrians in 1797. On an eminence behind, to the rt. of the road, stands an Obelisk, erected to the memory of the French general Hoche, who achieved that memorable exploit by throwing a bridge across to the island in the middle of the river. The monument bears the simple inscription, "L'Armée de Sambre et Meuse à son Général Hoche." Byron says of it, "This is all, and as it should be; Hoche was esteemed among the first of France's earlier generals, until Napoleon monopolised her triumphs. He was the destined commander of the invading army of Ireland," but died shortly after this at Wetzlar.

(1.) Beyond Weissenthurm the railroad quits the side of the Rhine.

(rt.) Engers Stat., a small village, with an ivy-clad stump of a Tower, built by Archbp. Cuno of Falkenstein, 1386, and a Schloss, built 1758, by a later Elector of Treves, facing the river, now a Prussian military academy. This is supposed to be the scene of Cæsar's second passage of the Rhine, described in his Commentaries, by means of a bridge which his army threw across the river. A short way above this the remains of a Roman bridgehead are discoverable near the river, and there are important iron works up the valley. The so-called "Engerser Sandstein" is an excellent artificial building stone, made out of the volcanic pumice found in this neighbourhood.

(rt.) Mühlhofen, a village at the mouth of the river Sayn, rising above which appear the furnaces of the Ironworks (Sayner Hütte), now property of the Prussians, 900 Inhab. (Inn: Post). The coal comes from the Ruhr and Saar, the iron ore (hæmatite) from Braunfels, near Wetzlar.

[A good road strikes up the valley, and leads, in 3 m. from Engers, and about 8 m. from Coblenz, to the village and modern Château of Sayn, belonging to the Prince of Sayn-Wittgenstein-Sayn. It is handsomely furnished, and contains a good collection of modern paintings—shown in the absence of the family (on Thursdays and Sundays). Pleasant walks lead through the grounds behind to the picturesque ruins of the Old Castle of Sayn, destroyed by the French in the Thirty Years' War, crowning the point of the hill, visible from the Rhine, and commanding a fine view. Farther up the valley is the romantic Park of Rennerberg. Architects should look at the Old Church of Sayn, behind the Castle, a narrow nave without aisles ending in an E. apse $\frac{3}{4}$ ths of a circle, date 1400. At the upper extremity of the valley is the Castle of the Counts of Isenburg, whence they used to sally forth and plunder the merchants upon the Rhine. The whole valley is beautiful; the stream of the Sayn gives it verdure; its woody sides afford a cool shelter even in summer, and are intersected with walks, and provided with seats and summer-houses. It is a favourite excursion of the people of Coblenz. N. of the valley, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. N. of Sayn, and as far N.E. of Engers, on the slope of a hill, stands the ruined abbey of Rommersdorf. The ch. was consecrated in 1210: the fine chapter-house and cloister were built between 1214-1236. The abbey has become the property of the Duc d'Arenberg, and is well preserved.]

rt. Bendorf Stat. (Inn: Rhein Hof). The Protestant Ch. is pure Romanesque, with a later Gothic transept, and annexed to this a modern Rom. Cath. ch.

rt. Vallendar Stat. has a handsome modern ch. Fine view hence. About $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.'s walk E. up a pretty valley, passing the remains of the convent Schönstatt, now a cloth manufactory, is the village of Höhr, containing some characteristic old carved wood houses, and once the principal seat of the manufacture of the cheap and often artistic blue and white earthenware seen everywhere near the Rhine.

(rt.) The walls and buildings of the Castle of Ehrenbreitstein, on the top of its massive and commanding rock pedestal, are visible long before Coblenz appears behind the green slopes of the l. bank. Rly. Stat. at foot of rock.

1. Neuendorf. Here the comparatively small timber-rafts from the upper Rhine and its tributaries, and from the Mosel, are formed into the large rafts which descend to Holland.

(1.) Near Kesselheim are remains of the château of Schönbornlust, originally a palace of the Elector of Treves, and only remarkable because it was the headquarters of the Bourbon princes and their supporters who were exiled from France during the first revolution. Here their plans of invading France were concocted. The part of the building now standing serves as an inn. The plain between Andernach and Coblenz becomes every 3 years the scene of extensive military reviews of the Prussian army; 25,000 men are manoeuvred on these occasions, usually in August or September, for the space of one month.

(1.) Near the junction of the Mosel and Rhine, the railway skirts the fortified height of Petersberg, crowned by the strong Fort Franz. Within its walls, on the l. as you enter, a plain marble slab with 4 corner-stones marks the Grave of the French General Hoche, who died at Wetzlar. Not far off is the "Monument of General Marceau, killed at the battle of Altenkirchen, in attempting to cover the retreat of Jourdan, on the last day of the 4th year of the French republic." (Sept. 21, 1796.)

"By Coblenz, on a rise of gentle ground,
There is a small and simple pyramid,
Crowning the summit of the verdant mound;
Beneath its base are heroes' ashes hid,

Our enemy's—but let not that forbid
Honour to Marceau! o'er whose early tomb
Tears, big tears, gush'd from the rough soldier's lid,
Lamenting and yet envying such a doom,
Falling for France, whose rights he battled to resume.

"Brief, brave, and glorious was his young career,—

His mourners were two hosts, his friends and foes;

And fitly may the stranger lingering here
Pray for his gallant spirit's bright repose;
For he was Freedom's champion, one of those,

The few in number, who had not o'erstept
The charter to chastise which she bestows
On such as wield her weapons; he had kept
The whiteness of his soul, and thus men o'er him wept."

BYRON.

Byron adds: "The inscriptions on his monument are rather too long, and not required: his name was enough. France adored, and her enemies admired; both wept over him. His funeral was attended by the generals and detachments from both armies." It was in allusion to the last circumstance that the words of the Marquis of Pescara, in whose arms Bayard breathed his last under nearly similar circumstances, were inscribed on the monument: "Je voudrais qu'il m'eût coûté le quart de mon sang, et vous tinse en santé mon prisonnier! quoique je sais que l'Empereur mon maître n'eut en ses guerres plus rude ni fâcheux ennemi."—Mémoires de Bayard. On another side of the monument were inscribed the words, "Qui que tu sois, ami ou ennemi, de ce jeune héros respecte les cendres."

This injunction has not been exactly complied with. The monumental pyramid originally stood at a little distance from its present position; but as it interfered with the line of fortifications, it was removed in 1819, along with the remains of the General, to the spot which they now occupy, where the tomb was rebuilt at the command of King Frederick William III. of Prussia, on its present site, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.'s walk from the Mosel Bridge.

1. After passing under the works of the Fort Kaiser Franz, which the French commenced and called Fort Marceau, the railroad crosses the Mosel, a little above the old stone bridge, some distance above its confluence with the Rhine, and penetrating the walls reaches Coblenz Stat., surrounded by fortifications, from which little is seen of the town.

The breaking up of the frost is sometimes attended with danger to the town of Coblenz. In the spring of 1830 the ice on the Mosel came down while the Rhine was still frozen over; and being forced on by the current, while there was no outlet for its discharge, was raised into heaps 10 ft. high near the junction of the river, so as to overtop the stone bridge across the Mosel, and the quays along its banks. Indeed, but for these quays, then recently built, it is probable some of the houses in the lower town would have been injured: the boats moored in front of them were crushed by the weight. The water of the Mosel rose so high as to break over the tongue of land on its l. bank, threatening destruction to the village of Neuendorf, whose inhabitants took to flight; and it even floated up the Rhine on the top of the ice as far as Boppard!

The Palace of the Emperor, formerly of the Electors of Treves, the Government house, and a long row of stately houses, hotels, &c., extending along the l. bank of the Rhine, are conspicuous as the steamer reaches her moorings.

† 1. Coblenz Junct. Stat. — Inns: the Giant* (Riese), nearest to the landing-place of the steamers; H. Bellevue*, quieter, both facing the Rhine. Table-d'hôte, at 1. Trierscher Hof (Poste), in the Clemens Platz, good and quiet, table-d'hôte, 2½ mks. 2nd class, H. de Liège, moderate, near the Mosel and the Rly. Stat.; Anker, next to the Giant, good. Mosel wines may be had good here.

N. B. — The principal hotels are nearer the Ehrenbreitstein rt.-bank stat. than the Coblenz l.-bank stat.

This strongly fortified town, long the bulwark of Germany and Prussia on the side of France, lies on the l. bank of the Rhine, and rt. of the Mosel. The Romans called it Confluentes, modernised into Coblenz, from its situation at the confluence of these 2 rivers. It is the capital of the Rhenish provinces of Prussia, and its population, including that of Ehrenbreitstein and 5000 men in garrison, is 33,500.

The Fortifications, which occupied half a century to complete, consist of four groups or systems of works: 1. The town itself, surrounded by ramparts on the l. bank of the Rhine, and 2, its outworks, extending from l. bank of the Rhine to rt. of the Mosel, including Ft. Alexander (the key), Ft. Constantine, and five other forts commanding the valley of the Mosel. 3. A system of works crowning the hills between l. bank of the Mosel and the Rhine, of which Feste Franz is the centre, surrounded by 6 minor forts. 4. The Aster System, on the rt. bank of the Rhine, of which Asterstein is the central fortress, flanked and fronted by five minor forts. A deep ravine and sunk road separate these from 6 other forts, forming the N. and more important division of the Aster System, ranging with the lower works of Ehrenbreitstein almost on a level with the Rhine. The whole is crowned by Upper Ehrenbreitstein, which contains 46,000 stand of arms (all needle-guns), and in its vaults abundant stores of provisions. In all, the works amount to 26 forts or fortresses! These vast defences form a fortified camp, capable of containing 100,000 men, and are unique in their way.

The presence of the military and civil government, and of an extensive garrison; the situation of the town in the centre of the great highway up and down the Rhine, nearly equi-distant from Cologne and Mayence, at the point of junction of the roads to Frankfurt and by Treves to Paris; its vicinity to the fashionable watering-place Ems; and the number of persons daily arriving and departing, render Coblenz a lively and bustling place, especially in summer.

A walk round Coblenz, including the most interesting objects. — Start from the Rhine Bridge to the mouth of the Mosel, through the gate to see St. Castor's ch. and Fountain, thence to the Mosel Bridge, and through the town to the Löhr and Mainzer thor, massive specimens of modern military gates; cross the Rhine by rly. bridge; if time allows, ascend to the Asterstein for the view. Return by the Rhine boat-bridge.

PLAN OF COBLENZ.

The Ch. of St. Castor, at the very confluence of the 2 rivers, distinguished by its 4 towers, and boasting of Louis the Pious (836) for its original founder, in its actual structure dates from 1208, and is an early instance of the Lombard style in the Rhine-land. The exterior of the choir dates from 1201; the nave and transept from 1208; W. portal restored 1862, with statue of St. Castor; the pointed vaulting from 1498. In 1830 the church was restored. On the l. of the chancel stands the beautiful tomb of Cuno of Falkenstein, Archbp. of Treves (d. 1388); it is ornamented with a painting of the Crucifixion, attributed to the old German master, William of Cologne. 2 modern frescoes in the choir are by Settegast. The Nativity by Gassen deserves notice.

In 1338 King Edward III. repaired to Coblenz to meet the Emp. Lewis of Bavaria, who installed him, in front of this church, Vicar of the Empire W. of the Rhine, in order that he might secure the succour of the Imperial vassals on the l. bank of the Rhine, to aid him in his designs against France.

In the square in front of St. Castor's stands a Fountain, erected by the French in 1812, bearing an inscription to commemorate their Invasion of Russia, affixed to it by the French Préfet of the Département. This inscription had not stood many months before the Russians, pursuing the army of Napoleon, arrived here on their way to Paris. Their commander, St. Priest, instead of erasing the obnoxious words, contented himself with the following sarcastic addition, which remains to the present time: "Vu et approuvé par nous, Commandant Russe de la Ville de Coblenz, le 1^{er} Janvier, 1814."

The Liebfrauenkirche has early pointed arches and scalloped windows in the style of Cologne. It was originally built in 1259; the choir 1404-1431; the vaulting about 1500. The spacious Triforium was evidently intended to hold part of the congregation (? the women); it is paved with old tiles, and reached by roomy staircases.

The Mosel Bridge, begun 1344 by Baldwin, Archbp. of Treves, commands a pleasing view up and down the river, and along the picturesque old buildings which line the quay. Below it, on the rt., rise the ancient Town Hall, and the original Burg, or Castle of the Electors of Treves, built 1280, now a manufactory. One of the first buildings on the l. hand, after passing through the archway from the bridge, is the "Stammhaus" (family house) of Prince Metternich, the late Austrian Prime Minister, who was born in it. There are many other seats of the ancient nobility of the Empire, as that of the Princes von der Leyen, Counts Bassenheim, Elz, &c. The Hospital is under the management of the Sisters of Charity.

The principal building in the New Town is the Schloss, fitted up for the summer residence of the German Emperor. Its handsome façade extends along the Rhine, above the Bridge of Boats; its principal front is turned towards St. Clemens Platz, near which the parade is held about 12 on Wednesdays, when the band plays. It was built, 1786, by the last Elector of Treves, Clement Wenceslaus, Prince of Poland, Duke of Saxony, and uncle of Louis XVI. The interior is very splendid and tasteful, and contains interesting works of art; a bust of the Empress, modelled by the Princess Royal of England, and Gobelin tapestries. It is shown when the royal family are absent (small fee to the housekeeper).

The Service of the Church of England is performed in a large room, fitted up for the purpose near the N. end of the Palace, by an English clergyman twice every Sunday.

The Palace of Justice contains the Law Courts, which are open to the public. Justice is administered by judges in gowns, but without wigs, and by trial by jury. The assizes are held every 3 months.

The Casino, or town club, is of chaste architecture; it has an elegant ball-room, good reading-rooms, and gardens.

Close at hand is an ancient College of Jesuits, now the grammar-school. The Cellars beneath it may deserve a visit as the largest in the district and characteristic of the wine-land. A very agreeable sparkling wine is made from the grapes of the Rhine and Mosel; and the vines which grow under the very guns of Ehrenbreitstein furnish, under skilful management, a highly flavoured wine, which is no bad substitute for Champagne. MM. Jordan, wine-merchants and bankers, have a very large stock of the finest of these wines.

A little above the Boat-bridge, the Rhine is crossed by a very handsome Iron Bridge, opened 1866, for the rly. Foot-passengers can cross paying 2 pfennings. Just above this bridge are the Anlagen formed out of land recovered from the Rhine, a pleasant resort, with walks made by the Queen Ehrenbreitstein is defended by about 400 pieces of cannon. The escarped rocks, or steep slopes, on 3 sides, would bid defiance to almost any assault: its weak point is on the N.W. Here, however, art has done its utmost to repair a natural defect, and 3 lines of defences present themselves, one within another, which would require to be taken in succession before the enemy could enter in this direction. The great platform on the top of the rock, serving as a parade, covers vast arched cisterns of water, furnished by springs without the walls. There is, besides, a well, sunk 400 ft. deep in the rock, communicating with the Rhine.

The rt. bank Rhine Rly. has a stat. at Ehrenbreitstein, and is carried through the rock, at the base of the fortress, and over part of the outworks.

(1.) Hill of the Asterstein.—The view from Ehrenbreitstein is, perhaps, even surpassed by that from the heights in front of the Asterstein Fort, a little S. of Ehrenbreitstein. The best point is a platform marked by an obelisk to the memory of the Prussian soldiers who fell in the campaign of 1866. It may be reached in about 20 min. from either of the bridges. From the Boat-bridge by way of Café Rheinlust and the Louisensturm; from the Railway-bridge to the village of Pfaffendorf, where turn l. by a road passing under the rly. Ehrenbreitstein's rock and citadel form the grand feature of the view. The hill of the Karthause between the Rhine and Mosel may be ascended by a carriage, and commands charming views of both rivers. The road passing Fort Constantine, occupying the site of a Carthusian convent, and higher up Fort Alexander. While the Schöne Aussicht, a platform furnished with seats and shaded by trees, may satisfy those not strong a-foot.

There are so many interesting spots near Coblenz, to which Excursions may be made, that it deserves to be chosen as a halting-place for some days. (a.) To the Castle of Stolzenfels, 3 m. up, on the l. bank of the Rhine, where is Capellen Stat., on the railroad to Mayence, Rte. 38; vehicles may be found near the Mainzer Thor to take you there and back (4 mks.) It is cheaper and pleasanter to take steamer to Capellen. (b.) to the top of the Kühkopf, the wooded hill, 1160 ft. high, rising S. of the Chartreuse, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. from Coblenz: (c.) to Lahnstein Stat., on the rt. bank of the Rhine, Rte. 38: (d.) to Sayn Château, the ruined Castle of Isenberg, and the Abbey of Rommersdorf (see Rte. 37). Tours of a day may be made to the Abbey and Lake of Laach (Rte. 40); to the Castle of Elz (Rte. 41); to the Castle of Marksburg (Rte. 38)—taking the train, or a carriage to Niederspay, opposite Braubach, stopping to see Stolzenfels and the Königsstuhl. Cross the ferry at Niederspay, ascend to the Marksburg. Return by train on rt. bank.

The numerous forests around abound in game—roes, stags, wild boar, and even wolves. The preserves of the Duke of Nassau and Prince of Wied are richly stocked, but they are not known to be liberal in admitting foreigners to their shooting parties.

The Rhine, above Coblenz.—Some of the finest scenery of the Rhine lies between Coblenz and Bingen. Its beauties are better seen from the steamer than from the railroads, which run up both banks. The voyage up to Bingen takes 4 hrs., 2 hrs. down.

Excursion from Coblenz to Ems, 11 m., and the Castle of Nassau, 6 m. beyond it (see Rte. 95), by railway or carriage, or by steamer to Ober-Lahnstein Stat. Ascend the hill above Ems (ladies may mount a donkey): enjoy the view.

Those who have a week to spare may make from Coblenz the tour of the beautiful Mosel to Treves (Rte. 41), returning by the river in the steamer (Rte. 42). N.B.—The Mosel steamer is liable to be stopped for want of water in summer. They who cannot afford time to go all the way to Treves will find it worth their while to devote $1\frac{1}{2}$ or 2 days to an excursion by road (carriage or diligence) to the castle of Elz, and the village of Alf, situated on the Mosel, at a spot where its scenery is gates, crosses the Rhine by an iron bridge just above the Palace, to rt. Horchheim Stat. The Laubach Water-cure Establishment is very popular.

(l.) Capellen (Stolzenfels) Stat. is a little village at the foot of the Stolzenfels, a castle, finely placed on a jutting rock overlooking the Rhine, and nearly opposite the confluence of the Lahn, 3 m. above Coblenz. Its picturesque outline and commanding position seem to justify its name of the Proud Rock, and render it one of the most imposing feudal castles on the Rhine. It is one of the numerous fortresses built by the Archbishops of Treves, and was a favourite residence of several of those princely Prelates. The Lady Isabel, sister of Henry III. of England, and bride of the Emp. Frederick II., was lodged here with a splendid retinue in 1235. It was destroyed by the French in 1689, and had been abandoned to decay, until it was presented by the town of Coblenz to the late King of Prussia, while Crown Prince, by whom it was restored at a cost of more than 50,000*l*. A carriage-road has been formed, partly by bridging a ravine, up to the castle, 300 ft. above the Rhine, and is carried thence in zigzags to the top of the neighbouring hill. Pretty plantations and walks have been laid out around it. The view over the Rhine from castle and grounds is unsurpassed. The chapel is painted by Professor Deger, one of the best artists in Germany; the Rittersaal by Stilke, whose frescoes represent the knightly virtues and accomplishments by scenes from history. 1. Courage: the death of the blind King John of Bohemia at the battle of Crécy, after having fastened his horse to those of two knights. 2. Fidelity: Herman von Siebeneichen saves the Emp. Fred. Barbarossa, by exposing himself to the Guelph assassins, after compelling the Emperor to fly. 3. Love: the Empr. Fred. II., receives his bride Isabel, sister of Henry III. of England. 4. Music: Philip of Swabia and his wife Irene sailing down the Rhine, surrounded by the most famous minstrels of their day. 5. Justice: Rudolf of Habsburg re-establishes general peace. 6. Perseverance: Godfrey of Bouillon hangs up his arms in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. On the window side are St. Gereon, St. George, St. Maurice, and St. Reinhold. In another room is an armoury, where are preserved the swords of Tilly, Blücher, J. Sobieski, Duke of Alva, &c., the pistols of Schill. The swords of Napoleon and Murat have been stolen from the Castle. King Frederick William IV. of Prussia received Queen Victoria here in 1845, and the apartments occupied by H.M. are ostentatiously shown. The castle is often resorted to by the Coblenzers on account of its fine view. Near the Inns (Stolzenfels, Bellevue), at the foot of the rock, donkeys swarm to convey the strangers up it.

Both banks of the Lahn and the rt. bank of the Rhine, nearly all the way hence to Mayence, belonged to Nassau down to 1866.

(rt.) Below the mouth of the Lahn stands the Church of St. John, built about 1100, but reduced to a ruin through a lawsuit about the liability of the titheowner to repair it, which lasted 40 years. The choir is square outside, but curved within: the sacristy has elliptical vaulting: a tower is raised very boldly upon columns: the great tower is the oldest. Beyond it is the village of Nieder-Lahnstein, on the rt. bank of the Lahn. Here the Russians, under St. Priest, crossed the Rhine in 1814. Douquet's Inn, at Lahnstein, is a good dining place, and its small court-yard commands fine views. A good carriage-road leads up the rt. bank of the Lahn to Ems (Rte. 95), and a Railway along the l. bank.

(rt.) Above the mouth of the Lahn, on the top of a rock, is the Castle of Lahneck, ruined but now restored, which gave rise to Göthe's verses 'Geister Gruss.'

† rt. Oberlahnstein Junct. Stat. (Inn: Weller's), an old unaltered walled town, 3000 Inhab., whose most conspicuous edifice is the red Castle of the Electors of Mainz, on the margin of the Rhine,

Just without its S. gate a little white Chapel is visible among the trees; it is memorable as the spot where the Electors met to pronounce the deposition of the cruel and indolent King Wenceslaus. [Branch rly. E. 7 m. to Ems (see Rte. 96.)]

1. The railroad passes (1.) the Königsstuhl (King's Seat), where the Electors used to meet to deliberate on affairs of the Empire. It is an open arched platform with 7 arches and 9 pillars, 1 being in the middle, and with 7 stone seats round the side for the 7 Electors. Here many treaties of peace were concluded, and several kings and emperors dethroned and elected. It was allowed to go to ruin under the French government, and was pulled down 1807, but has been rebuilt in its original shape, and partly out of the old materials (1843). This situation was selected from its vicinity to the territories of the 4 Rhenish Electors. The town of Rhense belonged to the Elector of Cologne, Lahnstein to Mainz, Capellen and Stolzenfels to Treves, and Braubach to the Palatinate. Thus each could repair to this spot, or retire from it into his own dominions, in a few minutes' time. The Rly. passes through the midst of

(1.) Rhense* (Inn: Zum Königsstuhl), 1500 Inhab., one of the least altered and most picturesque towns on the Rhine; its timber houses, few of which are newer than the 16th cent., and some even of the 14th cent., retain entirely the mediæval German aspect.

(rt.) Braubach Stat., a town of 1750 Inhab., with a Schloss at the water-side (now turned into an Inn, zur Philipsburg), stands at the foot of a high and almost conical rock, surmounted by the imposing Castle of Marksburg, an unaltered specimen of a stronghold of the middle ages. It is sometimes used as a prison, and is garrisoned by a corps of invalids. Here is shown the cell in which the Emp. Henry IV. was confined. A secret passage is said to pass down through the rock to a tower on the borders of the river. Good view from the top of the Donjon (called Wimpel or Flag Tower). Braubach is about 7 m. from Ems. A tolerable road connects the two places (Rte. 95). Just out of the town, at the roadside, is a delicious spring of mineral water, resembling that of Selters.

(1.) Three small villages close together, called Mittelspay, Niederspay, and Oberspay. The Rhine here makes a very great bend, and does not recover its former direction till Boppard is passed.

(rt.) Osterspay Stat. 2 m. beyond Braubach, nearly opposite Oberspay, is a mineral spring called Dinkholder Brunnen. Above the little village of Osterspay rises the Castle of Liebeneck, with white walls.

†(1.) Boppard Stat., behind the town (Inns: Rheinischer Hof, clean, comfortable and moderate; Spiegel), a very ancient walled town, with 5000 Inhab. and dark narrow streets, no better than lanes. It was the Roman Baudobriga, and, like many other places upon the Rhine, it owed its origin to a castle built by Drusus, and the walls of this Castrum, an oblong square of Roman masonry, still exist in the heart of the town: the outer walls date from the middle ages. Boppard once an Imperial city, was made over in the 14th cent. to the Elector of Trèves. The Hauptkirche, built about 1200, and distinguished by its twin spires, is an interesting specimen of the Romanesque style, with triforium galleries over the aisles [männerchöre], small round-headed arches, supported on twin columns, and enclosed in larger ones: wall-plates with arches, some round, some pointed. A door at the E. end, surmounted by 3 concentric arches of peculiar arrangement, is worth the architect's notice. The Carmeliterkirche contains a monument of the family von Elz,—rich specimens of sculpture of the 16th cent., but mutilated. Within the picturesque streets the antiquary and artist will find much to interest them. Some of the timber houses, dating from the 15th to the 17th cents., are very elaborate in design. The Tempelhof preserves the recollection of the Knights Templars of Boppard, who first mounted the breach at the storming of Ptolemais in the 3rd Crusade.

Boppard is one of the best halting-places on the Rhine, on account of the beauty of its situation and the variety of charming walk and rides.

[Excursions.—(a) The Mühlthal, running up from the Rhine at Boppard, is one of the prettiest of its lateral valleys. (b) From the Fleckerts-höhe, 1663 ft. above the sea, 6 m. distant (1½ m. on l. of the road over the Hundsücken), a fine panoramic view, extending to the 7 Mountains, Eifel, &c., but commanding only a glimpse of the Rhine itself. (c) From another eminence nearer Boppard 4 different glimpses are caught of the winding of the Rhine, hence called The Four Lakes. (d) To Schloss Ehrenburg and the Moselle at Punderich, a walk of 9 m., requiring a guide, by the village of Buchholz.]

The train passes rt. the large Convent of Marienburg, built 1738, behind Boppard, once a nunnery, next a cotton-mill, afterwards a girls' school, now converted into a medical boarding-house for the Water-cure. The Mühlbad near the river is also a Water-cure.

Before reaching Salzig (l.), famed for its cherry orchards, the mountains recede somewhat from the banks of the river, and give place to corn-fields and meadows.

(rt.) Camp Stat. A little higher up than this village, immediately above the ancient Convent of Bornhofen (where is a 2-aisled ch. exhibiting some bold construction), and opposite Salzig, rise the mouldering towers of the twin castles of Sterrenberg and Liebenstein, crowning the double summit of a lofty rock, covered with vines. They go by the name of the Brothers, and are interesting from their picturesqueness and the tale of their owners, two brothers, who, having fallen in love with the same fair maid, became foes, settled their rivalry by the sword, and fell by each other's hands. The castles belonged to the Electors of Treves.

(rt.) Ehrenthal, a hamlet occupied by miners, where are silver and lead works. A little above this is Wel-mich, a small village at the foot of a mountain, surmounted by the ruined castle of Thurnberg or Kunoberg, built by Kuno v. Falkenstein, Archbp. of Treves (1363), and called "the Mouse," in contrast to "the Cat," another castle above St. Goarshausen. The Mouse, however was generally the stronger of the two, so that the Cat trembled before it. It is one of the most perfect castles on the Rhine; the wood-work alone is wanting; the walls are entire. Fine view.

(l.) Just before reaching the town of St. Goar the rly. skirts the base of the Fortress of Rheinfels, the most extensive ruin on the Rhine, 338 ft. above it, but it hardly rewards the trouble of the ascent by the view which it commands. The original castle was built by a Count Diether of Katzenellenbogen (1245), as a stronghold where he could reside, and also exact toll, or, as we should say at present, levy transit duties, upon all merchandize passing up or down the Rhine. An attempt, however, on his part to increase these duties roused the indignation of his neighbours, and his castle was besieged in vain for 15 months by the burghers of the adjacent towns. This successful resistance gave rise in the middle of the 13th cent. to the extensive confederacy of the German and Rhenish cities, to the number of 70, whose more numerous and formidable armies reduced and dismantled not only the castle of Rheinfels, but also most of the other strongholds, or robber-nests, upon the Rhine. The castle afterwards fell by inheritance to the Land-graves of Hesse Cassel, who converted it into a modern fortress, with bastions and casemates. It was besieged in 1692 by an army of 24,000 French, under Marshal Tallard, who had promised the fortress as a new year's gift to his master, Louis XIV.; but, through the brave defence of the Hessian general Görtz, Tallard was compelled to break his word and draw off his forces. Görtz's example was not followed in 1794, when, though its works had been greatly strengthened, it was abandoned by the Hessian garrison, without firing a shot, on the first appearance of the revolutionary French army, by whom it was blown up, and rendered useless. There is no interest in the ruins, and the view is limited. Under Rheinfels lies the town of † (l.) St. Goar Stat. (Inn: Rheinfels, close to pier), well placed for a day's halt. The views in its vicinity are among the most picturesque in the whole course of the river, and the rocks which hem it in are peculiarly wild and precipitous.

The Protestant Ch., near the centre of the town, of pleasing architecture, built 1441, contains monuments of Hessian Princes; it stands over the crypt of the old Ch. of St. Goar. In the Catholic Ch. of St. Goar is the image of that holy hermit, who in the middle of the 7th cent. settled here to preach Christianity to the rude inhabitants, and who afterwards gave his name to the town. It is recorded that once, to prove his sanctity, he hung up his cloak on a sunbeam, to dry. His shrine, after his death, in 611, became a place of pilgrimage, and is still famed for working miracles, and his help is supposed to have rescued many a poor boatman from the perils of the Gewirr (a whirlpool formerly existing in this part of the river), and the enchantments of the Nymph of the Lurlei.

(rt.) The Nassau bank of the Rhine hereabouts also affords pleasant excursions and points of view. Boats are always ready at St. Goar to transport visitors across the river to rt. St. Goarshausen Stat. (Inn: Adler, good; the steamers will set you down here). A neat little town of 1200 Inhab., at the water-side, near the opening of the so-called Swiss Valley, and surmounted by the very picturesque rt. Castle of Katz (a contraction of Katzenellbogen, Cat's Elbow, the name of its original possessors; from whom it passed to the house of Hessen Cassel, but the Elector abandoned it in 1806 to the French, who destroyed it, but it is now partly restored, and is private property). The view from it is not inferior to that from the l. bank. Those who feel an ardour to climb still higher may reach the brow of the Lurlei, and gaze upon the Rhine from the brink of this lofty precipice.

[At Goarshausen mules may be hired to explore the pretty Schweizer Thal (Swiss Valley), traversed by a limpid stream descending in numberless small cascades between precipitous walls of rock, and turning many water-mills. Ascending it for 3 m. you reach the ruined Castle of Reichenberg, one of the most interesting in the vicinity of the Rhine, built 1284, ruined in 1302, but shortly after restored by Archbp. Baldwin of Treves in an Asiatic style, traces of which may be observed in the gateway. It was destroyed by Tilly in the Thirty Years' War. Return by the village of Patersberg, whence by far the finest view of the Rheinfels is to be obtained. It requires about $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to ascend to the summit of the Lurlei from St. Goarshausen.]

(rt.) A short way above St. Goar, but on the rt. bank, rises abruptly from the water's edge the bare, black, and grand perpendicular precipice called the Lurlei (Germ. Loreley). The remarkable Echo of the Lurlei is said to repeat sounds 15 times. It readily repeats the rly. whistle. The German students amuse themselves by asking the echo, "Who is the Burgomaster of Oberwesel?" Answer — "Esel" (the German for Ass): a joke of which the burgomaster highly disapproves. The rock has been pierced by a Tunnel for the rt.-bank Rüdesheim Rly. to pass. The fishery of salmon in this part of the river is not so good as formerly.

At the bend of the Rhine between St. Goar and the Lurlei rock a whirlpool (Wirbel) called the Gewirr formerly existed, and above it a rapid called the Bank, formed by the stream dashing over a number of sunken rocks, now for the most part blown up. The passage of the large rafts which navigate the Rhine over this spot was thus rendered difficult and dangerous; the crews were plunged up to their necks in water, and men have been washed overboard. The perils of this spot, taken in connection with the mysterious echo, no doubt gave birth to the superstition that the Lurlei was haunted by a beauteous but wicked nymph or Siren, who beguiled the passing boatman with her magical voice only to overwhelm and drown him in the waves of the whirlpool. Above this, in the middle of the river, visible, but so reduced by modern gunpowder, as to be barely seen even when the water is low, are the rocks called the Seven Sisters (see below).

1. The Rly. train immediately above St. Goar enters a tunnel 1200 yards long, emerging from which a view is obtained of the Lurlei precipice, which is also traversed by a tunnel for the rt. bank railway. Two smaller tunnels are passed before we run under the old walls of

† 1. Oberwesel Stat. — Inns: Rheinischer Hof; Goldener Pfropfenzieher (Golden Corkscrew—the sign painted by one of the Düsseldorf artists, Schrödter). This small town of 2600 Inhab. (the Vesalia of the Romans), one of the most charming spots on the Rhine, is highly picturesque from its lofty round tower (Ochsenthurm) at the water-side, its many-turreted walls, and Gothic buildings. One of the towers is the summer dwelling of the painter Carl Haag. The Ch. of our Lady (Liebfrauenkirche), outside the town at its upper end, and near the station, a simple but elegantly proportioned Gothic church, consecrated 1331. Its roof is 80 ft. high, and rests on plain square piers (date 1338). Its porches are richly sculptured, and the vaulting of the cloisters is singular. The rich Gothic rood-loft (Lettner) rests on marble shafts, its arches on the side of the choir filled with elaborate tracery. The carved wood altarpiece, richly gilt and coloured, opening as a triptych, consists of a series of niches, filled with the figures of prophets, patriarchs, and saints; it is of the same age as the church, and is the perfection of elegance and delicacy. In a side chapel are many monuments of the Schomberg family, bearing rudely-carved effigies of knights in armour, ladies in stomachers and ruffs, and babies in swaddling clothes.

The older Ch. of St. Martin, has a large square tower and octagonal lantern. In it is a Deposition from the Cross by Diepenbeck.

In some period of the dark ages a boy named Werner is said to have been crucified and put to death by the Jews in this place. A similar story is told in many other parts of the world; even in England, at Gloucester and Lincoln (vide Chaucer). Probably the whole was a fabrication, to serve as a pretext for persecuting the Jews and extorting money from them. A little Chapel, erected to the memory of this Werner, stands upon the walls of the town, close to the Rhine and the railway.

(1.) Schönbürg. This ruined castle, destroyed by the French in 1689, was the cradle of an illustrious family of the same name. The English Schombergs are a branch of it, and the hero of the Boyne, Marshal Schomberg, sprang from the same stock. It receives its name (Beautiful Castle), as the story goes, from 7 beauteous daughters of the family, who by their charms turned the heads of half the young knights far and near; but were, at the same time, so hard-hearted that they would listen to the suits of none of them, and were therefore changed into 7 rocks, which project out of the bed of the Rhine below Oberwesel, when the water is very low.

(rt.) Gutenfels, a ruined castle of the 12th cent., above the town of Caub, said to be named after a fair lady called Guda, who was beloved of Richard Earl of Cornwall, King of the Romans, and brother of our Henry III. In the Thirty Years' War Gustavus Adolphus directed an attack upon the Spaniards, posted on the opposite bank, from its battlements, but, after 6 days of unceasing hostilities, was unable to effect a passage in the face of the wary General Spinola. The castle remained in habitable condition down to 1805, when; by order of Napoleon the roofs and wood-work were sold by auction, and the building converted into a ruin.

(rt.) Caub Stat. (Inns: Grünewald; Adler), 2000 Inhab., has slate-quarries underground, and was damaged by a landslip in 1876. It is principally remarkable as the spot where Blücher's army crossed the Rhine on New Year's Eve, 1813-14, by means of a pontoon-bridge. It was from the heights above that the view of the Rhine first burst upon the Prussians, and drew forth one simultaneous and exulting cry of triumph. "To the Germans of every age this great river has been the object of an affection and reverence scarcely inferior to that with which an Egyptian contemplates the Nile, or the Indian his Ganges. When these brave bands, having achieved the rescue of their native soil, came in sight of this its ancient landmark, the burden of a hundred songs, they knelt and shouted The Rhine! the Rhine! as with the heart and voice of one man. They that were behind rushed on, hearing the cry, in expectation of another battle."—I. G. L.

A toll was here paid, by all vessels navigating the Rhine, to the Duke of Nassau, the only chieftain remaining on the river who exercised this feudal privilege down to 1861. In the middle ages no less than 32 different tolls were established on the Rhine.

In the middle of the river, opposite Caub, rises the quaint castle called the PFALZ, built by the Emperor Lewis the Bavarian, previous to 1326, as a convenient toll-house. To this little island Lewis the Pious retired to die, worn out with the cares of empire, 840, "desiring that a thatched lodge or leafy hut, such as had served him while hunting in the forest, should be prepared." Here, "lying on his couch, lulled by the soothing music of the gurgling waters," he breathed his last.*—S. According to a popular tradition the Pfalz served in former times as a place of refuge and security whither the Countesses Palatine repaired previous to their accouchements. Such an occurrence may have actually taken place in a single instance, but it is very unlikely that a rude tollhouse should repeatedly have served as a princely abode. There are dungeons under it below the level of the river, in which state-prisoners were once confined. The castle is accessible by means of a ladder, and the only entrance is closed by a portcullis (Fallthür). The well which supplies it with water is filled from a source deeper than the bed of the Rhine.

* See Palgrave's eloquent 'History of Normandy,' 1851.

(1.) Bacharach STAT. (Inn: Wasum's). This town of 1600 Inhab., is encircled by antique walls, and defended by 12 towers, of strength in former days, of picturesque and ornamental appearance in the present. They are singular in their construction, having only 3 walls, the side towards the town being open, probably to prevent their commanding the town in the event of an enemy gaining possession of them. The name, Bacharach, is said to be a corruption of the words Bacchi ara, the altar of Bacchus; a name conferred upon a rock in the bed of the river, adjoining the island a little below the town, usually covered with water, but in very dry seasons appearing above the surface. The sight of it is hailed with joy by the owner of the vineyard, who regards this as a sure sign of a fine vintage. As a proof of the goodness of the wine of this neighbourhood, we are told that Pope Pius II. (Æneas Silvius) used to import a tun of it to Rome every year; and that the city of Nürnberg obtained freedom from toll or tax in return for 4 casks of it, which her citizens presented annually to King Wenzel. Down to the 16th cent. Bacharach was, jointly with Cologne, the staple for the wines of the Rhine.

(1.) The truncated walls of the old castle of Stahleck, the cradle of the Electors Palatine, and till 1252 their seat, and now the property of the Dowager Queen of Prussia, their descendant, crown the high hill behind Bacharach. The castle was destroyed by the French 1689. Between it and the town stand the ruins of St. Werner's Church, an exquisite fragment of florid Gothic, built of hard red sandstone in 1428. "It was demolished by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War, but still shows in its E. end a lantern, the highest and most elegant lancet style existing."—Hope.

The body of the child Werner, fabled to have been thrown by the Jews, his reputed murderers, into the Rhine at Oberwesel, instead of descending with the current, as all other bodies would have done, is reported to have ascended the stream as far as Bacharach, where it was taken up, interred, and afterwards canonized. To do honour to his relics, this beautiful chapel was built over them.

An hour or two should be devoted by the traveller to Bacharach, to enable him to enjoy the view from the castle of Stahleck, and to visit St. Werner's chapel, and St. Peter's Ch., just below St. Werner's, and close to the road. It was a Templar ch., and is an early example of late Romanesque, resembling the churches of Limburg and Neuss. A good road (25 min.) leads through the Steeger or Blucherthal, to Steeg, and thence the traveller may proceed to Kreuznach by Stromberg castle.

(rt.) Lorchhausen is traversed by the railway. Two stone gallows near this formerly marked the boundary which divided the Electorate of Mainz from the Palatinate.

A pleasant walk of 19 m. leads from this to Schlangenbad by the Wisper Thal, 2 m. up which a turn to l. leads into the Sauerthal to Sauerberg, large castle of Franz von Sickingen, and mineral springs.

(rt.) At the mouth of the Wisper Thal, 600 ft. above the Rhine, is the ruined castle of Nollingen.

(l.) The round Keep-tower and shattered walls of Fürstenburg rise above the village of Rheindiebach. The castle was reduced to a ruin by the French in 1689.

(rt.) Lorch Stat. (Inns: *Schwan; Rheinischer Hof; Krone). One of the oldest towns on the Rhine (Laureacum?), and situated at the mouth of the picturesque valley of the Wisper. It was anciently inhabited by a knot of noble (knightly) families, many of whose castellated mansions remain. Among them is the Burghaus (1548) of John Hilgen of Lorch, a contemporary of Franz of Sickingen, who fought against the Turks. He is buried in the Ch., a handsome edifice of the 12th cent. (with more recent additions), containing an elaborate altarpiece of carved wood, and the finest peal of bells in the Rheingau. Before the ch. stands a carved stone cross (date 1491).

Here commences the district called the Rheingau (Rhine District), which extends upwards along the rt. bank as far as Walluf, and is remarkable as including all the most famous vineyards in which the best Rhenish wines are produced. It was formerly part of the Electorate of Mainz.

1. The ruined castle of Heimburg, above the village of Nieder-Heimbach, close on the shore, has been converted by Mr. Wacherbarth into a modern mansion. Higher up is the very picturesque turreted ruin of Sooneck; it was originally a robber-castle, and destroyed as such by Rudolph of Habsburg, 1282. It is now restored. Visitors to Rheinstein and Niederwald may land here.

The river, on approaching Bingen and Assmannshausen, is truly "the castellated Rhine." 1. The castle of Reichenstein or Falkenburg stands on the summit of a rocky spur of the hill, and a little farther up on the same bank is that of Rheinstein, on a projecting crag which rises almost perpendicularly from the bank of the river. Not far beyond Falkenburg, and between the high road and the river, is the interesting Gothic Ch. of St. Clement, admirably restored from a state of ruin by Prince Frederick of Prussia. Most of these residences of knightly highwaymen fell before the strong arm of the law in 1282, having been condemned as robber strongholds. The forces of the League of the Rhine executed the sentence of the Diet of the Empire by storming and demolishing them, and thus put an end to the arbitrary exactions and predatory warfare of their owners.

At Trechtingshausen, under the ruins of Falkenburg is an iron-mine.

The system of pillage which prevailed throughout Germany among the rulers of these almost inaccessible fortresses, until the vigorous opposition of the towns on the borders of the Rhine put an end to it, is well illustrated by the following anecdote. An archbishop of Cologne, having built a castle, appointed a seneschal to the command of it. The governor, previous to entering upon his office, applied to the bishop to know how and whence he was to maintain himself, no revenue having been assigned to him for that purpose. The prelate, by way of answer, merely desired him to observe that his castle stood close to the junction of 4 roads. A practice very similar to the arbitrary mode of levying tolls and custom duties adopted by these feudal tyrants prevailed up to the last century in our own country, in the black-mail exacted by the Highland chiefs and nobles from merchants on their way to and from the fairs or markets of the north.

1. The Castle of Rheinstein, one of these ruins, restored 1829 as far as possible to its original condition, but only to serve the purpose of a peaceful summer residence for the sons of Prince Frederick of Prussia. The interior has been fitted up as a knightly dwelling of the days of chivalry; the walls hung with paintings (Dürer, Cranach, Holbein, Hagen), and armour, the windows filled with painted glass, and the furniture either collected from ancient castles or convents, or made conformably to the fashions of former days. It is liberally shown to strangers, who are conducted round the castle by a domestic, who bears the ancient title of Schlossvogt, and receives a fixed fee (1 to 1½ mk.). At the narrow pass below Rheinstein, which even now, after having been widened by French and Prussian engineers, leaves barely room for the road between the rock and the river, there existed till recent times a Jews' Toll, where certain fixed dues were levied upon all the Hebrews who passed. It is said that the contractors kept little dogs, who were trained to single out and seize the Jews from among the passing crowds!

Wines and Vineyards of the Rhine.

Opposite to Rheinstein is the village and Rly. Stat. (rt.) of Assmannshausen (Inns: Anker; Krone), which has a warm mineral spring, and may be added to the number of the Brunnen of Nassau by the construction of baths and hotels: it gives its name to a red wine of high reputation and price. The hills behind and around the hamlet which produce it are so very steep that it is only by artificial means, often by planting the vines in baskets, that any soil can be retained around their roots. The vineyards are nothing more than a succession of terraces or steps, extending from the top to the bottom of the hills, some of which must be nearly 1000 ft. high. In some places more than 32 terraces may be counted, rising one above the other. They are supported by walls of masonry from 5 to 20 ft. high, and the breadth of some of the ledges on which the vines grow is not more than twice the height of the walls. To reach many of these narrow plots, the vine-dressers, female as well as male, must scale the precipices, and hang as it were from the face of the rocks, while a great deal of the soil itself and every particle of manure must be carried up on their shoulders. This will give some idea of the labours and expense of such cultivation, and of the great value of every inch of ground in these narrow strips to repay it.

The life of the Rheinland vine-dresser indeed presents a rare example of industry and perseverance. Though by no means rich, they are generally the proprietors of the vineyards which they cultivate; and though their appearance does not altogether verify that which painters draw and poets describe, they at least exhibit an aspect of cheerfulness and intelligence.

Independently of the hardness of the labour of cultivating the vine, which is not confined to any one season, but must be carried on perseveringly through the whole year, and is most severe during the heat of summer, the vine is a delicate plant,—frost, rain, or hail may in a few hours annihilate the produce upon which the cultivator depends solely for subsistence. One or two successive seasons of failure will ruin even an opulent family.

Beyond the point on which Assmannshausen stands, the Rhine, whose course has hitherto been from S.E. to N.W., changes materially its direction, and flows from E. to W., pursuing this direction from Mayence hither.

From the advantageous exposure produced by this bend in the river arises the excellence of the wines of the district of the Rheingau, as the rays of the midday sun, instead of being received obliquely, fall full butt upon the vineyards situated on the rt. bank of the river, and all the best wines are confined to that side. The slaty débris of the hills seems peculiarly favourable for retaining the intense heat of the sun's rays, so necessary for bringing the grape to perfect maturity; and, in addition, this favoured portion of the valley of the Rhine is sheltered from N. and E. winds to a great extent by the intervening barrier of mountains.

The Rheingau is divided into the Upper and Lower Cantons (Gemarkung), relatively to the position of the vineyards near the summits of the hills, or on the margin of the river: the high grounds produce the strongest wine, while that of the lower ground has an earthy taste; that which grows at a moderate height between the two extremes is considered the most wholesome, and the best; though much depends on the season, which is sometimes favourable to the produce of the heights, sometimes to that of the inferior slopes.

Among the Rhine wines (improperly called Hock in England), the Johannisberg and Steinberg rank first, and on an equal footing, for their exquisite flavour and evanescent bouquet. Next follow Rüdesheim (Berg), Markobrunner, and Rotherberg, which possess much body and aroma. Hochheim (which grows on the banks of the Main, not in the Rheingau) ranks with the best of these second-class wines. Of the inferior wines, those of Erbach, Hattenheim, and Raueenthal (Raueenthaler), are the best. The lighter wines, however, are apt to be hard and rather acid, as table wines. The Laubenheim and Nierstein, from the Palatinate above Mainz, and the delicately-flavoured Mosels, are much preferred to them as table wines in Germany. The best red Rhine wine is the Assmannshausen, produced from vines originally brought from Burgundy. The vine chiefly cultivated on the Rhine is called Riesling; it yields a wine of fine flavour; the Orleans grape produces a strong-bodied wine.

The vintage on the Rhine used to take place in the middle of October; but, by the present system, it is delayed, in the best vineyards, till November: in fact, it is put off to the last moment the grapes will hang on the bunches. To make the best wines, the grapes are sorted, and those only of the best quality employed. The riper bunches are first selected, and the rest left to hang for days or weeks longer.

The culture of the vine was introduced on the Rhine and Mosel by the Roman Emperor Probus in the 3rd cent.

The Rossel (rt.), a little tower standing on the brink of the heights above Assmannshausen, and just discernible from the river below, is situated within the verge of the Forest of Niederwald, and commands one of the most magnificent views upon the whole course of the Rhine (see below). Assmannshausen is a good point from which to commence the ascent of the Niederwald, though Bingen or Rüdesheim, where the inns are better, should be made the headquarters.

We have now reached the upper limit of the gorge of the Rhine, commencing near Boppard, and affording so much grand scenery. Between Bingen and Boppard the Rhine cuts across a chain of mountains running nearly at right angles to the course of its stream. There are good grounds for supposing that at one time (before human record) this range entirely stopped its further progress, damming up the waters behind them into a lake which extended as far as Basle, and whose existence is further proved by numerous freshwater deposits, shells, &c., to be found in the valley of the Rhine, above Mayence. Some vast convulsion, such as no existing causes could effect, must have burst through this mountain-wall, and made for the river the gorge or ravine by which it now obtains a passage to the ocean.

A species of dyke or wall of rock, running obliquely across the river at this spot, is perhaps a remnant of this colossal barrier. It is passable for vessels only at one spot, where a channel called Binger Loch (Hole of Bingen) has been burst through it by artificial means. The impediments occasioned by it in the navigation of the river have been reduced from time to time. In 1830-32 the Prussian Government widened the passage from 20 to 210 ft. by blasting the sunken rocks in the bed of the Rhine.

l. A small monument by the roadside commemorates this; the pedestal of the obelisk is formed of the stones extracted from the bed of the river.

rt. The deepest navigable channel lies near the rt. bank, under the shattered walls of the castle of Ehrenfels, an ancient stronghold of the Archbishops of Mayence, built in 1210, to which they retired with their treasures in time of war and peril. It was stormed by Bernard of Saxe Weimar in the Thirty Years' War, but was destroyed by the French, 1689.

Sometimes when the river is low in autumn, a strong team of horses on the rt. bank assists in dragging the steamer up the rapid by the aid of a tow-rope.

Near to the l. bank, surrounded by the river, and not far from the spot where the waters of the Nahe unite with those of the Rhine, rises the little square Mouse Tower (restored 1856), renowned for

The Tradition of Bishop Hatto.

The summer and autumn had been so wet,
That in winter the corn was growing yet;
'T was a piteous sight to see all around
The grain lie rotting on the ground.

Every day the starving poor
Crowded around Bishop Hatto's door,
For he had a plentiful last year's store;
And all the neighbourhood could tell
His granaries were furnish'd well.

At last Bishop Hatto appointed a day
To quiet the poor without delay:
He bade them to his great barn repair,
And they should have food for the winter there.

Rejoic'd at such tidings good to hear,
The poor folk flock'd from far and near;
The great barn was full as it could hold
Of women and children, and young and old.

Then when he saw it could hold no more,
Bishop Hatto he made fast the door;
And while for mercy on Christ they call,
He set fire to the barn, and burnt them all.

"I' faith 'tis an excellent bonfire!" quoth he,
"And the country is greatly oblig'd to me,
For ridding it, in these times forlorn,
Of rats that only consume the corn."

So then to his palace returned he,
And he sat down to supper merrily,
And he slept that night like an innocent man;
But Bishop Hatto never slept again.

In the morning, as he enter'd the hall
Where his picture hung against the wall,
A sweat like death all o'er him came,
For the rats had eaten it out of the frame.

As he look'd there came a man from his farm;
He had a countenance white with alarm.
"My Lord, I open'd your granaries this morn,
And the rats had eaten all your corn."

Another came running presently,
And he was pale as pale could be:
"Fly! my lord bishop, fly," quoth he;
"Ten thousand rats are coming this way;
The Lord forgive you for yesterday!"

"I'll go to my tower on the Rhine," replied he,
" 'Tis the safest place in Germany;
The walls are high, and the shores are steep,
And the stream is strong, and the water deep!"

Bishop Hatto fearfully hasten'd away,
And he cross'd the Rhine without delay,
And reach'd his tower, and barr'd with care
All the windows, doors, and loopholes there.

He laid him down, and clos'd his eyes;
But soon a scream made him arise.
He started, and saw two eyes of flame
On his pillow, from whence the screaming came.

He listen'd and look'd: it was only the cat:
But the bishop he grew more fearful for that;
For she sat screaming, mad with fear
At the army of rats that were drawing near.

For they have swum over the river so deep,
And they have climb'd the shores so steep,
And now by thousands up they crawl
To the holes and windows in the wall.

Down on his knees the bishop fell,
And faster and faster his beads did he tell,
As louder and louder, drawing near,
The saw of their teeth without he could hear.

And in at the windows, and in at the door,
And through the walls by thousands they pour,
And down through the ceiling and up through the floor,
From the right and the left, from behind and before,
From within and without, from above and below;
And all at once to the bishop they go.

They have whetted their teeth against the stones,
And now they pick the bishop's bones;
They gnaw'd the flesh from every limb,
For they were sent to do judgment on him.

SOUTHEY.

Having given the romantic tradition, it is proper to add the prosaic history of the little tower. It appears to have been built in the 13th cent. by an Archbp. Siegfried (full 200 years after the death of Archbp. Hatto), along with the opposite castle of Ehrenfels, as a watch-tower and toll-house for collecting the duties upon all goods which passed the spot. The word maus is probably only an older form of mauth, duty or toll: and this name, together with the very unpopular object for which the tower was erected, perhaps gave rise to the dolorous story of Archbp. Hatto and the rats. Archbp. Hatto (originally Abbot of Fulda), was one of the most distinguished statesmen of his time, and the constant friend and councillor of the Empr. Otho the Great. He died 970.

1. Bingerbrück Junct. Stat. is close to the mouth of the Nahe and the stat. of the Rhine-Nahe Rly. (leading to Kreutznach, Rte. 100), in full view of the Mouse-Tower, and about $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from Bingen, where the Rhine steamers stop. (Inns: Germania; Ruppertsberg.)

Steam-ferry from this to Rüdesheim.

1. The confluence of the Nahe and the Rhine. — Tacitus mentions the bridge of Drusus over the Nahe: the existing structure, erected 1011, and many times renewed, perhaps rests on Roman foundations. The Nahe divides the territory of Prussia from that of Hesse-Darmstadt. The Rly. crosses the Nahe on an iron lattice bridge, with roadway also for carriages, below the old stone bridge, and keeps along the side of the Rhine to † 1. Bingen (Stat., under the Rochusberg). — Inns: Victoria, close to the Rhine, good; Bellevue, noisy on account of the passing trains; Weisses Ross (White Horse), facing the river: in the town, Riese. The railway running between the town and the Rhine very much interferes with the comfort of a stay here.

Bingen has 7000 Inhab., many Jews, and considerable trade in wine. It was raised to great prosperity in the 14th cent. by certain Italian families of merchants, from Asti: the Ottini, Montesia, Broglio, Pomario, &c., who settled here. In the town itself there is not much to be seen. The ruin called Klopp, or Drusus' Castle, above it, though not itself Roman, probably occupies the site of one of the forts built by Drusus. The ruins, now enclosed within a private garden, command a very interesting view. Entrance behind the Weisses Ross.

[From Bingen the traveller may explore the Rochusberg, Rheinstein, and the Niederwald, in one day.

A very pleasant excursion may be made up the Nahe to Kreuznach and Oberstein (Rte. 100). Railway to Kreuznach, Saarbrücken, and Trèves.

1. The white Chapel of St. Rock (Rochus Capelle) occupies the summit of the hill above Bingen, opposite Rüdesheim. On the slope under the hill stands Hotel Hartman; good and reasonable. Whey and grape-cure. The ascent to it takes half an hour—it may be made in a light carriage, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. There is a pleasant walk to it from Bingen, at first along the new road on rt. bank of Nahe, and through woods whose shade is highly refreshing to one ascending a stiff hill on a hot day, to the summit of a knoll called Scharlachkopf, which commands an interesting view of the valley and windings of the lovely Nahe; the horizon is bounded by the Hundsrück mountains and the Mont Tonnerre (Donnersberg), while immediately under the spectator lie the bridges and town of Bingen. The slopes at the back of the hill have nearly the same exposure as the vineyards of the Rheingau, and produce a wine, the Scharlachberger, not much inferior to them. The chapel of St. Roch is easily reached from the Kopf. The terrace behind the chapel almost overhangs the Rhine and commands a prospect not only up, but down the river. The Sunday after 16th of August is St. Roch's day, when many thousand pilgrims assemble to offer their prayers to the saint, who is regarded as the averter of plague. Göthe has written a very pleasing description of one of these festivals. He presented to the chapel the altarpiece which decorates its interior. You may descend by a different road, overlooking the Rhine. $1\frac{1}{2}$ hour will suffice for this walk, which, instead of a single view, presents a complete panorama of the surrounding country.

The favourite excursion, however, from Bingen is to the heights above Rüdesheim and Assmannshausen, called the Niederwald*, which may be made in $2\frac{1}{2}$ or 3 hrs., but which well deserves to have longer time devoted to it. The following plan of the excursion may be advantageously followed.

Take a boat from Bingen, and descend the Rhine in 20 min. to the castle of Rheinstein (see above). If you go on foot you cross the Nahe by the iron bridge. After seeing the castle, cross the Rhine to Assmannshausen. This wine-producing village supports a troop of donkeys (with guide to Rüdesheim, 3 mks.) for the express purpose of transporting visitors to the top of the heights of the Niederwald. Boat from Bingen to Rheinstein and Assmannshausen, 6 persons, 5 mks.

After ascending the gully behind the village for about 5 minutes, a new mule-path, not easily missed, turns off to the rt. from the Aulhausen road, and ascends the hill in $\frac{1}{2}$ hour to the Jagd-Schloss, belonging to the Emperor of Germany, who is now the proprietor of the Niederwald, where refreshments may be had; 10 min. more will bring you to the Bezauberte Höhle (Enchanted Cave). Within the space of a few feet, three vistas, cut through the trees, disclose three beautiful landscapes of the Rhine, each different from the other, and having all the effect of a diorama.

At no great distance from the cave is the Roszel, an artificial ruin, perched on the very verge of the precipice, which at a great height overlooks the black pools and turbulent eddies of the Bingerloch. The ruin of Ehrenfels (see above) appears half-way down, hanging as it were to the face of the rock. The view is not surpassed by any in the whole course of the Rhine. "One of the most remarkable features in it is the distinction in the stream of the river below of the waters of the Rhine in the centre (clear green), the Nahe, near the l. bank (dirty brown), and the Maine, near the rt. bank (dirty red). The Maine joins the Rhine about 20 m. above Bingen, yet the three rivers do not mix, it is said, until they reach the deep pool of the Lurlei."—P. From this point the path again dives into the wood, and at the end of about a mile ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr. from the Jagd-schloss, guide advisable) emerges at rt. The Temple, a circular building supported on pillars, planted on the brow of the hill, which commands another and quite different prospect, extending up the Rhine and across to the hills of the Bergstrasse and Odenwald. The author of Pelham calls this "one of the noblest landscapes on earth."

The agreeable shade of the beech and oak trees composing the forest of the Niederwald completely excludes the sun, and renders this excursion doubly pleasant in summer time.

To descend to Rüdesheim from the Temple or the summer-house called the Hermitage will not take more than half an hour by the path leading through the vineyards which produce the famous Rüdesheim wine. Late in the autumn, when the grapes begin to ripen, the direct path is closed up, and a slight détour of an additional quarter of an hour must be made.]

ASCENT OF THE RHINE CONTINUED.

† rt. Rüdesheim Stat. Inns: Darmstädter Hof; Rheinstein; Massmanns.

The excursion to the Niederwald, which is not more than a mile distant, may be made from here quite as well as from Assmannshausen. The traveller will generally find donkeys or mules ready saddled to convey him. Paths strike off from the Temple rt. to the Jagd Schloss, and l. to the Rossel.

At the upper end of the town rises a picturesque round tower, and at the lower extremity, stands the Brömserburg, a massive quadrangular castle of the year 1100, consisting of 3 vaulted storeys, supported on walls varying between 8 and 14 ft. in thickness. Though a ruin, it is carefully preserved from further decay, and several rooms have been neatly fitted up in it by its owner, Count Ingelheim. The tall square tower adjoining it is called Boosenburg. Another castle, the Brömserhof, near the middle of the town, was the family residence of the knightly race of Brömser, long since extinct. "Tradition says that one of these knights, Brömser of Rüdesheim, on repairing to Palestine, signalled himself by destroying a dragon, which was the terror of the Christian army. No sooner had he accomplished it than he was taken prisoner by the Saracens; and while languishing in captivity he made a vow, that, if ever he returned to his castle of Rüdesheim, he would devote his only daughter Gisela to the church. He arrived at length, a pilgrim, at his castle, and was met by his daughter, now grown into a lovely woman. Gisela loved, and was beloved by, a young knight from a neighbouring castle; and she heard with consternation her father's vow. Her tears and entreaties could not change his purpose. He threatened her with his curse if she did not obey: and, in the midst of a violent storm, she precipitated herself from the tower of the castle into the Rhine below. A fisherman found her corpse the next day in the river by the tower of Hatto: and the boatmen and vintagers at this day fancy they sometimes see the pale form of Gisela hovering about the ruined tower, and hear her voice mingling its lamentations with the mournful whistlings of the wind."—Autumn near the Rhine.

The best quality of the famed Rüdes- heim Wine grows upon the terraces overhanging the Rhine, close to Ehrenfels. There is a tradition that Charles the Great, remarking from his residence at Ingelheim that the snow disappeared sooner from these heights than elsewhere, and perceiving how favourable such a situation would prove for vineyards, ordered vines to be brought hither from Burgundy and Orleans. The grapes are still called Orleans. Close behind the houses of Rüdesheim grows a very good wine, called, from the position of the vineyard, Hinterhäuser. Many of the Rüdesheim vines are from 50 to 100 years old, and send forth roots 18 to 20 ft. long.

Steamferry from Rüdesheim to Bingen and Bingerbrück Stat.

1. The Hessian - Ludwig Railroad from Bingen to Mainz runs away from the Rhine by Ingelheim (Rte. 98).

rt. Railway—Rüdesheim to Biebrich, opposite Mainz, 16½ Eng. m., 5 trains daily, in less than 1 hr. Those who wish to visit the Brunnen of Nassau, on their way cross over by the steamferry from Bingen to Rüdesheim and take this more interesting road along the rt. bank of the Rhine. They should stop at Rüdesheim to see the Niederwald (if they have not visited it before); at Johannisberg to see the château and vineyard; at Hattenheim to see the old monastery of Eberbach, 2 m. out of the road. If they are bound to Schlangenbad (Rte. 95), they may turn to the l., away from the Rhine, at Eltville; if they are going to Wiesbaden they proceed on to Biebrich before they quit it; and if they wish to reach Castel and Mainz they continue by its side.

Above the Niederwald and the Rochusberg the mountains subside into gentle slopes, and the taller ridges of Taunus recede to a distance from the river. Although the succeeding district appears tame in comparison with that already passed, when viewed from the river, yet, when seen from any of the heights which command the Rheingau, it will be found to possess beauties of a softer kind, combined with a richness and cheerfulness which are well calculated to draw forth admiration.

(rt.) Geisenheim Stat. (Inn: Stadt Frankfurt), a town of 2500 Inhab., distinguished by the twin Gothic towers and spires of open work (b. 1839) of its old Church, restored 1836—in which is a monument to the Archbp. Elector John Philip von Schönborn, 1675. There is another famous vineyard near this, upon the hill called the Rothenberg, which is much frequented on account of its fine view.

rt. Winkel Stat. (Vini Cella, so called because Charlemagne's wine-cellar was situated here) and Oestrich, 2 unimportant villages. At Mittelheim, near Winkel, is a curious church, date 1140, with a nave and aisles all under one roof, and with a portal built of white and grey stone, in a mixed style of Moorish and middle-Italian.

rt. The very conspicuous white mansion on the heights, at some little distance from the river, is Schloss Johannisberg, the property of Prince Metternich, standing in the midst of the vineyards which produce the most famous of the Rhine wines. From the rly. stat. at Geisenheim a pathway crosses a few fields and vineyards to the village of Johannisberg-im-Grund, after traversing which an avenue of limes and chestnuts is reached, leading to the N. W. front of the schloss. The house, built about 1730, though seldom inhabited, was enlarged by its late owner, long prime minister of Austria. It is a plain, white building, with high slated roof and projecting wings to the garden front; but the view from the balcony and terrace is very fine. The hills rising in front—on which are perched the handsome country seats of Consul Bauer and Herr Mumms—are planted with vines and backed by dense forests, above which rises the lofty Taunus range. In the Schlosskirche is a marble monument to P. Metternich's tutor, Nic. Voght. It is difficult to obtain admittance to the cellars, which extend under the whole of the schloss. The first owners of the vineyard of Johannisberg were the monks of Fulda: it was originally attached to the Benedictine Abbey of Hersfeld, secularized in 1648. In the beginning of the present cent. it belonged to the

[N. G.]

Prince of Orange; but before it had been in his possession 3 years Napoleon made over the vineyard as a gift to Marshal Kellermann. At the close of Napoleon's war it again changed hands, and in 1816 was presented by the Emperor of Austria to Prince Metternich. The ground around is too precious as a vineyard to be laid out in gardens: no trees are allowed, as they would deprive the vines of the sun's rays; but on the N. side of the house there is a sort of wilderness planted with trees. The best wine grows close under the château, and indeed partly over the cellars. The species of vine cultivated here is the Riesling. The management of it at all seasons requires the most careful attention. The grapes are allowed to remain on the vines as long as they can hold together, and the vintage usually begins a fortnight later than anywhere else, the best vintages having been in November. The vine-grower is not satisfied with ripeness, the grape must verge to rottenness before it suits its purpose; and although much is lost in quantity by this delay in gathering, it is considered that the wine gains thereby in strength and body. So precious are the grapes that those which fall are picked off the ground with a kind of fork made for the purpose. The vine is trained so as to bring the fruit as close to the ground as possible, the warm surface materially assisting the ripening of the grape. The vines are planted 3 ft. apart, in rows 4 ft. from each other, and directly facing the sun at noon. The plants are removed after 35 years. The must remains undisturbed till Christmas, at a temperature below 12° Réaum. By this means, and the complete closing of the casks with earthenware valves supplied with water, the bouquet is retained. The extent of the vineyard is about 70 acres, and it is divided into small compartments, the produce of each of which is put into separate casks: even in the best years there is considerable difference in the value of different casks. Its produce amounts in good years to about 45 butts (called stücks), each of 7½ ohms, and the 60 stück, produced in 1857, realized by auction 12,000ℓ. The estate includes a farm of 325 acres, and 25 head of cattle are kept for their manure. The Director, who conducts you over the vineyard, receives no fee, but expects you to drink a bottle of his wine, costing from 4 fl. to 20 fl. The produce of the Schlossberg is alone entitled to the name of Schloss Johannisberger; but excellent wine, all called Johannisberg, is yielded by the Höhle on the N. and the Klause vineyard, at the foot of the schloss, by the Winkel and Hasensprung vineyards to the E., and by the Dachsberg, which is the most northerly vineyard, and consists of 7 acres excavated at great cost, in 10 years, out of the solid rock, and covered with 3 ft. of soil carried to the spot. The four kinds of Johannisberger known to commerce are—the Cabinet (or selected wine from the schloss), Schloss, Klause, and Dorf.

The Rhine here attains its greatest breadth, 2000 ft., spreading itself out to about double the width which it has below Rüdesheim; at Cologne it is only 1300 ft. broad, and at Wesel only 1500 ft. In the middle of its channel are numerous small islands extending all the way up to Mayence.

rt. Count Schönborn's schloss, Reichartshausen, a short distance below the village of Hattenheim (1000 Inhab.), contains an interesting collection of paintings, chiefly modern.

rt. A little higher up the river, upon the hill of Strahlenberg, grows the famous Markobrunner wine, so named from a small spring or fountain close to the high road, which here runs on the borders of the river.

The nobles of the Rheingau, once so numerous, rich, and powerful, are greatly diminished in number and wealth. The chief of those ancient families still residing on its banks are the Counts Ingelheim, Schönborn, and Elz; these, with Prince Metternich, possess the best vineyards on the Rhine.

(rt.) At Erbach (Inn: Engel), hid from the steamboat by an island, is Schloss Reinhartshausen, belonging to Princess Mary Anne of the Netherlands, containing a collection of paintings and sculpture.

[(rt.) An excursion may be made either from Hattenheim (2½ m.), or from Erbach (3 m.) (Inn: Engel), a small village, to the Cistercian Abbey of Eberbach, once the most considerable monastic establishment on the Rhine. It is prettily situated at the foot of the hills, in a sheltered nook, nearly surrounded by woods, which, sweeping down the slopes, spread themselves like a mantle around it. It was founded in 1131, by St. Bernard de Clairvaux, the preacher of the second Crusade. While he rambled about in doubt where to fix his monastery, a boar (Germ. eber) issuing out of a thicket indicated with his snout the spot upon which the church was afterwards reared. The monks of St. Bernard were famed for their riches and hospitality;—the Order possessed in the Rheingau, and within a space of 3 leagues, no less than 6 convents—Zufenthal, Eberbach, Göttesthal, Eibingen, Nothgottes, and Marienhausen; they were besides the owners of the Steinberg vineyard, and used to export its produce in vessels of their own down the Rhine to Cologne. The Swedish minister and general, Oxenstierna, took up his winter quarters in the convent 1631. The abbey was securitized in 1803, and was used as a prison from 1811 until recently. The Churches are very pure specimens of the Romanesque style. The oldest, a small building, supported by 2 rows of slender columns, is probably part of the first foundation of St. Bernard. It is now occupied by winepresses, and some of the best Rhine wines are made in it. The larger Church, Kloster Kirche, was built 1186: it is of severe architecture, and has been restored. There are many monuments, especially of the Katzenellenbogens and Steins (de Lapide); one of a knight, “amicus fidelis hujus monast.” MCCC.; also of Abbots and Archbishops of Mayence, Gerlach (1371), and Adolph II. von Nassau (1747). The former refectory, a large vaulted 13th-cent. Gothic apartment, divided into three aisles and dimly lighted, is fitted with 10 colossal presses, fine specimens of 17th-cent. joiner's work with modern iron screws. The vineyards and the convent belonged until 1866 to the Duke of Nassau; but the cellars do not now contain any older wines than 1868, as the Duke sent his stock of Cabinet wines across the French frontier when the Austro-Prussian war of 1866 broke out. The Chapter-house, of the 15th cent., also merits notice. The vaults under these buildings are used as cellars.

The celebrated Steinberg vineyard, once the property of the monks of Eberbach, now of Prussia, lies upon the slope of the hill, close to the convent, surrounded by a massive wall. The wine produced from it is esteemed quite as much as Johannisberg, distant not more than 4 m., as the crow flies, from it; and the culture of it is managed with even greater care and cost than that vineyard.

From Hattenheim a winding footpath leads beside the Eberbach in about $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the Steinberg, which is a long, irregularly shaped hill, upwards of 66 acres in extent, enjoying the favourable S.W. aspect, sheltered on the N. by forests, and on the E. by a belt of fir-trees and the extensive buildings of the abbey farm. This farm comprises 370 acres, and is kept up mainly for the manure from the cattle, as the vines require manuring once in three years. The vineyard consists of 12 plots; that at the N. end, of about 9 acres, and called the Rose-garden, is the most sheltered and yields the best wine. The Riesling grape is alone used, and some of the vines are 60 years old, though the majority are much younger. When the old vines are rooted up, the ground is allowed to lie fallow for three years, and the new vines do not bear until the fourth year. The auslese, or selected wine, is made from the ripest berries, which are separately picked when the bunch itself is cut off. The average produce is about 40 butts (sticks), and some of the Cabinet wine of 1868 has fetched at the rate of 30s. a bottle.

From the Moss-house on the Bos, a neighbouring height, a view is obtained which the author of the 'Bubbles' calls "the finest he had witnessed in this country."]

At the top of the hill above Eberbach is the Staats Irrenhaus, an enormous Lunatic Asylum.

1. In the distance, on the top of the hill, nearly opposite, or on a line with Hattenheim, may be discerned Ingelheim, the favourite residence of Charlemagne, now a poor village. (Rte. 98.)

Charlemagne used to resort from Ingelheim to the low islands in the middle of the Rhine to fish.

rt. The large building between Eberbach and Eltville is the Draiser Hof, once an appendage to the abbey of Eberbach.

† rt. Eltville Stat. (Alta villa) (Inns: Rheinbahn Hotel, at the stat.; Rheingauer Hof; Engel) is the chief town of the Rheingau. It has 3000 Inhab., is conspicuous from its situation in the midst of the finest Rhine vineyards, and picturesque from its Gothic towers. The lofty Watch-Tower surmounted by 4 turrets, at the upper end of the town, is part of the castle built in the 14th cent. by the Archbishops of Mainz, who often retired hither to escape from their own citizens of Mayence. Here Günther of Schwarzburg, besieged by his rival Charles IV., resigned the German crown, 1349, and died, probably of poison. Around the town are many handsome villas and country-seats of the German noblesse. In that of Graf von Elz are some good pictures—a fine Domenichino, Susanna in the Bath.

In the pretty valley behind Eltville lies the village of Kiedrich, a place of pilgrimage, with a beautiful Gothic Chapel of St. Michael, built 1440, restored 1858, conspicuous for its open-work turret. In St. Valentin Church, built 1275, is some curious woodwork and original galleries coeval with the building. The tower of Scharfenstein, once the residence of the Archbps. of Mainz, rises above Kiedrich. The Gräfenberg wine is produced here.

Omnibus several times a day from Eltville Stat. to (1 hr.) Schlangenbad and (2 hrs.) Schwalbach (see Rte. 95). A bridle-path through the woods, 6 m. to Schlangenbad.

The ch. tower of Rauenthal, overlooking a vineyard of some repute, crowns a hill, from which is seen one of the most extensive Panoramas of the Rhine valley.

rt. Nieder - Walluf Stat. (Inn: Schwan). At the end of the Waldaffthal, about 4 m. N.W., lies Rauenthal, famous for its wine and its view.

rt. Schierstein Stat. is a village with more than 1300 Inhab.

Here ends the Rheingau, "the Bacchanalian Paradise," which, bounded by the Taunus hills on one side, and by the Rhine on the other, extends along the rt. bank of the river as far down as Lorch. It was given to the Abps. of Mainz by a Carolingian king, and was protected by a wall and ditch, some portion of which may still be seen near Biebrich. A road turns off here to Schlangenbad, 8 m. (Rte. 95.)

[rt. About 4 m. behind Schierstein is the village of Frauenstein, with ruined castle and enormous lime-tree.]

l. Mosbach Stat., close to Biebrich. Passengers proceed to Wiesbaden direct; also to Frankfurt. $\frac{1}{4}$ m. on rt., at the river's side, is † rt. Biebrich Stat. (Inns: H. de l'Europe, clean, civil people; Rheinischer Hof). The Schloss, a summer residence of the Duke of Nassau down to 1866, of red sandstone, with a circular projection in the centre, is one of the handsomest palaces on the Rhine, though now deserted. The interior is remarkable only for the splendour and taste with which it is fitted up, and for the views up and down the Rhine. The gardens behind, of great extent and once very pretty, are no longer kept up, and have run into a wilderness. They were famous for their white and red chestnuts, and contain some fine ornamental timber. In the miniature castle of Mosbach, within their circuit, on the bank of a small artificial lake, a number of Roman antiquities and monuments of the Counts of Katzanellenbogen are preserved.

Biebrich, united with Mosbach, now forms a considerable town of 4700 Inhab. At the upper end, on the Rhine, is a large barrack. Above this, the rt. as well as the l. bank of the Rhine belongs to Hessen-Darmstadt. English Ch. Service on Sundays in the Ducal chapel. Passengers bound for Frankfurt or Wiesbaden may disembark here, and take the train to Wiesbaden in 10 min., and to Frankfurt in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr., saving thereby half an hour's détour by the river and detention at Mainz.

The red towers of Mainz (l.) now appear in sight, surrounded by fortifications, connected by a bridge of boats over the Rhine with † rt. Castel Junct. Stat., its fortified suburb and tête de pont (Barth's Inn, good; Taunus H.,—both close to the railway).

† l. Mainz Junct. Stat. (Fr. Mayence). Inns: 1st class: Englischer Hof, good and comfortable, suited to English travellers; Holländischer Hof*, good; Rheinischer Hof*: these three hotels are on the Quay, facing the Rhine. 2nd class: Landsberg. At Castel, on the rt. bank of the Rhine, near the Railway Stat., Taunus H.*

The Landing-places of the Steamers of the Lower Rhine are below the Boat-bridge, nearly a mile from the Darmstadt and Frankfurt Rly. Stat.

This is the most considerable and important town in the dominions of the Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt; but, as the chief and strongest fortress of the German Empire, it is garrisoned by 8500 Prussian troops since 1866. It lies on the l. bank of the Rhine, nearly opposite the junction of the Main. It has 49,100 Inhab.

Upon the Quay, traversed by the Rly. trains, where the steamer stops, are 4 large red buildings—the Kurfürstliche Schloss, or ancient Palace of the Electors of Mainz, now the Museum (see below); the Grossherzogliches Schloss, originally Deutsch-ordens-haus (Teutonic House)—it was occupied by Napoleon I., and is the palace of the Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt and of Prince Louis, and has become the palace of the governor of the fortress; the Barrack, a huge edifice, forming

MAINZ (MAYENCE)

Hotels

Angleterre	6.C.
Holländischer	8.C.
Rheinischer	6.C.
Landsberg	6.C.
Tourus	5.C.
Karpfen	5.C.

one side of the Schloss Platz; and the Arsenal.

The Cathedral of St. Albinus* (open up to 11.30 A.M., and from 3 to 6 P.M., at other times apply at the S.W. door), a vast building of red sandstone, blocked up on all sides but the E. by mean houses, in the massive round-arched style, interesting for its great antiquity, having been begun in the 10th and finished in the 11th cent. The building is undergoing repair, and has suffered so much at different times from conflagrations, from the Prussian bombardment of 1793, and afterwards (1813) from having been converted into a barrack and magazine by the French, that the only portion of the original structure remaining in a tolerably perfect state is the E. apse, flanked by 2 circular towers (978-1137). The octagonal tower (Pfarrthurm) at the E. end has been surmounted with a cupola of cast iron 70 ft. high, designed by Moller. This ch., as well as those of Worms, Trèves, and Spire, has a double choir and high altars both at the E. and W. ends, and transepts. The W. choir dates from 1200-1239: the side chapels on the N. side were added 1291, those on the S. 1332. The most beautiful of them, that of All Saints, containing a very fine window, was built 1317. The double chapel of St. Gothard, adjoining the N.W. transept, was built 1136.

The interior, well restored and richly painted, 1864, at the cost of the citizens, is filled with Monuments of Archiepiscopal Electors of Mainz; the greater number, placed upright against the piers and walls, are interesting illustrations of the progress and decay of the temporal power of the German church. The Archbishops of Mainz had the right of placing the crown on the head of the German Kings, and they are sometimes represented on their tombs in that act. That of Archbp. Peter von Asfeld (1305-1320) bears, in addition to his own effigy rudely carved, those of the Emperors Henry VII. and Louis the Bavarian, and John King of Bohemia, all of whom he had crowned; but, while his figure is on a scale as large as life, theirs are only half the size, and appear like children beside him; also Archbishop

Siegfried of Eppstein (1249) is crowning King William of Holland and Raspe of Thuringia.

The monuments best worth notice in point of art are the following, dating at the end of the 15th or beginning of the 16th cent.: Prince Albert of Saxony, 1484; Dean Bernhard von Breidenbach, 1497, executed with great truth of expression and most delicate finish; Archbishop Berthold of Henneberg, 1504, still more pure in style; Archbp. Jacob of Liebenstein (1508), and Uriel of Gemmingen. Among those of later date we may mention that of General Lamberg (1689), in a full-bottomed wig, being squeezed down into a marble trunk by Death! Three other monuments deserve mention on account of the persons whose memories they record. One is that of Fastrada, third wife of Charlemagne (794), by the side of the Beautiful Doorway leading into the fine Gothic cloisters (date 1397-1412), and has been restored. Another is the tomb of the Minstrel or Meistersänger Frauenlob, "Praise the Ladies." His real name was Heinrich von Meissen. He was a canon of Mainz cathedral, and so great a favourite of the fair sex, that his bier was supported to the grave by eight ladies, who poured over it libations of wine at the same time that they bathed it with their tears. His monument, a plain red tombstone, stands against the wall of the cloisters. It bears his portrait in low relief, copied (1783) from the original, which was destroyed by the carelessness of some workmen. A more worthy monument from Schwanthaler's chisel was erected in 1843 to the "Ladies' Minstrel," by the ladies of Mainz. On the N. side of the nave is a red sandstone monument, erected 1357, to St. Boniface, the Apostle of Germany, and first Archbp. of Mainz. He was an Englishman named Winfrith, born at Crediton, in Devonshire, 680, and became a monk in the Benedictine Abbey of Nussall, near Winchester, in which, in the beginning of the 8th cent., he taught poetry, history, rhetoric, and the Holy Scriptures. He left his country, with 11 other monks, to preach the Gospel to the barbarous nations of Germany; in the course of his mission he converted more than 100,000 heathens; his missionary labours, interrupted only by 3 short visits to Rome, lasted more than 30 years, and extended from the Elbe to the Rhine, and from the Alps to the ocean. In 755 he was martyred by the heathen Frisians. Until 1801 the See of Mainz remained the head church of Germany.

Obs. also the Easter-Sepulchre, figures life-size, a fine specimen of mediæval sculpture—the pulpit, a modern restoration; the figures of the Apostles are copied from those by Peter Vischer at Nuremberg. An ancient font of lead, formerly gilt (1328), behind the eastern altar, and the brazen doors opening into the Market-place (called Speise Markt), on the N. side of the cathedral, also deserve notice; they were brought from the ruined Liebfrauenkirche, and are as old as the 10th cent. In 1135 Archbp. Adalbert I. caused to be engraved on the upper valves of the doors an edict, by which he conferred various important privileges upon the town in consideration of the aid which the citizens, his subjects, had afforded him, in rescuing him out of the hands of the Emperor. They procured his release from prison by seizing on the person of the Emperor, and detaining him as a hostage until their own lord was delivered up. The crypt has been cleared out, and is a good specimen of pure Gothic of the second half of the 12th cent.

In the sacristy are preserved two very ancient chalices, probably of the 10th cent.; one, the gift of Archbishop Willigis, is an example of Byzantine art.

The Elector of Mainz, who was also Archbishop, was the primate and first spiritual prince of the German empire; he presided at Diets, and at the election of Emperor, where he exercised very powerful influence; so that one Primate, Werner, on proposing a candidate, is reported to have added, "I have others in my pocket." His dominions comprehended 150 German square miles, with a population of 400,000 souls, and a revenue of 1½ million of florins. He maintained a bodyguard of 2000 men and a squadron of hussars.

The Cathedral Chapter, supported by its enormous revenues, lived a jovial life, as may be gathered from the answer they returned to the Pope, who had reproved them for their worldly and luxurious habits: "We have more wine than is needed for the mass, and not enough to turn our mills with." None but men of gentle blood were admitted into this Chapter.

St. Stephen's Ch. (in the S.W. part of the town), built 1317, has a nave and 2 aisles of nearly equal height: the cloister is of the 15th cent. It contains some old paintings on gold grounds and numerous monuments. Its tower commands the best view of Mayence. If you ring the bell at the bottom, the küster who lives above will let down the key in a slipper by a line so that you can let yourself in.

The Museum (open Wed. 2 to 5, Sund. 10 to 1; at other times ticket required, 1 mk.) in the ancient Kurfürstliches Schloss (close to the Rhine, and at the end of the long street called Die grosse Bleiche). The collections consist of—1. Paintings, of no great excellence. The best works are—Christ and the Four Penitents, David, the Magdalen, the Prodigal Son, and the Penitent Thief, by Otto Vennius;—A Carmelite Friar receiving the habit of his order from the Virgin, A. Caracci;—St. Francis receiving the Stigmata (five wounds), Guercino;—Virgin and Child, Lorenzo da Credi, the gem of the collection;—St. Apollonia, Domenichino;—St. Andrew and St. Ursula, by Lucas van Leyden, or some old German master.—The Life of the Virgin, by M. Grünewald, is curious: also Adam and Eve, by Albert Dürer, but so much injured and painted over as to show few traces of the master. 2. Antiquities, curious, because for the most part found in the neighbourhood, such as Roman altars, votive tablets, and inscriptions bearing the names of the legions stationed on this spot; also several capitals of columns from the palace of Charlemagne at Ingelheim, in the style of Roman architecture, being, perhaps, the plunder of ancient buildings in Italy;

some fragments of sculpture from the venerable Kaufhaus, pulled down without cause in 1805; and a model of the double stone bridge which Napoleon proposed to throw over the Rhine here. The Town Library is a very respectable collection (100,000 vols.), where are preserved some interesting specimens of the earliest printing, 1459-62.

The Theatre, only open in winter, is a handsome building designed by Moller, after the classical model of the theatres of the ancients, in which the outer form bears some relation to the interior. It is situated in the Gutenberg's Platz, through which runs the wide and handsome principal street of the town, the Ludwig's-strasse.

The Public Garden (neue Anlage) outside the fortifications, on the S., beyond the Neues Thor, and nearly opposite the mouth of the Main, commands a beautiful view of the junction of the Main and Rhine (Mainspitze), of the town of Mainz, the fine rly. bridge, with passing trains, the vineyards of Hochheim, Wiesbaden with its golden pinnacles, the Rheingau, and the distant range of the Taunus. The excellent military bands of the garrison play here on Wednesday, between 5 and 8 P.M. The café, at one extremity of the garden, forms the favourite evening resort of the inhabitants in summer.

The military bands may be heard also on parade on the Schiller Platz, Wednesday, at 12.

Another good view may be had from the top of the Tower of Drusus, an ancient Roman structure, believed to be the tomb of Drusus, stepson of Augustus, and founder of Mainz, raised to his memory by the 2nd and 14th Legions, B.C. 9, 8, 7 (exercitus honorarium tumulum excitavit—Sueton. Claud. i.). From mutilation or decay, its base is now reduced to smaller dimensions than the upper part, and it is vulgarly known by the name Eichelstein. All the external masonry has long since been stripped off, and the passage for the staircase leading to the top was drilled through the solid mass in 1689. It stands within the Citadel, but is readily shown by one of the soldiers. Fee, 50 pf.

Mainz was originally a Roman frontier fortress. It owes its existence to the camp which Drusus pitched here, which he afterwards converted into a permanent bulwark against the Germans beyond the Rhine. It became the most important of that chain of fortresses which he built along the Rhine, and which were the germs of most of the large towns now existing on that river. Excavations made in forming new fortifications have laid bare the foundations of the original Roman Castellum Moguntiacum of Drusus, and show that it was an oblong square, with flanking towers, planted on the eminence overlooking the confluence of the Main.

Though Mainz is reduced from its former wealth and splendour by the fortunes of war, it ought not to be regarded merely as a dull garrison town. The world is indebted to this city for two things which have had the greatest influence in effecting human improvement—the liberation of trade from the exactions of the feudal aristocracy, and the Printing Press. It was a citizen of Mainz, Arnold of Walboten, who first suggested the plan of freeing commerce from the oppression of the knightly highwaymen, with whose strongholds the whole Continent was overspread at the beginning of the 13th cent., by a confederation of cities which led to the formation of the Rhenish League, 1247. This same Walboten deserves to be held in grateful remembrance by every Rhine tourist; since many of the ruined castles which line its banks were reduced to their present picturesque condition at his instigation, and under the energetic rule of Rudolf of Habsburg, as being the haunts and strongholds of tyranny and rapine.

John Gansfleisch (literally, goose-flesh), called Gutenberg, the inventor of moveable types, was born, between 1393 and 1400, in the corner house between the Emmeran Str. and the Pfandhaus Str. In 1837 a bronze statue of Gutenberg, modelled by Thorwaldsen, and cast at Paris, was erected in the open space opposite the Theatre, by subscriptions from all parts of Europe. The pedestal is adorned with 2 bronze bas-reliefs by Barth, representing the process of printing. Gutenberg's house no longer exists; but upon its site stands the Civil Casino, a club or reading-room at the end of the Schuster Gasse. His first printing-office, from 1443 to 1450, is the house called Hof zum Jungen, or Färberhof.

A bronze Statue of Schiller, by Scholl, was erected 1862, on the Schiller Platz (formerly Thiermarkt), now connected with the height called Kastrich by a broad avenue, opened out by the explosion of a powder-magazine in 1857, and covered with fine buildings.

English Church in the Clara Strasse.

Near the village of Zahlbach, about a mile beyond the Gauthor, on the rt., are considerable remains of a Roman aqueduct nearly 3000 ft. long, which conveyed water to supply the garrison from a spring 5 miles off; 62 piers, some 30 ft. high, remain, but it is said to have originally consisted of 500. In a grove near these piers some Roman tombstones mark the site of a cemetery.

Mainz carries on a great trade in corn brought out of Bavaria and Central Germany, and shipped down the Rhine; also in timber, and there is a considerable manufacture of leather shoes, cheap furniture. &c.

Excellent Hochheimer and Rhine wine may be procured at the house of Hoffman.

The demolition of the old fortifications and the substitution of a new enceinte (with several powerful detached forts outside) has annexed a large plot of ground to the town, which is being built over, and forming a new quarter.

A bridge of boats, 1666 ft. long, over the Rhine, unites Mainz to Cassel, or Castel (Castellum Drusi), a busy and flourishing suburb, strongly fortified as a tête de pont. At the extremity of the bridge a bomb-proof block-house serves in time of peace as a barrack; but in case of war the roof can be removed, and the upper platform mounted with cannon. There is a heavy toll for carriages passing the bridge.

A permanent Railway-bridge was thrown across the Rhine 1862, to convey across to the tongue of land called Mainspitze, the rlys. to Frankfurt, Darmstadt, and Aschaffenburg. It is 1212 ft. long, and cost 3 million florins.

On the Mainspitze is a strong modern Fort, in the place of one erected by Gustavus Adolphus, to command both rivers.

Railways—Station at Castel on rt. bank of the Rhine (Rte. 99);—to Frankfurt in 1 hr.;—to Wiesbaden by Biebrich in 16 min.

Station in Mayence on the Rhine Quay, at the upper end of the town;—to Frankfurt by Bischofsheim;—to Mannheim and Heidelberg, by Worms and Speier;—to Forbach and Paris (Rte. 101);—to Bingen, Coblenz, and Cologne;—to Darmstadt and Aschaffenburg.

N.B. A Ferry Steamer plies across the Rhine between the Rly. Stat. at Mainz and that at Castel.

Steamboats go from Mainz several times a day to Coblenz and Cologne, twice a day to Mannheim during summer (see Rte. 102). N.B. 5 hrs. to Mannheim instead of 2 hrs. by rly.

ROUTE 39.

THE AHR VALLEY.—REMACEN TO AHRWEILER AND ALTENAHR.

Diligence from Remagen or Sinzig to Ahrweiler, 10 m., several times a day, in 1½ hr.; thence to Altenahr (8 m.) once daily, in 1½ hr.

The scenery of the Ahr valley, between Ahrweiler and Altenahr, possesses considerable beauty, though tame compared with that of the Rhine. By means of excellent roads it may be explored with ease.

A carriage may be hired at the Rly. Station in Remagen, with 2 horses, to Altenahr and back, for 13 to 15 mks., tolls and driver included.

A passenger leaving the railway or steamer at Remagen, after seeing the church on the Apollinarisberg may walk over the shoulder of the hill of Landskrone, and join the carriage-road at Heppingen, $4\frac{1}{2}$ m.

The road on the l. bank of the Rhine as far as Remagen is described Rte. 37.

Between Remagen and Sinzig the Ahr in summer often dries up to a mere thread, but, swelling in winter to a furious torrent, enters the Rhine. A carriage-road, turning off abruptly at the bridge of Sinzig, ascends the valley along the l. bank of the stream, passing Bodendorf, Lohrsdorf, and Heppingen; bending round and under the basalt-capped hill of Landskrone (550 ft.) The ruined walls on its summit are those of a castle, built 1205 by Philip of Hohenstaufen during the war between him and Otto of Brunswick for the German crown, 1198-1208. It was destroyed by the French 1689; only its Chapel escaped, partially built over a cave lined with basaltic columns, which serves as sacristy. There is a good view of the winding Ahr, the Eifel, castle Olbrück, and Seven Mountains.

8 m. from Remagen, between Heppingen and Ahrweiler, is Bad Neuenahr (Inns: Kurhaus, with the Mariensprudel H. in connection with it, good, but noisy; excellent table-d'hôte; Simson's Victoria H., good. Boarding Houses, Merl; Pasch; Villa Humboldt,—landlady speaks English). It consists of 2 villages, Boul on rt., and Wadenheim on l. bank of the river Ahr. A warm mineral spring was discovered here, 1858, resembling those of Ems and Vichy, and baths have been erected on the rt. bank of the river. The waters, 80°-104° Fahr., are very efficacious in diseases of the lungs, gout, and scrofula. The Hotel and Bath

Establishment are well provided for the wants of invalids. Dr. R. Schmitz is physician here. 2000 visitors resort hither in a season. English Church Service performed by a resident chaplain on Sundays. 700 ft. above the baths rises the ruined Castle of Neuenahr, commanding a fine view, embracing Cologne and the Rhine. Ahrweiler is $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. from this. Below Ahrweiler the valley is a tame and open, though rich and well cultivated plain. Above it lies the gorge for which the Ahr Valley is celebrated. 1 m. from Bad Neuenahr is Ahrweiler (Inns: Krone; Stern), a cheerful town of 3700 Inhab., whose chief occupation and wealth are derived from their vineyards, which cover the slopes of the valley. The situation is pretty; it is still surrounded by old walls, and is approached by 4 gates. The principal Church is a beautiful Gothic edifice, with a triple choir (date 1245-74). The town was burnt by the soldiers of Turenne, 1646, and suffered again from the French in 1689. The picturesque Calvarienberg, on the opposite side of the Ahr, is an Ursuline nunnery, and occupied by sisters from Montjoie, who keep a ladies' school. From the back of the convent a path leads up to Steinenthalskopf, 1000 ft. above the Ahr—fine view. The gate tower at the entrance of the town from Walporzheim is a picturesque object, well preserved externally.

At Walporzheim (Inn: St. Peter's). the first village traversed by the road after leaving Ahrweiler, the Burgundy grape is cultivated, and produces a strong red wine, which is highly prized.—Ahrbleichart (i. e. Bleich-roth, pale-red). Here the valley contracts, and is hemmed in by rocky cliffs. Above the road rise jagged precipices, 200 feet high, from which an isolated block, called die bunte Kuh, projects over the road. At Marienthal, to the rt. of the road, are the ruins of a convent. A footpath leads over the hills from behind the village of Dernau to Altenahr; the carriage road, now continued uninterruptedly along the l. bank of the Ahr, passes in sight of the picturesque village of Rech, and under a rock crowned by the ruined Castle of Saffenburg, to Maischoss.

The patient toil exerted in cultivating the vine on every accessible shelf of rock up the declivities of the hills around is not surpassed in the most valuable vineyards on the Rhine. Here and at Lochmühle is the principal fishery of Rümpchen (minnows), the Cyprinus phoxinus of naturalists, which are taken in baskets placed in weirs or dams of the river. They should not exceed an inch in length, and, having been boiled in salt water, are packed in baskets made of willow bark, which imparts to them the bitter flavour for which they are esteemed. The Ahr is also celebrated for its crawfish and trout, which, however, are taken chiefly in its tributary streams.

Beyond Lochmühle the road avoids a bend of the river by a cutting, 40 ft. deep, through the rock (grauwacke). Before reaching Altenahr a striking scene opens out: precipices of slate-rock rise to a height of 350 ft., partly wooded, partly covered with vines, and on their highest peak are perched the ruins of the Castle of Altenahr, the finest object in the whole valley.

A footpath strikes off to the rt. above Reimerzhofen, and leads through vineyards to the Cross, $\frac{3}{4}$ m. walk, 350 ft. above the Ahr, the best point of view in the valley, whence the castle is well seen. A path on the opposite slope leads up to the castle, or down into Altenahr. The traveller should send on his carriage from this to Altenahr, and walk up to the cross. N.B. During the vintage, Sept. and part of Oct., this path is shut.

The precipitous rock, crowned by the castle, seems to deny all passage up the valley; the river sweeps round its base, and forms so complete a curve, that, after a course of a mile and a half, it almost returns to the same point. The Tunnel through this wall of rock, 530 ft. long, carries the road direct into

7 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. Altenahr (Inns: * Caspari's, good and clean; Rheinischer Hof, on the river-bank) is a village of 400 Inhab. Ascend to the ruined Castle of Altenahr, 600 ft. above the river; the view will reward the trouble. It belonged to the Counts of the Ahr and of Hochstaden, one of whom was Archbp. Conrad, rebuilder of Cologne Cathedral.

Travellers having come to Altenahr in a carriage, or being unable to walk, will retrace their steps to the Rhine. A moderately good walker may cross the hills by a bridle-road, which, by the directions given below, he can easily find without a guide, provided he can speak a little German, from the vale of the Ahr to the abbey of Laach (7 stunden = 20 miles) (Rte. 40), whence he should return to the Rhine through the pretty valley of Brohl, which ought not to be missed.

The carriage-road from Altenahr up the valley proceeds by way of Altenburg, situated under a singular isolated rock, formerly crowned by a castle of the lords of the Ahr. The castle of Kreuzberg, with the village of the same name, presents a striking point of view, and the church of Pützfeld, perched up in the rocks, with a singularly high steeple, is also very picturesque. The road continues through Brück and Hönningen to 6 m. Dümpelfeld, where the road leaves the Ahr, and the traveller proceeding to Treves quits that river.

6 m. Adenau (Inn: Halber-Mond), a town of 1200 Inhab., on one of the tributaries of the Ahr, under the two highest hills of the Eifel, both capped with basalt—the Hohe-Acht, 2434 ft., and the Nürberg, 2118 ft. About 6 m. distant are the ruins of the castle of Nürberg, built of hard black basalt, the finest and most extensive feudal stronghold in the Eifel. The key is kept in the hamlet below. Fine view. From here the traveller may find his way to Mayen (Rte. 40), passing another old castle, Virneburg, whose lords in ancient days, besides other possessions, were the proprietors of 23 villages.

The carriage-road to Laach (10 $\frac{1}{2}$ m.), and Andernach (15 m.) crosses the shoulder of the Hohe-Acht by Kalten-born (3 m.), Leembach (3 m.), and Kempenich (3 m.). A carriage from Adenau costs about 20 mks.

Diligence: Adenau to Blankenheim Stat. on Treves and Düren Rly. (Rte. 45).

ROUTE 40.

THE LOWER EIFEL.—BROHL ON THE RHINE TO THE LAKE OF LAACH, MAYEN, AND LÜTZERATH.

At Brohl Stat. of the Rhenish Rly. (Rte. 37) waggonettes and other carriages may be hired. To Laach Abbey is a drive of 9 m., requiring 2½ hrs., the latter part of the road being sand, and up hill.

The pretty narrow valley of Brohl lies between low slate hills, which at some early period of the earth's existence has been filled with a volcanic deposit of tufa and calc-sinter. The cliffs, rising to a height of 50 to 100 ft., and picturesquely draped with climbing plants, have for ages been mined and quarried for the terras or tuff which is ground and exported in large quantities to Holland, to make a cement which sets under water.

At Brohl village (Inn: Stern, on the high road) is a paper-mill, and the valley is studded with mills for grinding the trass, and honeycombed with drifts and galleries made in mining it.

The Castle of Schweppenburg, once belonging to the counts of Metternich, rises on a knoll athwart the valley.

Numerous jets of carbonic gas issue out of the rocks, and impregnate the water of the springs which feed the Brohlbach. One of these is 4½ m. The spring of Tönnistein, whose agreeable mineral water resembles those of Selters. A sort of Temple has been raised above the same, and a Kurhaus and Inn erected on the spot.

At Tönnistein the road to Laach turns out of the Brohlthal, diverging into an upland valley whose scenery is tame. It passes the extensive ruins of the Convent of St. Antony, burnt by the French, who pocketed the revenues, 1803.

2¼ m. Wassenach, a small village lying at the foot of the hills, whose interior includes the lake of Laach, and having a humble inn.

A continued ascent from the village, followed by a descent through woods, leads to the margin of the Laacher See, a very singular lake, of a nearly circular form, supposed to occupy the crater of an extinct volcano, and nearly resembling the crater lake of Bolsena, in Italy. It lies 666 ft. above the Rhine, is about 1¼ m. long, and about 1½ m. broad, its area being 1300 acres. The depth increases towards the centre, where a plumb-line sinks to 214 ft. A jet of carbonic acid gas issues from a scarcely perceptible opening on the N.E. side of the lake opposite the Abbey. It is the only remaining symptom of the volcanic action once so powerful in this district. Bodies of birds, squirrels, bats, toads, &c., have been found in a pit near this jet, killed by the noxious vapours, which resemble those of the Grotto del Cane, in Italy. The Laacher See is fed by numerous springs below the surface, which keep its basin constantly filled. It has no natural outlet; but the superfluous waters are carried off through a subterranean canal or emissary, nearly 1 m. long, cut by the monks in the 12th century, after an inundation which threatened to overwhelm the abbey.

The appearance of the deep blue lake, hemmed in on all sides by a ridge of hills completely covered with rich crops and wood down to the water's edge, is exceedingly pleasing as well as singular. On a near examination its banks will be found to be scattered over with masses of scorise, cinders, ashes, and pumice, and other volcanic products. On a gentle slope, in a quiet secluded nook, shut out as it were from the whole world, lies the deserted

3 m. Abbey of Laach, a picturesque object, and one of the most perfect examples of Rhenish architecture. It was originally a very wealthy Benedictine Convent. There were fifty-two monks at the time of its suppression by the French, when its revenue was sequestrated and it was sold, together with the lake and woods adjoining, for only 40,000 thalers. The Church, a Romanesque building, only 215 ft. long by 62 ft. wide, but complete in plan, with a choir at both E. and W. ends, apsidal terminations, surmounted by 5 towers and an octagon, was built between 1093 and 1156. It is entered at the W. end through a cloister. The interior possesses little interest. It has stood empty and unused since the French republican invasions. The tomb of the founder, Pfalzgraf Henry II., stands at the W. end, his effigy of wood, in his princely mantle and hat, bears in his hand the model of the ch. The Cloisters, which form also the entrance vestibule of the ch., are a very interesting feature, from the elegance and sharpness of the mouldings of the door, and cornices, and of the capitals. The cloister windows are of 3 or 4 narrow circ. arches resting on double marble shafts. At the E. end is a crypt. There is a fair Inn near the abbey (Maria Laach), which will furnish tackle for pike fishing and a tolerable dinner.

The very extensive convent buildings were lately in the possession of the Jesuits, who in 1872 built a large seminary or college on the opposite shore, from which they were expelled by Prince Bismarck, 1873.

The traveller may return to the Rhine by way of Wassenach to Andernach, but it is a rough cross road, a drive of about 2½ hrs.; but if he has time, from Kloster Laach he should visit the great Millstone Quarries of Nieder-Mendig, 3 m. S.E. of the abbey, which have been worked, it is supposed, for 2000 years. The hard porous lava or black basalt, which was probably a stream from one of the neighbouring volcanoes, extending nearly 5 m. in length by 3 in breadth, has here been hollowed out by the quarriers of millstones into funnel-shaped pits, from the bottom of which spacious subterranean caverns ramify, deserving by all means to be explored with torches. The lava separates into gigantic columns from 15 to 40 ft. high, by natural seams or fissures, and some of them are left to support the roof. The icy cold temperature of these caverns makes them invaluable for Beer Cellars.

The Rausch, near the village of Pleidt, is a romantic fall of the Nette river, worth a visit, 10 min. off the road, near a mill. About 2 m. S.W. of Laach are the cave-like excavations of Bell, whence oven-stone (pierre au four) is obtained. The direct road from Mendig to Coblenz (14 m.) passes the Ch. of St. Genovefa.

A tolerable road leads from Mendig to Mayen, along the banks of the Nette, passing the interesting and well-preserved Castle of Burrenheim*, retaining much old furniture, tapestries, &c., under the Hoch Simmer, a volcanic mountain. There are many other fine old ruined castles in the Eifel, as Virneburg and Olbrück, whose donjon measures 45 ft. by 30 at its base, and it has a tower 170 feet high. Wernerseck and Manderscheid (Rte. 45) are two more remarkable castles.

3 m. Mayen (Inns: Post; Kohlhaus) is a picturesque and ancient town, 6 m. from Laach, through Bell and Ettringen, surrounded by its old walls, and retaining 2 gateways, in the midst of orchards and gardens. There are many millstone quarries near it. Schnellpost twice daily to Coblenz in 3 hrs.; to Neuwied Stat. in 2½ hrs.

From Mayen the traveller has the choice of the following routes:—1. By Polch to Münster-Maifeld, Schloss Elz, Treis, and Carden, where he will find himself in the most beautiful part of the Mosel, and may ascend that river to Treves, or descend to Coblenz. Starting from Mayen very early in the morning, and proceeding through Collig to Pillig and Schloss Pymont in a carriage, the traveller may, after inspecting Schloss Pymont, walk across the country to Schloss Elz, see that, and, descending the valley of the Elz, reach Moselkern in time for the steamer descending to Coblenz. 2. The high post-road to Treves and Coblenz (Rte. 41). 3. If he take an interest in geology, he may proceed by a rough cross-road to the mountain called "Hohe Acht," near Kaleborn, 2200 feet above the sea, commanding from its summit a most extensive view. He will find a road leading thence to Lützerath and Bertrich (Rte. 41), to Ahrweiler (Rte. 39), and to the Upper Eifel (Rte. 45).

ROUTE 41.

COBLENZ TO TREVES [BERTRICH BATHS].

71 Eng. m.

Rly. in progress.

Schnellpost twice daily in 15 hrs.; one by way of Mayen, the other via Polch. With extra post the distance may be travelled easily in 12. Schnellpost daily to Münster-Maifeld. The road, though very hilly, is good, and the country (especially in the neighbourhood of Lützerath) not unpicturesque. Within a short distance, between the road and the Mosel, there are some charming scenes. As there is no post-road along the banks of the Mosel, the best way to explore its beauties is to ascend or descend it in the steamer. (Rte. 42.)

Upon the first stage from Coblenz to Treves lie many unimportant villages; but the first of them, Metternich, gives its name to a family now known all over Europe.

12 m. Polch, an old village of 2700 Inhab.

[The small town of Münster-Maifeld (Inn: Mayfelder Hof; no good inn) lies about 5 m. to the S., in a beautiful situation. By some it is said to have been the birthplace of Caligula (?). The Ch. of St. Martin: the W. end is Romanesque, centre Gothic, apsidal choir Transitional. The tower is surmounted by battlements and machicolations flanked by bartizan turrets, like a castle, and is picturesque. The choir, restored in gaudy colours, contains a fine marble group, nearly life-size, of the Entombment, and 2 sculptured Triptychs or folding altar-pieces, painted. About 3 m. distant, in the midst of one of the most picturesque of all the tributary valleys of the Mosel, stands the very interesting old Castle of Elz, described in Rte. 42. The castle is about 3 m. distant from the Mosel.]

Halfway between Kehrig and Dungenheim the road crosses the picturesque valley of the Elz.

The traveller coming from Treves, and wishing to explore the Lower Eifel (Rte. 40), would turn off to the left at Kehrig, towards Mayen, instead of proceeding at once to Coblenz.

12 m. Kaisersesch. Cross the picturesque Martenthal.

11 m. Lützerath. Inn: Post; not good.

This is the best starting-point for an excursion to the volcanoes of the Upper Eifel. (Rte. 45.)

[Diligence from Lützerath twice a day to the (5 m.) Baths of Bertrich.

The excellent road leads through most interesting scenery to Alf, on the Mosel, passing nearly halfway the Baths of Bertrich. Just before the road descends into the valley, it passes near the Falkenlei, $4\frac{1}{2}$ m., a conical hill cut in two as it were, crested with basalt, in the crannies of which the falcons nestle. It was probably a volcanic crater, from which a stream of basalt, occupying the lower part of the valley above the slate rocks which form its sides, may have issued, though the lava current has not been absolutely traced to this source. Its gloomy crevices and grottoes, glazed with black, are well worth exploring. A mile farther, at the junction of a little rivulet with the Iss, another basaltic current enters the valley. It appears to have been cut through by the stream, which, falling in a small cascade, has laid open a singular grotto, the sides, roof, and floor of which consist of small basaltic columns, worn away at the joints, so as to resemble cheeses. This has obtained for the cave its common name of cheese cellar (Käsekeller). The junction of the clay-slate and lava is very distinctly seen in the bed of the rivulet. The Baths of Bertrich consist of an assemblage of inns and boarding-houses, and a handsome Bath-house of stone (12 baths) (Inns: Post; Klering's). They lie in a romantic and retired spot, shut in by hills, and almost canopied by woods, intersected by agreeable walks, in the depths of the narrow valley of the Ues, or Issbach, distinguished for its sinuosities, which present a succession of scenes, varying every few yards, and for the umbrageous foliage of the woods, which clothe its sides from top to bottom. The waters are warm (90° Fahr.), alkaline, and abound in Glauber salts. A Protestant chapel was built here 1849. The season lasts till August; but Bertrich is a quiet rather than fashionable watering place. It is well situated as headquarters for travellers intending to explore the Mosel. The steamboat from Coblenz to Treves touches at Alf, a village at the junction of the Issbach and Mosel 5 m. below the Baths

(Rte. 42). Carriages are kept here. From Bertrich to Treves, a well-engineered road, over the mountains, falls into the high road at Wittlich (8 m.); see below.]

About 2 m. out of Lützerath the road crosses what is called the Lützerather Kehr (from kehren, to turn), one of the valleys peculiarly characteristic of the Eifel district, and remarkable for their wonderful windings and contortions. Every projection on the one side of it corresponds with a bay or recess on the other, so that the stream of the Ues or Issbach, which flows through it, driven from one side to the other by these advancing and retreating buttresses, is seen at one time in 7 different bends or turns, taking at every bend which it makes an exactly opposite direction to that in which it had previously flowed. It is altogether a singular scene.

13 m. Wittlich (Inn: Post), a town of 3000 Inhab., on the Lieser. Manderscheid (Rte. 45) is W. 16 m. higher up the valley. A hilly road leads hence to Bertrich baths (8 m.). The descent into the glen on this side is very fine. Diligence to Trèves daily.

10 m. Hetserath.

Beyond Schweich the Mosel is crossed by a ferry, and the road proceeds by the rt. bank to Treves, passing, near the entrance of the town, the Porta Nigra, or Black Gate.

13 m. Trier (Fr. Trèves) Stat. Hotel omnibus from rly. Inns: Trierscher Hof, very good, table-d'hôte at $1\frac{1}{2}$; Roth's Haus*, in the market-place, comfortable and best situated; Post. 2nd class: Luxemburger Hof, good; H. Stadt Venedig, near the steamer; Stadt Metz at the stat. Post Office in the Korn-markt.

This very ancient city stands on the rt. bank of the Mosel, in a valley of exuberant richness, surrounded by low, vine-clad hills; it has 21,425 Inhab., 1700 Protestants. An inscription on the wall of the Roth's Haus (formerly the Town-hall) asserts that Trèves was built before Rome—"Ante Romam Treviris stetit annis MCCC." Without giving credit to this, it may fairly be considered one of the oldest cities in Germany. Julius Cæsar, when he first led the Roman armies into this part of Europe (B. C. 58), found the Treveri a powerful tribe, whether Celtic or Gallic is not certain; but they mustered a strong force of horse and foot, and often gave him trouble. The Emperor Augustus established here a Roman colony, under the name of Augusta Trevirorum; and under Constantine it became the capital of Belgic Gaul, which comprised not only Gaul, properly so called, but the whole of Spain and Britain. It was the residence of the emperors Constantius, Constantine the Great, Julian, Valentinian, Valens, Gratian, and Theodosius, and became so eminent in commerce, manufactures, wealth, and extent, and withal so advanced in learning and the arts, that Ausonius the poet, who lived here in the 4th cent., ranks it as the sixth great city of the Roman Empire, and its capital N. of the Alps. Although almost annihilated during the invasion of the Goths, Huns, and Vandals, it arose to a height of splendour nearly equalling its former state, under the rule of its Archbishops, who were Princes and Electors of the Empire, and made Treves their usual residence until 1786, when the last Elector, Clement Wenceslaus, removed to Coblenz. Many of them aimed more at temporal than spiritual sway. They maintained large armies, which, after the fashion of the time, they did not scruple to lead in person, clad in armour. The ambition and talents of many of these episcopal rulers increased their dominions so much as to obtain for them considerable political influence in Germany. Treves was taken by the English under Marlborough in the War of the Spanish Succession, 1702-4; and at the French Revolution suffered the usual fortune of having its churches and convents stripped of their wealth, and the buildings turned into barracks or hospitals. Before that event Treves boasted of possessing more ecclesiastical buildings than any other city of the same size. At the peace of 1801, and the cession of the l. bank of the Rhine to France, Treves became chief town of the Départ. de la Sarre, but in 1815, after the fall of Napoleon, it was acquired by Prussia.

Treves is at present a decayed town, owing the chief interest it possesses for the traveller to the Roman remains still existing in and about it. No other city of Germany or northern Europe possesses such extensive relics of the masters of the world. They are not in the best style of art, and are remarkable rather for vastness than beauty; and in this respect bear no comparison with the Roman remains in the S. of France or in Italy. They have likewise suffered severely, not only from the Vandalism of the Vandals themselves, but from the prejudices of the early Christians, who believed they were doing good service to their religion by effacing all traces of Paganism from the earth. Many of the buildings have been demolished, to furnish materials for modern constructions.

The Market Place is a good central point from which to explore the town. Standing near the granite cross—marking, according to the legend, the appearance of a cross in the sky, A.D., 950—you have in front E. the Cathedral, on the N. the Porta Nigra, and behind the Rothes Haus, a very picturesque building, now a comfortable inn.

The principal buildings may be visited from the Haupt-markt in the following order:—Cathedral, Liebfrauenkirche, Electoral Palace, Library and Museum, Roman Baths, Amphitheatre, Church of St. Paul, Porta Nigra.

The Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Helen*, though presenting a stately exterior with its 5 towers, is less remarkable for beauty than as exhibiting successive developments of the Romanesque style, from its original germ—a Roman building, if we believe the legend, erected by Helena, Constantine's mother—down to its ultimate completion in the 12th cent.

It probably owes its foundation, as a church, to Bp. Nicetius (circ. 550), who built a nave and E. apse, including

PLAN OF TREVES.

- | | | |
|------------------|-----------------|-----------------|
| 1 Casino. | 6 Lieh Frau Ch. | 11 Synagogue. |
| 2 Law Courts. | 7 Library. | 12 Theatre. |
| 3 Basilica. | 8 Post Office. | 13 Roman Tower. |
| 4 Dom. | 9 Roman Baths. | 14 Stadium. |
| 5 St. Gengoulph. | 10 Museum. | |

ENVIRONS OF TREVES.

in it some of the granite pillars from the Odenwald, used in Helen's edifice, one of which now lies, broken, beside the S.W. door, and a circular baptistery.

The cathedral remained in its original condition until Archbp. Poppo in the 11th cent. rebuilt nearly the whole edifice, encased the Roman pillars with stone, enlarged the nave, and completed his work by attaching a western apse, so that, after the German fashion, there is an apse at each end.

During the latter portion of the 12th cent. a much larger apse was built at the eastern extremity, enclosing the original one, and exhibiting the various characteristics of the latest Romanesque, just before it merged in the first Pointed style. The building is striking from its vast size (314 ft. long, 90 ft. high), and abounds with beautiful Romanesque details, among which may be specified a very elegant doorway of the 11th cent. in the S. aisle of nave. In the tympanum our Lord is represented seated, holding an open book, with the Virgin on his rt. and St. Peter on the l. It contains several monuments of its electoral archbishops. See those of John v. Metzzenhausen (d. 1540), and of Richard v. Greifenklau (d. 1530), the violent opponent of the Reformation, who defended Treves against Franz v. Sickingen. The Font of white marble, beautifully carved with foliage of classic design, looks like the oblong basin of a fountain. The present windows were pierced in the 17th cent. The cases of the old openings may be seen on the S. side. The carving of the sandstone pulpit is good (1572). The seats of the choir are inlaid with ivory and wooden mosaic (marqueterie). Cloisters of extreme beauty, 1250 (restored 1847), stand on the S. side of the cathedral. In them may be noticed a stone chair, on which evil-doers, who had fled to the sacred precincts for sanctuary, had to sit. Here too may be seen a Gothic stone lantern of exquisite beauty, supported by a spiral shaft, and crowned by a finial; also fragments of granite columns, said to have formed part of the Empress Helena's building.

[N. G.]

H

The Vestry contains some interesting specimens of mediæval art, among them a crozier of the 14th cent., which was saved from the French, when they pillaged the ch. in 1794, by being concealed in the straw mattress of a monk.

The far-famed Holy Coat, without seam, said to be formed of camel's hair, is 5 ft. long, and when not exhibited is walled up inside the high altar. The first mention of it occurs 1190. In 1844 it was publicly exhibited to a million of devotees, who flocked from all parts to see it.

The outer walls exhibit a large amount of Roman materials, and are perhaps of Roman construction. This, together with the beautiful details of Romanesque arcades, deserves study.

Adjoining the cathedral, on the site of the early baptistery, stands the graceful Church of our Lady (Liebfrauenkirche), in elegant Pointed style, 1227-43; restored 1871. Being one of the earliest specimens of pure German Gothic, 5 years older than Cologne, it is to be compared with the similar and contemporaneous churches of Marburg in Hesse, Altenberg near Cologne, Esslingen on the Neckar, and the cathedrals of Amiens, Salisbury, and Cologne. The semicircular portal is richly ornamented with sculpture, and the interior, in the shape of a Greek cross, rests on 4 lofty Gothic piers, while the encircling aisle, lighted by tall narrow windows, is supported by 12 pillars, each bearing the picture of an apostle. A little black stone in the pavement near the door is the only spot whence all these can be seen at once. The monument of Archbp. Jacob von Sirk is a fine work of an unknown sculptor. A doorway in the N. transept leads into the cloisters.

The Palace of the Archbishops and Electors, a very handsome and extensive building, now a barrack, stands partly upon the site of an enormous Roman edifice, only a fragment of which remains; the larger portion having been demolished to make way for the Electoral edifice, erected in 1614. This colossal fragment has been included in the palace. It was the Basilica* or imperial hall attached to the Palace, the semicircular apse at the E. end having been the tribunal at first, and afterwards turned into a church; as was the case with similar halls in Rome. The proportions of this Roman edifice, whose walls are more than 90 ft. high and 10 ft. thick, give a very good idea of the dimensions of the whole when entire. It is at the same time a masterpiece of architecture; as the bricks and tiles of which it is wholly composed remain to this day perfect and compact. The Emperor Frederick William IV. caused it to be consecrated as a Prot. ch., 1856, after it had undergone extensive repairs and the E. wall nearly rebuilt.

In front of this building extends an open space of ground, now used for drilling troops; at its farther extremity stand the shattered remains of the so-called

Roman Baths*, Thermæ (Bäder-Palast). They were long included in the S.E. angle of the fortifications of the town, and were half-buried in the earth; so that the windows on the first storey, being on a level with the ground, served as an entrance into the town, and were barbarously broken away at the sides, in order to admit the market-carts of the peasantry: from this the building got the name of the White Gate. They were excavated in 1818, and were built in the 1st cent. and destroyed in the 5th. The parts disclosed appeared to resemble, on a small scale, the Thermæ of Caracalla and Diocletian at Rome; but recent researches tend to discountenance the idea that the building was used as a bath-house, for no outlet or inlet for the water has yet been discovered, though passages have been found leading to the site of the Imperial Palace which stood on the bank of the river to the L. of the bridge. The massiveness of the well-turned arches, and the thickness of the walls in courses of brick and sandstone, will excite admiration at the skill of the builders who raised them, and surprise at the violence which has reduced them to so utter a state of dilapidation. Fine view from the top of the wall at the S.E. angle, reached by a spiral staircase.

Through a wicket in the town walls opening at the baths you may walk directly to the Roman Amphitheatre*, about $\frac{1}{4}$ m. to the E. of the baths, outside the walls, on the road to Olewig. It comes unexpectedly into sight, being scooped out of the side of the Marsberg, a hill covered with vineyards, which but a few years ago extended over the arena itself. The Prussian Government purchased the ground in 1816, and cleared away the earth which covered it to the depth of 20 ft. It is interesting in an historical as well as an antiquarian point of view, as it was upon this spot that Constantine entertained his subjects with a spectacle which he called Frankish sports (Ludi Francici), and which consisted in exposing many thousand unarmed Frankish prisoners to be torn in pieces by wild beasts. He twice exhibited these diversions (A. D. 306 and 313), and the fawning chroniclers of the time have not scrupled to call it a magnificent sight, "magnificum spectaculum,—famosa supplicia." So great was the number of victims, that the savage beasts desisted of their own accord from their work of destruction, and left many alive, fatigued with slaughtering. Those who survived were made to fight as gladiators against one another; but they are said to have spoilt the amusement of the hard-hearted spectators, by voluntarily falling on each other's swords, instead of contending for life. The arena itself, excavated out of the solid rock, and carefully levelled, is 234 ft. long, and 155 broad: deep channels for water run round and through the centre: they were supplied by an aqueduct from the stream of the Ruwer. Horns, tusks, and bones of wild animals have been discovered in digging, and one or two cave-like vaults in the side walls were, it is supposed, the dens in which they were confined previously to exhibition. This Amphitheatre, capable of holding about 53,000 persons, was of humble pretensions in comparison with those of Nîmes, Verona, or the Coliseum, as, instead of being surrounded by several ranges of vaulted arcades of masonry, the sloping banks of earth, thrown up in excavating the arena, served to support the seats for the spectators. All traces of these have disappeared. The stones were probably used for building houses, as the amphitheatre was long regarded no otherwise than as a quarry. Archways of solid masonry flanked by towers (no part of which now remain) formed the main entrances to the arena at the N. and S.E. extremity; in addition to which, 2 vaulted passages (vomitoria), bored through the hill, led into the arena from the side of Treves, and still remain in tolerable preservation.

The Roman Aqueduct, which conveyed water to Treves from the Ruwer, still exists in those places where it passed under ground; it was 3 or 4 ft. broad, and nearly 6 ft. high. The part which was supported upon pillars across the valleys has entirely disappeared.

The Porta Nigra* (Schwarzes Thor), called also Porta Martis, is the most interesting monument of antiquity in Treves; and has all the massive simplicity of the Roman style. Its front is decorated with rows of Tuscan columns, its lower storey is very massive, and it was probably the entrance gate on the N. line of the city wall. Neither its age nor use has been satisfactorily ascertained, but it is reputed (with much probability) to have been built in the days of Constantine the Great, between 314 and 322. Kugler, indeed, regards it as a work of the Franks, dating not from classic times, but from the middle ages.

Some have fixed the date of the building prior to the arrival of the Romans, and have called it the Forum, Capitol, or Council-house, of the Belgæ; but the style of architecture favours the belief that it was a work of the Lower Empire.

In the 11th cent. an anchorite named Simeon of Syracuse, who had been a monk in the convent of Mount Sinai, on his return from the Holy Land posted himself on the top of the building, in imitation of his namesake

Simeon the Stylite. His ascetic and eccentric life gained for him the reputation of sanctity; and in consequence he was enrolled in the calendar. Not long after his death the building was consecrated and dedicated to St. Simeon by Archbp. Poppo. To fit it for the service of religion, he added a semi-circular apsis to one end, which still remains a curious specimen of architecture, and formed 3 churches in it, one above the other, in which service was regularly performed down to the end of the last century. Like most ancient structures, the lower part of it, as far as the tops of the gateways, had become buried beneath earth and rubbish, so that the entrance to it was by a long flight of steps, leading to the first floor. In this state Napoleon found it on his arrival at Treves. It is insinuated that a want of ammunition, as much as a taste for art, induced him to free the building from its incumbrances, as he went no further than tearing off the thick lead from the roof, which he melted into bullets. The work of improvement has been executed by the Prussian Government; the building has been divested of its ecclesiastical character, and restored, as far as possible, to its original condition, the earth having been cleared from its base. It exhibits various marks of the dilapidations of barbarous ages and people. The masonry, of vast blocks of sandstone, averaging 4 or 5 ft., but in some instances 8 or 9 ft. long, rough on the outside, was originally so neatly fitted together, without the aid of cement, that the joints of the stones could scarcely be discerned; but they have been chipped and mutilated at their angles, in order to extract the metal clamps which united them, and now seem to hang together by their corners. The interior serves to hold a few shattered fragments of antiquity, of no great interest, dug up in the neighbourhood: the most curious pieces are, a bas-relief of gladiators found in the amphitheatre, a mermaid with 2 tails, several earthenware pipes from the baths, and 2 Roman milestones from Bitburg.

$\frac{1}{2}$ m. outside the gate is the Ch. of St. Paulin, dating from the 4th cent., but 5 times destroyed by fire, and the present building was erected by Archbp. Schoenborn, who died in 1756. Obs. the fresco by Scheffner of Augsburg (1743), representing the legend of the martyrdom on this spot of the soldiers of the Theban Legion, by Riccius Varus, in A.D. 288.

In the Dietrichs Strasse, not far from the Rothes Haus, is a Tower containing roman tiles, but probably of later date, in the style of Bp. Poppo's construction.

The Bridge over the Mosel is most probably the oldest Roman monument in Treves, and founded in the time of Augustus; it is mentioned by Tacitus, and the date of its construction has been fixed as about 28 years B.C. It originally stood near the middle of the town, which has gradually dwindled away till it has left the bridge at one extremity. Having resisted the storms of barbaric invasion, and the wild times of the middle ages, it was blown up by the French during the wars of Louis XIV., 1689, and the arches restored 1729. In consequence, the only ancient parts remaining are the piers on which the arches of the present bridge stand, and which consist of large stones, brought from the lava quarries at Mendig, near the lake of Laach. Many single blocks are from 6 to 9 ft. long, 3 broad and 3 thick.

There were anciently 4 rich abbeys at Treves, but of their wealth nothing now remains, and even the original edifices are much altered if not replaced by modern structures. They are—St. Matthias, about a mile above the town, now converted into a school. The Church is plain old Romanesque, with a fine W. tower—interior low simple arches and piers—with large wallspace above, like Speyer, and late Gothic roof. It possesses a piece of the True Cross, and is annually visited by many thousand pilgrims. St. Maximin monastery is now a barrack. St. Martin's on the Mosel is a manufactory. St. Mary of the Four Martyrs, below the town, stands on the site of the residence of the Roman Prefect.

In the Gymnasiums Gebäude, near the Basilica, is the Town Library (open daily 10 to 12; small fee expected), of 96,000 vols., collected from various convents on their suppression in 1794, and containing many literary curiosities, the chief of them being the Codex Aureus, a MS. of the four Gospels (A.D. 900) written in golden letters, formerly in the abbey of St. Maximin. It is bound in plates of silver gilt, on which are embossed figures in high relief, interspersed with precious stones, and was repaired in 1499; and in the centre is a splendid cameo, said to represent Augustus and his family. There is also here Archbishop Egbert's copy of the Gospels, as well as other MSS., and many printed books of great value; among them Gutenberg's first Bible, 1450, and a copy of Justinian's Institutes, printed by Schöpffer, 1468. There is also a large and carefully arranged collection of ancient coins and medals, beginning 300 B.C. and Roman remains, including part of a Roman mozaic pavement, principally found at Treves. The specimens of Roman glass are curious.

The Environs abound in delightful points of excursion, fine views, &c.

a. Pallien, a village on the l. bank of the Mosel, at the mouth of a ravine up which the road to Aix-la-Chapelle is carried, is worth visiting on account of the picturesque character of the rocky dell, of the water-mills enclosed between its cliffs, and of its bridge of a single arch thrown over the ravine by Napoleon. (Rte. 43.) It is approached from the suburb of Zur-lauben, at the lower end of Treves, by a ferry across the Mosel; and $\frac{1}{2}$ m. beyond, on the height, stands the Café Schneiders Hof, much resorted to in summer, commanding a good general view of the valley of the Mosel and of the town of Treves. The garden and grounds of the White Horse beyond the Mosel, reached by the ferry, should be visited. The walks and views are charming. On the top of the cliff between the bridge and Pallien, rises a Mariensäule, erected 1866, and crowned by a colossal statue of the Virgin: this is even a better point of view. To reach it cross the bridge and the rly., and follow the zigzag path by the little chapel immediately under the cliff, and return by the Pallien-thal.

b. Igel, a small village, with an inn, about 6 m. from Treves (see Rte. 29 as to the best way of reaching it from Wasserbillig Stat. on the Luxemburg Rly.), on the high road to Luxemburg, and upon the ancient Roman highway, is particularly deserving of a visit from all who take an interest in remains of antiquity, on account of the Igeler Säule (Igel Column), a beautiful Roman structure, standing in the midst of it, close to the road. It is a four-sided obelisk of sandstone, more than 70 ft. high, bearing carvings, inscriptions, and bas-reliefs, but so mutilated in parts, that neither its age nor destination has yet been precisely ascertained. 4 or 5 different explanations have been given of it, and at least as many readings of the inscriptions by the antiquaries. One states it to have been raised to commemorate the marriage of Constantius Chlorus and Helena; another, that it records the birth of Caligula, tracing some resemblance between his name and that of the place, Igel. A third considers it to allude to the apotheosis of some person of imperial rank. The plain matter of fact seems to be, that it was set up by two brothers named Secundinus; partly as a funeral monument to their deceased relatives; partly to celebrate their sister's marriage, which is represented on one of the bas-reliefs by the figures of a man and woman joining hands. The Secundini were a rich and powerful family, who, it appears from the inscription, in addition to other offices, held those of postmaster and chief of the commissariat, and supplied the Roman army with food, accoutrements, and carriages, which is further denoted by the figure of a chariot, filled with armour, &c., the subject of another bas-relief. From the style of the architecture and carvings, the monument has been referred to the time of the Antonines: some imagine it to belong to the era of Constantine. It has excellence as a work of art, and as a successful example of the combination of monumental architecture with sculptural decoration; as a whole, its preservation is also remarkable. The view from the ch.-yard behind it is very pretty.

Schnellpost daily from Treves to Coblenz (rly. in progress) in 14 hrs; to Berncastel and Kreuznach.

Steamboats on the Mosel during summer; 4 or 5 times a-week between Treves and Coblenz in 10 to 11 hrs. (Rte. 42).

Railways to Luxemburg and Namur; to Spa; to Saarbrücken, Kreuznach, and Bingen (Rte. 100 A); to Düren, Aix, and Cologne, by Geroldstein (Rtes. 43, 45). Station on l. bank of the Mosel.

ROUTE 42.

THE MOSEL.—FROM TREVES TO COBLENZ.

† denotes a landing-pier. At other places boats take up and set down passengers.

Distance, about 150 Eng. m. :—more than double that of the land journey (Rte. 41), owing to the windings of the river. Steamers 4 or 5 times a-week :—up to Treves in 1½ day, starting from Coblenz at 6 A.M. for Berncastel or Trarbach, and proceeding on the following day to Treves; down in 12 hrs., starting from Treves at 6 A.M. When the river is low, which frequently happens in summer, the steamers are delayed or stopped altogether, and the traveller must then resort to row-boats, to cross or drop down the river for short distances.

The navigation of the river after dark is rendered impassable by the stone groins built into it to regulate its course. If the steamer should be delayed by shallow water caused by drought, by fogs or other cause, passengers are liable to be turned out at nightfall, far from their destination, in the rain and the dark, at a spot where no proper night accommodation is attainable, nor even carriages to enable them to pursue their journey by land.

3 or 4 days may be very agreeably spent on the banks of the Mosel, and this river offers a pleasing route to travellers visiting the Rhine.

Some of the finest scenery may be explored in 2 days, from Coblenz, thus: Take the steamer up to Alf; proceed thence in a post-chaise to the Baths of Bertrich, 3 m. off (Inn: Post); explore the walks to the Falkenlei, &c., and return to Alf to sleep. Next day ascend the hill called Prinzensköpfchen, then take the descending steamer and return to Coblenz, or, if time will allow, stop at Carden, and walk or drive to Schloss Elz, returning to Carden to sleep. Next morning hire a row-boat to Alken, and walk thence in 2 h. up a side valley to the interesting castle of Ehrenburg, returning in time for the steamer to Coblenz, or proceeding thither by the carriage-road down the rt. bank of the Mosel.

In order fully to appreciate the beauties of the Mosel, it is necessary to land at certain points indicated in the following route, and view it from its high banks.

The Pedestrian alone can reach by by-paths and cross-roads, not passable for carriages, the finest points of view; at one time creeping along the margin of the river, at another surveying it from the heights above. In every village he may find a boat in which he may embark when tired, and may thus shift about from one side of the river to the other. By crossing the narrow necks of land he may often save 6 or 8 miles, and reach in ½ hour a spot that a boat would require 3 or 4 to arrive at. In making these short cuts, however, he may sometimes miss fine scenes on the river.

The Inns upon the Mosel, except at Alf (Post), will by no means satisfy fastidious travellers, but the charges are moderate.

Good Mosel wine is hardly to be got in the inns, or elsewhere on the river than at the wine-merchants' in Coblenz.

The banks of the Mosel, though on the whole inferior in beauty to those of the Rhine, by no means present a repetition of the same kind of scenery. It is generally of a less wild and barren character; instead of black bare ravines and abrupt precipices, it is bordered by undulating hills, whose precipitous sides are covered with vineyards, an example of careful and costly culture well worthy of notice. In the upper part of its course also clothed in rich woods, such as the Rhine cannot boast of. It is much enlivened with towns and villages, of which there are more than 100 between Coblenz and Treves. The constant stoppages at these, to set down or take up passengers, are somewhat tiresome. Ruins of old castles, watch-towers, and Gothic church steeples are not wanting to give a religious or romantic tone to the landscape. The Mosel is remarkable for its very complicated windings, which in several parts of its course form projecting promontories, almost surrounded by the river; and the view of these extraordinary meanderings of the river, from the heights above it, is as singular as it is enchanting. The Mosel is not deficient in classical associations: it is even the subject of a poem by Ausonius, written probably during his residence at Treves; and traces of the Romans may be discovered in many a village on its banks.

The first part of the voyage from Treves to Berncastel presents nothing of great interest: and it is not worth while to enumerate names of unimportant villages. The Rly. from Treves to the Eifel runs along the bank for some distance.

1. The tall chimneys in the recess of a valley, and the wreaths of smoke mark the position of the ironworks of Quint.

rt. Neumagen (Inns: Claeren's; Hayn's) is the Roman Noviomagus, where Constantine had a palace, the "incluta castra Constantini" of Ausonius, of which few fragments now remain. The Ch. was built 1190, partly with the materials of the Roman palace.

1. Piesport (Pisonis Porta): Hain's Inn. One of the most famous vineyards on the Mosel, under a steep hill.

1. Opposite Dusemond is another vineyard, producing the capital wine called Brauneberger.

rt. Mühlheim. Here the scenery improves in beauty.

A handsome bridge of 4 arches, built 1875, communicating with a road up the rt. bank, crosses the Mosel at rt. †Berncastel (Inn: *Drei Könige, good fare—try the "Doctor's" wine), a dirty town of 3000 Inhab., on the way from Bingen to Treves (Rte. 46), picturesquely situated under a ruined castle (Landshut) perched on a ledge of the Hunsrück mountains, which here approach close to the Mosel.

Diligence to Treves in 6 hrs. Travellers tired of the boat may cross the hills to Trarbach, a hot walk of 2 hrs. (5 m.—by water 15), stony path and steep ascent at first, from Berncastel.

1. Directly opposite Berncastel lies Cus. The Hospital was founded by Cardinal Cusanus, who was born here, the son of a poor fisherman, and raised himself to that dignity by his talents (d. 1461). Attached to it is a Gothic chapel, containing the very fine monument of Prince John of Neuburg (1569). The rt. bank of the Mosel is here draped with vineyards from top to bottom. (rt.) A little below Graach is the Priory of Martinshof, now secularized.

rt. Zeltingen.—De Wilde's Inn, tolerable. This may be said to be the centre of the wine district of the Mosel, in which all the best sorts are produced.

1. Uerzig. (Post.) Good road to Wittlich 6 m. Below this village, in the face of a tall red cliff called Michaelslei, a castellated wall is visible. It covers the mouth of a cave which once served to harbour a band of robbers, and afterwards to shelter a hermit. It was accessible only by means of high ladders.

rt. †Trarbach (the derivation of the name, from "Thronus Bacchi," is fanciful).—Inn: Gräfinburg. The best red wine of the Mosel may be had here. The situation of this dirty little town, of 1700 Protestant Inhab., is very beautiful, but it has lost much of its picturesqueness since the fire of 1857; it lies in the mouth of a side valley, opening upon the Mosel: but it is not otherwise interesting, and its narrow and dirty streets offer no temptation to penetrate within its gates. A neat Townhall, in modern Gothic style, has been built. The castle above it, called the Gräfinburg, destroyed by the French in 1734, was one of the strongest between Treves and Coblenz, commanding entirely the passage of the Mosel. It was the residence of the Counts of Sponheim, and was built in 1338 with an Archbp.'s ransom. A long and deadly feud had existed between the Archbishops of Treves and the Counts of Sponheim, when, in 1325, the death of Count Henry held out to the reigning Archbishop, Baldwin, the prospect of enriching himself at the expense of the widowed Countess; taking advantage, therefore, of her unprotected position, he made inroads into her domain, plundering her subjects, and laying waste her lands. The Countess Loretta, however, was gifted with a manly spirit, and was not a person to submit tamely to such insults and injury: so, calling together her vassals, she boldly expelled the intruders with loss and disgrace; equally to the surprise and indignation of Baldwin, who little expected such opposition from a female. The very same year, as the Archbp. was quietly and unsuspectingly sailing down the Mosel to Coblenz, with a small retinue, his barge was suddenly arrested nearly abreast of the Castle of Starkenburg, by a chain stretched across the river below the surface; and before he had time to recover from his surprise, armed boats put off from the shore, and he was led a prisoner into the Castle of the Countess. She treated her persecutor with courtesy, but kept him fast within her walls until he agreed to abandon a fort which he had begun to build on her territory, and paid down a large ransom.

The finest scenery of the Mosel lies between Trarbach and Cobern.

1. †Traben (Inn: Feist's); also a Protestant village. Traben, it is said, comes from Lat. Taberna. Opposite Trarbach rises a high hill, converted into a promontory by the windings of the Mosel. On the summit of it Vauban constructed for Louis XIV. (1686), in the time of peace, and upon German territory, a strong fortress, completely commanding the river up and down. The pretext for this proceeding was the unjust claim urged by Louis to the domains of the Counts of Sponheim. After 8000 men had been employed in constructing the fort, and an expenditure of many millions of francs had been incurred, it was razed to the ground, in conformity with the treaty of Ryswick, 11 years after it was built, and a few broken walls and shattered casemates alone mark the site of Fort Montroyal. The view from it is grand. Near this is a monument to the fallen in the French war of 1870.

rt. Starkenbourg, a village on an eminence, which once bore a castle of the same name, belonging to the Counts of Sponheim, and mentioned above. Its outworks extended down to the water-side, and some towers and walls still remain.

rt. Enkirch, a village of 2000 Inhab.; near it are fragments of shafts of pillars, which go by the name of the Temple, and are perhaps Roman.

On approaching (rt.) the village of †Pünderich, the ruins of (l.) Marienburg, alternately a nunnery and a fortress, appear in sight; and from their position, on the summit of a high dorsal ridge, which the Mosel by its windings converts into a promontory, remain long in view. The distance to Alf, from (l.) the village of Reil, near which a steep footpath (Rothenpfad, from the red colour of the soil) strikes upwards through the vineyards across the Isthmus, is under 3 m.; by the winding Mosel it is 12 m.; a voyage in ascending, of 2 hrs.; in descending, of 1 hr. Travellers intending to stop at Alf may land here, opposite Pünderich, and walk across the neck to Marienburg and Alf, which may be done in an hour, with tolerable certainty of catching the steamer at Alf. The View* from the eminence a little to the W. of Marienburg, called Prinzensköpfchen, is the most surprising and pleasing that the whole course of the Mosel presents. Owing to the excessive sinuosities of the river, 4 different reaches appear in view at once, radiating as it were from the foot of the rock on which you stand. A waving amphitheatre of hills, covered with dark forest, occupies the horizon, and nearer at hand vine-clad slopes, villages at the water-side, and old castles, with the Fort Arras on the Issbach, to the W., are the accessories of this beautiful panorama. There is a little inn within the ruins of Marienburg, where you may breakfast or dine.

rt. †Zell (Inns: Fiers'; Rothes Haus), an increasing town, 1800 Inhab., many new houses, opposite the end of the promontory on which Marienburg stands, overlooked by a guardian watch-tower.

1. †Alf (Inns: Theisen (Post); Bellevue, on the river bank—good fishing), on the Mosel, is a village prettily situated at the mouth of the winding valley of the Issbach; above it stands the church, and farther up the valley rises the picturesque hill fort of Arras, which stood out for a long time, in 1138, against Adalbert, Archbishop of Treves, who swore not to shave till he had taken it, and kept his word. Under Arras, 2 m. up the valley, are extensive iron forges and furnaces. The iron is brought from Bendorf on the Rhine, the coal from the mines of Saarbrücken. About 6 m. up this silvan valley are the retired Baths of Bertrich* (Rte. 41). Diligence from Alf twice a-day in summer. There are several Inns, where carriages are kept.

No one should quit Alf without enjoying the very extraordinary prospect from the Prinzensköpfchen near the Marienburg mentioned above—half an hour's walk.

A good walker may catch the ascending steamer at Pünderich.

1. Bremm (Amelinger's Inn), a wide and solitary spot, enclosed by huge dark hills. It is difficult to guess how the river finds its way out; indeed it has very much the appearance of the head of a lake. The steep slopes behind the village resemble somewhat the cliff of the Lurlei in boldness, but they are covered with vines to the very top.

rt. On the pretty green meadow opposite stood, until the French Republican invasion, the nunnery of Stuben; the massive wall of a ruined chapel, pierced with pointed windows, still remains.

1. There is a path from the village of Eller (Inn: Gietzen's) over the hills to Cochem, only 4 m. long. The windings of the river between these two places cannot be less than 12 m., but those who avail themselves of this short cut will lose some of the prettiest scenery on the river.

1. Ediger (Inn: Löwe) is charmingly situated.

1. Senhals. Little else than vines visible hereabouts. rt. Senheim at a little distance from the river.

rt. Beilstein. Inn execrable. Travellers should on no account think of stopping here. One of the most picturesque ruined castles on the Mosel, surmounted by a square donjon, overlooks Beilstein. It belonged to the Electors of Treves, who deputed their noble vassals, the Metternichs—Winneburgs, to hold it for them. The small village nestles at the foot of the rock on which it stands.

1. Cochem.—(Inns: Kehrer's; H. de l'Union). The distant view of this ancient town of 2870 Inhab., guarded as it were by the 2 picturesque castles aloft upon the hills behind, is most romantic and attractive. But let the stranger be satisfied with admiring it at a distance, since, within, it surpasses in the filth and closeness of its streets all other towns on the Moselle. The Castle at the upper end was an imperial fortress; in 1689 it held out, together with the town, for a long time against the forces of Louis XIV., but being at last, after 4 separate assaults, taken by storm, the greater portion of the garrison, consisting of 1600 Brandenburgers, and many of the citizens, were inhumanly put to the sword, and the houses and castle burnt. This atrocious act was ordered by the French Marshal Boufflers, and executed by his subordinate officer, M. de Grignan, the son-in-law of Madame de Sévigné.

The lower castle of Winneburg is lost from view until you draw close to the town, being situated some way up the glen of the Enderbach. It is the most ancient family seat of the Metternichs; the head of the house at present being the son of the Austrian Prime Minister, who repaired it and fitted it up.

The large building seen above the spire of the church, near the lower end of the town of Cochem, was originally a Capuchin convent, and is now a school.

1. Clotten, a small village, with a church on an eminence, in the gap of a valley overlooked by a ruined castle. Monotonous hills intervene for a considerable distance between Clotten and

rt. Treis, situated within a little amphitheatre of hills, from which, at a short distance from the river, 2 castles look down: one of them, Wildburg, was won in hard fight by an Archbishop of Treves, in the 12th cent. An elegant modern church has been erected at Treis.

1. Carden (Brauer's Inn. N.B. No good inn between this and Coblenz) is a picturesque old village, in one of the most lovely situations on the Mosel. The Church, conspicuous with its 3 towers, was built in the 12th cent., in honour of St. Castor, whose body was buried here, and afterwards removed to Coblenz. The exterior and E. end are in the Romanesque style of architecture. The Cloisters are worth notice. Within, there is a curious antique font, and a representation of the Entombment; the figures are of stone, as large as life. At the lower end of the town, by the water-side, stands the Old Post-house, a picturesque castellated building, with projecting turrets, surrounded by a red fringe-like ornament, and surmounted by peaked roofs; it bears the date 1562. Behind it is a Romanesque building, of the 12th or 13th cent., free from alterations and interpolations. It is said to have been a tithe-barn of the Archbp. of Treves.

[Schloss Elz. N.B.—No Inn; take provisions. A carriage road (1½ hr.'s drive) runs from Carden to within a mile of the very interesting old Castle of Elz*, the beau-ideal of a feudal fortress of the middle ages; by the village of

1. Müden, from which it is not more than 2 m. distant. It ascends the hill, behind the village; then, through fields and orchards, reaches a pretty green meadow, from which the winding vale of the Elz is visible, and out of which peer the singular peaked turrets of its castle.

The little stream of the Elz, remarkable for its excessive windings, almost encircles the tall bold rock on which the castle stands. A narrow isthmus of rock prevents its being an island, but this has been cut through, and over the ditch thus formed a bridge is thrown, forming the only approach. The banks of the river are thickly grown over with trees and brushwood; and a second and rival castle, rising opposite to Schloss Elz, and within bow-shot of it, contributes to the beauty of this romantic valley. The Castle of Elz is a singularly irregular building, or group of buildings, adapted to the form of the rock on which it stands. The whole pile rises so abruptly from the precipitous sides of the rock that its pedestal appears scarcely large enough to hold it. The path leading up to the main entrance is cut in the rock, and is steep and slippery. It is the cradle of one of the most ancient and noble families in this part of Germany, and is an almost solitary example of a feudal residence spared by fire, war, and time, and remaining in nearly the same condition that it was 2 or 3 centuries ago. It has been repaired, and is inhabited. The interior is a labyrinth of passages, turret-stairs, and chambers, many of which are of irregular shapes. Many of the apartments are hung round with family portraits. There are ornamented fireplaces (not stoves), and some rooms are paved with monastic-looking tiles, with patterns impressed, not coloured. In one room there are a few pieces of armour, and one or two specimens of painted glass. The stream of the Elz is seen from the projecting turrets, flowing in its snake-like course in the depth of the wooded gorge 80 or 100 ft. below. The rival castle before alluded to, Trutz-Elz, on the opposite rock, was built to defy the Lords of Elz, by Baldwin, Archbp. of Treves, who besieged them for many months, and cutting off, by this counter castle, the approaches to their stronghold, at length compelled them to surrender. They afterwards held this castle also as a fief from the Bishop, whose vassals they became.

About 3 m. higher up the valley stands another castle, Schloss Pyrmont, burnt by the Swedes in 1641; and near it is a cascade. A good carriage-road leads to Coblenz (Rte. 41) by Münster-Maifeld.

The Elz falls into the Mosel at Moselkern, about 4 m. below the Castle, but the path down the picturesque valley is very bad, fording the stream, or crossing it on stepping stones, several times in that short distance.]

1. Moselkern (Inn: Anker), a village at the mouth of the picturesque vale of Elz.

1. The Castle of Bischofsstein was a stronghold belonging to the Archbishops of Treves. Its tall cylindrical donjon tower is girt round with a white streak, and a ruined chapel adjoins it. It was built 1270.

1. Hatzenport. (Moritz's Inn).

rt. Brodenbach (Probst's Inn) stands near the mouth of the Ehrenbach. The ravine out of which it issues should by all means be explored. At first gloomy and dark, it in a short while opens out, and discloses a lovely valley with green meadows, vineyards, and water-mills closed up in front by a rocky height, on the summit of which, only 2 m. distant from the Mosel, stands the Castle of Ehrenburg*, towering above the tree tops. It is a splendid monument of old times, still in a tolerable state of preservation; as it owes its decay to time and neglect, not to violence. It may be said to surpass in beauty any individual castle on the Rhine, and is well worth visiting. It now belongs to the Stein family. There is a way over the hills from Ehrenberg to Boppard, on the Rhine, 9 m., but a guide will be needed.

rt. Alken, an ancient town, connected by a chain of towers with Schloss Thurand, a picturesque castle on the height above. It has two circular keeps, and the green ivy creeps along its walls. It was built in 1209, and was held in 1246 by a robber knight, the Pfalzgrave Zorn. Having committed depredations in the territory of his neighbours, the Archbishops of Treves and Cologne, he was besieged for 2 years by their combined forces, who, during that time, emptied 3000 butts of wine. The garrison, having consumed all their provisions, surrendered the castle; but Zorn cut his way through the enemy.

1. The village of Catenes is said to derive its name from a chain (catena) formerly stretched across the river at this point, to arrest boats and compel them to pay toll.

1. Gondorf. The conspicuous building at the upper end of this village, by the water-side, was the family mansion of the Counts von der Leyen, another of the oldest and most noble races on the Mosel; which numbers among its members many generals in the Imperial armies, and 3 Electors of Treves and Cologne. The building was repaired in 1814, and has since passed out of the possession of the Leyens.

At the lower end of the village stands a gable-faced house, connected with a tall tower of defence, built 1350, and said to have belonged to the Knights Templars.

A large quantity of potters' and pinc clay, obtained from pits 3 m. off, at Dreschenich, is here embarked, and sent to Holland, to form pipes for the Dutchmen. It is quite white, and of good quality; it is dug out from beneath a bed of gravel.

1. Cobern (Simoni's Inn). The heights behind this little town are crowned by 2 ruined castles—the lower, or Niederburg, and the Oberburg. Within the enclosure of the upper castle stands the very remarkable Chapel of St. Matthias. The way to it passes the new church, and the house of the pastor, who keeps the keys of the chapel. A steep footpath strikes up from a mill, through the vineyards, and behind the lower castle, which it leaves on the right. The view from the top is fine, and it takes about 20 min. to reach it. This elegant little Gothic chapel is in the form of a hexagon, supported within upon 6 clusters of columns, each formed of 5 detached marble pillars. The exact date of the building is unknown, but the style of the architecture is that of the first half of the 13th cent., and its founders are supposed to have been Crusaders, who caused it to be erected on their return from the Holy Land. This may account for the somewhat Saracenic aspect of its interior. All the arches are rounded, except those which support the central tower, which are pointed and slightly horse-shoed; the lower windows are in shape like the ace of clubs. The effect of the interior is extremely light and graceful. It has been repaired by Lassaulx.

rt. Diebelich (Nörtershäuser's Inn) is famous for witches, who in the middle ages were believed to haunt this spot, and to hold midnight revelry on the top of a neighbouring mountain. At the end of the 15th century, 25 persons were burned here for that crime! This is a pretty spot, surrounded by orchards and walnuts, with fine wooded banks opposite.

1. Winningen is a Protestant village, though all around are Rom. Catholics. A neat modern school-house faces the river.

rt. Ley. At the breaking up of the frost in the Mosel in 1830 this village was buried nearly 30 feet deep in ice, which broke the timber framework of many of the houses, and entirely swept away several; overspreading all the lower vineyards.

1. Güls, distinguished by its modern twin spires, is surrounded by orchards, which furnish cherries and walnuts in large quantities for exportation to Holland. A narrow carriage-road has been completed along the rt. bank of the Mosel, from Moselweiss to Niederfell. When extended farther upwards, it will become equally conducive to the convenience of the tourist and to the prosperity of the valley.

1. The spire of the Ch. of Metternich is seen above the trees.

rt. Moselweiss, a small village supposed to be the Vicus Ambitrianus of the Romans, and the spot where Agrippina gave birth to Caligula. The tower of the church is of great antiquity, and is mentioned in records of the year 1209. Above Moselweiss rise the ramparts of Fort Alexander, one of the outworks of Coblenz, situated between the Mosel and the Rhine.

rt. Coblenz (Rte. 37).

ROUTE 43.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE TO TREVES.

93½ Eng. m.

Schnellpost daily in 21 hrs. This road is nearly superseded by the railway by Düren to Zülrich and Gerolstein (Rte. 45), which opens the quickest way from Aix to Treves. The accommodation on this road for travellers is on a very low scale. The only tolerable sleeping quarters are at Prüm, but they are indifferent.

This excellent macadamised road was completed in 1836, and passes through a country wild and dreary in parts, in others very beautiful; in all most interesting to an English botanist, who will find in the wild heath between Treves and Montjoie, and in the latter town itself, some of the rarest plants of his own country.

The road on leaving Aix-la-Chapelle is carried under the Cologne railway, and past the picturesque fragment of a ruined castle, Schönforst, near which is a very large lime-tree. About 7 m. from Aix is the village of Corneli-Münster, with 750 Inhab. The extensive remains of its ancient Benedictine abbey, endowed by Lewis the Pious, are turned into a cloth manufactory.

10 m. Königsberg.

11 m. Montjoie, a small town of 3000 Inhab., on the Roer, manufactures much cloth. (Bauer's Inn is the best.) Its fine and nearly perfect Castle was almost entirely pulled down 1836. There are slate-quarries outside the town.

The village of Kaltenherberg (Cold Harbour), 1370 Inhab., lies at the foot of the mountain range called Hohe Veen (Fr. Hautes Fanges, The High Fen). Their highest summit is 2200 ft. above the sea: this is a wild and sterile district, abounding in bogs and marshes. The inhabitants are chiefly Walloons.

11 m. Bütgenbach (Inn: Poste), a village of 500 souls. A cross road hence to Spa, by Malmédi (Rte. 44).

This stage lies over a wild dreary track, part heath, part forest, which is burnt for charcoal, to 9 m. Losheim (Inn: *Post), a small village. Its Church contains some relics: the cloth with which our Saviour girt himself and dried the apostles' feet—a part of His winding-sheet—fragments of the skull of St. Cornelius!! Near this a good cross road, on the l., leads from Losheim to Hillesheim, in the Eifel (Rte. 44).

Here begins the chain of hills called Schneifel, Schnee Eifel (Snow Eifel).

12 m. Prüm (Inn: Goldner Stern; indifferent). This small town lies at the S. extremity of the Schneifel, immediately beneath a beautifully wooded hill, and has 2200 Inhab.

A portion of the old Benedictine monastery alone survives, and is now converted into a school. The Church near it, in the Italian style, replaces the magnificent original church of the once famous Abbey Sancti Benedicti ad Pratum (whence Prüm). In the burial-ground, outside the town, a stone cross is planted on the spot where the high altar stood. The walls of this edifice were pulled down to furnish materials for rebuilding the houses of the town after it had been destroyed by fire in 1769. To this abbey the Emperor Lothaire I. retired from the world, 855; here he died and was buried. A handsome monument of marble, supported on black marble columns, containing his gigantic bones, was restored by the Emperor William, 1875, to this ch.

Diligence twice a-day, in 2½ hrs., to 12 m. Gerolstein Stat., Rte. 45.

Hereabouts the modern road falls in with the Roman highway from Treves to Cologne. It is proved, by an inscription found at Marmagen, that Agrippa was the director of this, the greatest work of the Romans in their Rhenish provinces. It was carried through a country still wild and unpeopled, but in their days as little trodden as the backwoods of America are now. It appears by the Roman Itinerary, that, besides numerous post-houses (mutationes, for changing horses), there were 6 mansiones along this line of road, serving at the same time as military posts; as hotels, in which the Emperors themselves lodged on their journeys; and as stations of relays of horses for couriers. The first of these mansions was at Tolbiacum (Zülpich, the spot where Clovis and the Franks defeated the Alemanni), the last at Bædæ Vicus (Bitburg). All the stations seem to have been carefully supplied with water, judging from the remains of subteranean conduits or aqueducts which have been discovered along the line of the road.

4½ m. beyond Prüm is Schönecken, a small village of 1538 Inhab. The ruined castle on a height originally belonged to the Counts of Vianden. It was destroyed by the French in 1802.

12 m. Balesfeld. Between this and Bitburg the road does not pass a single village. The country is a tract of high land, with a rough climate and a barren soil, but abounding in woods, and frequently opening into beautiful views. The inhabitants are rude and unpolished, their houses and persons alike slovenly, in proportion as the land they inhabit is wild and remote. They are also ignorant and superstitious; and, not contented with keeping the usual holidays and festivals of the Church, almost every village has a patron saint of its own, in whose honour festivals are celebrated. Each saint is supposed to have a peculiar province and to preside over some particular class of diseases. Thus St. Apollonia is invoked in cases of toothache; St. Blaize, to avert sore throats; St. Lambert, to cure epilepsy; St. Odilia, for sore eyes; St. Lucia, for other complaints; St. Gertrude is engaged to drive away rats; and St. Wendelin is looked upon as the protector of cattle. On their anniversaries the people flock in crowds to the churches dedicated to these medical saints so rich in remedies, bringing offerings not only of money, but also of butter, eggs, pigs' heads, &c., which give the church the appearance of a market-place rather than a place of worship. Upon those days no work is done, and the evening concludes usually in drinking and gambling.

9 m. Bitburg (Inn: Wells', not good), a town of 1700 Inhab., anciently a Roman station (Bædæ Vicus).

The Kobenhof, a mansion dating from 1576, in a side street, deserves notice.

Omnibus twice a day to Erdorf Stat. (6 m.) on the Treves and Düren Rly. (Rte. 45).

[About 10 m. W. of Bitburg, within the frontier of Luxemburg, but scarcely accessible by roads, stands Vianden, a Castle exceeding in extent almost any on the Rhine. 13 m. farther is the ruined Abbey of Echternach (described in Rte. 33 A).]

At Fliessem, about 3 m. from Bitburg, on the road to Prüm, and not more than ½ m. from the road, is a Roman villa. It contains a very perfect mosaic pavement and a hypocaust in excellent preservation, illustrating the mode of heating buildings and apartments by the Romans. Between Bitburg and

8 m. Helenenberg there is not a single village; but traces of the Roman road appear in sight from time to time. The very beautiful Church at Helenenberg (called also the hospital) is now turned into a barn. Near Pallien, a village whose inhabitants live partly in caves cut out of the rocks, the road is carried over a deep ravine upon a bridge of a single arch, built by Napoleon (see Rte. 41); and a passage has been hewn for the road itself in the solid rock, for a considerable distance, until it reaches the bank of the Mosel, immediately opposite the city of 9 m. Treves (see Rte. 41). The view of Treves in descending is very striking.

ROUTE 45.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE TO TREVES, BY DÜREN, EUSKIRCHEN, AND GEROLSTEIN.
THE UPPER EIFEL. RAIL.

Distance, 114 m.; time, 5 to 6 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Aix and the rly. to—

19 m. Düren Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 36. Thence this line leads (S.W.)

tive

(the sily lat., alls ter-
the
" is vis, at teen ized nity ated ngh tins
our.
g of his

For : 1000
h.

Co-

f the ibus ource enau

alley
m.

tz's).
valls,

7 the s rly.
which wned

Post; Eifel
esque ning nite, Eifel.
of a
, and ied in tpath spring

ranean have be the road 4½ m small vi castle c to the destroy 12 m Bitburg
 village.
 land, w soil, bu quently
 The inl their h in proj is wild norant tented and fest village whose Each s liar pr particu
 Apollo
 ache ;
 St. Lai
 lia, for compla drive i looked On the in crov these r bringin
 but al
 &c., w ance of place c work i usually 9 m. a town man st
 The 1576, i
 Omn
 (6 m.)
 (Rte. 4

[Ab
 the fro accessi
 Castle

into the midst of the district of the Eifel Gebirge, which may be said to be included roughly within the triangle formed by lines joining Coblenz, Bonn, and Treves. It is particularly interesting to the geologist, from the traces of volcanic agency which it exhibits in its lava currents and numerous extinct craters, many of them now filled with lakes or tarns. Apart from this consideration, the scenery of the Eifel has many features of no inconsiderable beauty to induce the ordinary traveller to visit it. "The high ground constituting this tract of country is much diversified with finely formed eminences, which are often conical or crater-shaped, and frequently wooded; the valleys are remarkable sometimes for their bold and rocky sides, frequently capped with old castles, and contracting into narrow glens; sometimes for their softer or wooded and verdant character; above all, the great peculiarity of the district is the secluded, often much concealed, and singular 'MAARS' or crater-lakes."—T. T. Meres in English.

Permission may be obtained to fish in the lakes for roach and pike (trout are rare); also for boar-shooting. Perhaps the finest and most picturesque scenery in the whole Eifel is presented by the course of the Kyll between Pelm, at the foot of the Casselburg, and Gerolstein, where the valley is lined by lofty and picturesque cliffs of Dolomite.

The roads throughout the district of the Eifel are almost invariably bad, especially in wet weather, the country hilly, and the houses in the Eifel villages of a very primitive kind, and often built of mud, but good food (trout, pike, wild boar, &c.) is usually obtainable.

From Düren the Eifel Rly. ascends the valley of the Roer. The scenery is at first tame, and does not become picturesque until Hillesheim is passed. 8 m. S. of Düren is the picturesque village Niedeggen (Inn: Post), on a hill crowned by ruins of the Castle in which Engelbert Archbishop of Cologne was imprisoned 1267-70, and commanding an extensive view. In the neighbourhood (Bleiberg) are lucrative lead-works.

10 m. Zülpich Stat. This town (the Tolbiacum of the Romans) is prettily situated, 10 min. walk from the stat., and interesting for its mediæval walls and castle (Pop. 1500). The subterranean Chapel (9th cent.) under the Parish Ch. of St. Peter, 12th cent., is said to be on the spot where Clovis, after the defeat of the Alemanni at the battle of Tolbiacum, fought between the town and the Eifel, was baptized on becoming a convert to Christianity (A.D. 496)—an event commemorated by 2 inscriptions in the church, though the Abbey ch. of St. Remi at Reims has far better claims to the honour. In A.D. 612 Theodobert II., King of Austrasia, was vanquished here by his brother Theodoric.

6 m. Euskirchen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Rheinischer Hof). A town of 4000 Inhab., having cloth manufactories.

[Branch Rly. N.E. 35 m. to Cologne.]

17 m. Call Stat., in the valley of the Urft.

10 m. Blankenheim Stat. Omnibus to the village, $2\frac{1}{2}$ m., near the source of the Ahr, whence diligence to Adenau (Rte. 39).

8 m. Junkerath Stat. (in the valley of the Kyll), for Stadt Kyll, 2 m. distant.

5 m. Hillesheim St. (Inn: Schmitz's). An old town, surrounded by walls, from which there are fine views.

Hillesheim to Daun, 14 m., by the Ehrensberg (2198 ft. high). The rly. passes the village of Pelm, rt. of which rises the Casselburg, a castle-crowned height.

5 m. Gerolstein Stat. (Inns: Post; Clemens), where the tour of the Eifel properly begins. It is a picturesque town on the Kyll, in a valley running between cliffs of limestone and dolomite, amidst the finest scenery of the Eifel. Above the town are the ruins of a Castle. An interesting excursion, and one that may easily be accomplished in a forenoon, is to start by the footpath leading to the clear carbonated spring at the bottom of the valley, to cross the river Kyll, and ascend the hill opposite (to the N. of the town). On the summit is a perfectly formed dry crater called the Pfaffenkaul. The surface of the hollow is now cultivated, but traces of volcanic action are everywhere apparent. A little to the W. is a stream of lava which divides into 2 branches, and includes a hollow space termed the Hagelskaul. Near it, to the S., there is a considerable cavern, situated in the cliffs termed the Buchenloch, formed by one of the numerous fissures in the strata, but probably enlarged by art. Thence the field may be crossed to the Ice grotto of Roth, in order to see which lights and a guide may be procured at a farmhouse and inn near the ch. of Roth. In this cavern, which is a sort of natural ice-house, ice is always to be found during the summer, but it is said to disappear in winter. In returning to Gerolstein, the road may be varied by crossing the base of the Auberg, where innumerable fossil shells, corals, &c., are found strewn over the surface of the fields. Several persons in Gerolstein form collections of them for sale.—T. T.

Diligence twice a-day to, 12 m., Prüm (Rte. 43).

It is a walk of $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from Gerolstein to Casselburg, a picturesque stronghold, surmounting a mass of basaltic rock. Dochweiler, 3 m. farther, is a village built of lava. Near it, to the N.W., is a large basin-shaped crater, called Dreiser-Weiher, which, though now a meadow, was evidently at a former period filled with water, and is still remarkable for its numerous mineral springs. Dreis, in the dialect of the Eifel, means a mineral spring. Olivine, a comparatively rare mineral, is found at the S. side of the crater, sometimes in masses 18 in. in diameter, and augite is also met with. Glassy felspar is found at Hohenfels, near this. Some of the highest hills in the Eifel surround the Dreiser-Weiher.

[11 m. from Gerolstein lies Daun (Grethen's Inn). Diligence daily. The Castle was the family residence and the birthplace of the Marshal who led the Austrian armies in the Seven Years' War, and defeated Frederick the Great at Kolin. On the summit of a steep acclivity near this lie 3 crater lakes:—

1. Weinfelder-Maar, said to be the highest in the district—a perfect basin scooped out of rock; on the precipice above it stands a rude small church.
2. Separated from 1 by a narrow isthmus of slaty rock is the Shalkenmehrer-Maar, embanked only on two sides, on the others bounded by a wide flat meadow alternating with peat bog.
3. $\frac{1}{2}$ m. removed from the others is the gem of all the lakes, deep set in a hollow surrounded by copsewood, the Gmünden-Maar, very beautiful. [From Daun, a détour should be made by Stadfeld to the village of Manderscheid (Inn: Pantenburg's)—burnt in 1864 but now rebuilt. From the bridge over the Lieser the best view is obtained of the ruins of its 2 Castles, of which the tower of the highest should be ascended for the sake of the fine view. This formerly was the seat of the Counts of Manderscheid, a powerful family extinct in 1780. The Mehrfelder Maar is about 4 m. S.W., a perfectly circular crater-lake nearly 1 m. in diam., of which the water occupies about one-third, and is 600 ft. deep. Nearly 1 m. S.E. is the Mosenberg, a remarkable hill (1847 ft., fine view), the summit of which consists of a cone made up of 4 slag craters, 2 of them quite perfect, a 3rd is broken down on the S.E. side by a current of basaltic lava which descends into the valley in some places $\frac{3}{4}$ m. broad and 100 ft. thick. A pleasant pedestrian excursion from Manderscheid to Neumühl, through the valley of the Kyll. Deep gorges and defiles, not easy to track, lead from Manderscheid N. to Gillenfeld (Klasen [Otto] Inn), on the road to Lützerath. On the height 1 m. E. lies the Pulvermaar, one of the largest and most beautiful crater-lakes of the Eifel, surrounded by beech-trees, nearly circular, $\frac{1}{2}$ m. in diam. and 365 ft. deep: large pike in it. On the way from Gillenfeld to (6 m.) Lützerath is the village of Strötzbusch, built in the hollow of a crater-lake, and near it there are remains of another crater, formerly perhaps a lake.]

4. m. Birresborn Stat. On a hill opposite, within the Gerolsteinwald (take a guide), is a mineral spring, called Brudeldreis. In the summer it dries up; but if a cupful of water be thrown into the basin of rock from which it issues, a rattling is heard, and a jet of water spirted out. Dead bodies of birds and other small animals are often found near it, destroyed by having alighted within the range of the noxious vapour issuing from it (carbonic acid gas). Peasants stooping down to drink are repulsed by the suffocating vapour, which, being heavier than the air, lies along the surface of the water, in a stratum more or less deep as the atmosphere is agitated or calm.

2 m. Mürtenbach Stat.

The suppressed monastery of St. Thomas, used as a house of correction for Rom. Cath. priests, is passed.

5 m. Kyllburg Stat. (Schulte's Inn), on an eminence, washed by the Kyll. Above rises the Gothic St. Thomas's Ch., containing fine stained glass, 1534. A tunnel $1\frac{1}{4}$ m. long.

3 m. Erdorf Stat. Omnibus to, 6 m., Bitburg (Rte. 43). Several tunnels occur. Philippsheim, Speicher and Cordel Stats.

19 m. Ehrang Junct. Stat., near the confluence of the river Kyll with the Mosel.

[Branch Rly., 2 m., to the Ironworks of Quint.]

5 m. Treves Stat., on the l. bank of the Mosel, near the bridge (Rte. 41).

ROUTE 46.

BINGEN TO TREVES.

76 Eng. m.

Treves may now be reached by rail from Bingen, via Saarbrücken.

The chief part of this road is excellent, though hilly; it is carried out of the valley of the Nahe by well-constructed zigzags, and at one point, where seats have been erected, commands a charming view.

There is considerable beauty in the gorge leading down to the village of 6 m. Stromberg, with the ruins of Castle Goldenfels, which was bravely defended against the French, 1793, by the Prussian Lieut. v. Gauvain, with 35 men. A monument commemorates the event.

13 m. Simmern (Inn: Post), on the Hunsrück, or Hunsrück. Near the town, at the Schmiedels, is an interesting Refuge for destitute children.

We follow the line of the old Roman road as far as Kirchberg.

12 m. Büchenbeuern. From this to Berncastel the road is very hilly, running over the high table-land of the Hunsrück (Dog's Back) which extends between the Rhine, Mosel, and Nahe. For a considerable distance neither house nor human being is to be seen. The country is a bleak uncultivated waste of moor and moss, with forest interspersed. Here and there a distant view over hills and valleys appears. We again follow the line of the old Roman road, called in the country Steinstrasse. By the side of it is seen a small truncated tower (Stumpfer Thurm), said to be (?) a Roman work. It is supposed indeed, that the Roman station Belginum, or Tabernæ, may have stood upon this spot. A little farther on, the road descends through a narrow and winding ravine (the Tiefenbacherthal), whose sides, formed of ragged slate-rocks, are exceedingly picturesque, in many places overhanging the road, and sprinkled over with trees and underwood. Considerable mines have been driven into these rocks, and roofing-slate is obtained from them. Many of the entrances to them open close upon the roadside. At the bottom of this steep descent lies 16 m. Berncastel, on the Mosel.—Inn: Three Kings (Rte. 42). Diligence to Treves.

The Mosel is here passed by a ferry-boat; a good road leads to 16 m. Hetzerath, on the high road from Coblenz to Treves.

13 m. Treves. Route 41.

ROUTE 47.

COLOGNE TO FRANKFURT-A.-M., BY SIEGBURG AND GIESSEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 144 m.; time, 7 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Cologne is described in Rte. 36.

Terminus at Deutz. The line ascends the valley of the Rhine, but at some distance from the river, and through a flat district.

12 m. Troisdorf Junct. Stat. Here the Right Bank Rhine Rly. diverges (Rte. 37). Our line enters the tributary valley of the Sieg, not far from

2 m. Siegburg Junct. Stat. (Inn: Stern, tolerable), a town of 4500 Inhab., on the Sieg, about 4 m. above its junction with the Rhine. Upon the volcanic rock of St. Michael, in a singularly beautiful situation, immediately overhanging the town, stands the ancient Benedictine Abbey, founded in 1060 by Archbishop Hanno of Cologne, who is buried within the fine Romanesque Church. Since 1824 it is a Lunatic Asylum. [Branch Rly. to Friedrichs Wilhelmshütte.] Fine view of the Seven Mountains.

4 m. Hennef Stat. Near this the Sieg is crossed by the rly.; the valley contracts; several bridges and a tunnel are passed. rt. Castle of Blankenberg. Another tunnel before

7 m. Eitorf Stat. (Inn: Post). Burg-Welterath is the property of Count Nesselrode.

10 m. Schladern Stat. Pretty scenery—deep cutting—falls of the Sieg: Castle of Windeck restored.

4 m. Au Stat. [Diligence to Altenkirchen, 7 m. S.W., where General Marceau (the Bayard of the French republic) received his death wound in an action with the Austrians under the Archduke Charles. See Rte. 37.]

4 m. Wissen Stat. On l. bank of Sieg rises Schönstein, the handsome schloss of Prince Hatzfeld-Wildenburg.

7 m. Betzdorf Junct. Stat. [Near this the Sieg Valley Rly. diverges l. from our line. See Rte. 67A.]

The Rly. is carried through the valley of the Dill by 26 m. Dillenburg (Nassau) Stat. (Inn: Post). The great statesman and hero, William the Taciturn, Prince of Orange (1533), as well as his son P. Maurice (1567), were born in the Castle. Stations—Herborn, Sinn, Ehringshausen.

18 m. Wetzlar Junct. Stat., in the valley of the Lahn. (Rte. 96). Railway to 7 m. Giessen Junct. Stat. (Rte. 70).

40 m. Frankfurt-A.-M. Rte. 95.

SECTION II.

PRUSSIA, continued.—MECKLENBURG—HANOVER—BRUNSWICK—HESSE CASSEL—THE HANSE TOWNS, &c.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
56. London to Hamburg (Heligoland)	116	66B. Magdeburg to Leipzig, by Zerbst, Dessau and Bitterfeld —RAIL	185
57. Hamburg to Lübeck [Travemünde]—RAIL	122	67. Düsseldorf to Berlin, by Elberfeld, Cassel, Eisleben , and Halle —RAIL	186
58. Hamburg to Stralsund, by Schwerin, Dobberan , and Rostock	127	67A. Hagen to Betzdorf, by Siegen [Iserlohn]—RAIL	190
59. Hamburg to Hanover—RAIL	129	68. Cologne to Brunswick, viâ Soest, Paderborn , and Kreiensen —RAIL	191
60. Hamburg to Bremen direct—RAIL	130	69. Düsseldorf to Bremen, viâ Vanne, Münster , and Osnabrück —RAIL	194
60A. Bremen to Oldenburg [Wilhelmshafen]—RAIL	131	69A. Altenbeken to Hanover, viâ Pyrmont, Hameln , and Weetzen [Detmold]—RAIL	197
61. Hamburg to Berlin, viâ Buchen and Hagenow —RAIL	132	70. Frankfurt-a-M. to Cassel —RAIL	200
61A. Hamburg to Berlin, viâ Lüneburg and Wittenberge	156	71. Descent of the Weser from Hanoverian Münden to Hameln, Minden , and Bremen	205
62. Berlin to Magdeburg, by Potsdam and Brandenburg —RAIL	157	72. Cassel to Hanover, by Göttingen —RAIL	209
63. Berlin to Leipzig, by Wittenberg —RAIL	162	72A. Hanover to Bremen [Bremerhafen]—RAIL	212
64. Hamburg to Leipzig, by Magdeburg, Cöthen , and Halle —RAIL	164	72B. Bremen to Berlin, viâ Uelzen and Stendal —RAIL	216
65. Berlin to Dresden, by Jüterbog —RAIL	167	72C. Bremen to Berlin, by Buchholz and Wittenberge	216
65A. Cologne to Berlin, viâ Minden, Hanover, Lehrte , and Stendal —RAIL	168	73. THE HARZ.— Göttingen to Clausthal, Goslar , the Brocken , the Rosstrappe, Vale of the Bode , and Alexisbad	217
65B. Berlin to Dresden direct—RAIL	168	74. THE HARZ.— Nordhausen to Magdeburg	225
66. Cologne to Berlin, by Düsseldorf, Oberhausen, Minden, Hanover, Brunswick, Magdeburg —RAIL	169
66A. Cologne to Berlin, by Elberfeld, Soest, Kreiensen , and Magdeburg —RAIL	184

ROUTE 56.

LONDON TO HAMBURG.

Distance, about 420 m.; time, 40 to 50 hrs.

STEAMERS direct from London. Gen. Steam Nav. Co., from St. Katherine's Wharf, three times a-week. Fares, £2 5s. and £1 9s. Hamb. Lond. Steam Ship Co., Horselydown and Brunswick Pier, Blackwall, Tues. and Friday. Fares somewhat lower. Viâ Hull, Tues. Wed., Frid., and Sat., or Newcastle, Tues. and Sat. Fares, £1 10s. and £1.

[For the land route viâ Calais (Rte. 15), or Ostend (Rte. 20) and Brussels, Aix-la-Chapelle, Hanover and Hamburg, see Rtes. 26, 36, 59; or viâ Flushing, Osnabrück and Bremen, see Rtes. 60 and 69.]

About 25 m. before reaching the mouth of the Elbe the steamer passes

Heligoland (Inns: H. Stadt London; H. Queen of England). This small triangular treeless island in the North Sea, 5000 ft. long by 1800 broad, rises nearly 200 ft. above the water and consists of two parts—the Unterland or lower town and landing-place, containing a bath-house, Conversations-haus (restaurant and reading room), &c., and the Oberland, or island proper, reached by steps and containing the upper town, with the Ch., Governor's house, and best hotels.

Its early name of Fosetes-land appears to have been derived from the temple to the Frisic god Foseta, said to have stood here and to have been destroyed in the 8th centy. on the conversion of the Frisians to Christianity by St. Willebrord, after which the island acquired the name of Heligoland (?) Heilig, holy.

In 1807 it was seized by the British, and during the period of the exclusion of England from the Continent by Napoleon I. it was, from its proximity to the mouths of the Elbe and Weser, of considerable importance as a naval station, and during the same period a large smuggling trade was carried on with the neighbouring continental ports.

The permanent population numbers about 3000, and is of Frisian extraction. They are good sailors and pilots, and largely engaged in the lobster and oyster fishery. Numerous lodging-houses and restaurants supply the wants of the annual influx of upwards of 1000 Germans frequenting the island for the excellent sea-bathing, which takes place principally on the adjoining (1 m. E.) Dune or small sandy island (ferry across).

During the season (June to end of September) steamers run from Hamburg (viâ Cuxhaven) about three times a week; time, 8 hrs.; fare, 5 Prus. Thlr. From Geestemünde (Bremerhaven) 3 times a week (in connection with the rly. from Bremen); time, 4 hrs.; fare, 4 Prus. Thlr., and the steamer between Wyk and Geestemünde calls here twice a week in summer.

The asserted inroads made by the sea on the dark red sandstone of which the island is principally composed have been much exaggerated, not more than 3 feet having been so destroyed in the course of a century; and in the time of Adam of Bremen (11th cent.), whose description is extant, the island could have been but very little larger.

The sea-view from the top of the lighthouse, 60 ft. (small fee), is extensive, and the grotesque outlines of the rock are best seen by making the circuit of the island in a boat.

The island is now connected with the European telegraph system.

After passing the lightships and the lighthouse on the island of Neurwerk the flat marshy coast is approached, for Murray's Handbook.

HAMBURG

Hotels.

- | | | | |
|---|-----------------------------|----|----|
| 1 | Hôtel de l'Europe | C. | 6. |
| 2 | Hôtel St. Petersburg | C. | 5. |
| 3 | Alster | C. | 6. |
| 4 | Belvedere | C. | 6. |
| 5 | Victoria | C. | 5. |
| 6 | Strats | C. | 5. |
| 7 | Zinggs | D. | 5. |
| 8 | Kronprinz | C. | 5. |
| 9 | Russio | C. | 5. |

- ## Buildings.
- | | | | |
|--|--------------------------|-------|-------|
| | Post Office | C. | 5. |
| | Rathhaus | D. | 5. |
| | St. Nicholas Ch. | D. E. | 5. |
| | St. Peter's Ch. | D. | 6. |
| | St. Michael's Ch. | D. | 3. |
| | Kunsthalle | B. | 7. |
| | Exchange | D. | 6. |
| | Johanneum | D. | 6. |
| | Krankenhaus | A. | 9. |
| | Stadt Theatre | B. | 4. 5. |
| | Thalia Theatre | C. | 6. |
| | Zoological Garden | A. | 3. |
| | Schiller's Statue | B. | 6. |

and the mouth of the Elbe (strongly fortified by Prussia since 1870) entered. On the S. banks are seen the harbour and jetties in process of construction and the village of rt. Next the sea, between the Elbe and the Eider, extends the district called Ditmarschen (marshes), formerly celebrated for its privileges and republican institutions, but conquered and incorporated with the Duchy of Holstein in 1559. It resembles Holland in its marshes and sea-dykes, which preserve it from the inroad of the ocean.

1. Cuxhaven (Inns: H. Belvedere; H. Bellevue), a seaport, pilot station, and watering-place belonging to Hamburg (distant 60 m. Rly. viâ Stade and Harburg in progress), with adjoining town of Ritzbüttel, and castle seen from the river. In winter, when the Elbe is frozen over, the steamers stop here. In consequence of the new rly. and harbour constructed here, Cuxhaven is rapidly increasing in size.

The land on the rt. bank rises in gentle slopes, covered, for some distance below Hamburg, with wood, interspersed with handsome villas and gardens belonging to opulent merchants. On this side lies the small Prussian town of Glückstadt, pop. 7000, fortified by Christian IV. in 1540, besieged in vain by Tilly (1628), and by Torstenson (1643), and dismantled in 1815.

[Rly.—N. 18 m. to Itzehoe, whence up the W. coast of Schleswig-Holstein; S. 9 m. to Elmshorn, whence lines N.E. to Kiel, &c. S.E. to Altona for Hamburg, &c. (See Handbook for Denmark, &c., Rte. 2.)]

Higher up the little fishing village of Blankenese (see below, Excursions from Hamburg), with its houses scattered along the slope, and among the trees one above another, is passed; and above it, the Holstein town of

rt. Altona (Inns: Königl. Hof; Bahnhof Hotel; Holsteinisches Haus), which joins Hamburg, and from the river seems to form a part of it; pop. 74,131. It was originally a mere fishing-village, and first became a town in 1664, but has since risen to great mercantile prosperity, perhaps to the prejudice of its neighbours, so that the Hamburgers say that its name agrees with its situation, as it is Al-tena (i.e. all zu nah, all too near).

Rly. (Verbindungs-bahn) to Hamburg, to Kiel, and the Baltic. (See Handbook for Denmark, &c., Rte. 2.)

The depth of water is not always sufficient to allow steamers to go alongside the handsome quays constructed along the Elbe.

Hamburg.—Inns: H. de l'Europe, on the Alsterdamm, fallen off; H. St. Petersburg, H. Victoria, and Streit's H.—all 3 well situated on the Alte Jungfernstieg; Zingg's H., opposite the Exchange; Alster H., H. Belvedere, both on the Alsterdamm; H. Kronprinz and H. de Russie, both on the Jungfernstieg, and many others.

Cafés: Alster-Pavillon, on the Alte Jungfernstieg, and at Zingg's H.

Restaurants: Wilkens, Bergstrasse; and at Streit's and Zingg's H., Wiezels at St. Pauli, fine view.

Post and Telegraph Office on the Post Strasse. Letter-boxes in various parts of the town.

English Ch. (built 1838) on the Zeug-haus Markt. Service twice on Sundays.

Physician: Dr. Oppert, 3 Pelzer Strasse (speaks English).

Hamburg (contraction of Havenburg) is situated about 60 m. from the mouth of the Elbe, on its N. (rt.) bank, at the junction of a small stream called the Alster with the Elbe, and consists of the old and new town, with the suburbs of St. Georg on the E., and that of St. Pauli to the W., connecting Hamburg and Altona. Pop. 264,000 (6000 Rom. Cath., 14,000 Jews). The town was founded in 803 by Charlemagne, and his son Louis in 823 made it the seat of an Archbishopric. In 1201 it fell under Danish rule, and in the course of the 13th cent. became a member of the Hansa. In 1510 Maximilian I. declared it a free Imperial town. In 1810 it was incorporated by Napoleon in his Empire, but on the conclusion of the war was enrolled a free city of the German confederation, and in 1871 became the principal of the three free Hanseatic towns of the German Empire.

It is remarkable for its excellent harbour, rendering it the first trading seaport of Germany, and its chief feature after the grand river Elbe is the artificial lake called the Alster Bassin, formed by damming up the small river Alster, and around the sides of which are the broad walks called the old and new Jungfernstieg* (Maiden's Walk) and the Alsterdamm. Here is the fashionable promenade, especially resorted to in the summer evenings, when the surface of the water is covered with boats filled with water parties. It is flanked on 3 sides by handsome rows of houses, and has a broad terrace round its margin. At the waterside are the most frequented cafés in the town, called Pavilions. There are floating baths on the outer Alster.

The trade of Hamburg has enormously increased: the annual value of its imports amounts to nearly 70,000,000*l.* sterling! The average number of vessels entering the port in a year is nearly 6000, more than one-third of which are British. The Elbe is navigable thus far for ships of considerable burden, which can enter the harbour and transfer their cargoes in barges to the merchants' doors, whose warehouses and dwellings generally adjoin. Much banking and funding business is done here; besides which it is the depôt for a large part of the exports and imports of the North of Europe. The sugar refineries have diminished of late.

The town is intersected by canals, called flethe (streams), and in this respect, and in the trees growing in its streets, bears a resemblance, in the old part of the town, to the towns of Holland.

By the Fire of 1842 Hamburg sustained a calamity unequalled in extent in any European city since the Fire of London. The conflagration broke out in the Deichstrasse, near the Elbe, on Thursday, May 5, and raged until the following Sunday in spite of all efforts to oppose it; widening as it advanced until it had involved in destruction 2 sides of the Alster Basin, levelling almost all the buildings, public and private, over an area of many acres, sweeping down 4219 buildings in 75 streets, besides courts and alleys, and even crossing the broad canal of the Alster. The churches of St. Nicholas, St. Peter, and St. Gertrude were consumed; the new Exchange, though surrounded by the flames, escaped uninjured. The sympathy caused by this event in all parts of the globe was proved by the voluntary subscriptions raised for the sufferers, amounting to nearly 400,000*l.*, of which England contributed 41,000*l.* Besides this, immense sums were raised by loan, so that Hamburg has now the largest national debt, in proportion to its population, of any continental state.

Hamburg has profited by the calamity in the improvements introduced in laying out the new buildings, the widening of streets, the establishment of waterworks, the construction of sewers, and the filling up of stagnant ditches. A handsome Rathhaus (from Scott's design) is to be built on one side of a new square fronting the Börse. The finest of the new buildings are near the Alster. The foundations are mostly of granite—the superstructure of brick and stucco. The designs show great variety, and sometimes beauty. The Breite-strasse, one side of which alone was consumed, presents a contrast of old and new houses. The Arcade opening out of the Jungfernstieg is deserving of attention for its extent and beauty.

Servant-girls and cooks rarely appear in public except in gay attire; with lace caps, long kid gloves, and a splendid shawl, arranged under the arm, so as to conceal a basket, shaped like a child's coffin, containing clothes, butter or cheese, or other articles purchased at market. The peasants who frequent the market wear a picturesque attire; they are chiefly natives of a district bordering on the Elbe, called Vierlanden, which is principally laid out in gardens, and supplies the market with vegetables.

Funeral processions in Hamburg are not composed of friends of the deceased, but of hired mourners, called Reiten Diener, dressed in black, with plaited ruffs round their necks, curled and powdered wigs, short Spanish cloaks, and swords. The same persons, whose number is limited to 16, attend at marriage festivals, and form also a sort of body-guard to the magistrates. Their situations were formerly purchased at a high price, in consideration of the perquisites and fees attached to them. Upon the death of a burgomaster or other personage of importance in the town, the town trumpeter, a civic officer, is set to blow a dirge from one of the steeples.

The churches have little architectural beauty, excepting St. Nicholas*, in the Hopfenmarkt (sacristan, 28 Neuburg), a noble modern Gothic structure, built (1863), at a cost of 175,000*l.*, of stone from Osterwald and white brick. It is 110 ft. high, 300 ft. long, the nave of 5 and chancel of 2 bays, ending in an apse. The tower at the W. end will have a spire of open work, intended to rise 404 feet high. The design is by the English architect Sir G. G. Scott. The altar, pulpit, and font are richly sculptured in white marble. The Sacristy door in the chancel is a remarkable specimen of modern marqueterie. St. Peter's has also been rebuilt, and is a fine lofty 14th-century Gothic ch. The fine relief of the Entombment is by Schubert. St. Michael's steeple is 432 ft. high, about 100 ft. higher than St. Paul's in London (340 ft.), from which a good view is obtained of the town and the Elbe, nearly as far as the sea, part of Holstein on the N., and Hanover on the S. The ch. was built by Sonnin in 1762. At the altar hang the colours of the old Hanseatic Legion. It is also the station of the fire-watch.

The Kunsthalle (Art Museum) on the Alsterhöhe, contains collections of engravings, sculpture, paintings, &c., the property of the town, open free daily (except Monday), 10—5.

The Börse* (Exchange), a fine building on the Adolphi Platz, by Wimmell, was completed, 1841, just before the fire, and escaped uninjured. It forms a noble hall 48 paces by 26, exclusive of the surrounding colonnade. On the first floor are reading-rooms, offices, &c., corresponding with Lloyd's in London, and called the Börsenhalle. A stranger can be introduced to read the papers and journals of all quarters of the globe. It is also the seat of the Commercium, or Board of Trade, of the Chamber of Commerce (Handelsgericht), presided over by 2 lawyers and 9 merchants as judges. Change commences at 1½ o'clock, and it is worth while to see the crowd that comes thronging in at that hour. Opposite the Börse is the Bank of Hamburg.

The new Custom-house buildings, near the Deichthor, are in the Gothic style by Seib.

The Schulgebäude, erected 1834 on the site of the ancient Dom, in the oldest part of the city, includes the Johanneum, a college under the care of excellent professors, where a good classical and commercial education is given for 120 marks per annum. In this building is also the Town Library, consisting of about 300,000 vols. and 5000 MSS., open daily 11—12. In the room underneath this is a Natural History Museum, open free Sunday 11—12; Mon., Tues., and Wed., 11—1.

Behind this building is the Fish Market, the oldest in the town, and from this a new broad street has been constructed, leading to the Venlo-Pariser Rly. Stat.

The charitable institutions of Hamburg are on a very munificent scale. The Orphanage (Waisenhaus) provides for 600 children, who are received as infants, reared, educated, and bound apprentices to some useful trade. The Great Hospital (Krankenhaus), built by Wimmel in 1823, in the suburb of St. George, is capable of containing 1800 sick. The yearly cost of supporting this admirable institution is nearly 17,000*l*. Its utility is not confined to the poor alone, as even persons of the higher classes resort to the hospital to avail themselves of the advantages of the excellent medical treatment which they may here obtain. Such patients are admitted as lodgers, on payment of a sum varying from 8*d*. to 8*s*. a day. The Chapel contains a painting by Overbeck. The subject is Christ's Agony in the Garden, with the 3 disciples sleeping below. The arrangement and attitudes are Giottesque, the colour thick and low.

A white marble tablet at a corner house in the Brunnenstrasse marks where Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, the composer, was born, 1809, of a Jewish family.

The House of Klopstock the poet (1774–1803), No. 27 in the Königsstrasse, is rebuilt.

At the E. end of the Alster Bridge is a fine statue of Schiller, by Lippelt, erected 1866.

The Stadt Theater (Dammthor St.) is one of the largest in Germany, built from Schinkel's designs, in 1827, and capable of holding 2500 persons. The performances and music generally very good. The play begins at 7 and usually ends by 10. Shut June, July, August. The Thalia Theater, Pferde Markt, built 1843, is chiefly famed for comic pieces, and is a popular resort. Shut in summer.

The public Ball-rooms* in and about the town, though not frequented by the most respectable classes, being often the resort of low company, deserve to be looked at as one of the peculiarities of the place. The best are the Sagebiel'sche Local, the Elb Pavillon and the Apollo Saal. Some of the cellars for suppers, beer, &c., are worth a visit.

The Hamburg hung beef is celebrated.

On the site of the Ramparts, long since levelled, are delightful boulevards or gardens, which extend nearly round the town and between the two Alster basins. The most pleasing view of the town and river, the shipping and opposite shore of the Elbe, is from the eminence called Elbhöhe*, or Stintfang, at the extremity of these walks nearest to Altona.

In some parts of the town a portion of the poorer inhabitants live in cellars under the houses. In winter, and after a prevalence of W. winds, the Elbe sometimes inundates the streets near the river, driving the tenants of these cellars from their habitations, and leaving them filled with ooze and in a most unhealthy condition from the moisture. The upper part of the house is let under condition that the occupiers of the cellars are to receive shelter at such seasons of calamity.

Outside the Damm Gate, not far from the Jungfernstieg, are the public Cemeteries, which deserve a visit, as exhibiting the customs and usages of Germany with regard to the resting-place of the dead.

Hamburg had once the misfortune to be a fortified town, and in consequence was subjected to the horrors of a bombardment from the French, and was twice occupied by French armies, who, under Davoust, in 1813, exercised the most cruel severities and atrocities upon the inhabitants. Opposite St. Peter's Cemetery is a monumental sarcophagus to 1138 men, women, and children, who perished of cold and hunger on that occasion, driven out of the town in the depth of winter.

The construction of the two handsome bridges across the Elbe for the rly. to Harburg in connection with the line direct to Bremen (Rte. 60) has materially increased the facility of access to Hamburg from the W. (see Railroads below).

Reading Rooms.—At the Börsenhalle (see above), at the Athenæum, Bücherstrasse, more than 150 newspapers and journals are taken in. Entrance for a week, 1 mark.

The best shops are upon the S. side of the Jungfernstieg, and the adjoining street, Neuer Wall.

The principal Booksellers are Perthes, Besser, and Mauke, 13 Jungfernstieg; Behrendson, Alster Arcade, keeps Guide-books, Dictionaries, local prints, and photographs.

Consuls.—All the states of the New and Old World are represented here. A British Chargé d'Affaires and Consul-General and Vice-Consul, also a Consul-General from the United States, reside here. Most of the Consulate Offices are near the harbour.

Cabs (Droschke).—Fares. A drive in the town (1 or 2 persons) 75 pf.; by the hour, 1½ mk.

Tramways (Pferde-Eisenbahn), from the Rathhaus Markt, in various directions.

Omnibuses ply through the town by various routes, from the Schweinemarkt to Altona and Rainville's garden, fare, 20 pf.

Environs.—The Zoological Gardens (good restaurant), opened in 1863, on the N. side of the city, near the Damm-thor, are remarkable for their very large and well-stocked Aquarium of living marine and fresh-water animals. The Botanic Gardens adjoin.

a. There are pleasant walks along the Alster Lake to Uhlenhorst, a tavern and sort of tea gardens. Steamer thither in summer.

b. It is a very pleasant drive to descend the rt. bank of the Elbe from Altona to Blankenese. (Rly. 5 trains daily in 25 min. Steamers several times daily.) The slopes bordering on the river are studded with country seats of merchants and possess considerable natural beauty. The narrow strip of suburb called Vorstadt St. Pauli, partly occupied by low taverns and dancing-rooms—in fact, a sort of Wapping—extends to the gate of Altona, at the further end of which is the suburb of Ottensen, where the brave Duke of Brunswick died, in 1806, from the wound he had received in the battle of Jena. In the churchyard, by the side of the road and under an umbrageous elm, is The Tomb of Klopstock (d. 1803), author of the 'Messiah.' The monument has been removed to the N. side of Hamburg which stood here to the 1138 Hamburgers who perished in 1813-14, during the siege and occupation of Hamburg by the French, and who were interred here in one common grave—the subject of a pretty poem by Rückert. Farther on stood Rainville's Tavern and garden, overlooking the Elbe—"The Star and Garter" of the Hamburgers; but the undertaking failed in 1873. The house itself was inhabited successively by Dumouriez and Bourrienne. On the hills sloping towards the Elbe are the country-seats of the Hamburg Senators—the Jenischs, Parishes (Nieustädten), and Godeffroys (Dockenhuden)—with beautiful grounds. Süllberg is a fine point of view. At Blankenese, about 9 m. from Hamburg, Mr. Bauer's Pleasure Grounds, laid out in the Dutch taste, thrown open to the public, are a frequent resort of the Hamburgers.

c. In an opposite direction, about 3 m. N.E. from Hamburg, lies the Holstein village of Wandsbeck, in a very pretty situation: it is the 1st stat. on the rly. to Lübeck. (See Rte. 57.)

d. The Rauhes Haus at Horn, founded by Dr. Wichern, is a Reformatory for unprotected children, carried on with benevolence and success, 3 m. from Hamburg, on the road to Bergedorf.

Steamboats now run from the Jungfernstieg, on the Alster, every 10 min.; also across the Elbe to Harburg 12 times a day (Rte. 59);—to London twice a week; in winter they start from Cuxhaven;—to Grimsby Tues. and Frid., in connection with Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Rly. Co.;—to Havre, twice a week, in 50 or 60 hrs.;—to Cuxhaven, 4 times a week in 6 or 8 hrs.;—to Heligoland, 2 or 3 times a week;—and to Liverpool, Glasgow, New York, New Orleans, West India Islands, &c.

Railroads, 4 principal stations—

(1) The Altona, Kiel, and Blankenese line (see Rte. 2, Handbook for Denmark, &c.), Stat. on the W. side of Altona, connected with the Hamburg lines by the Verbindungsbahn.

(2) The Berlin line. Rte. 61. (Stat. at the Deich Thor on E. side of Hamburg.)

(3) The Lübeck line. Rte. 57. (Stat. on the Spaldingstrasse, suburb of St. Georg.)

(4) The Bremen and Osnabrück line (New Stat. on the Grasbrook) traverses the island of Wilhelmsburg, crossing the N. and S. arms of the Elbe by magnificent bridges to Harburg. Thence a line S. to Hanover (Rte. 59), and W. to Bremen, Osnabrück, and Wesel, giving direct communication with Paris, or viâ Ostend or Flushing with England.

3 m. Wandsbeck Stat., a pretty village (Pop. 8000), in which Tycho Brahe the astronomer, Voss the poet, and Matthias Claudius resided. The latter published here the "Wandsbecker Bote" (1770–1775), and died in 1815, and is buried in the churchyard.

20 m. Oldersloe Junct. Stat., prettily situated, Pop. 3800, saline baths. [Branch Rly. N. W. to Neumünster.]

After passing Rheinfeld, the towers of the churches in Lübeck are seen, and about 6 m. before reaching the town its territory is entered.

15 m. Lübeck Junct. Stat.—Hotel omnibus at rly.

Inns: H. Stadt Hamburg, on the Klingberg;—Duffeke's H., near the Marien-Kirche;—Hahn's H., in the Breite-strasse, good;—Brockmüller's H., nearest the Stat.

Cabs (Droschke), 1 to 2 pers. 60 pf., portmanteau, 30 pf.

Restaurant, Rathskeller (see below), under the Rathhaus; Engelhardt and Sons, good French wines by the glass.

Theatres.—Stadt Theater, in the Beckergrube, 4 times a-week. Tivoli Garden in the Kaiserstrasse, on the banks of the Wackenitz.

Club.—The Casino near the theatre; concerts in winter.

Marzipan, a kind of macaroni, can be got at Carl Petersen's.

Post Office.—43 Mengstrasse.

Telegraph Office.—202 Schlüsselbuden.

Railways (see below).

This ancient city (Pop. 49,183), occupying the peninsula formed by a bend in the river Trave, at its junction with the Wackenitz, about 9 m. from the Baltic, is now the smallest of the 3 free Hanseatic towns of the German Empire. It was founded on its present site in 1143, the older town (which stood more to the north) having been destroyed by the Wends in 1138. Hither, in 1163, Duke

ROUTE 57.

HAMBURG TO LÜBECK [TRAVEMÜNDE].
—RAIL.

Distance, 38 m.; time, 1½ hr.; 5 trains daily.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56.

The line starts from the suburb of St. Georg, and leaving on rt. the Raues Haus zu Horn (see Rte. 56) reaches

LÜBECK

Hotels.

- a Stadt Hamburg . . . F. 3.
- b Draffels . . . E. 4.
- c Hahn's . . . D. 4.
- d Brockmüller's . . . E. 3.

London, John Murray, Albemarle Street.

G Edw. Weller

Henry the Lion of Saxony transferred the Oldenburg Bishopric. In 1226, the Emperor Frederick II. declared Lübeck for ever a free imperial city; and as such, in 1227, it overcame the Danes in the battle of Bornhöved, thereby releasing the surrounding country from their depredations by land, and in 1234 a naval victory off the mouth of the Trave destroyed their supremacy at sea. A period of unexampled prosperity followed, and subsequent successes over the Danes, and the occupation of portions of Sweden and Denmark, raised the Hanseatic League of 80 towns into a powerful confederacy, at the head of which this city stood as the seat of its Diet, the repository of its archives, and the station of its fleet, whose commander was appointed by the city. After the fall, in 1537, of its most renowned Bürgermeister, Jorgen Wollenvever, and the establishment of new commercial centres by Holland and England, Lübeck's power dwindled, and with the dissolution of the League its commerce decayed, so that though the four lines of rly. converging to the town, and the considerable and increasing Bordeaux wine trade, combined with the deepening of the Trave, are tending to revive the prosperity of the town, still it is now chiefly interesting as possessing to a high degree the aspect and character of antiquity in its picturesque gabled houses, churches, and Rathhaus.

It may be seen in about 3 hrs. thus:
Facing the Rly. Stat. is the Holstein Thor*, a red and black glazed brick gateway, built 1477, restored 1871, flanked by two round, conical roofed towers, formerly part of the fortifications, but now isolated, and preserved as a picturesque monument.

Crossing the bridge over the Trave, and proceeding along the Holsteinstrasse, one of the best streets in the town, a short distance to the l., is seen the finest building in the town, the

St. Mary's Church* (Marien-Kirche)

(enter by the S.W. door; the Sacristan lives opposite, in the Mengstrasse); built 1304, and a good example of the plain and severe Gothic characteristic of the vast sandy plains skirting the S. shore of the Baltic, where, from the absence of stone, brick is the material commonly employed, and the buildings, usually good in outline, are unpleasing from a deficiency of ornament, a bareness of exterior, and whitewashed interior.

It is surmounted by 2 W. towers 50 ft. square at the base, supporting timber spires 344 ft. high. It has three aisles, and the centre roof rises to the unusual height of 134 ft. The objects to be noticed in it, are the Chapel at the E. end, resembling Becket's Crown at Canterbury; a handsome brass screen all round the choir; a Dance of Death, much restored, dated 1463, curious for the costumes of the period represented in it, as well as for its being painted 35 years before the time of Holbein; the organ and carved woodwork of the Burgo-masters' seats; the beautiful brass font (date 1335) and sacrament house; a crocketed pinnacle of bronze, about 40 ft. high (date 1472). Obs. a chapel on the S. side, whose vault is supported by slender shafts of granite, each a single stone 38 ft. long; and the painted glass of the windows, by an Italian artist, Fr. Livi, who afterwards (1436) furnished those for the Duomo in Florence. Behind the altar, against the N. wall, a very fine old painting attributed to Jan Mostraet (date 1518), in three divisions with shutters: on the outside, Adam and Eve; within, the Nativity, the Adoration of the Magi, and the Flight into Egypt. Another triptych displays, when opened, elaborate carvings in wood of figures and Gothic tracery,—all gilt except the flesh,—representing events from the Gospel history. Here are several engraved Brasses, Flemish and German—one of Bruno v. Warendorf, Admiral of the Hanse fleet (d. 1369). Behind the high altar is a clock, constructed in 1405, which sends forth at noon figures of the 7 Electors, who march in review before the statue of the Emperor; each, as it passes, makes a reverential obeisance, and then disappears. The astronomical dial below (repaired) gives data down to 1999. The two pictures—Christ's Entry into Jerusalem, painted 1824; and a Pietà or Entombment, 1845—are by Overbeck.

Close to the church, and forming the N.E. corner of the market-place, with an E. front in the Breitestrasse, is the singular

Townhall (Rathhaus).—Its fronts are formed by lofty screen-walls, in courses of red unglazed and dark-green glazed bricks, completely hiding the roofs, and supporting pinnacles at intervals. The N. end is probably as old as the 13th cent. The E. front, of the 14th, with a more modern Renaissance staircase (date 1594). The street entrance is by a vestibule of elegant design. The bronze figures on the door (added 1352) are very curious; upstairs is a gallery with good elliptic vaulting. The wood-carving of the door and panels of the Kriegs-stube is curious, and is dated 1595 and 1608. Obs. the door of the Audience Chamber, dated 1575. Within these walls, in ancient times, the deputies of the 80 cities in Germany which composed the Hanseatic League held their deliberations. Here were concerted those measures which raised the confederation from humble beginnings to a height of power and wealth enabling it to establish factories in all the great cities of Europe, including Bergen, Novgorod, Bruges, and London, and to obtain the supremacy of the ocean, and to wage successful war against neighbouring states, with an army of its own 50,000 strong. The Hall of the Hansa, in which this council met, is now partitioned off into a number of small rooms for municipal offices, &c. The large hall on the N. side serves as the Exchange.

Under the N.E. angle of the building is the entrance to the Rathskeller, a well-known wine-shop and restaurant, with a good vaulted roof of the 15th cent., and containing the Braut Gemach, or Bride Chamber, into which bridal parties formerly descended by steps from the Marien Kirche. Obs. the date 1575, and curious inscription over the chimney piece. "Many a man sings loudly when they bring him his bride: knew he what they brought him, he might well weep."

The centre of the market-place is occupied by a modern fountain, to the S. of which are detached market stalls occupying the place of the Pillory (kaak) formerly standing here.

Leaving St. Peter's Ch. (begun 1173) on the rt., and proceeding directly S. through the Sand-strasse, Klingberg, and Pferde-markt, 10 min. leads to the

Dom* or Cathedral, repaired 1874. (Sacristan No. 743 Hartengrube.) The N. porch of rich moulded brick, and the transept, choir, and nave, are Romanesque, the remainder Gothic. It is a tasteless building, 427 ft. long and 120 ft. wide, begun 1170, finished 1341. It is surmounted by 2 W. towers with spires nearly 400 ft. high. In the side chapels are the monuments of many of the patrician families of Lübeck, and in the choir, the tombs of numerous Bishops and canons. The screen of the choir is perhaps one of the best existing specimens of wood carving of the early German school, about the period of Lucas Cranach. The figures are the size of life, full of expression, and admirably executed. But the finest work of art in Lübeck is in the Greveraden chapel in the N. aisle. It is a triptych, covered with a double set of shutters, the Masterpiece* of HANS MEMLING. Outside the outer pair the Annunciation is represented in grisaille. The first pair of shutters being opened, St. Blaize, St. John, St. Jerome, and St. Giles are seen noble and grave figures, executed in the most finished manner, and with the richest colours. When the second pair of shutters is opened, the pictures of the Passion are seen in three compartments, each having a principal subject; but Memling, as was usual with the early masters, both German and Italian, has introduced, in no less than 23 distinct groups placed in the back-ground, many of the events previous and accessory to the principal event set forth. The main group on the shutter, on the left hand of the spectator, represents Christ bearing his Cross, and the preceding events, beginning with the agony in the garden, are depicted in the back-ground. In the centre is the Crucifixion; and on the other shutter on the rt. are two groups nearly equally important, the Entombment and the Resurrection; the subsequent events until the Ascension being seen in the background. It is a marvel of art, wonderful for composition, expression, colour, and finish. The picture is dated 1491, and not signed, but there can be no doubt of its being one of the best works of Memling. It is in the finest state, and was carefully washed and revarnished in 1845. It escaped a journey to Paris by being concealed in the roof of the Cathedral.

The stone pulpit, with panels of alabaster (1568), curious railing (1522), and carved wooden font (1455) at W. end, under organ, are of excellent workmanship. According to a tradition, this church is built on the spot where Henry the Lion, while engaged in the chase, fell in with a stag having a cross growing between its horns, and a collar of jewels around its neck, with the produce of which the first church here was built. The legend is commemorated in two rude frescoes on the S. side of the nave. Among other curiosities is the bronze recumbent effigy of Bishop Bockholt, which adorns his monument, and a richly engraved Brass of 2 Bishops, who died 1317 and 1350. It is probably the finest specimen extant of Flemish brass engraving of the 14th century. Obs. likewise here the circular vaulting in the nave and cross, underpinned and pointed; pews, cloister, and hall.

The Rood-loft, with its rood of large size and exquisite workmanship, still spans the choir,

Crossing the Mühlen-strasse the Annen-strasse (on the rt. of which are the bare walls of the ruined Annen-Kirche) ends at the Ægidien-Kirche (St. Giles's), restored 1874, a heavy-looking edifice of the 14th century, but of some architectural interest.

Any of the streets westward will lead into the Königs-strasse, in which, at No. 894, the painter, Friedrich Overbeck, was born, 1789 (died at Rome 1869).

At the corner of this street and that of the Glockergiesser, is

St. Catherine's Ch. (Katharinen-Kirche), which, though now desecrated and turned into a receptacle for Lübeck antiquities, is a fine building, and retains many altars and ornaments untouched, a good rood, and old paintings; also old ch. plate, embroidered altar-cloths and vestments of 13th and 14th cents., and a fine brass of the Lüneburgh family (1461-74). The Crypt, unusually lofty, and above ground, is laid open.

The adjoining buildings, formerly a Franciscan monastery, contain the public Library, of 50,000 vols., including many MSS.

Passing on the l. the Reformed Ch., the Königs-strasse terminates at the St. Jacob's Ch. (Jacobi-Kirche) of the 14th cent. Obs. the altar in the Bronzenkapelle, so called after the family of the Burgomeister Brömse.

Opposite the W. front of the ch., No. 800 Breite-strasse, is the house of the Kaufleute Compagnie, with unusually fine wood-carving by an unknown artist (1573-85) ornamenting the ante-room, and Fredenhagen-Zimmer on the ground-floor.

Three doors further N. is the house of the Schiffer-Gesellschaft (Shipowners' Guild), 1535, restored 1863, and now used as a beer-shop; but the hall on the ground-floor is little altered, and is divided into 3 aisles by rows of stalls, and has numerous models of ships suspended from the ceiling.

At No. 805 in the same street is the Natural History Collection, presented to the town by the traveller Heinr. Brehmer, and containing some fine gorillas.

The E. side of the Kuhberg is occupied by the handsome W. front of the Hospital zum Heiligen Geist, entered through a Gothic chapel of the 14th cent., adorned with old mural paintings and carved pulpit, &c., restored 1866. This excellent institution, founded 1312, for 80 poor persons, consists of a group of single tenements under one huge roof.

Continuing N. up the Grosse-Burg Strasse, passing on l. the remains of the Burg-Kloster, a fine Gothic edifice of the 13th cent., the town terminates at the Burg-Thor, a massive square tower and gateway (15th cent.) of alternate red and black brick, with, on the S. side, 5 rows of Gothic windows, only some of which are pierced. The houses adjoining have been restored in the same style, and the whole forms a picturesque group.

The narrow neck of land outside the gate is prettily laid out, and a number of new houses are rising at this point, which is the commencement of the Travemünde road, here lined by a fine avenue of lime-trees. It was in the neighbourhood of this gateway that the severest fighting took place in November 1806, between the remnant of the Prussian army under Blücher, retreating after the defeat at Jena, and the hotly-pursuing French, under Bernadotte, Soult, and Murat. After the expulsion of the Prussians, the town was given up to a 3 days' pillage, and was subsequently occupied by 75,000 French. From 1810 to 1813 the whole North sea coast of Germany, including Lübeck, Hamburg, Bremen, Osnabrück, and Münster, formed part of Napoleon's French Empire.

Turning W. towards the Trave, the Harbour is reached, the quays of which are lined by large steamers and sailing-vessels, as, owing to successful dredging, there is deep water right up to the city.

Crossing by the ferry to the opposite bank, 5 min. walk leads to the top of Chimborazzo, a small elevation surmounted by a wooden tower, from which a fine view is obtained over the entire city and surrounding country.

A few hundred yards S., through the shady walks replacing the ancient ramparts, bring the traveller back to the Stat.

Sir Godfrey Kneller and the brothers Adrian (1610, died 1685) and Isaac van Ostade were born here. Count Struensee lived near the cathedral.

Until the French gained possession of Lübeck, no Jews were tolerated within the town; they were banished to the neighbouring village of Moising, which they still occupy almost exclusively.

The trade of the town consists chiefly in the export of grain produced in the neighbouring districts, in importing wine (for transhipment to the Baltic), and colonial produce. Great trade is also carried on in goose-quills for pens.

Excursions :—

(a.) Travemünde (the Mouth of the Trave), N.E. 10 m. Steamer down the Trave several times daily. (Inns: H. de Russie; H. Stadt Lübeck, a bath-house with reading-room and library; H. Stadt Hamburg—both good, and having restaurants attached; H. Victoria, &c.) The former port of Lübeck, a small pretty bathing-place, much resorted to in the season (June to September) by Germans of the upper classes. There are bathing-machines on the shore in the English fashion (called English bath-coaches), and warm sea-baths, which cost 24 schillings.

(b.) Eutin, N. 15 m., 3 trains daily in 1 hr. (Inns: H. Stadt Hamburg, H. Bellevue), formerly the residence of the Bishops of Lübeck; fine forest and romantic lake. The composer Weber born here 1786 (died 1826). The rides are charming to Uklessee (1½ hr.), Kirch-Nüchel (1 hr. further), Bungsberg (3½ hrs.).

(c.) Schwartau, the first Stat. on the Eutin Rly., is a favourite resort of the Lübeck people.

Railways.—N. to Eutin (see above); for Kiel, &c. (see Handbk. for Denmark); E. to Kleinen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 58); S. to Buchen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 61); W. to Hamburg (see above). Line in progress direct to Berlin, through Schwerin and Ruppın, in connection with the Schleswig-Holstein line through Flensburg.

Steamers to Copenhagen daily, except Saturday; to Christiania twice a week; to Stockholm twice a week; to Riga and St. Petersburg, &c., once a week. (See Handbks. for Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Russia.)

ROUTE 58.

HAMBURG TO STRALSUND, BY SCHWERIN, DOBBERAN, AND ROSTOCK.

Distance, 173 m.; time, 17 to 19 hrs.

Hamburg to Rostock, 128 m. Rly., 3 trains daily in 7 to 9 hrs.

Rostock to Stralsund, 45 m.; Diligence daily in 10 hrs.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56, and the Rly. as far as 57 m. Hagenow Junct. Stat. in Rte. 61.

Here the Mecklenburg Rly. turns off N.E. and runs to 17 m. Schwerin Stat. (Inns: H. du Nord; Stern's Hotel; both good), capital of the Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, 26,804 Inhab., prettily situated on the Lake of Schwerin, which is 14 m. long.

The Dom is one of the finest Gothic churches in N. Germany; date 1365-1430, restored 1853; 300 ft. long, 102 ft. high. The chapel of the Sacred Blood—the burial-place of the Grand Ducal Family—has been ornamented with paintings by Cornelius, and stained glass windows. The monument of the Duchess Helena (1524), of bronze (the arms of Mecklenburg and the Palatinate), was cast by Peter Vischer. Here are some very large engraved brasses of Flemish work to bishops of the family Bülow, 1314-75. The Bishopric of Schwerin was founded in 1170, but in 1648 secularized and annexed to Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

The Duke's Picture Gallery, Alexandrinen St., No. 1025, consists chiefly of Dutch and French works, and is shown daily (except Tues. and Sat.) 11-2. Rubens, 2 daughters; P. Potter, 2 cows; G. Dow, the Dentist; 8 portraits by Denner.

The Palace (Schloss), a vast edifice on an island, built 1845-58 on the site of an old castle, is of sumptuous architecture, somewhat in the style of Chambord. It is of 4 storeys, and includes a ch. surmounted by a dome, armoury and state rooms decorated by modern painters. It is approached by two bridges, and is supposed to have cost half a million sterling! The gardens behind serve as a public walk. This has been the residence of the ducal family since 1358, excepting a short space from 1629, when the Emperor Ferdinand handed it over to Wallenstein Duke of Friedland. The Mecklenburg Dukes are of Slavonic origin, being sprung from Privislaw, a heathen Wendish chief, who on being baptized in the 12th cent. became a German vassal.

The Antiquarium contains a highly interesting collection of pre-historic remains, chiefly dug up in Mecklenburg; the bronzes are very remarkable.

A grand Arsenal and barrack was built 1844, near the Stat.

Rly. in progress N.W. to Lübeck, S.E. to Berlin viâ the small town of (25 m.) Parchim, birthplace (1800) of Field-Marshal Count von Moltke.

On leaving Schwerin, the Rly. quits the lake to return to its margin at 10 m. Kleinen Junct. Stat. Rly.—W. to Lübeck (Rte. 57)—N. 9 m. 4 trains daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to [Wismar Stat. (Inn: Stadt Hamburg), a seaport, with 13,130 Inhab., and lying at the extremity of a bay which forms one of the best harbours in the Baltic. From 1648 to 1803 Wismar belonged to Sweden. The 3 churches are large, and fine specimens of brickwork. In St. Mary's Ch. a lofty and effective building, choir 1339-1354, rest 15th cent., is a bronze font, within a railing of iron, wrought, it is said, by the devil. The Fürstenhof, date 1554, formerly the residence of the Dukes of Mecklenburg, is now used for municipal purposes. Obs. Renaissance ornaments in brick-work and several houses of the 14th cent.

23 m. N.W. is the little sea-bathing place Boltenhagen, best reached by post (2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) from Grevesmühlen Stat. on the line to Lübeck.]

[Between Wismar and Rostock (Diligence twice daily, 10 m. W. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), lies Dobberan (Inns: Grosse Logierhaus; Lindenhof), a market-town of 4000 Inhab., in sight of the Baltic, in a pretty country. It is a sea-bathing place, in a quiet rural situation, but has fallen off of late. It contains a Palace of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, surrounded by a park and garden, and the Cistercienserkirche, a Gothic ch. (1368) of brick, in which are monuments of the Ducal family.

The Gesellschaftshaus contains ball and concert rooms, adjoining the Pavilion in which the great dining-room is situated. Omnibus every hr. to (3 m.) the sea-bathing place on the sea-shore, at Heiligendamm, so called from a huge bank of shingle, on which a bath-house and lodging-houses have been built for those who prefer residing on the spot.]

On leaving Kleinen, the Rly. turns E., and proceeds to 18 m. Bützow Junct. Stat., on the river Warnow, a town of 4600 Inhab., formerly the residence of the Bishops of Schwerin, with fine Gothic ch. and Rathhaus.

[Rly. to Stettin (Rte. 75) viâ Güstrow, Neubrandenburg, Strasburg, and Pasewalk.]

From Bützow the line follows the Warnow N. to 18 m. Rostock Stat. (Inns: H. de Russie; H. Stadt Hamburg). This is the largest and most populous town in Mecklenburg. Originally a Slavonic town, it was Germanized about 1200, and became a highly important member of the Hanseatic League. It is now a flourishing seaport, with much trade and ship-building; it stands on the Warnow, has 30,980 Inhab., and resembles Lübeck somewhat in the antiquity and picturesqueness of its buildings, all of brick. It is the birthplace of Field-Marshal Blücher; his bronze statue, by Schadow, is placed in the square named after him, Blücher-Platz. The house in which he was born, 1742 (died 1819), still exists in the Blücher-strasse. The great Marienkirche (St. Mary's ch.) is very light and tall; narrow windows—date about 1300; obs. its brass font, supported on kneeling figures, the 4 elements; it is covered with 18 reliefs of the Life of our Lord, date 1200, and is one of the oldest specimens of mediæval metal work. Inscriptions on each side of S. door in low German and Latin barely intelligible. St. Peter's has a tower 420 ft. high. St. Nicholas is a brick church, part Romanesque. The house in which Grotius died, 1645, is in one corner of the market-place, close to the Rathhaus.

The Rathhaus, with its 7 pinnacles, is a singular building, resembling that of Stralsund, but is much altered. Obs. in the Hopfenmarkt an old house with bas-reliefs of baked clay in its front. The University of Rostock was founded in 1419; there are not more than 160 students. The valuable library contains 120,000 vols. Kepler was professor here for a short time, appointed by Wallenstein, then Duke of Mecklenburg.

A pleasant walk of $\frac{3}{4}$ hour leads from the quay, by the side of the harbour, along the old town Walls, and round the deep ditches of the ancient fortress: against the S. wall rises a tower, erected 1618, by Tycho Brahe, for an Observatory.

Steamer in summer every hr. to 9 m. Warnemünde (Inns: Heinz H.; Hübners H.), a village on the shore of the Baltic, at the mouth of the Warnow, the port of Rostock for larger vessels, and frequented by about 4000 visitors in summer for sea-bathing.

Schnellpost twice daily from Rostock to Stralsund in 9 hrs.

Fine forests. The road is good as far as 20 m. Ribnitz, on the backwater called Saaler-Bodden.

5 m. Dammgarten, on the Rechnitz river, which forms the boundary line between Mecklenburg and Prussian Pomerania.

20 m. Stralsund. See Rte. 76.

ROUTE 59.

HAMBURG TO HANOVER.—RAIL.

Distance, 105 m.; time, $3\frac{1}{4}$ to 5 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56.

Trains every 2 hrs., run in 20 min. over the 2 magnificent Rly. bridges crossing the Elbe; and connecting Hamburg with

7 m. Harburg Junct. Stat. (Inns: König von Schweden, good; Bahnhof's Restauration), on l. bank of Elbe, a rapidly increasing commercial town of 16,506 Inhab.; annexed to Prussia 1866. The view from the Schwarze Berg, behind Harburg, is fine. Rly. S.W. to Bremen (Rte. 60), whence direct to Paris or Flushing for England; N.W. in progress to Cuxhaven viâ Stade; direct line S. to Hanover in progress, in the meantime the traveller proceeds by the rly. viâ

19 m. Bardowiek Stat. This was the most important and richest trading town in the N. of Germany until it was destroyed 1189 by Henry the Lion. Only a fragment of its ancient Gothic Dom ch. is preserved. To Bardowiek's fall is owing the rise and prosperity of Hamburg. Here was the original Carolingian episcopal see, afterwards removed to Verden.

4 m. Lüneburg Junct. Stat., omnibus from Rly. (Inns: Wellenkamp's, best; Deutsches Haus). An interesting old walled town on the navigable Ilmenau, formerly the capital of a small principality, has still 15,960 Inhab., and retains its antique aspect. The interior of the Rathhaus* abounds in fine glass painting, carved chandeliers, tapestry, embroidery, frescoes. The Council Chamber is covered with compositions from sacred and profane history, carved by Albert of Soest (1566-68), of great merit; but the famous corporation plate was bought by the Government in 1874, and removed to the Gewerbe Museum in Berlin.

The Church of St. John, an interesting Gothic edifice, 14th cent., composed, as well as the lofty spire which surmounts it, of brick or terra-cotta, contains many relics of better days—a carved altar-piece, and the pillar which supported the figure of Luna (hence Luna-berg). In St. Michael's Ch. (formerly monastic) are various monuments of the old Princes of Lüneburg.

Many of the gable-faced houses are fine specimens of domestic Gothic; some retain in front the ornamented posts, with coats-of-arms, which marked the residence of the magistrates.

Here are salt-springs and salt-works.

Fine view from the Kalkberg, at the foot of which, on 2nd April, 1813, the French, under Morand, were defeated by the combined Russians and Prussians. This engagement was the beginning of the war of liberation.

Branch Rly. N. to Buchen Junct. Stat., for Lübeck or Schwerin, and direct lines—W. to Bremen viâ Buchholz—E. to Wittenberg Junct. Stat. for Berlin.

8 m. Bienenbüttel Stat.—Much moorland (the Lüneburger Heide) is passed.

13 m. Uelzen Junct. Stat. [Rly.—W. to Bremen viâ Langwedel.—E. to Stendal Junct. Stat. viâ Salzwedel (see Rte. 72B).] Near this are several blocks of stone, perhaps old Saxon remains.

32 m. Celle Stat. (Inns: Hannoverischer Hof; Sandkrug; Adler). A town of 16,300 Inhab. on the Aller, in the midst of a sandy plain. The Schloss, formerly the residence of the Dukes of Celle, has a fine chapel (1485), with paintings by Marten de Voss. In the French garden stands a mediocre monument to Matilda Queen of Denmark, sister of George III., who died here (1775). The old town ch. (Pfarrkirche) contains the ducal vault, with monuments of 8 dukes. From one of them, Ernest the Confessor (d. 1546), are descended the two houses of Brunswick-Wolfenbüttel (Brunswick) and Brunswick-Lüneburg (Hanover and Great Britain). In 1636 George, Duke of Celle (Brunswick-Lüneburg), removed his court from Celle to Hanover. His son, Ernest Augustus (father of our George I.), became first Elector of Hanover in 1692.

3 m. from Celle is the old Convent Wienhausen, containing in its ch. curious tapestries and painted glass.

18 m. Lehrte Junct. Stat.—5 lines of Rly. converge here. N. to Hamburg (see above), E. to Stendal Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 64), S.E. to Brunswick (see Rte. 66), S. to Hildesheim (see Rte. 72), and W. 10 m. to Hanover Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 66.

ROUTE 60.

HAMBURG TO BREMEN DIRECT.—RAIL.

Distance, 71 m.; time, 2½ to 3 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56.

This line, now completed, brings Hamburg in direct communication through Bremer with Paris or Flushing for England.

For the rly. across the Elbe as far as 7 m. Harburg Junct. Stat., see Rte. 59.

Thence the line turns S.W. through Buchholz [Branch Rly. E. to Lüneburg (Rte. 72c)] and the unimportant stations of Tostedt, Rotenburg, and Ottersburg to 64 m. Bremen Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 72A.

ROUTE 60A.

BREMEN TO OLDENBURG [WILHELMSHAFEN].—RAIL.

Distance, 27 m.; time, 1 hr.; 4 trains daily.

Bremen is described in Rte. 72A. The line crosses the Weser, stopping at the stat. in the Neustadt, and proceeds W. to 17 m. Hude Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. through Brake to Nordenhamm, at the mouth of the Weser]. Traversing an uninteresting flat country, the Rly. reaches

10 m. Oldenburg Junct. Stat. (Inns: Erbgrossherzog, best; H. de Russie, very good). A quaint, dull town, in a flat country, on the small river Hunte, which is navigable up to the town. It is the capital of the Grand Duchy of Oldenburg, and has 13,400 Inhab. The chief building is the still unfinished Grand Ducal Palace, begun 1607, containing a library of over 50,000 volumes, a cabinet of coins and engravings, and some very poor paintings by Tischbein. The private dwelling of the Grand Duke contains some good modern pictures by Achenbach Lessing and Preller; and not far from this is the public library of 300,000 vols. In the Augusteum is a gallery of 335 pictures (admission daily 11-2). Specimens of the Italian, Dutch, Spanish, and French Schools, some of which bear great names; but only a few are deserving of attention. The Museum in the Hafen-strasse contains good ornithological, geological, and botanical collections. Near the palace is a garden and park, and the Church of St. Lambert. The old ramparts are turned into boulevard gardens, and many new villas have sprung up. From 1676 to 1773 the then County of Oldenburg was held by the Kings of Denmark. In the latter year it passed to the Holstein-Gottorp line, who still rule here, since 1774 as Dukes, since 1829 as Grand Dukes. In 1810 Napoleon annexed the whole Duchy to his French Empire.

Rly. S. 39 m., 2 trains daily in 3 hrs., to Quakenbrück, to be continued to Osnabrück—W. 32 m., 3 trains daily in 1½ hr., to Leer Junct. Stat. (see Handbook for Holland and Belgium, Rte. 8).

[Rly. N. 32 m., 4 trains daily in 1½ hr., passing Varel and Sande (Branch to Jever) to Wilhelmshafen Stat. (Inns: H. Denninghof; Keese's H.).

The Prussian Crown purchased from the Grand Duke of Oldenburg in 1853, for 75,000*l.*, a tract of land surrounding a little harbour near Heppen, on the W. side of the Bay of Jahde, in the North Sea. Upon this has been created the fortified naval arsenal and dockyard of Wilhelmshafen, opened in 1869. Outer and inner basins, and 3 docks, have been excavated in the low swampy land, which in the first instance had to be protected from the sea by dykes and solid granite moles, projected seaward, leaving an outer entrance to the harbour 350 ft. across. The outer tidal basin is flanked by piers, 4000 and 9600 ft. long. The 3 dry docks are adapted for constructing and repairing ironclads, with factories for steam-engines. The depth of water at the mouth is 26 ft., but the channel is so intricate and changeable from the sands shifting day by day, that lighthouses and buoys are of little use, and it is accessible only by aid of local pilots. Artesian wells had to be sunk to the depth of 900 ft. to procure water for the supply of the establishment. The granite for the docks came from Sweden; the sandstone from Schona, on the Elbe. It is protected by powerful batteries on the E. and W. side of Jahde Bay, and by a chain of forts on the land side, iron-plated, and armed with the largest Krupp guns. The cost of the whole exceeds 8,000,000*l.* The huge dock-gates well deserve notice. The inner harbour, the docks, and the workshops are surrounded by a high wall, and can only be entered with tickets. The inner harbour contains all the North Sea station ships not in use. There is a church and a few shops, and a considerable space is marked out for the town in course of formation, and already containing 10,000 Inhab. During the French war of 1870, the Prussian fleet lay here in safety, the enemy not daring to approach. This formidable neighbour to England, the "Sebastopol of the North Sea," is useless for commerce. It is distant about 24 hours by steam from Yarmouth Roads, and the coasting trade of our east coast! The mouth of the Weser, E. of Wilhelms-hafen, is also being strongly fortified.] market gardens, and the picturesque costume of its peasantry.

9 m. Bergedorf Stat.—A village belonging to Hamburg.

The country traversed is, for the most part, entirely flat. It is a portion of that great plain of sand which extends almost uninterruptedly from Holstein to St. Petersburg. Generally speaking, it has a character of extreme barrenness, producing little but heath and scanty plantations of fir. The whole of this vast plain is scattered over with rounded fragments of slate and granite rocks, such as nowhere exist in situ between the Elbe and Baltic, nor anywhere nearer than the mountains of Norway and Sweden, whence they must have been torn, and transported over the Baltic. These boulders occur above and below the surface, from the size of a pebble to that of a house.

10 m. Schwarzenbeck Stat.; a great deal of fir forest.

8 m. Büchen Junct. Stat.—[Branch Rly., N. 29 m., to Lübeck (Rte. 57), up the valley of the Stecknitz, passing Möln on a lake traversed by the rly. (where Till Eulenspiegel is reported to have breathed his last, 1350, and his grave is shown). Ratzeburg Stat.—(Inn: Rathskeller). This town, Pop. 4010 (not seen from the Stat.), was once a bishop's see, and is situated on an island in the midst of a lake connected with the shore by a causeway, the slopes around richly wooded with beech. It is the capital of the Duchy of Lauenburg, annexed to Prussia in 1865. It was formerly a Bishop's see, founded in 1154, but annexed to Mecklenburg in 1648. The fine Cathedral is entirely of brick of the 12th cent.]

[Branch Rly. from Büchen S. 23 m., to Lüneburg Junct. Stat. (Rte. 59), crossing the Elbe at Lauenburg Stat. (Inns: Rathskeller; Schwan). A town of 3400 Inhab., upon the Elbe, now Prussian. The K. of Denmark used to levy tolls on all vessels passing the Elbe.]

ROUTE 61.

HAMBURG TO BERLIN, VIÂ BUCHEN AND HAGENOW.—RAIL.

Distance, 175 m.; time, 6 to 8 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

The line viâ Lüneburg is somewhat shorter (Rte. 61A).

rt. On leaving Hamburg Stat., the line is carried across the marsh-land on the north of the Elbe through the district of the Vierlande (four lands) i.e., the four districts of lowland enclosed by dykes, remarkable for its

The canal of the Stecknitz, joining the Elbe to the Baltic, crossed by the railway near Büchen Stat., is one of the oldest in Europe. We enter the territory of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, a few miles before reaching 10 m. Boitzenburg Stat. (Klepper's Inn is tolerable), a small town upon the Elbe.

A large part of Mecklenburg is fertile corn-land, contrasting remarkably with the sandy deserts of Lauenburg, near Hamburg, and the dreary waste around Berlin. Upon the heaths and commons numerous flocks of geese are fed, which furnish a large portion of Europe with quills, and the inhabitants of this country with a delicacy called goose-breasts, consisting of that part of the bird smoked and cured like bacon.

19 m. Hagenow Junct. Stat.—Rly. N.E. viâ Schwerin to Kleinen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 58), in progress N.W. to Mölln for Lübeck, &c.

The line to Berlin turns S.E. to 14 m. Ludwigslust Stat. (Inn: H. de Weimar), a town of 4300 Inhab., the summer residence of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, whose Palace, built 1772-79, is the principal building. It contains a small cabinet of pictures, among them some good specimens of the Dutch School, and a collection of Slavonic antiquities, chiefly found in Mecklenburg. Many were dug up on the site of the Temple of Radegast. Attached to the palace are a spacious park and garden. The Russian chapel contains the mausoleum of the Princess Helena Carlowna, died 1803.

The Stables of the Grand Duke are extensive. He possesses a fine stud, and pays great attention to the improvement of the breed.

At the village of Wöbbelin (5 m.), on the road to Schwerin, is a cast-iron monument to Theodor Körner, born at Dresden 1791 (see Rte. 87), who fell in an action near Gadebusch, fighting against the French, 1813, a few hours after composing his celebrated "Schwertlied," His remains rest under an oak, where they were interred by his brothers in arms.

[The old town of Gadebusch is said to be named from the Grove of the God (Godesbosch) Radegast, which stood here. The brick church is of the 12th cent. The circular W. window has tracery of bronze, and is called Radegast's crown, from a tradition that it was made out of the idol's crown. In the king's chapel is buried Albert of Mecklenburg, who was King of Sweden until defeated at Falkoping by Margaret of Denmark, 1388. Obs. a picture of him and a brass of his wife Helena of Brunswick.]

5 m. Grabow Stat., a small town of Mecklenburg, containing large store-houses for butter, which is sold in great quantities at 6 fairs held here annually.

The Prussian frontier is crossed a little way beyond Grabow. The rly. then bends S. towards the Elbe, which it reaches at 23 m. Wittenberge Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (not to be confounded with Luther's burial-place, Rte. 63).—Rly. S. crossing the Elbe to Stendal Junct. Stat. (Rte. 64). W. viâ Dömitz to Lüneburg and Bremen.

The line to Berlin turns S.E., passing

9 m. Wilsnach Stat.—Very old ch. here.

23 m. Neustadt on the Dosse Stat. Schnellpost twice daily, 4½ hrs. by Kyritz to Wittstock, a considerable manufacturing village of 7200 Inhab. In 1636 the Swedes gained a victory here over the Imperial troops.

[About 12 m. E. of this, near Neu Ruppín, is the Château of Rheinsberg, where Frederick the Great spent many of his youthful years, and, according to his own account, the happiest of his life. Ziethen, one of the generals of the Seven Years' War, was buried at Wustrau.]

9 m. Friesack Stat.

[At Fehrbellin, 9 m. N.E. of Friesach, the Great Elector of Brandenburg, June 18, 1675, gained a decisive victory, with 5000 cavalry, over the Swedes, 11,000 strong, by which he laid the foundation of the greatness of the House of Brandenburg.]

15 m. Nauen Stat. (Inns: Stadt Hamburg; Goldner Stern). A town of 3050 Inhab. The greater part of it was destroyed by fire in 1830.

15 m. Spandau Stat. (Inn: Rother Adler). A town of 17,386 Inhab., and second-class fortress, including some of the most important military establishments, cannon foundry (conspicuous building), &c., in Prussia, at the junction of the Spree with the Havel, which is here crossed by the railway. These rivers afford the means of inundating the surrounding country, in the event of a hostile attack. Its citadel stands on an island. The Church of St. Nicholas, a Gothic edifice of the 16th cent., contains several monuments, and a very ancient metal font. The Penitentiary, once the Palace of the Electors of Brandenburg, is admirably managed, and is capable of containing 750 prisoners. Steamer to Berlin in summer.

rt. About 3 m. before reaching Berlin the railway crosses the Spree, near the Palace and Gardens of Charlottenburg. (See below.)

5 m. Berlin Junct. Stat.

This Hamburger Bahnhof is to the N.W. of the city, outside the Neu Thor. Cabs and omnibus in waiting; a metal ticket is handed the traveller corresponding to the number of the cab he is entitled to in his turn.

Inns: Kaiserhof (opened 1876), corner of Wilhelms- and Ziethen-platz, large, well-situated;—H. St. Petersburg;—Meinhardt's H.;—H. du Nord, badly ventilated;—H. de Rome, large;—H. Victoria;—H. Royal;—British H., all situated Unter den Linden, expensive, good;—H. de Russie, near the Spree, the Museum, and Palaces, good;—H. d'Angleterre, also good, and well situated in the Schinkelplatz, near the Schlossbrücke, and the Bau-Academie;—H. Brandenburg, Charlottenstrasse, comfortable;—Markgraf's H., 16 Taubenstrasse, family and commercial;—Schlosser's H., 17 Jägerstrasse, good, quiet German house.

Charges, top rooms, 2½ to 3 mks.: it is best to inquire the price on arrival; breakfast, 1½ mk., table-d'hôte, 3 to 4 mks.

Café-Restaurants (Dinner between 1 and 5, 1.75 to 2 mks.)—at the Kaiserhof, Hiller, 62 Linden;—Borchardt, 48 Französischestrasse;—de l'Europe, 27 Linden;—Royal (Meinhardt's H.), 33 Linden;—Bellevue, outside Potsdam Gate; Kunert, in the Schlossplatz. (Sandra, pike-perch, and Teltower Rüben, turnips from the village of Teltow, are Berlin delicacies.)

Wine and Dining-rooms.—Kühn, 4 Werderscher Markt;—Rähmel, 45 Markgrafenstrasse.

Breakfast-rooms.—Büder, 1 Königsstrasse;—Deicke, 11 Königsstrasse.

Luncheons.—The Rathskeller at the Rathhaus, Königsstrasse side.

Confectioners, for midday chocolate, &c.—Kranzler, 25 Linden;—Stehely (Eng. newspapers), 53 Charlottenstr.;—Josty, 8 Schlossfreiheit. For Ladies.—Weiss, 38 Jägerstrasse.

Beer-houses (usually warm meals also).—Café Suisse, 84 Dorotheenstrasse;—Donny, Krausenstrasse. For White Beer (fashion dying out), Klausing, 80 Zimmerstrasse.

Theatres (see below).

Railways (see below).

General Post Office (7 A.M. to 8 P.M.), Telegraph Stat. and Poste Restante, 60 Königsstrasse. Letter-boxes in various parts of the town.

English Embassy, Leipziger Platz, close to Potsdam Gate.

Droschkies or cabs (open or shut carriages). Superior (driver wears white braid), 15 min. drive, between 7 A.M. and 11 P.M., 1 to 2 pers., 1 mk.; 3 to 4, 1 mk. 50 pf. Inferior, 1 to 2 pers., 60 pf.; 3 to 4 pers., 1 mk. From

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and titles.

2.

3.

4.

Rly. Stats., 25 pf. more. By night double fares.

Omnibuses, 20 pf., traverse the city in all directions: Schlossplatz to Brandenburg Gate; from the Kreuzberg, through the Friedrichstrasse, to the Oranienburg Gate; from the Molkenmarkt to the Botanic Gardens; from the Lustgarten to Moabit.

Tramways (Pferde-Eisenbahn) to Charlottenburg and Westend, from the Kupfergraben, through the Brandenburg Gate and Thiergarten, 25 pf. Other lines constructing.

Steamboats on the Spree from the Jannowitzbrücke every hr. to Stralau, Treptow, Eierhauschen and Köpenick (see below).

Shops.—The best are in the Unter den Linden, in the Friedrich, Charlotten, and Markgrafen-strassen (all three running into the Leipzigerstrasse), on the Schlossplatz, and in the Brüder, Breite and Königsstrasse. Haberdashers, Gerson's Bazaar, 5 Werderschemarkt; Amber trinkets, Hirsch, 26 Linden; Glass and China, Royal Porcelain Manufactory, 194 Friedrichstrasse; Philosophical Insts., Pistor and Martin, 34 Mauerstrasse; Travelling Articles, Domuth, 1 Schlossfreiheit; Ackermann, 62 Königsstrasse.

Booksellers, books in all languages, old and rare works, Asher & Co., 5 Unter den Linden.

Ornaments in cast iron, and china transparencies, are peculiar to Berlin.

A Valet de Place receives about 4 mks. per diem.

Baths.—102 Friedrichstrasse; Swimming-baths in the Spree.

English Church.—Service every Sunday at 11 in a hall of the Monbijou Palace (granted for the purpose by the Emperor), aided by the British Minister. The chaplain depends a good deal upon casual visitors and travellers for stipend.

*Time-Table of Sight*s.—N.B. As the days and hours of admission are liable to vary, consult the Hotel-Zeitung for daily information.

Daily: Royal Palace, 10—4. Royal Library, Public Library, 10—1. Raczyński Picture Gallery, 11—3. Zoological Garden. Charlottenburg, Monbijou, 10—5. Rathhaus, Reichstag, Exchange, 12—2. Bethanien, 10—4. Botanic Garden, 8—12, 2—7. Changing Guard, 11 A.M., and Military Band opposite the Guard-house. Daily, except Monday: Museums of Pictures, Sculpture, &c., National Gallery.

Sunday.—Waterworks at Sans-Souci, 12 to dusk.

Monday.—Models of Fortresses, 9—2.

Tuesday.—Gems and Coins, and Mediæval Collection in Museum, 10—4. Cabinet of Natural History, 12—2. Schinkel's Museum, 11—1. Pictures in Bellevue, 10—1 and 2—6. Sans-Souci Waterworks, Ravené Gall., 11—2.

Wednesday.—Vases and Bronzes in Museum, 10—4. Anatomical Museum, 2—4. Arsenal, 2—4.

Thursday.—Models of Fortresses, 9—2. Wagner's Picture Gallery, 10—1. Waterworks at Sans Souci, 3—6 (the great fountains only).

Friday.—Gems and Coins and Mediæval Collection in Museum, 10—4. Cabinet of Natural History, 12—2. Schinkel's Museum, 11—1. Pictures in Bellevue, 10—1 and 2—6. Ravené Gall., 11—2.

Saturday.—Anatomical Museum, 2—4. Arsenal, 2—4.

Berlin, the capital of the Prussian realm and of the German Empire, the residence of the German Emperor and of the foreign ministers, stands on the Spree, a small stream with a very sluggish current; which, however, by means of canals, communicates with the Oder and the Baltic on the one hand, and flows into the Elbe on the other. In population it now ranks fourth among the capitals of Europe, numbering 960,000 Inhab., excluding the suburbs, having had only 250,000 in 1833—a rate of increase almost without parallel. Of these 21,000 are soldiers of the garrison, giving to the city, from their number, the air of a camp; 16,000 Jews, 6000 French Protestants, descendants of exiles driven out of France by the intolerance of Louis XIV., and 50,000 Roman Catholics.

The city is situated 98 ft. above the sea, in the midst of a dreary plain of sand, destitute of either beauty or fertility; “an oasis of stone and brick in a Sahara of sand.” Previous to the reign of Frederick I. it was an unimportant town, confined to the rt. bank of the Spree, and to the island on which the Palace and Museum now stand. It is surprising that the foundation of a town should ever have been laid on such a spot; but it is far more wonderful that it should have grown up, notwithstanding, into one of the most flourishing and magnificent cities of Europe; and, since 1830, a great manufacturing, and commercial centre, and the capital of a great empire.

Owing to the want of stone in the neighbourhood, the larger part even of the public buildings are of brick and plaster; still there is much to admire in the modern architecture of the city, and especially of the private houses on the outskirts, the Thiergarten, &c., which display originality of design and elegance of taste. The flatness of the ground and the sandy soil produce inconveniences which the stranger will not be long in detecting. But at least Berlin is now well supplied with fresh water pumped up from the Spree by 8 steam-engines.

The passing traveller in search of amusement will soon exhaust the sights of Berlin, and may find it less attractive than most of the great European capitals. The stranger coming to reside here, provided with good introductions, may find an agreeable literary society among the professors of the University, many of whom enjoy a European celebrity. The society of the upper classes is on the whole not very accessible to strangers. The hotels of the Diplomatic Corps are an exception, and in them the most agreeable soirées are held in the winter season.

The finest buildings are concentrated in the very small space of $\frac{1}{4}$ m. between the Palace (Schloss) and the Brandenburg Gate, or very near it. Few European capitals can show so much architectural display as is seen in the colossal Palace, the beautiful colonnade of the Museum, the Guard-house, the great Opera, and the University opposite. These, with the Arsenal and the Academy of Arts, are all within a stone's throw of one another, and the greater part may be seen by turning round on one's heel, while the two churches and theatre in the Gendarmenmarkt are not many paces off.

The following route embraces the principal buildings and objects of interest in the city:—

Proceeding E. up the “Unter den Linden,” on the l. the Academy of Arts, University, Guard-house, and Arsenal, in the centre Frederick the Great's monument; rt. Emperor's Palace, Library, Opera-house, Imperial Prince's Palace. Across the Schlossbrücke to the Old and New Museums and Dom; cross to Friedrichs Brücke, up the Neue Friedrichstrasse, through the old town, and by the Königsstrasse, back S. past the Rathhaus, across the Langebrücke to the Schloss and Royal Stables; across the Schleusbrücke and Werder Markt to the Französischestrasse. St. Hedwig's ch., S. down the Markgrafenstrasse, past the French ch., Theatre, Schiller's monument and New ch. into the Lindenstrasse. S.W. to the Belle Alliance Platz and Column, N.W. up the Wilhelmstrasse to W. the Leipzigerstrasse, in which on l. the War Office, Imperial Parliament House, and at end Leipzig Platz, Count Brandenburg's monument and Potsdam Gate. Return E. into the Wilhelmstrasse, and up it N.W. past the Statues of Frederick's Generals, Prince Karl's Palace, Foreign, Finance, Home, and Law Offices, on to the “Unter den Linden,” and W. through the Brandenburg Gate to the Königs Platz, Column of Vic- tory, Raczinsky Palace, Kroll's Establishment, along the l. bank of the Spree, past the Café Zelte, to the Bellevue Palace. S. to the Gr. Stern, and W. to Charlottenburg, S.E. to the Zoological Garden, and back N.E. through the Thiergarten, passing Fred. Will. III. Monument, and to the Potsdam or Brandenburg Gates.

The *street Unter den Linden is so called from a double avenue of lime-trees, which form a shady walk in the middle, while on each side runs a carriage road. It is the principal and most frequented street in this city. The view along it is terminated on the W. by the magnificent Brandenburg Gate* (built 1789-93 by Langhans, at a cost of 75,000*l.*), an imitation of the Propylæa at Athens, but on a larger scale. After the Arc de l'Etoile at Paris, this is the finest modern triumphal gateway in Europe. The four-horse car of Victory on the top, by Schadow, was carried to Paris as a trophy by Napoleon (1806), but it was recovered by the Prussians in 1814, who bestowed upon the goddess, after her return, the eagle and iron cross which she now bears.

Statues.—The Prussians have exhibited their gratitude and respect to the memory of the worthies of their country, in the statues erected in the streets and squares of the capital. Those to whom this honour has been paid are mostly military heroes. The Government has rendered only tardy justice to the greatest of them all, Frederick the Great*, to whom a monument was erected in 1851, in the Unter den Linden, opposite the Emperor's Palace and the University. It consists of an equestrian statue in bronze, modelled by Rauch, on a granite pedestal 25 ft. high, presenting on each face bronze groups of the great military commanders of the Seven Years' War, on foot and horseback, all the size of life, and all portraits, in high relief. The most prominent figures are those of his four best generals—the Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick, afterwards the commander of the allies against Dumouriez and the forces of the French Convention, Prince Heinrich of Prussia, General Seydlitz, and General Ziethen. The standing figures include all the military celebrities of the period. One of the faces of the pedestal contains, between the statues of Seydlitz and Ziethen, the figures of three statesmen—Count Finck von Finckenstein, Frederick's minister of foreign affairs; Schlaberndorf, who did so much to keep the finances in order during the worst periods of the war; and Count von Carmer, the state chancellor, who completed the code known as the Allgemeines Landrecht, and re-organized the whole legal system. Three other names connected with the arts and science are also found in this division—Graun, Frederick's favourite musical composer, Lessing, and Kant. The whole number of portrait-figures, the size of life, on the four faces of the pedestal, is thirty-one. To reproduce them correctly the best authorities have been consulted, and authentic drawings, busts, and medals of the period have been strictly followed.

Beneath the figures are two tablets inscribed with the names of 80 distinguished soldiers of the age of Frederick, whose portraits could not be given. The third side bears the names of 16 statesmen, artists, and men of science of the epoch. The fourth or front tablet has the following simple inscription:—

“To Frederick the Great, Frederick William III., 1840; completed under Frederick William IV., 1851.”

Above the figures there is at each corner a female figure representing the four cardinal virtues—Prudence, Justice, Fortitude, and Temperance. Between them are bas-reliefs, emblematic of different periods of the monarch's life; by a mixture of the ideal and reality, his birth, his education—civil and military—and his career before and after he became king, are represented with simplicity and neatness. In the second relief a muse is teaching the young prince history, pointing out to him the names of the commanders he most admired—Alexander, Cæsar, and Gustavus Adolphus. In the third Minerva is giving him the sword. Another represents the King after his defeat at Kolin, sitting on a waterpipe, looking earnestly on the ground, on which he is drawing the lines of a plan with his cane. The other reliefs exhibit him encouraging the arts of peace; he is in the hut of a Silesian linen-weaver examining his web; or playing the flute, on which instrument he was a proficient; or walking in the gardens of Sans Souci, surrounded by his favourite greyhounds. The last tablet contains his apotheosis.

The equestrian statue itself is 17 ft. 3 in. high; it represents the monarch "in his habit as he lived;" in the costume of the period. Even the queue, to our ideas not only unsightly but unnatural, has been displayed boldly. The stick carried by a band from the right wrist, the three-cornered hat, the pistol holsters, and all the accoutrements of the horse are minutely copied from the relics preserved of the Great King.

On the Long Bridge, built 1692–95, leading from the Königsstrasse to the Schlossplatz is the equestrian statue of the Great Elector Fred. Wm. (d. 1688), in bronze, modelled by Schlüter (1703), and possessing considerable merit as a work of art.

Opposite the Doric Guard-house (Königswache, by Schinkel 1816) stands the bronze statue (erected 1826) of Blücher, a spirited figure. The pedestal is decorated with good bas-reliefs, incidents of the campaigns of 1813–15; on his left is Field-Marshal Gneisenau, on his right York, both erected 1855. Facing him, on each side of the Guardhouse, are the marble statues (erected 1822) of Generals Bülow and Scharnhorst (died 1813), the reformer of the Prussian army after the battle of Jena, and the founder of the present military system of Prussia; all five by the sculptor Rauch.

The cannon and mortars behind the Guardhouse were brought from Paris, 1814; the mortars were cast in France, to be employed in the siege of Cadiz, and are the fellows of the one in St. James's Park. The cannon originally came from Lübeck, and was carried off by the French in 1806.

In the centre of the Königs Platz, outside the Brandenburg Gate, stands the Column of Victory* (Siegessäule), unveiled Sept. 2, 1873, in the presence of the Emperor William.

Originally intended to commemorate the war of Prussia and Austria against Denmark, actually commenced after the war of Prussia against Austria, and now completed after the Franco-German war of 1870–71, the design has been modified so as to combine the three campaigns. It consists of a red granite substructure serving as pedestal to a circular hall or temple, entered on the N. side and adorned with 4 bronze reliefs, 41 ft. by 6½ ft.; that on the E. side, by Cailandrelli, representing an incident in the Danish war (1864): the storming of the Düppel redoubt. That on the N. side, by Schulz, an incident in the Austrian war (1866): the King of Prussia decorating the Crown Prince after the battle of Sadowa. That on the W. side, by Kiel, an incident in the French war (1870): the delivery by Adj.-Gen. Reille of the letter from the Emp. Nap. III. to the King of Prussia during the battle of Sedan. That on the S. side, by Wolff, represents the triumphal entry of the troops into Berlin, June 1871, with the dedication, "Dem siegreichen Heere das Dankbare Vaterland."

The mosaic allegorical picture is by Salvati, from the designs of A. v. Werner.

The roof of the temple is supported by 16 columns, 16 ft. high by 3 ft. in diameter; and above this rises the main sandstone shaft, with interior iron staircase leading to the balustraded gallery above. This column is fluted, and divided into 3 sections; the lower containing 20 Danish, and the two upper as many Austrian and French cannons. Eagles ornament the capital.

A colossal bronze gilt female figure (Borussia), 31 ft. high, by Drake, surmounts the monument, the total height of which is 194 ft. The general effect can hardly be considered satisfactory.

On the Wilhelms-Platz, near the Potsdam Gate, are bronze statues of six commanders in the Seven Years' War, —Prince Leopold of Dessau, Ziethen, Schwerin, Winterfeldt, Keith, and Seydlitz. These are modelled by Kiss and Schadow, 1862, and replace the original marble statues removed to Lichterfelde.

In the Dönhofs Platz, opposite the Prussian Chamber of Deputies, is a statue, erected 1875, to the Minister Baron von Stein, by Schievelbein and Hagen.

Churches.—These are not the objects which will attract the most notice in Berlin. The attendance at church by the inhabitants is also small, not exceeding 17 per cent of the population.

St. Nicholas Ch., a Gothic edifice of different periods, in the Poststrasse, in the old town, contains the tomb of Baron Puffendorf, born 1631, died here in 1690. He was historiographer, privy councillor, and judge at the court of Frederick William, the Great Elector.

The Domkirche, on the E. side of the Lustgarten, between the Schloss and Museum, built 1750, embellished 1817–21, is ugly in its exterior, and within has hardly the air of a church. It is the burial-place of some 80 ancestors of the Royal Family, including the Great Elector, and Frederick I., first King of Prussia, in gilded coffins. The bronze effigy of the Elector John Cicero (d. 1499), cast by a Burgundian artist, in 1540,—that of the Elector Joachim I., made in 1540 by Johann Vischer of Nuremberg,—and a mosaic of St. Peter, given by Pope Pius VII. to King Frederick William III., on one side of the altar, deserve notice. The Domchor or "Berlin Choir," who sing Mendelssohn's Psalms, unaccompanied by instrumental music, on Sundays (10 A.M.), should be heard by all lovers of sacred music. Contiguous to the Dom, a cloister on the plan of the Campo Santo at Pisa is intended for a royal burial-place, and is to be adorned with frescoes.

The two churches in the Gen darmenmarkt, the Französische Kirche and the Neue Kirche, to the N. and S. of the Theatre, were built in the last century by Gontard, in imitation of the twin churches on the Piazza del Popolo at Rome. The Catholic St. Hedwig's Ch., finished 1773, behind the Opera House, is a poor imitation of the Pantheon. The Garnisonkirche, in the Neue Friedrichsstrasse, built 1722, restored 1861, is attended by the soldiers of the garrison: the music is good. It contains 5 paintings by Rhode, of no great merit, and very inappropriate to a church, representing the death of some of the generals of the Seven Years' War. Against the walls are hung tablets bearing the list of names of those who fell in the war of liberation 1813–15—a similar memorial will be found in almost every parish church in Prussia, with the simple inscription, "They died for King and Fatherland."

Modern Churches.—Friedrichswerder Ch., on the Werder Markt, a modern Gothic structure, 1823–30, designed by Schinkel. It is of brick, and the mouldings, window tracery, cornices, corbels, and other ornaments usually cut out of stone, are of terracotta. The altar-piece is by W. F. Schadow.

St. Peter's, at the S. end of the Brüder-strasse, is another fine Gothic church (1846–53), also of brick, with tower 300 ft. high, by Strack.

St. Michael's, near Bethany Hospital (Soller, arch., 1856–60), a Romanesque edifice for the Roman Catholics, is said to be the finest ch. in Berlin. The gable statue of the Archangel Michael is by Kiss.

The Jews' Synagogue, Oranienburgerstrasse, is perhaps the most costly one in Europe; splendid within and without; erected from Knoblauch's designs by the wealthy Hebrew community here, 1859-63. It is lighted by gas from without, in a very skilful manner. Friday evening at 6½ is the time to attend the service: very fine vocal and instrumental music.

The Schlossbrücke*, erected from Schinkel's design, 1824, is decorated with 8 groups of marble statues, representing the life of a warrior. S. side:—1. Victory telling the boy the history of the Heroes, by E. Wolff. 2. Minerva instructing him in the use of weapons, by Schievelbein. 3. And presenting him with his arms, by Möller. 4. Victory crowning the conqueror, by Drake. N. side:—5. Victory supporting the wounded warrior, by Wichmann. 6. Minerva encourages him to renew the combat, by A. Wolff. 7. Minerva assisting him in the combat, by Bläser. 8. Iris carries off the fallen warrior to Olympus, by Wredow.

The open space laid out with walks and flower-beds, and planted with trees, called the Lustgarten, is surrounded on three sides by the Palace, Museum, and Cathedral. In the centre is the fine equestrian statue of Fred. Will. III., by Wolff, erected 1870, and in front of the Museum is a gigantic basin of polished granite, 22 ft. in diameter. The block out of which it was formed was a vast isolated boulder, known as great Markgrafenstein, and lay at Fürstenwald, nearly 30 m. from Berlin.

At the Palace gate, on the side of the Lustgarten, stand bronze horses and grooms, imitated from those on the Monte Cavallo, Rome, by Clodt, gifts of the Emperor Nicholas. The Berliners have nicknamed them "Gehemmter Fortschritt," and "Beförderter Rückschritt." *

The Royal Palace, or Schloss, built chiefly by Frederick the Great's father, is indebted to its size (600 rooms) for the marked air of grandeur which its exterior possesses. Within, it is sumptuously furnished: the state apartments (open 10 to 1, tickets 50 pf.) are shown by the castellan, who lives in the 2nd court. Its principal features are the Chapel under the dome, built by Stüler and painted by Schadow, 1845-53; and the many portraits of members of the Brandenburg house with which the Schloss is decorated. In the Rittersaal (Knights' Hall), is the silver throne, presented to the Emperor, in 1867, by the officers of the army and navy, and a side-board covered with massive old plate of gold and silver. In the White Hall, sumptuously fitted up at great cost (120,000*l.*), and decorated with the statues of the 12 Brandenburg Electors, Rauch's Victoria, and 8 allegorical figures representing the Prussian provinces, the first meeting of the Prussian Parliament was held, April 1847. The most interesting rooms are those which were inhabited by Frederick the Great, at the corner of the building facing the Schloss Platz, and nearest to the long bridge on the first floor. In the various apartments hang paintings of Charles I. and his Queen Henrietta, by Van Dyk—Marriage of St. Catherine, by Giulio Romano—Virtue quitting the Earth, Mars and Venus, by Rubens—Napoleon crossing the Great St. Bernard, by David—and in the White Hall a portrait of Frederick William III. of Prussia, by Sir Thos. Lawrence, a present from Geo. IV.—Queen Victoria, by Hayter. There are some good works of the modern German school: Leonore (Bürger's), by Lessing.

In former times, according to vulgar belief, this building was haunted by the ghost of a Countess of Orlamunda, called the White Lady, who appeared only to announce calamity to a member of the royal family.

The Emperor's Palace, on the S. side of the Linden, facing the statue of Frederick the Great, may be visited during the absence of the Emperor, indicated by the flag not being hoisted. It was built from Langhans' designs, in * Progress checked—Retgression encouraged.

1836, and contains handsome suites of apartments. The Royal Library (see below) forms part of the same block.

The Palace of the Crown Prince Frederick William, and his consort the Princess Royal of England, is a pretentious edifice, built 1687, with Corinthian portico, opposite the Arsenal, fitted up for the royal pair 1859 (shown by the castellan during the absence of the family). It was previously the residence of Fred. William III. (died 1840); and 100 years earlier Frederick the Great, when Crown Prince, lived in it.

The Old Museum* (adm. free daily, except Monday, 10—4, Sunday, 12—2), facing the Lustgarten.—This very handsome edifice was finished in 1828, from the designs of Schinkel; its foundations are laid on many thousand piles, as the spot on which it stands was previously a branch of the Spree, which has been filled up.

At the rt. side of the outer staircase is the well-known bronze group of the Amazon and tiger, by Kiss. On the l. side a horseman contending with a lion, by A. Wolff.

Under the portico are statues of three great Prussian sculptors—Rauch, Winkelmann, Schadow, and one architect, Schinkel.

The walls of the noble Ionic portico have been adorned with frescoes, now much damaged, executed under the direction of Cornelius, from the somewhat fantastic designs of Schinkel. They are in a style of composition common in German art, and profess to illustrate allegorically the history of the formation of the universe and the intellectual development of mankind.

The collection which the Museum contains consists of—a. The Antiquarium, on the ground-floor.—b. The Sculpture Gallery, on the 1st floor.—c. The Picture Gallery, on the upper storey. A catalogue is almost indispensable.

a. The Antiquarium (Entrance under the bridge at the back of the Museum) consists of—

Collection of Vases, Bronzes, Terracottas, Mosaics.—Admittance, Wed. 10 to 4. The Vases, chiefly Etruscan and Greek, amount in number to 1600, and are exceedingly well classified. The contents of this portion of the Museum are principally derived from the collections of Bartholdy, Prussian minister at Rome, Baron Koller, Austrian commander at Naples, and from that formerly in the Palace.

The Bronzes comprise Greek and Roman statuettes; Roman Penates or Household Gods; Greek and Roman arms, armour and utensils; 2 large Etruscan circular shields, &c.

Collection of Gems and Coins.—Admittance, Tues. and Frid., 10 to 4. Among the 10,000 gems are many first-rate works from the collection of Storsch; an onyx with a sacred Egyptian falcon; a carnelian with Serapis; a carnelian with the Seven before Thebes; a carnelian with the so-called portrait of Pompey; an onyx with Ceres; an onyx with Hercules and Cerberus. Here is also the "Hildesheimer Silberfund," a collection of some 50 embossed vessels of silver plate, found at Hildesheim, in 1868, and asserted to be the spoils of Quintilius Varus, defeated and killed, A.D. 9, though including some of later date. The selected coins are exhibited in cases, and number nearly 1000, Greek, Roman, and Mediæval; the rest, about 90,000 pieces, are locked up in cabinets.

Mediæval Collection.—Admittance, Tues. and Fri., 10 to 4. Here are some fine specimens of the painted and glazed earthenware called Majolica, made in the duchy of the Urbino in 15th and 16th cent., and other objects of a higher order of art, also in baked clay painted and glazed. Among these may be noticed busts of Pier Soderini, Lorenzo de' Medici, and Macchiavelli; a Virgin and Child, school of Michael Angelo; and a large altar-piece by Lucca della Robbia, a beautiful high relief of clay gilt. Other objects deserving of attention are the golden shrine of St. Patroclus, brought from Soest, of very beautiful workmanship (dated 1313?), and some painted glass. There is a catalogue, costing 75 pf.

b. The Sculpture Gallery is entered through a grand circular hall extending the whole height of the building, and very imposing from its size and proportions. Around it are 18 antique statues, while above hang 9 16th-cent. Arras tapestries, worked from the cartoons of Raphael; they once belonged to Henry VIII. and were purchased on the sale of Charles I.'s effects by the Duke of Alba. The antiquities, principally composed of the collection of Cardinal Polignac, are, with few exceptions, not above mediocrity as works of art, and a large part of them are much indebted to modern restorers. There is, however, at least one exception. The Boy praying is one of the finest antique bronze statues in existence; it was found in the bed of the Tiber.—Apollo restraining Hercules from carrying away the Delphic tripod, a relief.—Venus.—Daughter of Niobe.—Wrestler.—Bacchante.—Procession of Bacchus and Ariadne.—Bust of Julius Cæsar; it used to stand on the table of Frederick the Great;—a hero or Mercury

NEW MUSEUM. a. Ground Floor. b. First Floor. c. Upper Storey.

OLD MUSEUM.

a. Ground Floor. b. First Floor.

found at Syra, 1831, the head and arms modern;—Bust of Pericles;—Canova's Hebe — are almost the only others worth notice.

c. The Picture Gallery, on the upper storey of the building, is composed of a selection of paintings formerly in the Royal Palaces of Berlin, Sans Souci, and Charlottenburg, the Giustiniani collection from Venice, and the pictures of Mr. Solly, an English merchant, besides valuable works collected by v. Rumohr and others, and the Suermondt collection purchased in 1874.

The Berlin Gallery ranks below the Galleries of Munich and Dresden in works of first-rate excellence, but it has good specimens of a great number of masters, especially of the early German and Italian schools. For those who are desirous of studying the history and progress of the art, from the Byzantine schools, through those of Florence and Siena, to its period of excellence, and thence to trace its gradual decay, there can be no better opportunity than is here afforded them.

The arrangement, combining the chronological order with the classification according to schools, is admirable, and the whole collection complete and most instructive.

The gallery is divided into 35 cabinets, grouped in 3 divisions, Italian, Netherlandish and German, and Ancient. In the 4th cabinet, on the l. of the entrance, begin the Italian schools; on the one next to it, i.e., the 5th from the entrance, begin the Flemish schools. These two cabinets, therefore, may be considered as points of departure. If the spectator continue on to the l. he will pass in succession through the cabinets devoted to Flemish art, commencing with the Van Eycks and ending with the followers of Rembrandt and Rubens: if he take an opposite direction, to the rt., he will find in regular order the works of the schools of Venice, Lombardy, Florence, Rome, &c.

The gallery by no means abounds in fine works of the great masters, but it is particularly rich in the Flemish and Dutch schools. Among the pictures which appear most deserving of attention are the following:—

1st room.—Cima da Conegliano: Madonna and Child with 4 Saints (2). Vittore Carpaccio: St. Stephen ordained Deacon by St. Peter (23). Andrea Mantegna: Angels mourning over Christ, a masterpiece (28). G. F. Carotto: Madonna and Child, with Angels (40).

2nd room.—Fra Angelico: Madonna and Child, with SS. Dominic and Peter Martyr (60). Fra Filippo

OLD MUSEUM, FIRST FLOOR.—PICTURE GALLERY.

Lippi: The Infant Saviour worshipped by the Madonna, with SS. John and Bernard (69).

5th room.—Francia: The Madonna in Glory, with SS. Geminian, Bernard, Dorothy, Catharine, Jerome, Louis (122).

6th room.—Titian: His Daughter Lavina (166). G. B. Moroni: Portrait of a Young Man (167).

7th room.—Palma Vecchio: Portrait of his Daughter (197a). Bordone: Portrait of a Young Woman (198).

8th room.—Correggio: Io and the Cloud, a repetition of that at Vienna, but inferior to it, as the flesh seems to have faded and the shadows to have become black (216). Leda and the Swan (218). These 2 pictures, Correggio's masterpieces in profane subjects, formed the gems of the gallery of the Regent Duke of Orleans. His son, out of prudery, cut out the heads of Io and Leda and burnt them, and cut the pictures themselves to pieces. Luckily the strips were preserved, and purchased by Frederick the Great for Sans Souci. The heads therefore are insertions; that of Io was painted by Prudhon, a French artist, and that of Leda by a German artist, Schlesinger.

9th room.—A. del Sarto: Madonna, with SS. Peter, Julia, &c., in his best manner (246). Fra Bartolommeo: The Assumption (249).

10th room.—Raphael: Virgin and Child, of his Florentine period (247a); Madonna and Child, called Casa di Colonna, of his later Florentine period (248). Giacomo Francia: Virgin and Child, with SS. Dominic, Francis, John the Baptist, Magdalen, Agnes (281). Domenichino: St. Jerome (362). Guido Reni: The Hermits Paul and Antony in the Wilderness (373). Murillo: St. Antony of Padua, with the Divine Infant (414). Alonso Cano: St. Agnes (414b). Zurbaran: Christ at the Pillar (415). Carlo Dolce: St. John writing the Revelation (423).

11th room.—Tintoretto: St. Mark instructing 3 Procurators of Venice (316).

13th room.—Lesueur: St. Bruno, founder of the Carthusian Order (466). Nic. Poussin: Education of Jupiter (467).

14th room.—All the pictures and drawings in this and in the two following rooms, and most of the pictures in the great 17th room, belong to the Suermondt Collection, which was purchased in 1874.

15th room.—Jan van Eyck: Man with a Carnation (1); Madonna and Child (2). Quintin Matsys: St. Jerome (6). A. Dürer: Head of an Old Man (7). Hans Holbein the Younger: Male Portraits (9, 10, 11). Jan Steen: Brawl of Gamblers (78).

16th room.—Frans Hals: Boy Singing (19); a Merry Tippler (20).

17th room.—Th. de Keyser: Portraits of Cornelis de Graef, Burgomaster of Amsterdam, and his Wife (23, 24). Cuyp: Male Portrait (27). Rembrandt van Ryn: Portrait of a Rabbi (60). Velasquez: Portrait of Philip IV.'s Sister (167). Murillo: Virgin and Child (170). Caravaggio: Christ in the Garden (359). Luca Giordano: Judgment of Paris (441). Nicolas Poussin: Landscape, with the story of Juno and Argus (463).

18th room.—Hubert and Jan van Eyck: The Just Judges coming to the Worship of the Lamb; the foremost man is Hubert van Eyck, the man in black is Jan (512). The Champions of Christ: in front are SS. Sebastian, George, and Michael; behind, Charles the Great; at the edge, St. Louis (513). Angels Singing (514). Angels Playing Music, with St. Cecilia (515). The Holy Hermits, Paul, Antony, Mary Magdalen, Mary of Egypt (516). The Holy Pilgrims led by St. Christopher (517). The 6 following pictures are at the back of the above. St. John Baptist (518). Josse Vyd, Burgomaster of Ghent, for whom the picture was painted (519). The Angel Gabriel giving the Annunciation; above, the Prophet Zacharias (520). Mary receiving the Annunciation; above, Micha (521). Elizabeth, wife of Josse Vyd (522). St. John Evangelist (523). These 12 paintings formed the wing or shutters of the famous altar-piece known as "The Worship of the Lamb," in the Church of St. Bavon at Ghent, where the central portion still remains (see Rte. 21, Handbook for Holland and Belgium). They are certainly the finest works which the Berlin Museum possesses. Jan van Eyck: Head of Christ (528). Hans Memling: Madonna and Child (528b). Dirk Stuerbout: Elijah in the Wilderness (533). Jews Eating the Passover (539). Roger van der Weyden the younger: Descent from the Cross; nothing can exceed the softness and finish of the female faces, while the expression of grief in the Virgin and Magdalen is most true to nature (534). Roger van der Weyden the elder: Triptych, with subjects from the Life of Christ (534a). Triptych, with subjects from the life of St. John Baptist (534b). Triptych: the Birth of Christ; the Sybil of Tibur and Augustus (Christ made known to the West); the Adoration of the Magi (Christ made known to the East) (535).

19th room.—Quintin Matsys: Virgin and Child (561). Christoph Amberger: The Geographer Sebastian Münster (583). H. Holbein the younger: George Gyzen, merchant of Basel (586). Lucas Kranach: the Fountain of Youth (593).

20th room.—L. Kranach: Portrait of Luther, with mustachios, as Junker Georg, taken while he was hidden in the castle of the Wartburg (618). Portrait of Melanchthon (619).

22nd room.—Peter Paul Rubens: the Painter's second Wife, Helen Forman (758); his little Daughter (763).

23rd room.—Rubens: St. Cecilia (781). The Raising of Lazarus (783).
[N. G.]

A. van Dyck: Prince Thomas of Carignan (782). Portrait of a Daughter of Charles I., in a blue gown with a white lace apron, beautifully painted (786). The three Penitents, David, the Magdalen, and the Prodigal Son, before the Virgin and Child (787). Five Children of Charles I. with a huge Dog (790). SS. John Baptist and John Evangelist (799).

24th room.—Rembrandt: Adolf of Gelderland threatening his Father, a powerful representation of uncurbed passion (802).

25th room.—Teniers: Boors playing in an Alehouse (856). Temptation of St. Antony, a very humorous picture: under the figure of the Saint, Teniers has portrayed himself; the younger woman is his wife, with a little bit of a devil's tail peeping from under her gown; the old woman is his mother-in-law, a more decided devil with horns and claws (859). Jan Both: Landscape, with a Hunting Party (863).

27th room.—Balthasar Denner: Head of an Old Man, elaborately executed (1014). This picture was purchased for 1500*l*.

28th room.—J. D. de Heem: Fruit and Flowers. The central Madonna and Child is poor, and was painted by Begas (963). Frans Snyders: Bear-Hunt (974). J. Weenix: Dead Hare and Fowl (974a).

The remainder of the Gallery is occupied with works of the earliest period of art, which may be regarded as the antiquities of painting, and are interesting rather in an historical point of view, as illustrating the progress of the art. They consist of Byzantine, early Italian, and early German and Flemish works. The six rooms [30th to 35th] which contain this portion of the Gallery are usually closed to the public; but the attendant will open them to any particular visitor at his request. (Small fee expected.)

32nd room — Bern. Pinturicchio:

Adoration of the Magi. The young King is a portrait of Raphael (132). Giovanni Santi (Raphael's father): Madonna, with SS. Catharine, Thomas Aquinas, Jerome, and Thomas; the boy with folded hands opposite to St. Thomas is supposed to represent Raphael (139). Raphael: Adoration of the Magi (150). This youthful work of the Master, painted about 1501, was at first in a monastery at Ferentillo, where it was half destroyed by damp; afterwards it came into the possession of the Acajani family of Spoleto: hence it is called the Madonna Acajani. After the Sistine Madonna at Dresden, it is Raphael's largest picture in Germany.

In the rear of the old Museum, and connected with it by a covered bridge carried over the street upon columns, is the

New Museum*, designed by Stüler, 1843-55, a striking and original building, and in internal decoration the most splendid in Berlin. The principal façade is on the E. side (facing the New National Gallery). It contains, on the ground-floor, the Northern Antiquities, the Ethnological and Egyptian Museums; on the first floor, Plaster Casts of Sculpture; on the upper floor, the Cabinet of Engravings and the Kunst-kammer. Besides the peculiar decorations of the Hall and great staircase described further on, each apartment is ornamented more or less with fresco paintings, arabesque borders, &c., having reference to the objects contained in it.

The Northern Antiquities consist of relics of the stone, bronze and iron ages, dug up in N. Germany and Scandinavia—celts, arrowheads, and other pre-historic weapons, found in barrows, Dolmens, or Huns' graves; descending to Roman antiquities, dug up in Prussia. The walls are adorned with stereochrome pictures of subjects derived from the mythology of the Icelandic Edda, &c.

The Ethnological Museum illustrates the manners and customs of distant parts of the world, especially of savage nations; such are a cloak of feathers, presented by Kamehameha, K. of the Sandwich Islands, with a complimentary letter to the late K. of Prussia, in return for which he received the full uniform of the 2nd Regt. of Prussian Guards—a model of a Chinese lady's foot, to show the manner in which they are pinched and contracted—a filigree silver case, like a claw, nearly 3 inches long, worn by ladies of rank in China to protect their finger-nails, which it is the fashion to let grow to that length—coloured pieces of paper used instead of napkins at dinner—Madonnas of Chinese Christians—a variety of Chinese dresses, among them the military uniform of a captain—lassos from S. America—a cigar smoked by the ladies of Lima, 1½ foot long and thick in proportion—large disks of wood inserted by the Botucudos Indians in their ears and under-lips—tattooed head of a New Zealander—weapons brought from Africa, by Ehrenberg the traveller—staves covered with Runic inscriptions, and a Runic almanac cut on 12 tablets of wood—a large collection of Mexican antiquities, including many tobacco-pipes—the costumes of Mexico, in a series of coloured wax figures—copies of two of Northcote's pictures, by Chinese native artists, very well executed—a vast assortment of Chinese musical instruments; the modern invention of the mouth harmonica was taken from one of them—Chinese and Japanese porcelain—Japanese weapons: one of the most formidable is a sort of scythe fixed vertically upon the end of a long pole—saddle of the Pasha of Shumla. The Asiatic collection was chiefly formed by Krüger.

a. On the rt. of the great staircase, The Egyptian Museum, occupies 5 apartments, whose walls are decorated with imitations of genuine Egyptian paintings.

The collection was commenced by M. Passalacqua and General Minutoli, and is one of the most curious in Europe. To this have been added the acquisitions made by Lepsius in Egypt, 1845.

The inner court is arranged as the forecourt of an Egyptian temple, and within are black porphyry statues of Sesurtasen I. and Ramses II. (Sesostris). The court, with its 16 huge coloured pillars, is copied from the vestibule of the Temple of Karnac. The Chamber of Tombs is a restoration of part of the Necropolis of Memphis; 3 tombs brought away by Lepsius having been rebuilt here. In addition to mummies, scarabæi, statues of the bull Apis, &c., which may be found in other cabinets, there exists here a collection of arms, implements used in various arts, utensils of all sorts, &c., laying open the whole household economy of the Egyptian nation, as it existed some thousands of years ago, all in such perfect preservation as to give a wonderful insight into the state of arts and habits, condition and civilization of the Egyptians at that remote period.

Specimens of the produce of a great many trades are here to be seen. Garments nearly as fine as muslin; a pair of braces! said by Champollion to have belonged to an Egyptian monarch; sandals; a medicine chest filled with drugs, in alabaster phials.

By the side of the figures of the various Egyptian deities are placed the symbols belonging to each, worn, it is supposed, as amulets on the person. Among them is a beetle, with the head of a sphinx. An assortment of the various kinds of cloth found upon the mummies shows great perfection in the art of spinning and weaving.

The objects for the decoration of the person include mirrors of brass, pins of brass and ivory, necklaces, one of which was borrowed by the Duchess of Berry to wear at a Parisian fancy ball. Specimens are shown of the various balsams and asphaltum used in embalming. It is a curious fact that mummies are now imported into Europe for the use of apothecaries and painters, on account of the bitumen they contain. The instruments used in embalming, the Ethiopian knives of sharpened flint, and the brass hooks with which the brain was extracted through the nostrils, are perhaps peculiar to this collection. It would be tedious to give more than a slight enumeration of other objects, such as spears, bows and arrows, &c.; a plough; a spindle; distaff, and comb for flax; measures of rope and wood divided by knots or notches; a painter's palette and paint-box with sliding lid. 7 different colours are preserved here. Herodotus mentions only 4. Part are placed in small shells, as is the modern practice. Writing materials; architect's apparatus; dice; weights; sandals, and shoes of leather and palm-leaves; fishing-nets, with floats formed of calabashes; musical instruments; the flute and sistrum; mummies of the sacred animals worshipped by the Egyptians, as cats, fish, serpents, young crocodiles, frogs, ibises, lizards, all embalmed and wrapped in cloths:—obs. the contents of the tomb of an Egyptian high priest, discovered and opened by Passalacqua in the Necropolis of Thebes. The body was enclosed in a triple coffin. By the side of it were deposited the sacred wand or priest's rod, the skull and leg-bones of an ox, branches of sycamore, and 2 models of Egyptian vessels (such as navigated the Nile 3000 years ago), neatly finished and completely rigged, having on board a dead body, and a party of mourners accompanying it to the tomb.

"Broad stairs lead in a single flight from the ground-floor of the New Museum to a lofty hall in the middle of the building. Here the pupils of Kaulbach, Echler and Muhr, have painted (1847-66) after his designs:—1. The Destruction of Babel and Dispersion of the Nations. 2. Greece in her prime. 3. Destruction of Jerusalem by Titus:—in the centre, the High Priest killing his family and himself; rt., a Christian family departing, an exquisite group. 4. Battle of the Huns. 5. Crusaders before Jerusalem. 6. Epoch of the Reformation. These pictures have been executed by the new method of painting in water-colours, called Stereo-chromic or Wasserglass-Malerei. The wall is first saturated with 'Wasserglass,' a solution of silica or flint in alkali; on this ground the painting is executed with ordinary water-colours; when finished it is again varnished with the same preparation, which forms, as it dries, a thin transparent coating—a true glass, capable, it is said, of resisting the action of acids, and having somewhat the appearance of china-painting.”—R.

* Engravings of these have been published by Alexander Duncker.

The rooms on the first floor contain a valuable and extensive Collection of Plaster Casts of sculptures from the Assyrian, Persian and earliest Greek down to Thorwaldsen, all beautifully arranged.

One half of the Upper Floor, which is of iron, roofed with pots, is devoted to the cabinet of Drawings and Engravings (open to the public on Sundays only, 12 to 2), containing 500,000 engravings, and 20,000 drawings and miniatures; among these are several drawings of Raphael, and the original sketch for the Dom of Cologne. The other half was set apart for the works of art which composed the Kunstkammer (Chamber of Art). These collections, which were here chronologically arranged, were in 1876 distributed in other museums. The smaller works of art have been placed in the Gewerbe Museum, and the rich historical collection has been removed to the palace of Monbijou.

The new National Gallery (open daily, except Monday, 11 to 3; Sunday 12 to 2), between the new Museum and the Spree, was completed 1876, after Stüler's designs, and decorated with paintings by Bendemann. The nucleus of the collection consists of the cabinet of 250 pictures left by Herr Wagener in 1861 to the Emperor William, and containing choice works chiefly by artists of the schools of Munich and Düsseldorf. To these have been added 200 pictures, cartoons and drawings of the modern German school. The name of the painter and the subject will be found on each picture. The cartoons of Cornelius, designed for the decoration of a campo santo at Berlin, are full of merit. Catalogue 1½ mk.

To the N. of the Museums the Spree is crossed by the Hercules Bridge, built by Langhans, 1792, and so called from 2 groups by Schadow. On the other side of the bridge, in the centre of an extensive garden, open to the public, is the royal palace of Monbijou, built in 1708, containing the English chapel, and an interesting Historical Museum (adm. daily 10 to 5), consisting for the most part of personal memorials of the Brandenburg Electors and Prussian Kings: thus one room contains memorials of Fred. Will. IV., another of Fred. Will. III., another of Queen Louise, and in a large hall or gallery are relics of Frederick the Great, Fred. Will. I., and the Great Elector. The objects here exhibited now include the historical collection up to 1876 contained in the New Museum. It is highly interesting, as illustrating in many instances the characters and lives of remarkable men, and it is for the most part undoubtedly authentic. Obs. the model of a windmill, made by Peter the Great, with his own hands, while working as a ship-carpenter in Holland.—The Robes of the Orders of the Garter given by George IV., and of the Holy Ghost given by Louis XVIII., to Frederick William III.: between the two is the scarlet dress of a Doctor of Civil Law given to him by the University of Oxford, on the occasion of his visit in 1814. The hussar dress and cap, surmounted with a black eagle's wing, worn by the Prussian General Ziethen. Two cannon balls, each with one side flattened, said to have been fired by opposite parties in the siege of Magdeburg, and to have met together in the air!

Some of the relics are peculiarly national, such as—a cast taken after death from the face of Frederick the Great,—the bullet which wounded him in the battle of Torgau, 1760,—a wax figure of him, clothed in the very uniform he wore on the day of his death; the coat is rusty and tarnished, the scabbard of the sword is mended with sealing-wax by his own hand; his books and walking-cane, his bâton, and the favourite flute, his solace in hours of relaxation, are carefully preserved here, along with his pocket-handkerchief, which he used to the last; it is a dirty rag, very tattered, though patched in many places. This confirms the description of Dr. Moore, who visited the palace in Frederick's life-time. "The whole wardrobe consisted of two blue coats, faced with red, the lining of one a little torn; two yellow waistcoats, a good deal soiled with Spanish snuff; three pairs of yellow breeches, and a suit of blue velvet embroidered with silver, for grand occasions. I imagined at first that the man had got a few of the king's old clothes, and kept them here to amuse strangers; but, upon inquiry, I was assured that what I have mentioned, with two suits of uniform which he has at Sans Souci, form the entire wardrobe of the king of Prussia. Our attendant said he had never known it more complete." Obs. also the stars, orders, and decorations presented to Bonaparte by the different sovereigns of Europe, one of the most conspicuous being the Prussian black eagle: England alone, it appears, contributed none. They were taken by the Prussians after the Battle of Waterloo, in his carriage, from which he escaped so narrowly that he left his hat behind him, which is also preserved here. Not far off are Blücher's orders. A cast in wax from the face of the beautiful Queen Louisa of Prussia. A cast of Moreau's face, taken after death. The camp chair of the great Gustavus Adolphus. Frederick the Great's father's collection of well-used tobacco-pipes. The cap and sword worn by the Great Elector at the battle of Fehrbellin. A white dress that belonged to Murat is so fantastic in shape, and gaudy in gold lace, as fully to explain and justify the nickname of Franconi given him by Bonaparte. Two executioners' swords, remarkable on account of the persons whose heads have been cut off by them. Obs. specimens of Gobelins tapestry, manufactured by Carl Vignes, at Berlin, in 1720: subjects—"The Landing on Rügen, 1678; the Siege of Stralsund, 1678; Passage of the Army over the frozen Curisches Haff, 1679; Siege of Stettin, 1677; Surrender of Wolgast, 1675; Battle of Fehrbellin, 1675."

The Royal Library (entrance in the Opern-Platz), is in a tasteless building, which owes its shape, it is said, to a whim of Frederick the Great, who desired the architect Unger, 1780, to take a chest of drawers for his model. It contains about 900,000 vols. and nearly 15,000 MSS. It is shown to strangers on application to the Librarian, daily at 10. Among its curiosities are—Luther's Hebrew Bible, the copy from which he made his translation, with marginal notes in his own hand. The MS. of his translation of the Psalms, with his corrections in red ink. The Bible and Prayer-book which Charles I. carried to the scaffold, and gave before his death to Bishop Juxon. Gutenberg's Bible of 42 lines in a page (on parchment, date 1450–55), the first book on which moveable type was used. A consular diptych of ivory with reliefs, date 416, one of the earliest known. The Codex Wittekindii, a MS. of the 4 Gospels, given, it is said, by Charlemagne to Wittekind (?); it is of the 9th or 10th cent., and the ivory carvings in the binding are in the style called Byzantine. Several Ivories (diptychs) of the earliest Christian times, and of Roman work. An album, with 6 beautiful miniature portraits, by Luke Cranach; among them are his friends Luther, Melancthon, and the Elector John Frederick of Saxony. 36 vols. of engraved portraits of distinguished men of various times and countries, accompanied by autographs in alphabetical order. Two hemispheres of metal, with which Otto Guericke made the experiments which led him to discover the air-pump, are also preserved here. When he had exhausted the air between them, he found that the force of 30 horses was unable to separate them.

The Public Reading-room of the Library, where books may be consulted, is open daily 9 to 4. Inhabitants of Berlin, and even resident strangers properly recommended, are allowed to take books home with them under certain restrictions. There is a private reading-room on the ground-floor, in which the new books and principal journals of Europe are deposited. Admission can be obtained by a ticket from one of the head librarians, which is only given to persons known to them. It is open daily from 10 to 12.

The University (Unter den Linden), formerly the Palace of the brother of Frederick the Great, and turned to its present purpose in 1809 by Fred. Will. III., possesses a high reputation from the talent of its teachers and a better system of discipline than Jena and Heidelberg. It ranks among the first academical establishments in Germany, especially for its medical school, the students amounting altogether to 1700. It contains a. The Museum of Natural History in the l. wing of the building. The Zoological Collection is open Tuesdays and Fridays from 12 to 2. This collection is one of the richest and most extensive in Europe, especially in the department of Ornithology; it includes the birds collected by Pallas and Willdenow, and the fishes of Bloch. The best specimens are those from Mexico, the Red Sea, and the Cape. The whole is exceedingly well arranged and named for the convenience of students.

b. The Mineral Cabinet is shown Wed. and Sat., 12 to 2. Among the curiosities of this collection are—a piece of amber weighing 13 lbs. 15 oz., the largest known, and worth 10,000 dols. It was found at Schlappacken, 20 Germ. m. from the Baltic. Malachite from Russia. Many meteorolites. Topazes of 2 distinct colours, yellow and amethystine. A mass of platina, weighing 1088 grains, and a splendid fiery opal, both brought from South America by Alex. von Humboldt. A large portion of the collections made by him during his travels in America are deposited here.

c. The Anatomical Museum in the rt. wing is one of the best in Europe, particularly rich in preparations of human and comparative anatomy. It is shown only by application to the Director.

The Christian Art Museum, a collection of casts, in the l. wing, illustrating Ecclesiastical Art, open Wed., 12 to 1, and the Surgical Instrument Collections, also merit inspection.

The University Library, of 115,000 vols., is in the Dorotheen-strasse (open daily, except Sat. and Sunday, 2 to 4).

The Botanic Garden, belonging to the University, outside of the town, is described further on.

The Arsenal (Zeughaus), adm. Wednesdays and Saturdays 2 to 4, was completed in 1706 from the designs of Nering. Above the lower windows round the inner court are 22 masks, carved in stone by Schlüter, representing the human face in the agonies of death. In the centre of the court is the colossal Flensburg Lion by Bissen, originally erected by the Danes at Flensburg to commemorate the victory of Idstedt (1850), but removed hither upon the seizure of Sleswick in 1864. Within the building on the ground-floor are cannon of various kinds, such as 2 leather guns, used by the Great Gustavus in the Thirty Years' War; a field-piece named die schöne Taube (beautiful dove); a 17th-cent. damasked cannon; 2 Turkish pieces; an Afghan piece captured at Cabul in 1842, and presented to Fred. Will. IV. by Queen Victoria; guns captured from the Austrians in 1866, and the war of 1870-71 has added many specimens of French guns, in particular a monster piece from Fort Valérien, near Paris. On the first floor are ranged 100,000 stand of arms. These apartments form a kind of Military Museum. Specimens of the arms and accoutrements used in every army in Europe are deposited here. There are fire-arms, from those used at the first invention of gunpowder to the most perfect made in the present day. The keys of captured fortresses—some taken from the French. A standard, and the key of Adrianople, taken from the Turks by the Russians in the war of 1828-29, presented by their emperor. Against the walls and pillars are hung nearly 1000 stand of French colours, bearing the dates and emblems of the Revolution, captured by the Prussians in Paris, 1815.

The Palace of Prince Karl, 9 Wilhelms-Platz, fitted up by Schinkel, 1827, contains a very choice and valuable collection of armour (adm. daily 10 to 5). A shield of beaten silver, with raised groups in the style of B. Cellini, and the Kaiserstuhl, an arm-chair of bronze, from the Dom in Goslar, deserve mention.

The Palace of Prince Albert, 102 Wilhelms Strasse, also arranged 1832 by Schinkel, is a handsome building, and is shown to strangers.

Count Raczynski's Picture Gallery, in a mansion on the E. side of the Königs-Platz, outside the Brandenburg Gate, contains interesting specimens of modern German art (to be seen daily 11 to 3; catalogues, 75 pf.)—the finished Sketch of Kaulbach's Battle of the Huns; a Sposalizio, by Overbeck; Sohn's Two Leonoras; Leopold Roberts' last work; Cornelius's Christ in Limbo, &c. Also fine specimens of Bellini, Francia, Luini, Steinle, Bendemann, and Fuhrich.

The Academy of Arts, Unter den Linden, was placed by Frederick the Great above the Royal Stables; hence some one proposed to inscribe over the door "Musis et Mulis." An exhibition of modern works takes place here annually between September and December.

The Ravené Cabinet, 92 Wallstrasse (Tues. and Frid. 11 to 2), is a small select collection also of modern German and French paintings. The best are upstairs, in the saloon, &c. Gal-lait, Bohemian Musicians; H. Vernet, the Zouave Nurse; Tidemand, Norwegian Funeral; Troyon, Cattle; Achenbach, Ostend; Hildebrandt, Winter Landscape; Meissonnier, Man Reading; Delaroche, Storm at Sea.

Alex. von Humboldt lived (1842–59) at 67 Oranienburgstrasse, near the Synagogue.

The Royal Iron Foundry (Eisen, giesserei), in the Invaliden-Strasse—outside the Neue Thor, may be seen daily (50 pf.), and contains a museum of metals. Adjoining the Foundry is the Park of the Hospital for old soldiers (Invaliden-haus), and in the centre the Warriors' Monument, erected 1854, an iron Corinthian column 120 feet high, in memory of the soldiers who fell in 1848. Fine view over Berlin from the top.

In the suburb of Moabit, beyond the Spree, is Borsig's Machine Factory, employing 3000 men. The hot-houses attached to the Borsigs' residence are warmed by the water escaping from the steam-engines, and deserve notice. Admission, Tuesday and Friday, 50 pf.

The China Manufactory was founded by Frederick the Great: the painting is very good. Both in lightness of fabric and in elegance of design it has much improved since the first Great Exhibition in 1851. The manufactory formerly stood at the W. end of the Leipziger Strasse, but was removed to the corner of the Friedrichs Strasse to make way for the temporary Reichstag-gebäude, or building for the German Imperial Parliament, erected 1871, the interior of which is worth seeing. Tickets for admission to hear the debates obtained on the preceding day, 5 to 7 P.M., at the office by the l. gateway.

The Taub-Stummen-Institut, Institution for instructing the deaf and dumb, situated in the Linien Strasse, Nos. 81 and 82, is a very interesting establishment.

The Gewerbe Schule (School for Trade) is an establishment for instructing gratuitously promising young artisans in drawing, modelling, and other branches of the fine arts calculated to be of practical use in their trade, with a view of improving the designs of articles of furniture and patterns in stuffs of all sorts. The Museum, in the Königsstrasse, now contains a valuable collection of objects purchased at the French, English, and Austrian Exhibitions of 1867, 71, and 73, as well as the works of art removed in 1876 from the Kunst-kammer of the New Museum. The famous corporation plate, formerly in the Rathhaus at Lüneberg, is also placed here. There is a good library in connection with the institution, and over 800 students.

The Architectural Academy (Bau-Academie) S. of the Schlossbrücke, established under the direction of Schinkel (1835), is one of the most original constructions of that architect. It is of red brick, and the external ornaments are of the same material, i.e. of terracotta, or clay moulded and baked. On the second floor is the Beuth-Schinkel Museum (open Tues. and Frid. 11 to 1), containing many valuable sketches, designs, &c. &c., by Schinkel.

On the N. side of the Academy, in the Schinkel-Platz, are bronze statues of Schinkel, by Drake; Thaer, by Rauch; and Beuth, by Kiss.

The Mint (Münze) is on the opposite side of the Werder Strasse, built 1794, and recently enlarged. It is adorned with reliefs from the designs of Schadow.

The Börse (Exchange), on the S. side of the Neue Friedrichs Strasse, just over the Friedrichs Brücke, was finished at great cost in 1863, from the designs of Hitzig. It has two storeys, with a double colonnade along the river front. The central hall, divided by an arcade into the money and corn exchange, is over 220 ft. in length (adm. to the Gallery daily, 12 to 2).

In the Königsstrasse, near the Post Office, is the Rathhaus (Townhall), completed by Waesemann 1870, of brick, much enriched by ornaments in terracotta, bas-reliefs, &c., surmounted by a tower (267 ft.). The interior fittings are very elegant (open daily, except Thurs. and Frid., 11 to 3; ascent of tower, 50 pf.). The range of vaults underneath are occupied by the Rathskeller, a restaurant much resorted to at luncheon time.

In the new quarter of the town, rising on the S. side of Berlin, and approached by the Köpnickerstrasse, is Bethanien (Bethany), a castellated edifice erected 1850, and devoted to the charitable purposes of a hospital for the sick, who are attended by Deaconesses, "charitably-minded Christian maidens." Both the architectural and economical arrangements of this institution are on the most liberal scale, and it well merits notice. Admission daily, 10 to 4, except Sunday.

Theatres.—1. Opera House, rebuilt by Langhans after the fire of 1843, a building of great splendour, opposite the University at E. end of "Unter den Linden." In it operas are performed, generally 3 or 4 times a week alternately with the Schauspielhaus, though in winter the Opera is open every day. It holds 1800 spectators. The Box-office is in the lower storey. Opera begins at 6½, and is over by 10. Usually closed from middle of June to middle of August.

2. Royal Theatre (Königliches Schauspielhaus), built by Schinkel, in 1819, lies between the two churches in the Gendarmenmarkt. It is decorated with a good deal of sculpture, by Rauch and Tieck, representing mythological subjects. The performances consist of German and French plays alternately: an excellent French company resides here permanently. It is a great treat to see a Greek tragedy, such as the Antigone of Sophocles, performed here, the stage and theatre being fitted up as nearly as possible in the ancient Grecian classic style. The stage is on the second floor of the building, so that it is necessary to go up stairs even into the pit. Adjoining it is the Concert Room, holding 1200 persons, much admired for its architectural proportions and the taste of its decorations. Besides Concerts, a certain number of Subscription Balls take place here in winter. The Emperor and Imperial family are often present.

Begins at 6. In front of the theatre is the marble statue of Schiller, by Begas, 1871.

3. Victoria Theater, 20 Münz Strasse. 4. Fried.-Wilhelm-Städtische Theater, 14 Schumann Str. Begins at 6. Comedy and burlesque, well acted. Pit, reserved seats, 3 mks.

5. Wallner Theater, a popular house, frequented by the best classes, for burlesque and farce.

The Sing-Akademie is a private association of from 200 to 300 amateurs, male and female, of the respectable and upper classes, who meet together to practise every week during the whole year, and give annually several delightful concerts, to which the public are admitted, in the tasteful Grecian building of the Academy, designed, 1826, by Ottmar, behind the Guard-house. The performance of sacred vocal music is probably not carried to greater perfection in any part of Europe—the strength of the chorus, and the perfect precision and unity of so many voices, are very striking. Rehearsals, Tuesdays, 5 to 7.

Good music may also be heard at Stern's Gesangverein and Bilse's orchestral Concerts in summer daily, also the Symphony Soirées in the Royal Opera Concert rooms.

The Winter Gardens are coffee-houses under glass — conservatories filled with exotic plants, provided with tables for refreshments and newspapers. They are splendid and popular establishments, where excellent dinners, music, &c., are provided. Kroll's*, in the Thiergarten, contains a dining and concert hall, 336 ft. long, 95 ft. wide, and theatre. Admission, 75 pf. The ices are good. There is a table-d'hôte on Sundays at 1½ mk. a head. The Stadtpark, in the Friedrichs Strasse, N. of the Linden, is another of these establishments. The Zelte café, further W. of Kroll's on the banks of the Spree, is a popular resort.

The Merchants' Club is over the Exchange, to which a banker will introduce you to read the papers. An introduction from the English Minister will procure admission to the Club of Nobles. Newspapers of all countries may be seen at the Zeitungs Halle, Oberwall Strasse, Nos. 12 and 13.

The Turn-halle, or Hall for Gymnastics, in Köpnicker Feld, Prinzen Strasse, erected by the municipality at a cost of 17,000l. (Gerstenberg, architect), affords space for 600 gymnasts to exercise at once. The public are admitted to a gallery running round the arena. It is open every evening but Sunday.

The Wilhelms Gymnasium, a High School, built and endowed by the present King, is in Victoria Strasse (Lohse, architect).

The Aquarium, on the N. side of the Linden, at the corner of the Schadow Strasse, is well arranged; open from 9 to dusk, and Wed. and Sat. lighted up until 9 p.m.

Railway Stations.—Travellers proceed direct to the termini, as the Verbindungs-Bahn (connecting line) is only for goods.

9 lines of Rly. concentrate in Berlin, the Stations all outside the gates.

On N.W. side of city—

1. Hannoversche Bahnhof, on the N. side of the Spree beyond the Königsplatz, for the W., viz., Lehrte, Hanover, Bremen, Cologne, Belgium, France, England. (See Rte. 66.)

2. Hamburger Bahnhof, outside the Neue Thor, for the N.W., viz., Hamburg (see the present Rte.), Schleswig-Holstein, &c.

3. Stettiner Bahnhof, outside the Oranienburg Thor, for the N., viz., Stettin, Stralsund, &c. (See Rte. 75.)

On S.E. side—

4. Ostbahnhof, in the Küstriner Platz, for the E., viz., E. Prussia, Küstrin, Posen, Russia. (See Rte. 77.)

5. Frankfurter Bahnhof, in the Koppen Strasse, for the E. and S.E., viz., Frankfort-on-the-Oder, Breslau, Cracow, Posen, &c. (See Rte. 77.)

6. Görlitzer Bahnhof, outside the Köpnicker Thor, for the S.E. and S., viz., Cottbus and Görlitz. (See Rte. 81B.)

On S.W. side—

7. Anhaltischer Bahnhof, outside the Anhalt Thor, for the S., viz., Leipzig, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, &c. (See Rte. 63.)

8. Potsdamer Bahnhof, outside the Potsdam Gate, for the S.W., viz., Potsdam, Brandenburg, Magdeburg, &c. (See Rte. 62.)

9. Dresdener Bahnhof, W. of the Anhalt Rly. Stat., for Dresden direct. (See Rte. 65B.)

Environs of Berlin.—The gates of the city were originally named after the places to which they led, but the great lines of high roads have been so much changed that it is not now the Halle Gate but the Potsdam Gate which leads to Halle, nor the Hamburg Gate which leads thither, but the Brandenburg Gate; and to proceed into Silesia you issue out of the Frankfurt, not the Silesian Gate.

About $1\frac{1}{2}$ mile outside of the Potsdam Gate near the village of Schöneberg (frequent omnibuses) is the Botanic Garden. The conservatories and palmhouses are on a large scale. Palms are seen growing in them to a height of nearly 30 ft. It is open to the public daily, except Sat. and Sund., 8 to 12, 2 to 7.

Outside the Königs Thor (King's Gate) rt. is the Friedrichs-hain, a new and pretty park; and l. the very beautiful Cemetery.

Close to the Halle Gate, which forms the S. termination of the Friedrichs Strasse, a street 3 m. long, in the Belle-Alliance-Platz, rises the Friedens-säule, a pillar of granite, surmounted by a Victory, by Rauch, erected 1840, to commemorate the Peace which had then lasted 25 years. The four marble allegorical groups, representing England, Prussia, Netherland, and Hanover, the 4 states that fought against Napoleon at Waterloo, were modelled by Fischer (1876).

About $\frac{1}{2}$ a mile beyond the Halle

Gate is a low sandhill called the Kreuzberg (frequent omnibuses), almost the only eminence near Berlin, and commanding a tolerable view of it. It is named from a Gothic cross of cast iron, 64 ft. high, upon its summit, called Volks Denkmal (People's Monument), erected by Fred. Will. III., in 1818, as a memorial of Prussia's recovery of independence from the French, and thus inscribed: "The King to his people, who at his call nobly offered life and property to their country; a monument to the fallen; an acknowledgment to the living; an example to posterity." Schinkel designed it, and Rauch and Tieck executed the statues of Prussian warriors in the niches, and the bas-relief medallion heads having reference to victories gained by the Prussians—as Gross-Görschen, Leipzig, Katsbach, Paris, Belle Alliance. The whole was cast in the Royal Iron Foundry.

Cemeteries.—In that of the Dorotheenstadt, outside the Oranienburg Gate, are buried Fichte (1814); Hegel (1831); Buttman, the philologist (1829); Ganz, the lawyer (1836); Rauch (1857) and Schadow (1850), sculptors; Schinkel (1841), and Stüler (1868), architects; Beuth (1853). Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy (1847), the amiable and accomplished composer, is buried in the old Dreifaltigkeits ch.-yd., outside the Halle Gate. In the new Dreifaltigkeits ch.-yd. are the graves of the divines Schleiermacher (1834) and Neander (1850); and of the poet Ludwig Tieck (1853).

In the Jewish Cemetery, outside the Schönhaus Gate, is the grave of the composer Meyerbeer (1865).

In St. Matthew's Cemetery, near the Botanic Garden, are buried the philologists Jacob Grimm (1863) and his brother Wilhelm (1859).

In the Invaliden Kirchhof, close to the Hamburg Rly. terminus, are the graves of Scharnhorst, Tauentzien, Pirch, Witzeblen, and many other brave Prussian soldiers who fell in the war against Napoleon I.

Immediately beyond the Brandenburg Gate the Thiergarten begins. This is a beautiful artificial park and agreeable promenade, nearly 2 m. long by nearly 1 m. broad, shaded by tall trees, fine firs, &c., interspersed with shrubberies, with open spaces here and there, and ponds, coffee-houses, &c., among them. It is thronged with people on a fine Sunday afternoon. Along the borders are many detached modern mansions of good and original design. Here are situated Kroll's Winter Garden (see above) and the Painter's Studios (Maler Gebäude).

The marble statue of Fred. Will. III. (1849) by Drake, with fine bas-reliefs illustrating Peace, is near the Louisen Insel,—a site which that prince converted from a wilderness into a park.

About 1 m. beyond the Brandenburg Gate is the palace of Bellevue, now the residence of the Duke William of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, containing many paintings by modern German artists, such as—Lessing, Hussite Sermons;—Köhler, David's Triumph;—Begas, Death of Abel;—Sohn, Rape of Hylas;—Hasenpflug, the Erfurt and Magdeburg Cathedrals;—Hermann, Château of Stettin;—Catel, Roman Pflifferari;—Fiedler, Amphitheatre at Pola;—Schmidt, Hallstadt in the Salzkammergut;—Jeremiah, by Bendemann, &c., &c. The pretty park is open to the public.

Half an hour's drive (2½ m.) beyond the Brandenburg Gate, behind the Hofjägers, is the Zoological Garden, containing the Royal Menagerie; open daily; admission, 1 mk.; Sund., 50 pf. from June to Sept.; Wed. after 2 P.M., 25 pf. Restaurant at entrance. Concerts in summer in the afternoon.

One exception to the proverbial dreariness and monotony of the outskirts of Berlin is to be found in the course and banks of the Spree, which though insignificant in its course through the city, yet spreads out N. and S., assuming the character of a lake, and its scenery, without being grand, is yet very pretty.

River Steamers (see above) in summer to Köpnick, passing by Treptow, in a well-wooded district, where, perched on a picturesque peninsula, rises a Church, designed by Schinkel. Farther on is a Swiss cottage, built upon an island, a pretty object. The Spree widens out and spreads into branches near Grunau, a pretty peaceful village.

Excursions.—(a) Potsdam should on no account be omitted. It is described in Rte. 62, and is best visited from Berlin, instead of stopping there on the road further. Frequent trains.

(b) Tegel, a pleasant drive of 9 m. beyond the Oranienburg Gate, long the seat of Wm. von Humboldt (died 1835), the statesman and philologist. He and his illustrious brother, Alexander von Humboldt, the traveller (died 1859, aged 90), are buried here. In the garden is a monument to his wife, a statue of Hope upon a pillar, the work of Thorwaldsen.

(c) Charlottenburg.—This excursion will not take more than 2 hrs. [Tramway from the Kupfergraben behind the Arsenal, every 10 min.; time, ¼ hr. On Sund., from Brandenburg Gate only.

Omnibus from the Lustgarten every ½ hr.

Cabs, 1 mk. and 1½ mk., 1½ mk. and 2½ mk., according as first or second class, and 2 or 4 persons.]

The road, about 3 m. long, passes through the Brandenburg Gate, and runs in a straight avenue through the Thiergarten, bordered by many country houses of the citizens.

Charlottenburg has grown from a small village on the Spree, made up chiefly of villas and taverns, into a town of 25,000 Inhab., the summer residence of the rich, and the summer resort of the humbler classes from Berlin. The Palace (Schloss) was built from the designs of Schlüter (1706) by Frederick I., who married Sophia Charlotte, daughter of our George I. Many of its rooms are furnished with taste and magnificence. Here are several good pieces of sculpture, as a head of our Saviour by Rauch. The Gardens behind it are open to the public. The entrance to them is through the Orangery, at the extremity of which is the Theatre. The gardens are the great resort of Sunday strollers from Berlin. They are prettily laid out, varied by the windings of the Spree, and by sheets of water abounding in carp of large size and great age. Visitors are in the habit of feeding them with crumbs, and collect them together by the ringing of a bell, at the sound of which the fish may be seen in shoals, popping their noses out of the water.

The chief object of interest at Charlottenburg is the monument of the beautiful, amiable, and unfortunate Louisa, Queen of Prussia (d. 1810). She and her husband are buried within a small Doric Temple, designed by Schinkel, at the extremity of a shady walk, in a retired part of the garden. The Castellan residing in the palace keeps the key, and will show the monument to strangers. The figure of the Queen reposes on a marble sarcophagus. It is a masterpiece of the sculptor Rauch, but perhaps surpassed by the replica at Potsdam. "The expression is not that of dull, cold death, but of undisturbed repose. The hands are modestly folded on the breast; the attitude is easy, graceful, and natural." King Fred. William III. (d. 1840) lies by the side of his wife. His statue, lying "with his martial cloak around him," also by Rauch, is a work of art of at least equal merit. On either side is a white marble candelabrum, that with the Fates by Rauch, that with the Three Muses by Tieck. At the feet of the group is the heart of Fred. Will. IV., enclosed in a marble casket.

Beyond Charlottenburg, on the Spandau Road, the villas and country houses have of late years so increased as to be dignified with the name of Westend.

In the course of the autumn, generally in September, a grand Review of the garrison in connection with the autumn manœuvres takes place in the neighbourhood of Berlin; 20,000 troops are sometimes collected, and the manœuvres last several days. To see the reviews to advantage a uniform is desirable, though not absolutely necessary. The reviews are generally held on the ground near the Kreutzberg, and the manœuvres extend to Charlottenburg, Spandau, and Potsdam. They last several days, the regiments bivouacking at night. The operations begin each day about 9. Ladies in carriages are enabled to see the whole by the good arrangement of the gendarmerie. A carriage with a pair of horses may be hired for the day at about 15 mks. (15s.).

ROUTE 61A.

HAMBURG TO BERLIN BY LÜNEBURG AND WITTENBERGE.—RAIL.

Distance, 168 m.; time, 8 to 10 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56.

This new route to Berlin is somewhat shorter than that viâ Buchen and Hagenow, but the trains do not serve so well

For the line as far as

30 m. Lüneburg Junct. Stat., see Rte. 59.

Thence the line turns E., and at 38 m. Dömitz Stat. crosses the Elbe.

24 m. Wittenberge Junct. Stat. For the remainder of the line to 76 m. Berlin, see Rte. 61.

ROUTE 62.

BERLIN TO MAGDEBURG, BY POTSDAM
AND BRANDENBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 90 m.; time, 2½ to 3½ hrs.; 7 trains daily.

To Potsdam, 17 m.; 19 trains daily, in ½ hr.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

From the Potsdamer Bahnhof, outside the Potsdam Gate, the line proceeds past country-seats, taverns, and coffee-houses, the resort of the citizens, leaving on the rt. the Botanic Gardens and village of Schöneberg, in sight of the iron cross on the Kreuzberg on the l. to 7 m. Zehlendorf Stat. Beyond this, after passing through a fir-wood, the tower of the Castle of Babelsberg, and the palace surmounting the Pfingstberg, come in sight on rt. with the broad Havel in front, and on l. the wooded Brauhausberg.

10 m. Potsdam Stat. [Only 7 of the daily trains go on to the Wildpark Stat. (1½ m. further W.), near Charlottenhof, and the new Palace, but extra trains run on Sundays and holidays. Day return tickets at reduced rates.]

Inns: Einsiedler H.; Deutsches H.: both in the Schloss-strasse.

Restaurants.—At the stats., at the hotels; and near the Brandenburg Gate, Sans-Souci and the Brauhausberg.

Guides unnecessary.

Fees to Palace attendants—1 pers., 1 mk.; 2, 1½ mk.; a party, say 3 mks.

The Sans-Souci fountains play on Sundays from 12 till dusk; on Thursday, the great fountain only.

The best plan is to take a carriage from either station to the other for the round, say 9 to 12 mks., and pourboire (make a bargain; see tariff for particular excursions), or if on foot alight at Wildpark Stat., and 3 to 4 hrs.' walk (fatiguing) will embrace the New Palace*, Freundschafts-Tempel, Charlottenhof, Japanese House, Orangerie, Sicilian Garden, Windmill (Ruinenberg, ½ hr. additional), Sans-Souci*, Great Fountain*, Friedens ch., Brandenburg Gate, Garrison ch.*, Lustgarten, Residenz, Nicholas ch., Wilhelmsplatz (thence carriage 3 hrs. to Russian colony and ch., Pfingstberg, Marble Palace, Glienicker Bridge, Pfaueninsel, and the Babelsberg) to Potsdam Stat., and if time allows (¾ hr. additional) to the Brauhausberg.

Potsdam, the Prussian Versailles, lies on the rt. bank of the Havel, which here expands into a lake with finely wooded, picturesque, sloping banks; it has 50,784 Inhab., including a garrison of 7000 men. It was founded by the Great Elector of Brandenburg, but it owes all its splendour to Frederick the Great. It may be called a town of palaces, not only from the 4 Royal residences in and about it, but because even the private houses are in great part copied from celebrated edifices. The dulness of the streets, indeed, often contrasts singularly with the splendour of their architecture.

Close to the long bridge (Langebrücke) which leads from the Potsdam stat. into the town is the Lustgarten, containing busts by Rauch in bronze of military heroes, Blücher, Bülow, York, Scharnhorst, &c. (military band on Sundays at 11). Contiguous to it is the Residenz (Royal Palace), built 1660–1701, containing little worth seeing except the apartments of the Great Frederick, which remain nearly as they were when he was alive. Here are shown his writing-table blotted all over with ink, his inkstand, music-stand, piano, with music composed by himself in his own writing, green eyeshade, book-case filled with French works, and the chairs and sofa which he used, their silken covers nearly torn off by the claws of his dogs, and stained with the marks of the plates from which they were fed. The truck bed on which he slept, despising any more comfortable couch, stood behind the silver balustrades, but has been removed because it was worn out, and almost pulled to pieces by relic-hunters. Adjoining the bedroom is a small cabinet, with double doors, provided with a table which ascends and descends through a trap-door in the floor, while plates and dishes were removed by another trap-door. Here the monarch could dine tête-à-tête with a friend, without being overheard or overlooked, while the dinner was served without requiring the presence of a servant. The singular smoking club, or Tabacks-Collegium, established by Frederick the Great's father, used to hold its eccentric and boisterous meetings in the building called Haus am Bassin.

St. Nicholas' Ch. (Sacristan, 4 am Markt), opposite the Schloss, built, 1830-37, by Schinkel, is of the Corinthian order, surmounted by a dome, erected in 1845 by Stüler. The pediment is ornamented with reliefs of the Sermon on the Mount, but the outside is not very successful. The interior is splendidly decorated with fresco paintings on a gold ground, of the 12 Apostles, &c., by the first artists of Berlin and Düsseldorf.

The Garrison-Kirche (Garrison Ch., Sacristan, 24 Kietz-strasse). Frederick the Great is buried in a vault entered from beneath the pulpit, in a plain metal sarcophagus above ground. His sword, originally laid upon it, was carried off by Napoleon, 1806, and all traces of it are lost. The other coffin, of marble, in the same vault, is that of Frederick's father, William I., the founder of the Ch. Around the interior of the ch. hang the eagles and standards taken from Napoleon the First's armies by the Prussians, with others captured in the Franco-German war of 1870-71. Here also are suspended Austrian standards from the Bohemian campaign of 1866, and on the walls are tablets inscribed with the names of Potsdam soldiers who perished during these wars.

In the Wilhelmsplatz is the bronze statue by Kiss of Fred. Will. III., born at Potsdam.

Park of Sans-Souci.—The Gardens begin a few hundred yards outside of the Brandenburg Gate, W. of Potsdam. The entrance is about $\frac{1}{2}$ an hour's walk from the stat. Near it is the Friedenskirche* (Church of Peace), a Basilica, on the model of St. Clement at Rome, built 1850 from the plans of Persius, with detached campanile, partly copied from that of Murano near Venice. It contains a Pietà by Rietschel, and opposite to it Rauch's last work, Moses during the Fight with the Amalekites, an ancient Mosaic from the ch. of St. Cyprian at Murano, and a monument to Fred. William IV. (d. 1861). The marble statue of the Angel of the Resurrection is by Tenerani of Rome.

The gardens are laid out in the stiff formal French taste, with alleys, cut hedges, statues, basins, &c., and are kept in perfect order. A broad avenue runs through them; at the W. extremity of it lies the New Palace. The Great Fountain, with jet 120 feet high, is encircled by marble statues. Obs. Venus and Mercury by Pigalle.

On the rt. of the avenue is the Palace of Sans-Souci, b. 1745-47 by Frederick the Great, on the top of a flight of step-like terraces. These are fronted with glass, beneath which grow vines, olives, and orange-trees. Frederick, who took much pride in his gardens and hot-beds, complained once to the Prince de Ligne of the climate and soil under which his orange-trees and vines were pining. "Sire," replied the courtier, "it appears that with you nothing thrives but your laurels." The Palace, restored and fitted up as a residence for Frederick William IV. (who died here 1861), stands on the highest terrace; it is a low and not a handsome building, but the semi-circular colonnades behind are fine. At the extremities of this terrace are the graves of Frederick's favourite dogs, and of his horse that carried him through many of his battles. By his will he directed that he himself should be buried among them, an injunction which was not complied with. This terrace was the favourite resort of the old warrior; here he was brought out in his arm-chair, surrounded by his dogs, a short while before his decease, to bask in the sun. "Je serai bientôt plus près de lui," were nearly his last words. Within the building may be seen the bed-room and arm-chair wherein he breathed his last; also a clock, which he always wound up with his own hand, but which, being forgotten at last, stopped at the moment of his death, on the morning of 17 Aug. 1786, and still points to the hour of his decease, 20 minutes past 2. Voltaire's apartment is also pointed out at some distance from that of his Royal host; its walls are covered with wood carvings, which are pictorial epigrams on Voltaire's character or habits; e. g. a monkey, meant as a portrait; parrots from his volubility; stork, from his migrations, coming in summer, quitting in winter. In the gallery hang some paintings by Watteau. On the rt. and l. of the palace, but in separate buildings, are the state apartments and the Picture Gallery; but all the best pictures are removed to Berlin. Among those that remain is one tolerable picture, a Virgin and Child, by Rubens, and there are many by his pupils and imitators, Van Tulden and the like, of inferior merit and value.

The famous Windmill of Sans-Souci stands near the palace, separated from it only by the road, and still belongs to the descendants of the miller who refused to yield it up to Frederick, when he wanted to pull it down and include the ground in his own gardens, which are rather confined on that side. The original mill was a very small one; but after Frederick lost the lawsuit against the miller, he erected for him the present one on a much larger scale. Some years ago adverse circumstances compelled the owner of the mill to make up his mind to part with it. He in consequence offered it for sale to the late king, who, instead of availing himself of the opportunity, generously settled on the miller a sum sufficient to extricate him from his difficulties, and enable him to maintain himself in his property; saying that the mill now belonged to Prussian history, and was in a manner a national monument.

A path leads N. of the Windmill to the Ruinenberg, with artificial ruins concealing the reservoir for the fountains. A very extensive view is obtained from the summit of the Tower (small fee expected). To the W. of the Windmill is the Sicilian Garden, and Pinetum (or Northern garden), and beyond these the new Orangerie, 950 ft. long, completed in 1856, and decorated with copies from Raphael's paintings. W. of this again, past the Chinese Tower, is a handsome and lofty Belvedere, commanding a panorama of the surrounding country.

The broad walk, before mentioned, leads from the foot of the terraces of Sans-Souci to the

New Palace* (Neues Palais), about 2 m. from Potsdam, the summer residence of the Crown Prince and Princess, who have apartments above the state-rooms. The flower-garden in the English style is the work of the Princess. This vast brick building was erected at enormous cost in six years, 1763-69, on a spot previously a morass, by Frederick, by way of bravado, at the end of the Seven Years' War, to show his enemies that his finances were not exhausted. It contains 72 apartments, exhibiting faded remains of gaudy magnificence. Marble has been profusely lavished on the walls and floors; and one large apartment is lined entirely with shells and minerals, in very bad taste. There are still some tolerable paintings by Snyders, and one or two very excellent Luca Giordanos. The most interesting room is that containing in a small Library* a copy of the works of Frederick the Great, 'Des Œuvres mêlées du Philosophe de Sans-Souci. Avec privilège d'Apollon.' This copy is a curiosity, as it contains many notes in the handwriting of Voltaire, some of them severe and cutting criticisms. Thus, finding the word plat in three or four consecutive lines of the same poem, he writes, "Voici plus de plats que dans un très-bon souper." At another place he writes, "S'il faut conserver cette épigramme, il faut la tourner tout autrement." He points out a piece of false grammar thus, "On ne dit pas louer à." The remarks, however, are not all in this cutting tone, and in other parts the margin is plentifully sprinkled with "admirable," "rien de mieux;" while at the end of one of Frederick's letters is written, "Que d'esprit! de grâce, d'imagination! qu'il est doux de vivre aux pieds d'un tel homme!" The offices for servants, contained in the building called Communs, facing the New Palace, are now converted into barracks for the trained infantry—a draught from every regiment in the Prussian service—who are instructed and replaced every year by fresh corps, the old ones being distributed through the army to introduce uniformity in the drill and regulations.

In the building called the Antique Temple*, close to the New Palace (N.), is a statue of Louisa Queen of Prussia. It is an improvement on that at Charlottenburg, the result of 15 years' thought and study on the part of the sculptor, Rauch: it is even more beautiful and touching. It is no larger than life, and represents her asleep.

At the S. side of the gardens, 20 min. walk S.E. of the New Palace, stands Charlottenhof, a villa built by Frederick William IV., when Crown Prince, in the style of a Pompeian dwelling; following as nearly as possible the arrangement and dimensions of the houses of Pompeii. It exhibits the utmost taste and elegance. Two of the rooms were set apart for Alex. von Humboldt, who was a native of Potsdam. In the beautiful garden is an exact imitation of a Pompeian bath, built for use as well as ornament, and decorated with frescoes. The fountains, an antique altar, and several statues and bronzes, were brought from Herculaneum or Pompeii.

From Potsdam Stat. you may drive to 2 m. Babelsberg*, the modern castle of the German Emperor, built from Schinkel's designs, 1835-49. As it is separated from Potsdam by the broad Havel, the visit to it may be made either before or after that to Potsdam and Sans-Souci; it is $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.'s drive from the stat. The beautiful grounds, with their terraces and fountains, were laid out by Prince Pückler-Muskau. The rooms have an air of the highest taste and refinement, and contain portraits of our Royal Family, and others connected with Prussia, besides some specimens of art from the pencil of our Princess Royal. N. of Babelsberg is Gliencke, with a château and park of Prince Frederick Charles. Hence, crossing the Havel by a long bridge, you reach

The Marble Palace, erected by Frederick William II. (1787-96) on the bank of the lake, adorned by Frederick William IV. with modern paintings, &c.

In the vicinity is the Pfingstberg, where the king has erected a huge structure, in imitation of a villa at Tivoli, the towers of which command a panorama of Potsdam and its environs. On the way from it to Sans-Souci you pass through the Russian Colony (Alexandrowka) or village. It consists of 11 houses built entirely after the Russian fashion, and given, with a piece of land, to a party of Russians sent hither by the Emperor Nicholas. The little Chapel belonging to the colony, surmounted by three bulb-shaped domes, is fitted up and adapted to the Greek Church service.

The Pfaueninsel (Peacock Island) is $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. beyond Babelsberg, on the road to Berlin, and was a favourite resort of Fred. Will. III., but is now rarely visited.

The view from the Brauhausberg, S. of the Potsdam Rly. Stat., includes Potsdam and all its numerous palaces, the intricate windings of the Havel, and the beautiful green islands which it encircles—a very pleasing prospect, particularly towards sunset.

On quitting Potsdam the railroad crosses the Havel, leaving the palace and gardens of Sans-Souci on the right, and from Wildpark Stat. to Genthin the country is varied by the lakes formed by the Havel, some of which are skirted, others traversed by the railroad.

5 m. Werder Stat., a small town of 2900 Inhab., in a lake formed by the Havel.

7 m. Gross-Kreuz Stat. On rt. the wooded heights of the Eichenberg.

8 m. Brandenburg Stat. (Buffet)—(Inns: Schwarzer Adler; Bär). A lifeless town, of 27,000 Inhab., on the Havel, which here widens out and is called the Plauenscher See. The city occupies the site of the ancient Brennabor, which existed in the 9th cent., and was captured in 1153 by Albrecht the Bear, who took the title of Margrave of Brandenburg, and founded Berlin.

The Dom (Cathedral), in the Burg quarter, an island formed by the river, is a late Romanesque ch., 1170–94, of which date are the crypt and part of the choir walls: the rest was built about 1307. It was badly restored in 1836 by Schinkel. On the richly recessed W. portal are reliefs satirising the monks, such as a fox preaching to a congregation of geese. The interior is ornamented with antique statues and paintings. The high altar (1518), of wood, carved and painted, represents the Coronation of the Virgin, Peter, Paul, &c., figures life-size, with paintings, the Fathers of the Church, in the style of Mat. Grünewald. Here are the tombs of Episcopal Margraves, some of them of terra-cotta, incised and in relief, of 13th and 14th cents. The Font (15th cent.) bears reliefs of the youth of our Saviour, but they have been painted over. In the crypt is the bishop's throne, 13th cent. The cloisters deserve notice. In the chamber of antiquities adjoining the ch. is a model of the Marienkirche, of Byzantine architecture, 12th cent., destroyed 1722, various carvings, altar-pieces, paintings. In a second chamber are some relics once held in great veneration here, e.g. a stud from the bedstead of the Virgin; the manger out of which Joseph's ass fed in the flight into Egypt; the pocket of David's sling; the head of Goliath's staff and his purse, &c.

[N. G.]

The Ch. of St. Katherine, built 1401, is one of the richest examples of German brick architecture. At the upper end of the transepts are immense screens of rich open tracery, formed of clay, baked and glazed, in colour dark green, with statuettes of the same in the niches. Here is a richly carved altar-piece of wood, a brass font adorned with many figures, by F. Morner, 1440, and on l. a monument of the Schulenburg family, 1595.

The Altstadt Rathhaus is a fine Gothic monument, 1350; and several of the town gates, especially the Mühlenthor (date 1440), the Steinthor, and the Rathenower Thor (1375), have picturesque towers of brick, and deserve notice. In the market-place is a Rolandsäule, 18 ft. high (date 1404). Fine view from the Marienberg outside the town.

The line passes through an uninteresting country to 8 m. Wusterwitz Stat., on the lake of Plauen, which is connected with the Elbe by a canal. The rail runs near the canal on its S. side.

8 m. Genthin Stat.—(Inn: Goldner Stern.) Pop. 3100; tobacco and cloth manufactories.

13 m. Burg Stat.—(Inns kept by Roland and Schröder.) A busy and flourishing town of 15,000 Inhab., one-seventh of whom are engaged in the manufacture of cloth, established here (1688) by French Protestant emigrants.

The lofty towers of Magdeburg Cathedral come in sight. The Elbe spreads itself out, and forms several islands, which are crossed by the rly. on iron lattice-bridges. It traverses the Tête du Pont on the rt. bank.

18 m. Madgeburg Junct. Stat. (See Rte. 66.)

ROUTE 63.

BERLIN TO LEIPZIG, BY WITTENBERG.—RAIL.

Distance, 99 m.; time, 3½ to 5 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

From the Anhaltener Bahnhof, outside the Anhalt Gate, the line proceeds S., passing the Kreuzberg on the l., and soon after, the tower of Teltow rises on the rt.

11 m. Gross-Beeren Stat. l. The Ch. with seven turrets, erected 1817, and a cast-iron Obelisk ornamented with a cross, commemorate the victory of Aug. 23, 1813, gained here by the Prussian Landwehr, under Bülow, over the French and Germans, under Oudinot.

6 m. Trebbin Stat., a town of 1400 Inhab.

10 m. Luckenwalde Stat., a town of 12,740 Inhab., on the Nuthe, famed for its manufacture of broad cloth.

9 m. Jüterbog Junct. Stat. —(Inn :

Post.) This ancient Wendic town of 6630 Inhab., is 1 m. from stat. In the handsome Gothic Ch. of St. Nicholas is preserved one of the Indulgence-boxes (Ablaskasten) of the friar Tetzl, Luther's antagonist, who was waylaid in a wood, near the convent of Zinna, by a robber knight, Hans von Hacke, as he was carrying it home filled with gold, the produce of the pardons he had sold. It is a large wooden alms-box, hooped with iron, having a slit on the top. See also a carved box for vestments; and a Tabernacle for the Sacrament. The antique walls and gates — especially the Frauenthor — deserve notice.

[Rly. S. 78 m. to Dresden. See Rte. 65.]

From Jüterbog the line turns W., and 2½ m. on the l. is Dennewitz, another battle-field, where the Prussians and Russians under Bülow were successful, Sept. 6, 1813, against the French under Ney and Oudinot. 10,000 French were taken prisoners, and Berlin saved from falling into their hands. A monument of the battle has been erected near Nieder-Görsdorf.

18 m. Wittenberg Junct. Stat., near the Elster Thor. — (Inns: Bahnhof Restauration affords lodging as well as refreshment; — Weintraube and Adler.) A town on the rt. bank of the Elbe, fortified up to 1875, with 12,000 Inhab., dirty and ill-paved. 3 or 4 hours will suffice to see it. It was the residence of the Electors of Saxony down to 1542, and has been termed the Protestant Mecca, and the cradle of the Reformation, since it was in this place that Luther's translation of the New Testament first appeared in print (1522), and that he openly engaged in opposition to the Church of Rome, and denounced its evil practices and abuses. He was professor (1508) of theology and philosophy at the once famous University founded here (1502) by the Saxon Elector Frederick the Wise, removed (1817) and incorporated with that of Halle. It is mentioned by Shakspeare as the school where Hamlet studied. Luther (died 1546, at Eisleben) and his friend Melanchthon are both buried in the Schlosskirche, situated at the end of the town, furthest from the Rly. stat. near the N. wall. Two tablets of bronze, inserted in the pavement, mark their graves. Here are also the tombs of Frederick the Wise, died 1525, and John the Steadfast, died 1532, Electors of Saxony, the friends of Luther and of the Reformation. The monument of Frederick is a fine work of art, by Peter Vischer, 1527; his bronze statue is full of life, and of a noble character, while the Gothic work of the niche in which it is placed also deserves notice. Here is a Coronation of the Virgin, also by P. Vischer, in relief—a duplicate of that at Erfurt. Against the doors of this church (burnt by the French, replaced 1858 by bronze gates from Quast's design) Luther (31 Oct. 1517) hung up his 95 theses against papal indulgences, which he offered, after the fashion of the times, to defend against all comers.

Luther's house or lodging in the old University Buildings, formed out of the ancient Augustine Convent (used since 1817 as a Preacher's seminary), where he lived after his marriage, still remains almost unaltered. In it are kept his chair and table at which he wrote, the jug from which he drank, his stove made according to his own directions, with peculiar devices, his professor's chair, 2 portraits of him by Cranach, and a very curious cast of his face after death. Over one door is the autograph, in chalk, of Peter the Great, now covered with glass to protect it. At the Elster Gate, immediately beyond the house of Luther, is the Oak Tree planted on the site of that under which Luther burnt the Papal Bull, Dec. 20, 1520.

In the Market Place in the middle of the town, beneath a Gothic canopy of cast iron, is a bronze statue of Luther, by Schadow, erected 1822: on one side of the pedestal are the lines, “Ist's Gottes Werk, so wird's bestehn; Ist's Menschenwerk, wird's unter-gehn.”

(If God's work, it will endure; if man's, it will perish.)

On another—

“Ein' feste Burg ist unser Gott.”

The Statue of Melanchthon near it is by Drake, and was erected 1865. Melanchthon's house still exists, and is also now used as a school.

Close to this is the Rathhaus. It contains portraits of Luther and Melanchthon, with their contemporary professors, by Cranach, who was burgo-master here; also a singular picture painted by him 1516, illustrative of the 10 Commandments according to the old division;—also an original portrait of Gustavus Adolphus; his sword, which he left as a present after a visit to the sights of Wittenberg; and among other relics and curiosities illustrating the history of the Reformation, the top of Luther's sacramental cup, and his rosary which he carried when an Augustine friar.

In the Stadtkirche, close at hand, is the handsome bronze font by Herman Vischer, 1557, at which Melanchthon baptized. Here also (though not from the existing pulpit) Luther preached. Here are two curious but poor pictures by Cranach (?)—1. The altar-piece representing the Lord's Supper, in which the painter himself appears as a servant; Baptism, in which Melanchthon officiates; Preaching, in which Luther addresses a congregation of which the two foremost figures are his wife and son; Penance, administered by Bugenhagen. 2. In one of the aisles a painting represents the Vineyard of the Lord as misused by the Pope and his followers, and well cultivated by the Reformers.

The Castle in which lived the Electors of Saxony down to 1542, is now the Citadel.

Wittenberg has suffered severely from sieges. In 1760, the chief public buildings and one-third of the town were destroyed by the Austrian bombardment. It was taken by the Prussians under Tauentzien, from the French, by storm, in 1814, after a siege of ten months, during which the suburbs were laid in ruins. The Vienna Congress of 1815 annexed Wittenberg, along with a very large portion of Saxon territory, to Prussia.

[Rly. W. through Coswig to Rosslau, in Rte. 66B; S.E. to Falkenberg, in Rte. 65.]

The line crosses the Elbe by a bridge 906 ft. long, and proceeds through 13 m. Gräfenhainchen Stat., town of 3200 Inhab., to 9 m. Bitterfeld Junct. Stat.—5000 Inhab. Cloth manufacture.

[Rly. N. to Dessau (Rte. 66B); S.W. to Halle (Rte. 64).]

8 m. Delitzsch Junct. Stat. [Rly. W. to Halle, E. to Falkenberg. Rte. 65.]

The line proceeds S., passing near the battle-field of Breitenfeld (see Rte. 64), and reaches

7 m. Leipzig Junct. Stat. (See Rte. 86.)

ROUTE 64.

HAMBURG TO LEIPZIG, BY MAGDEBURG, CÖTHEN AND HALLE.—RAIL.

Distance, 237 m.; time, 11 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Hamburg is described in Rte. 56. Rte. 61, or Rte. 61A, is followed as far as 98 m. Wittenberge Stat. (see Rte. 61), not to be confounded with the Wittenberg of Luther (Rte. 63).

On leaving Wittenberge, the line proceeds S. across the Elbe, to 30 m. Stendal Junct. Stat. (Inns: Adler; Schwan). This ancient town, Pop. 8600, was formerly a fortress and flourishing Hanse town, capital of the Altmarkt, and residence of the Margraves of Brandenburg, and in the 14th cent. contained 20,000 Inhab. It has several interesting churches. The Gothic Dom (St. Nicholas) is a good specimen of brick-work of the 15th cent., with coloured windows executed 1480; a roodloft, 1450; stalls in the choir, 1430; bas-reliefs of the Passion outside the choir, cloisters, &c.;—St. Mary's, late Gothic, font, wood screenwork, and stalls;—St. Jacob. The Rathhaus, an interesting building in the market-place, late Gothic, has some carved screenwork, and in front stands a Rolandsäule, 1525. See also the town walls, originally of granite, repaired with brick and rich terra-cotta work in the 15th cent.;—the Uenglinger Gate, 87 ft. high, with turrets, moulded brick ornaments;—the Tangermünde Gate, 1460, raised on a much older basis of granite. A Statue was erected in 1859 to J. J. Winckelmann, the antiquary, born here 1718; murdered at Trieste 1768.

[Diligence 3 times daily in 1½ hr. to Tangermünde, 7 m. S.E., high above the l. bank of the Elbe, a very ancient city of 4900 Inhab., with a richly decorated brick Rathhaus, and elegant portal to St. Stephen's Ch.]

Stendal is now an important Junct. Stat. on the main line between Berlin and Hanover, for Belgium, Holland, &c.

Rlys. W. to Hanover (Rte. 65A); N.W. to Uelzen for Bremen (Rte. 72B); N. to Wittenberge (see above); E. to Berlin (Rte. 65A), and S. the line proceeds to 27 m. Wolmirstedt Stat., on the Ohre, Pop. 3800. Here are the ruins of an ancient castle, and near here, at Sommereschenburg, is a monument to F. M. Gneisenau, who died 1831,

The line proceeds along the l. bank of the Elbe to 9 m. Madgeburg Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 66.

The train, on quitting the fortifications, passes near the Fort Sternschanze.

9 m. Schönebeck Junct. Stat., an industrious town on the Elbe, Pop. 9300.

[Branch Rly. to Stassfurt (Buffet) (Inn: Goldener Ring), where, as well as at Gross-Salza, there are very extensive salt-mines, some of the horizontal galleries being 1 m. long, 30 ft. high, and 80 ft. wide. Thence line continues to Güsten (see below).]

4 m. Gnadau Stat. (A Moravian colony, founded 1767.)

The most considerable work on this line is the bridge, 1370 ft. long, resting on 30 piers, by which the railroad is carried over the river Saale near Grizena.

4 m. Saale Stat., situated 1 m. below Kalbe, an old town of 4000 Inhab.

rt. The towers of Bernburg are just visible from the railroad. (l.) Aken, a Prussian town of 3200 Inhab., near the Elbe, is seen before reaching 13 m. Cöthen Junct. Stat. (good Buffet) (Inn: Prinz von Preussen). Pop. 13,500. The city, until 1847 the capital of the Duchy of Anhalt-Cöthen, is an important Junct. Stat., and industrious town. In the Schloss is Naumann's ornithological collection, and Hahnemann here, in 1820, first promulgated his system of homœopathy.

[Branch Rly. W. 18 m. to Güsten Junct. Stat., passing 12 m. Bernburg Stat. (Inn: Goldne Kugel), until 1863 capital of the Duchy of Anhalt-Bernburg, with 16,000 Inhab., on the river Saale. The Schloss stands on the summit of a height rising precipitously from the Saale; its oldest part is a keep tower called Eulenspiegel, more than 120 ft. high; the rest of the edifice was erected in the 15th and 17th cents. It is now the residence of the Erbprinz, and contains a collection of family portraits. The Marienkirche was founded in the 10th cent., but repaired internally in 1811; above the choir are statues of 8 princes of the house of Anhalt. St. Nicholas, in the new town, is also an old church.]

[Branch Rly. N. E. 10 m. to Dessau Junct. Stat. See Rte. 66B.]

On leaving Cöthen the line to Leipzig passes, a little on the l., the old Wendic town of Zörbig, near to 9 m. Stumsdorf Stat., from near which is seen on rt. the Petersberg, 650 ft. high, commanding a fine view, and formerly surmounted by the Augustinian monastery of St. Peter. Of this there remains only the ch., founded 1127, restored by the Prussian King since 1853, and containing tombs of the Wettin princes. The line, on approaching Halle, passes, on the rt., the ruined castle Giebichenstein, once a residence of the Archbishops of Magdeburg, and occasionally used as an Imperial state prison, out of which the Landgrave Lewis II. of Thuringia, imprisoned by the Emperor Henry IV., is said to have escaped (1102) by leaping from a window into the Saale. In 1636 the castle was ruined by the Swedes.

12 m. Halle Junct. Stat. (Inns: *Stadt Hamburg, near the post-office, best; Kronprinz; Goldene Kugel, kept by Mente, close to the Stat.). A growing town of 52,408 Inhab., on the Saale, originally a German outpost on Slavonic land, and afterwards part of the dominions of the Archbishop of Magdeburg, and a flourishing member of the Hanseatic League. It is now principally remarkable for its University, founded in 1694 by Frederick I. of Prussia, to which that of Wittenberg was transferred in 1817. The average number of students at present is 850. It is especially renowned for its school of Protestant theology. Its professors, Gesenius (who is buried here) and Tholuck, ranked as the 2 most eminent Hebrew scholars of the age. The handsome University building was erected 1834. Near it is the Zucht-haus (Penitentiary).

Halle is an antiquated town, possessing several curious architectural monuments, among them the Red Tower (15th cent.), standing isolated in the market-place; and not far from it a colossal bronze statue of Handel the composer, born at Halle 1685, erected 1859, by his admirers in England and Germany, from Heidel's design.

The Marienkirche, an elegant Gothic building, completed 1554, flanked by 4 towers, 2 of which, joined by a bridge, are inhabited by the Custos. It contains a remarkable picture by Lucas Cranach, turning on a pivot, and opening with four shutters: the chief subjects are the Annunciation, and the Madonna and Child on the crescent, surrounded by angels, with the Cardl. Albert of Brandenburg (for whom it was painted, 1528) in the corner, and a background of landscape. The wings or shutters bear figures of Saints. [Apply to the Küster, who lives in the house next the ch., to open this picture.] The altar-piece (the Sermon on the Mount) is by Hübner, an artist of Dresden. The Marriage of St. Catherine is likewise by Cranach. High up against the triforium is a coloured medallion head, probably of terra-cotta, of Luther, inscribed "Sanctus Doctor M. Lutherus, Propheta Germaniæ." The font of bronze; date 1430.

The Moritzkirche, in the lower part of the town, near the Salt Works (built 1156, choir 1388, restored 1840), a small but fine Gothic church, elaborately vaulted, with stone pendants descending from the roof, has a very remarkable altar-piece of carved work, 20 ft. high, in the style of the Custodias of Israel von Meckenen, date 1488. The centre opens and discloses niches, each filled with a bas-relief from our Lord's Passion, painted and gilt. On the outside are 10 paintings of the Westphalian school, also on shutters. The pulpit is of sandstone, elaborately carved in the style of a later period (1588) and gilt. The stem bears the representation of Sin, Death, and the Devil (the Temptation of Eve); the other carvings are Scriptural subjects from the Creation to the Crucifixion.

In the Residenz, once palace of the Archbishop of Magdeburg, occurred the humiliation of Philip, Landgrave of Hesse, who was here obliged to throw himself at the feet of the Emp. Charles V., after the defeat of the Protestants at Mühlberg, 1547. It is now attached to the University, and contains a collection of Antiquities.

The Orphanage (Waisenhaus), in the suburb of Glaucha, called from its founder (1698), who was a clergyman and professor of Halle, Francke's Institut, is a liberal and munificent establishment. It embraces also schools for the education of children of both sexes, and of various stations, though chiefly of the poorer classes, to the number of 2220; a Laboratory, where medicines are prepared and distributed, and a Printing Office for Bibles, which are sold at a low price. Franke began without funds of his own, with no resource but a reliance on Providence. The building is now ornamented with an admirable Statue in bronze of the Founder, by Rauch, raised (1829) to his memory by a public subscription, to which King William Frederick III. of Prussia largely contributed.

The name Halle (Greek ἅλς?) is derived from the Salt Springs, which have been known from very remote times. The labourers employed in them are a peculiar and distinct race, called Halloren, supposed to be the descendants of the Wends, who anciently peopled this country. They are said still to preserve the physiognomy, customs, and even costume of their ancestors. Some of the springs rise within the town, and are boiled there, but the Royal Salt Works (Salinen) are situated without the walls on an island in the Saale. The brine is pumped up by a steam-engine, and is conveyed to them in pipes; it is strong enough to be fit at once for boiling; the fuel used is the brown coal, which abounds in this neighbourhood. The annual produce is 11,000 tons of salt, valued at 125,000 dollars; it forms almost the sole article of commerce, excepting porcelain earth, found near Halle, and used in the china works at Berlin.

Outside the walls, on the E., is an elegant monument to the soldiery who died here of the wounds received in the battle of Leipzig, 1813.

The castle of Moritzburg, built 1513, was reduced to a ruin during the Thirty Years' War. $\frac{1}{2}$ m. outside the gate is the castle of Giebichenstein (see above), and opposite to it Kröllwitz, a favourite resort. Near the former is the Wittekind-Bad, about 1 m. from Halle, much frequented in summer for its brine baths. Carding thistles and caraways are largely cultivated in this neighbourhood: it also furnishes the greater portion of what are called Leipzig larks, which are caught by the Halloren, and sent to Leipzig as dainties for the table.

From this town 7 lines of Rly. diverge: (1) N. to Cöthen Junct. Stat. (see above); (2) N.E. to Bitterfeld Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 66B); (3) E. to Delitzsch Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 63); (4) N.W. through Cönnern to Aschersleben Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 73); (5) W. to Nordhausen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 67); (6) S. to Corbetha Junct. Stat. (Rte. 86); (7) S.E. the line proceeds to 11 m. Schkeuditz Stat. Saxon territory is entered, and ascending the valley of the Elster, we pass (1.) the battle-field of Breitenfeld, where Gustavus Adolphus defeated Tilly, 1631, and where Torstenson defeated Archduke Leopold, 1642. On the highest ground upon the field, 2 m. from the Rly. (1.), is a monument surrounded by 8 fir-trees. Möckern, close to the line (rt.), distinguished by its ch. spire, was a fiercely contested point during the battle of Leipzig (1813), between the troops of York and Marmont, until Blücher drove back the French. (See Rte. 86).

8 m. Leipzig Junct. Stat. (Rte. 86.) Terminus between the suburbs of Halle and Grimma, close to that of the Dresden Rly.

ROUTE 65.

BERLIN TO DRESDEN BY JÜTERBOG.—
RAIL.

Distance, 115 m.; time, 4 to 5 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61, and Rte. 63 is followed as far as 38 m. Jüterbog Junct. Stat., whence the line proceeds S.E. to

29 m. Falkenberg Junct. Stat. [Rly. N.E. to Cottbus Junct. Stat. (Rte. 81B); S.W. to Delitzsch Junct. Stat. (Rte. 86D); S.E. to Mückenberg; N.W. to Wittenberg.] The line to Dresden continues S. by

8 m. Burndorf Stat. [5 m. to the rt. on the Elbe, is Mühlberg (for the battle here in 1547, see Rte. 87).]

9 m. Röderau Junct. Stat. [Rly. N.E. to Elsterwerde, thence direct to Berlin, Rte. 65B.] Here the line falls into the Leipzig and Dresden Rly., for which and for 32 m. Dresden, see Rte. 87.

ROUTE 65A.

COLOGNE TO BERLIN, viâ MINDEN,
HANOVER, LEHRTE, AND STENDAL.
—RAIL.

Distance, 358 m.; time (express), 10½ hrs.
Through express, 9.30 A.M. Quick trains,
7 A.M. and 8 P.M.

Note. — From London to Berlin, 4 Routes, 3 of which pass through Hanover:—(1) the shortest in distance, viâ Rotterdam, Utrecht, Zutphen, Salzbergen, and Osnabrück (see Rtes. 10 (Handbook for Holland and Belgium) and 69, or by Flushing and Wesel, Rte. 34); (2) the shortest in time (about 23 hrs.), viâ Dover, Calais (or Ostend), Düsseldorf (avoiding Cologne), thence by the present Route through Minden, Hanover, Lehrte, and Stendal; (3) (about 25 hrs.) the same as 2 to Hanover, thence viâ Brunswick and Magdeburg (see Rte. 66); (4) (about 27 hrs.) the same as 2 to Aix-la-Chapelle, thence viâ Elberfeld, Soest, Kreiensen, and joining 3 at Magdeburg (see Rtes. 36A and 66A).

Cologne is described in Rte. 36, and for the Rly. as far as 201 m. Hanover Junct. Stat., and on to

9 m. Lehrte Junct. Stat., see Rte. 66. Thence the direct line for Berlin proceeds E. through a country destitute of important towns, to

44 m. Oebisfelde Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E. to Magdeburg, in Rte. 66, in progress N.W. to Ulzen, in Rte. 59.]

38 m. Stendal Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 64. The line continues due E., crossing the Elbe some miles N. of Tangermünde (Rte. 64), just before reaching

8 m. Schönhausen Stat., and proceeding through a flat and uninteresting country to 12 m. Rathenow Stat., an old walled town of 7800 Inhab., on the Havel. largely employed in brick-making. Battle here in 1627 between the Danes and Imperialists, and in 1675 between the Swedes and Brandenburgers.

35 m. Spandau Stat., described in Rte. 61.

The line crosses the Spree near Charlottenburg, and runs into the Hannoverscher Bahnhof, on the N.W. side of 8 m. Berlin, described in Rte. 61.

ROUTE 65B.

BERLIN TO DRESDEN DIRECT.—RAIL.

Distance, 108 m.; time, 4 hrs.; no express trains.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

This direct line, completed 1876, leaves the Dresden Rly. Stat. on the S.W. side of the city and proceeds S. through a number of unimportant stations, crossing the Torgau and Cottbus line at Dobrilugk, the Torgau and Ruhland line at Elsterwerda, the Priestewitz and Ruhland line at Grossenhain, and after crossing the Elbe the line reaches the new Berlin Rly. Stat. in the Friedrichstadt on the S.W. side of Dresden, described in Rte. 87.

ROUTE 66.

COLOGNE TO BERLIN, BY DÜSSELDORF, OBERHAUSEN, MINDEN, HANOVER, BRUNSWICK, MAGDEBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 382 m.; time, 12 hrs.; 2 express through trains daily (7 A.M. and 8 P.M.).

This Rte. is 2 hrs. longer than Rte. 65A; but is more interesting as passing through Brunswick, Magdeburg, and Potsdam. For the shorter rte. to Magdeburg viâ Vohwinkel and Paderborn, see Rte. 68.

Cologne is described in Rte. 36.

The Stat. of the Mindener Rly. is in Deutz, on the opposite side of the river; but express trains start from the Central-Bahnhof in Cologne, crossing the Rhine by the permanent iron bridge.

For the Stats. 3 m. Mühlheim, 24 m. Düsseldorf, 5 m. Calum, 8 m. Duisburg, see Rte. 34.

From Duisburg, the line, which has hitherto run in nearly a N. direction, turns to the E., and crossing the river Ruhr, reaches

5 m. Oberhausen Junct. Stat. (Buf-fet.) Pop. 13,758. Near the town are the Iron-works of Jacobi and Co., nearly the largest in Germany. Five great lines of Rly. intersect here: N. to Wesel and Holland (Rte. 34); W. to Ruhrort, Crefeld, and Aix-la-Chapelle (Rte. 36A); S.E. to Mühlheim (see Rte. 34); S. to Düsseldorf (see above); and E. the line continues through

5 m. Berge-Borbeck Stat. A coal stat.

4 m. Altenessen Stat. [Rly. S. 1 m. ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) to Essen Junct. Stat., on the Rly. between Mühlheim on the Ruhr and Steele. (Inns: Essener Hof, Hartmann's, Holtgen's, Retze). The town grew up around an abbey of Benedictine nuns founded here in 873, and whose abbess wielded a certain dominion over the town until the secularization of the abbey in 1803. In 1840 Essen numbered only 6400 Inhab., but in consequence of being the centre of a great coal district, the Pop. has rapidly increased up to 55,000.

Its handsome Minster* (nave finished 1316, choir 1445) retains Romanesque portions. Its W. front and choir, forming 3 sides of an octagon, is of the original 9th-cent. building. Here is a huge bronze 7-armed candlestick, gift of the abbess Mechtildis, sister of the Emperor Otho II., 998. In the sacristy are precious reliquaries, crosses, &c. The Protestants (12,000) have had a Ch. here since 1561; the building is of the 11th cent.

Chimneys rise on all sides. Krupp's Cast-steel Works (Gussstahlwerke) is the most conspicuous Factory, and is famed for the production of colossal steel ordnance, first ordered of Krupp by the Egyptian Viceroy, and used by Prussia in the French war; Russia is mainly supplied from these works. On trial they have been surpassed by Armstrongs. The enormous scale of the works is shown by the fact that they cover 450 acres of ground, and employ 8000 men and 195 steam engines. Strangers are not admitted to the works.

Branch Rly. S. 6 m. to Werden (the first Stat. on the Rly. between Kupferdreh and Düsseldorf). (Inn: Hicking's.) The town, Pop. 6000, is prettily situated on the Ruhr. Interesting Romanesque Ch., with fine N. portal. The Benedictine Abbey, founded about 790, secularised 1803 (now a prison), possessed the famous Gothic translation of the Gospels by Bishop Ulfila, in the 4th cent., said to have been carried off in the Thirty Years' War, and now in the library of Upsala (see Rte. 74, Handbk. Sweden).]

The line from Altenessen now passes over a portion of the great Westphalian coal district, densely populated, bristling with chimneys, and crossed in every direction by a network of railways. The country is flat and uninteresting.

8 m. Wanne Junct. Stat. Rly. to Münster and Osnabrück (see Rte. 69).

18 m. Dortmund Junct. Stat. (Inns: Wencker - Paxmann's; Middendorf; Kölnischer Hof). Pop. 61,000. This ancient walled city was until 1803 a free Imperial town, and formerly chief seat of the Westphalian secret tribunals called Vehmgerichte. In the Bahnhof itself was the place of meeting of the most celebrated of all the tribunals held in the district of the "Red earth."

Under the venerable lime-tree still growing on the W. side of the station (the second was blown down 1859) the naked sword of justice and the willow-wythe were laid upon a stone table before the assembled judges. In 1429 King Sigismund was initiated in "the Königshof under the lime-tree at Dortmund, kneeling on his right knee bared, with head uncovered, before the Freigraf (president of the Vehmgericht), his 2 forefingers of right hand on the cord, 2 swords laid cross-wise before him. Thus he took the oath to keep the secrets of the Vehm, and received the watchword "Strick, Stein, Grass, Grein," the meaning of which, as well as of the watchword "Reinir dor Feweri," has been so well kept that its meaning is no longer understood. In the process of time the Vehm degenerated into a sort of police court, and the last meeting was held here 1803 (see Arnsberg, Rte. 67). The Ch. of St. Reinhold—a rich Gothic choir (1421-50), attached to a nave of 1250—has good painted glass. Obs. the carved altar-piece; 2 wooden statues of St. Reinhold and Charlemagne; a bronze font; lectern, eagle, and chandelier. St. Mary's (12th centy., with Gothic choir) and the Catholic Church contain much that is worth notice. The Rathhaus (13th centy.) is one of the oldest town-halls in Germany. The Marienkirche also contains 2 remarkable altar-pieces by painters of the Westphalian school, while in the Cath. Ch. is a very large altar-piece of the brothers Victor and H. Dünwegge (1521), natives of Dortmund. Dortmund is now a place of considerable manufacturing industry, being one of the great centres of the coal interest, and has acquired a modern aspect since the walls have been to a great extent removed.

Rly. N. through Dülmen to Gronau, N.E. to Hamm (see above), E. to Soest and Paderborn (see Rte. 68), S. to Witten, S.W. to Steele, and W. the railroad passes through the extremely fertile district called the Hellweg, the N. part of the former Grafschaft Mark.

17 m. Hamm Junct. Stat. (Inns: Prinz v. Preussen, at the Stat.; Graf von der Mark). [Branch Rly. N. to Münster (see Rte. 69), S.E. to Soest for Paderborn and Cassel (Rte. 68), S. to Unna (see Rte. 68).] This principal town of the former Grafschaft Mark, on the Lippe, has 16,021 Inhab. In the Schloss, formerly the residence of the old Counts of Mark, Louis XVIII. spent some time during his exile. (Diligence daily in 3¼ hrs. to Detmold, in Rte. 69A). The line crosses the Lippe to 24 m. Rheda Stat. The Ems, which falls into the sea at Emden, is crossed.

5 m. Gütersloh Stat. (Inn: Rietter's). Pop. 4500. The Westphalian hams (the best cost about 4 groschen a-pound) and the spirit extracted from Wachholder berries, called Steenhäger, are celebrated. The brown rye-bread (Pumpernickel) peculiar to Westphalia is described by Voltaire as "certaine pierre dure, noire, et gluante, composée, à ce qu'on prétend, d'une espèce de seigle;" it is found on the tables of rich and poor, and horses are fed on a coarse kind of it.

8 m. Brackwede Stat. To the rt., between this place and Detmold, the defeat and death of Quintilius Varus, A.D. 9, is said to have occurred (see Rte. 69A).

4 m. Bielefeld Stat. (Inns: Drei Kronen; Ravensberger Hof). The centre of the Westphalian linen trade; a town of 18,700 Inhab., and formerly capital of the old County of Ravensberg. In St. Martin's Ch. are 2 old monuments and some paintings. On a neighbouring hill rises the tower of the Sparenburg (fine view), erected 1545, and fortified according to A. Dürer's system, on the site of an older Guelphic fortress: it is now a prison. The surrounding country of the Teutoburger Wald, and the walks around the town, are pretty. A coach goes hence to Pyrmont daily in summer.

8 m. Herford Stat. (Inns: Stadt Berlin; Bunnemann's H.) On the Werre, a small stream, 11,346 Inhab. The Münsterkirche, a vast Romanesque building (13th cent.) resembling the Dom of Paderborn, formerly belonged to a great abbey of Benedictine nuns, founded 789, secularized 1803. Around this monastery the town sprang up. St. John's contains good painted glass of the 15th centy. The Stiftskirche (St. Marien auf dem Berge), outside the town, is a beautiful Gothic edifice, 14th cent., composed of 3 aisles of equal breadth. A carved altar-piece of open work deserves notice. In the streets are several quaint and picturesque houses, stone and wood, of 16th century.

Branch Rly. in progress S.E. through Detmold (Rte. 69A) to Steinheim, on line between Paderborn and Hanover.

[In the Ch. of Enger, N.W. 5 m., is shown the tomb of Wittekind, chief of the Saxons, 12th cent., and the most formidable opponent of Charlemagne. The kings of Prussia are Dukes of Enger.]

The line crosses the Werre to 4 m. Löhne Junct. Stat. [Rly. W. to Osnabrück (Rte. 69) for Rheine, Emden or Münster].

4 m. Rehme Stat. Here are considerable salt-works (Neusalzwerk) belonging to the Prussian Government; the salt water obtained from an Artesian well bored to a depth of 3220 ft. It is converted into brine, fit for boiling, by causing it to evaporate in trickling over stacks of fagots. The brine rises with a temperature of 92° Fahr., and possesses valuable medicinal properties: it is much used in brine-baths, which have been established at the now frequented watering-place, called Bad Oeynhausen. (Inns: Vogler's; Rose; Victoria). Physician, Dr. Julius Braun; speaks English. The waters are efficacious in rheumatism and spinal complaints,—in this respect resembling those of Gastein. The place is rising in repute. Bath arrangements very good. Lodgings abound. [Rly. along the Weser to Hameln (on line between Hanover and Paderborn), and thence to Elze for Hildesheim, &c.]

From Oeynhausen the line crosses the Weser, and enters the pass called Porta Westphalica.

4 m. Porta Stat. This wide rent in the undulating chain of mountains called Wiehengebirge, through which the river Weser finds a passage to the sea, traversing a plain above as well as below the pass. The hills on either side of this breach—the “door-posts,” as it were, of the gates, showing at their base rocks of red sandstone—are called Jacobsberg (527 ft.) and Wittekindenberg (770 ft.); the last is named from a castle of the Saxon hero which once stood on it, and is now replaced by a Belvedere or stone tower. Near it is a ruined chapel in which, according to the tradition, Wittekind was baptized by Charlemagne. The view from the tops of these hills is very extensive. The Weser, the high road on its l. bank and the railroad on its rt., fill up the pass. The Rly. Stat. is prettily constructed to harmonize with the beautiful prospect. Hotels on both banks of the river pleasantly situated (see Rte. 71). Here are quarries of red sandstone.

The line follows the rt. bank of the Weser to

3 m. Minden Stat. (Inns: Eisenbahngasthof and Restaurant, tolerable; Victoria; Stadt London). A Prussian town, and up to 1872 fortress, of 16,860

Inhab., on the Weser, which is crossed by a stone bridge, 600 ft. long, built in 1518. It was the capital of an old episcopal principality, which in 1648 was annexed to Brandenburg. Thence it owed its origin to Charlemagne. The Dom, formerly a cathedral, is mainly a Transitional building of the 12th cent., not very large, but containing 6 windows in the aisles, remarkable for their fan-shaped tracery—truly magnificent—"running riot in its foliations." The plain and massive W. front and tower, together with the choir and cloister are Romanesque, 11th cent. The chief apse is Gothic. In the Church is a painting by H. Aldegrevier, a Westphalian artist, early in the 16th cent., of Wittekind coming to Charlemagne to be baptized. The Protestant Ch. of St. Martin's, on a height, approached by steps, commands a pleasing view. Obs. the delicate tracery in its windows.

The fortifications were blown up by Frederick the Great at the end of the Seven Years' War. The French blew up one arch of the stone bridge 1813, and it is replaced by a wooden one. Near Minden, in the year 16, the Germans were defeated by the Romans under Germanicus.

3 m. N. of the town, around the village of Todtenhausen, lies the field of the Battle of Minden, gained by the British and Brunswickers under Ferdinand Duke of Brunswick over the French under Contades, Aug. 1, 1759. A Gothic monument since 1859 marks the spot. Lord George Sackville was accused of cowardice on this occasion, and his name erased from the Army List.

Steamers on the Weser, down to Bremen, and up to Hameln.

From Minden the line turns E., and between this and Hanover the Weserkette, Bückeberge and Deister Hills bound the horizon.

5 m. Bückeburg Stat. (Inn: Deutsches Haus). This chief town of the little principality of Schaumburg-Lippe, contains 4500 Inhab. The prince resides in a large and ugly Palace, with a pretty garden and park. [About 9 m. (3 hrs.) from Bückeburg, S.E. through Eilsen (a sulphur bath, Juliana and other springs), Arnsburg, and Bernsen, rises the Paschenburg (if on foot 1½ hr. to the top from Bernsen. Take the footpath to the rt. at the end of the village, across the fields intersecting the roadway abt. ¼ hr. further—then l. up the mountain past the Stunbruck and through a fir-wood), one of the highest hills on the Weser (1115 ft.), surmounted by a tolerable Inn, where the night might be passed: a very extensive view—looking down upon the old castle of Schaumburg, the course of the Weser discerned in 19 different spots, the Brocken, the Grotenberg, with Herman's monument (see Rte. 69A), and about 100 towns and villages (see below, Excursions from Hanover).]

7 m. Stadthagen Stat. The handsome mausoleum of Prince Ernest, attached to the church, deserves notice.

8 m. Haste Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. to Hanover, via Weetzen, passing 4 m. S. Nenndorf (Pop. 800), a watering-place formerly belonging to the Elector of Hesse, who has a château here. Strangers are accommodated in the three bath-houses, and there is a table-d'hôte daily, during the season, in the Arkaden Saal. The waters are cold and strongly sulphureous, and are used for drinking as well as for baths. Saline baths are furnished from the salt-works at Rodenberg, also mud-baths of peat impregnated with sulphur. They are useful in gout, asthma, paralysis, and gunshot wounds.]

3 m. Wunstorf Junct. Stat. (Buffet). Rly. N. to Bremen (Rte. 72A). [Diligence 4 times daily in 2¼ hrs. to the Baths of Rehburg on the W. side of the Steinhuder Meer (see Rte. 72A). (Inns: Herzog von Cumberland; König von Hannover; Posthaus). A prettily situated bathing-place and whey-cure with shady walks, a Conversationshaus and Halle, with fine view from the Georgenplatz.]

.

]

|

!

The Leine river is crossed ; rt. the Herrenhausen Palace is conspicuous.

13 m. Hanover Junct. Stat. (Buffet).

Inns: facing Stat., Royal H., Union H., H. de Russie—extravagant charges at all three; H. du Rhin, Grand H., near Stat.; Bornemann's H., opposite the Post Office; H. de l'Europe, Louisenstr., more moderate. In the town: British H., 7 Georgsstrasse, well situated, but high charges; Victoria H., opposite the theatre; H. de Hanovre, 32 Calenberger Strasse, reasonable, commercial.

Cabs (Droschke) from the Rly. Stat. 1 pers. 60 pf., 4 pers. 80 pf., port-manteau 15 pf. By time, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. 1 pers. 50 pf., 4 pers. 75 pf.

Restaurants—at Rly. Stat.—under the Grand and Union H.; Rudolph's, 26 Georgsstrasse; Georgshalle, 9 Theaterplatz.

Confectioners, &c.—Robby, Pavillon on the Theaterplatz; Rabe, Aegidien-thor-platz.

Theatres.—Königl. Schauspielhaus (see below, closed June, July, August). Thalia, 47 Markstrasse, 3 times a week, in winter only. Tivoli, 1 Königsstrasse; and Odeon Gardens, 6 Nicolai-str. (concerts).

Railways (see below).

Post Office (open 7 A.M. to 8 P.M.) and Telegraph Office (day and night) close to the Rly. Stat.

Tramways (Pferde-Eisenbahn) every 10 min. from 6 A.M. to 11 P.M. The principal line runs E. and W. through the Georgsstrasse from the Döhrener-Thurm to Herrenhausen.

Omni-bus from the Linden to the principal Rly. Stat., in summer 8–12 every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., 12–10 every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and others.

Baths. Hannoversche, 18 Friedrichsstrasse; Swimming baths in the Leine and Ihme.

Eng. Ch. Service. On Sunday, 11 A.M., Nicolaistrasse, supported by voluntary subscriptions; Resident Chaplain.

British Vice-Consul.—Alex. Symon, 30 Schillerstrasse.

This handsome capital of the Prussian Province of Hanover, and up to 1866 of the kingdom of the same name, is pleasantly situated in a plain on both sides of the Leine, below the junction of the Ihme, and is a favourite resort of strangers for the education of their children, the German spoken here being considered by foreigners to be the purest.

Its population in 1636, when George Duke of Celle, grandfather of our George I., made it the permanent residence of the Court, was only 37,500, but since that time it has rapidly increased, and the recent annexation to Prussia, and the numerous lines of Rly. now intersecting at the town, have further tended to develop its industrial capabilities, so that now its inhabitants, inclusive of the suburbs, number 130,000.

From the accession in 1714 of the Elector George to the throne of Great Britain the two Crowns became connected, but on the death of William IV. in 1837 the Salic Law separated the crowns, and Hanover fell to Ernest Augustus Duke of Cumberland.

The Electorate suffered a good deal during the French Revolution, having been occupied by the Prussians in 1801, by the French from 1803 to 1805, and again in 1806 by the Prussians and French; but in 1813, upon the breaking up of the Westphalian kingdom, Hanover reverted to King George III. In 1814 it was erected into a kingdom; in 1851 it entered the Zollverein, and in 1866 joined the Bund against Prussia. On the 27th June in that year occurred the conflict between the Hanoverian and Prussian troops at Langensalza, which ended in the capitulation of the former on the following day. On the 17th Aug. the kingdom was incorporated as a Province of Prussia.

The town may be seen in 5 or 6 hrs. thus:—

In front of the Rly. Stat., built 1844-7, and not yet completed, is the bronze equestrian Statue of King Ernest Augustus (died 1851), in hussar uniform, by Wolf, erected 1861 on a granite pedestal.

The S. end of the Louisenstrasse opens into the triangular Theaterplatz, in the centre of which stands the Theatre (Königl. Schauspielhaus), a well-proportioned structure, from the design of Laves, with graceful Grecian façade and portico adorned with 12 statues of composers and dramatists. It was built 1845-52, and is capable of holding 1800 spectators.

The S. front of the Theatre faces the Sophienstrasse, in which is the Museum of Art and Science, a red-brick building, by Hase (1856), the lower part of which is given up to societies of musicians and architects. One wing is devoted to an Historical Collection (open daily, except Friday, 10-1, 50 pf.; Sunday, 11-2; Wednesday, 2-4, free), consisting of Grecian, Roman, and Egyptian vases and statues in bronze and terra-cotta, and a copy by Christoffe of the Hildesheim treasure, now in the Antiquarium portion of the Old Museum in Berlin. In another wing is, since 1870, a Permanent Provincial Exhibition of sculpture and pictures (open daily, except Friday, 11-4, 10 pf.; catalogue, 50 pf.). The most interesting part of the sculpture is the collection of the works of Heinrich Kümmer, left to his native town at his death in 1855 (born 1810). Amongst the small and indifferent collection of pictures may be noted of the older masters, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, Canaletto; 14, Gerhard Dow; 15, 16, Poussin; 26, Jordaens; 37, Salvator Rosa; 43, Sasso-Ferrato. Amongst the modern masters: 69, Achenbach; 112, Hübner; 116, Jordan; 121, Kaulbach; 125, Knille; 126-31, 130 a.b. Koken; 139-42, Lessing (drawings); 151, Northen.

Facing the Museum is the Landschaftsstrasse, in which on rt. (No. 3) is a Collection of Pictures belonging to the late Royal Family (open daily, 10 to 3, small fee expected). The 1st floor is devoted to Modern Masters. A few only are deserving of notice, as those by Lawrence, Lessing, Knille, Camphausen, Achenbach, Koch, Koken, and Northen. On the 2nd floor Ancient Masters. The best are by Martin de Vos, Anton van Dyk, Breughel, Teniers, Ludovico Carracci, Paul Veronese, Tintoretto, Poussin, Panini, Snyders, Van der Helst, Weenix, D. Teniers, Rubens, Rembrandt, and Gerhard Dow (Old Man mending a pen, a gem).

The Landschaftsstrasse leads into the Georgsplatz, which terminates the Georgsstrasse, a wide and handsome street, running E. and W. and bisecting the town. Here stands the bronze Statue of Schiller (born 1759, died 1805), by Engelhardt, erected 1862, in front of the Lyceum and Realschule, the latter built 1854 from the designs of Droste, and containing the town library.

S. of this is the Aegidienplatz, from which a branch tramway runs through the Marienstrasse with the Garten Ch. on l., in the churchyard of which lies Charlotte Kestner (died at No. 4 Gr. Aegidienstr., 1828), the original of "Lotte" in Göthe's 'Sorrows of Werther.'

This portion of the town has sprung up since 1842, and extends some distance S. and E., and beyond it is the Eilenriede-Wald, a finely wooded Park in which are several good cafés, and the Zoological Gardens. Concerts in summer — Restaurant), the road to which (25 min. from Rly. Stat.) is along the Schiffgraben, running E. from behind the Lyceum. Turning to the rt., the Breitestrasse leads to the Gothic Aegidien ch., built 1347, the tower 1707, interior restored 1825; it contains an altar-piece by Riepenhausen, and a fine bronze font, date 1450, supported by lions and adorned with 10 figures of saints.

The Marktstrasse leads up into the Marktplatz, the centre of the irregularly built Altstadt, rich in lofty, quaint, picturesque gabled houses, in striking contrast to the stately and regular new quarters.

The S. side of the Marktplatz is occupied by the Altes Rathhaus, a good specimen of 15th-cent. brick Gothic, ornamented with coats of arms and full-length figures in baked clay. The Marktstrasse front dates from 1439. Obs. date 1455 in the border running along the Marktplatz front. The side towards the Köbelingerstrasse is modern (1845).

The Marktkirche (Sacristan, No. 1 am Markt), of red brick, was erected 1349, on the site of an earlier ch. existing here in 1238. The gabled tower is 290 ft. high on the outside. Obs. the curious memorial tablets let into the walls, dates 1598, &c. The interior, restored by Droste (1855), contains handsome modern Gothic oak altar, gallery, organ, and pulpit, and good modern stained glass. Behind the altar is a painting by Schadow, Christ on the Mount of Olives. Fine view from tower.

At the House, No. 3, behind the ch., the brothers August, Wilh. (the translator of Shakespeare), and Friedrich Schlegel (the Philologer) were born, and to the N. of the Marktplatz, a little way up the Schmiedestrasse on l. (No. 10), is Leibnitz House, in which, also, the actor A. W. Iffland was born, 1759 (died, 1814. See the inscription on the house). It was purchased by the Government in 1844, and is a very picturesque specimen of Renaissance (1652), richly decorated with stone ornaments and terra-cotta Scriptural reliefs.

Turning down by the side of the house, through the Kaiserstrasse, past the Kreuzkirche, built in 1333, the tower rebuilt in 1652, and S. down the Burgstrasse, the Holzmarkt is reached, in which at No. 4 is the Picture Gallery of George V. (to be removed to the gallery at 3 Landschaftstrasse), purchased of the Architect Hausmann, and containing a genuine Giorgione and works of the Westphalian master Raphon.

The S. side of the Holzmarkt leads into the Leinstrasse, in which is the Schloss (Royal Palace) (admission daily, 9-5, 50 pf. each person), with Corinthian portico fronting the street, and back to the Leine. It is an edifice of considerable size, built 1636-40. The N. wing, damaged by fire, was rebuilt in 1741. In 1817 the whole palace was restored, and it is now fitted up for the reception of the Emperor of Germany during his visits here. The suites of state apartments are handsome. See the Goldne Ball, Thron, and Ritter rooms, some of which contain interesting historical portraits. In one of the corridors Count Königsmark was killed in resisting an attempted arrest, and shortly after the Princess Sophia Dorothea was removed to the castle of Ahlen. Good view at the back, over the Waterloo-Platz. Obs. in the Chapel the altarpiece, by Lucas Cranach, of the Crucifixion. The frescoes of the Ascension are by Oesterley. The collection of Relics has been removed.

Opposite to the Schloss is the Old Palace, in which King Ernest Augustus resided. It contains the private library of King George V.

At No. 8 in the Leinstrasse resided the poet Ludwig Höltz (born 1748, died 1776).

Turning down the Mühlenstrasse, leaving on l. the New Rathhaus, and crossing the River Leine on to the Waterloo-Platz, a large open Champ de Mars, capable of containing 10,000 men; at the N. corner, outside the trees, is the Royal Library (open daily, 12-1), commenced in the middle of the 17th cent. and containing 170,000 vols. with 3000 MSS., including the library of Leibnitz, and the arm-chair in which he studied and breathed his last. Among the books are Cicero's 'Offices,' printed on vellum by Fust, at Mayence. At the end is the date, 1465, with a statement that the book was executed neither with a pen, nor a pen of brass, but by a certain art. The 'Biblion Pauperum,'—an illuminated missal, given by Charles V. to Henry VIII. 'The Book of Esther,' written with a pen, and illustrated by costly drawings, deserves notice. A large collection of autograph letters of remarkable persons are also included in this library.

Fronting the building is the bronze Statue of Count Alten, who commanded the Hanoverians at Waterloo and the Foreign legion in Spain, and died 1840, by Kümmel, erected 1848.

On the same side lower down under a rotunda, with the inscription "Genio Leibnitii," is a Bust of Leibnitz (born in Leipzig, 1646, lived in Hanover from 1676 till his death in 1716), erected 1790.

In the neighbouring Neustädter Kirche (an old ch. with date 1666 over S. door, the tower built 1702), the simple stone slab marking his grave, and inscribed with the words "Ossa Leibnitii," will be found in the pavement of the interior (S.E. side).

Next to the Rotunda are extensive barracks, and on the opposite side the handsome Arsenal, built 1846, and adjoining it the Military School.

At the end of the Waterloo-Platz is the Waterloo Column (155 ft.), surmounted by a figure of Victory, erected 1826-32 to the memory of the Hanoverians who fell at Waterloo. Fine view from the top (small fee expected), embracing the whole city, and S.W. the suburb of Linden, and the Lindenberg (270 ft.) separated by the winding Ihme, and beyond, the prospect bounded by the blue outline of the Deister Hills.

Proceeding to the N.W. side of the town, leaving on l. the Garrison Lazareth (opened 1856, and one of the best arranged military hospitals in Germany) and the General's Palace, and passing the W. end of the Brandstrasse (in which is the Reformed Ch. founded by the Electress Sophia in 1704), also through the Neustädter Markt, in which is the Neustädter Ch. (mentioned above), and beyond it the Synagogue, a pretentious edifice built 1870, and crossing the Langelaube (in which, No. 1, is the so-called Haus der Väter, where several princes have been born), Stiftsstrasse will be reached, at the end of which on the Klagesmarkt stands the modern Gothic Christuskirche (Sacristan, 1 Oberstr.), built 1864 by Hase at the expense of King George V., with spire 230 ft. high, and containing some fine stained glass.

Turning W. by the Jews' Burial Ground and the Royal Stables, the 5 towers will be seen of the immense unfinished building called the Welfenschloss (on the site of the schloss Mon-brilliant), begun by George V., 1857, from the designs of Tramm. The building is converted into a Polytechnic School. The Welfengarten is attached, in which and in the Georgsgarten, on the opposite side of the avenue, are cafés. The Welfenschloss fronts the Herrenhauser Allee, a grand double avenue of limes more than 1½ m. long, extending through a prettily laid-out park intersected by drives, from the town to (cab, 1-2 pers., 1 mk.) the Royal Palace of Herrenhausen, a low, tasteless building, erected in the 17th cent. by the Elector Ernest Augustus, and a favourite residence of Georges I., II., and V.

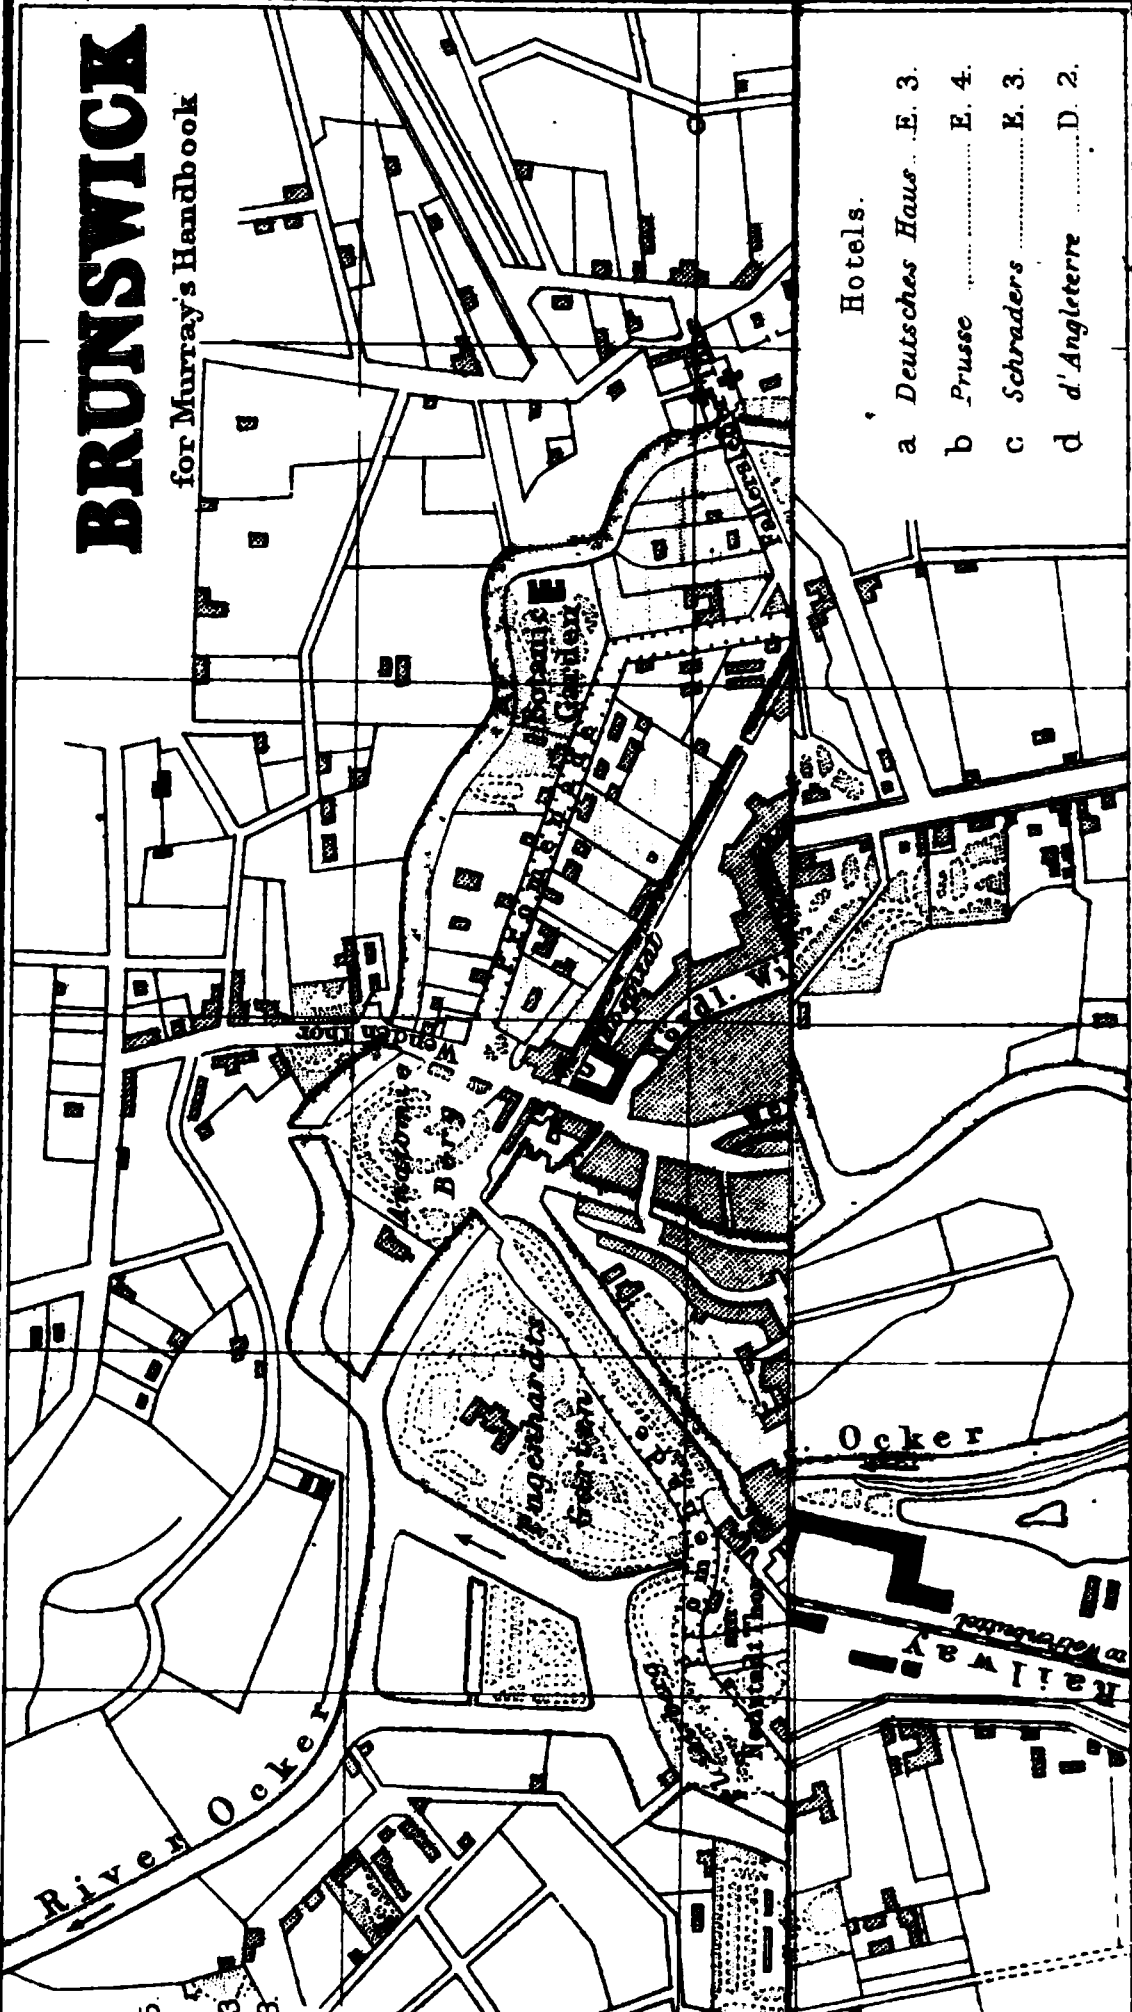

In the Fürstenhaus is George V.'s collection of family portraits. Obs. the Royal Family, by Kaulbach; Ernest Augustus, by Krüger; Henry the Lion, by Riepenhausen; W. Pitt and George IV., by Lawrence; George II., by Kneller; George V., by Oesterley.

The Welfen-Museum (open Mond., Wed., and Sund., 9-12, 3-5; cards of admission gratis at 58 Langestrasse) is in what was the Garden Superintendent's house, and contains a collection of arms, costumes, medallion family portraits, ch. furniture, particularly the Goldene Tafel from St. Michael's ch. at Lüneburg, the altar from the Markt ch., and an altar with pictures by Hans Raphon, &c.

In an adjoining building (Galleriegebäude, built 1691) is a collection of ancient and modern Sculptures, including works by Rauch, Kümmel, and Engelhardt, with frescoes by Tomaso.

In the Stables (Marställe) may be

- Buildings.
- Post Office E. 3.
 - Residence E. 5.
 - Museum D. 4. 5.
 - Cathedral (Dom.) E. 4.
 - Rathaus E. 2. 3.
 - S^t Martin's Ch. E. 2. 3.
 - Brüder Ch. D. 3.
 - S^t Peter's Ch. D. 2.
 - S^t Catherine's Ch. C. 5.

- Hotels.
- a Deutsches Haus E. 3.
 - b Prusse E. 4.
 - c Schraders E. 3.
 - d d'Angleterre D. 2.

Linden, John Murray, Albenarle Street.

seen some of the cream-coloured horses of the breed which for 2 centuries has drawn the Kings and Queens of England. The Coach-house contains splendid statè carriages, some of them 200 years old.

The Gardens, covering an area of 120 acres, resorted to on Sundays, are laid out in a formal style, with straight walks, lined with high clipped hedges (which in one place are made to form a sylvan theatre), and carpeted with turf, contain statues, a Palm-house, including one of the finest collections of palms in Europe, hot-houses, and splendid jets-d'eau (play Sund. and Wed., May-June, 5-8; July, 6-7; Aug., 5-7; Sept., 3-5). The Electress Sophia, mother of George I., and granddaughter of James I., dropped down dead while walking in these gardens. In the Royal Mausoleum (no admittance), erected 1846, are statues in Carrara marble of the late Queen of Hanover, Frederica, and of King Ernest Augustus (Duke of Cumberland), by Rauch.

Herschel, the astronomer, originally musician in the Royal band, was born in Hanover, 1738 (died at Slough, near Windsor, 1822). His sister Caroline died here, 1849, aged 97, and is buried in the ch.-yd. of the Garten Gemeinde. The brothers Schlegel were born here; and Zimmermann is buried in the cemetery.

Excursions:—

(a) S.E. to the Deer Park or Thiergarten, near Kirchrode. Rly. 3 trains daily in 10 min. Restaurant at the Försterhaus.

(b) S. to Marienburg on the l. bank of the Leine by the rly. (Nordstemmen Stat.) $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; fine view; Restaurant. In the Schloss (no admission), a frieze by Engelhardt and pictures by Knille.

(c) S.W. to Bentherberg, pretty wood and fine view, reached from Ronnenberg Stat.

(d) The Deister Hills, 1 hr. by rly. The Stats. for different points are Benningssen, Egestorf, Barsinghausen.

(e) Bückeburg Stat. on Minden Rly. (see above). A long and charming day from Hanover would embrace Bückeburg, over the wooded Harrel, and the Ida-Thurm, to Bad Eilsen, Castle of Arensburg (Restaurant in neighbouring building), village of Bernsen-Paschenburg (see above), thence in 2 hrs. to Bad Nenndorf, and by Haste Stat. (see above) back to Hanover.

[N. G.]

(f) To Minden, Porta Westphalica, Wittekindenberg, Jacobsburg, Bad Rehme (see above).

(g) To Hameln, by Rly. 2 hrs., and Pyrmont. (See Rte. 71.)

(h) Bad Rehburg. Rly. to Wunstorf, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; thence Diligence twice daily, 2 hrs. (See Rte. 72A.)

Rlys.—W. to Wunstorf Junct. Stat., thence N. to Bremen (Rte. 72A), or E. to Minden, &c. (see above);—S.W. to Weetzen Junct. Stat., thence W. to Haste (see above), or S. to Hameln (Rte. 71);—S. to Nordstemmen Junct. Stat., thence S. to Göttingen, &c., or E. to Hildesheim (Rte. 72),—E. the line continues to

9 m. Lehrte Junct. Stat.—Rly. N. to Hamburg (Rte. 59); S. to Hildesheim (Rte. 72); E. direct line to Stendal for Berlin (Rte. 65A); and S.E. the line continues to 9 m. Hämelerwald Stat., due N. of which is seen the spire of the ch. at Sievershausen, where a monument was erected 1853 to commemorate the victory over the Margrave Albrecht of Brandenburg and death of the Elector Maurice of Saxony, the rival of Charles V., 9th July, 1553.

19 m. Brunswick (Germ. Braunschweig) Junct. Stat. (Buffet good.) Hotel omnibus at Railway.

(Inns: Deutsches Haus, Neuestrasse, good, table-d'hôte at 1.15; H. de Prusse, Dammstrasse; Schrader's H., Gördelingerstrasse; Deutsche Eiche, near stat., moderate.)

Cabs (droschke). A drive in the town, 1 to 2 pers., 50 pf.; by time, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., 90 pf.

Post Office: In the Poststrasse, open 8 A.M. to 8 P.M.

Telegraph Office: 81 Gùldenstrasse.

Cafés: Denecke, 1 Kohlmarkt; Luck, opposite the Theatre.

Restaurants: at the Rly.—Bankkeller, under the Brunswick Bank.

This capital of the Duchy and residence of the Dukes of Brunswick is a very ancient town on the Oker, with 64,000 Inhab.; cleanly in its streets, and displaying much picturesque architecture in its antique houses, many of wood, with dates on them of 1488–91–92. The latter half of the 13th and beginning of the next century was the golden age of Brunswick, when it became a place of great commercial importance and a leading member of the Hanse League. It is no longer fortified, but surrounded by plantations and pretty Walks, which occupy the site of the former ramparts razed in 1797.

The Palace or Residenzschloss, a fine building, erected 1836, from the designs of Ottmer, was burnt down by accident in 1865; a preceding Palace, called Graue Hof, having been burnt in 1830 by the mob. It has been rebuilt at the expense of the State. It is crowned by a bronze statue of Brunonia in a quadriga, by Rietschel. In front of this palace are two bronze equestrian statues, on granite pedestals: one of Duke Ferdinand (d. 1806), the other of Duke Wilhelm Friedrich (d. 1815), both princes slain in the Napoleonic wars.

The Museum*, in the Zeughaus (Arsenal), near the principal ch., well arranged and kept, consists of—1. Gallery of Paintings, containing many works of high merit, particularly two Jan Steens, the best pictures by that artist probably existing—one represents a Marriage Contract, the other a Merry Party; van der Helst, a woman and child; Holbein, Sir Thomas More; Luc. Cranach, Luther—St. John in the Wilderness (Melanchthon's portrait); Rembrandt, two excellent portraits, in his clear manner, of Grotius and his wife, and a good stormy landscape; Mierevelt, fine portraits of a Count and Countess of Nassau; Palma Vecchio, one of his best works (mis-called Giorgione), Adam and Eve, a very good picture; Steenwyk, the Deliverance of St. Peter, a large picture; a fine Guido, 391; a portrait said to be by Raphael; Teniers, sen., a Chemist; Schwartz, an Old Man; 162, Ruyssdael, a Waterfall; G. Dow, his own portrait; 314 and 327, Alb. Dürer, 2 portraits; 473, Rembrandt, with his Wife and 3 Children; ditto, 466, an Entombment; 449, Honthorst, Boy with Flute. 160 pictures out of this collection were transported to Paris by Napoleon I. The greater part were originally in the gallery at Salzdahlum.

2. A collection of Natural History of second-rate excellence: it includes some very perfect fossil bones of the Cave Bear from the Harz.

3. Classical Antiquities.—Statues, bronzes, &c., from Greece and Italy. The famous Mantuan Vase of onyx was carried away by the former Duke Charles in 1830; but was brought back from Geneva after his death (1874). It is an antique, cut out of sardonyx, about 6 inches long, carved with reliefs representing religious ceremonies. It was captured at the siege of Mantua, 1630, from the treasures of the Gonzaga dukes.

4. Antiquities, and Works of Art of more recent times. At the head of them must be placed an exquisite carving in steatite by Albert Dürer, representing *St. John preaching in the Wilderness. It is a masterpiece of its kind. Some of the figures are detached and finished all round, and in one or two instances, where their backs are turned outwards, it will be found that the faces are made out with the utmost delicacy and beauty, though there is barely room to pass the blade of a knife behind them. Here are preserved the uniform of Frederick the Great, worn at Mollwitz 1741; uniform and sword which the Duke of Brunswick carried at Quatre Bras; and Luther's ring. There are many other valuable objects of art and virtù: rich silver plate; carvings in ivory, amber, wood; an ivory casket of Byzantine work, of 11th or 12th century; another of bone, with Runic inscriptions; the skull and arm-bone of St. Blaize, with 14 antique rings on the fingers; also a crucifix by M. Angelo; with bas-reliefs in silver by Ben. Cellini; and a collection of Majolica, amounting to 1100 pieces, chiefly of late date and coarse execution. This collection suffered by its trip to Paris; as many of the finest specimens were missing on its return. Limoges enamels, collected by Tavernier to take to Persia—very fine. Kosciusko's cup carved in prison. Fine MSS. of the Gospels, 1000 or 1100; others with rich gold and ivory covers.

The Museum is always open to strangers on payment of a small gratuity to the attendant if not a public day.

The Domkirche* or town ch. of St. Blaize (patron of Brunswick) is a plain, solid Romanesque structure of great antiquity (1176–1250), begun by Henry the Lion, one of the most illustrious princes of the House of Guelph (from whom the royal family of England is descended), after his return from a pilgrimage in the Holy Land. It was repaired, 1869, and some German frescoes of the 13th century have been laid bare in the raised choir and transept. The N. aisle is of much more recent date (1469), and is supported by lythe, twisted, or screw pillars, of the utmost elegance, and very unusual. The altar in front of the choir is a slab of oriental marble, supported by 5 bronze pillars; it was presented by the Duchess Matilda. The seven-branched brass candlestick (a copy of that in the Temple of Jerusalem), on a pedestal ornamented with grotesque monsters, was made for Henry the Lion. Henry himself (d. 1195) and his wife Matilda (d. 1189), (daughter of our Henry II. and sister of Richard Cœur de Lion), are buried in the nave, where their effigies recline upon a sarcophagus. The Vaults beneath the church are the burial-place of the Ducal family. No fewer than 9 of the princes here interred perished on the field of battle. The most remarkable among this range of coffins, in the eyes of Englishmen, are those containing the bodies of the Duke, who was mortally wounded at the fatal battle of Jena, and of his son, who fell at Quatre Bras. “Two small (black) flags, the one an offering from the matrons, the other from the maidens of Brunswick, are suspended above his coffin, still sprinkled with the brown and withering leaves of the garlands which the love of his people scattered on his bier, when at midnight he was laid among so many of his race who had fought and fallen like himself.”—Russell. Near the coffins of these two heroes is placed that of Caroline of Brunswick (d. 1821), wife of Geo. IV. The silver plate, sent from England, bore the words, dictated by herself, “Murdered Queen of England,” but it was removed and replaced by another, inscribed simply with the name, dates, and titles, in the usual form; the marks of the nails which fastened the original plate are still visible.

Some of the relics brought by Henry the Lion from Palestine are preserved in the N. transept; one of them, which had been palmed upon his credulity as a “Griffin's claw,” and which long passed for such, turns out to be the curved horn of a particular species of antelope! Here are also shown the ivory horn and pipe of St. Blaize; a great crucifix of the 10th (?) cent.; a singular pillar of wood, bearing the emblems of the Passion of Christ. The bone of a whale or mammoth, in this place, long passed for one of Goliath's ribs. The sacristan lives at No. 8 Wilhelmsplatz. Fee, 2 mks.

In the centre of the square, N. of the Dom, stands an ancient bronze Lion, of stiff Byzantine workmanship, set up on this spot 1166, by Henry the Lion.

In the Altstadtmarkt* is a Gothic fountain of bronze, ornamented with figures, devices, and coats of arms: date 1408. The Altstadt-Rathhaus is a beautiful specimen of German architecture (1250–1450), having statues of Guelphic princes in front. Since 1861 the interior is only used during the fairs. The remarkable Gothic building opposite is now turned into the Rathskeller wine cellars.

The remaining Churches are all interesting. Most of them have a gabled W. front much higher than the real ending of nave and aisles. St. Martin's* (Sacristan, 9 an der Martinerkirche), opposite the Rathhaus, is of late 12th cent., except St. Anne's Chapel, at the S.W. angle, a gem of late Gothic (1441), not unlike the Lady Chapel at Ely. Its brass font is supported on 4 figures, its sides panelled with 14 reliefs. Obs. also the pulpit and sculptured N.E. doorway.

St. Ulrich's* or the Brüderkirche (Sacristan, 22 Schützenstrasse) is of the 14th cent. Around the basin of the bronze font (1450), which is supported by statues of the 4 rivers of Paradise, are 16 compartments in relief—the Crucifixion, Virgin, Apostles, Saints, &c. The altar-piece is a triptych of carved wood painted—in the centre the Crucifixion, and in the shutters 2 canopied rows of saints. Adjoining this ch., which formerly belonged to the Franciscans, is a beautiful cloister.

St. Peter's Ch. contains a bronze font and a brass of an ecclesiastic. St. Andrew's Ch. (1200-1340, finished in the middle of the 16th cent.) has a tower 321 ft. high. Obs. the curious sculptures (1400) outside the ch. on the S. side (Sacristan, 2 Weberstrasse).

St. Catherine's Ch. (latter half of 13th cent., choir finished 1450) resembles St. Andrew's. Here are some fine monuments of the 16th to 18th cents., and painted glass, 1553 (Sacristan, 5 Katharinenkirchhof).

The old houses, Nos. 3 in the Breitenstrasse, and No. 3 Steinstrasse, have curious carvings of the 15th cent.

Close to the Augustthor, on the levelled ramparts, a cast-iron obelisk, 60 ft. high, by Schadow, was set up in 1822 by the citizens to the memory of their two dukes, who fell at Jena and Quatre Bras.

About a mile outside the Steinthor, a monument and chapel have been erected to the memory of the brave but luckless Schill (Rte. 76) and his companions in arms, 14 of whom were shot here by the French in 1809. Schill's head, formerly preserved in spirits at Leyden, is now buried under the monument; and his bust, a gift of the King of Bavaria, is deposited in the chapel, along with many other relics of the War of Independence. Schill headed a body of Francs Tireurs against the French in 1808, and this movement, though premature and quickly suppressed, led the way to the well-concerted opposition to Napoleon which in 1813 freed Germany from his thralldom.

The famous corps of Black Brunswickers, remarkable for their bravery and devotion, as well as for their sable uniform, black horse-hair plume and ominous death's head and cross-bones, are the Duke's bodyguard. They were first raised in 1809, to recover the Brunswick Duchy from Jerome Buonaparte.

Two celebrated Fairs are annually held at Brunswick. They were founded by Duke Henry the Elder in 1492.

Spohr the composer was born 1784, at No. 7 Mönchsstrasse, corner of Aegidien-Kirchhof.

In the Lessings-Platz is a fine statue of Lessing by Rietschel. In the small Magni-Kirchhof is his grave (d. 1781), with monument, erected 1874. A fountain, with statue of Henry the Lion, was erected on the Hagenmarkt 1874.

A handsome Theatre was erected by Wolf 1861, near the Steinthor. Performances commence 6.30 P.M. Closed June and July.

[Excursion to the Harz (see Rte. 73) may be conveniently made by the Rly. S. 27 m. to Harzburg, passing the Ducal châteaux of Richmond and Williams castle, to

7 m. Wolfenbüttel Junct. Stat. (Inn: Goldner Löwe), a town of 10,114 Inhab., on the Oker, until 1754 capital of the Principality and residence of the Dukes of Brunswick - Wolfenbüttel. It is remarkable for its Library of 270,000 vols., containing some of the finest missals in Europe, and a vast number of Bibles, among them Luther's Bible, with notes in his own hand. A missal, with miniatures by Albert Dürer, carried off from Munich by Gustavus Adolphus. MSS., Mæso-Gothic, Icelandic, Latin of the 12th and 13th cents., Cufic, Greek; Sachsen-spiegel (Saxon laws) full of figures.

Lessing lived here as librarian to the Duke from 1770 until his death in 1781.

From Wolfenbüttel, Branch Rly. E. 18 m. to Jerxheim Junct. Stat. for Magdeburg, &c.—S. through Börssum and Vienenburg Junct. Stats. to 22 m. Goslar (Rte. 73), and 19 m. Harzburg terminus Stat. (Buffet), a town consisting of a few scattered houses at the foot of the mountains, and where carriages, guides, and asses may be hired (see Rte. 73).]

The line from Brunswick continues E. to 23 m. Helmstedt Junct. Stat. (Inn: Deutsches Haus). [Branch Rly. S. through Schöningen Junct. Stat. to Jerxheim], an old town of 6500 Inhab., formerly well known for its University, existing here from 1575 to 1809. St. Stephen's Ch. is of the 12th cent.; near it a bronze monument to the Brunswickers who fell at Waterloo, and a cross to St. Ludger, first Bishop of Münster, who, in 798, here founded a monastery, around which the town grew up. On the Corneliusberg, the Lübbensteine, 2 granite blocks, probably marking the graves of Saxon chiefs.

10 m. Eilsleben Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. to Schöningen Junct. Stat. for Wolfenbüttel (see above) and Börssum.]

Within a circle of a few miles from Magdeburg lies some of the most fertile corn-land in Germany. It is, however, an open and unpicturesque plain, with scarcely a hedge or tree visible. Much chicory is cultivated in this district; as well as beetroot for sugar, and potatoes for brandy; and the forest of chimneys belonging to these works gives Magdeburg the aspect of a manufacturing town rather than a fortress. Most of the churches of Magdeburg have twin towers nearly alike, so that seven pairs of steeples may be perceived on approaching it, rising above the level lines of green ramparts.

13 m. Magdeburg Junct. Stat.

Hotel omnibus and cabs at Rly.

Inns: Koch's H., in the new quarter, near the Berlin Stat.; Weisser Schwan, London H., Stadt Braunschweig, all three in the Breiteweg; Edels H. and Alpers H., both in the Fürstenstrasse.

Droschkies (cabs): a stand at the N. side of the bridge; $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. drive within the city 2 pers. 75 pf.; 4 pers. 1 mk.

Omnibus: From the Breiteweg every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the suburbs, Neustadt, Sudenburg, and Buckau.

Post Office: 204 Breiteweg.

Telegraph Office: 3 Ulrichsstrasse.

Theatre: Stadt Breiteweg, corner of the Drei-Engelsstrasse; Victoria, in the Werder suburb.

Steamers and Railways (see below).

This first-class fortress and capital of the Prussian province of Saxony, Pop. 84,455, stands, with its suburbs, Neustadt, Sudenburg, and Buckau, on the l. bank of the Elbe; the citadel and suburb Werder being on the opposite side, on an island formed by a second branch of the river, on the further side of which is the suburb of Friedrichstadt.

The town existed in the 9th cent., having as early as 805 special commercial privileges, which were increased when the Emp. Otho, in conjunction with his queen, founded a monastery here in 937, and in 968 made this an archbishop's see, with the bishoprics of Havelberg, Brandenburg, and Meissen subject to it.

From the 13th to the 15th cents. it was a member of the Hanseatic League, and its archbishop ruled over a considerable extent of territory. Having in 1524 espoused the cause of the Reformation, the citizens drove the Catholic clergy out of the town, and commenced, in 1546, the erection of those fortifications which brought upon them the horrors of several sieges. In 1629 the town successfully resisted Wallenstein's seven months' siege, but yielded 2 years later to Tilly, who stormed it 10th May, 1631, and entirely destroyed it, with the exception of 139 houses. 30,000 of the inhabitants were massacred by the Imperial soldiery, without distinction of age or sex, and with such accompaniments of brutality that the name of the commander who permitted it was never afterwards mentioned without a malediction. In the despatch in which Tilly announced the capture he says, "Since the destruction of Jerusalem and Troy such a victory has not been."

From the Reformation the Archbishopric was ruled by a Protestant lay administrator until 1680, when, according to the Peace of Westphalia, it passed as a secular duchy to the Elector of Brandenburg. During the French Revolution the citizens suffered much, and in 1806 the town succumbed to the French after 14 days' siege, though garrisoned by 20,000 men under General Kleist, and after being included, from 1807 to 1813, in Jerome Buonaparte's Westphalian kingdom, it was given back, in 1814, to Prussia.

Since 1866 a number of isolated forts have been erected in a circle at a considerable distance outside the town, enabling the walls which confined it to be removed, and giving space for the building of a large new quarter towards the N.W.

Magdeburg, from its position on the Elbe, is the entrepôt of the merchandise which enters Germany by that river, and is a place of considerable manufacturing industry, as well as of active commerce, connected as it is with all parts of Germany by the intersections here of 4 lines of Rly. A canal, commencing 20 m. below the town, unites the Elbe with the Havel.

The principal objects of interest within the city may be seen in about 4 hrs. thus :

Starting from the Hanover and Berlin Rly. Stat. on the W. side of the town, and proceeding E. through part of the new quarter, passing St. Ulrich's Ch., the towers of which have been repeatedly struck by lightning, and traversing the Ulrichsstrasse, the middle of the Breiteweg is reached, a handsome wide street running N. and S. through the town, and containing the best shops.

Turning to the S. down the Breiteweg, on the rt. are the Post Office and St. Sebastian's Ch., in which is the tomb of Otto v. Guericke (born 1602, died 1686), the inventor of the air-pump, and burgomaster of the town during the siege by Tilly.

Nearly opposite, a short street (Breitestrasse) leads E. between the Military Hospital and the Artillery Barracks to the Domplatz, a large square, planted with trees, on the S. side of which is the Cathedral (Dom). (Sacristan lives on S.E. side of ch., in the adjoining handsome cloisters.) This noble Gothic edifice, 364 ft. long, the roof of the nave 110 ft. high, dates from 1211 to 1363, and is surmounted by two towers (completed 1520), the loftiest of which is 339 ft. It was shamefully injured, and turned into a warehouse and stable, by the French, but repaired (1825-34) at the cost of 300,000 thalers, by the Prussian Government. The lower part of the building dates from about 1200. It succeeded an older Benedictine ch. (see the curious model preserved in a side chapel), part of the monastery erected by the Emperor Otho I., and consumed in the fire of 1207, together with a large portion of the town. Three imposing colossal statues behind the choir, and perhaps the small figures now in the walls of the choir, belonged to the old Dom, as well as the pillars of granite and porphyry which are said to have been brought from Ravenna by Otho, in 962.

The altar-slab, one piece of marble, 14 ft. by 6 ft., and 3 in. thick, was placed here in 1363 by Archbishop Diederich, who consecrated the building. The tomb of the Empr. Otho I. (died 973) and that of his queen Editha (date of death on it 947), granddaughter of our King Alfred, are of the 14th cent. Obs. the elegant horse-shoe arches of the E. end; the apse with beautiful marble shafts; the stone roodloft (begun 1443), rich in carved foliage and other ornaments of good design; and the carvings of the stalls. The pulpit of alabaster, now sadly mutilated, is the work of one Sebastian Extel, 1594. The variety and beauty of the Romanesque capitals and tympana are remarkable. The dog-tooth ornament occurs in the triforium, and on the exterior at the E. end.

The porphyry font at the W. end was saved from the old building, and in the chapel beyond, singularly placed between the two towers, is the monument of Archbishop Ernest, executed in bronze by the celebrated artist of Nuremberg, Peter Vischer, in 1497, 16 years before the death of the prelate (1513). The figures of the 12 Apostles around it are worthy of minute examination. Near it are a branched bronze candelabrum and 2 chandeliers, as well as the iron screen, all of ancient work. Among other remarkable monuments is that of one Bake, who was a canon of the cathedral, and saved the building from destruction, together with 4000 citizens, who had concealed themselves in it, by interceding on its behalf with Tilly, whose schoolfellow he had been; also that of the Frau von Asseburg, who returned home the night after her burial, and lived with her husband for 9 years after her first interment. Tilly's sword, helmet, and gloves are shown here, and a money box of the Dominican friar Tetzl.

Against the walls are placed tablets bearing the names of the men of Magdeburg who fell in the War of Liberation. As the town is a fortress, no one is allowed to ascend the towers; but the circuit of the roof may be made, and a fine view of the whole town and neighbourhood enjoyed.

The E. side of the Domplatz is occupied by the Government Offices and Royal Palace, formerly the Deanery. Beyond these is the Romanesque Liebfrauenkirche, the oldest ch. in Madgeburg, with a fine Romanesque cloister adjoining. The old conventual buildings are used for a school.

The Gouvernementstrasse leads E. down to the Fürstenwall (Prince's Rampart), a terrace named from Prince Leopold of Dessau, commanding a view over the Leipzig Rly. to the Elbe. Several handsome houses front this promenade, amongst which is the machicolated turreted house nearest the Cathedral, belonging to the Oberpräsident of the province.

Some distance beyond the dreary waste of bricks and mortar representing (1874) the new quarter forming to the S. of the town, and between it and the busy suburb of Buckau, is the Friedrich - Wilhelms - Garten, skirting the Elbe, tastefully laid out, and commanding fine views.

At the N. end of the Fürstenwall is the Leipzig Rly. Stat., and beyond this the Fürstenstrasse, in which are handsome baths and wash-houses.

Turning thence down the Brückthorstrasse, the Bridge, over the l. branch of the Elbe, will be reached, flanked by two round towers, built to correspond with the old loopholed and machicolated wall running along the river. Across the bridge the high walls of the Citadel shut out the view in that direction. This stronghold, one of the oldest parts of the fortifications, serves also as a state prison. Lafayette and Carnot (see below) were confined in it. Fred. Baron v. Trenck, born 1726, guillotined at Paris 1794, was imprisoned for 5 years (on account of his early affection for the Princess Amelia of Prussia, sister of Frederick the Great) in the Star Bastion, which stood outside the Sudenberger Thor.

Turning back W. up the Johannisberg, a short distance on the rt. is passed

St. John's Ch., the doors of which, after the storming of the town by Tilly, were nailed up, and the women who had taken refuge in it burned to death.

The hill terminates at the large central square of the town, the Alte Markt, with the Rathhaus (built 1691, enlarged 1866) on the E. side, and facing it the Monument to Otho the Great, erected in the (?) 12th cent., and restored 1858. The gilt equestrian sandstone statue of the Emperor is under a canopy and has at the side two female figures (? his wives Editha and Adelaide), one holding a shield, the other a banner. The pedestal is adorned at the corners with figures in armour (? added at the end of the 14th cent.), of which two are Herman, Duke of Saxony (died 973), and the Margrave of Brandenburg.

Near this, and opposite the Guard House, is the statue of A. W. Francke, Burgomaster, died 1851, erected 1856.

At the S.W. corner of the Markt is the Exchange (Börse), restored 1873 (open 12.30 to 2). From this, by a short street, the Breiteweg is regained, in which, on the opposite side of the way, over the house No. 146, is the inscription, "Gedenke des 10ten Mai 1631," said to allude to the fact that the betrayer of the town to Tilly lived here.

The N. end of the Breiteweg terminates at the strongly-fortified Kröken-thor, outside which, in the old cemetery on the rt., is buried the French republican General Carnot; he received an asylum here, after being banished from France, in consequence of the restoration of the Bourbons, and d. 1823.

Luther went to school at Magdeburg, and while a poor scholar here often sang in the streets and at rich men's doors (as is still the custom with poor choristers) to earn a scanty pittance, which helped to support him.

Environs.—The Herrenkrug ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.), on the rt., and the Vogelgesang on the l. bank of the Elbe, are prettily situated, and favourite resorts of the townspeople.

Steamers.—Down the Elbe to Hamburg and Harburg, Sund. and Thurs., 7 A.M.: Office, 3 Kaufhof.

Railways.—From Stat. near l. bank of Elbe—S. to Halle (Rte. 64) and S.E. to Leipzig (Rte. 66B.); S.W. to Oschersleben and Halberstadt (see Rte. 74). From Stat. on W. side of town W. to Brunswick, Hanover (see above), and Oebisfelde, and N.E., viâ Brandenburg and Potsdam, to Berlin (see Rte. 62).

ROUTE 66A.

COLOGNE TO BERLIN, viâ ELBERFELD, SOEST, KREIENSEN, AND MAGDEBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 357 m.; time, 12 hrs.; 2 quick trains daily (9 A.M., and 8 P.M.)

Cologne is described in Rte. 36.

For the Rly. as far as 215 m. Börssum Junct. Stat., see Rte. 68.

Thence the line continues E. to 15 m. Jerxheim Junct. Stat. Rly. N.W. to Wolfenbüttel Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 66).

36 m. Magdeburg Junct. Stat., see Rte. 66, and thence to 91 m. Berlin (see Rte. 62).

ROUTE 66B.

MADGEBURG TO LEIPZIG, BY ZERBST, DESSAU, AND BITTERFELD.—RAIL.

Distance, 73 m.; time, 3½ hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Madgeburg is described in Rte. 66.

The Berlin-Anhaltischer Rly. stops at the Neustadt Stat., on the N.E. side of the town, and then crosses the Elbe to 5 m. Biederitz Stat. It then turns S.E., at some distance from the river, to 22 m. Zerbst Stat. (Inn: Löwe), an old town of 12,000 Inhab.; up to 1793 the residence of the Princes of Anhalt-Zerbst. In front of the Rathaus, on the market-place, is a Rolandssäule and a column surmounted by a singular gilt female figure called the Butterjungfer.

8 m. Rosslau Junct. Stat. [Rly. E. through Coswig to Wittenberg (see Rte. 63.)]

4 m. Dessau Junct. Stat. (Inns: Goldner Beutel; Hirsch). Pop. 18,864. The capital of the Duchy of Anhalt, on the left bank of the Mulde, which enters the Elbe a little below the town. The Ducal Schloss is the principal edifice; it was rebuilt 1748, and enlarged 1874. It contains a Library, in which are many MSS. of Luther, a cabinet of curiosities, jewels, antiques, &c.; and a Picture Gallery, with some good Dutch, but poor Italian paintings. In the lower storey curiosities and relics—the sword of P. Leopold of Anhalt-Dessau; Napoleon's silver basin and plate captured at Waterloo.

In the Schlosskirche, a building of the 16th cent., where Luther often preached, is a celebrated Last Supper by Cranach, who has introduced into it portraits of the chief promoters of the Reformation. Here the ducal family are buried. Moses Mendelssohn was born at Dessau, 1729. The statue, erected in 1860, of Prince Leopold I. (b. 1676) is a copy of that by Kiss at Berlin. The military band, which plays on the Schlossplatz at mid-day, usually begins with the "Dessauer Marsch," the favourite air of this hero of the Seven Years' War. In the neighbourhood of the town Wallenstein won a victory over Count Mansfeld during the Thirty Years' War (1672).

The vicinity of Dessau, originally a sandy waste, has been converted into gardens, which form its chief ornament: these are called Georgengarten, Louisium, and Sieglitzer Berg.

[From Dessau an excursion may be made by carriage (4½ mks.), Diligence, (1 mk., 45 pf. daily), in 2 hrs., or by the Rly. from Dessau through Rosslau to Wittenberg (Rte. 63), stopping at Coswig, and crossing the Elbe by the ferry 1 m. below the town to

10 m. Wörlitz (Inn: Eichenkranz, near the Park), the Duke of Anhalt's summer residence, famed for its Gardens and Park, among the finest in Germany, and though in a flat, worth a visit. The great beauty of the trees, many fine specimens of American oaks, and the good keeping of the place, are remarkable. The gardens are separated from the Elbe by a high embankment, which is rendered ornamental by plantations, and commands a good view; their great feature is a fine lake, from which streamlets and canals are conducted to all parts: temples, bridges, and other buildings are profusely scattered through the grounds. The Neumark garden occupies 3 islands. In Schoch's garden is a Gothic house, containing paintings by old German masters, I. Cranach, &c., a bas-relief carved in wood by A. Dürer, some old armour, and other curiosities.]

[Branch Rly. from Dessau, S.W. 10 m., to Oöthen Junct. Stat., in Rte. 64; the first stat. on the line being 6 m. Mosigkau, with schloss (now a school) containing good pictures.]

From Dessau the Rly. continues S. to 16 m. Bitterfeld Junct. Stat. [Rly. N.E. through Wittenberg to Berlin, and S.W. to Halle.] For the line hence to hart Truchsess of Waldburg, Archbishop of Cologne, in 1582. The Church is a fine Gothic edifice of the 12th cent.

16 m. Leipzig Junct. Stat., see Rte. 83.

4 m. Hochdahl Stat. is 1 m. distant from a cavern called the Neanders Höhle, where human remains are said to have been found.

5 m. Vohwinkel Junct. Stat. — [Branch Rlys. — N. 18 m. to Steele Junct. Stat., whence line to Essen and Dortmund, &c. (see Rte. 66); S. to Mühlheim a. M. and Cologne (see Rte. 68).

Near the village of Sonnborn the train crosses the vale of the Wupper on a bridge of 6 arches, and along the shoulder of a hill reaches 4 m. Elberfeld Stat. Omnibus, 50 pf., into the town (Inns: Weidenhof; Post). This is one of the most important towns in the Prussian dominions, from its extensive manufactures (Pop. 71,775), and forms an uninterrupted street 5 m. long, with the next Stat. on the Rly.

4 m. Barmen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Vogler H.; Schützenhaus). Pop. 75,074. Its situation in the pretty valley of the Wupper is picturesque, healthy, and advantageous to its manufactures, but the two towns themselves are dirty and not prepossessing. They owe their rise to a settlement of industrious refugee Protestants, driven from the Netherlands 1527, who here found protection. They have rapidly risen to their actual height of prosperity within the present century. The principal manufactures, shared with the neighbouring villages, Gemarke, Hechinghausen, Wupperfeld, Rittershausen, and Wichlinghausen, on the hills, consist of cottons, silk ribbons, and Turkey-red dyed goods, which are produced here of so excellent a colour as to beat those of Glasgow. The annual produce is valued at 7 millions sterling.

Few districts in Europe exceed in manufacturing enterprise, wealth, and

ROUTE 67.

DÜSSELDORF TO BERLIN, BY ELBERFELD, CASSEL, EISLEBEN, AND HALLE.
—RAIL.

Distance, 391 m.; time, 12 to 18 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Düsseldorf is described in Rte. 34. Rly. Stat. at S. end of the Königs-Allee.

This railway connects the flourishing manufacturing districts of the Wupperthal, and the old county of the Mark, with the Cologne-Berlin line, and is interesting from the industry and picturesque beauty of the country it traverses.

4 m. Gerresheim Stat. This old town once contained a nunnery for noble ladies. The fair Agnes Countess of Mansfeld eloped from it with Gebpopulation, that part of the Rhine province of Prussia which until 1815 composed the Duchy of Berg. It may be nearly included within a triangle drawn from Cologne, along the Rhine to the mouth of the Ruhr, and from these two points to Hagen. The valleys of the Wupper, and of the streams pouring into it, are scenes of the most active and intelligent industry; and their manufactures of cotton, iron, cutlery, and brass, rival those of England, while they surpass them in cheapness. The prosperity of the country is visible at every step: coal, the source of all manufacturing prosperity, is found in abundance; water-power is furnished by the numerous streams; steam-engines have been erected everywhere, and the hills are covered with habitations even up to their summits.

The Rathhaus displays already damaged frescoes by modern Düsseldorf artists.

The object best worth visiting here is the Belvedere, auf der Haardt (Eli-senhöhe), a round tower on the top of the hill of Haardt, surrounded by pleasure-grounds, a charming point of view, overlooking the Wupperthal, accessible in less than $\frac{1}{2}$ an hour from the Hotel. On it is the statue of St. Swithbert (died 713), an English monk, first preacher of the Gospel here.

A short distance beyond Barmen, at 1 m. Rittershausen Junct. Stat. the Rly. crosses the old frontier of Berg and Mark, the ancient line of demarcation between the Franks and Saxons.

[Branch Rly. S. 12 m. to Remscheid, and in progress N. to Witten.]

4 m. Schwelm Stat. (Inns: Rosenkranz;—Pr. v. Preussen), an active little town of 5600 Inhab. After passing through a considerable cutting in the mountain, the railway gains an elevated point at 3 m. Milspe Stat., from which you look down upon the broad vale of Ennepe, into which the rly. descends, swarming with life and industry. Villages occur at every few miles of road, chiefly busied in various manufactures of iron. Machetes, here called Sackhauer, for cutting the sugar-cane in the West Indies, &c., are made here.

8 m. Hagen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Lünenschloss), a manufacturing town of 13,400 Inhab., with iron and Turkey-red dye-works. [Branch Rly. N. 19 m. to Dortmund (Rte. 66), and 15 m. to Brügge, through Dahl and Schalksmühle.]

[$\frac{1}{2}$ an hr. beyond, a branch Rly. turns S.E. for Betzdorf Junct. Stat. on the Cologne and Wetzlar Rly. (see Rte. 67A).]

The line from Hagen proceeds N.E. by Westhofen to

3 m. Schwerte Junct. Stat. (Inn: Sternberg). [Rly. N. to Unna Junct. Stat., thence to Hamm and Soest. See Rte. 66.]

8 m. Fröndenberg Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S. 2 m. to Menden Stat., a manufacturing town of 4200 Inhab., on the Hüne. Diligence to Iserlohn in Rte. 67A.]

12 m. Neheim-Husten Stat. On the rt. ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) is the Castle of Herdringen, built by Zwirner for Count Fürstenberg.

6 m. Arnsberg Stat. (Inns: Huseman's; Weipert's). A town of 4600 Inhab., prettily situated on an eminence half encircled by the Ruhr. On one of the gates are groups of stags and boars not ill executed. There is an extensive view from the ruins of the Old Castle, in the court of which (Baumhof), or in a field on the l. of the road to Iserlohn, the judges of that which has been called the Secret Tribunal used to assemble. The holy Vehm numbered in Westphalia (which anciently comprehended the country between the Rhine, Weser, and Ems) 100,000 Wissenden or initiated. This ancient court of justice, now erroneously regarded as a sort of German inquisition, was in truth only a separate jurisdiction; its meetings were held in public places and in open day; and its proceedings were neither secret nor tyrannical. The words Secret Tribunal are in fact a mistranslation of the words "Separatum iudicium." (See Dortmund, Rte. 66.) At the foot of the hill lies the suppressed Premonstratensian Abbey Weddinghausen, founded 1169, now a school. Pretty country to 12 m. Meschede Stat. (Inn: Schäfer's). A pretty town on l. bank of the Ruhr.

13 m. Brilon Stat. (Inn: Krüper's). Omnibus 4 times daily to the town, 4 m. N., one of the oldest in Germany, 3000 Inhab. The Parish Ch. was built, it is said, by Charlemagne, in 776 (?).

9 m. Bredelar Stat. on the Diemel. The former monastery is now turned into an iron-works. The tower and castle Marsberg, on a conical hill, was destroyed by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War. At the foot of the hill is

5 m. Nieder-Marsberg Stat. [Diligence twice daily in 2½ hrs. to 11 m. S.E. Arolsen, capital of the small principality of Waldeck: Pop. 2800. (Inn: Römer.) In the Prince's Palace, built early in the last cent., are a collection of antiquities from Pompeii, and a replica of West's Death of General Wolf. Rauch, the sculptor (1777), and Kaulbach the painter (1805), were born at Arolsen. The Stadt Kirche contains 3 statues by Rauch. Since 1867 the principality of Waldeck and Pyrmont has been administered by Prussia.]

17 m. Warburg Junct. Stat. (Inn: Bracht's). Pop. 3960. An old and decayed town, in a picturesque site on the Diemel. The 2 churches deserve notice, and the chapel of St. Erasmus, whose relics here are much visited by pilgrims: l. a conical hill is surmounted by the ruins of Castle

Desenberg, the property of the Spiegel family. (Branch Rly. N. to Altenbecken for Paderborn, &c., see Rte. 68.)

The line crosses the Diemel, follows the rt. bank, and then turns E. to 8 m. Hümme Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. 9 m. to Carlshafen (see Rte. 71).]

The line now turns S. to 4 m. Hofgeismar Stat. (Inn: Adler). An old town on the Esse (Pop. 3700), having warm chalybeate springs, not much frequented. The Bath-houses lie in a valley about 1½ m. off. There are pleasant walks in the neighbourhood, and at a short distance a château of the former Hessian Landgraves, called Schönberg. Handsome barracks have been built here. It was at Geismar that the English monk St. Boniface, in 754, boldly hewed down the oak sacred to the Thunderer, in the sight of thousands of shuddering Pagans, who on its fall hastened to become Christians.

4 m. Greibenstein Stat. A town with old watchtowers and ruined castle.

14 m. Cassel Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 70. [Rly. S. to Guntershausen Junct. Stat., thence to Frankfurt (Rte. 70), or to Coburg, &c. (Rte. 92).]

The line proceeds N.E. to 14 m. Münden Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 72. [Branch Rly. N.E. to Göttingen for Hanover, &c.]

The line trends E. to 10 m. Witzenhausen Stat. (Inns: König v. Preussen; Goldne Krone), prettily placed on the Werra, 2500 Inhab. There is an elegant Gothic chapel, with elaborate open-work turret, near the bridge.

"There is a charming drive along the rt. bank of the Werra, both up to Allendorf, and down to Münden in Hanover; through woods the greater part of the way. The forests in Hesse are among the finest in Germany, owing to the large trees they contain, which are no longer found in those nearer the Rhine."—F. S.

5 m. Arenshausen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. to Göttingen Junct. Stat. (Rte. 72), and in progress S. to Bebra Junct. Stat. (See Rte. 86.)]

The line follows the Leine to 8 m. Heiligenstadt Stat. (Inns: Preussischer Hof; Deutsches Haus). Pop. 4800. Formerly the capital of the principality of Eichsfeld, in 1803 annexed to Prussia. The Ch. of the Apostles has 2 octagonal towers, and in the churchyard is an octagonal chapel, intended apparently for a Baptistery.

8 m. Leinefelde Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S. to Gotha (Rte. 93).]

29 m. Nordhausen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Römischer Kaiser; Berliner Hof; Englischer Hof), a flourishing town of 22,000 Inhab., at the S. extremity of the Harz Mountains, in a country very fertile in corn. It has the most extensive distilleries in Germany, and was a free city until 1803, when it was joined to Prussia. In the Church of St. Blasius are two paintings by Lucas Cranach; an Ecce Homo, and the Burial of the young man of Nain, painted to adorn the tomb of a friend of the painter, who has introduced among the mourners portraits of Luther and Melancthon. Near the Rathhaus is a Rolandssäule under a roof. (See Bremen.) The walks and gardens on the upper side of the town are beautiful. There are many interesting points in the neighbourhood, such as the castles of Hohenstein and Ebersburg. The road from here to Magdeburg and the Harz is described in Rte. 74.

[Branch Rly. N.W., along the S. side of the Harz, to Herzberg Junct. Stat. for Hanover, or Brunswick, &c., and S. 46 m. to Erfurt (Rte. 86), passing, 12 m.

Sondershausen Stat. (Inns: H. Mönch; Tanne; Deutsches Haus), Pop.

5800. Capital of the small principality of Schwarzburg-S. In the modern Schloss is a small collection of antiquities, among them a bronze image, said to be an idol of the Sorbic-Wends called Püsterich, very old. Pretty environs and fine views from the Fürstentberg, Spatenberg, Possenthurm, and Jukaburg.

Branch Rly. in progress N. E. from Nordhausen to Aschersleben, for Magdeburg, &c.]

Near Nordhausen begins the fertile valley called Goldene Aue, watered by the winding Helme. It extends to Rossleben and Sangerhausen, near which it falls into the Unstrut.

10 m. Rossla Stat. (Inn: Kaiser), on the Helme, 1800 Inhab. Count Stolberg has a château here. To the S. rises the ridge called the Kuffhäuser-Berg (1458 ft. high, Inn on top), commanding a very fine view. On it are the extensive ruins and tower (80 ft.) of a castle built by the Saxon Emperors and inhabited by Frederick Barbarossa, whose spirit is fabled still to haunt its chambers, and some among the peasants and miners affirm they have seen him with his head resting on his arm, and his red beard growing through the stone table at which he sits! A singular cavern has been discovered near the Kuffhäuser.

From the Rly. Stat. the hill may be ascended direct by passing through the village, and then l. through Sittendorf and Tilleda or to the rt. by Kelbra (daily Diligence to Kelbra from Rossla, in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., at 11.45 A.M.), and then by a good road through the forest and up the Rothenburg (Restaurant), and thence along the top of the hills ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) to the Kuffhäuser, the descent may be made to Frankenhausen (Inn: Mohr), a small town of 5100 Inhab. and saline baths. Diligence back to Rossla daily (5 P.M.) in 3 hrs.

12 m. Sangerhausen Stat. (Inn: Löwe). In the Ch. of St. Ulrich (date 1079) is the tomb of Louis the Leaper, who vowed to build a ch. to St. Ulrich, provided he succeeded in jumping safely out of the window of his prison, the Giebichenstein Castle, near Halle (see Rte. 64). Near the town are mines of brown coal and copper.

11 m. Eisleben Stat. (Inns: Goldenes Schiff; Löwe). A town of 12,540 Inhab. on the Böse, a small stream. It was formerly the capital of the old county of Mansfeld, and is especially remarkable as the native place of LUTHER. The house (now a school for poor children) in which he was born Nov. 10 or 22, 1483, is not far from the gate leading to Halle, a few doors from the Post-office; his portrait is placed over the entrance. The original building was partly consumed by fire in 1689, but there is still enough of it left to give interest to it. The font in which he was baptized remains in the Petri-Paul-Kirche. In St. Andrew's Ch. is the pulpit from which he preached, and other relics of the great Reformer, and some tombs of the Counts of Mansfeld; a fine brass monument and 4 brass chandeliers, produce of the mines. The Rathhaus was originally roofed with copper. A pulpit cloth, worked by a Countess of Mansfeld, is a remarkable piece of embroidery. Luther died in this town, Feb. 18, 1546. He was the son of a poor miner here, and the greater part of the inhab. still follow the same occupation, working in the neighbouring copper mines. The ground around Eisleben is turned up in stony hillocks and mounds, the miners' refuse, so as to look like a great graveyard.

[8 m. from Eisleben (Diligence daily in 2 hrs.) is the small town of Mansfeld (Inn: Stadt Keller), where Luther spent his childhood, from the end of the 1st to the 15th year at the parish school. On a neighbouring hill is the chief castle of the Counts of Mansfeld, who became extinct in 1780, when the county fell partly to Saxony and partly to Prussia. It is well preserved, and retains its old tilt-yard, chapel, &c. Rly. in progress N. to Sandersleben on the line from Aschersleben to Halle; S. to Sangerhausen (see above).]

The Rly. to Halle traverses an open country bare of wood, passing 2 small lakes; the one on the rt. is salt, the other fresh.

24 m. Halle Junct. Stat. (Described Rte. 64.) Rly. hence to Berlin. (See Rte. 63 and 64.)

ROUTE 67A.

HAGEN TO BETZDORF BY SIEGEN [ISERLOHN].—RAIL.

Distance, 77 m.; time, 4 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

From Hagen Junct. Stat., on the Rly. from Düsseldorf to Schwerte (Rte. 67), the line (Ruhr-Siegbahn) turns S.E. through the prosperous coal districts of the pretty valleys of the Lenne and the Ruhr to 10 m. Limburg Stat. (Inn: Bentheimer Hof, beautifully situated). A small town on the Lenne; Pop. 3800. The Schloss of the Prince of Bentheim-Tecklenburg-Rheda is in a very picturesque situation. At the point where the Lenne joins the Ruhr, N.W. in the distance are seen the ruins of Hohen-Syburg, the old castle of Wittekind, chief of the Saxons, who was here conquered by Charlemagne and compulsorily baptized. A round tower on the top of the hill was erected as a monument to Baron Vincke, President of Westphalia. After passing near the Grürmannshöhle, at Grüne, a colossal iron cross is discernible, a memorial of the War of Liberation.

3 m. Letmathe Junct. Stat. (Inn: Dieckmann's).

[Branch Rly. E. 3 m. to Iserlohn passing

Dechenhöhle Stat. This cavern of vast extent, abounding in beautiful stalactites, was discovered in 1868. Tickets, 75 pf., may be obtained at this stat., from which it is rather more than a mile distant. The entrance is close to the rly., and not far from an Inn (Grürmanns), at Grüne. The cave has been explored for a distance of 4 miles, but only about 1 m. of this is prepared for visitors, who are led through a suite of halls abounding in stalactites known by fanciful names—Vorhalle, Gletscher, Orgel, Vorhang (the curtain), Nixen, and Palmen-Grotto. An illumination with many hundred candles costs about 12 mks. Travellers should provide themselves with a supply of magnesium wire, whose brilliant light shows off the stalactites to great advantage.

Iserlohn Stat. (Inn: Hilgers H.; Sanders H.), one of the most considerable manufacturing towns in Westphalia, with 15,340 Inhab.: it may be regarded as the Birmingham of Prussia, where steam-engines, cutlery, and all sorts of brass ware, buttons, needles, pins, wire, &c., are made. The country round abounds in workshops, forges, paper-mills, &c., and is rich in picturesque rocks, ruined castles, and romantic valleys and glens.

Diligence from Iserlohn 3 times daily in 1½ hr. to Menden Stat. (Rte. 67), passing

3 m. Hemer, near which on rt. is the village Sundwich, with the Sundwich-Höhle, a cave containing fossil bones, and the Felsenmeer or Sea of Rocks.]

The rly. from Letmathe continues S.E. to 5 m. Altena Stat. (Inns: Klinche, near the bridge; Quitmann). Pop. 6450. Industrious little town, prettily situated. Fine view from the castle of the Counts of the Mark.

15 m. Finnentrop Stat. [Branch

Rly. S. to Attendorn. N. in progress to Meschede.]

Several cuttings, bridges, and tunnels are passed before reaching 28 m. Seigen Stat. (Inn: Goldener Löwe). An old mining town, Pop. 10,100. In the lower of the two castles of the old Princes of Nassau-Siegen (extinct 1743) is a monument to Pr. Maurice of Nassau (d. 1679). Rubens was born in the town, 1577.

The line continues S.W. to 11 m. Betzdorf Junct. Stat., on the Rly. between Cologne and Giessen. (See Rte. 47.)

ROUTE 68.

COLOGNE TO BRUNSWICK, BY SOEST, PADERBORN, AND KREIENSEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 185 m.; time, 10 hrs.; 1 train daily connects through.

Cologne is described in Rte. 36. For the Rly. as far as

3 m. Mühleim Junct. Stat., see Rtes. 34 and 36. Thence the line proceeds N. to 14 m. Ohligswald Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E. (¼ hr.) to Solingen Stat. (Inns: Baierischer Hof; Stadt Königsberg), Pop. 11,800, famous for its manufacture of sword-blades, foils, scissors, and other articles of cutlery and ironware.

7 m. Vohwinkel Junct. Stat. For the Rly. hence as far as 27 m. Schwerte Junct. Stat., see Rte. 67. Thence the line proceeds N. to 5 m. Unna Junct. Stat. (Inn: König von Preussen). Pop. 6860. Between this town and the stat. are the very extensive salt-works, supplied by brine-springs, and the newly opened baths of Königsborn. [Branch Rly. N. to Hamm, and W. to Dortmund. See Rte. 66.]

9 m. Werl Stat. (Inn very bad). Here are salt-works, and a miraculous image of the Virgin, to which many thousand pilgrims repair annually.

8 m. Soest Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. Overweg, comfortable and clean; Vosswinkel H.). A singular, antiquated, shrunken, walled town, Pop. 11,500; once a free Imperial city, and during the Middle Ages a most flourishing and populous town, lying on the great commercial high road from Bruges and Antwerp, across Germany, by Cologne to Brunswick and the Baltic. In 1447, it withstood a memorable siege from Dietrich of Mörs, Archbishop of Cologne, an ambitious prelate, who sought to subject Westphalia to his rule. In spite, however, of the long train of princes and nobles whom he gained over to his cause, and in spite of his army of 60,000 men, including a horde of 20,000 Bohemian mercenaries, the Bishop was compelled to raise the siege and retire from the walls, so bravely were they defended by the citizens, who served the artillery, and by their wives, who wielded pots of boiling pitch.

It contains 10 or 12 very curious churches, some in utter decay. They all deserve much attention from the architect and antiquary.

The Dom* (St. Patroclus), an unaltered Romanesque edifice, of which the choir, transepts, and nave date from the 11th cent.: the porch and W. end of nave belong to the end of the 12th. The W. front is very imposing. A massive tower (A.D. 1200), 244 ft. high, rises above the porch. One storey of it was the town armoury, and still contains heaps of cross-bows and bolts. The interior of the church shows remains of early fresco.

St. Peter's Ch., near the Dom, is Romanesque in nave; choir Pointed, ending (like the Wiesen-Kirche) in an apse of 7 sides of a decagon; peculiar construction (date end of 13th cent.). Obs. a fine altarpiece of the Crucifixion carved in wood, very fine, with wings gilt and painted.

The Protestant Wiesen - Kirche (1330-43) is a bold and elegant specimen of pure Gothic (1330-43), with 2 W. towers (1429), lately finished with openwork spires, and 3 rich portals (restored 1850). The choir, 76 ft. high, with very tall windows nearly full of rich painted glass (14th. cent.) and supported by slender reeded piers, is extremely striking. The nave, later in date, has fine glass of 15th cent. Obs. a noble Gothic Tabernacle (15th cent.), and 2 smaller; a stone altar, with carved stone candelabra; 2 richly carved altarpieces (triptychs) of wood, the Joys and Sorrows of the Virgin (1437).

The Thomas - Kirche (with apse good, in style of 13th cent.) and St. Maria zur Höhe, are of the transition period and good in style: the last the least altered. St. Paul's and Graue-kloster are of the 14th cent. Nicholai-Kirche is a small Romanesque building, divided through the centre by piers and arches, the walls covered with coeval paintings.

A walk round the walls, which are transformed into promenades, will repay. See the Osthoven-Thor, a fine example of old fortification (1535)

Sir Peter Lely was born at Soest, in 1717. His father (a Dutchman, named Van der Vaas) acquired the nickname of Le Lys whilst serving as a captain in the garrison.

[Branch Rly. N.W. to Hamm Junct. Stat. (Rte. 66).]

3 m. Sassendorf Stat. Salt-works and baths.

8 m. Lippstadt Stat. (Koppelmanns Inn), Pop. 7400. St. Mary's is a fine Ch. with a massive W. tower (striped stone-work, like Earl's Barton), and 2 towers attached to the transepts; the body Romanesque, 1189; the choir, of late Gothic (1478–1500), is the best part. Of the same age and equal beauty is a pyramidal tabernacle of Gothic work, with bas-reliefs in stone. There are 3 other churches.

9 m. Salzkotten Stat. (Preussens Inn), a town of 2000 Inhab., with considerable salt-works.

8 m. Paderborn Stat. (Inns: Post, at the Rly.; Concordia; Loffelmanns; Preussischer Hof: none good). A very ancient and gloomy town of 12,900 Inhab., full of picturesque old houses, until 1803 capital of an ecclesiastical principality, and, until 1819, seat of a University, the oldest bishop's see in Westphalia, founded in the 8th century by Charlemagne.

The Cathedral is a large and singular, rather than handsome edifice. At the W. end rises a tall, plain, and massive Romanesque tower, destitute of portal or door, but pierced with a wheel window surmounted by 6 rows of small windows. Its date is 1058-78. The crypt also belongs to this period. The two richly-sculptured W. portals, and the parts adjacent, date from 1133-43. The Transitional body of the church, erected about 1267, but having Gothic windows of late insertion, is 345 ft. long and 66 ft. high.

Within are 3 engraved brasses of Bishops Bernard V., 1341; H. v. Spiegel, 1380; and Rupert v. Berg, 1391. In the N. transept is the old high altar, enriched with good sculpture of 14th cent. There are numerous episcopal monuments of later date. The silver shrine of St. Liborius, at the high altar, was made 1627, the original one having been stolen, in 1622, by Duke Christian of Brunswick, and coined into dollars.

[N. G.]

Not far from the Dom, to the N., stands St. Bartholomew's chapel, a pure Romanesque building of Bp. Meinwerk, erected by Greek workmen, 1017.

The fine Church of SS. Peter and Andrew has a Romanesque tower and choir with Transitional nave, and has been well restored. The Romanesque Ch., opposite the Dom to the S., deserves notice, as also the new Protestant Ch. in the Romanesque style, with gorgeous interior.

Below the Dom rises the stream of the Pader, out of 5 sources, in sufficient copiousness to be able to turn a mill at the distance of a few yards. The ground on which the town stands teems with springs of water, bursting forth in the very streets; it is said there are not less than 300 in and about it, some of them warm.

The Rathhaus is a very picturesque building, a mixture of styles, 1615. The University is now replaced by a Catholic Seminary. There is a fine walk round the town.

N. and E. of Paderborn stretches the Teutoberger Wald,—the Saltus Teutobergicus of the Romans—covered with oaks and beech. This high land is supposed to be the scene of the defeat of the legions of Quintilius Varus, A.D. 9, by the young Cheruscan chief, Arminius (Herman, man of the host). Allowing the Romans to advance across the plains of Westphalia, he awaited them in the first difficult country, on the skirts of the Great Hercynian Forest, a strong position, covering the district up to the Weser, where Roman discipline being of no avail, the invaders suffered one of the most serious defeats recorded in their annals, which arrested for ever their progress in this direction. The battle-field is supposed to lie between Driburg and Bielefeld. (See Rte. 69A.) Many of the present names of hills, forests, streams, and villages in this district correspond with those mentioned by Tacitus, near the scene of the battle.

[Diligence daily in 1 hr. (6.40 P.M.) to 5 m. N.E. Lippspringe (Inns: Post; Concordia), at the source of the Lippe, whence its name. Its mineral waters—sulphureous, with much carbonic acid gas—are used for inhaling by consumptive patients.]

On quitting Paderborn, the rly. crosses the viaduct of the Dune, 13 arches, 85 ft. high, and that over the Beke, of 24 arches, of 110 ft. high.

10 m. Altenbeken Junct. Stat.

Rly. N.E. by Pyrmont and Hameln to Hanover (Rte. 69A). S.E. to Warburg, and thence to Cassel (see Rte. 67), and E. the line continues to 5 m. Driburg Stat. (Inns: Köthe, in the town; better at the Wells), a town of 2130 Inhab. A little to the E. of it on the road to Höxter, beneath the old Castle of Yburg, lie the Baths, supplied by a chalybeate spring, one of the strongest known. It consists of 4 large lodging-houses, with Baths, and a Kursaal, accommodating 200 visitors, chiefly ladies. The sulphur mud baths are efficacious in complaints of the joints.

18 m. Höxter Stat., on the Weser, described in Rte. 71.

The line crosses the Weser to

4 m. Holzminden Stat. (See Rte. 71.) (Branch line in progress S.E. to Warburg.)

27 m. Kreiensen Junct. Stat. Rly. N. to Hanover; S. to Göttingen for Cassel, &c. (see Rte. 72); and E. the line continues to

13 m. Seesen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Kronprinz). Pop. 2000. [Branch Rly. S. through Osterode (see Rte. 73) to Herzberg Junct. Stat. for Nordhausen, &c., in progress to Goslar.]

8 m. Lutter Stat. where Tilly gained a victory over the Protestants under Christian IV. of Denmark (1627), so decisive that he received for it the thanks of the Holy See.

5 m. Ringelheim Junct. Stat. Here

the new Rly. from Hildesheim to Vienenburg (see Rte. 72) is crossed 11 m. Börsum Junct. Stat. Branch Rly. S. to Vienenburg for Harzburg, E. through Jerxheim for Magdeburg, and N. through

7 m. Wolfenbüttel Junct. Stat. to

7 m. Brunswick. (See Rte. 66.)

ROUTE 69.

DÜSSELDORF TO BREMEN, viâ VANNÉ, MÜNSTER, AND OSNABRÜCK.—RAIL.

Distance, 180 m.; time, 8½ to 10 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Düsseldorf (see Rte. 34).

For the Rly. N. as far as 19 m. Oberhausen Junct. Stat., see Rte. 34; thence E. as far as

14 m. Wanne Junct. Stat., see Rte. 66. Here the line turns N. to 15 m. Haltern Junct. Stat. Rly. W. to Wesel for Paris or Flushing (see Rte. 34).

The many towers at Münster have an imposing appearance at a distance.

25 m. Münster Junct. Stat. (Inns: König von England, in the Principal Markt,—good table-d'hôte; Rheinischer Hof; Moormann; Kronprinz). This capital of the Prussian province of Westphalia has 27,800 Inhab., is a place of considerable trade, and connected with the river Ems by a navigable canal. It was formerly governed by a bishop, the first of whom was the Frisian St. Ludger, 802. From 1719 to 1803, the Münster bishopric was always held by the Archbishop-Elector of Cologne; but since that date the bishop has had only spiritual authority. The town is one of the best preserved in Germany, though it has not the high antiquity or fine situation of those on the Rhine and Danube. Along the ground-floor of the houses of the main street (Principal Markt, chiefly of 15th and 16th cents.) run pointed arcades, reminding the traveller of Padua and Bologna. At one end rises the ch. of St. Lambert, at the other stands the Rathhaus. There are some fine mansions of the Westphalia noblesse, e. g. the Erbdrosten Hof, the Romberger Hof, dating from the 18th cent. The Gothic buildings are remarkable for their good taste and picturesque beauty, and, in spite of the disorders of which Münster has been the scene, for their good preservation. The most remarkable are the Cathedral*, of mixed Romanesque and Gothic architecture (date 1168-90 and 1225-61), with 2 W. towers, surmounted by pyramidal spires, 2 transepts and very low aisles. The parts of it most worth notice are the S. Transept (outside) and the S. porch, within the Narthex, or Paradise, as it is called, with Byzantine pillars, and sculptures. Inside, the Sacrament's house, the brass font, and stained glass. The body of the church was gutted, 1534, by the Anabaptists. The choir is the handsomest portion. Obs. a Last Judgment, a huge sculpture in stone, 1692, in the S. transept; a Pietà, of marble, at the W. end of the nave, by Achterman, a living sculptor, a native of Münster. Behind the choir is the tomb of Bishop Galen (1678), who, notwithstanding his ecclesiastical title and profession, spent a life of perpetual warfare, maintaining an army of 42,000 foot, 18,000 horse, and 200 cannoneers. He is appropriately styled in his epitaph, "Hostium terror," but he was equally dreaded by his friends, for, being offended soon after his accession by the conduct of the townsfolk, he mercilessly bombarded the town until he was appeased by promises of submission. In order, however, to make sure of obedience, he erected the very strong Citadel. The English Government considered him a person of so much importance that they sent Sir Wm. Temple, in 1664, to negotiate an alliance with him; but the Bishop had previously sold himself to the Dutch. On the N. side of the Dom is a fine Gothic cloister.

The Ueberwasser-Kirche* (date 1340), especially its massive square tower, is a fine specimen of Gothic art, which seems to have flourished in its best state in Westphalia during the 14th and 15th cents. The spire was destroyed by the Anabaptists 1533-35, on the principle that "high things shall be laid low."

The Ludgeri-Kirche is a Romanesque ch., b. 1173, of Nienberg sandstone. The nave and lower part of the handsome central tower are of that date. The choir, very rich Gothic, 1383. Obs. the double stalls and 2 tabernacles of stone—early 16th-cent. work. The airy choir, and the graceful octagonal lantern of the tower, are in the pure Pointed style, 15th cent. This ch. was restored and decorated with paintings, carvings, and stained glass, 1860-68, and 2 Romanesque W. towers have been lately added.

At the end of the Principal Markt is St. Lambert's Ch.*, which is under restoration and is in the best Gothic style of the 14th cent. Over its S. doorway is a very elegant tree of Jesse, carved in stone. From its leaning tower still hang the iron cages in which the bodies of John of Leyden, the Tailor King, Knipperdolling, and Krechting, his two ministers and colleagues—the leaders of the Anabaptists—were suspended, after they had been cruelly tortured for the space of an hour with red-hot pincers, previous to their execution in the Great Square. These fanatics, after expelling from the town, in 1534, all the respectable and rational inhabitants, and filling it with ignorant peasants and enthusiasts, who flocked hither from Holland, Friesland, and Westphalia, proclaimed Münster to be the New Jerusalem mentioned in the prophecies. They appointed themselves its sovereigns, and maintained possession of it for many months, establishing a community of goods and of women, attacking all constituted authorities, as the only means of rooting out evil from the earth (!), while they committed the most horrid atrocities, substituting polygamy for marriage, and the like.

St. Maurice's Ch., 10 min. walk outside the Moritz-Thor, has a 12th-cent. Romanesque nave and 15th-cent. Gothic choir. Its restoration (1859) has been one of the most costly and beautiful attempted in Germany.

The house of John of Leyden, on the market-place, ornamented with curious carvings, is a good specimen of Gothic.

The Rathhaus* is a singular and beautiful specimen of Gothic, 14th and 15th cent.; its front rises in an elegant gable, partly open work, 104 ft. Under a colonnade below are exposed the tongs and pincers with which the Anabaptists were tortured previous to their execution. In the Friedensaal, little altered since 1575, when it was fitted up (well worth seeing), the Peace of Westphalia, which ended the Thirty Years' War, was signed 24 Oct., 1648. It contains paintings of the ambassadors and sovereigns who took part in the Congress, some of them by Terburg. A grand Gothic Hall was added from Salzenberg's design, 1860, when the Rathhaus was restored.

The Schloss, built 1767, formerly Palace of the Bishop, now the residence of the commandant, is handsome, and has a fine staircase. Behind it there are pretty gardens, occupying the site of the old citadel. The fortifications, levelled and planted in the last cent., form agreeable walks round the town.

On the Domplatz, near the Bishop's residence, is a Museum of Church antiquities, and not far off the Ständehaus—House of Assembly of the Estates of Westphalia.

The Church of St. Ignatius, built by the Jesuits, 1858, contains painted glass by Didron, &c., and carved work; St. Aegidius (Giles), a 17th-cent. ch., has been painted in fresco by Steinle, Settigast, and Mosler; St. Martin's, Romanesque, of the 12th cent., was restored 1859, in good taste. St. Servatius, near the Servatii Thor, is a good Gothic ch. of the 14th cent., restored 1854, and spire added 1858.

The University, which until 1818 flourished here, is supplanted by that of Bonn, and reduced to an Academy of the theological and philosophical faculties, with 400 students. The building, originally a convent, contains a small collection of natural history.

The Provincial Museum and Kunstverein, in the Stadtkeller, corner of Clemens-str., possess ancient paintings of the Westphalian school.

There is a considerable trade in Westphalian hams here.

Railways.—S.W. to Haltern and Wanne, see above; N.W. to Hengelo (see Rte. 10, Handbook for Holland and Belgium); N. through Rheine (whence branch line E. to Osnabrück), Salzbergen, and Leer to Emden (see Rte. 8, Handbook for Holland and Belgium); S. to Hamm Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 66), and N.E. a direct line runs to 30 m. Osnabrück Junct. Stat. (Inns: Schaumburg's, near the stat.; Dütting's Hotel). This picturesque town, about 1000 years old, and until 1803 capital of an episcopal principality, has 30,000 Inhab. (¼ Catholics). From 1648, until its annexation to Hanover in 1803, the Bishopric was ruled alternately by a Catholic Bishop and a lay Protestant, who bore the title of Bishop, without sharing the ecclesiastical dignity: thus the late Duke of York was made Bishop of Osnabrück while an infant. Since 1857 there has been a permanent Roman Catholic Bishop. The see was planted among the Saxons towards the end of the 8th cent.

The Cathedral, originally founded by Charlemagne, is a fine Romanesque edifice, chiefly of the 12th cent., with 2 square W. towers (finished 1141), and an octagonal tower at the crossing (? 11th cent.), and a Romanesque cloister. Obs. the rich foliated capitals and slightly-pointed arches of nave and choir, also the cylindrical Font of bronze, with reliefs and inscriptions of 12th cent. In the Treasury are preserved an ivory comb of Charlemagne, richly carved; Five Shrines of Gothic work, which contained the relics of SS. Crispin and Crispian (12th cent.), St. Regina (13th cent.), St. Cordula, &c.; a gold crucifix, set with antique gems; others of silver. In front (N.) of the cath. is a bronze statue by Drake, erected 1836, of Justus Möser (d. 1794), "The Franklin of Westphalia."

St. John's Church (Cath.) was built about the middle of the 13th cent. On its N. side is a Gothic cloister.

The Protestant Marienkirche is pure Gothic of the 14th and 15th cents. It contains a superb altar-piece of carved wood gilt (15th cent.), representing scenes from the Gospel history; also a Renaissance font with 4 reliefs. In this church is Möser's grave. St. Catherine's (Prot.) was begun 1340 on the site of an older ch. Its tower (15th cent.) lost its spire in 1868 by fire.

The Rathhaus, by the Marienkirche, is a turreted building, 15th cent., in which some negotiations for the Peace of Westphalia were carried on (1643-48), and contains a collection of portraits of the ambassadors engaged in the congress, also some old plate.

The Schloss, on the Neuer Graben, was begun 1662 by Ernest Augustus, the father of our George I., who was brought in here to die, 1727. In the neighbourhood of the town are a number of old heathen Saxon altars, many of which have been broken up for mending the roads.

Railways.—S.W. to Münster (see above); W. to Rheine (see above); N. in progress to Oldenburg; E. through Lohne and Minden to Hanover, &c. (see Rte. 66); and N.E. the line is now complete, passing through unimportant stations, and crossing the Weser before reaching Sebaldsbrück; where the Berlin and Hanover lines are joined.

74 m. Bremen (Rte. 72A).

ROUTE 69A.

ALTENBEKEN TO HANOVER, via PYRMONT, HAMELN, AND WEETZEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 69 m.; time, 3 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Altenbeken Junct. Stat., see Rte 68. The line to Hanover proceeds N.E. to 12 m. Steinheim Stat.

[Branch Rly. in progress N.W. through Detmold to Herford Stat. (see Rte. 66): in meantime Diligence daily, in 2½ hrs. (11 m.) to Detmold, passing in 1½ hr. through Horn (Inn, Post), from which place may be made the ascent of the Grotenberg, the highest summit of the Teutoberger Wald, 1200 ft. above the sea-level. On it is a monument to the old German hero Herman, or Arminius, chief of the Cherusci, who defeated the Roman legions under Varus. It is a colossal statue of hammered copper, 45 ft. high, and 93 ft. to the point of the sword. The pedestal is a circular Romanesque rotunda of sandstone 90 ft. high. The statue, designed by Bandel, of Anspach, was made at the copper-works in Lemgo; but, from want of funds, the works were suspended for many years, and were not completed until 1875. The hill overlooks the spot where the battle is supposed to have been fought. The view from it is truly magnificent, and will repay the trouble of ascending the mountain. There is a large rampart of loose stones and several barrows (Hünengräber—Huns' Graves—as they are called in N. Germany) near the spot.

(From the Grotenberg a guide is necessary to proceed direct to the Extersteine (close at hand is an Inn), a cluster of 5 bold but grotesque rocks of sandstone, rising out of the woods, picturesquely situated by the side of a sheet of water, with trees growing from many parts of them. One of these rocks, excavated into a hermitage, is the work of Benedictine monks of the Convent of Abdinghof, to whom it belonged in the beginning of the 12th cent.; other rock-hewn chambers seem to have been chapels. On the face of the cliff has been carved a rude bas-relief of the Crucifixion, dating probably from the 12th cent. These rocks have been rendered accessible by steps with railings, and a bridge thrown across one of the chasms, so that you may ascend to all the summits and enjoy an extensive view. The loftiest mass is 125 ft high. The grounds about are laid out in gardens. This is a favourite rendezvous for picnic parties from Pymont, Detmold, and Meinberg.)

Detmold (Inn: Lippische Hof, good; Stadt Frankfurt, tolerable), 6270 Inhab., the capital of the principality of Lippe - Detmold. "The Palace is a fine old castellated building, having a vast round corner tower or Donjon, with additions of an Elizabethan character. The best view of it is from the upper windows of the Inn, which is opposite to it. The prince is very rich, being the owner of almost all the large estates in his dominions, and all the forests, which are as abundantly stocked with game as any in Germany. He is consequently able to support all the expenses of the government, so that the inhabitants are required to pay hardly any taxes, and are much envied by their neighbours who are not equally exempted. The Palace Gardens are prettily arranged. The Marstall is a very fine stable, remarkably well kept, and worth the inspection of those who take an interest in horses. It contains in general 60 horses, all of the Senner race, which are bred at the prince's establishment of Lopshorn, about 5 m. from Detmold. This breed of horses is peculiar. They are allowed to run wild in the Senner Wald (from whence they take their name), and possess in consequence great endurance, and are very hardy, but, on the other hand, very shy and troublesome to break. They are taken up on the 1st of November and turned out again on the 1st of May, without any reference either to their condition at the time or the state of the weather. The race is of Arabian origin, and has been occasionally refreshed by new Arabian blood. There is evidence of a stud having existed here since the 15th centy., and it is supposed to be still older. The establishment possesses about 120 mares."—L. S. b. e. Detmold was the scene of a bloody battle fought in 783 between the Franks, under Charlemagne, and the Saxons.

From Detmold Diligence twice daily in 1½ hr. to 6 m. N. Lemgo (Pop. 4200), an old town, containing singular specimens of Gothic architecture, among which are a picturesque Rathaus and the fine Ch. of St. Nicholas.

From Detmold during the season (June 1 to end of Aug.), Diligence daily (3.15 P.M.) in 1 hr. to 5 m. S.E.

Meinberg. (Inns: Zur Rose (Post), and Zum Stern). This is a small but very pretty watering-place, with cold sulphur and other baths, besides gas-exhalations, which are used in cases of weak eyes. The gardens are extensive and neatly laid out.]

From Steinheim the line proceeds to 12 m. Pyrmont Stat. Bad Pyrmont is about 1 m. W. (Inns: *Krone; Lippischer Hof; Stadt Bremen.) There is a daily table-d'hôte during the season in the above-mentioned inns. Good lodging-houses. Bade Hotel. Vogels Café, outside the town, is a good Restaurant.

Pyrmont, prettily situated at the foot of wooded hills, is one of the oldest watering-places in Europe: it was frequented by Charlemagne, but had been previously known to the Romans. In 1556 10,000 strangers assembled here to drink from the steel-springs; and to accommodate so large a number, a camp was formed outside the town. It has, since 1625, belonged to the Prince of Waldeck, who has a Palace here, in which he resides in the season. The concourse of visitors does not now exceed 5000. The season is from June to Sept.

At the end of the principal street, in the Brunnen Platz, is the Trinkquelle, or Pump-room, where the chalybeate waters are distributed.

From this extend a double row of limes, planted 1668, and called the Grosse Allee: it forms a shady walk, extending from the Spring (Trinkquelle) to the Schloss, and is the morning promenade for those who drink the waters; at that time a band of music plays. Here are situated the Kursaal, with reading-room and library, and ball-room; some of the best shops, and theatre. On one side of the Brunnen Platz is the Park, crossed by shady avenues of old trees. The Palace Garden is surrounded by a rampart and moat; on one of the bastions grows a lime of great size and apparent age.

12 different mineral springs rise in and about the town. The Trinkquelle is the one most in repute: its water is chalybeate. It produces an exhilarating or even intoxicating effect when several glasses are taken, and contains the largest quantity of carbonic acid gas of any of the German springs. These chalybeates require great caution, and do much harm if improperly taken.

Adjoining the Trinkquelle are the Steel baths (Eisenbäder), recommended for female complaints.

Besides these, about 1½ m. out of the town, is the Salzbrunnen (saline spring), used in cases of gout and rheumatism. Omnibus plies thither.

The Gas Grotto (Dünsthöhle) is an artificial cavity in the Buntersandstein, from which rises a stream of carbonic acid gas, which, if breathed, is fatal to animal life. Rabbits or dogs exposed to its vapour are stifled or killed, as in the Grotto del Cane in Naples.

There is a Theatre here and two Ball-rooms.

A small congregation of Quakers maintains itself here.

Excursions.—To the top of the Bomberg (960 ft.), fine view, accessible for carriages. To the (5 m.) Arminiusberg (1100 ft.). To Horn and the Extersteine Rocks (16 m.), see above.

Pyrmont is about 20 hrs. distant from England.

The Rly. from Pyrmont proceeds N.E., and crosses the Weser to 13 m. Hameln Junct. Stat. described in Rte. 71. Branch Rly. E. to Else Stat. (Rte. 72), and N.W. along the Weser to Bad Oeynhausen (Rte. 66).

23 m. Weetzen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. through Neundorf to Haste Stat. (See Rte. 66.)]

9 m. Hanover, described in Rte. 66.

ROUTE 70.

FRANKFURT-A.-M. TO CASSEL.—RAIL.

Distance, 121 m.; time, 4½ to 6 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Frankfurt on the M. is described in Rte. 95.

From the Rly. Stat. on the W. side of the town, outside the Taunus-Thor, the Main-Weser-Eisenbahn proceeds N. to 2 m. Bockenheim Stat., an increasing town; 6700 Inhab.; many Jews. Favourite holiday resort of the citizens of Frankfurt. Old watch-tower at limit of former Frankfurt territory.

4 m. Bonames Stat. The Baths of Homburg lie 3 m. W. (Rte. 97).

9 m. Neiderwöllstadt Stat. About 2 m. to the E. of this, in the valley of the Nidda, the Basilica Ch. of Ilbenstadt, with towers of the 12th cent., belonging to Count Leiningen, is seen.

4 m. Friedberg Stat. (Inns: H. Trapp; H. Simon), a very quaint old town of Hesse Darmstadt, until 1803 a free city of the empire with 5000 Inhab., in the midst of the fertile Wetterau. The situation on a hill, and the old walls, with one lofty round tower, are very fine. It has an old castle, and two handsome Gothic churches; one in the town ruinous, the other in the castle. The so-called Jews' Bath, a vault of Roman construction, deserves special notice.

[Branch Rly. in progress S. to Hanau Junct. Stat.]

The line now passes over a viaduct 70 ft. high to 3 m. Bad Nauheim Stat. (Inns: H. Bellevue; H. de l'Europe; Kursaal). This watering-place is pleasantly situated at the base of the Johannisberg, a wooded hill of moderate height commanding fine views, and distant about 20 min. from the Kursaal, a handsome structure in a large park, with lake. The town of 3000 Inhab. owes its rise to the Salt Springs which Napoleon granted to Kellermann, who held them for some years. The subsequent proprietors had been for some time endeavouring to bore into a bed of natural salt which the geologists asserted to exist here. Their efforts, however, had not been attended with success, until one night in the winter of 1855, during a slight shock of earthquake, a column of strong brine at a temperature of 96° Fahr. rose from the bore-hole, and has ever since discharged every 24 hrs., with great velocity, a column of water nearly 12 inches in diameter. This wonderful fountain has been enclosed in a brick shaft; but it rises in a white jet, from 12 to 15 ft. above the top of this. The hot salt water is conducted into the bath-house, where also the carbonic acid gas which rises from these intensely saline springs is medically applied. Resident physician, Dr. Bode.

6 m. Butzbach Stat. Pop. 2500. The German vagrants, known in London as Bavarian broom-girls (Fliegenwedelhändler), come, not from Bavaria, but from villages in this neighbourhood, to the N. of Frankfurt, in Nassau and Hesse. Waldburg, near Butzbach, is a very beautiful spot. On a hill to the rt. is seen the grand ducal castle of Schiffenberg, formerly belonging to the Knights of the Teutonic order.

11 m. Giessen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Kuhne's; Einhorn (Unicorn), clean; Rappe; Prinz Karl). This town is beautifully situated on the Lahn; Pop. 12,208. The University was founded in 1527 by Luther's friend, Philip Landgrave of Hessen, out of the spoils of dissolved monasteries. It has an excellent library, and about 350 students, with 40 professors; a large barrack has been converted to the uses of learning, in addition to the building of the University itself. Liebig, the chemist, was long professor here.

Rly. W. down the valley of the Lahn to Coblenz, viâ Wetzlar Junct. Stat. (Rte. 96), whence line N.W. down the Sieg Valley to Cologne, viâ Betzdorf Junct. Stat. (Rte. 47.); S.E. to Gelnhausen Stat. on the line from Frankfurt to Bebra (Rte. 86); E. to Fulda (Rte. 86), viâ Alsfeld; and N. the line to Marburg ascends the valley of the Lahn, passing on l. the ruined castles of Gleiberg and Wetzberg, and further on rt. the Staufenberg, then twice crosses the Lahn before reaching 18 m. Marburg Stat. (Buffet.) (Inns: H. Pfeiffer; Ritter.) An interesting town of 9000 Inhab., on the Lahn; picturesquely situated on the side and slopes of the Schlossberg. Its streets, though narrow, some mere flights of steps, abound in subjects fit for an artist's pencil, both in costumes and buildings.

The University was the first founded in Germany after the Reformation (1527); and has 40 professors, and about 400 students. It possesses a good library.

The Ch. of St. Elizabeth* is a most elegant and interesting edifice, as a specimen of the earlier German Gothic style, restored 1860. Its W. front is surmounted by 2 spires 303 ft. high. The nave and aisles are of equal height, and round the church run two rows of small windows, instead of the tall windows usual in German churches of this period. It was begun 1235 and finished 1283 by the Landgrave Conrad, Grand Master of the Teutonic Knights, as a ch. for his Order, and to contain the richly ornamented Chapel of St. Elizabeth, who died here, 1231, at the age of 24. She was daughter of Andrew II., King of Hungary, and wife of Lewis IV., Landgrave of Thuringia, and was canonized in 1235. The chapel is in one arm of the transept. The stone steps around it are worn hollow by the knees of pilgrims, who resorted to it for 300 years until Philip of Hesse, the Reformer, put a stop to the practice, 1539. Within is a carved tablet, representing the saint lying on her coffin surrounded by cripples and sick persons, the objects of her bounty; her soul is seen hovering above her head, on its way to heaven, whence Christ extends to her his hand. The Shrine which contained her body is now placed in the sacristy; it is of oak covered with plates of copper, gilt, and ornamented with bas-reliefs of solid silver gilt, a fine work of 13th-century art. It is richly inlaid with pearls, antique cameos, and costly gems, but 80 of these were stolen in 1810, when the shrine was removed by the French to Cassel, but restored in 1814. In the opposite transept are the monuments of some of the Landgraves of Hesse in stone, with the ornamental parts of brass, in relief, and handsome in their way, quite different from English brasses. The painted glass in the windows of the choir is very beautiful. Here are the stalls of the Teutonic Knights, and the buildings behind the ch. were the Commandery or Convent of the Order.

On the Schlossberg rises proudly the Castle of the Landgraves of Hesse, a structure of the chivalrous ages, under restoration, and now used as an archive office by the Prussians. It commands a very fine prospect. It is worth seeing for its architecture, perfect preservation, and situation, particularly the Gateway, the Chapel, and the Knights' Hall, a vaulted chamber supported by pillars, 116 by 49 ft., remaining just as it was when Luther and Zwingli discussed in it the question of the Eucharist, in the presence of the Landgrave (Philip the Magnanimous) of Hesse, 1529. Pretty Excursions to Spiegelslust, the castles of Frauenberg and Staufenberg, St. Elizabeth's Well, and the village of Marbach.

The Rly. twice crosses the Lahn, and then turns sharply E. along the Ohm to 9 m. Kirchhain Stat. On the rt., perched on a hill, is the old mediæval city of Amöneburg, with castle and walls in ruins. The ch. has some fine wood carving.

31 m. Wabern Stat. The former Elector had a country-seat here containing some pictures.

[Diligence 3 times daily to W. 4 m. Fritzlar (Inn: H. d'Angleterre), on the Edder, a decayed town, retaining its old walls; Pop. 3200. It is the cradle of Christianity in Hessa. The fine Romanesque Church of St. Peter, founded by St. Boniface in 741, is of the 12th cent. The Rathhaus is in ruins. The Bishopric of Burnburg, transferred to Fritzlar in 786, was shortly afterwards translated by Charlemagne to Paderborn. At Fritzlar, in 918, Henry the Fowler was chosen for German king. 4 m. W. beyond Fritzlar (omnibus from Wabern twice daily in 2½ hrs.) is Wildungen. (Inns: H. de Russie; Post.) Bath House; pretty walks.]

The Rly. passes on l. the ruined castles of Altenburg and Felsberg, and crosses the Fulda by a viaduct of 13 arches.

10 m. Güntershausen Junct. Stat. (Buffet.) (Inn: H. Bellevue, comfortable, clean, and well managed.) Rly. S.E. to Bebra Junct. Stat. for Eisenach (Rte. 92) or Frankfurt on the M. (Rte. 86), and N. the line proceeds to

6 m. Wilhelmshöhe Stat., and intersecting the avenue (see description of the Palace below) turns E. to

3 m. Cassel Junct. Stat. (Buffet, good.) (Inns: H. du Nord and H. Royal, near the Stat.; H. König von Preussen and H. Schirmer, both in the Königsplatz, an oval Place, remarkable for the echo in the centre; Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, good German house; H. Ritter; H. Victoria; Hessischer Hof.) This capital of the former Electorate of Hesse-Cassel is situated on the Fulda and contains 53,300 Inhab. It was the residence of the Elector and the seat of the Government until the campaign of 1866 converted the electorate into a province of Prussia. The old town lies low down, close to the riverbanks, and consists of narrow but picturesque streets, while the new part, built upon an elevation formerly occupied by a fortress, is airy and agreeable, and being considerably extended. In the Friedrichsplatz, the largest square in any German town, stands the Electors Palace, built 1826, of no very imposing appearance, surpassed indeed by the hotels of several bankers in Frankfurt. Next to it is the Museum; beyond which are the Government offices. One side of the square, on the brow of the hill, is very judiciously left open, to admit the view of the valley, the windings of the Fulda, and the distant Mount Meissner. On this side a light gateway leads to the Public Garden (Augarten), a very handsome park abounding in fine trees (observe the Weymouth pines), but subject to inundations. In the middle of the square is placed the colossal marble statue of the Landgrave Frederick II., after whom it is named. To this prince Cassel owes its principal embellishments and collections of art, &c., &c. His wealth was acquired by trafficking in the lives of his subjects, whom he lent to the King of Great Britain to fight his battles in America and elsewhere; 5000 Hessian troops were hired, with the consent of Parliament, against the Pretender in Scotland. More than 3 millions sterling were paid for 12,000 Hessians sent to America 1776-84.

The Museum Fridericianum, begun in 1769 (open in summer, Mon., Tues., Thurs., Fri.; in winter, Tues. and Fri., 10 A.M. to 1; at other times by a fee to the inspector, catalogue 60 pf.)— includes — 1. A Library of 100,000 volumes, useful, but not calculated to interest a passing traveller. 2. A Cabinet of Curiosities in art and nature. One room is nearly filled with watches and clockwork, from the earliest invented watches made at Nuremberg, shaped like eggs, and wound up with a piece of catgut instead of a chain, to the most perfect chronometers. One of the Landgraves was an amateur watchmaker, and several specimens of his work are here preserved. Here are also a great variety of agates from the mines near Marburg, now abandoned; one single mass is formed into a staff 3 or 4 ft. long. Among many elaborate carvings in wood and ivory is one attributed to Albert Dürer. An enamelled dagger-hilt is believed to be by Benvenuto Cellini. There is a sword given by Pope Innocent VIII. to a Landgrave of Hesse. Many cases are entirely filled with objects of art and virtù, in amber, ivory, precious stones, gold and silver plate. 3. Antiquities. These were chiefly brought from Herculaneum. A little bronze statue of Victory, 20 in. high, known by casts all over Europe, is the gem of the collection; an exquisitely shaped bronze vase also merits notice. Many of the remains are interesting, from having been found in Germany or Hesse-Cassel itself: a Roman Eagle of the 21st Legion and a helmet were dug up at Wiesbaden. The coins, medals, and gems are well arranged for general inspection, under glass cases. 4. Antique Statues. A Minerva, an alto-relievo of the Triumph of Bacchus, and a bronze head of Mars, are the best; they were purchased from the Pope for 40,000 dollars. Among modern works are several busts by Canova, of Napoleon, of his son when a child five years old, and of his family. The Cork Models of ancient Roman buildings are good. The Collection of Natural History and Minerals is not very extensive or excellent. Besides the usual quantity of stuffed birds and quadrupeds, there are specimens of the woods of 500 different European trees, made up in the form of a library: each specimen has the shape of a volume; the back is formed of the bark; the sides of the wood. A trunk of a laurel which grew in the orangery here, 58 ft. high and 2 ft. diameter, is another botanical curiosity.

The Picture Gallery* in the Bellevue-Schloss (open Wed. and Sat. 10—2, Sun. 12—2, at other times on payment of a fee to the Custode, catalogue 75 pf.), contains some very good pictures, which are to be better arranged in the new picture gallery building near the Schloss. The best pictures are of the Dutch School: they include a remarkable series of 28 fine works of REMBRANDT*, including portraits of Kroll the poet; of Burgomaster Six (whole-length); of the writing-master Coppenol; of a halberdier; of Rembrandt, and his wife in red satin; of Nic. Bruynink, an ensign of militia: also Samson seized by the Philistines; Jacob blessing Joseph's children; a small winter landscape; a ruined castle on a height, bridge in the foreground, one of his finest landscapes, &c. &c. By Paul Potter, a cattle-piece, 2 cows and 2 sheep, with a man and woman, all life-size; Van der Lys, a company of soldiers and women, very large and forcible. There are 17 excellent portraits by Van Dyk, e.g. Snyders the Painter and his Wife; the Syndic Mostraeten, and a family group; a remarkably fine Rubens — the Meeting of Abraham and Melchizedek, figures life-size; Mabuse, Triumph of Christianity; Titian, whole-length of Don Alphonso; portrait of a Judge; Cleopatra; — Sassoferrato, the Marquis del Guasto, a fine work; Holbein, himself, his wife, and children, a family picture; Teniers, Peasants at a Kirmes; Silenus by Jordaens, nearly equal to Rubens; and a good piece by Terburg.

In the Calvinistic Ch. of St. Martin (Sacristan, 18 Hohenthor Strasse), nave 14th cent., choir beginning of 15th, well restored 1842, there are several monuments of the Electoral family, whose burial-vault is beneath it. That of Philip the Magnanimous

(d. 1567) occupies the place of the high altar; that of Landgravine Christine (1549), in bronze, and that of Landgravine Moritz (1662) are near.

A little below the Friedrichsplatz may be seen the foundation and first story of a vast Palace, called Kattenburg, begun 1820, by a former Elector, and stopped by his death 1821, now overgrown with moss and weeds.

The Marble Bath, in the Augarten, is a sumptuous piece of extravagance. Though it really contains a bath, this was introduced merely as a pretext for spending money and employing marble, with which its walls are covered. It is stocked with statues and bas-reliefs, by Monnot, an artist of the last cent., whose works, deficient in elevation and purity, have been termed the "Dutch School" of sculpture. Near this building is the Orangery.

The Theatre, at the corner of the Friedrichsplatz, is generally open 4 times a week; the Opera is tolerably good.

Cassel and its rulers afforded an asylum to the fugitive Flemish Protestants, driven from their country by the persecutions under Alva; and afterwards to the French Huguenots, exiled by the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. These colonists contributed much to the wealth and prosperity of the town by their industry, as well as to its extent.—One part of it is still called, after them, the French quarter. From 1807 to 1813 Cassel was the capital of Jerome Buonaparte's kingdom of Westphalia.

Johannes von Müller, the Swiss historian (died 1809), is buried in the old churchyard, outside the Todtenthor; and Spohr the composer (d. 1858), in the Neue Friedhof.

Excursions (a) (by Rly. to Stat. Wilhelmshöhe, 8 trains daily in 10 min., 60, 40, 30 pf., or by Omnibus from the Königsplatz seven times daily (and oftener when the fountains play) in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., 50 pf., or by Carriage to the Schloss, 6 mks.) Wilhelmshöhe is the German Versailles. The Elector's summer palace, within the gardens, is only 3 m. from Cassel, but they extend behind it to the top of a high hill, which is a good hour's walk in addition. Wed. and Sund. are the best days for going thither, as the waterworks then play, generally at 3 in the afternoon. They cease after the end of Sept. A day may be agreeably spent here in exploring the fine views and natural beauties of the spot, setting aside its artificial marvels. (Very good Inn, Schombardt, close to the palace.) Near the Inn is the New Waterfall, 130 feet high.

A straight avenue of limes leads from the Wilhelmshöhe Gate of Cassel, where carriages stand for hire to convey passengers. (rt.) On quitting the town is a huge edifice built by Jerome Buonaparte, while King of Westphalia, as a barrack, now turned into a manufactory and poor-house. The vista is terminated by the figure of the Colossal Hercules on the top of the hill behind Wilhelmshöhe.

The Palace—residence of the late Emperor Napoleon III. for several months after his surrender at Sedan, 1870—lies at the foot of the hill. At the side of it stands the Theatre, built by King Jerome Buonaparte, in which he used himself to act; it is now a ball-room. Behind it is the Great Fountain, the highest in Europe, except that at Chatsworth, which throws up a jet of water, 12 inches in diameter, 190 ft. It is supplied from reservoirs 300 ft. higher up the hill. At the back of the pond out of which it rises, is an artificial waterfall descending from a small aqueduct. Both it and the Fountain remain inactive and empty, except on Sundays and Wednesdays. Their performances do not continue more than 50 minutes.

The more ancient Cascade of the Karlsburg consists of a flight of stone steps 900 ft. long, leading up to the colossal statue; over which a stream of water is at times admitted to fall. A carriage-road conducts by the side of this gigantic staircase, in zigzags, to the very top of the hill. Upon a sort of landing-place or platform half-way up the stairs, is a rude representation of the Giant Enceladus, lying on his back, with a mountain of rocks heaped on his breast; it was the intention of the artist who formed him that he should spout from his mouth a jet of water 50 feet high; this is now dried up. The staircase of this château d'eau (imitated, it is said, from that in the villa d'Este) is surmounted by an octagon building 1312 ft. above the Fulda, surmounted by a pyramid, serving as a pedestal to the Colossal Hercules, 31 ft. high, of beaten copper. It is possible to mount up into the figure; 8 persons can stand at one time in the hollow of the club, and, out of a little window formed in it, enjoy a prospect extending nearly as far as the Brocken. But the delightful view can be obtained from the top of the hill without so much trouble. The aquatic staircase, and the octagon Temple of the Winds, as it is called, on its summit, with the statue and other extravagances connected with it, are reported to have employed 2000 men for 14 years. When their labours were completed, the cost was found to be so enormous that the accounts were burnt, to destroy all records of it.

In descending, a visit may be paid to the Löwenburg, a toy castle, built to imitate a stronghold of the Middle Ages, with drawbridges, battlements, tower, and ditches. Among the rusty suits in the armoury is one which belonged to the Great Condé; there is also a very curious collection of drinking-glasses, a series of portraits of the Tudors and Stuarts, and a library filled with romances alone. The Elector who built this castle is buried in the chapel. Those who have no taste for the objects above enumerated, will at least be gratified with the charming and various prospects from the slopes of the Löwenburg, and its agreeable gardens and pleasure-grounds. The Pinetum behind the palace is very extensive, and numbers fine and large specimens of exotic trees.

(b) To Wilhelmsthal (8 m. N.W. of Cassel, and $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. beyond Mönchehof, first stat. on rly. N. to Hümme), a castle built by the Landgrave Wilhelm III. in 1760, in the style of the Trianon at Versailles, and situated in a beautiful park. —Several portraits (Tischbein).

(c) To Carlshafen on the Weser (see Rte. 71), 2 trains daily in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.

Rlys. N. to Hümme Junct. Stat. for Carlshafen (see Rte. 71), or Warburg Junct. Stat. for Hanover (Rte. 69A), or Düsseldorf (Rte. 67), N.E. to Münden Junct. Stat. for Halle (Rte. 67), or by Göttingen to Hanover (Rte. 72), S. to Guntershausen Junct. Stat. for Coblenz (Rte. 96), or Frankfurt (see above), or Eisenach and Gotha (see Rte. 86).

ROUTE 71.

DESCENT OF THE WESER FROM HANOVERIAN MÜNDEEN TO HAMELN, MINDEN, AND BREMEN.

Steamers descend the Upper Weser from Münden to Carlshafen in 3 hrs., Tuesd. and Sund. 5 A.M.; thence to Hameln in 7 hrs., Mond., Wed., Frid., Saturd. 4 A.M.; thence to Minden in 6 hrs. on Tues., Thurs., Saturd., Sund.; thence to Bremen at 7.30 A.M. Mond. and Frid., arriving same evening. They ascend from Bremen in 3 days, stopping 1st night at Minden, 2nd at Hameln.

The banks of the Weser ("Visurgis, clade Romanorum nobilis amnis"—Velleius) are picturesque without being grand; the scenery has been compared with that of the Wye, and abounds in finely wooded hills, often descending to the water's edge. Below Minden the banks of the river are flat and uninteresting. The Weser has a course of 271 Eng. m., with a fall of 397 ft. to the North Sea. A Rly. along the rt. bank of the river now connects Hameln with Minden.

Hannoverisch-Münden, a Stat. on Rly. from Cassel to Hanover, and situated at the junction of the Fulda and Werra, whence the steamer starts, is described Rte. 72.

rt. The wooded hills of the Bramwald, or Solling.

1. Reinhardswald.

1. Veckerhagen, 1800 Inhab. Here was formerly a castle of the Electors of Hesse, now Chemical Works: in the neighbourhood are iron-mines. The Weser makes a great bend round the ruins of the castle of Bramburg, rt., which remain long in sight.

rt. Bursfelde. Here is a former Benedictine abbey of the 13th cent. The church is a well-preserved monument of Byzantine architecture.

rt. Lippoldsberge, 650 Inhab., and

rt. Bodenfelde, 2 picturesque villages. The banks of the river are here covered with a thick forest, part of the romantic scenery of the Solling: the river forces its way among high rocks.

1. Carlshafen [Terminus Stat. of Rly. S. to Humme Junct. Stat., thence W. to Warburg for Hanover (Rte. 69A) or Düsseldorf, or S. to Cassel (see Rte. 67)] (Inn: Schwan), 1730 Inhab., at the junction of the Diemel with the Weser, in a picturesque situation, with cliffs of red sandstone. The large magazines were built by the Landgrave Charles in 1700. The town was founded 1699 for French Huguenots exiled from the valleys of the high Alps, who were hospitably received by him and settled here. In the neighbourhood, higher up the river, are two settlements, named by them in the style of the Puritans, Gottestreue and Gewissensruhe (Truth of God and Rest of Conscience). The inhabitants still preserve their French features. Fine view from the Julius-höhe (Restaurant).

1. Herstelle, a stronghold of Charlemagne, where, in 797, during his campaign against the Saxons, he received the ambassadors of the Avars, and of Arragon and Castile. It is named after the cradle of his family, —Héristal, on the Meuse. No trace of the original castle remains. In its place a modern Gothic château lifts its roof above picturesque groups of trees. Below is the village of the same name.

1. Beverungen, a village of 1750 Inhab., marked by an old prison tower.

rt. Lauenförde. From this point the rt. bank belongs to Brunswick, the l. remains Prussian,

1. Blankenau. Formerly a fortress of the Abbot of Corvey, built in the 13th cent., afterwards a stronghold of the robber knight of Falkenberg. Now a Prussian public office. Opposite is the village of rt. Meinbrexen, in Brunswick.

1. Godelheim, at the foot of the Brunsb.: here are mineral springs. Opposite is rt. Fürstenberg. A castle of the Duke of Brunswick, upon a spur of the Solling. Since 1753 it has been a china manufactory.

11 m. Höxter Stat., on Rly. between Dreiburg and Kreiensen (Rte. 68). (Inns: Berliner Hof; Stadt Bremen.) An old walled Hanse town, 5234 Inhab., the last in Prussian Westphalia, on the l. bank of the Weser, here crossed by a bridge. The Ch. of St. Kilian is of interesting Romanesque architecture. Near it Charlemagne fought one of his hardest battles against the Saxons. The watch-tower on the Brunsborg is said to be a relic of the strong Saxon fortress built by Bruno, brother of Wittekind. In 1673 Turenne fixed his head-quarters here.

A fine avenue of chestnuts, 1 m. long, leads to the suppressed (1803) Benedictine Abbey of Corvey (Corbeia nova) (no inn), the oldest and most famous monastery of the Saxons. It was founded in 816 by Lewis the Pious, by means of a colony from the Abbey of Corbie, in Picardy, and was removed to its present site in 822. It became the missionary centre from which Christianity and civilization were spread over a large part of N. Germany and Scandinavia. Ansgar, the Apostle of the N., was a missionary from Corvey, Pope Gregory V. was abbot here, and in 967 the monk Widukind wrote his celebrated History of the Saxons. The only existing MS. of the first 6 books of the annals of Tacitus was discovered in the convent library, 1514, and published 1515 by Pope Leo X. The Convent, a plain, square, 18th-cent. edifice, is now a seat of the Prince of Hohenlohe-Schillingsfürst, Fürst v. Corvey, but too vast for any private family of whatever rank, and void of interest. The only remains of the old Abbey are in the W. front of the Church, which has twin Romanesque towers surmounted by spires and an upper gallery connecting the 2 towers; the lower storey and substruction, with the columns of single blocks in the vestibule, are attributed with some probability to the age of Charlemagne (A.D. 885); the body is of the 15th cent.

The Westphalian Rly. here crosses the winding river to the next Stat. from Höxter.

rt. Holzminden (Inn: H. Buntrock), a town of Brunswick at the N. extremity of an offset of the Sollinger-wald hills. It has considerable iron and steel works, mills for cutting paving-stones, an article of export to Bremen, and a celebrated school or gymnasium dedicated "Deo et litteris." Near the town are the ruins of Eberstein, a stronghold of the Counts of that name.

l. Heinsen. Below this the Weser makes a great bend to

l. Polle: here are the ruins of a castle destroyed in the Thirty Years' War. It had been the principal castle of the Counts of Eberstein.

rt. Dolme. A singular cliff goes by the name of the Pastor von Dolme. Opposite, l., in a narrow gorge, a small stream descends and turns the wheel of the Teufelsmühle (the Devil's mill), mentioned in legends of the 13th cent.

rt. Bodenwerder. (Inn: Traube). A small Hanoverian town (Pop. 1300) on an island, with a boat bridge. The red sandstone displays itself in a peculiar manner on the rt. bank.

l. Kemnade, with a flying bridge. It was the site of a nunnery founded in 1025. The old ch. contains the tombs of many noble families.

l. Hehlen. The stately château, surmounted by 4 towers, was built in 1560, by Count Schulenburg, in whose family it still remains. One of this family, as Field Marshal in the service of the republic of Venice, bravely defended Corfu in 1716 against the Turks. Turkish arms and horse-tail standards, his trophies, are still preserved here.

rt. Hagenohsen, with a mansion, formerly belonging to the Counts of Eberstein.

rt. Tündern. At Hastenbeck, 2 m. on the height, the allies, commanded by the D. of Cumberland, were defeated by the French, under Marshal d'Estrees, July 26, 1757. The shameful Convention of Kloster Seven was the consequence.

l. Ohr has a modern church inscribed "Der Geist ist frei und ohne Zwang der Glaube." From the top of the Ohrberg, above the village, there is a beautiful view towards the high land about Pyrmont. (Inn on top.)

rt. Hameln Junct. Stat., on Rly. between Altenbeken and Hanover (Rte. 69A) (Inns: Sonne; Stadt Bremen; Bremer Schlüssel). A town of 8600 Inhab., in a pretty situation on the Weser, here crossed by an iron suspension-bridge, 816 ft. long, hanging from a pier which rises from an island in the middle. It is a very old place, full of wooden houses in the old German style, and has one fine Ch., the Münsterkirche of St. Boniface, now desecrated and falling to ruin. The octagonal central tower and crypt, the oldest parts, are of 12th cent. The large building near the river is a Penitentiary (Zuchthaus). The Legend of the Rattenfänger (1259), 'Rats of Hameln,' is well told in one of Browning's poems. The hill on the opposite side of the river is laid out in public walks, and here is a grotto celebrated for its beer. Hameln was once a strong fortress, and on this hill stood a strong citadel, the Bastile of Hanover; but the French blew up its works in 1807. Agreeable excursions may be made up and down the charming valley of the Weser to Dreyer's Garten, Klüt, Hämmlschenburg and the Ohrberg, a country-house, with pretty grounds.

$\frac{1}{2}$ hr. by Rly. S.W. is Pyrmont (see Rte. 69A), and branch Rly. E. to Elze for Nordstemmen, W. along the rt. bank of the Weser through Rinteln to Bad Oeynhausen (see below).

rt. Fischbeck, in a fertile country: here is an ancient church and nunnery, founded 954, now a school for young ladies of noble families.

rt. Oldendorf (Inns: Stadt Cassel; Rathskeller). A town of 1400 Inhab. 1 m. E. rises the Hohenstein, a table rock 1075 ft. high, with precipitous sides. N.W. from Oldendorf is the castle of Schaumburg, built 1030, the family seat of the Counts of that name. In one part of the castle is a gate called "the gate of heaven," so named from the beautiful view suddenly opened to the visitor. The hill, called Paschenberg, 1200 ft. high, hangs over the castle (see Rte. 66). An hotel, much resorted to, is found on this elevated spot, the residence of the ranger of the surrounding forests.

1. Rinteln (Rly. Stat. on the rt. bank) (Inns: Stadt Bremen; Rathskeller). A town of 4000 Inhab., with a stone bridge over the Weser. From 1621 to 1809 there was a university here. A beautiful road leads hence to the watering-place of Eilsen; to the Ludnerklippe, 3 m. off, a cliff from which there is a fine view; and to the Arnsburg, a castle belonging to the Prince of Schaumburg-Lippe, with a collection of antiquities, a picture gallery, and furnished in the style of the Middle Ages. It is shown to strangers.

1. Möllenbeck, formerly a convent, containing a Gothic ch.

1. Varenholz, with a castle, dating from 1595, picturesquely situated on the slope of a hill.

1. Vlotho, a town of 2900 Inhab., with considerable trade.

1. Rehme (Stat., on Rly. between Osnabrück and Minden, which here crosses the river), with Bad Oeynhausen adjoining (see Rte. 66).

1. Wedigenstein, with a ruined Saxon castle, a stronghold of the Saxon chief Wittekind, the valiant opponent of Charlemagne. rt. The range of the Süntel, and 1. that of the Wedenberg, approach and form the Weserscharte—the Porta Westphalica, through which the Weser enters the plain of N. Germany. (See Rte. 66.) The hills immediately above the pass are called, 1. Wittekindenberg, on the rt. Jacobsberg. On the former, 780 ft. high, is a tower 60 ft., dedicated, 1830, "to the admirers of nature," and not far from it is St. Margaret's chapel, built in the 14th cent. The Jacobsberg was formerly called Mt. Anthony, but the present name was given by Frederick the Great, from one of his old soldiers, who settled here as a vintager, and supplied the king with excellent grapes. At the foot of the Jacobsberg is rt. Hausberge.

1. Minden Stat., on Rly. between

Osnabrück and Hanover. See description in Rte. 66.

Below Minden down to Bremen the shores of the river are flat.

1. Todtenhausen, scene of the battle of Minden, 9 Aug. 1759. (Rte. 66.)

1. Petershagen: the former residence of the Bp. of Minden.

1. Schlüsselburg, with an ancient house, containing public offices, formerly an episcopal stronghold.

1. Stolzenau. (Inn: D. of York.) a pretty village, with an old castle, formerly the residence of the Counts of Hoya, extinct 1543: afterwards an occasional resort of George II. of England.

1. Liebenau, also a castle of the Counts Hoya.

rt. Nienburg, a Stat. on the Bremen and Hanover Rly. (Rte. 72A.)

rt. Drakenburg: here the Smalkaldic League defeated the Imperialists, 23rd May, 1547.

1. Hoya (Inn: Stadt Hannover). Pop. 2000. An iron bridge here crosses the Weser. In the neighbourhood is the Holy Mount, covered with trees, where from time immemorial vast numbers of herons have built nests.

rt. At a distance above the junction of the Aller with the Weser is seen the town of Verden, with its cathedral. (Rte. 72A.)

rt. Arbergen is the birthplace of Olbers the astronomer, and Heeren the historian.

Bremen, described in Rte. 72A.

ROUTE 72.

CASSEL TO HANOVER, BY GÖTTINGEN.
—RAIL.

Distance, 101 m.; time, 3¼ to 5 hrs.; 6 trains daily.

Cassel is described in Rte. 70. The Rly. follows for some distance the windings of the picturesque valley of the Fulda.

14 m. Münden (Hannoverisch-) Junct. Stat. (Inns: Goldener Löwe; Hessischer Hof; Bahnhofs-Restaurant). A town of 6000 Inhab., situated between the Fulda and Werra. These two streams unite immediately below the town, and, losing their names, become the Weser, which is navigated hence to Minden by steamers (Rte. 71).

The old ducal Schloss, built 1566, by Duke Erich II. of Brunswick, formerly a residence of the ancestors of the Royal Family of England, is turned into a magazine, and its windows walled up. The Ch. of St. Blaise is a fine building of the 14th cent., and contains a monument of Erich II. Münden was stormed by Tilly in 1626.

The scenery round the town is pleasing, and has been compared with that of the Vale of Llangollen, in N. Wales. Fine view from Andrees' garden, beyond the Werra bridge. [Branch Rly. to Arenshausen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 67), thence N. to Göttingen and E. to Halle.]

The Rly. crosses the Werra on a bridge of 6 arches, and begins a gradual ascent—overlooking the vale of Weser—to the plateau of the Leine, a district fruitful in oats, but dreary. It reaches its summit-level on passing through a short tunnel at 11 m. Dransfeld Stat. The village was burnt in 1834, except 2 or 3 houses.

9 m. Göttingen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Krone; Gebhards H.: neither very good) lies on the Leine, and has 15,841 Inhab. It is remarkable only for its University. It is destitute of fine buildings, and the houses, though old, are neither venerable nor picturesque in their antiquity, except, perhaps, the Rathhaus, a castellated edifice.

The Ramparts, now planted with trees, serve as a walk, resembling the walls of Chichester. There is an air of solitude about the town, which even the number of students cannot remove. They may be distinguished in the streets by the almost inseparable pipe and portfolio with which each is provided. Commerce seems to be confined to literature and tobacco; and the only flourishing trades are those of the booksellers and pipe-sellers, as their shops outnumber all others.

The University (Georgia Augusta) ranks high in Germany. It was founded in 1737, by Geo. II., at the suggestion of his minister Münchhausen. It is regarded as the national university of Brunswick, as well as of Hanover. The colour of the cap distinguishes the country of each student. The number of students is about 1060, and of professors 60 or 70.

William IV., to whom a bronze statue by Bandel has been raised in the Wilhelmsplatz, gave 3000*l.* towards erecting a building for the University, which was completed and opened in 1837. Here the Council of the University meets. The Aula, in which degrees are conferred, &c., is an apartment somewhat like the Senate-house at Cambridge, but not so large. Though gaudily painted, it is on the whole a handsome and effective room.

The Library, situated in what was once a handsome church, has 500,000 printed volumes and 5000 MSS. It is very rich in modern literature and in scientific works. The collection of paintings contains an altar-piece by John Raphon of Einbeck, 1506.

The Museum of Natural History is not worthy of the University; but the late Prof. Blumenbach bequeathed to it his valuable collection, including human skulls of the natives of all quarters of the globe. Here are some dresses brought from the South Seas by Capt. Cook, and a few paintings.

The Botanic Garden is very good. The Observatory is under Professor Gauss.

The Göttingen sauces possess some reputation among epicures. Bologna, Oxford, and Cambridge, all university towns, enjoy similar celebrity.

The excursion to the Harz is very conveniently made from Göttingen, by way of Nordheim and Osterode (Rte. 73).

[Branch Rly. S. to Arenshausen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 67), thence W. to Cassel, via Münden, and E. to Halle, &c.]

11 m. Nordheim Junct. Stat. (Inn: Sonne, good), Pop. 5290. The Gothic ch. dates from 1519. Obs. the old carved altar-piece and stained 15th-cent. glass. A good deal of tobacco grown in the neighbourhood. [Branch Rly. E., 17 m., to Herzberg Junct. Stat. for Osterode or Nordhausen, &c. (see Rte. 67).]

7 m. Salzderhelden Stat. [Branch Rly. in progress, in meantime Omnibus 4 times daily in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. 3 m. N.W. to Einbeck, a town of 6380 Inhab., on the Ilme. New church well restored;—old church also good: Rathhaus, date 1593. Einbeck beer is famous: it is recorded that Luther, worried and worn out by addressing the Diet of Worms, was restored in spirit and body by a jug of it, handed to him by Duke George of Saxony. The vale of the Ilme is pretty and fertile; it leads to Ahlefeld, agreeably situated; handsome tower, with 4 turrets.]

12 m. Kreiensen Junct. Stat. (Buffet.) (Inn: Helwes.) [Rly. W. to Altenbeken Junct. Stat., and E. to Seesen Junct.

Stat. (see Rte. 68), for Brunswick, Magdeburg, and Berlin, or Herzberg.]

11 m. Alfeld Stat., a town with a double spired ch. and watch-tower, at the foot of the Sieben-Brüder hills.

5 m. Banteln Stat. Seat of Count Beningsen.

The line now leaves the mountainous district.

4 m. Elze Junct. Stat. (Inn: Post). Pop. 2450. [Branch Rly. W. to the Weser at *Hamel*n (see Rte. 71).]

The river Leine is crossed near

3 m. Nordstemmen Junct. Stat. The best view of the fine Schloss Marienburg, on the Schulenburg hills, is from the bridge over the Leine. The castle is from the designs of Hase, completed by Oppler, and belongs to Queen Marie of Hanover. (An Inn a little beyond it.)

[Branch Rly. E. 10 m., 5 trains daily, in 15 to 20 min., under the slopes of the Hildesheimer Wald, to Hildesheim Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. d'Angleterre, in the Hohenweg; Wiener Hof, at the Friesenthor; Golddener Engel, in the Kreuzstrasse), an ancient episcopal city on the Innerste, Pop. 21,000; with a number of picturesque timber houses of the 15th and 16th cents., many interesting antiquities, and some manufactures. It was the capital of an episcopal principality secularized in 1803. The see, founded in 797 at Elz by Charlemagne for the conversion of the Saxons, was in 818 transferred by Louis the Pious to Hildesheim. The town contains 12 churches, and the principal objects of interest may be seen in the following order,—From the Rly. Stat. to the Altstädter Markt, Andreas - Kirche, Godehardi - Kirche, Dom, Museum, Michaeliskloster, and the Moritzberg.

The Cathedral* or Dom (Sacristan, No. 1198 Kleiner Domhof), a pure specimen of Romanesque (1061), on the plan of a basilica, has rather a mean exterior, and is buried in the ground 6 ft., up to the window-sills, a proof of its great age. The W. front has been rebuilt in the worst style, and the nave Italianized in 1730. The Gothic porch was added 1412. The bronze gates at the W. end, 17 ft. high, unsurpassed specimens of early metal work, were made for Bp. St. Bernward, 1015; the subject of the reliefs is the First and Second Adam. Obs. the elegance of the round arches which separate the nave from the aisles; also the rich and beautiful capitals of the pillars. The gilt shrine of Bp. St. Godehard, 4 ft. long, dates probably from 1131. A bronze font, 6 ft. high, including the cover, supported by 4 figures representing the rivers of Paradise. This magnificent specimen of mediæval casting dates from the 13th cent., and is covered with bas-reliefs of appropriate Scripture subjects. The Irmensäule (Irmnisûl), a pillar of alabaster, now surmounted by the cross, in the centre of the ch., was an idol of the Saxons, overthrown by Charlemagne, and brought hither from Corvey. From the roof hangs an elaborate Corona of bronze and silver, late 12th cent., representing towers with statuettes. The rood-loft is a fine specimen of Renaissance (1546) carving and tracery. In a side altar, S. aisle, are some enamel figures, Byzantine style. The Treasury is rich in antique ch. plate (9th to 12th cents.). The Cloister is small, part (E. side) Romanesque. In the midst rises a very graceful Gothic chapel of the 14th cent. A rose-tree growing on the wall of the crypt and of great age, is supposed to be connected with the legend as to the foundation of the ch. by Louis the Pious.

On the Dom Platz, or close, stands Bishop Bernward's brazen pillar, 14 ft. high, bearing, in bas-relief, 28 representations of the events of our Lord's Life and Passion, winding round it like a spiral scroll, after the manner of those of Trajan's Column. Date 1022.

Ch. of St. Godehard (Sacristan lives at No. 1519, W. of the ch.) (Cath.), founded 1133, built on the same plan as the Dom, is much more interesting, and well repaired, the choir in the 15th cent., the rest under the direction of Hase, 1848 to 1863. The nave is a basilica; piers alternate with columns; no triforium. The style is plain, perfect Romanesque; but the capitals are very rich, in high relief, and the N. door is much ornamented.

St. Michael's Ch. (Prot.), similar to it, even grander in its proportions than the Dom, is a nearly unaltered basilica, completed in 1022, destroyed by fire and rebuilt in 1186, and the whole restored by Hase. It is upon the old Rhenish plan, with apsidal choirs, 2 transepts, 2 crypts, and originally 5 towers. Obs. the carving of the capitals and wooden stalls, and the series of Scripture subjects painted on the nave-roof. It has a fine cloister; the wall of the choir is ornamented with figures of Apostles, &c., in relief. The E. apse has been pulled down. The neighbouring convent, Michaeliskloster, is now a Lunatic Asylum. The Gothic Ch. of St. Andrew's was begun in the 14th cent., and first used by the Protestants in 1542. In the very rich Treasury of St. Magdalen's Ch. are a silver model of the tower of the Dom in 1367, the shrine of St. Oswald; a silver cross and chalice; a crucifix 20 in. high, covered with gold plates, set with precious stones, and ornamented with filagree, the work of Bishop Bernward, died 1022, canonized 1192, who was a great promoter of the art; also 2 candelabra of bronze, ornamented with bas-relief. Obs. the Gothic (1443) Rathhaus, in the picturesque Altstädter Markt, having portraits of the Bishops on its walls, and the 14th-cent. stone Templerhaus; the House of Auditor Wyncken in the Langenhagen, front entirely of carved stone-work (17th cent.)

The Museum in the former St. Martin's Ch. contains an interesting historical and natural history collection, and a copy by Christoffe of the Hil-desheimer Silberfund, some 50 pieces of Roman silver plate (?) time of Augustus, of the intrinsic value of about 500*l.*, now in the Antiquarium department of the old Museum at Berlin, and dug up in 1868 by a party of soldiers at work in the Exercierplatz.

The best view of the town is obtained from the Moritzberg, on which stands an interesting ch. of the 11th cent., somewhat spoilt by incongruous restorations. Near this is the Berg-hölzchen, a favourite resort of the townspeople (Restaurant).

[Branch Rly. N. 15 m., 5 trains daily, to Lehrte Junct. Stat., see Rte. 59, and S.E. through Ringelheim to Vienenburg for Goslar and Harzburg.)]

From Nordstemmen the Rly. proceeds N. to 16 m. Hanover Junct. Stat. (described in Rte. 66).

ROUTE 72A.

HANOVER TO BREMEN [BREMER-HAFEN].—RAIL.

Distance, 75 m.; time, 2½ to 3½ hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Hanover is described in Rte. 66.

The Rly. proceeds W. by the Minden line to 13 m. Wunstorf Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 66), and then turns N. over a dreary country to 5 m. Neustadt Stat. 1. in the distance is seen the Steinhuder Meer, a large mere or lake: on an island in the midst Count Wm, v. der Lippe (died

B.5.
C.5.
C.5.
H. C.D.6.
B.5.

D.5.
D.6.
D.4.
D.5.
D.5.6.
D.7.

Summer Theatre

N

Book

Edw. Weller.

1777) built a toy fortress (Wilhelmstein, and erected a military school, in which General Scharnhorst (d. 1813), the founder of the Landwehr system, began his education. On the W. side are the Baths of Rehburg (see Rte. 66), and some miles further W. are the remains of the Abbey of Loccum, consisting of a fine Pointed ch. repaired since 1850, cloister, chapter-house, refectory, and other buildings, founded by the Cistercian Order 1240-50. The E. end of the ch. is square, and is flanked on each side with a pair of curious chapels. (Inn: Bunnemann's.)

15 m. Nienburg Stat. (Inn: Stadt London). Pop. 5200. The fortifications of this town were razed in 1807 by the French.

18 m. Verden Stat., on the river Aller, Pop. 6700, formerly the capital of an episcopal principality, which, in 1648, was Lutheranized and given to Sweden, which in 1719 ceded it to the Hanoverian Elector, our King George I. The see was founded, in 786, by Charlemagne, who here slaughtered 4000 heathen Saxons. The former Cathedral (Dom), without a tower, is 274 ft. long; choir and transepts, date from 1291-1390; the nave, 1473-90, deserves examination: it is part of brick, part of stone. The windows of the transepts and E. end show good tracery of brick moulded in a style resembling Decorated. Obs. several monuments of Bishops, the Bishop's Throne (14th cent.), and some old glass. In the adjoining small Ch. of St. Andrew is the earliest brass known in Germany or England, to Bp. Yso, d. 1231.

4 m. Langwedel Junct. Stat. Rly. E. to Berlin, viâ Ulzen and Stendal Junct. Stats. (see Rte. 72B).

13 m. Sebaldsbrück Junct. Stat. [Rly. from Osnabrück (Rte. 69).]

3 m. Bremen Junct. Stat., on the N. side of the town and of the Weser. Cabs at Stat.

Inns: Near Stat., H. du Nord, 14

Bahnhofstrasse; Alberti H., same street, and corner of Breiteweg, good; H. de l'Europe, same street and corner of Birkestrasse; Hillman's H. on opposite side of Birkestrasse; near Cathedral, H. Stadt Frankfurt, in the Domshof.

Restaurants.—Rathskeller, under the Rathhaus (see below); under Hotel de l'Europe, Siedenburg (opposite theatre); Börsen, in the Exchange passage; Hasselmann, 15 Seemannsstrasse.

Cafés.—Under H. Hillman; Goldstein, 2 Börse.

Droschkies (Cabs).—1-2 pers., drive within the town, 70 pf.; by time, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., 80 pf.; each $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. afterwards, 40 pf.

Post-Office.—On the Domshof.

Telegraph Office.—In the Exchange.

Steamers and Railways (see below).]

This is a clean flourishing town, surrounded by bright picturesque gardens or boulevards, beyond which, on the N., stretches a belt of suburb of new white houses, but the inner and older town contains many old buildings, chiefly of Renaissance style. It is one of the three free cities of the new German Empire, though of late years it has had to receive a Prussian garrison. It has 102,000 Inhab. (4000 R. Cath.). The town lies on both banks of the Weser,—the old on the rt. and the new town on the l. bank, and the two divisions are connected by handsome bridges. The dyke of the Weser causes some apprehension to the town. The bottom of the river rises by the deposits brought down by its current, and the dyke is raised year after year to counteract this; so that in time the bed of the river will be on a level with the town itself; and, were the dyke to break, immense injury would ensue. The territory of Bremen, about $3\frac{1}{2}$ Germ. square m. in extent, consists chiefly of drained marsh-land, intersected by ditches and canals, affording good pasturage to cattle. It is governed by a Senate, which enjoys the dignified title of "Die Wittheit" (The Wisdom). It has some manufactures, but its prosperity depends chiefly on its shipping and trade with America, Archangel, France, Great Britain, N. America, the Baltic, and Spain, rendering it the second seaport in Germany. A greater quantity of tobacco is imported here than in all the other ports of Germany put together, averaging more than 24 million lbs. annually. The improvements in the navigation of the Weser and its confluent have extended the relations of Bremen into the heart of Germany.

Almost all the objects of interest are comprised within a limited area between the Rly. Stat. and the river.

The Dom (Lutheran), originally a Romanesque building, 12th cent., with early Gothic additions, restored 1830, is 100 ft. high. The S. tower fell down in 1638; but is now being rebuilt. Obs. the square E. end, and the open gallery in the N.E. aisle. The organ is one of the finest in Germany. In front of it are some fragments of a beautiful roodloft with reliefs (1500). See the bronze Font—supported by 4 antique figures riding on lions, and encircled with small reliefs—said to be older than the ch., and of the 9th cent.; an engraved brass in the sacristy (1477); and some remnants of 12th-cent. carved stalls, now in a side chapel. Under the ch. is a crypt (Bleikeller), which has the property of preserving free from decomposition, after the lapse of centuries, several bodies interred in it. The sexton who shows them to the curious stranger recounts their names and histories, as though he were describing a gallery of pictures. The Bishopric of Bremen was founded in 787 by Charlemagne, and in 845, upon its union with the Hamburg bishopric, it became an archbishopric. By the Peace of Münster, 1648, the Lutheranized Bremen Archbishopric was given as an Imperial fief to Sweden, which, in 1719, ceded it, together with that of Verdun, to Hanover.

The Ch. of St. Ansgar was built 1229, and recently restored. E. end flat, with lancet windows of brick; body of the ch. stone. Fine view from the tower, 324 ft. high. The altar-piece is by Tischbein.

The Rathhaus, in the Market-place, has the E. side facing the Dom of good late Gothic (1410). Its S. façade, added 1612, is an equally good example of the Renaissance style, much enriched with fantastic sculpture, statues of the 7 Electors and Emperor, &c. See in the great Hall (always open) the marble statue of Burgomaster Smidt (born 1773, died 1857); the ladies' balcony (Güldenammer) and carved staircase leading to it.

On the W. side is the entrance to the Cellars (Rathskeller) beneath (good wine and oysters). In a particular compartment are casks called the Rose and the 12 Apostles, filled with fine Hockheimer and Rudesheimer, some of it a century and a half old. The oldest cask dates from 1625. It is sold in glasses or bottles; but the original wine is nearly all gone. This nectar was at one time valued at a ducat a glass.

In the market-place, opposite the Rathhaus, is a Rolandsäule,* a stone statue of a man 18 ft. high, a symbol of the rights and privileges of the town, erected 1512 in the place of a wooden one. The drawn sword and the head and hand at the feet of the figure refer to the power of life and death in criminal causes enjoyed by the magistrates.

The Exchange (Neue Börse), a handsome modern Gothic building, rather too like a church with double aisles, was erected, 1867, by Müller. 1 o'clock is the hour of business.

On the S. side of the market-place is the Schütting (1594), a Chamber of Commerce, where the head merchants meet to transact business.

* These Roland-columns are found in several towns of N. Germany, and were no doubt first erected after the conversion of the Germans to Christianity, to replace the sacred trees and columns around which the chief men of the nation used to hold their assemblies.

The Museum on the Domshof is a club where newspapers are taken in, and to which a good collection of natural history is attached.

The Kunsthalle was opened 1849. It is a large building, near the Osterthor, devoted to the purposes of art, holding the collections of the Art Union. Within are a Psyche, by Steinhäuser, and some modern German pictures. Mr. Albers has a small but choice collection of ancient and modern pictures.

The Museum of Nat. Hist. has a unique collection of African birds.

Olbers, the astronomer, who discovered in his observatory here the planets Vesta and Pallas, was a native of this place, as well as Heeren the historian. A marble statue of Olbers (died 1840), by Steinhäuser, a Bremen sculptor, was erected, 1850, on the Boulevard.

The Artists' Club (Künstlerverein) is a Gothic building, 13th cent., carefully restored. It includes coffee and concert rooms. Strangers may be introduced by a member, here or at the Union Club. In front of it, on the Domshaide, is a bronze statue of Gustavus Adolphus, by Fogelberg, a Swede. On its way from Munich to Gothenburg it was shipwrecked near Heligoland, claimed as "stray and waif" and bought by the merchants of Bremen, 1856.

The Pleasant Walks* (Wallanlagen), on the site of the ramparts formerly surrounding the old town (razed after the Napoleonic wars), are the greatest attraction of Bremen. The Stadt-Theater stands on them, near the Bischofs-thor, one of the 6 entrances crossing the former ditch, and so called from the gate which originally stood here. Near the Ansgarii-thor is the monument, erected in 1875, to the Bremen soldiers who fell in the war of 1870, and from this point the new Kaiser-strasse leads to the Kaiser bridge over the Weser, completed 1876.

Railways (a central Rly. Stat. in progress)—N. to Bremerhafen (see below); N.E. to Hamburg; E. to Uelzen and Stendal for Berlin (see Rte. 72B); S.E. to Wunstorf Junct. Stat. for Hanover, Minden, &c. (see above); S.W. to Osnabrück Junct. Stat. for Rotterdam, Münster, &c. (see Rte. 69); W. to Oldenburg Junct. Stat. for Wilhelmshafen, Emden, &c. (see Rte. 60); N.W. up l. bank to Nordenham at mouth of Weser.

Bremen to Geesetmünde, for Bremerhafen.

Steamer twice daily (7 A.M., 3 P.M.), in 5 hrs., calling at Brake.

Rly. 37 m. 4 trains daily, in 1½ hr., passing

6 m. Burg - Lesum Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. 3 m. W. to Grohn-Vegesack Stat., on the rt. bank of the Weser, Pop. 4000; pretty villas of wealthy merchants of Bremen. Steamer daily, morning and evening, to Bremen and back.]

Geestemünde Stat. (Inn: H. Hannover, near pier of Norderney steamers, ¼ m. from Rly.; Meyers' H.), on the l. bank of the Geeste.

[Steamer by Wangeroo and Spike-roog, from 20th June to 29th Sept., on Mond., Wed., and Frid., in 5 to 6 hrs. (2½ Thl.), to Norderney, one of the chain of broken dunes, or sand islands, Pop. 2000, which skirt the coast of Germany from Holland to Denmark. It is frequented as a watering-place by the Germans. (Inns: Grosses und Kleines Logirhaus; Meyer's Bellevue; Schmidt's Deutsches Haus.) The Conversationshaus contains dining-, ball-, and reading-rooms, &c. The land route is from Emden by diligence to Norden, and by diligence direct to Norderney at low tide, or omnibus to the coast, and steamboat, in ½ hr., to the island.]

Steamer to Heligoland (see Rte. 56).

On the opposite side of the Geeste, at its junction with the Weser, is Bremerhafen (Inns: Behrmann's H.; Steinhof's H.), the port of Bremen, opened in 1830, for large ships, as vessels drawing more than 7 ft. cannot ascend the river. The piece of land was purchased from Hanover in 1827, through Burgomaster Smidt. (Pop. 13,000, and rapidly increasing.) Large wet and dry docks.

The Auswanderer-Haus, built 1849 for departing emigrants, is now used as a barrack. The red-brick Gothic Ch., with openwork stone spire, is a conspicuous object.

Steamers up the Weser to Bremen in 6 or 7 hrs. (see above); to London, Sund. and Wed., in 40 hrs. (the Geestemünde Rly. Stat. is nearly 2 m. from the steamer quay); to Hull, Mond. and Fri., in 16 hrs.; to Leith, every second Sat.; to Southampton and Havre constantly, by means of the Transatlantic steamers; to Rotterdam, Amsterdam, and Antwerp, 3 times a month.

see Rte. 72A]. Thence the line turns E., and crosses the Hamburg and Hanover line at 59 m. Uelzen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 59).

[Branch Rly. in progress, S.E. through Oebisfelde (Rte. 65A) to Magdeburg in Rte. 66.]

The line continues E. to 32 m. Salzwedel Stat., an old town of 8500 Inhab., on the river Jeetze, and according to tradition the birth-place of the magician Dr. Faust.

35 m. Stendal Junct. Stat. For the remainder of the line to 62 m. Berlin, see Rte. 65A.

ROUTE 72B.

BREMEN TO BERLIN BY UELZEN AND STENDAL.—RAIL.

207 m.; time, 7 to 10 hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Bremen is described in Rte. 72A.

This direct line to Berlin follows the rt. bank of the Weser as far as

8 m. Langwedel Junct. Stat. [Rly. to Wunstorf Junct. for Hanover, &c.]

ROUTE 72C.

BREMEN TO BERLIN BY BUCHHOLZ AND WITTENBERGE.—RAIL.

Distance, 208 m.; time, 11 to 12 hrs., 2 trains daily.

This line was completed in 1876. It is the same as that to Hamburg (Rte. 60) as far as 44 m. Buchholz Junct. Stat. Thence it turns E. to 25 m. Lüneburg Junct. Stat. (Rte. 59). For the rly. hence to 139 m. Berlin, see Rte. 61A.

ROUTE 73.

THE HARZ.—GÖTTINGEN TO CLAUSTHAL, GOSLAR, THE BROCKEN, THE ROSSTRAPPE, VALE OF THE BODE, AND ALEXISBAD.

The Harz, the most northerly range of mountains in Germany, composed mainly of Devonian strata overlying granite, is about 70 m. long, and 20 to 28 broad; it lies on the confines of Brunswick, Anhalt and Prussia; and is divided among them. The Brocken, the loftiest summit, is lower than the highest British mountains, but the Harz chain rises alone, immediately out of a level plain extending all the way to the Baltic, whose inhabitants, accustomed to an uninterrupted flat, exaggerate both the elevation and the beauties of the only range of hills that falls within their observation. Their scenery would appear tame, and their height inconsiderable, to one accustomed to the Alps, in comparison with which the Harz is a mere molehill. This statement is made with the view of counteracting the exaggerated praises of some of the guide-books; indeed, it is hardly worth the while of the hunter after the picturesque, who has seen other parts of Europe, to go far out of his way to explore the Harz, unless he be, at the same time, a geologist, or interested in mining operations, as these branches of knowledge may be profitably studied here.

The points usually visited are the Brocken, on account of its view, which is rarely seen, owing to the mists which envelope it, and the constant rain at most seasons; it is also famous for the superstitions connected with it, and for the phenomenon called Spectre of the Brocken. The Rosstrappe and valley of the Bode are more interesting than the Brocken, from their fine and peculiar scenery. About half-way between these two places are the curious caves of Baumanns- and Bielshöhle, interesting to geologists on account of the fossil bones found in them.

The principal mines are at Clausthal, Andreasberg, and Goslar.

For the Germans and English this district has a peculiar historical interest, as it is supposed to be the land of Herman (Arminius), the formidable antagonist of the Romans (see Rte. 69A), and among its woods and rocks were the fastnesses of the indomitable Cherusci. A carriage with 2 horses costs 15 mks. the day—a guide is well paid with 3 mks.

Plan for an abbreviated Tour of the Harz.—The numerous intersecting lines of Rly. now open make all parts of the Harz readily accessible. “Start from Göttingen in the morning by rail for Herzberg, and post to Andreasberg. The stage from Herzberg (where the Harz properly commences) to Andreasberg, is woody and picturesque. A short time being allowed for dinner, to visit the mouth of Samson’s Mine and the stamping-works adjoining, abundance of time remains to pursue the agreeable walk which leads to the top of the Brocken, but for which, in part, a guide is desirable, on account of the swampy nature of the ground. The traveller follows during this walk a watercourse called the Rehberger Graben, which conveys a stream to the works of Andreasberg from a place called Oderteich, and passes through one of the most characteristic and picturesque valleys of the Harz.

“After sleeping at the Brocken, an excursion should be made down the valley of the Ilse, to the point called Ilstein, and the traveller, then retracing his steps for some way, passes across the N.E. shoulders of the Brocken, under the Zetterklippen, to Schierke, where he may dine, and reach Elbingerode in the evening, and he might even visit the open iron-mines of Buchberg the same day.

“Next day should be devoted to a visit to the Rosstrappe. The caves at Rübeland, on the way, are well worth visiting, and thence a guide may be procured to point out the shortest woodland path to the Rosstrappe, 12 m. distant, which displays the greatest variety of charming scenery. The walks round the Rosstrappe may occupy some hours, and the Inn there (the Wild Cat), or that at Thale Rly. Stat., affords ample accommodation; and trains on the Thale and Oschersleben line will carry you on your way to any part of Germany."

From Brunswick or Halle the Harz is now readily approached on the N. side by the Harzburg Railway (see Rte. 66), which from Vienenburg Junct. Stat. branches (1) to Goslar, (2) to Harzburg, (3) to Wernigerode, (4) by Halberstadt to Blankenburg, Quedlinburg, Thale (for the Rosstrappe) and Ballenstedt. On the S. side the range may be readily explored from Nordhausen, Ellrich, Herzberg and Osterode. The Roads in the interior of the Harz are much improved, and generally practicable for light carriages, though often very circuitous, owing to the hilly character of the ground. A good macadamised carriage-road runs between Osterode Stat. and Goslar; also between Goslar, Herzberg, and Wernigerode. From Wernigerode to Elbingerode and Blankenburg, the same. A good macadamised road has been constructed from Clausthal to Andreasberg over the Bruchberg; it extends to Braunlege, Rothehütte, and Elbingerode. A good road leads from Harzburg to the Torfhaus, at the foot of the Brocken, and thence past the Oderteich to Oderbruch and Königskrug. From Wernigerode there is a carriage-road to the top of the Brocken all the way through Ilseburg.

The following excursion may be easily made in 4 days, thus:—

1st, from Göttingen to Goslar. 2nd, Goslar to the Brocken. 3rd, Brocken to Blankenburg. 4th, to Rosstrappe and Alexisbad.

From Göttingen to Goslar we follow the Railroad from Göttingen to Hanover and Brunswick (Rte. 72) as far as 11 m. Nordheim Junct. Stat., thence follow the Branch line to 18 m. Herzberg Junct. Stat., and then take the Branch line N. to Seesen as far as

7 m. Osterode Stat. (Inns: Englischer Hof; Krone). A town of 5400 Inhab., on the Söse, supported by various manufactures of wool, cotton, white lead, shot, &c. It contains enormous corn warehouses, from which, by a provision of the Government, the miners of the district and their families are supplied with corn at a fixed low price, even in times of scarcity, and when it rises in other districts. The Harz itself, from its elevation and barren soil, produces scarcely any grain. There are some curious old monuments in St. John's Ch. In front of the Rathhaus hang, attached to chains, a knife and a long bone: their origin or meaning is not satisfactorily explained. Diligence to Clausthal twice daily (11 and 7.30) in 2½ hrs.

A few miles beyond this the ascent of the Harz begins; the two stages hence to Goslar are so hilly, that the postmasters' regulations allow them to put on additional horses to carriages. The hills are clothed with dark pine-woods; glimpses of the Brocken may be obtained on the right. The goître is not uncommon among the inhabitants of Lerbach.

8 m. Clausthal (Inns: Goldene Krone; Deutscher Kaiser; Stadt London; Rathhaus). This is the principal mining town (Bergstadt) of the Harz; it has 9070 Inhab., and the adjoining town of Zellerfeld (Inn, Deutsches Haus), 4176, chiefly miners or persons connected with the mines and smelting-houses. It lies in a bare bleak region, on the top and slopes of a hill, 1860 Eng. ft. above the sea, an elevation where corn ceases to ripen. There is a desolate look about it; its houses are chiefly of wood, and even its principal church is of the same material. It was destroyed by fire 1844. In order to visit the School of Mines, Mint, Mines, and Furnaces, strangers must apply to the chief of the mines, Berghauptman, for a permission (Erlaubnisschein), which is readily granted, and which the landlord of the inn will procure.

The School of Mines (Bergschule), in a corner house of the market-place, is destined for the gratuitous education of young miners, and is supported by the Government. It contains an extensive collection of models of mines, and of the machinery and buildings used in mining and smelting, very instructive for those who wish to obtain some knowledge of the processes in use. Also a very good cabinet of the minerals found in the Harz. Collectors may purchase specimens here.

The Mint (Münze). Here the precious metals produced in the Hanoverian district of the Harz are assayed and coined. The miners' wages, to the amount of 15,000 marks, are usually paid at the Rathhaus every Saturday, with silver coined during the week. For 5 days out of the 7, a miner in full employment works 12 hours under ground.

The Mines principally visited are the Caroline and the Dorothea, as they are the cleanliest and best ventilated. The entrance to them is about half an hour's walk from the town, at two great blackened buildings, where the stranger, who has secured his permission from the Director of the mines, is provided with a miner's dress, a stiff felt cap, without a brim, to resist knocks on the head, a leather apron tied on behind, and a coarse grey jacket and trowsers; also with guides to attend him, bearing lights. The descent is by a series of ladders; it is dark, damp, and fatiguing, but not dangerous: the miner clings fast by his hands, and never minds his feet; he holds on by the steps, and not by the side of the ladder, and this ensures safety. Arrived at the bottom, the visitor sees little except wheels and ropes, by which the ore is raised, and water pumped out: he hears a rattling of machinery, and here and there finds a solitary miner, plying the pickaxe and chisel, to extract the ore. A general idea of the process of mining is best learned from models above-ground. In the mine called Silbersegen is a perpendicular shaft, 176 fathoms deep, with a pump moved by a water column, which draws up the water 688 ft. A subterranean canal, 2339 fathoms long, has been constructed to convey the ore from some of the shafts. The mine called Herzog Georg Wilhelm contains one of the deepest shafts in the Harz; it reaches down 2000 ft., which is below the level of the Baltic. The mines of Clausthal are drained by a subterranean tunnel, called Georgstollen, cut through the mountain, 6 m. long, which empties itself near Grund (Inn: Rathskeller), Pop. 1400, a small summer resort and watering-place, picturesquely situated near the Hübichenstein rocks.

As the machinery for pumping water out of the mines, as well as for the forges, tilt-hammers, and stamping-mills, is all put in motion by water-power, the utmost attention is paid to collecting an adequate supply for this purpose. Every little rill in the neighbourhood of Clausthal is dammed up and formed into a reservoir. There are more than 50 of these ponds to supply the works about Clausthal and Zellerfeld alone; they set in motion 170 water-wheels, and the water is conducted from the reservoirs to the mills in canals or aqueducts, the entire length of which is not less than 125 Eng. m.

About 2 m. W. of Clausthal is the Silver Smelting Foundry, called the Frankenscharner Silberhütte; the neighbourhood of it is literally a blasted waste, owing to the destructive effects produced upon vegetation by the vapours of lead and arsenic which issue from the smelting-houses. The stream puts in motion 13 stamping-mills, where the ore is crushed and washed in readiness for the furnace.

(There is a cross-road from Clausthal to Goslar, practicable for a light carriage, and far more interesting than the post-road, through the Vale of the Oker, one of the most romantic in the Harz. The finest points are the Studenten and Fichtenklippe. It passes by the smelting-houses of Schulenberg, and through the village of Oker Stat. 6 or 7 m. lower down, and only 3 m. from Goslar by Rly.)

The post-road from Clausthal (13 m., diligence twice daily in 2½ hrs.) passes near some enormous Slate Quarries on approaching Goslar. The rock has been excavated into a cleft of tremendous depth, in order to drain off the water. The mountain on the rt. is the Rammelsberg. Out of its bowels precious and useful metals—gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc—have been dug for nearly 800 years. So many different minerals are rarely found within so small a space. The mountain is penetrated through and through in all directions by miners' shafts and galleries, and its riches are not yet exhausted. (See below as to permission to enter.) The produce at present, however, barely repays the outlay; but the works are continued by the Government notwithstanding, on account of the large population depending entirely on the mines for subsistence. The ducats coined from the gold derived from this mine have the inscription "Ex auro Hercyniæ." The ore is not extracted by blasting, but by the following unusual process:—Large stacks of wood are raised within the mine, against the surface of the rock, where it abounds with metal. They are then set on fire, and allowed to burn for 48 hours together, during which time all the openings and passages of the mine are closed, and no one enters it. At the end of that time the rock is found cracked and shattered by the heat to the depth of several feet, so that the ore is easily extracted from it.

13 m. Goslar Stat. (Inns: Kaiserworth, a picturesque old house in the market-place, 15th century, once the hall of a Guild, or Corporation; Römischer Kaiser; H. de Hanovre; Paul's H., near Stat.). Goslar is 900 Eng. ft. above the sea. It was until 1803 a free Imperial city and of great importance in the 10th cent. It owed its rise and prosperity to the discovery of the gold and silver mines under Otho I., and was the residence of the Emperors of Germany, who held here several Diets. It is named from the Gose, a small stream flowing through it. It is now a dull and deserted-looking provincial town, with 8300 Inhab., and belonged to Hanover from 1816 up to 1866, when it became Prussian. It is still interesting, however, for its history, and for the peculiarly picturesque air of antiquity displayed in its buildings; among which the Gothic Rathhaus (15th cent.), containing some antiquities, and Armenhaus may be specified.

The sole relic of the old Imperial Dom, pulled down 1820, is the porch (Vorhalle, date 1150), now used as a Museum. This fragment is of early Romanesque architecture; on the front are some colossal statues. It contains the Altar of Krodo, a curious antique monument of metal, believed at one time to be an altar of the early Saxons, but more probably a shrine or relic chest of early Italian workmanship (? 11th cent.). The sides and bottom, of bronze gilt, seem alone to be original; the filigrees and marble top are of Charlemagne's time, as perhaps are the bronze frame and kneeling figures, like some of those which support the metal fonts in German churches. It was carried off to Paris by the French. In the same place are deposited some ancient paintings of no great value, and a Crucifixion carved in wood: the windows contain painted glass of the 14th cent.

The Kaiserhaus—Emperor's Palace*—2 storeys high, restored by King George, is the identical edifice erected by the Emperor Henry III. 1059, and in its great Romanesque Hall, long used as a granary, the Diets of the Empire were held in the 11th and 12th cents. The Romanesque windows, doors, pillars, capitals, are well worth the study of architect and antiquary. The Emperor's private chapel exists within the "Gefängniss-thurm."

The Ch. in the Market-place is a good plain Romanesque edifice, founded by the Emp. St. Henry II. Near the Stat. is the plain Romanesque Ch. of the monastery of Neuwerk (date 117–886) showing the transition from round to pointed, with pointed vaulting, windows 2 and 2; curious open projections of vaulting pillars; 2 have a ring or snake inserted loose. Apsis curiously ornamented outside. Brass font and candelabra (? date). 2 octagonal towers. Pulpit with sculptures. Tomb of the Wittgensteins, 1400.

In a private garden outside the Rosenthor is a portion of the ruins of the ch. of Richenberg, a crypt of 3 aisles, built 1131.

The Zwinger, one of the old towers which formed the outer defences of the city, is now fitted up as a place of entertainment, in which beer called Gose is sold; its walls are 21 ft. thick.

Marshal Saxe, son of the celebrated Aurora von Königsmark, mistress of Augustus II. of Poland and Saxony, was born at Goslar, Oct. 28, 1696. His birth is registered here as "Meurice, son of a great lady born in Winkel's house," without the name of father or mother.

In order to visit the Mines in the Rammelsberg a permission must be obtained from the Chief of the mines in the town. The entrance to them is about a mile out of the town; intimation of the visit should be sent the evening before. They may be explored without the necessity of descending any ladders. The best time to see them is between 4 and 8 on Saturday morning, when the fires are first lighted. After that time the mine is closed, and no one enters till Monday morning. The guides receive 1½ mk. or 1 mk. each from a party.

Outside of the Broad Gate of Goslar is a singular isolated rock of sandstone, called the Claus, which has been excavated into a comfortable dwelling; it was once a hermitage and chapel.

Rly. to Brunswick' through Vienen- burg Junct. Stat. (whence branch to Harzburg), see Rte. 66.

The distance from Goslar to the top of the Brocken is about 28 m. A Schnellpost daily to Harzburg in 1½ hr. In going thither we pass Oker at the mouth of the Okerthal (see above), one of the most beautiful valleys in the Harz, and Harzburg Stat. (Buffet.) (Inns: Braunschweiger H. and Lindenhof H., both at Stat.; H. Bellevue and Bad Juliushall, near the Burgberg). The town consists of 3 villages, having a collective Pop. of 5200. The view from the ruins of Henry IV.'s stronghold of the Harzburg on the Burgberg, some 1500 ft. in height, is very fine. A very copious brine-spring issues out of the Keuper sandstone and Muschelkalk limestone. Carriages, mules, and guides for excursions may be obtained here.

From Harzburg to Ilsenburg, a diligence daily in 3 hrs. The road is very circuitous.

Ilsenburg, about 14 m. from Goslar. (Inns: Drei rothen Forellen, Red Trout, for which it is famed; Deutsches Haus). This is a small village, 890 Eng. ft. above the sea-level, at the mouth of the pretty valley of the Ilse, up which runs the road to the Inn on the top of the Brocken. A carriage holding 4 may be hired from the landlord of the Forelle for 24 mks., or 30 if it be kept on the summit all night. A mule costs 6 mks.

Before setting out for the Brocken it is worth while to mount to the top of the Ilstein, a projecting precipice of bare rock, towering above the woods on the l. side of the valley, surmounted by an iron Cross, erected as a monument of the War (1813–15). Commodious winding paths lead up to the summit, where a grand prospect over some very wild scenery rewards the climbers.

The distance from Ilsenburg to the Brocken, in a direct line, is not more than 6 m. The carriage-road is more than twice as much; it passes up the course of the Ilse, through dark woods occupied by charcoal burners, and amidst masses of rock. The whole way is a series of wild sylvan scenes, recalling to mind the remarkable description of the ascent to it in Göthe's 'Faust.'

The Brockenhaus is the name of the Inn on the platform of bare rock which forms the summit of the Brocken: the accommodations and provisions are very fair, considering that every article is carried up on the back of mules a distance of 12 or 15 m. The charges are settled by tariff, according to the Prussian police regulations. The walls are thick, the windows small, and the house is heated by stoves all the year round. The host is very obliging and highly intelligent: he lives here constantly.

The Brocken, or Blocksberg (Mons Bructerus), the highest of the Harz Mountains, is 3700 Eng. ft. above the level of the sea. In a cleft called Schneeloch, about a mile from the inn, snow lies almost all the year round. The summit and framework, as it were, of the mountain, is granite, round which the other rocks are wrapped, enveloping it like a mantle. It has long enjoyed the reputation of being haunted. The district may indeed be considered the cradle of innumerable superstitions, some of them even now not extinct, of Gnomes and Cobolds, witches, and the headless horseman. Several odd-shaped masses of granite around the summit of the Brocken are named after the witches; for example, the Devil's Pulpit, the Witches' Altar, and, not far off, the Witches' Lake and Wash-hand Basin. According to the well-known legend, the witches hold their Sabbath on this spot once a year, upon the eve of May-day, called in Germany Walpurgisnacht, from the name of an English female saint who helped to convert the Saxons to Christianity. At this annual conventicle (such is the common belief) all the evil spirits in the world assemble to offer allegiance to their unmentionable master, celebrating the festival with unholy orgies. Mortals who are bold enough to venture up during this night have the privilege of beholding their own ghosts on the top of the Brocken, with a billet pinned to their backs bearing the names of those who have wished them there.

The optical phenomenon called the Spectre of the Brocken, occasionally seen from this spot, may have contributed to strengthen the belief of its being haunted. It is not very rare, as it occurs usually 8 or 9 times a year, and is not confined to any particular season. It appears at sunset or sunrise, whenever the mists happen to ascend perpendicularly out of the valley on the side opposite to the sun, and leave the mountain top itself free from vapour. The shadow of the mountain is reflected against the perpendicular face of the rising vapour, as it were against a wall, of gigantic dimensions. The inn then becomes a palace in size, and the human beings on the summit appear giants. The size of the figures increases or diminishes as the fog is driven farther from or nearer to the Brocken top by the wind. "If the fog is very dry, you see not only yourself but your neighbour; if very damp, only yourself, surrounded by a rainbow-coloured glory, which becomes more lustrous and beautiful the damper and thicker the fog is, and the nearer it approaches."—Howitt.

The Panorama from the top of the Brocken is fine, and very extensive when it can be seen, though at the best inferior to that from the Victors-höhe near Alexisbad. The horizon is rarely quite free of cloud, and nine times out of ten no good view is to be had at sunrise. It is therefore prudent for those who make up their minds to pass a night on the Brocken, in order to see the view, to reach the summit before sunset, so that, if the weather be clear, they may have two chances of seeing something.

There is a good road from the Brocken, by the Steinerne Renne and the village of Hasserode (Inn: Hohnstein's), N.E. to Wernigerode Stat. (Inns: Weisser Hirsch; Deutsches Haus; Goldener Hirsch; Gothisches Haus), an antiquated town of 6000 Inhab., which suffered from fire in the spring of 1847. Obs. its picturesque timber-houses—e. g. the Frankenfildhaus and the Rathhaus in the Market. There is a good library of 72,000 vols. in the fine mediæval Schloss of Count Stolberg-Wernigerode. [Rly. to Hederper Junct. Stat., thence E. to Halberstadt for Magdeburg or Halle, and W. to Vienenburg for Brunswick.]

There is a macadamised road to Elbingerode, and a footpath descend-directly to the town, a distance of about 14 m. It passes through the desolate region of Elend (Misery) by Schierke, a village with 5000 Inhab., at an elevation of 1860 Eng. ft. above the sea. The rocks around it assume singular shapes, and receive the strangest names,—as Hell, the Fire-stone, the Snorters (Schnarcher). Many of these are mentioned or alluded to in Göthe's 'Faust,' and it was up this road that Mephistopheles conducted his hero to the top of the Brocken. By broad daylight, however, and in the sunshine, the landscape of which they form part has a merely picturesque character, free from all horrors. Schnellpost daily to Halberstadt Stat.

Elbingerode (Inns: Blauer Engel; Rischbieters. Here horses and carriages may be hired for the ascent of the Brocken). This is a town of 6000 Inhab. (1580 Eng. ft. above the sea), "large, naked, and bleak-looking." In the vicinity are numerous iron-mines, or rather quarries, for the ore occurs in such large masses that it is quarried out in the open air. It is smelted in the neighbourhood.—N.B. The termination rode, so often occurring in the names of places in the Harz, signifies a spot where roots of trees have been grubbed up.

About 2½ m. below Elbingerode, in the gorge of the Bode (fine limestone rocks) close to the cheerful village of Rubeland (Inns: Goldener Löwe; Grüne Tanne), are the two Caves of Baumannshöhle in the cliffs on the l. bank, and Bielshöhle in the precipice on the rt. bank opposite. The Baumannshöhle has the largest chambers, and is interesting to the geologist, because bones of the Great Cave Bear, now extinct, have been found in it. The Bielshöhle has the finest and whitest stalactites. They are both under the charge of guides residing in the village, who receive about 40 pf. from each person for showing them, with something extra for additional lights.

From Rübeland to Blankenburg Diligence daily in 2¼ hrs., passing on l. the Ziegenkopf, from which fine view (Inn), through a large oak forest in the Schleifergrund, with picturesque distant views of the plain, on approaching

8 m. Blankenburg Stat. (Inn: Weisser Adler, good; Römischer Kaiser; Krone), a town of 4000 Inhab., now belonging to the Duke of Brunswick, who has a Schloss here in which the Empress Maria Theresa spent her early years. It is an ungainly building, but the situation and view from it are beautiful. The best pictures have been removed, but there still remains one of the White Lady, who haunts this palace as well as that of Berlin, and other royal residences in Germany; and two portraits, painted by the father of Frederick the Great with the point of his finger! one of our King William IV. in his midshipman's dress, and a small collection of old glass and armour.

Louis XVIII. lived here, 1796-98, under the name of Comte de Lille, in perpetual fear of assassination by the French republicans. Blankenburg was besieged by Wallenstein in 1625.

[Rly. 10 m. N. to Halberstadt Junct. Stat. (Rte. 74).]

It takes ¾ of an hr. to walk up to the ruined castle of Reinstein, or Regenstein (Inn adjoining), built by King Henry the Fowler 919. It has many chambers excavated in the solid rock. The view hence is admired.

Blankenburg is but 6 m. distant from the Prussian village of Thale, near the foot of the Rosstrappe. There is a good Inn at the Rosstrappe (Zur Rosstrappe) on the Eckhartshöhe. The Bode is here hemmed in between the Rosstrappe on its l. bank and the Witches' Tanzplatz (ball-room) on the rt. These are two precipitous granite cliffs rising on each side, and they give a character of the utmost grandeur to this gorge or ravine. A steep zigzag footpath leads from the river-side to the top of the Rosstrappe. A carriage ascends, by a circuitous road, to the inn.

The Rosstrappe is a vast precipice of granite, isolated on 3 sides, rising 1380 Eng. ft. above the sea, and 540 above the Bode, and projecting over the valley like a bastion. Its summit is a platform of rock, 5 or 6 ft. square. Its name comes from a mark in the rock bearing a distant resemblance to a horse's hoof, and according to the traditional story was caused by a Princess Brunhilde, who, being pursued by a giant, leaped her horse (which had previously been endowed with supernatural strength) from the witches' dancing-place across the gorge to the opposite cliff, where the charger, as he alighted, left the dint of his footmark. The view into the depths below is very grand. A different path leads in zigzags down to the Thale. The defile here displays a scene of the most romantic and gloomy character. It is perhaps the wildest and most interesting spot in the whole district of the Harz. The granite needles remind one of the Alps on a small scale; the profusion of beautiful wood in the valley of the Bode adds to its attractions; one fine beech called Königsbuche is well worth notice. The Grosse Waldkater is a good Inn near the foot of the Rosstrappe. After threading the gorge, by the water-side, back to the Blechhütte, you may ascend by steep steps to the Hexen-Tanzplatz (Inn, good) (1590 Eng. ft. above the sea-level), on the rt. side of the river, from which there is a view not inferior to that from the Rosstrappe, whose gigantic precipices appear to great advantage from hence, "challenged from the other side of the narrow rift by many no less wild and lofty crags." Higher up the gorge lies the Bodekessel, or caldron, whence the river boils up, its sides worn and smoothed by the action of the torrent and stones; a very striking scene. The path is carried on by the side of the Bode to Treseburg (Inns: Weisser Hirsch; Wilhelmsblick), a village on a rock surrounded by the Bode. A short tunnel leads to the high road. The walk to the Rosstrappe from Thale and back to Blechhütte takes up 2 or 3 h.

In the plain, at a short distance from the foot of the Harz, is the Teufelsmauer, a gigantic natural wall of sandstone lying between Blankenburg and Quedlinburg.

From the Blechhütte 5 minutes' walk brings you to Thale. Terminus of the Thale-Halberstadt Rly. (Inns: Hotel Zehnpfund, has 200 bedrooms; Braune Hirsch, in the village.)

A cross road from Blechhütte leads to Gernrode, 5 m. on the high road from Nordhausen to Magdeburg (Rte. 74). About 9 m. S. of Gernrode, and about 2 to the W. of the post-station of Harzgerode, lies the watering-place of Alexisbad (see below), which may be adopted as night-quarters, if the traveller be going S. A good road leads from Gernrode to Ballenstedt Stat. (Inn, Stadt Bernburg, good). A town of 4500 Inhab. The Ducal Schloss Falkenstein (Inn close by), on a height, contains a collection of ancient weapons, archives, &c. Fine view from tower. [Rly. through Frose Junct. Stat. to Halberstadt or Aschersleben, thence in progress direct to Berlin.]

If the traveller be bent on making the entire tour of the Harz, he may proceed from Blankenburg (Rly. Stat.), by Elbingerode, to Andreasberg (Inn, Rathskeller), at the S. foot of the Brocken, a town of 4100 Inhab., at an elevation of 1900 Eng. ft. above the sea, and interesting only to miners and mineralogists. The silver-mines are situated in rocks of clay-slate. The shaft of the Samson mine is 2333 ft. deep; the tilt-hammers, forges, and water-engines of Andreasberg are all put in motion by the supply of water from the great reservoir under the Brocken, called Oderteich. The dam which retains the water is a construction of granite masonry. The distance hence to Clausthal is 16 m. Diligence daily in 3 hrs.

From Ballenstedt a very bad road, but through charming scenery, comparable with that of the Trosachs, leads to Alexisbad. "A pedestrian should go by the Selkethal, to see the fine old Castle of Falkenstein (see above). The footpath shortens the distance; but, by going round to Meisdorf, a road practicable for light carriages may be followed up the Selkethal."—G.

Alexisbad (Inns: Goldne Rose; Logirhaus, containing 60 apartments; Traiteurhaus, with about 30) consists of a small group of buildings for the accommodation of visitors, erected in the romantic valley of the Selke (at an elevation of 1166 Eng. ft. above the sea), by the Duke of Anhalt-Bernburg, after whom it is named. He has a small hunting-box, like a Swiss cottage. Wooded hills rise on each side, and completely hem in the little cluster of houses; and nice paths are cut through the woods in all directions. Besides the buildings enumerated above, there is a bath-house, and a salon, in which the table-d'hôte takes place every day; also used as a ball-room.

Two mineral springs supply water for the baths, and for drinking. The water is a very strong chalybeate. Most of the resources of a German watering-place (§ 38) are to be found here: but Alexisbad owes its great attraction to its agreeable situation, and the excursions in its neighbourhood, to Mägdesprung, Mägdetrappe, Klostermühle; the Victorshöhe*, finest views in the Harz, &c. See the following Route.

[N. G.]

ROUTE 74.

THE HARZ—NORDHAUSEN TO MAGDEBURG.

Distance, 81 m.; time, 10 to 11 hrs.

Diligence to (37 m.) Quedlinburg daily in 8½ hrs.

Rly. thence to (44 m.) Magdeburg; 6 trains daily in 2 to 3 hrs.

This road nearly forms the E. boundary line of the Harz.

Nordhausen Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 67. [Direct line of Rly. in progress through Stolberg, Harzgerode, and Aschersleben to Berlin.]

Diligence daily at 6 A.M. in 2½ hrs. to 12 m. Stolberg (Inn: Freitag). A town and bathing-place of 2000 Inhab., belonging to Count Stolberg, whose territory is now included in that of Prussia. His Castle, on the height above, contains a library, a small armoury, and the statue of an idol (Krodo), dug up under the walls. Thomas Münzer, the fanatic leader of the rebel peasants in the 16th cent., was born here, in a house still standing near the market-place. From the Josephshöhe, 2 m. from Stolberg, in a most picturesque situation, surmounted by a Belvedere and Inn, a fine view is obtained. From Nordhausen it is a pleasant route to Stolberg to take the Rly. as far as Nieder-Sachswerfen Stat., thence N. to Ilfeld and E. to Neustadt, and on foot over the Ebersburg, past the Eichenforst hunting-lodge (Inn), to Stolberg. From Stolberg Diligence daily to Quedlinburg, at 4.45 A.M., in 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. (in summer it passes through Alexisbad).

11 m. Harzgerode (Inns: Weisses Ross; Drei Thürme). A town of 2800 Inhab., belonging to Anhalt. About 2 m. to the W. of Harzgerode lies the watering-place of Alexisbad (Rte. 73), where a traveller, not pressed for time, may spend one or two days very agreeably, in exploring the beauties of its neighbourhood.

About 3 m. N. of Harzgerode our road is joined on the l. by that from Alexisbad, and crosses the river Selke at the iron-works of Mägdesprung (Inn: Schmelzer's) consisting of a number of iron forges, furnaces, and miners' houses, scattered along the banks of the river, over a distance of nearly 2 m. The situation is very romantic, and the distance from here to Alexisbad is about 3 m. On a neighbouring height a tall obelisk of cast iron has been erected as a monument to Duke Frederick Albert of Anhalt, founder of the iron-works (d. 1796). The hill called Mägdetrappe (Maid's foot-print) receives its name from the legend of a giantess who once haunted this district, and, in one of her wanderings, leapt over the valley from the opposite hill, called Ramberg, leaving the marks of her feet upon the spot where she alighted. In proof of this story, they are still visible in the rock! The summit commands a fine view. Leaving Mägdesprung, the road passes on the l. the ruined castle of Heinrichsburg, built by the Counts of Stolberg. The Schlosskirche here probably dates from 960.

9 m. Gernrode (Inn: Deutsches Haus); Pop. 3000. This town owes its birth and name to an abbey founded here for nuns in 960 by Margrave Gero of the Ostmark. In 1541 the abbess turned Protestant, and in 1648 the Abbey was definitely joined to Anhalt. See the curious and ancient Romanesque Ch., with choirs at both E. and W. ends, and crypts; that under the E. choir dates from 960. A curious side chapel is covered with bas-reliefs of the 12th cent. Above the town rises the Stubenberg ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), fine view from summit (Inn). [About 5 m. from this place is the Rosstrappe, one of the most interesting points in the Harz (Rte. 73). The road passes Suderode (Inn: Kurhaus), lying close to and N.W. of Gernrode, and now much frequented as a watering-place. A detour from the road of 2 days would suffice to enable a traveller to see the Rosstrappe, ascend the Brocken, and reach Quedlinburg by Rly. from Thale (Rte. 73). The latter part of the excursion is only advisable when the weather is settled.]

5 m. Quedlinburg Stat. (Inns: Bär; Ring; Lamm), a dull country town, annexed to Prussia in 1803, of 16,856 Inhab., on the Bode. Various emperors resided here in the middle ages, and several councils of the Church were held in the town. It is still surrounded by turreted walls, and abounds in grand and picturesque old houses.

The Castle, on a rocky eminence above the town, was the residence of the Abbesses of Quedlinburg, who were Princesses of the Empire. They were generally members of royal or noble families. At the Reformation the Abbesses adopted the Lutheran faith, while the number of these so-called nuns was reduced to 5. The right of presentation belonged to the King of Prussia from 1697 to 1803, when the convent was sequestered. It is now falling to decay, stripped of its splendour, and in part converted into a school.

The Schlosskirche is a very curious basilica, partly of the 10th cent., for, although the upper church dates from 1129, the choir from 1320, the lower or crypt is perhaps the original one founded by Henry the Fowler. The arabesques on the outside are considered the oldest works of sculpture in N. Germany. The once beautiful Aurora, Countess of Königsmark, who was prioress of the nunnery, although mistress of the Saxon Elector, Augustus II., King of Poland, and mother of Marshal Saxe, is buried in a vault beneath. The sexton does not scruple to open her coffin at the demand of the curious, and to display a body now reduced to the condition of a brown mummy. King Henry the Fowler, founder of the nunnery, his widow Matilda, mother of Otho I., and first Abbess of Quedlinburg, and many succeeding Abbesses, are also buried in front of the high altar in the lower church or "Old Minster," Obs. in N. transept, the Sacristy (Zitter) a wonderful treasury of mediæval art, well worth notice. It contains MSS. of the Gospels, relic-shrines adorned with bas-reliefs in ivory, silver, niello, and precious stones, one of them said to be the gift of Henry the Fowler; his ivory comb; tapestries worked by the nuns (Abbess Agnes, 1200); a water-jar of travertine, said to be one of the vessels used at Cana!

Outside the town, in a farm-yard, are the ruins of the convent of St. Wipertus; the crypt of the Romanesque church, now a barn, may date from the 10th cent. The architect should examine this relic; the arches of the main aisle are not circular, but straight-sided, like those of the pre-Norman churches in England, and the chapel at Lorsch.

The poet Klopstock was born 1724 in a small house at the foot of the castle hill, in the Schlossplatz, recognisable by the 2 antique pillars which support its porch. A monument has been erected to him in the garden called Brühl, W. of the town. Here is also one to Karl Ritter, the geographer, also born here.

In the Rathhaus is preserved, among other musty curiosities, arms, and MSS., the oaken cage in which the citizens of Quedlinburg imprisoned a Count of Reinstein in 1336, for nearly 2 years, on account of numerous acts of tyranny and oppressive exactions which he had committed against them. Not satisfied with this barbarous punishment, they were on the point of executing him, when the Emperor demanded that his life should be spared, on condition of his paying a fine of 3000 dollars, and adding seven new towers to the town walls.

Rly. S.W. 8 m. to Thale (Rte. 73); N. 4 m. to Wegeleben Junct. Stat.; thence S. E. to Aschersleben Junct. Stat. (Inn: Lowe) and Halle (through Connern), and N.W. to 9 m. Halberstadt Junct. Stat. (Inns: Hotel Royal; Prinz Eugen; Goldenes Ross). A very ancient city of 25,340 Inhab., on an arm of the Holzemme. The Dom, on a height approached by flights of steps, is a very remarkable Gothic edifice, erected between 1235 and 1491, except the lower part of the west front, which is older (restored 1850). The interior is lofty, and marked by elegant proportions. The bishop's throne, rich in pointed ornaments, a fine window over the altar the monument of Margrave Frederick of Brandenburg (1558), the carved work of the Bishop's throne and roodloft (1508), a store-house of late Gothic ornament, the stalls in the choir, old tapestries, and an altarpiece by John Raphon, of Einbeck, all deserve notice. In the Chapter-house above the cloisters are a carved altarpiece and bronze font. The Treasury is richer in Gothic art than almost any other in North Germany. Obs. an ivory Consular Diptych (4th cent.), a MS. of the Gospels—a gift of Charlemagne. The collection of episcopal and priestly vestments, from 12th to 16th cent., is perhaps the finest in N. Europe. The Bishopric of Halberstadt was founded in 804 by Charlemagne. By the Peace of Westphalia, 1648, the Lutheranized episcopal territory, including the town, was secularized, and given to Brandenburg.

The Ch. of Unsere Liebe Frau (Our Lady), in the Romanesque style (date 1005-1147), restored and painted 1850, has a series of reliefs of that age, monuments of bronze, brasses, &c., and some wall-paintings which are curious. There are some richly ornamented old timber-framed houses on the Markt Platz—Rathskeller (1440) and Schuhhof (1580). Near the Rathhaus* (Gothic, of various dates) is a Rolandsäule (see Bremen), and opposite is the Bischofshof, now turned into a custom-house. The best view of the town is from the Spiegelsberg, 590 Eng. ft. above the sea.

An excursion may be conveniently made hence to the Rosstrappe in the Harz (Rte. 73).

Rly. S. 10 m. to Blankenburg, in Rte. 73; W. to Wernigerode, and Vienenburg for Goslar, Harzburg, or Brunswick; S.E. to Halle, and N.E. the line proceeds to 12 m. Oschersleben Junct. Stat., whence Rly. W. through Jerxheim to Wolfenbüttel for Brunswick, &c., and E. to 23 m. Magdeburg, described in Rte. 66.

SECTION III.

PRUSSIA—continued.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
75. Berlin to Danzig, viâ Stettin [Swinemünde].—RAIL . . .	229	82. Dresden to Breslau—RAIL . . .	254
76. Stettin to Stralsund . [The Is- land of Rügen and the Baths of Putbus].—RAIL . . .	233	83. The RIESENGBIRGE (1).— Lauban to Altwasser , viâ Hirschberg [Warmbrunn and Schmiedeberg] and Ruhbank [Excursion to Adersbach].— RAIL	257
77. Berlin to Danzig , viâ Küstrin , Schneidemühl [Bromberg] and Konitz .—RAIL	237	83A. Liegnitz to Schweidnitz , Reichenbach , and Franken- stein .—RAIL	262
78. Danzig to Königsberg , by Marienburg .—RAIL	241	84. The RIESENGBIRGE (2).— Breslau to Prague , viâ Königszell , Waldenburg [Adersbach], Trautenau , Alt- Paka , and Kolin .—RAIL . . .	263
79. Königsberg to Memel , viâ Insterburg and Tilsit .—RAIL	245	84A. Dresden to Reichenberg , viâ Herrnhut and Zittau .— RAIL	265
80. Stettin to Breslau , viâ Posen —RAIL.	246	85. Breslau to Prague , viâ Wartha , Glatz , and the Heuscheuer . . .	266
81. Berlin to Breslau , viâ Frankfurt on the Oder .—RAIL	247	85A. Breslau to Cracow .—RAIL . . .	268
81A. Berlin to Tilsit , viâ Frankfurt on the Oder , Posen , and Thorn .—RAIL	252	85B. Breslau to Vienna , viâ Cosel and Oderberg .—RAIL	270
81B. Berlin to Görlitz , viâ Cottbus —RAIL	254
81C. Breslau to Dzieditz , by Oels and Vassowska .—RAIL . . .	254

ROUTE 75.

BERLIN TO DANZIG, viâ STETTIN—[SWINEMÜNDE].—RAIL.

Distance, 308 m.; time, 11½ hrs. One train connects through daily (8.40 A.M.).

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

From the Stettiner Bahnhof (outside the Oranienburg-Thor), the line makes a bend at first, passing the village of Louisenbrunnen, Pankow, &c., to 13 m. Bernau Stat., a town (Pop.

5100) whose inhab. defended themselves stoutly against the Hussites 1432, and captured some of their armour, still preserved in the Rathhaus.

13 m. Neustadt - Eberswalde Junct.
Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: H. de Prusse; Sonne). A manufacturing town, of 3500 Inhab., on the Finow canal, which connects the Oder with the Havel.
There are very extensive paper-mills near this. [Branch Rly. S.E., 18 m., to Wriezen Stat., a small town of 6400 Inhab., on a branch of the Oder. The line passes through, 11 m., Freyenwalde
Stat. (Inns: Stadt Berlin; Post), Pop.

4600. A bathing-place pleasantly situated on the same branch of the Oder, with a castle and pretty excursions. Hence rly. in progress direct S.W. to Berlin, and N.E. to Stargard, and from Wriezen the line is to be continued to Frankfurt on the Oder.]

The Finow canal is crossed

7 m. Chorin Stat. The sequestered Cistercian Abbey Chorin is a good specimen of N. German Gothic, in tolerable preservation. Several small lakes. (Paarsteiner See) are passed.

8 m. Angermünde Junct. Stat., a very old town, with an old high church; 5600 Inhab. [Branch Rly. N., 37 m., to Pasewalk Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 76), passing, 23 m., Prenzlau Stat. (Inns: H. de Prusse; Deutsches Haus), on the N. end of the Lake called Ucker See, a town of 14,900 Inhab., formerly capital of the Uckermark. The Marienkirche (1325-40) is one of the most remarkable brick buildings of N. Germany. Obs. the E. gable of open tracery formed of clay baked and glazed. The organ is said to rival that of Haarlem. At Prenzlau 16,000 Prussians, in retreat from Jena, were captured by the French under Murat, 1806.

Branch Rly. from Angermünde to E. 12 m.

Schwedt Stat. (Inn: Deutsches Haus), a town on the Oder; Pop. 8360: many of them are descendants of French emigrants, and a portion are Jews. The Palace, built 1580, was until 1759 the residence of a branch of the family of Margraves of Brandenburg, now extinct. Their summer palace Montplaisir, built 1778, lies at the termination of an avenue 2 m. from the town. One of the Margraves and his wife are buried in granite coffins in the French Ch.]

24 m. Tantow Stat.—The rly. is carried partly on embankments along the valleys of the Randow and Welse. On the rt. views are obtained of the lake of Damm, formed by the Oder spreading out into a broad sheet of water behind it. The rly. is carried through the fortifications to reach the terminus at 14 m. Stettin Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. de Prusse, in the Louisenstrasse; Drei Kronen and H. du Nord in the Breitestrasse).

Cabs (Droschken)—Drive, 1 pers., 60 pf.

Restaurants—under the H. de Prusse and Herbing's, 18 Reifschlägerstrasse.

Post Office on the Königsplatz.

Eng. Consul resident here.

A flourishing town (Pop. 81,000, garrison 6000) upon the l. bank of the Oder, but connected by 4 bridges with the suburb Lastadie on the rt. bank. It is the capital of the Prussian province of Pomerania, and the chief commercial port of Prussia, being the outlet for the manufactures of Silesia conveyed down the Oder from Frankfurt and Breslau, and the depôt for foreign goods required to supply that province as well as Berlin. The value of the annual imports is 5,000,000*l.* and exports 8,400,000*l.* The business of this town has greatly increased since the abolition of the Sound dues in 1857, and the population has quadrupled since 1816. About 2000 vessels enter the port yearly, and 200 belong to it. The demolition of the fortifications has made room for a large increase in the number of houses. There is little to see. The Schloss Kirche contains the tombs of the old Dukes of Pomerania, and a carved wooden monument of Duke Bogislaus X. The Schloss, built 1575, official residence of the Ober-President of Pomerania, and in part converted into Government offices, was the residence of the Dukes of Pomerania, who died out 1630. At the Peace of Westphalia Stettin was given over to Sweden, and by that of Stockholm, 1720, transferred to Prussia. Fine view from the Trapenthurm of the Schloss. The Rathhaus dates from 1245. Opposite to it is the new Exchange (Börse) (12-2). In the Königsplatz is a marble statue of Fredrick the Great, by Schadow, erected 1793, and nearer the Theatre is a marble Statue, by Drake, of King Fred.

Wilhelm III. Since 1854 a new town (Neustadt) has sprung up within the fortifications, with fine broad streets, containing several handsome public buildings: the Artillery Barracks, a Prison, and Johanneskloster (a kind of almshouse), the Friedrich Wilhelm's School. Two Emperors of Russia were born here—Catherine the Great (1729), and Maria Feodorowna, wife of the Empr. Paul (1759). The best view of the town is from the Militair-Friedhof, not far from the Rly. Stat. From 1806 to 1813 Stettin was held by the French.

The Oder, after flowing past Stettin, in four branches, discharges itself into a large lake called the Haff: this again communicates with the Baltic by 3 mouths, which form the 2 large islands, Usedom, on which lies Swinemünde, and Wollin. Both these islands, like Stettin, were given to Sweden in 1648 and to Prussia in 1720.

Railways.—S. W. to Berlin (see above). W. to Pasewalk Junct. Stat. for Stralsund (see Rte. 76) and Rostock, Wismar, &c. (see Rte. 58). E. to Stargard Junct. Stat. for Posen (Rte. 80), or Danzig (see below).

Steamers once a week to Copenhagen in 22 hrs.;—twice a week to Memel, Königsberg, St. Petersburg, in 3 days; to Lauterbach for Putbus in Rügen (Rte. 76), to London, Leith, and Hull.

[Steamers daily (except Sunday) at 12.30, in summer, in 4 hrs. to Swinemünde (Inns: Drei Kronen; H. de Prusse). This town, of 6800 Inhab., has latterly acquired importance from the improvements made in its harbour, which have rendered it the outport of Stettin. The entrance to it is unluckily very shallow, but extensive moles and works have been erected, and dredging machines are constantly employed in deepening the bed of the Swine, and it is now capable of admitting vessels drawing 18 or 19 ft. water to unload their cargoes, and in securing a depth of 12 to 16 ft. even up as far as Stettin. Swinemünde stands upon the Baltic shore, at the mouth of the river Swine, and upon the isle of Usedom, which is separated from the mainland by the salt lake, called the Stettiner Haff, at the mouth of the Oder.

About 1½ m. from the town, and separated from it by a wood, lie the Sea Baths of Swinemünde, consisting of a Bath-house and an Assembly-room (Gesellschaftshaus), in which there is a daily table-d'hôte, dinner at 1. Visitors usually lodge at the inns in the town.

Distinct spots, separated by considerable intervals, are marked out on the sea-shore as bathing-places for ladies and gentlemen. At the one extremity men are allowed to bathe without bathing-machines or covered cabinets; at the opposite end the females enjoy the same privileges; and between these remote spots are ranged bathing-machines for either sex.

At a very early period, the Vends (Wenden), a Slavonic tribe occupying the whole of the southern coast of the Baltic from the Elbe to Esthonia, had a seaport called Julin (Jummeta) in the island of Wollin, at the mouth of the Oder. It is described by chroniclers as the greatest commercial city of Europe in the 11th cent. Near it was Jomsburg, the stronghold of Palnatoki, a celebrated Scandinavian sea-rover and chief of a kind of piratical republic which he founded here at the latter end of the 10th cent.

From the hill called Streckelberg, about 14 m. N.W. of Swinemünde, there is a very fine view.

It was upon this island of Usedom, June 24, 1630, that the Champion of Protestantism, Gustavus Adolphus, landed with an army of 17,000 Swedes. As soon as he reached the shore, he fell on his knees, and, after a short prayer in sight of his soldiers, directed them to intrench themselves, seizing a spade with his own hand to show them the example. When tidings of this event were brought to the Emperor Ferdinand II., he made light of the matter, sarcastically terming the Swedish leader "a snow-king, who would melt as the summer drew near, and as he advanced towards a more southern climate." The following year 6000 English volunteers (amongst whom must have been Dugald Dalgetty) arrived on this spot to reinforce Gustavus.]

Stettin to Danzig. The Rly., resting on piles, crosses the low lands formed by the deposits of the branches of the Oder.

8 m. Alt Damm Stat., a small fortress, Pop. 2700, at the S. end of the Damm'sche See. [Direct Rly. to Breslau through Küstrin Junct. Stat. in progress.]

13 m. Stargard (Slav. Starogard, i.e. old town) Junct. Stat. (Inn, Prinz von Preussen), formerly capital of Further Pomerania (Pop. 17,870), on the navigable Ihna, surrounded by old walls. It has a very fine ch., the Marienkirche, Gothic of 14th and 15th cents., and a Rathhaus of 16th cent.

[Branch Rly. S.E. through Kreuz Junct. Stat. to Posen (Rte. 80) in progress, S.W. direct to Berlin.]

The line to Danzig proceeds N.E. to 27 m. Wangerin Stat. (Pop. 2400.) Branch Rly. in progress, E., through Neu-Stettin to Konitz.

41 m. Belgard Junct. Stat. (Pop. 4800.)

[Branch Rly. N.W., 21 m., 5 trains daily in 1 hr., to Colberg, close to the sea (Inns: H. de Prusse; H. de l'Europe); Pop. 12,850; a fortress bravely defended for 6 months against the French in 1806-7. The modern Rathhaus, built by Zwirner, the restorer of the Dom of Cologne, and the Marienkirche, a 5-aisled church of 14th cent., Gothic, with its roodloft, bronze 7-branched candelabrum (1327), its font, a basin borne on the backs of 4 lions and surrounded by reliefs, and chandelier of richly carved wood (1523), the roof covered with paintings, merit notice. The bronze statue of Fred. William III., by Drake, in front of the Rathhaus, was erected 1864. Good sea-bathing in summer, at the suburb of Colbergmünde, where is a Gesellschaftshaus and a good restaurant.]

14 m. Cöslin Stat. (Inn: Dürre's H.), 4 m. from the Baltic, a town, Pop. 13,575, at the foot of the Gollenberg (450 ft.), on which is a monument to the memory of the Pomeranians who fell in the war of 1813-15. Statue of King Fred. Will. I. in the Market Place, erected 1724. He rebuilt the town after the great fire of 1718.

23 m. Schlawe Stat., on the Wepper, Pop. 4400. Branch Rly. in progress W. to the Baths of Rugenwalde on the Baltic, and S.E. to Neu-Stettin.

18 m. Stolp Stat. (Inns: Müller's; Mundt's). 15,000 Inhab. In the Schlosskirche is a marble monument to the Duchess Anne de Croy, and her son (1781). The Marienkirche (14th cent.) deserves notice. Branch Rly. in progress N.W. (In meantime Diligence twice daily in 2 hrs.) to Stolpmünde, on the Baltic, and S.E. through Rummelsburg to Neu-Stettin and Konitz.

32 m. Lauenburg Stat. (Inn: H. de Prusse), a town of 5100 Inhab. on the Lela.

36 m. Klein-Katz Stat., near which is Adershorst promontory (Inn), with extensive sea-view.

4 m. Zoppot Stat.—Favourite sea-bathing place.

2 m. Oliva Stat.—For the Convent of Oliva and 8 m. Danzig Hohe-Thor Stat., see Rte. 77.

ROUTE 76.

STETTIN TO STRALSUND. [THE ISLAND OF RÜGEN AND BATHS OF PUTBUS.]
—RAIL.

Distance, 82 m.; time, 4½ to 6 hrs.; 2 trains connect through daily.

Stettin is described in Rte. 75.

The Rly. follows the Berlin line for a short distance, then turns W. to 16 m. Pasewalk Junct. Stat. (Inn: Kronprinz), on the Ucker. Pop. 7900. An old town, retaining its walls, towers, and gates. The Marienkirche is of brick. [Rly. S. through Prenzlau to Angermünde Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 75) for Berlin. W. to Gustrow, Rostock, Wismar, &c. (see Rte. 58).] The line turns N.W., passing the fine Rothmüller Wald, to 26 m. Anklam Stat. (Inns: Goldene Traube, good;—Bohmer's H.), a small port of 12,200 Inhab., on the Peene. The Stein Thor is a picturesque gate tower of brick, and a group of houses in the square are good specimens of the peculiar style of the Hanseatic architecture. The churches, St. Mary and St. Nicholas, also brick, are large and curious.

[Diligence twice daily in 5½ hrs. to E. 30 m. Swinemünde (Rte. 75).]

9 m. Züssow Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.E., 11 m., to Wolgast, an old town on the Peene, opposite the island of Usedom, with remains of a castle, the seat of the Dukes of Pomerania. St. Gertrude's Ch. is of the 14th cent.]

10 m. Greifswald Stat. (Inn: Deutsches Haus), a venerable seaport town of 17,380 Inhab., founded in the 13th cent., has the streets set at right angles, and many brick houses; three in the great square or Markt-Platz are the best examples of the 14th and 15th cents. The churches also merit notice, especially the Marienkirche. The University, founded 1456, numbers about 500 students.

[Steamer from May 26 to end of Sept. daily except Sunday, at 2.30 P.M., in 2 hrs. to Putbus (Lauterbach).]

9 m. Mittzow Stat. Diligence daily at 2.20 P.M., in 3¼ hrs., by way of Stahlbrode, and ferry, 2 m., across to Gleiwitz, thence through Garz to Putbus. (For the shorter ferry from Stralsund see below.)

9 m. Stralsund Stat.—Cabs (Droschen): 1 pers. 50 pf.; portmanteau, 15 pf. (Inns: Goldener Löwe in the Altmarkt; H. de Brandenburg). An interesting, nearly unaltered town, 2nd-class fortress and naval station, 27,600 Inhab.; was, in the 14th cent., a chief town of the Hansa; in 1648, by the Peace of Westphalia, it was given, with Hither-Pomerania, to Sweden. It was ceded to Prussia in 1815. It is entirely surrounded by water, and approachable from the S. only by 3 bridges, connecting it with the Knieper-, Triebsee-, and Franken-Suburbs. The Strela-sund, a strait 2 m. broad, separates Stralsund from the isle of Rügen. About a gunshot from the shore is the circular island Dänholm, occupied by fishermen and sailors, reminding one of Holland by its clean houses, gardens, &c.

The Nicolai-Kirche (1311), and the Marien-Kirche (15th cent.), both of brick, are handsome edifices, in the style of the churches of Lübeck. In St. Nicolas Ch., obs. a fine brass of the Proconsul Albert Hovener (1357), a richly carved altarpiece enclosing a painting of the Crucifixion, and the monument of Zachery Rotmann (1673). The lofty tower of the Jacobikirche is one of the best preserved bits of brick architecture on the Baltic. The view from the towers is remarkable. The Rathhaus, a fine edifice surmounted by 7 pinnacles, was built 1316, but has suffered much from modern restorations. It contains a museum of antiquities and the town library. Near the Frankenthor, built into a wall, is shown the stone on which the indefatigable Charles XII. was found, by the sentinel on duty outside the walls, fast asleep, before the gate, on his return from Bender. Schill, the brave but imprudent soldier who took up arms in 1808, in the hope of freeing Germany from the French, was shot in attempting a sortie, in the Fährstrasse, 31st May, 1809: a stone in the pavement, bearing his name and the date of his death, in front of the house No. 67, marks the spot. The public fountain is named after him, Schillsbrunnen. A granite monument, with portrait of Schill in relief, is now substituted for the simple plate of iron, without his name, bearing the inscription "Magna voluisse magnum" (Virgil), in the Knieper Burial-ground, where the headless body of this leader of Prussian Franks-Tireurs is buried. His head was first carried to Leyden, but in 1840 was buried at Brunswick.

The Johannishof was once a Beguinage like those at Bruges and Ghent; it is now a hospital for poor persons.

During the Thirty Years' War (1628) Stralsund was the place which first checked the career of the previously irresistible Wallenstein. He had sworn to take Stralsund, "even though it were fastened by chains to heaven," vowing vengeance upon the child unborn when he should gain possession. This impious boast, however, was not destined to be fulfilled; for through the brave defence of its citizens, aided by a party of Scotch mercenaries in the pay of Denmark, he was at last compelled to raise the siege, after a loss of 12,000 men before its walls. In 1715 the town was besieged by the allied army of the Prussians, Danes, and Saxons. Charles XII., then recently escaped from Turkey, conducted the defence for a considerable time. At length he was obliged to retire, and the town surrendered.

Diligence twice daily, in 8½ hrs., to W. 46 m. Rostock in Rte. 59.

Railways.—S.E. viâ Pasewalk Junct. Stat. to Stettin and Angermünde Junct.

Stat. for Berlin (see above). Direct line to Berlin in progress, viâ Dammin and N. Brandenburg.

Steamers.—To Malmö in summer at daylight, Mond., Wed., Frid., in 8 hrs. (there connecting with Str. to Copenhagen, or Rly. through Jönköping to Stockholm in 18 hrs. (see Handbook for Sweden). To Ralswick in Rügen, calling at various places in the Gelten, Rassower and Grosser Jacmunder Straits in 5 hrs., 3 times a week in summer at 3 P.M.

Ferry across the strait in 10 min. to 1 m.) Alte Fähre, connecting with Diligence through the island of Rügen; twice daily to (16 m.) Bergen in 3½ hrs.; to (12 m.) Garz in 3 hrs.; to (18 m.) Putbus in 4 hrs.

Rügen, the largest island belonging to Germany (Pop. 45,677), is situated in the Baltic, separated only by the narrow strait of Gellen, or Strela-sund, from the mainland of Pomerania, in which province it is included. From 1648 to 1815 the island belonged to Sweden. It abounds in romantic scenery, on account of which, and of the advantages of sea-bathing which it affords, it is frequented in summer by visitors from all parts of Northern Germany. It may be termed a German Isle of Wight, and indeed bears some resemblance to the English island in the conformation of its lofty chalk-cliffs, though it is better wooded, and is further distinguished by the narrow bays or firths which penetrate far inland.

The island may be reached at

(1) Alte Fähre from Stralsund (see above).

(2) Gleiwitz from Miltzow (see above).

(3) Lauterbach from Greifswald (see above), or from Stettin viâ Swinemünde (see Rte. 75).

(4) Ralswick (N. of Rügen) by way of Schaprode, Wittow, Vieregge, Breege, and Polchow, from Stralsund (see above).

The most interesting objects in Rügen are Stubbenkammer and Arkona, nearly 18 m. apart, and the same distance from Putbus, and the country between them is comparatively tame.

Plan for an excursion of 1. day round Rügen, starting from Putbus: to the Jagdschloss, Schmaeler See, Prora, and the Schanzenberg, by Lanken and the new wood-road to Stubbenkammer—return by Sagard, the Jasmund ferry, and Bergen, to Putbus. Distance about 45 m.

The following sketch of a tour round the Island includes all the most remarkable objects, starting from Putbus (Inns: Fürstenhof, on the Promenade, best; Bellevue; H. du Nord, both in the circus, nearer the sea, good and not dear. Bed-room 2½ mks.; dinner, 2 mks.). A watering-place with about 150 smart-looking houses, and 1800 permanent Inhab., belonging to the Prince of Putbus, a very wealthy nobleman, said to be the lineal descendant of the ancient Kings of Rügen. His Palace (Schloss), a handsome Italian edifice and the principal building in the place, was burned 1865, with its library, some good paintings and statues (by Thorwaldsen), and a collection of antiquities found in the island. It has been rebuilt. Attached to the palace is a Park, with gardens and pleasure-grounds open to the public. In it is the Kursaal or dining-room, where there is a daily table-d'hôte, and the Pavilion, containing assembly and music rooms for the use of the visitors; and the Theatre. As a watering-place, Putbus has fallen off since the death of the late Prince.

2½ m. from Putbus, on the sea-shore, is the Badhaus, supplied with warm sea-baths. It furnishes board and lodgings at moderate rates. There are also bathing-machines for those who prefer the open sea. The season is over by the middle of September, when the baths are shut up.

The great attraction of Putbus is its beautiful situation near the borders of a bay with the island Vilm in front. High wooded banks and long indented promontories shelter it from the Baltic. On one of these is a statue of the Great Elector, who drove the Swedes out of Rügen, 1678. Putbus is the best head-quarters for those who intend to explore the island. All charges are fixed by printed tariff.

The Prince's agent lets out horses and carriages for hire.

The Steamer from Swinemünde lands its passengers on the boat-pier at Lauterbach (Inn, Victoria H.), 2 m. from the Baths. Passengers arriving by the boat, and intending to return by it, had better hire for 1 or 2 days one of the carriages waiting on the spot, set out at once on the excursion round the island, and leave Putbus till their return.

7 m. Jagdschloss (Inn in summer), a handsome hunting-lodge built by Schinkel, 1846, for Prince Putbus, commanding a delightful view. Thence over the hills called

Prora, on the narrow isthmus called the schmale Heide, which unites the promontory Jasmund to the main island—to Sagard (Inn: Fürstenkrone). Near this (¼ hr.) is the Tumulus of Dubberworth, 30 ft. high.

The N. extremity of the island Rügen consists of a long narrow peninsula, or rather of 2 peninsulas—that of Jasmund, and beyond it that of Wittow—connected with each other and the main island by 2 narrow necks of land. The length of this united promontory is about 25 m. The bay or firth which it encloses is crossed by one or two ferries, at which carriages and foot-passengers can be transferred from one side to the other, thus avoiding the necessity of retracing the same road in returning from Arkona.

Beyond Sagard the road enters the ancient beech-wood of Stubbenitz. Here the goddess Hertha was worshipped by the Pagan Saxons; within it is the Herthaburg, a rampart of earth 50 ft. high. It abounds in stone barrows, called Hünengräber, in which skeletons and jars full of bones and ashes have been found. The whole district is likewise celebrated in Scandinavian poetry and mythology. Buried in the recesses of this mysterious grove lies the Hertha See, called the Black Lake, from the dark shadows of the beech-woods around. Tacitus (Germ. c. 40) describes an untrodden wood (castum nemus) in which the car of the goddess Hertha was kept, drawn by cows and washed in a secret lake. It is still looked upon with veneration by the inhabitants. It is about 300 paces long, and 48 ft. deep in the centre. These localities, and various ancient remains existing upon the island, such as tumuli and cromlechs, possess additional interest, if we regard them as the relics of a nation by whom Rome was overthrown after an existence of 12 centuries. Odoacer, who finally captured the Imperial city, was king of the Rügii, and the cradle of the barbarian hordes who formed his army was this remote and insignificant island, and the neighbouring coast of Pomerania.

Less than a mile from the Hertha See and the wood of Stubbenitz, is (18 m. from Putbus, and 15 m. from Bergen) the foreland of the Stubbenkammer, a chalk cliff, 440 ft. high, rising out of the sea, somewhat like Shakspeare's Cliff at Dover. (Large Inn, with 80 beds, on the verge of the forest.) A staircase of 600 steps cut in the rock leads from the shore to the highest summit, called the Königsstuhl after the Swedish King Charles XII., who thence watched a sea-fight between Swedes and Danes, 1715. Hither travellers repair to see the sun rise and set, and to enjoy the view. On the W. the promontory of Arkona, the most northern point of Rügen, stretches far out into the sea. The grandest view of the cliff is from below.

At Quoltitz is the Stone of Sacrifice, a rude block traversed by a groove or channel, to collect, it is conjectured, the blood of human victims. Spieker, a country-seat of Prince Putbus, is a fanciful castle, built by Baron Wrangel, after the Thirty Years' War.

The way from Stubbenkammer to Arkona (7 hrs.) lies along another narrow tongue of land, called Die Schabe, which unites the promontory Jasmund to that of Wittow. At the village of Altenkirchen (Haas's Inn), the poet Kosegarten, who was its pastor, is buried, 1828. For 8 successive Sundays, during the season of the herring fishery, the minister preaches upon the shore to the fishermen assembled around him in their boats, from the neighbouring islands. A figure, said to be of the god Swantewit, is built into the wall of the Church, of 12th cent., one of the oldest in Pomerania.

Arkona, the most northern promontory of the island, partly a chalk cliff, 173 ft. above the sea, is surmounted by a lighthouse, which furnishes accommodation to travellers. The view from it extends over the coast of the promontory Jasmund to the island Hiddensöe, and to the more distant Danish island Moen.

Upon Arkona stood the ancient Fortress of the Vends, who at one period inhabited this island, called Burgring. It was a circular intrenchment, from 30 to 40 yards high, with an opening to the N.W. Within it stood the temple of the 4-headed god Swantewit, destroyed by the Danes under King Waldemar, who took it by storm 1168, carried off its treasures to Denmark, and introduced Christianity into the island. Saxo Grammaticus, the historian, was present at the capture.

Travellers must now either return by Altenkirchen and Wiek to the Wittow Ferry, and, after crossing it, proceed direct to 10 m. Bergen, or they may prolong their tour by taking boat and making an excursion to the neighbouring island Hiddensöe, whose inhabitants, a poor and primitive race, not much raised above the condition of Esquimaux, live chiefly in turf-covered huts, and support themselves by fishing. Many of them spend their whole lives on the spot, and never set foot even on Rügen. There is not a bush on the whole island. For fuel the people have recourse to peat or cow-dung: yet, with so few attractions, the island is said to be dear to its children, who call it "dat söte länne," the sweet little land.

Bergen (Inns: *Prinz von Preussen; Adler; Rathskeller) is the chief town of Rügen, and has 3700 Inhab. To the N. of it rises the hill of Rugard, the highest in Rügen, surmounted by the ruins of the ancient fortress, destroyed 1316. From this spot the whole island, with its deeply indented shores, may be surveyed as a map laid open at the spectator's feet.

From Bergen S. to Putbus is 6 m. N. to Ralswick, 5 m., whence steamer to Stralsund (see above); or direct W. to Stralsund, 16 m. by the Alte Ferry (see above).

tress and town of 10,000 Inhab., surrounded by marshes, at the junction of the Warthe with the Oder, over which a bridge 875 ft. long is thrown. It was formerly the capital of the Neumark. Frederick the Great, when crown prince, was confined in the old castle by his imperious and crazy father, and compelled to look on while his young friend Katte was beheaded on the ramparts (1730). 6 m. N. of Küstrin is the village of Zorndorf, where Frederick the Great, with 32,000 Prussians, defeated 50,000 Russians, under Fermor, in 1758. A monument marks the spot where the king stood.

[Branch Rly. S. 18 m. to Frankfurt (a. O.) Junct. Stat. (Rte. 81); S.E. through Reppen to Rothenburg for Glogau, &c.; and in progress N. to Stettin and Swinemünde.]

The line crosses the Oder, and continues N.E. to 27 m. Landsberg Stat. (Buffet)—(Inn: König v. Preussen). A flourishing small town, of 18,340 Inhab., on the Warthe.

36 m. Kreuz Junct. Stat. (Buffet, good.)

[Branch Rly. N.E. to Stargard Junct. Stat. for Stettin, &c., S.E. to Posen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 80).]

3 m. Schneidemühl Junct. Stat.—(Inn: Goldener Löwe). Pop. 7300.

[Branch Rly. in progress N. through Neu-Stettin to Belgard for Colberg (Rte. 75), and S. to Posen, Rte. 80.]

[Branch Rly. E. through sand-hills and fir-woods to 53 m. Bromberg (Polish, Bydgoszcz) Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. Moritz; Rios H.; Schwarzer Adler). A town of 27,600 Inhab., on the Brahe, without interest to the traveller. It owes its prosperity to the canal which by means of the Netze connects the Oder with the Vistula, made 1772-75 by Frederick the Great, to whom a bronze statue was erected in the market-place in 1862.

ROUTE 77.

BERLIN TO DANZIG, viâ KÜSTRIN, SCHNEIDEMÜHL [BROMBERG] AND KONITZ.—RAIL.

Distance, 280 m.; time, 9½ to 13 hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

From the Ost-Bahnhof in the Küstriner Platz, the line proceeds E. to 13 m. Petershagen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S. 3 m. to Rüdersdorf.]

13 m. Dahmsdorf-Münchbeerg Stat.—Diligence daily in 1 hr. to N. 4 m.

Buckow, prettily situated on the so-called Märkische Schweiz.

The line continues through a sandy and uninteresting country, but plantations of trees and other methods have been adopted of late to improve the otherwise unproductive land.

23 m. Küstrin Junct. Stat. (Inns: Kronprinz; Adler). A 3rd-class for-4 lines intersect at Bromberg :

- (1) W. to Schneidemühl (see above).
- (2) N. to, 77 m., Dirschau, passing 24 m. Terespol Stat. (Diligence 5 times daily, in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., to S.E. 6 m. Culm.) (Inn: Schwarzer Adler.) Pop. 8500. A town on the rt. bank of the Vistula. Fine view over the river from the heights; truffles abound here. (Diligence from Terespol also 4 times daily, in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., to 4 m. E. Schwetitz, an ancient town of 4000 Inhab., with old ch., a lofty watch-tower, and vast modern lunatic asylum for W. Prussia.) 18 m. farther is Warlubien Stat. (Diligence 4 times daily, in 2 hrs., to S.E. 9 m. Graudenz (Polish, Grudziadz), on the rt. bank of the Vistula.) (Inn: Goldener Löwe.) Pop. 14,844. A prettily situated 3rd-class fortress with monument to Courbière, who successfully defended the town against the French in 1807. 10 m. farther is Czerwinsk Stat. (Diligence 4 times daily, in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. to E. 12 m. Marienwerder, Polish Kurdim) (Inn: Hezner's H.); Pop. 7400; prettily situated some little distance from the rt. bank of the river, with castle of the 13th cent., cathedral of 14th cent., tower 175 ft. Fine stud of horses.
- (3) S. to Inowraclaw for Posen.
- (4) S. E. for Warsaw, passing through, 32 m., Thorn (see Rte. 81A.)

From Schneidemühl the Rly. continues N. E. through a dreary sandy plain to

50 m. Konitz Stat. [Branch Rly. in progress W. to Neu-Stettin and Wangerin, N.E. to Rummelsburg for Schlawe and Stolp, and S. to Bromberg.]

46 m. Preuss-Stargard Stat., an industrious, walled town of 5400 Inhab. The St. Mary's Ch. is of the 15th cent.

13 m. Dirschau (Polish, Szczewo) Junct. Stat. (Inn: Kronprinz). Pop. 6400. Large iron and tin works. John Reinhold Forster, who accompanied Capt. Cook in his 2nd voyage (1772) round the world, was born here 1729; died at Halle, 1798. The Rly.

bridge over the Vistula is one of the largest in existence.

[Rly. to Königsberg (see Rte. 78).]

The branch line to Danzig turns N. through the fruitful flat plains of the Vistula called the Danziger Werder, and increases in beauty until the fortifications are crossed to 18 m. Danzig (Polish, Gdansk) Stat. (Lege-Thor).—Inns: Englisches Haus on the Langenmarkt—best—the old hall of the Eng. merchants of the Staple—fine view from tower. H. de Berlin, at the corner of the Vorstädtischen Graben and nearest the Rly. Stat. Walter's H. and Kronprinz in the Hundegasse.

Restaurants.—Leutholz, Denzer, and the Rathskeller, under the Artus-Hof; all three on the Langemarkt.

Cabs (Droschkies) from stat., 1 to 2 per., 75 pf., portmanteau 25 pf.; drive within the city, 20 min., 50 pf.

Omnibus to the suburb Langfuhr in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; to Ohra every 2 hrs.; to Zoppot 3 times daily.

Post Office, Langegasse. Telegraph Office, Langemarkt.

Theatres.—Stadt-theater, in winter; Victoria, in summer; Schützenhaus, concerts.

Railways and Steamboats (see below).

Eng. Consul resident in the city.

Danzig, one of the oldest cities in Prussia, "the Nuremberg of the North," abounding in picturesque old buildings, is situated near the l. bank of the W. arm of the Vistula, or Weichsel, about 5 m. above its influx into the sea. It is traversed by 2 tributaries of that river, the Motlau and Radaune, and has 90,400 Inhab. (22,000 Rom. Cath.). It is a fortress of the first class (garrison 7000), and one of the principal seaports of Prussia. It was anciently a leading member of the Hanseatic League; and when the rule of the Teutonic Order ceased here in 1454, Danzig became a free city under the protection of the Kings of Poland. From the 2nd partition of Poland (1793) to the Peace of Tilsit (1807) the city was under Prussian rule. Marshal Lefebvre, Napoleon's general, was created by him Duke of Danzig, in consequence of his having taken the town in 1807. At the Peace of Paris it was yielded back to the Prussians after an obstinate resistance maintained by the French under General Rapp for many months, in 1813, until the town was reduced, by famine and pestilence, to the lowest depth of distress. It is still a place of great commerce—especially in wheat brought down the Vistula from Poland, and other corn-producing countries, and shipped hence to all parts of Europe. The exports of wheat are greater than from any other port in the world. Here are extensive distilleries of brandy, which hence gets the name of Danzig. The granaries, of enormous dimensions, capable of holding 500,000 quarters of corn, are situated on an island called Speicher Insel. To avoid the risk of conflagration, no lights or fire are ever admitted. The timber trade is also very considerable. The great dépôt for it is in the Langgarten, to the E. of the Speicher Insel.

The Marienkirche*, begun in 1343, by a grand master of the Teutonic knights, but not finished till 1503, is one of the finest churches on the Baltic; it is of brick, and 358 ft. long. The vaulted roof, supported by 26 slender brick pillars, is 98 ft. above the pavement. Around the interior are 50 chapels, originally founded by the chief citizens as burial-places for themselves and their families. It possesses a brass font, cast in 1554, in the Netherlands, and an astronomical clock, which has long ceased to move. Obs. the celebrated Last Judgment, attributed to J. Memling (see Kugler, § xvii., note by Sir E. Head); the inside by Memling; the exterior portraits by Van der Goes, a pupil of Van Eyck, known as the Danzig Picture. It was painted, according to tradition, for the Pope, and while on its way from Bruges to Rome was intercepted by pirates, but was retaken by a Danzig vessel and deposited in this church, where it remained till 1807, when the French transported it to Paris. "On its return, after the war, the King of Prussia was very anxious to retain it at Berlin, and offered 40,000 dollars as a compensation, but yielded to the pressing entreaties of the rightful owners for its restoration." The picture bears about it the date 1467. The crucifix, carved on wood in a very admirable style of art, and with great truth of expression, has been here since the middle of the 15th cent., but the artist's name is unknown. Three modern painted windows were given by the King of Prussia, 1843-45. In a side chapel the poet Martin Opitz is buried (d. 1639). Fine view over the city from the tower 250 ft. The Ch. of St. Katherine (14th cent.) has chimes in its steeple.

Trinity Church, of red brick, has a richly ornamented gable, date 1514, which merits attention.

The Langgasse, the principal street, intersects the town from E. to W., and is prolonged into the Langemarkt, or Long Market, which abounds in antique buildings of splendid and fantastic architecture, mostly from the 16th to 18th cents., many of the carvings and ornaments having been brought from Venice and Portugal. At its W. end rises the Hohes Thor, a stately brick tower, built 1588, as an entrance into the town, with an additional gate at one side (date 1612). At the E. end the street terminates with the Grünes Thor, leading to a quay enlivened with booths, groups of sailors, &c., the busiest scene in Danzig. The most considerable building in the Langemarkt is the Rathhaus*, erected in the 14th cent., with a slim and elegant tower, added 1556. In the interior the Remter, on the ground-floor, now used as a magistrates' court, should be seen. Not far from it is a Fountain, with figures of Neptune drawn by sea-horses, by Adrian de Vries, 1663—very good as a work of art. Adjoining the Rathhaus is the

* Artus- or Junker-Hof (the chief merchants in the Middle Ages were here styled Junkers), erected about the middle of the 16th cent. On the façade (altered in recent times) are medallion heads of the Empr. Charles V. and Don John of Austria, above allegorical figures. In its great hall, now the Exchange, the vaulted roof of which is supported by 4 slender pillars of granite, the guilds and corporations formerly met. Their laws, in rhyme, are still hung up in it; and its walls are further decorated with the most singular carvings, old armour, and pictures; one is a representation of the Church under the form of a ship, sailing to heaven full of monks, who are throwing out ropes, hooks, &c., to haul on board a few miserable sinners.

Obs. Actæon and his dogs, a combination of painting, relief, and stags' horns! Procession of knights and soldiers on the march; also 2 pictures by Danzig artists, a Last Judgment, by A. Müller, a pupil of Raphael, 1601, and a Madonna and Christ, by Andreas Stech.

The town picture gallery, including the Kabrun collection, is now in the former Franciscan convent in the Fleischergasse.

The Zeughaus (Arsenal), near the W. end of the Langeasse, is an old (1605) and interesting building.

One quarter of the town is called Schottland, from a colony of Scotch weavers who settled here in the 14th cent.

By means of the gigantic sluice-gates (Steinschleuse), near the Lege-Thor Rly. Stat., the country around three sides of the town can be laid under water, so as to contribute materially to its defence from an hostile attack. The key of the position is the Holm, an island formed by 2 arms of the Vistula, N. of the town. There are besides strong external forts, the Hagelsberg and the Bischofsberg; the last has been greatly strengthened, and completely commands the town on the W. side.

Fahrenheit the optician, who invented the thermometer named after him, was born here 1686.

There is a large export of Amber, and Amber-ware may be purchased of Hoffman, Altstädter Graben, and Janzen, Heilig-Geist-Thor.

The fortified port of Danzig is Neufahrwasser (Rly. Hohe-Thor Stat. 4 m., 6 trains daily in 14 min.; steamboat every hr. from 6 A.M. to 5 P.M.), at the mouth of the W. arm of the Vistula. In 1841 an Ice-burst on the Vistula forced a new passage for the river to the sea near 4 m. Neufahr. It is defended by Weichselmünde and several other forts, and has a lighthouse and an extensive pier at the entrance of the channel. About 100 acres of the shore have been planted and laid out with pleasant shady walks, and on the beach are bathing-places much used by the Danzig people.

Excursions.—An avenue leads from the Olivaer-Thor, in $2\frac{1}{4}$ m. N.W., to the Johannisberg, from whose top, 311 ft. above the sea, is a very fine view over Danzig, the Baltic, the tongue of land called Hela, at whose extremity rises the lighthouse. 3 m. further, at Oliva Stat. on the Stettin Rly. (Rte. 75), at the foot of the Carlsberg (which also commands a fine view), stands the Cistercian Abbey of Oliva (suppressed in 1829). The Church is a stately edifice (date 1581). Around the choir hang portraits of 6 kings of Poland and 5 of dukes of Pomerania. The refectory is supported by 3 granite pillars. In the Friedensaal, near the cloisters, the treaty of peace between Sweden, Poland, and Brandenburg was signed 1660. The Abbot's Castle now belongs to the Queen of Prussia, and has fine grounds. The sandy downs are clothed with rich beech-woods. Zoppot Stat., 14 m. N. by the Stettin Rly., is a frequented watering-place.

Steamers.—To Königsberg by Pillau twice weekly in 18 hrs.; to Stettin by Neufahrwasser and Swinemünde every 5th day in 28 hrs.; to Neufahrwasser (see above).

Railways.—Lege-Thor Stat. S. to Dirschau Junct. Stat. (see above) for Berlin, Bromberg, Königsberg, &c. Hohe-Thor Stat. N. for Neufahrwasser (see above) and the coast Rly. to Stettin (Rte. 75).

ROUTE 78.

DANZIG TO KÖNIGSBERG, BY MARIENBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 119 m.; time, 4½ to 5½ hrs.; 3 trains daily.Danzig Lege-Thor Stat. (see Rte. 77).

The Rly. proceeds S. and joins the main line from Berlin at 18 m. Dirschau Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 77). Here the line for Königsberg turns E. and crosses the W. arm of the Vistula by a handsome suspension bridge, completed in 1857, 2668 ft. long, 63 ft. broad, resting on 6 piers, 4 of them in the river, each strongly protected against the ice, supporting iron lattice arches each of 397 ft. span. The cost exceeded 500,000*l.* This bridge replaces a bridge of boats which afforded a passage in summer, but the ferry was formerly very difficult and dangerous to pass in winter. Embankments traverse the fertile triangular plain, or delta, deposited by the river, which is bounded at the further extremity by the E. arm, called Nogat, now bridged likewise by the Rly., on 2 lattice spans of 321 ft., and one of 53 ft. The country between these rivers lies below the level of the Baltic, and is protected from inundations solely by dykes and windmills, as is the case in Holland.

13 m. Marienburg Stat. (Inns: König v. Preussen; Hochmeister), an ancient town of 8000 Inhab., on the rt. bank of the Nogat, chiefly remarkable as the seat of the once powerful Knights of the Teutonic Order, who, after a struggle of 53 years (in the 13th cent.), effectually subdued the pagan and Slavonic Prussians. The Castle, or Palace of the Grand Masters, a vast imposing edifice of brickwork, beautiful in construction, in a style of Gothic peculiar to the vicinity of the Baltic, was built at different periods; the Altes Schloss, now much decayed, in 1276; the Middle Castle in 1309, at the time when the seat of the Order was removed hither from Marburg; and the Niedres Schloss in 1335. In 1457 it was surrendered to the Poles, after having been in the possession of the Order 148 years, and having been governed by 17 Grand Masters. Since 1815 the central building has been rescued from ruin, and admirably restored, by the munificence of the King, with the aid of the archives of the Order, now at Königsberg, which have been carefully consulted by the architect. It consists of 3 storeys, vaulted; the cellar, ground-floor, and master's dwelling. The apartments have been richly decorated with frescoes, painted glass, tiles, wood panelling. The Meisters Remter (Chapterhouse of the Grand Master), a square chamber with fan roof, in which assemblies of the Order were held, and foreign ambassadors received, rests on a single pillar of granite in the centre. The Poles, while besieging Marienburg in 1410, endeavoured to aim a cannon-ball so as to shoot away this pillar, and overwhelm at one blow beneath the ruins the Grand Master and all his knights, whom they knew, from the information of a deserter, to be at the time assembled in conclave. The ball missed its aim, but lodged in a corner of the chimney, where it still remains. The Ordens Remter, in the N. wing, has fan roof supported on 3 granite pillars. The Church, in a very chaste style, and tolerably perfect, is decorated externally with a figure of the Virgin, in relief, of stucco covered with coloured and gilt mosaic, 26 ft. high; it displays considerable skill and knowledge of art. Many of the Grand Masters of the Order repose in vaults beneath the church, in simple coffins. Many cells of the knightly monks, and their subterranean dungeons, still exist. The Buttermilk Tower is so called, because, according to the tradition, the peasants, compelled to build it by forced labour for the Order, were also obliged to slake the lime with buttermilk! By the Peace of Thorn in 1466 the Order had to give up West Prussia and Erm-land to the Polish king, and to do homage for East Prussia which it kept. In 1525 the Grand Master Albert of Brandenburg, who had become a Lutheran, received East Prussia in fief of the Polish king as a secular Duchy; thus the rule of the Teutonic Order came to an end. Finally, in 1611, the East Prussian Duchy fell by inheritance to the Electors of Brandenburg.

[N. G.]

The rly. is carried through the Outer Castle (Vorburg).

[Rly. in progress direct S.E. to Warsaw.]

Beyond Marienburg the line passes through a populous country, abounding in villages, and showing evidences of prosperity and improvement.

17 m. Elbing Stat. (Inns: Stadt Berlin; Königlicher Hof). A decayed trading town, with a population of 28,600, on the Elbing, a navigable stream emptying itself into the Frisches Haff, an extensive lake separated from the Baltic by the narrow sandbank (Nehrung), and receiving a large portion of the waters of the Vistula. The Marienkirche contains some curious sculptures, date 1500.

[Steamers to Stettin viâ Pillau and Swinemünde every 5th day in 34 hrs., and steamer between Elbing and Königsberg, Wed. and Sat. 7 A.M., in 8 hrs. It descends the Elbing, into the Frisches Haff, passing the convent of Cudienen, and in 2½ hours reaches Frauenburg (Inn: Zum Copernicus), a small and poor town on the Haff, Pop. 2400, residence of the Bishop of Ermeland, whose modern Palace crowns the hill. Copernicus, the great astronomer, died here 1543, and is buried in the Cathedral, a handsome building of brick on a height (erected 1342). His tomb is a simple tablet bearing a globe. Copernicus was a canon of the cathedral, and lived in one of the houses which surround it. Within the enclosure is a well, furnished with water by an aqueduct and hydraulic works, constructed by him. The machinery which he erected has long since disappeared, but a model of it is still preserved in the cathedral, and is supposed to have been imitated in the waterworks at Marly, near Versailles. The tower which contained it still stands near the cathedral, and is called Kunstthurm.

The Papal excommunication of Copernicus, for publishing his System of the Heavens, was revoked in 1821.

The steamer now steers direct for the lighthouse of Pillau—the port of Königsberg for large vessels—a flourishing town of 4000 Inhab., and a fortress commenced by Gustavus Adolphus (Rly. E. 27 m. to Königsberg). On the shores of the Haff, near this, are the Castle of Lochstadt, whither the Grand Master of the Teutonic Order, Henry von Plauen, was banished, 1413; and on the shore of the Baltic, the Adalberts Kapelle, erected on the spot where St. Adalbert suffered martyrdom, 997, at the hands of the heathen Prussians, while preaching Christianity to them. A narrow channel connects the Haff with the Baltic at Pillau. The steamer skirts the sand-hills, and in 2½ hours enters the Pregel: ½ hour longer and it reaches Königsberg (see below).]

The Rly., quitting Elbing, makes a bend to avoid the hills.

32 m. Braunsberg Stat. (Inns: Rheinischer Hof; Schwarzer Adler), a town of 10,680 Inhab., on the Passarge. It was the seat of the Bishop of Ermeland from 1255 to 1298, when he removed to Frauenburg.

36 m. Königsberg (Polish, Krolewiec; Latin, Regiomontum) Junct. Stat., inside the fortifications on the S. (l.) bank of the Pregel. (Inns: H. de Prusse, near the Börse; Deutsches Haus, near the Schloss; H. du Nord; H. de Berlin.)

Restaurants. — At the Exchange — Skibbe, 27 Langgasse, on the Kneiphof.

Cabs (Droschke).—Drive within the walls, or by time, up to 20 min., 1 pers., 50 pf.; 3 pers., 80 pf.; luggage, 50 pf.

English Consul resident in the town.
Steamboats and Railways (see below).

Königsberg, the capital of Prussia Proper, was founded in 1245, and received its name in honour of Ottokar king of Bohemia, who joined in a crusade against the heathen Prussians. In point of population this city ranks as third in the Prussian dominions, having 118,125 Inhab. It is a 1st-class fortress, garrisoned by 6600 men, and strongly protected by detached forts, since 1843. The river Pregel, passing through it, ends in the Frisches Haff, 4m. below the city. Extensive granaries prove the extent of its corn trade.

Its Palace (Schloss), a large ugly building, part converted into a Government-house, and rarely occupied by royalty, was founded by Ottokar, king of Bohemia. It was from 1457 to 1525 the residence of the Grand Masters of the Teutonic Order, and afterwards of the two first Dukes of Prussia, by whom the E. front was built 1532, the W. in 1594, the S. in 1551. Hither fled Fredk. Wm. III., king of Prussia, and his queen Louise, when driven by Napoleon's arms from Berlin. In the Schlosskirche Frederick Elector of Brandenburg in 1701 placed the Royal crown on his own head, assuming the title of Frederick I., king of Prussia, and William I. did the same in 1861. The tablets on the walls, covered with close-written lists of names, show how many brave men of the province lost their lives in the War of Liberation, 1813. Above the church is a vast hall, 265 ft. long, 60 broad, and only 19 high, destitute of ornament, called Moskowitzzer Saal, from the Muscovite ambassadors of the Grand Duke Basilius, who were received here by Margrave Albert. The inner court once served as a tilt-yard, as did the cellars beneath as dungeons and places of torture for criminals.

In the Parade Platz, not far from the Schloss, is a bronze gilt equestrian statue of King Frederick William III., a very successful work by Kiss, erected 1851. The bas-reliefs relate to events in the life of the King, who resided here after the Battle of Jena, 1809-13, and here set on foot the enrolment of the Landwehr and the Prussian rising against the French.

One side of this square is occupied by the Theatre, and another by the New University by Stüler, completed in 1862, with a relief on the façade of the founder, Margrave Albrecht I., Duke of Prussia, 1544. In the Senate-room is a bust of Kant by Schadow. There are about 600 students; the old University building near the Dom is now used for other purposes.

The Schloss-Teich is a pretty sheet of water, bordered by gardens, extending from the Schloss nearly to the Rossgarten-Gate. It is the chief ornament of the city, and place of public resort. It stands much higher than the river. A foot-bridge leads across it from the Parade Platz.

The Pregel, lined with warehouses and crowded with shipping, runs through the midst of the city, and dividing forms an island called Kneiphof, the oldest quarter, abounding in old houses. It is joined to either bank by 5 bridges, and on it stand the Cathedral and the new Exchange (Börse), completed in 1875 by Müller.

The Cathedral, begun 1332, deserves notice. It is an interesting Gothic building, and contains in the choir the marble monument of Margrave Albert of B., bearing his kneeling effigy, 1568. Here are other tombs of many Teutonic Knights, the Chancellor v. Kospoth, and the Grand-master Duke Lothar (1385). Kant the metaphysician, author of the System of Pure Reason, as it is called, who died here in 1804, is buried in a porch, or Stoa, outside of the church. The house in which he lived still exists, No. 3 in the Prinzessin Strasse; a statue of him in cast iron, by Rauch, was erected 1864 near it; directly opposite is the large Post Office, built 1849. The Altstadt-Kirche, built from Schinkel's design 1839-43, is so full of pillars that you cannot see the preacher for them.

In the Königsstrasse, No. 57, is the Stadt-Museum (Wed. and Sund., 11–2, free; at other times, small fee expected), containing some modern German paintings. No. 66, same street, is the Library (Tues., Thurs., Frid., 11–4; Wed. and Sat., 2–4), consistin of 200,000 vols., including several MSS. of Luther. At the end of the street is the Königs-Thor, built 1846, and beyond it, near the Herzogs-acker, the Defensions Caserne, a fortified barrack, completed 1851, and forming part of the fortifications.

On the whole Königsberg contains few remains of antiquity, considering its age as a city, and is far inferior to this respect to Danzig.

The Observatory, built 1813, which obtained renown under the direction of Prof. Bessel (died 1846), occupies an old bastion W. of the town. Near this are the Botanical Garden and Zoological Museum.

The royal park of Warnichen on the Baltic is pleasing and worth a visit.

The river Pregel, on which Königsberg is built, is not sufficiently deep to admit large vessels, which, therefore, unload at Pillau, described above. (For rly. see below.) The trade of Königsberg consists of corn, for receiving which there are vast ranges of Warehouses, hemp, flax, linseed, tallow, bristles, wax, &c.; but it has fallen off since the end of the last cent., when it had reached the height of prosperity. There is a considerable fishery of sturgeon at Pillau. An extensive trade in Amber was formerly carried on at Königsberg; there were at one time 70 amber-turners in the town. That substance is still one of its exports; though Memel is now the head-quarters of the trade, amber is chiefly consumed in the Levant, where it is sold for pipe mouth-pieces. It is found all along the coast of East and West Prussia. It is obtained from the sea, which, after high winds, especially those blowing from the N., throws up a vast accumulation of seaweed. The amber-fishers stationed on the shore wait till the floating seaweed approaches near to it. They then send in their people up to their necks in water, provided with nets, by which they draw the weeds to land. The amber occurs in the lower beds of the formation known as Glauconite sand, extending under the Baltic, which, when roused by storms, tears up the amber earth and carries the amber to the surface along with pieces of brown coal. Amber is also found inland by sinking shafts to reach the “amber earth,” where it does not lie too deep. The trade in amber was first appropriated by the Grand Masters of the Teutonic Order, who often paid the entire expenses of their court out of the revenue derived from this source. It afterwards became a royal monopoly, and was guarded in early times by laws of the utmost severity. Coastguards (strand-riders) were stationed all along the coast, and the peasant who concealed or attempted to dispose of any pieces he had found was condemned to be hung up to the nearest tree. Afterwards a range of gallows was set up on the shore in terrorem. In 1837 King Frederick William made over the royal rights to amber to the peasantry for a small tax (see Memel).

Dealer in Amber goods, Schlesinger, Französische St.

[23 m. S. of Königsberg is Preussisch-Eylau (for rly. see below), where Napoleon fought the Russians under Beningsen, in the snow, and compelled them to retreat, though with a severe loss of 10,000 on his side, Feb. 8th, 1807. About 12 m. N.E. of this is Friedland on the Alle—scene of a complete French victory over Beningsen, June 14th, 1807, when 25,000 Russians were slain and 80 pieces of cannon taken. This led to the Treaty of Tilsit.]

Steamers.—To Memel, viâ Cranzbeck, daily, at 8 A.M., in 9 hrs.; viâ Labiau, Tues., Thurs., Sat., at 5 A.M., in 14 hrs.; to Tilsit, viâ Tapiau, Labiau, Lappienen, and Sköpen, daily, except Sund., at 6 A.M., in 14 hrs.; to Wehlau, viâ Tapiau, Mond., Wed., Fri., at 8 A.M., in 4 hrs.; to Danzig, viâ Pillau, twice weekly, in 18 hrs.; to Stettin, viâ Pillau and Swinemünde, every fourth day, in 36 hrs.; to London and Hull, every fortnight.

Railways.—W., 27 m., to Pillau, 3 trains daily, in $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; S.E., through Elbing to Dirschau Junct. Stat., for Danzig, Berlin, &c. (see above); E. to Insterburg Junct. Stat. for Tilsit (see Rte. 79) and Kowno (Handbook for Russia); and S.E., through Pr.-Eylau (see above) and Bartenstein, to Korschen Junct. Stat. (on the direct line from Berlin to Memel, Rte. 81A), and to Prostken on the Prussian frontier.

For the Carriage-road direct to Memel, see Rte. 79.

is like the Dunes of Holland, but it seems difficult to conceive that such broad, high, and steep hills can be all drift sand. The name Kurisches Haff is derived from the Kurs, inhabitants of the neighbouring Kourland. The traveller obliged to walk by the side of his carriage will have plenty of time to seek for amber.]

The Rly. proceeds due E. on the S. side of the Pregel, to 27 m. Tapiau Stat., a town of 3000 Inhab. The castle, built by the Teutonic Knights, is now a poor-house. The rly. crosses the Alle by an iron lattice-bridge near

4 m. Wehlau Stat. (Pop. 5400.)

Large horse sales. [Rly. in progress S.W. through Pr.-Eylau to Schlobitten Stat., near Elbing.]

23 m. Insterburg Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Weiss's H.), a commercial town of 13,740 Inhab., originally a castle of the Teutonic knights. It is situated on 2 streams, which after their junction form the Pregel.

[Rly. S.W. direct to Berlin, viâ Korschen, Thorn, Posen, and Frankfurt on the Oder (Rte. 81A).; E. to Eydtkuhen (Prussian Frontier); thence by Kowno and Dünaburg to St. Petersburg, in 24 hrs. (See Handbook for Russia).]

The line continues N. to 33 m. Tilsit Stat. (Cronopolis).—(Inns: Prinz Wilhelm; H. de Russie.) A town of 20,336 Inhab., named from the Tilse, a small stream which falls into the Memel (Niemen), here crossed by a bridge of boats 1150 ft. long. Upon a raft, moored a little below it, in the middle of the river, Napoleon and the Czar Alexander met, 25 June, 1807, to discuss the terms of a treaty of Peace, which was signed in the town on the 7th July following with Russia, and two days later with Prussia. By this Treaty of Tilsit, King Fred. Will. III. lost all the Polish territory acquired by Prussia

ROUTE 79.

KÖNIGSBERG TO MEMEL, viâ INSTERBURG AND TILSIT.—RAIL.

Distance, 148 m.; time, 8 to 9 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Königsberg is described in Rte. 78.

[Direct road to Memel along the Strand, a narrow tongue of sand between the Baltic and the Kurisches Haff; but, as it is very ill kept, and not provided with post-horses, it is little used. It was formerly the most frequented, and, were it not insufferably tedious, with an awkward ferry across the port of Memel at the end, would be worth travelling for its singularity. As it is impossible to make a firm road, the carriage must be driven with one wheel almost in the sea, and it requires 1 or 2 additional horses. The Nehrung, as the sandbank is called, in 1793 and 1795, as well as all his dominions W. of the Elbe.

Steamers.—To Memel, viâ Kloken, Russ, and Schwarzort, daily, except Sunday, at 8.30 A.M., in 9 hrs.; to Heydekrug, viâ Kloken, Schneiderende, and Russ, in 5 hrs.; to Kowno, on the Niemen, viâ Ragnit, Schmalleningken, and Georgenburg, Mond., Wed., Fri., at 8.30, in 16 hrs.

The Rly. is now completed from Tilsit to 60 m. Memel Stat. (Inns: British H.; Schwan; Victoria H.). This is the most northern town of Prussia, founded in 1253. It lies at the entrance of the Kurisches Haff (Pop. 20,000), and though nearly entirely consumed by fire in 1854, has rapidly recovered and increased in size. It is the central point of the Baltic timber trade. It has 60 sawmills, and exports also a vast quantity of raw hides. There is an Eng. ch. (Sund. 11 A.M.), and a British Consul resides here.

Memel has become the headquarters of the Amber trade ever since an enterprising firm (Stantien and Becker) undertook the dredging of the mouth and bed of the Kurisches Haff. Their establishment is at Schwarzort, a small bathing-place, on the Nehrung, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. from Memel. Nearly 60,000 lbs. of amber have been found in a season. It is also obtained in large quantities by divers, who pursue their business on a long reef, running under the lighthouse at Bruster Ort (see under Königsberg, Rte. 78).

Steamers.—To Stettin in 40 hrs.; to Königsberg (see Rte. 78).

ROUTE 80.

STETTIN TO BRESLAU, viâ POSEN.—
RAIL.

Distance, 227 m.; time, 10 to 13 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Stettin is described in Rte. 75.

For the line of Rly. E. as far as 21 m. Stargard Junct. Stat., see Rte. 75.

The line to Posen turns S.E. through 21 m. Arnswalde Stat. (Pop. 6500), between a chain of small meres or lakes.

32 m. Kreuz Junct. Stat.—Rly. W. to Berlin and N.E. to Danzig (see Rte. 77). The line to Posen continues S.E. through 23 m. Wronker Stat., on the Warthe river.

9 m. Samter Stat. The country in this part of Poland is dreary, and the common people look miserable: horse-flesh is a staple of food.

22 m. Posen (Polish, Poznań) Junct. Stat., 10 min. W. of the town.

Inns: H. de Rome, in the Wilhelms Platz; H. de Dresde; H. de France; H. de l'Europe.

Restaurants.—Auerbach; Kaatz.

Cabs (Droschke) to and from rly., 1 pers., 50 pf.; 4 pers., 1 mk.

This ancient seat of the Polish Dukes until 1296, became in 1815 the capital of the province of Prussian Posen, since which time the largest and handsomest part of the town has been built. It is a cheerful town of 56,400 Inhab., more than half Germans, including 12,000 Protestants, 10,000 Jews, and 7000 garrison, situated on the river Wartha. The Fortifications constructed since 1828 rendered it a first-class fortress on the frontier of Russia. They are well worth seeing. But not satisfied with these, the Government has constructed a circle of Detached Forts round the town, 5 on the rt. and 4 on the l. bank of the river. Passing through the outworks from the Rly. by the Berlin Gate, the stranger reaches the Wilhelms Platz, in which stand the Stadt-Theatre (1836) and the Raczinsky Library, in a building faced with a portico of 24 cast-iron columns; 20,000 volumes presented to the town by Count R.

The Dom (Cathedral), in a suburb (Wallischei) inhabited by Poles of the lower orders, on the rt. bank of the Wartha, is a modernised building of 1725, but contains some works of art:—4 large engraved brasses (15th cent.), to members of the De Gorta family, especially to Lucas de G., Waywode 1475, in low relief, and 2 bishops; also several recumbent effigies of bishops. The Golden Chapel, erected in a style (Byzantine) of great splendour 1842, by the society of Noble Poles at the instigation of Count Edwd. Raczinsky, with painting and rich gilding and mosaics, contains 2 bronze statues of the two first Christian Polish Dukes, Mieczyslaw I. and Boleslaw I., by Rauch, which merit notice. The Ch. of St. Stanislaus, a masterpiece of the Italian style, was erected by the Jesuits.

The Rathhaus, on the market-place, is one of the oldest buildings in the town, in a peculiar Slavonic-Romanesque style (1512-30), not unlike that at Breslau, painted with frescoes of the Kings of Poland, now nearly effaced, and furnished with Oriental-looking pinnacles and parapets; above it rises the loftiest tower in the town (date 1730). A considerable wool fair is held here in June.

The best view of Posen may be gained from the roof of Fort Winiary*, the citadel of the new works. Admission may be obtained at the Bureau of the Platz-Major.

Rly. W. through Frankfort on the Oder to Berlin, and N.E. through Thorn to Tilsit (see Rte. 81A); S.E., to Kempen and Kreutzburg (see Hand-book for Russia). S. the line continues to Breslau through an uninteresting country.

41 m. Lissa (Polish Leszno) Junct. Stat. Pop. 10,000. A pretty manufacturing town, the cradle of the Leszcynski family. [Branch Rly. S.W. 27 m. to Glogau Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 81.]

18 m. Rawicz Stat. Pop. 9500. Corn and wool trade.

36 m. Breslau Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 81.

ROUTE 81.

BERLIN TO BRESLAU, viâ FRANKFURT ON THE ODER.—RAIL.

Distance, 210 m.; time, 6 to 11 hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Berlin described in Rte. 61.

From the Frankfurter Bahnhof in the Koppenstrasse, the Rly. proceeds S.E. to 7 m. Köpenick Stat. on an island in the Spree. Pop. 3900. The Schloss was, in 1821-28, used as a prison for revolutionary students, and Frederick the Great, when Crown Prince, was here tried by court-martial, 25th Oct., 1730. The line now skirts the lake called Müggelsee.

7 m. Erkner Stat.; lime-works near this, working since the 13th cent.

13 m. Furstenwalde Stat. Pop. 7200. The Marienkirche, a brick church of the 14th cent., with a modern roof, is worth notice. It has a beautiful Gothic Sacramentshäuschen (date 1510) of sandstone; monuments of several bishops—part stone, part brass—before the altar. Near 18 m. Rosengarten Stat. the line crosses the watershed between the Elbe and the Oder.

3 m. Frankfurt on the Oder Junct. Stat. (Inns: Adler; Deutsches Haus; Prinz von Preussen. — Restaurants: Eckhardt and Ludwig, both in the Market-place). A city of 43,125 Inhab., no longer fortified. A bridge of wood, loaded with heavy stones to prevent its being washed away by floods, connects the old town on the l. bank of the Oder with the suburb on the rt. bank.

The prosperity of the town arises from its situation upon the great Silesian highway, and upon a navigable river communicating by canals with the Vistula and the Elbe, which combine in causing the greater part of the manufactures of Silesia to pass through it; and from three considerable Fairs held here annually. It is far inferior, however, in commercial activity, to its namesake on the Main. The University, founded 1506 by Elector Joachim I., was transferred to Breslau in 1811.

The Oberkirche (Ch. of St. Mary), is a brick building of the middle of the 13th cent., with 5 aisles to the nave. It has a splendid altar-piece of carved woodwork, richly gilt, with 8 paintings, date 1517. The stained-glass windows, a bronze 7-branched candlestick 12 ft. high, with bas-reliefs of the 14th cent., and a font also with bas-reliefs, deserve notice. The Rathhaus, 1607, retains portions of moulded brickwork of the 13th and 14th centuries, though a large part is later. A monument has been erected, beyond the bridge, to Prince Leopold of Brunswick, who was drowned here in 1785, while attempting to rescue an unfortunate family from an inundation of the Oder. The Theatre erected 1842 is near the Rly.

The memorable battle of Kunersdorf, wherein Frederick the Great was beaten by the united forces of Austria and Russia, amounting to 80,000 men, was fought within 3 m. N.E. of the town, 12 Aug., 1759. The poet Kleist died at Frankfurt of a wound received in that engagement. A monument has been set up over his grave in the Park.

Steamers down the Oder to Küstrin and Stettin, Tues., Thurs., Sat., at 6 A.M. (if sufficient water).

Rly. N. to Küstrin Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 77), E. to Posen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 81A), and S. the line continues to 9 m. Finkenheerd Stat., where crosses the Frederick William Canal, joining the Spree and the Oder.

23 m. Guben Junct. Stat. (Inn: Liehr's). A Lusatian town of 16,000 Inhab., on the river Neisse, whose banks are here planted with vines. It has an extensive manufacture of cloth.

[Branch Rly. S.W. to Cottbus Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 81B), and N.E. to Bentschen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 81A).]

16 m. Sommerfeld Junct. Stat.

[The completion in 1876 of the direct line between Sommerfeld and Liegnitz (see below) has materially shortened this route, which previously turned S. to 17 m.

Sorau Junct. Stat. (Inn: Stern). An old town of 11,260 Inhab., in a sandy plain. Manufacture of wax candles.

(Branch Rly. N.W. to Cottbus, see Rte. 81B, S.E. to Sagan, see below.)

5 m. Hansdorf Junct. Stat. (Branch Rly. E. to Sagan).

The line continues S. through uninterrupted forests to 17 m. Kohlfurt Junct. Stat. (Buffet.)

Branch Rly. S.W. to Gorlitz Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 82), and S. to Lauban Junct. Stat. for Hirschberg (see Rte. 83); W. direct to Wittenberg, and E. to 9 m. Siegersdorf Stat. The Queis is crossed, and afterwards the Bober, on a Viaduct 1550 ft. long, 76 ft. high.

8 m. Bunzlau Stat. (Inns: Kron Prinz; Schwarzer Adler). A small well-built walled town, of 8620 Inhab., on the Bober, situated on the verge of the most picturesque as well as industrious district of Silesia, which extends as far as the mountains. In the market-place is an Iron Obelisk, by Schinkel and G. Schadow, raised by Fred. Will. III., to the memory of the Russian General Kutusoff, who died here, 28th April, 1813. The father of German poetry, Opitz "von Boberfeld," was born 1597, in a house in the Ring, No. 66. A brown pottery is made here. This is a good point from which to strike into the Riesengebirge (see Rte. 83). About 2 m. off lies the Moravian colony of Gnadenberg.

13 m. Hainau Stat. (Inn: Schwarzes Haus.), Pop. 4500, on the Deichsa. The direct line from Sommerfeld to Liegnitz is joined at Arnsdorf.]

The direct line from Sommerfeld proceeds S.E. to 20 m. Sagan Junct. Stat. (Inn: Ritter St. Georg). A Silesian town of 10,000 Inhab., on the Bober. The Schloss was begun by Wallenstein, who was Duke of Sagan (1628 to 1634). Attached to it is a fine garden and park.

[Branch Rly. W. to Sorau; S.W. to Hansdorf, and E. 36 m. to Glogau, passing

9 m. Sprottau Stat. (Inn: Deutsches Haus), a town of 5700 Inhab. Beyond, the Rly. runs not far from the Bober. Gloomy fir-woods, rarely enlivened by a woodman's hut, a pitch oven, or an iron forge, spread themselves over the district.

27 m. Glogau Junct. Stat. (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Westphal's H.). A fortress of the 2nd rank, on the l. bank of the Oder, formerly the capital of a principality which fell to Bohemia in 1506. 17,960 Inhab. The Dom (Cath.), upon an island, dates from 1120, and contains a Madonna by Cranach, sen., his masterpiece in this subject. There is a new Rathhaus here and a Schloss. A Theatre in a pretty park. Cloth manufactory and large map establishment of Flemming. Glogau was stormed by Frederick II. in 1741. From 1806 to 1814 the town was occupied by the French. Rly. N.W. to Rothenburg Junct. Stat.; S. to Randten and Liegnitz Junct. Stat. (see below); and N.E. to Lissa Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 80).]

The direct line from Sagan continues S.E. through

40 m. Arnsdorf Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. through Bunzlau to Kohlfurt, see above.]

12 m. Leignitz Junct. Stat. (Inns: Rautenkranz, good; Schwarzer Adler). This town, of 20,000 Inhab., is handsomely built, and prettily placed on the junction of the Katzbach and Schwarzwasser. The Schloss of the old Piast Dukes of Liegnitz, nearly rebuilt after a fire in 1835, but retaining 2 fine brick towers which date from 15th cent., has been converted into a Museum of Art, Industry, and Manufactures, ancient and modern, of considerable interest, arranged by Baron Minutoli. In the Fürstencapelle, which is poor, are the monuments of the Piast Dukes: the family became extinct 1675, after having given 24 kings to Poland, and 123 dukes to Silesia, dating from 775. The building of the Ritter-Academie, 1708, an institution for the education of the sons of Silesian nobles, is handsome. The New Cemetery for Protestants and Catholics, outside the town, on the rt. of the road to Breslau, should be visited.

[Branch Rly. N. through Randten to Glogau (see above), and S. to Königszelt (Rte. 83A).]

The Katzbach, memorable for the battle of that name (see Rte. 83A), is crossed.

13 m. Maltsch Stat. The rly. here approaches the Oder.

5 m. Neumarkt Stat. (Inns: Die Hoffnung; Hohes Haus). A town of 5200 Inhab. The Zobten Mountain is visible.

12 m. Lissa Stat.—After the famous battle of Lissa (Leuthen), 5th Dec. 1757, in which Frederick the Great, with 30,000 men, defeated the Austrian army of 80,000, he unexpectedly rode on to the castle of Lissa, a small village on the approach to Breslau, which still remained in the hands of the Austrians. A party of Austrian officers were not a little surprised when their conqueror entered the room where they were assembled, modestly inquiring, "Have you any room for me here, gentlemen?" A granite column, erected 1854, surmounts the hill about $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. N.W. of Leuthen, where Frederick reconnoitred the Austrian position on the day of the battle.

5 m. Mochbern Junct. Stat. Here the Rly. from Slogau falls in.

3 m. Breslau (Polish Wroclaw) Junct. Stat. in the Schweidnitz suburb, on the S. side of the town, not far from Tauentzien-Platz (or by express trains to the Central-Bahnhof).

Inns: Goldene Gans H., 13 Junkern Strasse; H. Zedlitz, near the rly., well situated and well managed; landlord speaks English; cheap and good; H. de Silésie, 4 Bischofsstrasse; H. Weisser Adler, in the Oblauer Strasse; H. Goldener Löwe, in the new Schweidnitzer Strasse; H. du Nord, near the Central-Bahnhof; H. Drei Berge, 33 Büttner-strasse.

Restaurants.—Schweidnitzer Keller, in the Rathhaus; H. de Rome, Albrechtstrasse; Kissling, 9 Junkern Strasse; Labuske, Oblauer Strasse.

Theatres; Stadttheater. Concerts in the Zeltgarten, Liebichgarten, Wintergarten.

Post Office close to the Dominican ch.

Telegraph Office in the new Exchange.

Cabs (Droschke).—Drive within the town: 50 pf.; 2 pers. 60 pf. The first-class droschkas charge double these fares.

Omnibus, Friedrich-Wilhelms Strasse to the Mauritiusplatz, and to the Wintergarten, and from the latter to the central rly. stat. To Pöpelwitz in the environs (2 m.).

Railways (see below).

This fine flourishing town is the capital of the province of Silesia, and the 2nd city in Prussia in point of population, having 240,500 Inhab. (70,000 Roman Catholics, 30,000 Jews, 8000 soldiers). It is built on both banks of the Oder, which is split into branches and crossed by several bridges. The fortifications were partly demolished by the French in 1806-7, and since then have been levelled, and converted into Boulevard gardens for the recreation of the inhabitants, tastefully planted, so that the whole forms a delightful belt of verdure, separating the old town from the suburbs. From the Belvedere on the Taschen-Bastei the town is best seen; and from the Ziegel-Bastei there is a good view of the Oder, which, though rarely picturesque below Breslau, here assumes a pleasing character.

Breslau is interesting to passing travellers, not only as a commercial town—bustling, prosperous, and wealthy—but also on account of various objects of art and antiquity contained in it. The principal streets are the Schweidnitzer Strasse, leading N. from the Tauentzien-Platz to the Grosser Ring, and the line is continued N. in the Schmiedegasse to the Oder and Sandinsel, where the 3 principal churches are grouped together.

The Churches—20 Catholic, 10 Protestant—are exceedingly interesting, from the number of mural monuments and other works in alto-rilievo which decorate their porches and exterior walls.

The Cathedral of St. John Baptist (Cath.) begun 1148, continued through later centuries, and now much modernized, stands upon the Dominsel. It is distinguished by its quaint and not ungraceful architecture of red brick. The choir is finely vaulted, has carved stalls and silver altar. In the Lady Chapel, which has a square end, is the marble effigy of Bp. Pretzlaus, its founder, d. 1376, with a herse of iron, having lanterns in the angles and brasses. There is a monument of Card. Bp. Friedrich, Landgrave of Hesse. The fine bronze relief of Bp. Johann v. Roth (1496) is by Peter Vischer. In the chapel of St. John is Lucas Cranach's altar-piece, the "Madonna unter Tannen." The monument having 2 Turks for supporters is that of Duke Christian of Holstein, who fell fighting against the Turks in Hungary, 1691.

A small street, Domstrasse, behind the Dom, leads to the Botanic Garden, which for its extent, arrangement (under Prof. Nees von Esenbeck), and fine plantations, well deserves a visit. Beyond this is the Zoological Garden, and some distance to the N. is the handsome Gothic St. Michael's Church, built in 1871.

The Kreuzkirche (Cath.), close to the Dom and much less altered, is a singular and picturesque building, founded 1288, with 2 towers at the W. end. It is of lofty proportions, and raised upon a lower ch. or crypt. See the monument of Duke Henry IV., its founder (1290), with his effigy of terra-cotta, supported by angels and priests, and set round with bas-reliefs. There is a good view of the town from the top of the tower.

St. Elizabeth's Ch. (Prot.), begun 1253, restored 1857, has a tower 335 ft. high, and is remarkable for monuments of all sorts, pictures, enamels, altars, sculpture, &c. The very handsome Ch. of Our Lady on the Sand (Cath.) has aisles higher than the nave, vaulting alternate; it is of good Gothic, 1330-1336.

In the Square, called Grosser Ring, stands the picturesque Rathhaus*, a large and quaint structure, very remarkable for its architecture within and without; founded by King John of Bohemia, but as it now stands, showing, for the most part, the Gothic of the 15th cent., restored 1862. In the apartment called Fürstensaal the allegiance of the states of Silesia was tendered to its princes, and among them to Frederick the Great. Under it runs a great vaulted chamber—the Schweidnitzer Keller, famed for its Beer.

The column in front of it (Staup-säule or whipping-post), 1492, surmounted by a figure bearing sword and rod, indicates the jurisdiction of the city, and the power of life and death wielded by its magistrates.

W. of the Rathhaus, on the parade-ground of the Grosser Ring, is an equestrian statue of Frederick the Great, erected 1847; and on the opposite side, a similar statue of Fred. William III., erected 1861, both by Kiss. Behind Frederick the Great's statue is the Stadthaus, built 1863, from Stüler's design; containing public offices, and an extensive public Library of 300,000 vols., 2000 MSS., &c. (open daily 10 to 2). The Government House, formerly the Palace of Count Hatzfeld, is a fine building; the Schloss, erected 1846, by Schlüter, scarce deserves the name of a palace. W. of this is the Ständehaus, containing the town picture gallery of over 700 paintings of little merit.

The square named after Blücher, S.W. of the Grosser Ring, is ornamented with a colossal bronze statue of him, by Rauch; on the S. side of the square is the Exchange (Börse), but used for other purposes. The Gothic New Exchange, built by Lüdecke, 1867, is on the Exercierplatz. The Tauntzien-Platz bears a statue by Schadow of the Prussian general Tauntzien (d. 1791), the brave defender of Breslau against the Austrians, under Loudon, 1760.

• The University, founded 1506 at Frankfort on Oder, and in 1811 united with the Catholic University of Breslau, founded 1702, numbers about 1000 students. The building, originally an Imperial palace, and afterwards a Jesuits' college, contains one very fine apartment called Aula Leopoldina. Connected with the University are the following collections:—

A Museum of Natural History; the Library of 380,000 volumes, open daily from 9 to 12; the Cabinet of Antiquities—the larger portion are German and Slavonic.

The Theatre, at the end of the Schweidnitzer Strasse, twice burnt down in 6 years, is rebuilt.

It is not surprising that Breslau, situated in the centre of the most productive manufacturing province of the Prussian dominions, concentrating also the trade of a large portion of Poland and Russia, should enjoy extensive and increasing prosperity. The articles of commerce are various and important. Corn, metals of many sorts from the Silesian mines, cloths, linen, timber, and firewood are the principal. There are nearly 100 distilleries in the town. In addition to this, Breslau is the first market for wool on the Continent. Wool-fairs are held here in June and October.

In March 1813 the youth of Prussia here rallied round their king, Fred. William III.; and here began that patriotic resistance to the French which led to the liberation of Germany, and to the fall of Napoleon. Breslau is a city of Slavonic origin, having been occupied by the Poles and Bohemians alternately for 800 years. When the Silesian dukes died out in 1335 the Duchy passed to the House of Luxemburg, who joined it to the Bohemian crown, with which it devolved in 1527 upon the House of Austria, from whom it was taken by Frederick the Great, 1742. Silesia has still a considerable Slavonic population.

At the village of Krieblowitz, 14 m. from Breslau, Marshal Blücher died, in 1819. (See Rte. 84.)

Four Rly. Termini.—1. Freiburger bahnhof, to Freiburg, Schweidnitz, the Riesengebirge; and to Berlin and Dresden by way of Liegnitz (Rte. 84). 2. Niederschlesische Bahnhof, to Liegnitz; Berlin and Leipzig for slow trains. These two have their termini in the Nicolai-Vorstadt, close together. 3. Central-Bahnhof—Upper Silesian line for express trains, to Berlin, Dresden, Posen; to Warsaw and Vienna. 4. Rt. bank of the Oder line, to Oels, Kempen and Cracow. (Rte. 81c.)

ROUTE 81A.

BERLIN TO TILSIT, viâ FRANKFURT ON THE ODER, POSEN, AND THORN.
—RAIL.

Distance, 460 m.; time, 22 hrs.

The through Route is viâ Küstrin and Schneidemühl (see Rte. 77); by this Rte. there is a break of 2 hrs. at Posen, 12 hrs. at Thorn, and 2 hrs. at Insterburg.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61, and the rly. as far as 49 m. Frankfurt on the Oder Junct. Stat., in Rte. 81.

The line proceeds E. to 12 m. Reppen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.E. to Küstrin, and S.E. to Glogau for Breslau].

49 m. Bentschen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.W. 28 m. to Rothenburg on the Oder, thence to Guben and Glogau, in Rte. 81.]

46 m. Posen Junct. Stat., described with the rly. N.W. to Stettin and S. to Breslau, in Rte. 80.

The line here turns northerly to 34 m. Gnesen Junct. Stat. (Pol. Gniezno) (Inn: H. de Varsovie, very middling). This small town of 9000 Inhab., prettily situated, is said to have been the earliest seat of the Polish monarchy, and founded by Lekh, on the spot where he found an eagle's nest (gniesno, whence the name) on the ground. In later times its importance was due to its being the seat of an archbishop, the Primate of Poland. During an interregnum he was the head of the republic, and held greater power than was entrusted to the king. Until 1320 the Polish kings were crowned at Gnesen.

"The cathedral is a large building, with two brick towers capped by spires at the west end. It would appear to date from the latter part of the 14th century; but not much of the original work is left, many alterations, casings of parts with marble, &c., having been made in the 16th and succeeding centuries. The chapels which surround the building beyond the aisles are in many cases superbly decorated with marble columns and sculptures, and contain magnificent monuments of archbishops and canons. The effigies and other sculptures of many of these are extremely good in style and of the 16th and 17th centuries. There are also some bronze effigies in low relief, dating from about 1500, and a very large engraved brass of Archbishop Jacobus de Senno, ob. 1480, a very singular specimen of art. The most remarkable objects in the church are, however, the bronze valves of the S. doorway, and the shrine of St. Adalbert, which stands in the middle of the nave. The first are no doubt of the 12th cent., and contain in 18 panels subjects from the history of that saint. St. Adalbert, or St. Wojciech, was born about 956, became Abp. of Prague, but was eventually driven away from thence by his unruly flock, baptized Stephen of Hungary, afterwards king, and eventually canonized, aided in the conversion of Poland, and was martyred in 997 at Fischhausen, near Danzig, in an attempt to convert the pagan Prussians. He is one of the patron saints of Poland, and has been, and indeed still is, very much venerated in all the countries adjacent to the Baltic. He was the composer of the celebrated hymn to the Virgin, beginning,— ‘Boja rodzica dziewica.

Bojlem wslawiona Marya.’
i. e. ‘Virgin Mother of God.
Mary glorified by God,’— which was sung by the Polish armies before engaging in battle, and prefixed to the treaties of the Polish kings. It is believed to date from the 14th cent., and to be the earliest written monument of the Polish tongue. It is still sung here by tens of thousands of pilgrims on the 23rd of April, St. Adalbert's day, when a great fair is held at Gniesen. The shrine is of solid silver; the sides decorated with bas-reliefs, representing events of the life of the saint; and on the top is his recumbent effigy, of life-size, also in silver. Over the shrine and the altar which stands before it is a baldachin, 40 Polish ft. in height, with twisted columns of marble, a copy of that over the high altar in St. Peter's, Rome. This, and probably the shrine also, was made at the expense of Matthew Lubieski, Dean of Gniesen, in 1767. In the wall of the nave is some curious sculpture, which seems to have formed part of the monument of St. Adalbert, erected by Archbishop James, of Senno.—N.”

[Branch Rly. S. through Krotoschin to Oels].

65 m. Inowracław Junct. Stat.
[Branch Rly. N. 27 m. to Bromberg, in Rte. 77.]

22 m. Thorn (Pol. Torun) Junct. Stat.
(Inns: H. Sans-Souci; H. Dreikronen).
A quaint old town and second-class frontier fortress on the Vistula; Pop. 15,500; the birth-place of Copernicus, 1473, to whom a bronze statue was erected 1853, and a monument exists in St. John's Ch. The Rathhaus, Marienkirche, and Katzenschwanz tower deserve inspection, as also the old wooden bridge over the Vistula. Thorn was joined to Prussia in 1793 on the second partition of Poland. [Rly. W. through Bromberg to Schneidemühl Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 77), and S.E. to Skierniewitz for Warsaw, &c.]

The line crosses the Vistula, and continues N.E., crossing at Deutsch-Eylau, the direct rly. in progress between Danzig and Warsaw.

141 m. Korschen Junct. Stat.
[Branch Rly. N.W., through Pr.-Eylau to Königsberg (see Rte. 78), and S.E., crossing the Prussian frontier at (70 m.) Prostken for Odessa, &c. (See Handbk. for Russia.)

43 m. Insterburg Junct. Stat.
For the railway hence to 33 m. Tilsit, see Rte. 79.

ROUTE 81B.

BERLIN TO GÖRLITZ, viâ COTTBUS.—RAIL.

Distance, 127 m.; time, 5 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Berlin is described in Rte. 61.

From the Görlitzer Bahnhof, outside the Köpenicker Thor, the rly. skirts the l. bank of the Spree for a short distance, and then proceeds S.E. through an uninteresting country to 45 m. Lübben Junct. Stat. (Inn: Stadt, Berlin), a Lusatian town of 5700 Inhab., in the Spreewald, so called on account of the numberless rivulets and diminutive lakes into which branches of the Spree divide. [Branch Rly. S. through Calau, Senftenberg and Camenz (Rte. 82), for Dresden or Pirna viâ Radeberg].

24 m. Cottbus Junct. Stat.—Buffet (Inn: Lossow's), a Lusatian cloth manufacturing town, of 18,000 Inhab., on the Spree, with an old Schloss. Most of the inhabitants of the surrounding country are Wends. [Branch Rly. N.E. to Guben and E. to Sorau (see Rte. 81); W. to Falkenberg for Leipzig (Rte. 86D); S.W. to Grossenhain for Dresden (see Rte. 87).]

The line continues S.E. to

28 m. Weisswasser Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.E. 5 m. to Muskau (Inn: Grüner Baum), a town on the Neisse, with mineral baths (Hermannsbad) and a restored Renaissance Schloss, now belonging to Prince Frederick of the Netherlands, but up to 1845 the property of Prince Pückler-Muskau (d. 1873), who wrote a conceited book about England. The Park is beautifully laid out in the English style.]

28 m. Görlitz Junct. Stat. Described in Rte. 82.

ROUTE 81c.

BRESLAU TO DZIEDITZ, BY OELS AND VASSOWSKA.—RAIL.

Distance, 157 m.; time, 7 to 8 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Breslau is described in Rte. 81.

The rt. bank Oder Rly. runs at first N.E. to 19 m. Oels Junct. Stat. A town on the Oelsa, formerly the chief town of the principality of the same name; Pop. 6000. The Schloss, on a height, was built 1558. [Branch Rly. N. to Gnesen; N.E. to Kempen and Wilhelmsbrück.] Here the line turns S.E. to

61 m. Vassowska Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. to Oppeln. (Rte. 85A.)]

27 m. Tarnowitz Junct. Stat. The centre of an important mining district. [Branch Rly., 13 m. S.W. to Morgenroth. (Rte. 85A.)]

9 m. Beuthen Junct. Stat. A town of 14,000 Inhab.; iron-works, cloth manufactories. [Branch Rly. S.W. to Gleiwitz. (Rte. 35A.)]

41 m. Dzieditz Junct. Stat. on the line from Oderberg to Cracow. (Rte. 85B.)

ROUTE 82.

DRESDEN TO BRESLAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 161 m.; time, 7 to 8 hrs.; 3 trains connect through daily.

Dresden is described in Rte. 87.

From the terminus in the Neustadt the line takes a N. direction as far as

5 m. Langebrück Stat., and then proceeds E. through picturesque scenery, which continues to the Saxon frontier at 4 m. Radeberg Junct. Stat. (Inn: Grüner Baum), on the Röder. Iron and glass-works.

[Branch Rly. N. to Lübben (see Rte. 81B), passing

13 m. Camenz Stat. (Inn: Hirsch), a small Lusatian town of 5000 Inhab. on the Elster, and the birthplace of Lessing (1729), to whom a monument has been erected here by Knauer, 1863.] [Branch Rly. from Radeberg by Arnsdorf and Lohmen S.W. to Pirna in Rte. 88.]

12 m. Bischofswerda Stat. (Inn: Engel). Pop. 3700.

[At Rammenau, 4 m. N., the philosopher Fichte was born, 1762; monument erected to him 1862.

The Valley of the Spree is crossed by a viaduct 800 ft. long and 70 ft. high.

11 m. Bautzen (Budissin) Stat. (Inns: Krone, comfortable;—Weintraube;—Adler;—Lamm, in the suburb), formerly the capital of Upper Lusatia (Ober-Lausitz), is a very picturesque town, surrounded by turreted old walls, beautifully situated on the Spree, and has 12,600 Inhab., who carry on flourishing manufactures of cloth and woollen stockings. Many of the inhabitants are Wends. The parish Ch. of St. Peter (1441-97) is shared between Catholics and Protestants. It possesses some old ch. plate. A vast modern-Gothic Rathhaus has been built. Close to the town lies the old castle of Ortenburg, formerly the residence of the Margraves of Meissen, ancestors of the Saxon Royal Family. Seidow, on the l. bank of the Spree, is almost entirely inhabited by Wends. In the neighbourhood was fought the battle of Bautzen, May 20 and 21, 1813, when Napoleon compelled the allied Prussians and Russians to retire, after dreadful slaughter on both sides, and very little advantage on his. [Rly. in progress to Pirna and Schandau.]

After quitting Bautzen the valley of the Spree is crossed 9 m. Pommeritz Stat. About 1 m. S., the steeple of Hochkirch, seen on the rt., marks the scene of a bloody defeat of Frederick the Great by the Austrians under Daun, 14 Oct. 1758. Marshal Keith, one of Frederick's best generals, by birth a Scotchman, was killed in the battle; a monument erected to him by Sir Robert Keith, English Ambassador at Vienna, 1776, still remains behind the altar of the village church, though Frederick removed his body to Berlin.

About 1 hr. S. of Hochkirch is the Czernabog hill (Inn). Fine view.

5 m. Löbau (Wend, Lubi) Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inn: Lamm, tolerable). A Lusatian town of 5000 Inhab. In the ancient Ruthhaus the deputies of the 6 towns of Upper Lusatia met, during 5 centuries, from 1310 to 1814. Besides the German churches, there is here, as in other towns of this district, a Wendic ch.; 200,000 of the Inhab. of Lusatia being Slavonic Wends, differing from the Germans even in the present day in speech, dress, and manners. Fine view from the Belvedere, erected 1857, on the top of the Löbauer Berg, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the rly.

[Branch Rly. S.E. through Herrnhut and Zittau to Reichenberg. (See Rte. 84A.) S. to Rumberg (with branch to Schluckenau), and to Kreibitz for Tetschen in Rte. 88.]

The first place within the frontier of Prussia is 5 m. Reichenbach Stat. (Inn: Sonne). l. near Markersdorf, a simple block of sandstone bearing the name Duroc, on the l. of the high road, marks the grave of the most faithful and attached friend Napoleon perhaps ever had. The ball which killed him was fired from a Russian battery the day after the Battle of Bautzen (see above). Rt., see the Landskrone, 3 m. S.W. of Görlitz.

9 m. Görlitz Junct. Stat. (Inns:

Rheinischer Hof, at the Stat.; Krone). A flourishing Lusatian town, which belonged to Saxony from 1635 to 1815, but is now Prussian. It is well situated on the slope of a hill, at whose base flows the Neisse, and has 49,732 Inhab. Much woollen and linen cloth is made here. It retains many marks of antiquity; its old gates surmounted by towers, the finest of which, called Kaisertrutz (1490), now isolated, in the midst of the town, serves as a guardhouse. Its houses, like the towns to the E. and those of Italy, are furnished with arcades. Crossing the bridge over the Neisse, you come to the great Ch. of St. Peter and St. Paul (1428-1497), having 5 aisles; the windows of the N. side, as well as the triple altar end, are handsome. The subterranean chapel, hewn in the rock is the oldest part. By the Kreuzkirche, in the Nicolai-Vorstadt, on the road to Muskau, is a representation of the events of our Lord's Passion and the localities of the Holy Sepulchre. The ch. is 2 storeys high; in the upper one is a representation of the Last Supper. Behind this is a miniature copy of the Holy Sepulchre itself. It was built (1480-89) by a burgomaster of Görlitz, who travelled to Jerusalem with an architect and a painter, to copy exactly the original.

The Gardens (Anlagen) outside the walls, between the Weher Thor and Mühlbergen, command a pleasing view of the vale of the Neisse and the viaduct.

About 4 m. off, in the valley of the Neisse, rises the picturesque hill of Landskrone, surmounted by basalt, and commanding a fine view. (Large Inn on top.) General Winterfeld, another favourite officer of Frederick the Great, fell in battle against the Austrians on the Holzberg, near Görlitz (1757): a monument marks the spot.

From Görlitz the excursion to the Riesengebirge (Rte. 83) may be conveniently commenced.

[From Görlitz an excursion may be made into Bohemia, to the Baths of Liebwerda, distant about 18 m. S.E., romantically situated, and provided with good accommodation, though retired and not much frequented. The waters resemble those of Spa. There are some beautiful valleys around it, and in the neighbourhood the convent of Haindorf. The best way of reaching the Baths is by the Rly. now completed S. to Reichenberg, crossing the Austrian frontier at

25 m. Seidenberg Stat. Thence to 10 m. Friedland Stat. (Inn: Adler, on the market-place; that "am Schloss" near the Castle is good), above which rises the old Castle of Friedland, from which the celebrated Wallenstein received his title of Duke. It was presented to him, 1623, with its dependent estates, by the Emperor Ferdinand II., as a compensation for the property he had sacrificed in his cause. It now belongs to the Count Clam Gallas, and still contains some relics of Wallenstein, his portrait, and his sword, with collections of armour, pictures, &c. The Upper Castle was built by Wallenstein. The dungeons beneath the thick round tower are horrible.

3 m. Raspenau Stat. From this point the Baths of Liebwerda are easily reached, lying to the E. in the valley of the Wittig.

Friedland and Liebwerda may also be reached from Zittau (see Rte. 84A).

The ascent of the Tafelfichte, 3400 ft. high, may be made from Liebwerda, from which it is about 4 m. distant.]

The greatest architectural work at Görlitz is the viaduct over the Neisse of 30 arches, 1506 ft. long, 112 ft. above the river. It carries the Breslau Railway.

17 m. Kohlfurt Junct. Stat.—Here this railway joins that from Berlin to Breslau, and for the rest of the way to 81 m. Breslau, see Rte. 81.

ROUTE 83.

THE RIESENGBIRGE. (1.)

LAUBAN TO ALTWASSER, viâ HIRSCHBERG [WARMBRUNN AND SCHMIEDEBERG] AND RUHBANK [EXCURSION TO ADERSBACH].—RAIL.

The Riesengebirge (Giant Mountains) separate Silesia from Bohemia. The chief of this chain is the Schneekoppe (Snow Head), the highest mountain in Germany N. of the Danube, being 4983 ft. above the sea. The outline of the chain is rather swelling than bold, but within its valleys are scenes of great beauty, enhanced in the eyes of the Germans of the N. by being contrasted with the wearisome flatness and monotony of their own country. The S. side, however, of the chain is precipitous, and in the part where the sources of the Elbe lie there is not a single pass over them for 40 m. It must be understood that the scenery of the Riesengebirge will bear no comparison with that of the Alps, either in elevation, grandeur, or beauty. Its beauties are limited to a pleasing variety of hill and dale, wood and water, rich verdure and fertility of soil, numerous towns and villages planted in romantic valleys by the sides of rivers, inhabited by an industrious population and enlivened by prosperous manufactures. These features give to the country an agreeable aspect; and, in conjunction with its Mineral Baths, render it annually the resort of a multitude of strangers.

The best approaches to the Riesengebirge are from Bunzlau, on the Berlin and Breslau Railway (Rte. 81); from Görlitz (Rte. 82); or from Breslau by the railway to Freiburg (Rte. 84).

The following are some of the most interesting points proceeding from W. to E., and passing from the Saxon and Prussian into the Austrian territory.

[N. G.]

The Moravian colony of Herrnhut (Rte. 84A), though not within the Riesengebirge, lies at a short distance from their W. extremity. The Baths of Liebwerrda, and Wallenstein's castle of Friedland (see Rte. 82), under the Tafelfichte, one of the highest of the range of the Riesengebirge, may be visited by making short détours from the high road.

The tour of the Riesengebirge properly begins at Hirschberg and Warmbrunn (see below), which are the most central points for making excursions, and the best head-quarters, as affording tolerable accommodation. Owing to the changeableness of the weather, the ascent of the Schneekoppe, which is usually made from Hirschberg or Schmiedeberg, very often does not repay the trouble. The river Elbe rises from the S. base of this mountain at the head of a beautiful valley. The country between Hirschberg, Schmiedeberg, and Landshut, is the Paradise of Silesia.

No one should quit the Giant Mountains without exploring the Labyrinth of Adersbach, the most singular spot in the district, but lying within the Bohemian frontier. It may be visited from Landshut or Waldenburg: the nearest towns to it are Liebau and Trautenau. Between Schmiedeberg and Breslau rises the Zobten, an isolated mountain, the advanced guard, as it were, of the Riesengebirge towards the N., commanding a very extensive view.

The Riesengebirge is the theatre of the exploits of the mischievous elf called Rübezahl, whose name is well translated into English by that of Turnip Nip (i.e. turnip numberer). There is hardly a mountain or a glen in the country without its legend of this popular goblin.

There are very good Inns at the towns of this district; and in remote spots on the mountains the traveller, not over fastidious, may be tolerably well accommodated, without any luxury, in the buildings called Bäude (booth), resembling somewhat the châlets of the Alps.

Guides are indispensable. They are appointed by the local authorities in the Prussian territory, and receive 3 mks. a day, for which they carry the baggage. In Austria they are not licensed, nor is their charge fixed. Detailed information respecting the most remarkable spots in the Riesengebirge is given in this and the following Routes.

The traveller coming from Berlin should proceed by the railway described in Rte. 81B, as far as Görlitz Junct. Stat.; thence E. 15 m. to Lauban Junct. Stat. (Inns: Rother Hirsch; Bär), an old walled Lusatian town, on the Queis; Pop. 8160.

The Silesian Mountain Railway from Lauban to Altwasser is one of the most interesting, for the scenery through which it passes, in Prussia. Distance, 65 m.; time, 4 to 5 hrs. 3 trains daily. The line proceeds S.E. to 8 m. Greiffenberg Stat. (Inns: Spohn's; Dietzel's). Rt. see ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr. S.) the Greiffenstein, a ruined castle, on a boss of basalt. Fine view of the distant range of the Giant Mountains, "a ravishing prospect in any country." The Schneekoppe is seen rising in the centre.

[Omnibus daily in 3 hrs., passing the Greiffenstein and the village of Friedeberg, to S.W., 11 m., Flinsberg, a prettily situated mineral bath, in the Quiesthal, whence the Baths of Liebwerda in Rte. 82 may be reached.]

17 m. Reibnitz Stat. [Omnibus meets the train to carry passengers in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to 5 m. S., Warmbrunn. Most persons go on to Hirschberg Stat.]

Through deep cuttings, in granite, the rly. enters the vale of Hirschberg; fine distant views of it and Warmbrunn. It crosses the Bober river twice.

5 m. Hirschberg Stat. (Inns: Preussischer Hof; Deutscher Hof, near the Stat.; Weisses Ross, outside the town and close to the Post; Drei Berge, good, but noisy). This, the principal town of the district, is beautifully situated at the foot of the mountain, at the junction of 2 small streams, the Bober and Zacken, 1000 ft. above the sea, and has 10,460 Inhab. Its flourishing linen manufacture is reduced from what it was in the middle of the last cent., though a large quantity is still made here; and this is considered the central point of this branch of industry. It is an ancient town, still surrounded by a double line of walls. The market-place is surrounded by arcades, as in some Italian towns. The chief building is the very handsome and large Gothic Prot. Ch., reserved for the Reformed worship by Charles XII. of Sweden by a special article of the Treaty of Alt-Ranstädt. It has some military monuments in its cemetery.

The Kavalierberg (Inn on top), S. of the town, named from some strong works thrown up in the Seven Years' War, and a low fir-clad eminence called Mount Helicon, are 2 agreeable places of resort in the neighbourhood. For the excursions to Warmbrunn and Schmiedeberg, see below.

[Schnellpost at 6.30 and 10.55 A.M. and 6.0 P.M., and omnibus several times a-day in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to 4 m. S.W. Warmbrunn. (Inns: Schwarzer Adler, good; H. de Prusse, good, extensive assortment of wines, among which some Hungarian wines are good; Das lange Haus, near the springs, good accommodation, and several others). This is a pretty, retired, quiet watering-place (Pop. 3000), lying in an open but romantic valley of the Riesengebirge. The visitors usually amount to between 2000 and 3000 annually. July and August are considered the height of the season. The company is not so aristocratic as that which frequents the baths of Teplitz and Carlsbad. Good Prussian society is to be found. The lukewarm sulphureous springs resemble those of Aix; in temperature they vary from 97° to 99° Fahr. They are considered efficacious in cases of gout and rheumatism, &c., and owe their virtues to the presence of sulphur and alkaline salts: their odour is fetid and not agreeable. The principal Public Baths are Das Gräfliche Bad (the Count's bath) and the Propstei-Bad (Prior's bath). They are capable of containing 30 or 40 persons, and it is not uncommon to see them full of bathers of both sexes. In order to accommodate the great number of bathers they are divided into three classes. The first class bathing first, and paying in proportion. A ticket of admittance must be obtained from the master of the ceremonies. There are also private baths. The Russian Baths are the newest and best fitted up, and are provided with vapour baths in the Russian fashion. Warmbrunn originally belonged to the Convent of Güssau, but is now the property of Count Schaffgotsch, who owns chief part of the district around, extending far along the Giant's Mountain. His Schloss is the principal edifice here. The Galerie, or Gesellschaftshaus, comprises a ball or assembly room, and dining-room, where the best daily table-d'hôte is to be found. The adjoining gardens, Anlage, and Park of Count Schaffgotsch, and the allée of poplars, afford agreeable walks to invalids and water-drinkers. There is a library of standard works open to the public in the Propstei-Gebäude, and a pretty little Theatre. Very beautiful glass of various colours, manufactured in Silesia, and numerous half-precious stones, found in the vicinity, and cut by lapidaries on the spot, may be purchased here.

Warmbrunn is, from its central situation, the best point for making Excursions among the Riesengebirge. Omnibus to Hirschberg and Reibnitz Stats. (see above). To Schmiedeberg (see below) is a pretty walk of about 1½ hr.

At Brückenburg, on the way to the Schneekoppe, is an old Wooden Church of the 12th cent., which was purchased by Fred. William IV. King of Prussia, 1844, and transported hither from Wang, near Trondhjem (Drontheim), in Norway, bit by bit, and is a curious specimen of a style peculiar to Scandinavia, every part being of timber, much curious carving, particularly about the doors, and is also worth visiting on account of its situation and view. The stone towers are new.

The small river Zacken is remarkable for a phenomenon not satisfactorily explained. At times its waters suddenly disappear and cease to flow for several hours, after which they again burst forth and assume their usual level.

On the Stangenberg, 3 m. S.W. of Warmbrunn, a prospect tower, called Heinrichsburg, has been erected by Prince Reuss. It commands the most striking view in the neighbourhood.

2½ m. S.W. up the valley of the Zacken, above Warmbrunn, is Hermsdorf, a village with Inns (Tietze's Hotel, &c.), and a château of Count Schaffgotsch, the head-quarters of the Guides to the Schneekoppe, &c. Immediately above Hermsdorf, on the summit of a wooded cone of granite, rise the stately ruins of the Castle of Kynast, founded 1292, burnt down 1657 by lightning. It is perhaps the most agreeable excursion from Warmbrunn, and is accessible by a carriage-road, which is beset by beggars offering stocks, stones, fruits, and flowers for sale. It is perched on a rock detached from the main body of the mountains, and its walls rise grandly from the brink of almost perpendicular precipices, so that it is accessible only on one side by a drawbridge. The view from its keep tower is very extensive and pleasing. In ancient times the daughter of a lord of this castle, named Kunigunde, who was as cold and hard-hearted as she was beautiful, made a vow to accept no one, as a lover, who should not previously ride round the castle on the top of the outer wall. She had many suitors, but upon this announcement the greater number retired. A few made the attempt, and were dashed to pieces in the frightful abyss. The lady showed no signs of compunction or pity—she desired to remain single, and was glad to be relieved from the importunities of so many lovers, all of whom were equally indifferent to her. At last a knight presented himself to try the perilous adventure, whose manly beauty and engaging manners interested her so much that she repented of her vow, and beheld him with fear and trembling mount the wall upon his steed. To her great joy he performed the exploit in safety; but, to her surprise, when she advanced to throw herself into his arms as her destined bridegroom, instead of a kiss he gave her a box on the ear and a smart reproof, and then, leaping on his steed, left her in shame and amazement. It was the Landgrave Albert of Thuringia, a married man, who, wishing to avenge the death of a younger brother, had previously practised his steed in this dangerous exercise. The story is the subject of a poem by Körner.

The Schneekoppe (Snow Head), or Riesenkoppe, the highest summit of the Riesengebirge, 4983 ft. above the sea-level, may easily be ascended in 5 or 6 hrs. from Warmbrunn. The ascent, however, from Schmiedeberg is shorter than from Warmbrunn, and the road is good. The traveller who makes the ascent should be prepared, if he intend to pass the night on the mountain, to sleep on hay, and he will act wisely in taking provisions with him, as the accommodation of the two Inns is far from good. He should also be prepared for mist, rains, and the probability of not seeing the view in consequence. The road usually taken leads by Seidorf, 1 hr. 10 min. walk, where guides may be found, and chairs, asses, and mules are kept for hire; thence to the Brod Baude, 1 hr. 5 min.; thence to Brückenberg, 15 min. (Norwegian Church, see above); and from it in 1 hr. 10 min. to the Hempelsbaude, a humble inn or châlet (where very tolerable refreshment may be had), only 20 min. walk from the summit. Those who choose to pass the night on the mountain, for the sake of seeing the sun rise, will find better accommodation in the Grenzbaude (called also Böhmische Baude). Hübner's affords the best accommodation. The Hungarian wine is good and cheap. The top of the mountain of granite, underlying gneiss and mica schist, is crowned by a small chapel, now converted into an Inn, standing on the frontier line of Austria and Prussia. The prospect is extensive when the state of the weather allows it to be visible. On the side of Silesia the slope is most abrupt, but the scenery is rich and populous. On the S., towards Bohemia, it is wild and descends more gradually in a series of terraces intersected by the rugged glen of the Riesenor Aupengrund, 2000 ft. below. Breslau, 45 m. off, is sometimes seen from here, it is said. The want of water, however, is a great drawback in the landscape. In descending, the traveller may vary his walk by proceeding from the Hempelsbaude across the Rübezahl's (Number Nip's) skittle-ground, in 1½ hr., to the Gräbersteine, 5 min. walk from St. Anne's Chapel, where the forester's house affords good refreshment, and return thence to Warmbrunn in 1½ hr.

The sources of the Elbe are situated under the S. roots of the Schneekoppe, which lies right S. from Hirschberg. The Weisswasser is regarded as the proper source of the Elbe, and its fountain-head is a strong spring, which never fails, rising close to the Wiesenbaude, 4380 ft. above the sea in the Weisse Wiese. Another stream from the valley, called the Nawarer Wiese, unites with it in the Elbegrund. These are troublesome to reach, surrounded by marshy ground; but the vale of the Elbe is very picturesque. The pedestrian has the choice of descending from the Schneekoppe into Bohemia, and proceeding at once to Adersbach and its wonderful rocks, S.E. by Klein Aupe to Schatzlar (about 4 hrs.), where the Burgomaster's inn is good, and near which the Bober rises from a well in the forest. Thence to Adersbach is a walk of 6 hrs., a beautiful and gratifying excursion. Or, if he prefer it, there are paths direct from the Schneekoppe to Schmiedeberg; the time occupied in walking thither is about 5 hrs.]

The line from Hirschberg continues S.E. to 4 m. Schildau Stat., for Erdmannsdorf and Schmiedeberg.

[Schnellpost, 7.40 A.M., noon, and 6.15 P.M., in 2 hrs., from Hirschberg to 9 m. Schmiedeberg, passing about half-way Schloss Erdmannsdorf (Inn: Schweizerhaus), seat of the late Gen. Gneisenau, now the property of the King of Prussia. King Fred. Will. IV. in 1838 gave an asylum and allotted land here to 309 Salzburg Protestants, who were driven out of their native valley, the Zillertal, on account of their adopted faith, by the intolerance of the Romish priesthood. The houses forming the colony were built by the exiles themselves in their own peculiar and picturesque architecture, but the colonists have the character of being lazy and dirty. The Church was built from a design of Schinkel. Here is a large linen mill moved by steam. Persons visiting Erdmannsdorf—and it is well worth visiting—will do well to do so from Warmbrunn and not from Hirschberg. The distance is nearly the same both ways—a walk of $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.—but the former road is very agreeable, passing through the pretty village of Stohnsdorf, while the latter is a dead flat and rather uninteresting.

Schmiedeberg (Inns: Schwarzes Ross, good (guides and horses for the Riesenkoppe); Goldener Stern; Preussischer Hof) is an old town, in a pleasant situation, with 3500 Inhab., and having a market-place surrounded by an arcade. It owed its prosperity to its iron-furnaces, mines, &c., long since extinct. This is a favourable point from which to ascend the Schneekoppe, on foot or horse.]

The line from Schildau proceeds to 4 m. Jannowitz Stat.

[3 m. S.W. lies Fischbach, the beautiful seat of Prince Adalbert of Prussia, in a charming situation, about 4 m. E. of Erdmannsdorf. At the entrance are 2 Sikh guns, given to Prince Waldemar of Prussia, who accompanied the English in the campaign against the Sikhs. Upon the neighbouring Marianne's rock is a colossal lion (cross), of cast iron.]

The rly. now threads the narrow rocky valley through which the Bober twists and winds between the Schmiedeberg-Kamm S., and the Katzbach Hills N. Picturesque scenery, but it quits the hills before reaching 9 m. Ruhbank Junct. Stat.

[Branch Rly. S., 23 m., to Parschnitz Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 84), passing

3 m. Landeshut Stat. (Inns: Rabe, good; Drei Berge; Goldener Löwe). An old dirty town, romantically situated at the foot of the Riesengebirge, on the Bober; has 5260 Inhab., considerable bleaching-grounds and manufactures of linen.

Road 3 m. S.E. to Grüssau. The Ch. of the suppressed Cistercian Abbey is a large 16th-cent. building, containing the burial vaults of the Dukes of Schweidnitz. Near Landeshut the Prussians received a severe defeat June 1760, and 10,000 of them were made prisoners, with their General, Fouqué, by the Austrians under Loudon. Road to Schömburg (see below).

6 m. Liebau Stat. (Buffet). Prussian frontier Custom House. (Inn: Kuffhäuser); Schnellpost twice daily in 1 hr. to 4 m. S.E. Schömburg (Inn: Löwe), thence S. 6 m. to Adersbach (Inn: Traiteur Haus, good and clean, but small—delicious mountain trout may be had here). The Rocks of Adersbach, situated within the frontier of Bohemia, about 19 m. from Landeshut, 17 from Waldenburg, and 12 from Trautenau, are a wonderful assemblage of masses of sandstone, extending in all directions over a space 3 m. broad and 6 or 8 long, separated into fragments of various sizes by openings, gulfs, and fissures. They resemble those of the Heuscheuer and Saxon Switzerland, but far surpass them in size and number. You walk, as it were, in a narrow street, with immense smooth walls on each side of you, opening here and there into squares, whence is obtained a view of the countless number of giant rocks which surround you on all sides. This locality does not present the extraordinary natural figures existing at the Heuscheuer: the wonder of Adersbach consists in the vast size and number of rocks here clustered together. The entrance to the rocks is closed by a door (admission and guide 75 pf.; Inn, good, at entrance). The path is in places so narrow that you can walk only in Indian file. A rivulet, clear as silver, traverses the intricacies of the labyrinth, and at the end, or spot where travellers usually turn back (after an hour's walk), it forms a pretty waterfall, which plays by opening a sluice (!). Near the entrance is a fine echo. By moonlight the aspect of the rocks is highly romantic. In number the rocks amount to many thousands, and often rise to a height of more than 200 ft., the highest being 280 ft. So numerous and intricate are the passages among them that they form a complete labyrinth, among which there is danger of losing one's way without a guide. There can be little doubt that the whole was at one time a continuous and solid stratum of sandstone, and that it owes its present form to the passage over it of floods or currents of running water, which, having found their way into the crevices and clefts, have gradually worn down the softer parts into gutters and channels. The rocks, like those of the Saxon Switzerland, belong to the formation called by the Germans Quadersandstein, corresponding with the green sand of England. Something of the same sort occurs in the "High Rocks" near Tunbridge Wells. Adersbach is certainly a curiosity without parallel in Europe, and well deserves to be visited. The rocks at Weckelsdorf (Inn: Eisenhammer). $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. E. of Adersbach, are perhaps still finer, and a continuation of the latter. The rocks may be reached in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. from the Weckelsdorf Stat., on the Rly. from Nachod to Braunau.]

The Rly. from Ruhbank continues S.E. to 5 m. Waldenburg Stat. (for the road from here to the Rocks of Adersbach, see Rte. 84). The line here passes through a dreary country, but stirred by active industry. It passes high above Waldenburg, and crosses on a viaduct the coal mines and depôt of Hermsdorf, bristling with chimneys of steam-engines, &c.; glass-works, china-works, spinning factories.

12 m. Altwasser Stat. (Inns: Villa Nuova; Seifert's H.; Berger's H.). A smoky watering-place. Pop. 6100. Rly. through Königszell to Breslau (see Rte. 84).

Omnibus twice daily to (3 m.) Salzbrunn (see Rte. 84).

ROUTE 83A.

LIEGNITZ TO SCHWEIDNITZ, REICHENBACH, AND FRANKENSTEIN.—RAIL.

Distance, 59 m.; time, 3 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Liegnitz is described in Rte. 81. The Rly. proceeds S. to 3 m. Neudorf Stat. which commands a good view over the battlefield of the Kutzbach. This battle, named from the small stream which runs here, was gained over the French, under MacDonald, Aug. 26, 1813, by the Prussians and Russians under Blücher, who received, as a reward for his services, the title of Prince of Wahlstatt (Battlefield) from a small village of that name, S. of Liegnitz. It had rained for four days in succession previous to the battle, and continued to rain while it lasted, so that powder was useless; and the victory was gained by the bayonet and the butt-end of the musket: 102 French cannon were taken. The fiercest part of the battle raged between Wahlstatt and Eichholz, near which a monument has been erected by the King of Prussia. Frederick the Great won a victory over the Austrians nearly in the same place, Aug. 15, 1760. The suppressed Benedictine nunnery of Wahlstatt (see the Ch.) was built on the site of a bloody battle fought in 1241 between the Silesian chivalry under Duke Henry II. of Silesia (who was here slain) and the Mongols. Although these last had the best of the fight, its result was to check the further advance of the Mongols towards Germany.

9 m. Jauer Stat. (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Adler), a town of 9570 Inhab., on the furious Neisse.

18 m. Königszell Junct. Stat. (Buffet). Here the rly. from Breslau to Freiburg and Waldenburg crosses our line (see Rte. 84).

A long viaduct on 35 piers carries the train into

5 m. Schweidnitz Stat. (Inns: Scepter; Krone). An old town (Pop. 16,770), chiefly of narrow and steep streets, beautifully situated on the Weistritz. It was formerly a fortress, but the greater part of its works were demolished by the French in 1806, and the remainder converted in 1862 into charming promenades. The parish Ch., a Gothic building (date 1330), is surmounted by a tower 320 ft. high. The Castle, formerly the residence of the Piast Dukes, has now become a poor-house. In 1638 the Silesian principalities of Schweidnitz and Jauer fell to the Crown of Bohemia.

Excursions to the Weistritzthal, Charlottenbrunn, and Zobtenberg.

4 m. Jacobsdorf Stat. Viaduct over the Weistritz.

9 m. Reichenbach (Silesian) Stat. (Inns: Seliger's H.; Langerfeld's H.). The convention of 1790, guaranteeing the continuance of the Turkish Empire, was concluded here. The mountainous district called the Eulengebirge, may be conveniently crossed from here to Glatz. [Diligence twice daily in 1 hr. to 5 m. Langenbielau, largest village in Prussia, 12,000 Inhab.; chief seat of Silesian linen weaving.]

5 m. Gnadenfrei Stat., a colony of Herrnhuters, founded 1743.

5 m. Frankenstein Stat. (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Löwe), an old walled town, burnt 1858 (Pop. 7170), with a ruined castle. 7 m. W. (omnibus daily in 1½ hr.) is the maiden fortress of Silberberg (Inn: Adler), with bastions and casemates almost entirely hewn out of the solid rock (fine view), by Frederick the Great, to guard the passage from Bohemia, at an expense of over half a million sterling, but now worthless and abandoned, owing to the improvements in modern artillery bringing the works within the range of the neighbouring heights.

The Rly. is continued to Camenz (see Rte. 85).

ROUTE 84.

THE RIESENGBIRGE. (2.)

BRESLAU TO PRAGUE, via KÖNIGSZELT; WALDENBURG [ADERSBACH], TRAUTENAU, ALT-PAKA, AND KOLIN.—RAIL.

Distance, 204 m.; time, 10 hrs.; 1 train daily.

Breslau is described in Rte. 81.

The Rly. proceeds S.W. to 12 m. Canth Stat. [3 m. S.E. is Kriblowitz, where Marshal Blücher lived and died (1819). He is buried in the open air by the roadside, under the shade of 3 lime-trees. A monument was erected to him in 1853].

8 m. Mettkau Stat. [Diligence at 9 A.M. and 7.45 P.M. in 2 hrs. to 9 m. Zobten, at the foot of the Zobtenberg, the Rigi of Silesia, whose top (small Inn) may be reached in 1½ hr.'s walk: it is covered with shattered blocks of granite. The view commands the Moravian and Silesian mountains, the Schneeberg, the Heuscheuer, fortress of Silberberg, Riesenkoppe, and a more picturesque, though not so extensive a panorama as that from the Schneekoppe. Near Zobten is Gorkau (Inn), from which the ascent 1½ hr. may also be made.

11 m. Königszelt Junct. Stat. (Buffet).

Branch Rly. N. to Liegnitz, and S. to Schweidnitz (see Rte. 83A).

4 m. Freiburg Stat. (Inn: Schwarzer Adler; Burg), a town of 6429 Inhab., having a large steam flax-spinning mill.

[Omnibus runs from the stat. to 1 m. S. Fürstenstein. The Fürstenstein-Grund or Glen is a very picturesque narrow rocky valley, hemmed in by wooded cliffs 300 ft. high, traversed by the Höllenbach, and not unlike the scenery of the Rosstrappe in the Harz. A winding path leads up to the Alte Burg, an imitation castle built at the beginning of the present century, containing some old tapestry, armour, and family portraits. Ascending the valley, you come to the modern Schloss Fürstenstein (good Inn, near) seat of Count Hochberg, surrounded by gardens and pleasure-grounds.

9 m. N.W. is the village of Hohenfriedberg (Inn: Wagner's), the scene of a battle, gained by Frederick the Great, 4 June, 1745, over the Austrians and Saxons; in the vicinity was his fortified camp of Bunselwitz.

7 m. S. from Freiburg (Diligence 8 P.M. in 1½ hr.) are the Baths of Salzbrunn (Inns: Elisenhof; Kurhaus; Krone), a long village, frequented annually by about 3000 visitors on account of its alkalo-saline spring, but dull, and scarcely worth stopping at.]

8 m. Altwasser Stat. (see Rte. 83).

12 m. Waldenburg Stat. (Inn: Schwarzes Ross), a flourishing town of 5000 Inhab. [A good point for visiting the Rocks of Adersbach, about 17 m. distant. It is a hilly road, passing l. the castle of Neuhaus, ruined 1418 in the Hussite war. Beyond Friedland the road to Adersbach turns l. W., and the Bohemian frontier is crossed. The Austrian custom-house is at Merkersdorf. Passports are not required. Riegel's Inn at Merkersdorf is fair and cheap; fine trout and good Hungarian wine.]

5 m. Ruhbank Junct. Stat. For the Branch Rly. hence S. as far as

23 m. Parschnitz Junct. Stat., see

Rte. 83. [Rly. S.E. to Nachod, see Rte. 85.] The line here turns N.W. to

2 m. Trautenau (Boh. Trutnov) Junct. Stat. (Inn: Weisses Ross). The first town in the Austrian territory; Pop. 6000. Rebuilt since fire of 1861. Much linen is made here. On June 27 the Austrians under Gablenz won their only victory over the Prussians in the war of 1866. A monument to the fallen Prussians was erected on the Kapellenberg in 1868.

[Branch Rly. N. 7 m. to Freiheit, whence diligence thrice daily in ½ hr. to 1 m. to Johannisbad chalybeate springs. (Inns: Kurhaus; Deutsches Haus, &c.)]

9 m. Arnau Stat.; Pop. 2300, chiefly weavers. It lies on the Elbe, which takes its rise about 25 m. N. of this among the roots of the Schneekoppe. A pleasant excursion may be made to the source, following its banks, and passing the pretty town of Hohenelbe (Inn: Schwan), with Schloss, park, and picturesque houses, and the cascades of Elbfall and Weisswasser.

8 m. Pelsdorf Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. 1 m. to Hohenelbe (see above).]

13 m. Alt-Paka Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. to Turnau for Reichenberg (Rte. 84A); S.W. to Josephstadt for Pardubitz, &c.]

The line turns S. to

2 m. Neu-Paka Stat. (Inn: Post).

12 m. Wostromiersch Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. 13 m. to Jicin (Gitschin) (Inn: Goldener Löwe). The castle was built by Wallenstein, 1610, and was chief town of his Principality of Friedland. Gitschin was stormed by the Prussians, June 29, 1866. Rly. in progress N.W. to Turnau and W. to Bakov.]

18 m. Chlumetz Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E. to Königgrätz.]

23 m. Nimburg Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. 9 m. to Jung-Bunzlau Junct. Stat. This town of 5000 Inhab., on the Iser, manufactures much printed cotton. In the small town of Neu-Benatek, not far S., Tycho Brahe died, 1601.]

10 m. Lysa Junct. Stat.

21 m. Prague, described in Handbook for S. Germany.

ROUTE 84A.

DRESDEN TO REICHENBERG, viâ HERRNHUT AND ZITTAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 85 m.; time, 5 to 6 h.; 5 trains daily.

Dresden is described in Rte. 87.

For the Rly. E. as far as 48 m. Löbau Junct. Stat., see Rte. 82.

From hence the line turns S.E. to 9 m. Herrnhut Stat. (Inn.: Gemeindegelände, very good), the mother colony of the sect of Moravians, or Herrnhuters. It was established by fugitives, driven from Austrian territory by the persecution of the Jesuits, 1721-25. They were received by Count Zinzendorf, a Lusatian nobleman, who granted them an asylum and lands on this spot, and is considered as their founder. Near the highway, in the midst of a wood intersected by pleasant walks, a monument marks the place where he caused the first tree to be felled in 1722, to clear ground for the settlement, the country being then a vast forest. The community derives its name of "Herrnhuter," i. e. "the Lord's watch," from a passage in the 84th Psalm, "Die Thür hüten in meines Gottes Hause,"—"to watch the door in the house of my God." It is now a flourishing little formal town, of 1400 Inhab., distinguished by the order, stillness, and cleanliness which prevail in it; situated in the midst of a somewhat tame country of undulating hills, now nearly cleared of wood. It is the seat of a bishop, and the central point of the government and commerce of the sect, which, in 1832, numbered 42 settlements in different parts of the world. The Moravians profess the doctrines of the Confession of Augsburg; but, excepting their love for music and toleration of dancing, they bear some resemblance to the Quakers, especially in the plainness of their dress. The female costume is distinguished by variously coloured ribbons. The girls wear deep red; unmarried women pink; married, blue; and widows, grey or white. The meeting-house, the sale-rooms for the articles manufactured here, and the Cemetery of the community on the Hutberg, all deserve to be visited. The Cemetery is a very interesting spot, commanding a lovely prospect. It is surrounded by a tall hedge of hornbeam, and intersected by avenues of the same, between which are laid the flat gravestones, quite plain, and bearing merely the name, and dates of birth and death. Those of the Zinzendorf family, in the centre, alone are distinguished from the rest by their larger dimensions. That of the founder bears an inscription commemorating his bounty. Above the Friedhof rises the Hutberg, or watch-hill, a sort of cliff or group of rocks, surmounted by a temple or look-out house, commanding a fine panorama,—a wide prospect over the town, the estate bequeathed by Count Zinzendorf to the colony, Berchtoldsdorf, containing the house where he died, and in the distance the hill called the Saxon Crown.

The Museum of natural history, collected by Moravian missionaries in the most distant corners of the earth, is interesting. The Herrnhuters are an industrious community: the linen manufacture of Saxony may be said to owe its development to them.

11 m. Zittau Junct. Stat. (Austrian examination of luggage made here) (Inns: Sonne, good; Sächsischer Hof). This prosperous Lusatian manufacturing town of 17,600 Inhab., on the Mandau, is nearly 1 m. from the rly. It is the centre of the linen trade of Saxony; and in its immediate vicinity cotton and woollen manufactures are extensively carried on. The town was almost entirely destroyed by the Austrian bombardment in 1757. A splendid modern Rathhaus (1844), and the Romanesque Ch. of St. John, rebuilt 1837, are objects of interest. From its proximity to the Bohemian frontier it enjoys a considerable traffic with that country. The mountains which here form the Saxon boundary rise to a commanding height.

[Branch Rly. N. to Görlitz, W. through Warnsdorf to Kreibitz-Neudörfel Junct. Stat. (Branch through Rumburg to Schlückenu and in progress to Bautzen.)]

[Diligence in summer at 8.15 A.M. and 3 P.M. in 1 hr. to 5 m. S.W., the ruins of a robber castle and of the extensive monastery of Oybin, on the summit of a hill-shaped like a beehive, placed in the midst of a caldron-shaped valley. Here is a beautiful ruined chapel in the best pointed style, partly cut in the rock. It stands in a cave or recess in the face of the cliff, and commands an extensive view over forest and valley. The ruins are easily found, as they are visible from Zittau, and may be reached by a fair walker in about 2 hrs.

From Zittau excursions may be made to Wallenstein's castle at (Diligence daily at 4 P.M., in 3 hrs.) Friedland Stat., 9 m. to the E., on the Rly. between Görlitz and Reichenberg, and to the Baths of Liebwerda, reached from the Raspenau Stat. on the same Rly., and both described as an excursion from Görlitz in Rte. 82.]

The Rly. is continued from Zittau up the industrious valley of the Neisse, within Bohemia, with fine view on rt. of the Jeschken mountain, to 17 m. Reichenberg Junct. Stat. (Inns: Franks H.; Union H.), the most rising manufacturing town in Bohemia; second to Prague alone in population, having 25,000 Inhab. Its manufacture of linen is very flourishing and of great importance. [Rly. N. through Raspenau (for the Baths of Liebwerda) and Friedland to Görlitz, see Rte. 82.]

The Rly. continues S. to

23 m. Turnau Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E., passing through beautiful scenery, to 24 m. Alt-Paka Junct. Stat., in Rte. 84.] For the line from Turnau to Prague and Vienna, see Handbk. for S. Germany.

ROUTE 85.

BRESLAU TO PRAGUE, viâ WARTHA, GLATZ, AND THE HEUSCHEUER.

Distance, 183 m.; time, 14 to 16 hrs.

Breslau to Glatz, Rly., 3 trains daily.
Glatz to Reinerz, Diligence, twice daily.
Reinerz to Nachod Stat., Diligence, once daily.
Nachod to Prague, Rly., 3 trains daily.

Breslau is described in Rte. 81.

The Rly. proceeds S. through Strehlen and Münsterberg to 46 m. Camenz (in Silesia) Junct. Stat. (Inn: Sommer's). Ancient Cistercian abbey dissolved 1811. The modern Schloss on the Hartaberg was built from the designs of Schinkel. Rly. N. through Frankenstein to Königszell Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 83A) in progress S.E. to Neisse, and S.W. the line to Glatz continues to 5 m. Wartha Stat. (Inn: Löwe), Pop. 1100. The Rom. Cath. Ch., in the market-place of the little town, contains a miracle-working statue of the Virgin, to whose shrine 40,000 pilgrims repair annually. A steep road, marked by chapels, leads up to the chapel of St. Anne on the Warthaberg, at a height of 1772 ft. above the sea: the view from here is fine. The banks of the river Neisse are very picturesque; near the town it forces a passage through the rocky gorge called Warthapass. The Rly. continues S. through a number of tunnels, with occasional fine views over the basin-shaped valley forming the county of Glatz, and of Bohemian mountains beyond.

7 m. Glatz (Bohem. Kladsko) Stat. (Inns: H. de Rome; Weisses Ross; Neu-Breslau, in the suburb). A second-class fortress on the Neisse, Pop. 11,800. Formerly capital of a county which fell to Bohemia in 1561, but which in 1742 was ceded, along with nearly all Silesia, to Prussia. Its outworks have been extended since 1850, so as to convert it into a fortified camp. Macadamised roads diverge from it in various directions. A permission from the commandant is necessary to view the works. The statue of St. John Nepomuk was placed upon the Donjon (fine view, 1120 ft.), by order of Frederick the Great, after he had taken the fortress. Baron Trenck (guillotined 1794) escaped from his prison here (see Magdeburg, Rte. 66). The old parish Ch. contains tombs of Silesian Dukes and a so-called miraculous picture of the Virgin.

[The Rly. from Glatz is completed S. to Mittelwalde, the Austrian frontier station, thence to Wildenschwert on the line from Prague to Olmütz.]

[Diligence daily in 3 hrs. to 15 m. S.E. of Glatz the Baths of Landeck (Inns: Löwe; Schlösschen; Goldene Krone), in a picturesque country, with an excellent trout-stream running through it. The waters are tepid and sulphurous. The town of Landeck is a mile distant from the Baths; it is a good station for visiting the Sudetic mountains, at the head of which is the Schneeberg, 4412 ft. above the sea-level. (36 m. beyond Landeck, through Jawornik by a bad road, is the Water-Cure Establishment of Vincent Priesnitz at Gräfenberg (see Rte. 85A), a village in the Austrian territory, 18 m. from Neisse.)]

[Diligence from Glatz twice daily in 2½ hrs. to S.W.

12 m. Reinerz (Inns: Bär; Deutsches Haus), a small town of 3000 Inhab., surrounded by mountains. About a mile off, in a secluded valley, are some mineral Baths, not now much frequented. A few miles N. of Reinerz rises the Heuscheuer, or Heuscheune (Hay-barn, so called from its shape),—a vast assemblage of detached masses of rock, many of them formed into the most curious shapes, from the sculpturing of nature, and named after various objects, to which they bear a very exact resemblance. The most perfect likenesses are those of a "bear," a "camel," a "seal" (See-hund), a "Moor's head," and a "laughing profile,"—all natural productions. The highest point is the Grossvatersstuhl (Grandfather's Chair), 2800 ft. above the sea: from it the Carpathians are visible. The key of this very curious mountain is kept at Karlsberg, a little village on the W. side of it. Inn: good accommodation may be found at the Schweitzer Haus on the N. slope.

Not far from this is the village of Albendorf, remarkable for containing a much frequented Pilgrimage Church, besides several chapels and stations, ornamented with figures of saints, and rude paintings representing the history of Christ. In the printed descriptions of this town it is called a second Jerusalem; and in order to make out a resemblance to the real Jerusalem it has twelve gates; while a stream running through it is called Brook Kedron; and the pool of Bethesda, the house of St. Anne, and the palace of the High Priest, all have their representatives within the walls. The traveller puts up or is taken in at the Judgment-hall of Pilate!

From Reinerz Diligence daily at 4.55 A.M. in 3 hrs. W. to Nachod. The road passes through, 5 m., Lewin, the last Prussian village. Beyond it is the Austrian custom-house. [About 4 m. from Lewin, off the road, lies Cudowa (Inns: Sonne; Stern), whose mineral springs furnish a chalybeate, very strongly impregnated with carbonic acid gas. There are lodging-houses and an assembly-room on the spot. The inhabitants of the village are chiefly descendants of Bohemian Hussites.]

12 m. Nachod Stat. (Inns: Sonne; Lamm). The first town in Bohemia; Pop. 2200, chiefly weavers. Its Castle, now belonging to the Prince of Schaumburg-Lippe, is said by some to be the birthplace (1584) of the renowned Wallenstein; it belonged to his brother-in-law, Terzki, and at their death was confiscated, and bestowed upon the traitor Piccolomini. It commands a fine view of the whole range of the Riesengebirge. Nachod is a good starting-point to explore these mountains. There were 3 days of hard fighting at and about Nachod between the Austrians and Prussians in June, 1866. Rly. N. through Weckelsdorf to Braunau, and S. to Pardubitz by

11 m. Josephstadt Junct. Stat. (Inn: Wessely's, good), on the Elbe. On the l. bank of the river stands the fortress of Josephstadt. [Branch Rly. N.W. to Alt-Paka (see Rte. 84).]

13 m. Königgrätz (Bohem. Hradec Králové) Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Lamm; Ross), another fortress, with 4500 Inhab.; lies on the Elbe, at the influx of the Adler, more than a mile from the stat. The Cathedral, and the Church and College, which formerly belonged to the Jesuits, are the most remarkable buildings. Much cloth is made here. [Branch Rly. W. to Chlumetz, and thence viâ Nimburg and Lysa to Prague (Rte. 84), and E. viâ Tynist and Senftenberg to Grulich.]

9 m. N.W. between Bistritz and the Elbe was fought, July 3, 1866, the Battle of Sadowa, in which the Prussians defeated the Austrians and Saxons under Benedek (see Rte. 275, Handbk. for S. Germany). Beyond

4 m. Opatowitz Stat. the rly. crosses the Elbe on a bridge near 600 ft. long, to reach

9 m. Pardubitz Junct. Stat. on the Prague and Vienna Railway, whence trains run in 3 to 4 hrs. to 64 m. Prague. Handbk. for S. Germany.

ROUTE 85A.

BRESLAU TO CRACOW.—RAIL.

Distance, 162 m.; time, 9 hrs.; 1 train connects through daily.

Breslau is described in Rte. 81.

The Oberschlesische Eisenbahn (Upper Silesian Rly.) proceeds S.E. up the valley of the Oder.

10 m. Ohlau Stat. (Inns: Krone; Adler), Pop. 7450, on l. bank of the Oder, has a palace and a picture gallery.

9 m. Brieg Junct. Stat. (Inns: Hirsch H.; Kreutz H.), Pop. 14,270. On the l. bank of the Oder. The Schloss, begun in 1547, was formerly the residence of the Dukes of Brieg-Liegnitz, extinct 1675. The fortifications were razed by the French in 1806. A little to the W. is the battle-field of Mollwitz, where Frederick the Great won his first victory over the Austrians, 10th April, 1741.

[Branch Rly. to Ziegenhals and Jägendorf, passing 28 m. S. Neisse Stat. (Inns: Stern; Krone; Ross), a second-class fortress on the rt. bank of the Neisse, Pop. 19,031. Lafayette was imprisoned here in 1794. Neisse was, from 1200 to 1810, the capital of a principality joined to the See of Breslau, and the residence of the Bishop. The great Ch. of St. James was rebuilt in 1430. Diligence daily during the summer months across the Austrian frontier in 6½ hrs. to S. 23 m. Freiwaldau (Inns: Kronprinz; Silber Krone), near which is the Water-Cure Establishment of Gräfenberg, founded by the late V. Priesnitz. There are 5 lodging-houses; charges for rooms 2 to 4 florins a-week. Board is charged 1 fl. a-day. 3 monuments have been set up to Priesnitz (d. 1851), and a chapel to his wife.]

The line from Brieg continues to 9 m. Lüwen Stat., and crosses the Neisse and the Oder, just before reaching

18 m. Oppeln Junct. Stat. (Inns: Adler, good; Biewald's H.). From 1200 to 1532, the residence of the Piast Dukes of Upper Silesia; Pop. 11,330. St. Adalbert's Ch. dates from the 10th cent. There is a schloss on the Paschake island in the Oder, and on the Wilhelmsthal island are the pretty pleasure-grounds of the Villa Nuova. [Branch Rly. 18 m. E. to Vassowska Junct. Stat. (Rte. 81c.)]

13 m. Gogolin Stat. About 1 Germ. m. beyond this station, and at about the same distance from the railroad, is the Annaberg, on the summit of which stands a building, formerly a Franciscan convent, containing a miraculous image. It is a greatly frequented place of pilgrimage, especially on St. Anne's day (July 26).

The railroad crosses the river Klodnitz and its canal to 13 m. Kandrzin Junct. Stat. (Buffet). On the opposite bank of the Oder, which is crossed by a wooden bridge, lie the town and fortress of Cosel, 4400 Inhab. [Branch Rly. S. to Ratibor and Oderberg for Vienna (see Rte. 85B).] The rly. to Cracow runs E. up the valley of the Klodnitz to

23 m. Gleiwitz Junct. Stat. (Inns: Adler; Deutsches Haus). An old town of 13,000 Inhab. on the Klodnitz, in the mining district of Upper Silesia. There are considerable iron-works in the town and in the neighbourhood, also many iron-mines. [Branch Rly. N.E. 10 m. to Beuthen.]

The railway passes on the l. Zabrze, where are iron-works, to

9 m. Morgenroth Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. 13 m. to Tarnowitz.]

4 m. Schwientochlowitz Junct. Stat., 1 m. from which is Königshütte (King's foundry) Stat. The steel-iron works here are celebrated for smelting iron ore by means of coke. There are 80 furnaces, besides 30 zinc furnaces, coal-mines, &c.; rolling mills, foundries. Chimneys rise on all sides.

4 m. Kattowitz Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.W. for Nendza and Ratibor.]

5 m. Mysłowitz Junct. Stat. Beyond this the railway crosses the river Schwarze Przemsza, which was the boundary of Silesia and the territory of the republic of Cracow, and now divides Silesia from the Austrian and Russian dominions.

6 m. Szczakowa Junct. Stat. [Rly. N. to Warsaw.]

8 m. Trzebinia Junct. Stat. [Rly. S.W. through Oswiecim to Vienna, &c.]

23 m. Cracow (Krakau) Stat. (Inns: H. de Saxe; H. de Russie; H. de Londres; Goldener Anker). (See, for description of Cracow, Handbk. for S. Germany.)

ROUTE 85B.

BRESLAU TO VIENNA, viâ COSEL AND ODERBERG.—RAIL.

Distance, 276 m.; time, 10½ to 13 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Breslau is described in Rte. 81. The Direct line of Rly. is viâ Glatz (Rte. 85). By this route the Oberschlesische Eisenbahn is followed as far as

75 m. Kandrzin (Cosel) Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 85A). Hence the Wilhelm's Bahn proceeds S. through pretty scenery to

13 m. Nendza Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E. 46 m. through Rybnik and Nicolai to Kattowitz (Rte. 85A).]

5 m. Ratibor Junct. Stat. (Inn: Jaschkes). This town of 14,570 Inhab., on the here navigable Oder, was formerly the capital of a principality. [Branch Rly. W. 23 m. to Leobschütz.] Persons wishing to divide the journey between Breslau and Vienna may make Ratibor their sleeping quarters. From Breslau to Ratibor will occupy 4 to 5 hrs.; Ratibor to Vienna 7 to 8 hrs.

The line crosses the Oder, the boundary between Prussia and Austria, to 17 m. Oderberg Junct. Stat. Austrian Custom House. Rly. E. to Cracow; S. to Pesth, &c.; and S.W. the Kaiser-Ferdinands-Nordbahn proceeds through Prerau (line to Prague), Lundenburg and Gänserndorf, to 165 m. Vienna. (See Handbk. for S. Germany.)

SECTION IV.

SAXONY.

	PAGE
PRELIMINARY INFORMATION—THE THURINGIAN FOREST . . .	271

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
86. Frankfurt on the Main to Leipzig, by Fulda, Eisenach, Gotha [the Thuringian Forest], Erfurt, and Weimar—RAIL . . .	272	88. SAXON SWITZERLAND and the Elbe. (A) Dresden to Bodenbach [Pillnitz, the Bastei, Schandau, Kuhstall, Prebischthor, and Herrnskretschchen]—RAIL . . .	318
86A. Gotha to Hildburghausen, by Ohrdruf and Schleusingen . . .	290	90. Dresden to Hof in Bavaria, by the Valley of Plauen, Freiberg, and Chemnitz—RAIL . . .	326
86B. Gotha to Rudolstadt, viâ Ilmenau [Schwarzburg] . . .	292	91. Leipzig to Hof, by Altenburg and Werdau—RAIL . . .	330
86C. Leipzig to Eichicht, by Zeitz, Gera, and Saalfeld—RAIL . . .	293	91A. Leipzig to Carlsbad . . .	332
86D. Leipzig to Cottbus by Eilenburg and Torgau—RAIL . . .	294	92. Cassel to Bamberg, viâ Eisenach, Meiningen, and Coburg—RAIL . . .	333
87. Leipzig to Dresden, viâ Riesa—RAIL . . .	294	93. Gotha to Leinefelde, by Mühlhausen—RAIL . . .	337
87A. Dresden to Leipzig, viâ Döbeln—RAIL . . .	317

PRELIMINARY INFORMATION.

THE THURINGIAN FOREST.

A tour through the Thuringian Forest may be conveniently made from Weimar thus:—

First day.—From Weimar by Rly. to S.E. 12 m. Jena (see Rte. 86). Excursion (3 m.) to the ruins of the Lobdaburg, rising above the little town of Lobeda; Rail to Kahla (Inn: Goldener Löwe). Excursion to the Leuchtenburg ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.). Grand view over the valley of the Saale. Rail to Rudolstadt and Schwarza; take carriage at the station to Schwarzburg (Rte. 86B).

Second day.—The Trippstein ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.), thence by the Fasanerie to the ruins of Paulinzelle (sign-posts everywhere indicate the road). From this Abbey Ilmenau may be reached by Angstedt, Gräfinau, and Wimbach, in about $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.' walking, or a carriage may be taken to Paulinzelle, and thence by Königssee and Amt-Gehren to Ilmenau. Pretty walks all round, see Rte 86B. (Further excursions to the Kickelhahn, the Manebach Valley, and the Hüttengrund, with a guide.)

Third day.—From Ilmenau by Roda to Elgersburg ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), thence by the Alexandrinenhöhe (20 min.), the Pintlefels, the Schlossquelle, to Mönchshof (1 hr.), round the Sachsenstein to the Schmucke, and the tower on the Schnee- kopf (see Rte. 86A). From the tower the Plänkner's Aussicht (3000 ft.) may be taken on the way to Oberhof.

Fourth day.—From Oberhof by Falkenstein and the Schmalwasser-Grund to Tambach (3½ hrs.), see Rte. 86A; thence by Georgenthal (1½ hr.) (Rly. N. to Gotha) to Friedrichroda (2 hrs).

Fifth day.—Reinhardtsbrunn and the Inselsberg. (See Rte. 86.)

Sixth day.—Walk through the woods to Ruhla (Rte. 86), carriage to Wutha, and Rail to Eisenach.

The 2 first days are done better by rail and carriage; but from Ilmenau to Ruhla the scenery will be best enjoyed on foot, although the whole may be done by carriage. If the traveller returns from the Inselsberg to Friedrichroda, the carriage may proceed by Brotherode and Trusenthal to Liebenstein; thence by rail to Eisenach.

For excursions into the Thuringer Wald from Gotha, see Rte. 86.

A good guide-book for the district is 'Thuringen,' by Schwerdt and Ziegler, published at Hilburghausen.

ROUTE 86.

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN TO LEIPZIG, BY FULDA, EISENACH, GOTH A [THE THURINGIAN FOREST], ERFURT, AND WEIMAR.—RAIL.

Distance, 232 m.; time, 8½ to 10 hrs.; 5 trains
daily.

Frankfurt on the M. is described in
Rte. 95.

[The rt. bank Rly. from the Ostbahnhof, in Frankfurt, to Hanau is only used for local traffic.]

The l. bank Rly. starts from the Westbahnhof, and crossing the Main to the suburb of Sachsenhausen, turns E. through 6 m. Offenbach Stat. (Inns: Stadt Cassel; Schwan). An important manufacturing town of 22,000 Inhab., noted for its carriages and leather goods. Further on, see on the l. bank of the river the village of Rumpenheim, with a schloss belonging to the Landgrave William of Hesse Cassel, and on the rt. is Philippstruhe, a summer palace of the ex-Elector.

9 m. Hanau Junct. Stat. (Inns: Karlsberg; Riese; Adler). This town of the late Hessian Electorate, 21,000 Inhab., stands near the junction of the Kinzig with the Main in the most fertile part of the Wetterau. It was defended by Ramsay, a Scotchman, for 9 months, against the Imperialists in the Thirty Years' War. The Neustadt was founded by exiled Walloons and Netherlanders in 1597, and the manufactures established by them still flourish here, especially jewellery.

On quitting the town, the line crosses the last Battle-field of Napoleon in Germany, October 30 and 31, 1813, when, retreating from Leipzig with the wreck of his army, he cut his way through the Bavarians and Austrians. The loss of the allies exceeded that of the French; it would have been greater, but for the manœuvre of a miller, who, observing the German infantry hard pressed by a body of French cavalry, suddenly let the water into his mill-stream, between the two parties, and thus secured the retreat of his own friends.

The hills on the l. are the Taunus, those on the rt. the Spessart chain. The château of Langenselbold was purchased in 1851 by Dom Miguel of Portugal (d. 1866).

13 m. Gelnhausen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Sonne; Post) stands on a hill-slope on the Kinzig, and has 3700 Inhab. It was once a free Imperial city of note, having been chosen as a residence by the Emp. Frederick Barbarossa. In 1803 it was annexed to Hessen-Cassel, and thus fell to Prussia in 1866. The ruins of his Palace, built about 1144, still exist on an island in the Kinzig, in the lower part of the town, but are fast going to decay. Obs. the massive Romanesque masonry; also the row of open round arches upon coupled columns, carved and enriched with the most delicate art of their time. The roofless Chapel over the gateway, and the Reichssaal, where the Diets of 1180 and 1195 were held, are shown; also "the throne of Barbarossa," which appears to be nothing more than the supporting shafts of a large fireplace which had a projecting hood.

The picturesque parish Ch. of St. Mary also is interesting in an architectural point of view, as it was built in the 13th cent., and shows the transition from the Round into the Pointed style. It has a central octagon and two eastern octagonal towers, all three crowned with wooden spires. The W. tower belonged to an older ch. All the towers, together with the chief apse, have each of their faces gabled. The interior is bare, but the altars keep their fine old triptychs, and there is a stately stone roodloft, carved with a representation of the Last Judgment. The doorways and capitals of the pillars are richly ornamented, and the windows are filled with fine stained glass. In the outer wall are inscriptions recording remarkable events, as the price of grain in years of scarceness, earthquakes, floods, &c. The pass of Gelnhausen is one of the most important military points in Central Germany.

[Branch Rly. N. W. 42 m. to Giessen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 70), in progress S. E. to Partenstein.]

23 m. Elm Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S. 28 m. to Gmünden on the Main and Würzburg line, passing through 13 m. Jossa Stat., whence diligence twice daily in summer in 2½ hrs. to E. 11 m. the Baths of Brückenau, a much frequented watering-place. (See Handbk. for S. Germany, Rte. 169.)]

18 m. Fulda Junct. Stat. (Inns: Kurfürst; Post). A walled town (10 min. from Stat.) of 10,000 Inhab. (2000 Pro- testants, 600 Jews), on the Fulda, a beautiful stream winding through a fertile valley. The town owes its rise to the great and primatial Benedictine abbey, founded here in 744, by St. Boniface, the English apostle of Germany. The abbey of Fulda was raised in 1752 to a bishopric, but its territory secularized in 1803. The Cathedral, formerly the abbatial ch., is an uninteresting Italian building, erected 1712, and is the fourth ch. which has stood on this site. Nothing remains of the third building but the restored crypt, containing the shrine of St. Boniface, in which formerly lay his body, now reduced to a fragment of his skull. In the sacristy is St. Boniface's ivory pastoral staff, and the dagger with which he was murdered by the Frisians, A.D. 754.
[N. G.]

St. Michael's is a remarkable small round ch., founded in the 9th cent. The existing crypt of that age is supported in the centre by a stunted column, with a rude Ionic capital. The circular nave, and central tower resting on 6 columns, were rebuilt in 1092, and a W. tower added. Each tower is crowned with a spire.

Most of the monasteries here have been turned to secular purposes. The Schloss was formerly the residence of the Bishops of Fulda. A great bronze statue of St. Boniface, by Henschel, was erected in 1842 in the open space before it. Good views from the neighbouring Frauenberg and the more distant Petersberg. [Branch Rly. W. to Giessen.]

24 m. Hersfeld Stat. An old walled manufacturing town (Pop. 6800), celebrated for the great Benedictine Abbey, founded here in 737 by the Frankish King Pippin, and definitively secularized in 1648. The ruined Romanesque abbey ch., early 12th cent., was burnt by the French in 1761. [Branch Rly. in progress S.W. to Alsfeld.]

8 m. Bebra Junct. Stat., on the Fulda river. [Rly. N. W. to Cassel (see Rte. 92), in progress N. to Witzenhausen on the line from Cassel to Nordhausen, completed as far as 23 m.

Eschwege Stat., in the beautiful valley of the Werra.]

12 m. Gerstungen Stat., in the Duchy of Weimar and on the Werra.

The line now enters upon the Thüringerwald (Thuringian Forest); a great portion of the country is covered with unbroken wood. Near Eisenach, the castle of the Wartburg, Luther's prison, is seen on the summit of a hill on the rt.

13 m. Eisenach Junct. Stat. (Inns: Grossherzog von Sachsen, close to Stat., best; *Halber Mond and Rautenkranz in the town). Guides (unnecessary), bearing an official plate, 2 mks. for the day. This is the principal town of the Thüringerwald; it is clean, thriving, and industrious (Pop. 14,000), and is prettily situated, encircled by wooded hills. Sebastian Bach was born here, 1685. The oldest building is the Nicolaithurm, a tower and gate, the arch of which resembles Roman work, near the railway. In the Market-place is the Schloss, rebuilt 1742, inhabited for some years by the Duchess of Orleans (died 1858). The Gardens of Mr. Eichel are pretty, and command fine views; tickets to see them may be had at his office in the town.

A good carriage-road (footpath shorter, guide unnecessary), to be surmounted in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.'s walk (fiacre, up and down, 5 mks., make a bargain), of continued ascent, of 600 ft. (Inn on top; guide for the interior to be inquired for here, 50 pf. each), leads to the Castle of the Wartburg, the ancient residence of the Landgraves of Thuringia, but more remarkable as the asylum of Luther from May 4, 1521, to March 6, 1522. It was while returning from the Diet of Worms, where he had so nobly stood forth in defence of his faith, unmoved by threats or cajoling, that, on reaching the borders of the Thuringian forest, he was waylaid by a party of armed and vizored knights, his attendants dispersed, and himself made prisoner. So secretly was the capture effected, that no one knew for a time what had become of him; even Luther himself, it is believed, at the moment of his seizure, was not aware that the whole was merely the device of his friend Frederick, Elector of Saxony, adopted with the view of rescuing him from the dangers which at that moment threatened his life. He was silently conveyed away to the Wartburg, where he passed for a young nobleman, wearing a suitable dress, allowing his beard to grow, and taking the name of Junker Georg (Squire George). During the time which he spent in this solitude, which he often calls his "Patmos," he wrote several works, among them his translation of the New Testament.

The Wartburg, whose oldest portion, restored to light since 1847, including a long range of Romanesque arcades, dates from 1150, is an extensive, interesting, and picturesque castle, visible from far and near, overlooking a wide range of wild forest-clad hills. The chamber which Luther inhabited is pointed out. Portions of his bedstead and chair have been carried away in chips by visitors as relics; but these and his table are now preserved by strong iron bands. He has himself described in his writings the attacks to which he was here subjected, in his solitary hours, from the Evil One, whom he is reported to have repulsed by throwing the inkstand at his head. The windows of his cell command a beautiful view. Here are portraits of his parents, by L. Cranach the elder, wonderfully truthful.

In another division of the castle is an Armoury, in which are several beautiful suits of the 16th and 17th cent., and some as old as the 15th. Many of the suits are assigned to great persons, such as Pope Julius II., and Henry II. of France, both finely worked; that of "Frederick with the bitten cheek" (so called because his mother, in the anguish of parting with him when a child, bit his cheek till the blood came), and of Lewis the Leaper. Here are shown the armour of Kunz of Kaufungen, a robber knight of gigantic stature, who stole away two of the Saxon princes, and was beheaded at Freiberg; two suits, said to have been worn by Kunegunde and Agnes, Saxon princesses and heroines; the Constable de Bourbon's armour, which he wore at the moment of his death, while in the act of scaling the walls of Rome; that of Feige von Bomsen; and of many dukes and landgraves of Thuringia. The Wartburg was the residence of St. Elizabeth, Landgravine of Thuringia, who being discovered by her stingy husband distributing victuals to the poor from her apron, and being asked what she had there, replied, "Flowers." The husband, thinking to detect her in a falsehood, tore open the garment, and lo! flowers fell out. By a miracle, to cover the pious fraud, and reward the lady's charity, the bread and cheese had been turned into roses and lilies! In 1207 the Minnesängers (Northern Troubadours) assembled on the Wartburg to hold a trial of skill. In 1817, 500 riotous students collected here from different German universities, chiefly from Jena, with several professors, and made some seditious and revolutionary speeches, which led to several arrests. The old castle has been splendidly restored, but to the detriment of its antique character; a curious gallery of arches in the upper storey has been opened out, and the interior, its halls and corridors, have been covered with modern fresco-paintings, by M. v. Schwind, relating to its history.

If a pedestrian, you will easily find a handy lad to show you the way, to the Annathal (2 m. from Eisenach, close to the Coburg road), a narrow, romantic, moss-grown glen, where walls of rock on either hand leave barely room for one person to pass, while beneath gurgles a threadlike stream. The narrowest part of the gorge is called Drachenschlucht. Returning a little way, a path on l. leads up to the Wartburg, from which you descend, on the other side, in half an hour to the town. This walk and the visit to the castle will take up 3 or 4 hrs. It is also accessible in a carriage. Longer excursions, on foot or by carriage, to Liebenstein (see Rte. 92), through the Marienthal, Annathal, and Wilhelmsthal, returning by Altenstein (see Rte. 92), and Ruhla (Inns, Traube; Schwan; Badhaus), a curious and interesting old manufacturing town of 4900 Inhab.

in a long narrow valley; also to Landgrafenloch, Hirschstein, Wachstein.

Though the principality of Eisenach belongs to Saxe-Weimar, it is separated from the rest of that Grand Duchy by Saxe-Gotha and a part of Prussia.

Rly. S. to Coburg (see Rte. 92), and E. the line continues to 10 m. Fröttstedt Stat. [Branch Rly. S. 4 m. to Waltershausen, an industrious prettily situated little town of 3800 Inhab. This line gives easy access to the best parts of the Thuringian forest (see below).]

A pretty country is traversed to 8 m. Gotha Junct. Stat. About $\frac{1}{2}$ m. S. of town. Hotel omnibus, and cabs at Rly. (Good Buffet, civil people.)

Inns: Deutscher Hof, Gr. Erfurter Strasse; Wünscher's H., corner of same street and the Neu Markt; H. Riese (and Restaurant), in the Haupt-Markt Platz; Stadt Coburg.

Restaurant: Ress (Schott), near the Theatre; good beer. The Gotha sausages ("Bratwurst") at Gam's, on the market-place, are celebrated.

This chief town of the duchy and, alternately with Coburg, the residence of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, is a quiet pretty little place on the Leine stream, Pop. 21,000; and though the town itself may be seen in a few hours (leaving luggage at the Stat.), it is an excellent starting point for a few days' excursion into the Thüringer Wald.

The Schloss Friedenstein, built 1643, is a large, but not a handsome building, conspicuous on a height, 1150 ft. above the sea-level, surrounded by terraces commanding fine views. The collections are shown gratis on Tues. and Frid., 9 to 1, from April 1 to Oct. 31: at other times for a fee of 3 mks. 6 pers. To see the Library, Coins, and Engravings, application must be made to the several Directors.

The Picture Gallery, not of first-rate excellence, but including many good by Cranach, who lived in the corner house in the Market-place; portraits of Luther and his wife, and Melancthon; Holbein, 2 portraits of the Sulzer family; Van Eyck, portrait of Philip of Burgundy; L. v. Leyden, Judith and Holofernes; and Dutch pictures, particularly a female portrait by Van der Helst; Rembrandt's Mother; Rubens' sketches for the Borromeo Ch. at Antwerp; Van Dyk's portrait of himself and of Rubens' wife; G. Dow, an old woman spinning; P. Potter, a cattle-piece; views of Flushing and Fort Lillo, by Van Goyens; 2 little Saxon princes, supposed to be Ernst and Albert; a screen, with 72 subjects from the Gospels, of A. Dürer's school; some good small specimens of ancient Florentine painting; and a portrait of Agnes of Mansfeld.

The cabinet of engravings is large and excellent. In the Kunstkammer may be seen the swords of Charlemagne and Sobieski; the prayer-book of James I. and Anne of Denmark, bound by Cellini; a ring of Mary Stuart; Louis XIV.'s head on an amethyst; fine gold-mounted nautili; and some capital figures executed in wood. Among the gems is a Medusa's head in sardonyx, a cameo with Jupiter and Ceres; carvings in ivory and wood, &c. The Library, of 200,000 vols., includes a copy of the Gospels, presented by Emp. Otho II. to the convent of Echternach (A.D. 973), remarkable for its Byzantine miniatures and binding; 2000 MSS. collected in the East by Seetzen. In the Museum of Natural History, the specimens of cheirotherium, mammoth, and amber are fine. The collection of Coins and Medals is very complete, and contains some English medals of the 17th cent. not to be found elsewhere. The Japanese and Chinese Museum contains many curiosities. Among the porcelain are specimens of Böttcher's (of Dresden) first attempts. A handsome Museum, by Neumann, is now erected behind the castle, to contain a portion of the above collections. The Park, Gardens, and Terraces adjoining the palace are very prettily laid out, and the Boulevards round the town are agreeable promenades. In the small Palace in the Ohrdruffer Strasse, is a collection of modern pictures; among them Wapper's (the Belgian) Charles IX. firing on the Huguenots, &c. Near it is the Duke's Stable (Marstall), containing a valuable stud.

The Rathhaus, on the market-place, was built 1574.

The Theatre is a handsome building, largely supported by the reigning Duke, but is open in winter only. Near it is the monument to Arnoldi, born 1778, died 1841, the founder of the large Life and Fire Insurance Offices in the town. Near the Real-Schule is a monument to Fried. Jacobs the painter, who died here 1867.

In the Friedrichs Allee is the Justus Perthes Geographical Establishment, presided over by Dr. Petermann. Here the 'Almanach de Gotha' is published.

On the summit of a hill is the Seeberg Observatory, formerly the residence of Baron Zach, the astronomer, now a Restaurant.

At Siebleben, about $\frac{1}{4}$ m. out of the town, on the way to Erfurt, Grimm, author of the 'Correspondence,' is buried. Here lives M. Freitag, author of 'Sollen und Haben.'

Excursions into the Thüringer Wald (see also the Preliminary Information at the head of this Section).

(a.) Omnibus daily in summer in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to 12 m. Friedrichroda (a village of 8000 Inhab. Inn: Herzog Ernst, charmingly situated, and surrounded by villas erected as summer residences by wealthy Germans from all parts), passing on the road Schnepfenthal, the institution for education (Erziehungs Anstalt) founded 1784 by Mr. Salzmann, and Reinhardtsbrunn (good Inn close to château), a ducal country seat, in the form of a Gothic château, erected on the site of a Benedictine abbey, destroyed in the Peasants' War, 1525. Several old monuments of Saxon princes are in the Chapel. The country about it resembles a beautiful park. (The direction of the paths is indicated by finger-posts, and therefore guide unnecessary.) The Inselberg, nearly 3000 ft. above the sea, with a large and good Hotel on the top, is about 2½ hrs.' walk from this, and commands a finer view than any other mountain of the Thuringian range.

(b.) Waltershausen, reached from the Fröttstedt Stat. (see above).

(c.) Hildburghausen. Rly. as far as Ohrdruf, see Rte. 86A.

(d.) Arnstadt, Ilmenau, Rudolstadt, and Schwarzburg, by Rly. from Gotha to Neu-Dietendorf Stat. and Rte. 86B.

[Gotha is now in direct communication with the N. by the Branch Rly. through Langensalza and Mühlhausen to Leinefelde Junct. Stat. on the line from Cassel to Nordhausen (see Rte. 93).]

From Gotha the line to Erfurt proceeds E., passing on the rt. the village of Wandersleben, S. of which are seen the three castles called Drei Gleichen. They are of great antiquity, and belonged to different owners, but were all struck with lightning in 1250. Mühlberg is a total ruin, except its donjon tower. Gleichen is in a better state of preservation, the roof remaining in part. The Wachsenburg is still entire.

9 m. Neu-Dietendorf Junct. Stat. (see above, excursions from Gotha (d).)

[Branch Rly. S. 6 m. to Arnstadt (see Rte. 86B).

Beyond this, about half-way between Gotha and Erfurt, the boundary of Prussia is crossed. At a little distance from the walls of Erfurt the strong citadel of Cyriaksburg is passed.

8 m. Erfurt Junct. Stat. (Inns: Römischer Kaiser, great civility; Weisses Ross). This very old town was, until 1803, included in the dominions of the Archbishop Elector of Mainz; it now belongs to Prussia, and is a first-class fortress, very important from its situation on the great high road of Central Europe. The citadel of the Petersberg, on a height close by the town, and the loftier fort of the Cyriaksburg, situated further off, both formerly monasteries, add greatly to its strength. It stands on the Gera (famous for water-cresses), over which are several bridges. Its Market and Nursery Gardens exceed 2000 acres in area. Erfurt contains about 40 nursery and seedsmen. Its streets are wide and full of interesting old houses, with carved fronts. It has 8 Roman Catholic and 9 Lutheran churches, yet its population has shrunk to 43,760; little more than half of what it once possessed (7000 Rom. Catholics). Garrison 4500 men.

The Dom-Kirche (Cath.), approached by a broad flight of steps, is a fine Gothic structure, well restored, and the W. front adorned in 1870 with a good mosaic Madonna, by Salviati of Venice. The building occupies the site of a wooden ch. built about 740 by St. Boniface, who here founded a short-lived Bishopric. The chief feature is the choir, 1353, wider than the nave, and not on a line with it. The nave, 1472, has side aisles wider than itself and is partly separated from the choir by 2 stately towers of the 12th cent. In the N. tower hangs the famous bell, called Maria Gloriosa, weighing 275 cwt., much ornamented and dated 1497. Obs. the N. portal, leading into the transept, and forming a triangular porch, resembling the porch of Ratisbon, enriched with statues, reliefs, and tracery—the altars on the l. as you enter are very elegant—a bronze relief, attached to the monument of Canon Henning Göden (d. 1521), of the Coronation of the Virgin, by Peter Vischer of Nuremberg, a highly finished work—the monument of Ernst Count Gleichen with his 2 wives, 12th cent., brought from the Petersberg. The floor is inlaid with monumental stone slabs carved in relief, with effigies of canons. Within the choir is very fine painted glass and an old bronze candelabrum, representing a penitent holding tapers, with an inscription not satisfactorily explained. The stalls are partly ancient. There is a very good Holy Family, by L. Cranach, and another painting, with date 1534, on the door of a reliquary in the wall. The pulpit is modern, by Schinkel. The cloisters display a range of tracery of 13th and 14th cents. The view from the top of the tower will well repay for the ascent.

In the Ch. of St. Severus, distinguished by its 3 spires, near the Dom, over an altar is a high relief of the Archangel Michael, of excellent workmanship, and a richly decorated font, with cover 30 ft. high, a remarkable example of inter-penetration or stump tracery, date 1467.

In the Barfüsserkirche is a carved and painted altar-piece of the Coronation of the Virgin, with statues of the Apostles.

One object of particular historic interest at Erfurt was Luther's Cell in the former Augustine convent; but the building, including several priceless relics of him, was destroyed by fire 1872. He entered the convent as a novice, July 17, 1505, in consequence of a vow made 14 days before, on the death of a friend who was struck by lightning at his side. Here he spent several years: at the altar in the chapel he said his first mass, and here he first studied the Bible, of which he never saw a copy until he was 20 years old.

In the Fishmarket, in front of the Rathhaus (rebuilt 1873), stands a Rolandsäule. The fortifications, and the Walks outside of these, command fine views of the town and its numerous spires. The Steiger is the most frequented walk; reached through market-gardens, singularly irrigated.

Schropp's models of Gothic buildings, &c., are worth seeing.

The University of Erfurt was founded 1378, and was suppressed in 1816. Of the numerous old convents which existed here till recently one only remains, the Ursuline Nunnery. It is worth visiting, as an interesting specimen of a monastic establishment. The sisters employ themselves in teaching.

From the 13th to the 16th cent. Erfurt was a Hanse Town, and a staple of the trade of a great part of Europe. The main commercial highway between the Baltic and the Hanse Towns on the one hand, and Italy and Venice on the other, lay through Augsburg, Nuremberg, Erfurt, and Brunswick, to Lübeck and Danzig.

A Congress of sovereigns was assembled at Erfurt in 1808 by Napoleon, on the occasion of his meeting with the Czar Alexander. The French Emperor resided in the palace of Count Dalberg, now the Regierungs Gebäude, in the street called the Anger, and occupied during the 17th and 18th cents. by the Governor deputed by the Elector of Mayence. From 1806 to 1813 Erfurt was held by the French.

Rly.—N. 46 m. through Sondershausen to Nordhausen Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 67)—in progress N.E. through Sangerhausen to Berlin, and in progress S. to Rudolstadt (in Rte. 86B); and E. the line passes through the fortifications by a short tunnel, and soon after enters Saxe-Weimar at 4 m. Vieselbach Stat.

8 m. Weimar Junct. Stat. nearly 1 m. from the town. Cab (Droschke), 1 per. 50 pf. Omnibus, 25 pf. (Inns: Russischer Hof; Erbprinz; Elephant; Ziegler's H.). This quiet provincial-looking town on the Ilm, the residence and capital of the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar, has 15,800 Inhab. It has no trade to give it activity, but the presence of a Court helps to enliven it. It has lost its claim to its appellation of The Athens of the North since the deaths of Schiller (1805), Göthe (1832), Wieland (1813), Herder (1803), and other men of genius and learning, who, though not natives of the duchy, resided here by invitation of the former Duke, and conferred a lustre on his court and capital.

The chief buildings are the Museum, situated at the entrance into the town, a Renaissance building, completed 1869 (in summer open daily, except Monday, 10–4, 50 pf., catalogue, 60 pf.). The Sculpture, on the ground-floor, includes (in a niche on the staircase) Steinhaüser's Göthe, and there are also here some good specimens of ancient glass, carved ivory, porcelain, and a fine collection of old Italian majolica. The Picture Gallery, on the first floor, contains some good paintings by L. Cranach (who died at Weimar); an altar-piece by Rubens; and cartoons by Schwind, Carstens, Cornelius, and Steinle. The frescoes by F. Preller, in the N. Gallery, illustrating the Odyssey, deserve particular notice.

The Stadtkirche was built 1400, but is modernized. The altar-piece of the Crucifixion, by Lucas Cranach, is his finest work; it contains portraits of the artist himself near the cross, and of his friends Luther and Melanchthon; upon the wings are the Saxon Elector, John Frederick, and his family. Near it, in the chancel, is the tombstone, with full-length effigy, of Cranach (d. 1553), removed hither in 1859 from St. James's. The mason who carved his epitaph has written pictor celerrimus, instead of celeberrimus; it can hardly be said by mistake, because both epithets are equally deserved. 44 members of the Ducal Family of Saxe-Weimar are interred here. The most illustrious among them is Duke Bernard, died 1639, the brave general of the Thirty Years' War, the ally of Gustavus Adolphus, and second to him only among all the Protestant leaders. His grave has no other distinction than a simple brass plate. A tablet in the pavement bearing the name of Herder, marks the spot where that eminent writer is buried; and a bronze statue of him, by Schaller, stands in front of the Ch. He lived in a corner house, close to (N. of) the Ch.

In the Cemetery of the Schloss Kirche (St. James's) are the graves of the author Musæus (d. 1787), and of the composer Bode (d. 1793). Here also is Schiller's first burial place, as well as, up to 1859, that of Cranach.

The Grand Duke's Schloss built 1789–1803, is a handsome building, tastefully furnished, but not otherwise remarkable. A suite of apartments has been decorated by modern artists, Neher, Preller, &c., with frescoes, illustrating the works of Schiller, Göthe, Herder, and Wie- land. Leonardo da Vinci's original drawings for the Last Supper are shown in the Grand Duchess's apartments. The corridor leading to the Grand Duke's apartments is decorated with a collection of original drawings by Raphael, Michael Angelo, Rubens, &c. Duke Bernard's armour is kept in one of the rooms; and beside it, in a box, one of his fingers, which was cut off in an encounter with an enemy, and afterwards preserved and carried about by its owner.

Near the palace is the Public Library, rich in History, German literature, and productions of the early printing press. Obs. the colossal busts of Schiller, by Dannecker, and of Göthe, by David; busts of Herder and Wieland. There are also a few relics of great men, such as the black habit worn by Luther when a friar; Gustavus Adolphus's leather belt, pierced by the bullet which caused his death at Lützen.

On the Fürstenplatz, near the Schloss, is an equestrian statue of the Grand Duke Carl August, by Donndorf, erected 1875.

In the market-place is a handsome Gothic Rathhaus, built 1841. The house opposite the Rathhaus, now the bookseller Hoffmann's, was inhabited by the Cranachs, 1553 to 1586.

The house of Göthe, in which he died (1832), is in the Göthe- or Frauenplatz. It has been let by his family, and the interesting relics of him, and the collections which he left behind, are not now shown. His furniture was of a homely description: in his study were a common deal table (at which he wrote, which belonged to Schiller), his desk, and stool. He never had an arm-chair until he was 80. His drawing-room was decorated with casts from the antique, with models and drawings by the old masters. The house of Schiller is in the Schillerstrasse. It is now the property of the town, and contains a small collection of souvenirs — his writing-table, portrait, autographs, &c.

The Statues of Göthe and Schiller, by Rietschel, erected 1857, opposite the Theatre, were cast in Munich, and are very successful efforts; the statue of Herder, by Schaller, is near the Stadtkirche—that of Wieland by Gasser, on the Frauen-platz.

The Court Theatre, rebuilt 1825, was once under Göthe's and Schiller's management. The performances and music are still good. The audience has the character of a large family party: females come and go unattended, and ladies appear in morning dress. The play is generally over by nine.

In the New Cemetery, beyond the Frauenthor, beneath a small chapel, is the Grand Ducal burial-vault. Göthe and Schiller are here interred. The Grand Duke Charles Augustus (d. 1828), their patron and friend, intended that their remains should have been deposited on each side of him, but it appeared that courtly etiquette would not permit this proximity, and they have therefore been placed in one corner, at a respectful distance. Hummel the composer is also buried here (d. 1837). The apparatus used to prevent premature interment is curious (§ 44), and should be seen.

The grounds belonging to the Palace are laid out in a Park and Gardens, extending along the pleasant banks of the Ilm. They are much esteemed by the inhabitants as a promenade. Within them is situated the summer residence of Göthe and the Römisches Haus, which still contains the furniture, pictures, &c., of 1815, when Charles Augustus and Göthe used to stay here. The park communicates, by an avenue, with the summer villa called Belvedere (2 m.), commanding a fine view, and having a hothouse, conservatory, and fine garden attached to it. Another schloss of the Grand Duke is prettily situated at Tieffurt: it is worth a visit. It contains an immense quantity of rococo of all descriptions. The kitchen is lined with old Dutch tiles, and the dressers covered with all sorts of game, fruit, fish, &c., in porcelain, delf, and papier-maché. Several of Göthe's plays were performed, for the first time, in this park under the trees near the banks of the Ilm.

Ettersburg, a hunting-seat of the Grand Duke, built 1706, and often frequented by Göthe and Schiller, forms a pretty excursion a few miles out of the town.

[Branch Rly. S.E. 12 m. to Jena Junct. Stat. (Inns: Bär (Luther slept here one night); Sonne; Deutsches Haus), a dull, dingy, antiquated town on the Saale (Pop. 8500), in a hollow surrounded by naked hills. It has nothing worth notice but its University, founded 1548 by the Elector John Frederick of Saxony (of whom there is a bronze statue in the market-place, by Drake 1858). It numbers at present about 500 students. The University Museum and Library are valuable to students. The Garden of the Observatory was Schiller's favourite resort while Professor of History, between 1789 and 1799, and he composed in it his 'Wallenstein.' Göthe wrote the 'Erlkönig' in the Tanne Inn across the bridge over the Saale. An old tower (Fuchsthurm) on the Hausberg, behind Jena, commands a fine view. [Rly N.E. to Grossheringen (see below), and S.W. to Saalfeld.

Jena may be conveniently included in a tour through the Thuringian Forest from Weimar (see Preliminary Information at the head of this Section).]

The line for Leipzig continues E., crosses the Ilm, and rt. in the hollow is seen Osmanstädt, where Wieland the poet lies buried in his garden (d. 1813), by the side of his wife and his friend Sophie Brentano.

9 m. Apolda Stat. (Inn: H. Bismarck; Weintraube). A modern town, manufacturing woollen stuffs.

The field of the battle of Auerstädt, or Jena, so disastrous to Prussia, 14th Oct. 1806, lies near Hassenhausen, 3 m. S. of the railroad, between the Apolda Stat. and Naumburg. A small pillar has been erected by the King of Prussia in a field to the S. of the road, between Eckhardsberge and Naumburg, to mark the spot where the aged Ferdinand Duke of Brunswick was mortally wounded.

8 m. Stadt Sulza Stat. Some way beyond this the Grand Duchy of Saxe-Weimar terminates, and Prussia is entered.

1 m. Grossheringen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. 33 m. to Straussfurt on the Rly between Erfurt and Nordhausen. — Branch Rly. S.W. 46 m. to Jena (see above), Rudolstadt, and Saalfeld, through the beautiful valley of the Saale.]

Between Sulza and Naumburg the Railroad traverses the narrow and picturesque defile of the Saale. In it are situated the salt-works, baths, and mineral springs of 4 m. Kösen Stat. (Buffet, good) (Inns: Ritter; Kurhaus), the approach to which is singular and picturesque; on the right, high above the Saale, is the ruined Castle of Saaleck, and opposite to it the ruins of the Rudelsburg, where Kugler (d. 1858) wrote the well-known verses beginning "An der Saale hellem strande." The baths are supplied from the brine, or mother liquor, left in the pans when nearly all the salt has been extracted.

Close to the railroad lies the curious village Schulpforta, whose Ch. (formerly belonging to a Cistercian abbey, suppressed 1540) is a noble Gothic building (choir, 1251-68), and in whose well-conducted School, 300 years old, Klopstock and Lessing were educated.

4 m. Naumburg Stat., at some distance from the town. (Inns: Sächsischer Hof, in the town; Preussischer Hof, good, in the suburbs; Grüner Schild.) An industrious and picturesque town of 14,700 Inhab., beautifully situated in the valley of the Saale, in the midst of an amphitheatre of hills covered with vines and dotted with country-houses. Its name is a contraction of Neuenburg (new castle). The Cathedral (Prot.—last bishop died 1564) is a remarkable edifice, with choir at the E. and W. ends. The nave (b. 1209-42), transepts, crypt, and towers are Romanesque. The W. choir is Pointed in the purest style; the statues of the founders against the pillars are very fine works of the 13th cent. The W. roodloft is also of the best period of Gothic. The crucifix is placed underneath, in the doorway; the front is ornamented with reliefs. The E. choir is Dec. in style, later than the W. end, and has a Romanesque Roodloft, a rare example of the style. Obs. the foliated capitals of the crypt. The whole church is undergoing restoration, and its contents, monuments, sculptures, painted glass, and books, are well worth study.

In the Ch. of St. Wenzel (Stadtkirche) is a picture of Christ blessing the children, by Cranach. The former Schloss, on the market-place, dates from the middle of the 17th cent. At Naumburg is held an annual Midsummer fair, granted in 1514 by the Emperor Maximilian I.

Naumburg was a place of importance during the Thirty Years' War, and in the campaigns of 1806 and 1813. Napoleon having turned the flank of the Prussian army, seized the town, and this proved one of the main causes of the disastrous defeat at Jena. This town was again occupied by the French, previously to the battle of Lützen, 1st May, 1813, and its possession was long and fiercely contested between the French and Russians. After the rout of Leipzig, the Allies having occupied Naumburg, Napoleon was obliged to turn aside towards Freiburg, on the Unstrut, out of the main road, the defiles near Naumburg being occupied with cannon.

[Rly. in progress (Diligence in meantime) to 5 m. N.W. Freiburg, on the Unstrut (Inn, Bär), a picturesque walled town, with a castle (restored), founded in 1075, and interesting Stadtkirche, also restored. Sir Robert Schomburgk, the Amazon traveller and discoverer of the Victoria Regia, was born here (died 1865).]

Naumburg and Weissenfels are among the most northern points in Europe where Vineyards are planted; but the greater part of the wine produced from them so nearly resembles vinegar, that it is chiefly profitable when sold as such, or when distilled to make brandy.

From the Rly. the castles of Schönburg and Goseck are seen on the left, before reaching 8 m. Weissenfels Junct. Stat. (Inns: zum Schützen; Drei Schwäne). In a country-house near the Stat., marked with an N., Napoleon slept the night, between 19th and 20th Oct., 1813, after the battle of Leipzig. A town of 15,650 Inhab., on the Saale. The many-windowed Schloss on the height to the S.W. of the town, was up to 1746 the residence of the Dukes of Saxe-Weissenfels, now a barrack.

The dead body of Gustavus Adolphus was brought hither after the battle of Lützen (see below), and embalmed in a room of the Town-house (Amtshaus), in the presence of Bernard of Saxe-Weimar. It is recorded that his heart weighed 1 lb. 2 oz.; that the body bore the marks of 8 wounds, i.e. 5 gunshots, 2 cuts, 1 stab. A part of the wall, which was stained with his blood, is still preserved from external contact. His widowed queen repaired hither to receive the body. The heart was instantly conveyed to Stockholm.

[Branch Rly. S. E., 18 m., to Zeitz Junct. Stat. for Altenburg, Gera, Saalfeld, &c. (see Rte. 86c).]

The line from Weissenfels turns N. to 4 m. Corbetha Junct. Stat.

[About 5 m. W. of this is Rosbach, the scene of one of Frederick the Great's most memorable and unexpected victories, which he gained with an army of only 22,000 Prussians over 60,000 French and Austrians under Soubise, Nov. 5, 1757. The King directed his manœuvres from the castle of Rossbach. From the ridge on which it stands he despatched Seydlitz, at the head of his cavalry, to sweep down the French in successive charges, and he succeeded in driving them from the field in less than half an hour. The enemy, previously certain of victory, had directed their chief efforts to prevent the escape of Frederick, and had weakened their line by so doing, which caused their defeat. A memorial pillar erected upon the battle-field was carried away to Paris by Napoleon in 1806. On the 100th anniversary of the battle (1857) the foundation stone of a new monument was laid.]

[From Corbetha, Branch Rly. N., 14 m., to Halle Junct. Stat. (described in Rte. 64), passing

5 m. Merseburg Stat. (Inns: Sonne; Ritter). A very old town of 13,000 Inhab.; with a picturesque Castle, chiefly of the 15th cent., overlooking the river, once the residence of the Bishops of Merseburg, and (after the secularization of the Bishopric, 1648) of the Dukes of Saxe-Merseburg. The ch., within it (formerly the Cathedral), is chiefly of plain early pointed, lancet windows, but the nave is late; piers without capitals. It is rich in monuments; that of Rudolph of Swabia (d. 1080), a bronze plate in low relief, representing him in imperial attire, is probably the oldest mediæval effigy extant. In the N. transept is the altar-tomb of Bishop Thilo v. Trotha (d. 1514), bearing a brass effigy, and on the wall above, one kneeling in prayer. The bishop is said to have wrongfully put to death a servant for stealing a ring, whereas the real thief was a raven. For this cause he took the raven and ring as his arms, and for this a live raven is still maintained in a cage in the castle-court. On the wall of the ante-nave is a bronze of Bishop Lindenau, by Peter Vischer, and a font on which are figures

- Buildings. B.C.4 R. O. s. c. h. a. l.
Post Office B.4
New Theatre C.4
University C.4
Museum C.5
Johannis Ch. B.4
St. Nicholas Ch. B.4
Bookseller's Exchange B.4
Auerbach's Keller B.3
Rathhaus B.3
Exchange B.3
Pleisnerburg B.3
St. Thomas Ch. B.3
Old Theatre A.3
Pomatorowsky Mon. B.2
Schützenhaus B.5

- Hotels. C. 4. a Hauffe B. C. 3.
b Russie B. C. 3.
c Babriere B. 3.
d Prusse B. 3.
e Stadt Rom B. 4.

LEIPZIG

for Murray's Handbook

London, John Murray, Albemarle Street
Bay Railway Station

Edw. Well.

of the Prophets carrying the Evangelists on their shoulders. In the choir are pictures by L. Cranach, and in the sacristy Empress Kunigunda's mantle and the dried hand of Rudolph of Swabia cut off in the battle of Mölsen, where he was slain. The bishopric of Merseburg was founded by Otto I. in 968].

The direct line from Weissenfels to Leipzig continues E., crossing the Saale to 5 m. Kötschau Stat. Salt-works in the neighbourhood.

[About 4 m. S. of this is Lützen. (Inns not good.) A small village (Pop. 2700), whose name would never have been heard of, but for the great battles fought in its vicinity. About a mile out of the town, by the side of the high road to Leipzig, a rude unsquared block of granite, one of the most southern of those mysterious boulders which have been transported from the mountains of Scandinavia, is set up, shaded by a few poplars, and further distinguished by a Gothic canopy of cast iron, raised over it in 1838. This is called the Swedes stone (Schwedenstein), and marks the spot where Gustavus Adolphus fell, in the battle of Lützen, Nov. 16, 1632. This was one of the most fiercely contested engagements recorded in history. In the course of it, Piccolomini had seven horses killed under him, and Pappenheim was mortally wounded, and died the next day at Leipzig, while their colleague, the Imperial Generalissimo Wallenstein, rode unhurt through a shower of balls. The Swedish cavalry fought long and bravely for the possession of the corpse of their sovereign, and at last bore it off triumphantly to the church of the neighbouring village of Meuchen, whence it was conveyed to Weissenfels (see above).

Lützen is also memorable for a more recent battle, fought May 2, 1813, between Napoleon and the Allied Russians and Prussians. The French maintained possession of the field, but gained no other material advantage, after a bloody engagement. The Prussian General

Scharnhorst died of a wound received on this occasion; Blücher was also severely wounded. In the defile of Rippach, 3 m. from Lützen, Marshal Bessières was killed in a skirmish the day before. The Prussians have named this battle after the village of Gross-Görschen, a little to the S. of Lützen. This was the first occasion in which they measured their strength successfully with the French, after the fatal battle of Jena.

The campaign of 1813 was fought over a great portion of the same ground as that of 1806; the same posts were contested and defended, but with very different results. Napoleon, successful at first, suffered finally in the neighbourhood of Leipzig a most decisive defeat. The operations of that memorable battle are described below.]

4 m. Mark Ranstädt Stat. is the first town in Saxony (Pop. 1400). In the Castle of Alt-Ranstädt, about 2 m. to the N.W., Charles XII. of Sweden (who had his head-quarters here for 10 months) concluded a peace (1706) with Augustus II., King of Poland and Elector of Saxony, whereby Augustus was driven to renounce his claims upon the Polish throne and to acknowledge the election of Charles's ally Stanislaus Leczynsky. The Duke of Marlborough here visited the youthful monarch on a secret mission, and complimented him by expressing a wish to serve in a campaign under so great a general.

The line makes a sweep N., and is joined at Barnech by the Rly. from Zeitz (Rte. 86c), and crossing the Elster, turns S. into 8 m. Leipzig (Thüringer Bahnhof) Junct. Stat.

Cabs (Fiacre).—A metal ticket is handed by rly. official corresponding to cab the traveller is entitled to in his turn. Tariff, from Stat. into the town—1 pers., 60 pf.; 4 pers., 1 mk. 10 pf. Portmanteau, 20 pf. (double fare at night).

Inns: H. Hauffe, corner of Rossplatz and Ross Strasse; handsomely fitted, good situation;—H. de Russie, good, and H. de Bavière, both in the Petersstrasse;—H. de Prusse (Napoleon's head-quarters, 1813), 7 Rossplatz;—H. de Pologne, 8 Hainstrasse;—H. Palmbaum, 65 Gerberstrasse, near the Berlin Rly. Stat.;—H. Stadt Dresden (and Restaurant), 11 Grimmaischer Steinweg;—H. Stadt Hamburg, and H. Stadt London (and Restaurant), both in the Nicolaistrasse;—H. Stadt Rom, Bahnhofstrasse, near Dresden Rly. Stat. 2nd Class: H. Stadt Wien (and Restaurant), 20 Petersstrasse;—H. Stadt Nürnberg, 20 Bayerschestrasse, near Bavarian Rly. Stat.;—H. Münchner Hof, 2 Königsplatz;—Müller's H. (and Restaurant), 16 Neukirchhof;—Lebe's H. Garni (and Restaurant), 10 Parkstrasse. At the Berlin, Dresden, Magdeburg, and Thüringer Stats., are rooms for late arrivals, and restaurants. (During the Fair the charges for rooms are at least doubled.)

Restaurants and Wine Shops.—Auerbach's Keller, 1 Grimmaischestrasse (a scene in Göthe's 'Faust,' see below); Aeckerlein's Keller, 11 Markt; Kitzing, 19 Petersstrasse; Theater Restauration on one side of the theatre, and Café at the other.

Cafés and Confectioners.—Felsche (Café Français), corner of Grimmaischestrasse and Augustusplatz; Schweizerhäuschen, in the Rosenthal (see below).

Theatres.—Neues (see below); Altes, 7 P.M., Sund. and Frid., and daily during the Fair.

Concerts in the Gewandhaus, 9 Universitätsstrasse, on Thursdays during the winter months.

Music Halls and Gardens.—Schützenhaus, not far from the Dresden Rly. Stat.; Central-halle, in the Centralstrasse.

Post Office.—Head office on the Augustusplatz, close to theatre. Open 7 A.M. to 8 P.M., and 58 letter-boxes through the town.

Telegraph Office.—5 Kleine fleischergasse; always open.

Omnibus.—To Connewitz, Entritzsch, Gohlis, Lindenau, Plagwitz, Thonberg, Neuschönefeld, every hour. To Liebertswolkwitz, Lützen, Schkeuditz, Taucha, and Zwenkau, 2 or 3 times daily.

Tramways.—Five lines from the Augustusplatz—E. to Anger; S. to Connewitz; W. to Lindenau; N.W. to Gohlis, and N. to Entritzsch, about every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.: fare, 25 pf.

Steamboat to Plagwitz every hour.

Baths (Warm).—Dianabad, 4 Langestrasse; Sophienbad, 1 Dorotheenstrasse River; Schwimmanstalt, in the Schreiberstrasse.

Eng. Consul.—Baron Tauchnitz, 6 Grimmaischer Steinweg.

Eng. Ch. Serv. at St. Johannis-kirche. Sund., 10.30 A.M.; 6.30 P.M., in summer; 11 and 5.30 in winter. Rev. Wills Whitford, chaplain. An English ch. is in progress, for which contributions are earnestly solicited. There are 200 or 300 resident English students and work-people.

This city, of considerable historical celebrity, of great commercial importance, and a place of more real business than most continental towns, is situated at the confluence of the little rivers Elster, Pleisse, and Partha, in an extensive plain about 350 ft. above the sea, and consists of the old central town, with extensive modern suburbs, and beyond these upwards of 7 villages in the immediate neighbourhood, making the city appear to cover a great deal of ground. Pop. 125,000.

Previous to the 11th cent. Lipsk existed as a Slavonic settlement, and was already a thriving town, dealing in corn, cattle, fruit, and salt, when in 1170 the Margrave Otto the Rich gave it the privilege of holding two annual markets, which as early as 1250 were largely visited by foreigners, to whom safe-conducts were accorded by imperial favour.

With the occasional aid of a cab or the tramway the town may be seen in 5 or 6 hrs. thus:

Leaving the Thuringian, Magdeburg or Dresden Rly. Stats., which stand close together at the N.E. corner of the town, and turning l. and S. down the Promenades—handsome wide boulevards occupying the site of the ancient city walls, encircling the old town, and separating it from the large suburbs now surrounding it on all sides—the Augustusplatz will be reached, a large wide square, surrounded by fine buildings, including the Theatre, the University, the Museum, and the Post Office.

The new Theatre, built 1867, by Langhans of Berlin, at a cost of 700,000 thl., is a large handsome building, with Corinthian portico; the tympanum of which is adorned with an allegorical group by Hagen. The verandah at the back has a pretty look-out on the small lake called the Schwanenteich. (Performances daily at 7.30 P.M. Ticket office open 10–4.) The interior is admirably arranged, and may be seen in the daytime on application to the Theater-inspector (fee 50 pf.).

The University buildings occupy the W. side of the square, and consist mainly of the Augusteum with the Paulinum at the back, and Pauliner-kirche. This University is one of the oldest in Germany, having been founded by the Misnian Margraves Frederick the Wrangler and his brother William in 1409; and it was until recently divided into 4 nations, Saxon, Meissnisch, Bavarian, and Polish, — “Saxo, Misnensis, Bavarus, tandemque Polonus.” The site was originally occupied by a Dominican convent (1240), secularized in 1539, and devoted to the purposes of the University. There are now about 60 professors, 40 private teachers, and 2800 students. It is one of the few scholastic establishments on the Continent which has retained its own landed estates, most of the others being now supported by annual grants. In other respects, also, it resembles our English universities; “commons” being kept for 300 students, who demand it on the plea of poverty, with a small additional subscription of 2 gros. a week “for pepper, vinegar, and salt” from those who participate.

The Augusteum was built in 1836, from the designs of Schinkel. The four faculties in the tympanum are by Rietschel. The Aula, or Great Hall, is deficient in colour, but adorned with 12 fine bas-reliefs by Rietschel, illustrating the progress of civilization. Amongst the marble busts are those of Waechter, Hermann (by Rietschel), Thomasius, Boerner, Weber, Göthe, and Leibnitz (by Knauer), &c. The life-size plaster statues are of Moritz, Duke of Saxony, by Knauer, and Fried. August, King of Saxony, by Rietschel. Facing the throne is a small bronze figure of Germania, surmounting a pedestal erected 1873, inscribed with the names of 64 students who fell in the Franco-German War of 1870–71.

The adjoining Pauliner or Universitäts-Kirche originally formed part of the Dominican Convent mentioned above, and was restored in 1544, and opened for Protestant worship by Luther in the following year. In the centre of the choir is a monument by Rietschel, 1841, to the Landgraf Dietzmann, who was murdered in the Thomas-kirche in 1307. The body was placed in 1842 in the side chapel S. of the altar.

In the Paulinum—the portion of the building fronting the Universitätsstrasse—is the University Library (open Mon., Wed., Thurs., Sat., 11–1; Tues. and Frid., 2–4) of 300,000 vols., and upwards of 2000 MSS., including an illuminated Hebrew MS. of 12th cent., a collection of autographs (letters of Sir T. More to Erasmus), early woodcuts and block books. Anatomical and Natural History Museums, including the ethnological collection of Prof. Klemm, are also contained in this building, whilst other collections are deposited in the adjoining Fridericianum (see below).

The Museum (Städtisches Museum, open free Sund. 10.30–3; Wed. and Frid. 10–4. On Mond. 12–4; Tues., Thurs., and Sat. 10–4, 50 pf. Catalogue, 75 pf.), on the S. side of the square, was completed in the Renaissance style in 1858, from the designs of Lange of Munich, and contains on the ground-floor to l. cartoons, &c. by Overbeck, Schnorr, Schwind, &c., and water-colour drawings by Werner and others; to rt. the Kunstverein Exhibition rooms, and facing the entrance a Gallery of Casts. On the staircase is a medallion of Heinrich Schletter, died 1853, the donor of most of the pictures, and to whose munificence the Museum is indebted for its existence. On the first floor the domed entrance is adorned with 18 Cartoons by Preller, illustrating the Odyssey, and this leads into a Gallery of Paintings. The 15 rooms are strong in works of the modern French and German schools, and some few good specimens of older Spanish and Italian masters. Obs.—Murillo: the Madonna; Guido Reni: the Madonna; David: John the Evangelist; Salvi (Sassoferrato): the Madonna; Lucas Cranach, the elder: the Dying Man, Christ and the Samaritan; L. C., the younger: the Crucifixion, Risen Christ; Paul Delaroche: Napoleon (31st March, 1814) at Fontainebleau; Biard: the insane French King Charles VI.; Alexander Calame: Swiss scenery; Gudin: Storm at Sea; Brascassat: Cattle; Verboeckhoven: Sheep, &c.

The walls and ceiling of the passage (loggia) on the E. side are decorated with frescoes by Theodor Grosse, completed in 1871. In the l. cupola, Greek Mythology; rt. cupola, Old Testament History; centre cupola, Art Creations, the Graces, Virtues, the Arts, &c. The marble statues are Phidias by Schilling, and Raphael by Hähnel (1871).

The second floor is devoted to a very fine collection of engravings, arranged historically according to schools from the 13th cent. (catalogue, 75 pf.)

On the E. side of the square is the Post-Office, built in 1839, with one side to the Grimmaischer Steinweg, a short distance down which is seen the Johanniskirche, standing on part of the old cemetery (Alter Friedhof), in which Gellert the poet (died 1769) was buried, whose tomb is now against the church wall. Near the ch. is the Friccius-Denkmal, a monument marking the spot where the Grimmaischer Thor stood, at which point the Prussian Königsberger Landwehr succeeded in forcing their way into the town on the 19th Oct. 1813.

The Promenades may be rejoined by the Königsstrasse, in which a tablet over the house shows where Felix Mendelssohn lived for 7 years. A little S. of this in the Turnerstrasse is one of the best arranged Turnhalle (Gymnasium) on the Continent, and not far from this point is the Bavarian Rly. Stat.

At the back (S.) of the Museum is the Bürgerschule, erected 1796 on the site of a bastion, and near this the bronze Statue of Albrecht Thaer, the agriculturist, by Rietschel, erected 1850, and standing at the S. end of the Universitätsstrasse, up which on the rt. is the entrance to the Fridericianum—part of the University building devoted to the Archæological and Mineralogical Museums. Further up is the Gewandhaus, built in 1740, and now used as the Conservatorium of Music, affording instruction to 700 pupils—200 English or American. Here, since 1781, the celebrated winter concerts have been held.

The Stadtbibliothek (Town Library) occupies a very long and striking room between the Universitätsstrasse and the Neumarkt, and was founded in 1677. Besides European works, it contains a remarkable collection of Oriental MSS.; many Turkish books obtained by the Germans in their victories over the Turks in Hungary, such as pay lists, officers' commissions, dating from 1683, when Sobieski rescued Vienna; a portion of an almost unequalled Koran which belonged to the mosque of Sultanieh, and another brought from a mosque at Buda, when that city was under the Turkish yoke. Part of the collection consists of the library of Pölitz (died 1838). Near this is the "Grosse Feuerkugel," the lodgings where Göthe, at the age of 16, commenced his student life, having been entered on the 19th Oct., 1765, on the register of the University "in the Bavarian nation." His room over the archway is gone.

The N. end of the Universitätsstrasse leads into the Grimmaische Strasse, the great business thoroughfare of the town, and across the way is the square of St. Nicholas' Ch., built in 1170, enlarged in 1513, and the principal tower raised 1555. The two unfinished side towers belong to the original building. The palm-tree piers and pointed arches (1785-96) are in doubtful taste. The name "Messe," meaning Fair, is derived from the practice of the merchants on their arrival in Leipzig after the year 1459 when the privilege of the New Year fair was first granted, assembling at this ch. to hear mass. In a side porch is preserved the pulpit in which Luther preached, Whit Sunday 1539.

On the E. side of the square is the Buchhändler Börse (Booksellers' Exchange), built in 1834. The large hall contains portraits of leading representatives of the bookselling trade, Frenslin, Veib, Duncker, Friedrich Perthes, Reimer, Fleischer, and Von Cotta. The invention of printing was immediately turned to account in Leipzig, and at the commencement of the 16th cent. 9 printing establishments existed in a population of barely 4000. The sale of books has formed for nearly 300 years one of the most important branches of commerce here; it alone is said to amount to 10 millions of francs yearly. In fact, the whole book-trade of Germany is centred on the spot, and every bookseller in Germany and the adjoining countries has an agent here. 600 booksellers sometimes assemble at the Easter Fair, to settle their annual accounts and purchases, and there are 250 residents and 90 printing-offices.

Among the most distinguished living publishers are F. Brockhaus, editor of the far-famed Conversations-Lexicon, and Baron Tauchnitz.

A little N. of the Exchange is the Ritterstrasse, at an old house (1513) called the "Rothe Colleg." Leibnitz was born 1646.

Returning into the Grimmaische-strasse, at No. 30 Lessing lived whilst a student here. And No. 1 is Auerbach's Keller, a restaurant and wine-shop in 2 cellars under an old house, built in 1538 by a physician and friend of Luther, named H. Stromer of Auerbach, and as Auerbach's Hof for 2 centuries a great resort during the fair. Its interest now arises from being the place where, according to tradition, Dr. Faustus the Magician performed his feats, represented on the walls by paintings of the 16th cent. (restored). It is said that Göthe here conceived the idea of his tragedy, and in 'Faust' he has laid in this cellar the scene in which the drunken students are supplied by Mephistopheles with various wines out of holes bored with a gimlet in the table.

The centre of the old town is reached at the Marktplatz, a picturesque Market-place from the quaint architecture of its buildings, particularly of the Town House (Rathhaus), rebuilt and lengthened in 1556, so that the tower (1474) does not stand in the middle. In this square the allied sovereigns met after the battle of Leipzig. Near the Rathhaus is the Königshaus, so called because from 1695 to 1827 inhabited by the Electors and Kings of Saxony on their visits to the town. Peter the Great stayed here on his way to Vienna in 1698, and Charles XII. in 1707, and it was occupied by Napoleon in 1813. Here he had his last interview with the Saxon king, who was afterwards detained prisoner in it by the Allies as an adherent of Napoleon, and here Prince Schwarzenberg, the general of the allied army, died in 1820.

Behind the Rathhaus, on the Naschmarkt, is the Börse (Exchange), a richly decorated building, erected in 1678; and a little way up the Hainstrasse, at No. 31, an inscription states that Schiller lived there in 1784 and 1789.

Leaving the Market-place by the Petersstrasse, at the S.W. corner, and passing through the Sporer Gasse, the Burgstrasse is reached, in which, at No. 21, Klopstock lived in 1746 (died at Hamburg 1803), and at the bottom of the street is the entrance to the castle of Pleissenburg, the ancient citadel, which occupied the S.E. angle of the city-walls, and erected in 1557. Here occurred the memorable dispute between Luther and Eckius, 27th June to 14th July, 1519. Tilly attacked the castle in 1631, previous to the battle of Breitenfeld; and in the next year after the battle of Lützen, the Imperial General Pappenheim was brought here to die. The siege by the Swedes in 1642 led to the repair of the castle in 1683, and during the Seven Years' War it was used by the Jew Ephraim as a mint. In 1787 it was turned into an observatory until 1864, when the observatory in the Johannisthal was erected. The lower part of it is now turned into a barrack, enlarged 1872. The tower should be ascended (7½ Sgr.) for the fine view over the town and neighbourhood. The surrounding country is flat, but it is interesting as the scene of the memorable Battle of Leipzig, distinguished by the Germans as the Völkerschlacht, "Battle of the Nations," fought on the 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th October, 1813. It was the longest, sternest, and bloodiest action of the war, and one of the largest battles recorded in history, from the number of troops engaged, amounting to 176,000 on the side of Napoleon, and 300,000 on that of the Allies, with 1800 cannon. Napoleon's front extended nearly ¾ths of a circle, facing E., with his rt. resting on the Pleisse, and his l. wing on Elster. The villages of Möckern and Lindenthal, on the N., indicate where the battle raged fiercely between Blücher and Marmont, nearly over the same ground, now marked by a monument at the village of Breitenfeld, where Gustavus Adolphus defeated Tilly in 1631; but the principal engagement was to the S.E., over the ground dotted by the villages of Markkleeburg, Wachau, and Liebertwolkwitz. The spot where Napoleon himself remained during the greater part of the fight is called Napoleonstein, and marked by a little clump of trees about 2 m. down the Grimma road, and N. of the village of Probstheyda, which was the key of the French position, and S. of which are the block of granite raised to the memory of Prince Schwarzenberg, and the iron obelisk marking the place of meeting of the three allied sovereigns of Austria, Russia, and Prussia, on the evening of the 18th. The result of the 3 days' fighting was the defeat of Napoleon by overpowering numbers, but the attempt to surround him failed owing to the obstinate defence of Lindenau, on the W., by Bertrand, against all the efforts of Giulay, and the equally determined resistance offered by the Poles at Dölitz, Lösning, and Connewitz, to all the attacks of the Austrian General Meerveldt.

The retreat of the whole French army through Leipzig towards the Saale commenced at midnight of the 18th; but as the Rannstädt road was the only exit in that direction, confusion and delay arose, increased by the attack on the rearguard made by the Allies early the next morning. Napoleon himself hurried out of the town at mid-day on the 19th, just as the Allies were entering it on the opposite side, and succeeded in carrying off to the Rhine only 90,000 of his army. It is doubtful whether the Emperor would have escaped, but for the bravery of Macdonald and Poniatowski in covering his retreat, and for the premature blowing up of the bridge over the Elster beyond the Frankfurter Thor, on the N.W. side of the town (see below), at the moment when many of the French troops were in the act of passing. The loss of the Allies amounted to upwards of 45,000 men, of whom 20,000 were Russians, 15,000 Prussians, and 10,000 Austrians.

In the N.E., some miles on the Eilenburg Rly., is seen the village of Tauchau, where lies buried Captain Bowyer, R.A., who was killed in the battle whilst aiding the Allies with a British rocket corps.

S. of the Pleissenburg, in the Königsplatz, is a statue, erected 1780, of the Saxon Elector (afterwards King) Frederick Augustus (died 1827), and to the W. is the Catholic Ch., of red brick, from designs of Heideloff (1847), a fair specimen of modern Gothic. The altar-piece is by Vogel. Beyond this is the pretty Johanna-park and the Botanic Gardens.

Proceeding N. up the Promenade an der Pleisse, about half-way up, is the monument of Sebastian Bach (died 1750), by Knaur, erected (1843) at the expense of Felix Mendelssohn, and a little distance further is a monument of Hiller (died 1804), close to the Thomas-Schule, where they both taught. This school, with the adjoining Thomas-kirche, originally formed part of an Augustine convent (1221), rebuilt 1482. The choir of the ch. is of 1356, the nave 1482, the tower 1537, the handsome pulpit is of 1575, and the present altar (erected in 1720) marks the spot where Dietzmann was murdered in 1307 (see above).

On the opposite side of the Promenade is the commencement of the Centralstrasse, in which is the Central-halle, a large music-hall, adorned with frescoes by Preller, 1850, and beyond is the handsome Jewish Synagogue, built by Simonsohn in 1855.

Further up the Promenade is a bronze sitting statue of Samuel Hahnemann, the founder of Homœopathy, born in Meissen 1755, died in Paris 1843; and beyond this is the Old Theatre, of poor exterior, built in 1817 on the site of an earlier theatre of 1766, which attained great renown throughout Germany from the celebrated actors who appeared on its boards.

To the W. runs the Rannstedter Steinweg, at the end of which, in what is now a very handsome suburb, is a stone pillar surmounted by a cannon-ball, erected in 1863 to commemorate the blowing up of the bridge here over the Elster, Oct. 19, 1813, by which 25,000 of the French rearguard were prevented reaching the other side, and, together with Generals Regnier, Bertrand, and Lauriston, fell into the hands of the Allies, whilst numbers were drowned in the attempt to swim across, amongst others Prince Poniatowski, created a Marshal of France by Napoleon only 3 days before. The Elster, a mere ditch in size, was at the time of the battle so choked up with bodies of men and horses, dead, dying, or struggling to cross, that the sorry steed on which Poniatowski was mounted, his own having been killed under him, was unable to swim among them. The brave Pole, already twice wounded, and borne down in the throng, sank in attempting the passage. Macdonald, better mounted, passed it in safety nearly at the same spot.

[N. G.]

A stone monument to Poniatowski, in the form of a sarcophagus, erected by General Poczniski, stands close by the spot at the S. end of the handsome district school in the Lessingstrasse. The body itself was removed to Cracow 2 days after the battle.

The Leibnitzstrasse leads N. into the Rosenthal, an extensive and prettily laid out Park, in which are the Bonorum and Schweizerhäuschen Cafés, and the monuments to Gellert and Zöllner. Beyond this is the village of Gohlis, a favourite resort of Schiller, where he wrote 'Das Lied an die Freude' (Ode to Joy) in 1785.

Regaining the Promenades, and crossing the Theaterplatz, a short street leads into the long picturesque Brühl, where the Jews chiefly congregate during the fair. At No. 79 lived Käthchen Schönkopf, the pretty daughter of the Weinhändler and Hauswirth, at whose house Göthe used to dine when a student. His love-making and quarrels with her form the burden of the pastoral 'Die Laune des Verliebten.'

At the end of the street the Rly. may be regained, or crossing the Promenade a few hundred yards E. down the Wintergarten Strasse will lead to the Schützenhaus, a very large music-hall with gardens, beyond which outside the Milch Insel gardens is the Kugel Denkmal, erected 1845 in memory of the battle of Leipzig, and adorned with cannon-balls found in the neighbourhood.

Leipzig is famed for 2 delicacies of the table, larks and apples; the last are named from the neighbouring village of Borsdorf.

Three Fairs are held here annually:—at Easter (Oster Messe, beginning on the 2nd Sunday after Easter), which is the most important; at Michaelmas (beginning 1st Sunday after Michaelmas day); and the Neujahr Messe (beginning on New Year's day), the least important. They last three weeks, and while they continue, Leipzig is the mart and exchange of Central Europe, and is visited by merchants and foreigners from the most distant parts of the globe, sometimes to the number of its actual population. The money transactions at one time amounted to 80 millions of dollars annually, though of late they have fallen short of this sum. The streets and squares are then occupied by temporary booths, in addition to the ordinary shops, in which goods of all kinds are exposed for sale. Every hotel and lodging-house is filled to overflowing; the streets are thronged with strange costumes and faces; Jews from Poland, Tyrolese, Americans, and even Persians from Tiflis, Armenians, Turks, and Greeks, are mingled together as in a masquerade, and most of the countries of Europe send representatives hither with their produce. 300 or 400 guests sit down daily to the tables-d'hôte of some of the principal hotels; gardens and coffee-houses are thronged.

The sale of pianos is enormous; one considerable quarter being occupied by the manufacturers of these instruments.

The shop of Mr. Friedrich Fleischer is well situated, and furnished with the best European literature in various languages, including Guides for Travellers.

Baron Speck, at his seat Lützschena, 5 m. to the N.W., half-way on the road between Möckern and Skeuditz, possesses some very fine pictures:—a repetition of Raphael's Joanna of Aragon; Fr. Francia, Madonna and Child; Hemling's (?) Salutation; Rubens, Portrait of a Prior; Rembrandt, a portrait; V. der Helst, portrait of a female; Murillo, Madonna and Child; Dürer, portrait of a young woman, 1497. Many good pictures of the Dutch and modern German schools.

Railways.—6 Stats., 3 on N.E. side of town close to one another, viz.:—(1) Thüringischer Bahnhof, for the S.W., Erfurt, Gotha, Eisenach, Cassel, &c. (2) Magdeburger Bahnhof, for the N.W., Halle, Magdeburg, &c. (3) Dresdener

Bahnhof, for the S.E., Dresden, &c.; one Stat. N. of town 1 m. outside it (cab, 4 pers., 1 mk.). (4) Berlin-Anhaltener Bahnhof, for the N.E., Berlin, &c.; one Stat. S. of town, connected with the others by a Verbindungsbahn line running through the Johannisthal and Reudnitz. (5) Bayerischer Bahnhof, for the S., Altenburg, Hof, Bamberg, Nuremberg. (6) Eilenburger Bahnhof, on the S.E. side of the town, for Eilenburg and Torgau.

ROUTE 86A. 2

GOTHA TO HILDBURGHAUSEN, BY OHRDRUF AND SCHLEUSINGEN.

Distance, 46 m.; Rail to Ohrdruf, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; thence Diligence daily, in 9 hrs.

Gotha is described in Rte. 86.

The Rly. is completed for the first few miles, and proceeds S. over at first an uninteresting agricultural district through Emleben and Georgenthal to 9 m. Ohrdruf Stat. (Inn, Anker or Post), an old and industrious town, 4500 Inhab., seat of the family of Hohenlohe-Obergleichen. From Ohrdruf Schnellpost daily in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to S.W. 7 m. Tambach (Inn: zum Falkenstein), a little village beautifully situated, and from which ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Falkenstein rock may be visited on the way to (2 hrs.) Oberhof. The road now begins to ascend the highest ridge of the Thuringian Mountains, by easy traverses, admirably constructed, passing the iron-works of Louisenthal, into the pretty Ohre-Thal, and through the villages of Stutzhaus and Schwarzwald on to one of the finest bits of the road, the entrance to the Stutzhauser Grund and past the Triefende-stein (Dripping-stone) to 8 m. Oberhof, a hamlet of 46 wooden houses occupied by woodcutters, with 2 good Inns (Domänen-Gasthaus and Thüringer Wald), close to the Duke's Hunting Lodge. The forest here may almost be called primæval; the pines often attain the height of 280 ft. It yields a yearly revenue of 100,000*l.* in building-timber alone. Game of every description abounds; the red deer are of an enormous size; and that elsewhere rare bird the bustard occurs here in great numbers. Between 700 and 800 stags are killed in a year; and 20 or 30 of these noble animals may be seen from the road on passing in the evening. The Duke of Saxe-Coburg is allowed to have the finest chasse in Germany.

This is a convenient point from which to ascend the Schneekopf, 3050 ft., surmounted by a tower, the top of which (50 pf.) is the highest point in the Thüringer Wald, though the view is hardly so pleasing as that from the Inselsberg. The excursion takes about 2½ hrs. there and back, or the descent may be made in ½ hr. to Schmücke, 2850 ft. (large Inn), and thence to Suhl (see below), or (4 hrs.) by the Kickelhahn to Ilmenau (Rte. 86B).

Shortly after leaving Oberhof the road crosses the Rennsteig, the ancient boundary line running from the Werra to the Saale, and separating the country of the Franks from the Saxons, along which the Thüringer rulers, it is said, were obliged to proceed in state when assuming the sovereignty. Close to this the road attains its highest elevation. An obelisk, at the summit-level, commemorates its construction. The view here is truly magnificent, over a great extent of this noble forest, the dark abyss of its valleys, and its mountains clad with pines, except their often craggy summits. From this point, passing the little town of Zella, at which a road strikes off on the rt. by Benhausen to Meiningen (see Rte. 92), we descend to 11 m. Suhl (Inns: Deutsches Haus, best; Krone), a town prettily situated in the valley of the Lauter, at the base of the Domberg (2100 ft.), a cliff of which, the Ottilienstein (½ hr.'s walk), a grand rock of porphyry, appears to overhang the town, commanding a fine view. Pop. 8200, chiefly weavers of linen or woollen goods, or gun-smiths. Suhl has long been celebrated for its fire-arms, and for centuries was the only manufactory of them in Germany.

[Schnellpost daily in 3 hrs. to W. 13 m. Meiningen Stat. (Rte. 92), and in 4½ hrs. to N.E. 17 m. Ilmenau (see Rte 86B).]

The road continues S. through the village of Hirschbach, and past a pyramid erected in memory of the Battle of Leipzig, to 9 m. Schleusingen (Inn, Grüner Baum), a town formerly belonging to the Counts of Henneberg, afterwards to Saxony, since 1815 to Prussia. Pop. 3100. The old castle of Bertholdsburg, prettily situated on a hill, has been repaired by the present Emperor. In a chapel built 1723, adjoining the Stadtkirche, are the tombs of the Counts of Henneberg; and in the neighbourhood a suppressed Præmonstrant Abbey, an interesting monument of German architecture of the 12th cent. A fir-cone Bath establishment exists here. The road continues to 7 m. Hildburghausen Stat. on Rly. between Eisenach and Coburg (see Rte. 92).

ROUTE 86B.

GOTHA TO RUDOLSTADT, viâ ILMENAU
[SCHWARZBURG].

Distance, 42 m.; time, about 8 hrs.

Gotha and the Rly. as far as 9 m. Neu-Dietendorf Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 86.

Thence branch Rly. S. to

6 m. Arnstadt Stat. (Inns: Henne; Sonne). Pop. 8500. A small town on the Gera, at the foot of the Thüringer Wald.
The Liebfrauenkirche, a capital specimen of the German Transitional style of the 12th cent., displays peculiar sculpture on its exterior, and some interesting monuments within. The finest is that of Günther v. Schwarz-burg and his wife, 1368. In the Schloss is a small collection of pictures. Of the old Schloss there only remain a tower, and some walls of 1554.

Rly. in progress; in the meantime
Diligence daily in 2½ hrs. to S. 12 m.
Ilmenau. The road runs through a narrow valley amidst beechwood, and then rises, passing through the vale of the Gera, by Plaue, with the stately ruins of Ehrenburg Castle, and by Martinrode (huge oak-tree) to Ilmenau (Inns: Kurhaus; Löwe).

This town of 3200 Inhab. belongs to Weimar. Here are mines of manganese and iron. Near it is the Elgersburg, an old castle romantically situated, and an establishment for the cold-water cure (fair accommodation). Ilmenau was a favourite resort of Göthe, and at the house near Kickelhahn may still be seen the poem written by him (1783)
in pencil on the wall beginning—

“Ueber allen Gipfeln ist Ruh’,” and of which he repeated the last line,

“Warte nur, balde ruhest du auch,”

as applied to himself, when he again visited the place 48 years afterwards, and shortly before his death. From Ilmenau there is also a Rly. in progress, and in meantime Diligence daily in 4¾ hrs. to S.E.

24 m. Rudolstadt Stat. (Inns: Ritter; Löwe; Adler). Outside the town, in a beautiful situation, is the Bathhouse (Fichtennadelbad); good, plain accommodation, very moderate—the chief town of the little principality of Schwarzburg-Rudolstadt. Pop. 6950.
A beautiful country, sandy soil; charming rides and walks; good roads and carriages. On the summit of an eminence nearly 200 ft. above the river stands the residence of the prince, the Castle of Heidecksburg, containing some pictures and a library. The Ludwigsburg, built 1742, in the town contains a cabinet of natural history, rich in shells.
Opposite Volksstädt a bust of Schiller has been set up to commemorate the poet's residence here in 1788.

[At Schwarza (Inn: Bremer Hof), 3
m. S. of Rudolstadt, the river Schwarza joins the Saale. 5 m. from Rudolstadt, above the small town of Blankenburg (Inn, Schwarzburger Hof or Chrysopras, ½ m. out of the town, is best), rise the picturesque ruins of the castle of Greif- enstein, birthplace of the unfortunate
King Günther of Schwarzburg. 5 m. further up this winding valley, one of the most beautiful in Thuringia, on the summit of a bold precipitous rock, stands the Schwarzburg, the cradle of the Schwarzburg Counts and Princes (Inns: Weisser Hirsch; Thüringer Hof, both comfortable). The greater part of the castle is modern, erected after a conflagration, 1726. It presents little worth seeing except the Kaiser Saal, a relic still preserved of the old castle. It contains portraits of Roman emperors, from Julius Cæsar to Charles IV., miserable daubs, and some ancient armour, including a suit attributed to the King Günther. Travellers should ascend the Trippstein, 1½ m. from the castle, for the sake of the unrivalled view. There is a cross road from Blankenburg to the interesting ruins of the Cistercian

Abbey of Paulinzelle, 9 m. distant. It was founded, 1105, by Pauline, daughter of the Thuringian Count Moricho, and suppressed 1534, after having given rise to much scandal in connexion with a convent of monks established in the neighbourhood. It is finely situated in the depths of a forest. The church is a very interesting monument of the plain Romanesque style; the E. end is gone. Near the abbey are the monks' fish-ponds, and a good Inn.]

From Rudolstadt, Rly. 6 m. to Saalfeld Stat. (see Rte. 86c) on the line between Grossheringen and Gera.

ROUTE 86c.

LEIPZIG TO EICHICHT, BY ZEITZ, GERA, AND SAALFELD.—RAIL.

Distance 92 m., time 6 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Leipzig is described in Rte. 86.

From the Thüringer Bahnhof the line turns off the Weissenfels Rly. at Barneck, and proceeds S. to 27 m. Zeitz Junct. Stat. (Inn: Kronprinz), a very old town of 15,400 Inhab., prettily situated on the rt. bank of the Elster, with picturesque Rathhaus, and a Schloss (1644), now used as a hospital. In 968, Otto I. here founded a bishop's see, which in 1029 was removed to Naumburg. In 1648, upon the definitive secularization of the Naumburg bishopric, Zeitz fell to the Saxon Elector, and in 1815 it passed with Naumburg to Prussia. [Branch Rly. N.W. to Weissenfels (Rte. 86), and E. 15 m., to Altenburg Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 91).]

The line turns S.W. and ascends the Elster Valley, to 17 m. Gera Junct. Stat. (Inns: Fromater's; Russischer Hof), a picturesque, clean, and thriving manufacturing town, of 16,300 Inhab., on the Elster, belonging to the sovereign prince of Reuss-Schleitz.

The Castle of the Prince of Reuss-Schleitz, backed by hanging woods, rises over against the town, and adds much to its picturesque appearance.

Branch Rly. E., 21 m., to Gössnitz (see Rte. 91). W. in progress to Jena. S.W. the line continues to 21 m., Neustadt Stat., on the Orla (Inn: Löwe), an industrious town of 4800 Inhab., belonging to Weimar, possessing a richly decorated Rathhaus, of the 15th cent.

18 m. Saalfeld Junct. Stat. (Inns: Hirsch, best; Goldener Anker, one of the oldest inns in Germany—the Empr. Charles V. put up here, along with his prisoner the Elector John Frederick, June 27, 1547).

A very ancient walled town, in the midst of the Thuringian forest (Pop. 5100). The Rathhaus in the Market-place is a venerable Gothic edifice. The Gothic Ch. of St. John was built 1212, out of funds produced by the neighbouring gold-mines of Reichmannsdorf; the painted glass, and a colossal wooden statue of St. John in the interior, deserve notice. Near the town wall, at the side of the Saale, are the ruins of the Sorbenburg, a fort dating from the 8th cent., built, according to tradition, to defend the frontier from inroads of the Slavonic barbarians, the Sorbic-Vends.

The old Ducal Castle, also within the town, is now the Mint.

In the suburb outside the walls is the more modern Palace of the Dukes of Saxe-Coburg-Saalfeld, with fine gardens attached to it. The battle of Jena, so fatal to Prussia, began near Saalfeld, 14 Oct. 1806. A cast-iron monument has been erected to Prince Lewis of Prussia on the spot where he fell. [Branch Rly. to Rudolstadt (in Rte. 86B.)]

From Saalfeld the line runs S.E. to 8 m. Eichicht Stat. Large quantities of slate for roofing are prepared here.

ROUTE 86D.

LEIPZIG TO COTTBUS, BY EILENBURG AND TORGAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 93 m.; time, 4 hrs.; 2 trains daily.

Leipzig is described in Rte. 86. From the Eilenburger Bahnhof, on the E. side of the town, the line proceeds through 6 m. Taucha Stat., where Capt. Bowyer is buried (see Rte. 86).

10 m. Eilenburg Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. to Delitzsch (see Rte. 63).]

17 m. Torgau Stat. (Inn: Anker), a 2nd-class fortress of 11,000 Inhab., on the l. bank of the Elbe. The Schloss Hartenfels is now used as a barrack. Frederick the Great gained a decisive victory here over the Austrians, 1760.

The Rly. crosses the Elbe to 12 m. Falkenberg Junct. Stat. in Rte. 65, and at 13 m. Dobrilugk - Kirchhain Junct. Stat. crosses the direct Berlin and Dresden line (see Rte. 65B).

11 m. Calau Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly N. to Lübben. S. to Dresden (see Rte. 81B).]

18 m. Cottbus Junct Stat. (see Rte. 81B.)

ROUTE 87.

LEIPZIG TO DRESDEN, viâ BIESA.—RAIL.

Distance, 70 m.; time, 2½ to 3½ h.; 5 tr. daily.

Leipzig is described in Rte. 86.

From the Dresdener Bahnhof on the N.E. side of the town the Rly. proceeds E. over a flat plain, passing on l. the village of Paunsdorf, near which at a critical period in the Battle of Leipzig (Oct. 18, 1813), when the Allies had been successful in driving Ney and Regnier back upon Volkmansdorf, the entire Saxon army suddenly abandoned Napoleon, and with cannon, ammunition and baggage, marched across and joined the Allies.

6 m. Borsdorf Junct. Stat. A village famed for its apples. The Rly. to Dresden viâ Döbeln branches off here (see Rte. 87A).

The river Mulda is crossed by a bridge of 19 arches, shortly before reaching

9 m. Wurzen Stat. (Inn: Herrmann). Pop. 3000. [Branch Rly. in progress N. to Eilenburg, S. to Tanndorf.]

The vale of Döllnitz is traversed on a lofty viaduct on approaching 16 m. Oschatz Stat. (Inn, Löwe), a town of 5000 Inhab., surrounded by ancient fortifications. Its Church—rebuilt after a fire in 1842, from Heideloff's designs—has two tall towers with open spires, 27 6ft. high. In the neighbouring Schloss Hubertusburg, now a Penitentiary, and built 1721, the treaty of peace which terminated the Seven Years' War was concluded 15 Feb. 1763, between Frederick the Great and the Empress Maria Theresa. By this treaty Frederick was confirmed in his possession of Silesia.

8 m. Riesa Junct. Stat. (Restaurant). The town (Pop. 5000) lies on the l. bank of the Elbe. [Branch Rly. to Röderau Junct. Stat., thence N. to Berlin (Rte. 65), and S. through Döbeln to Chemnitz (Rte. 90).] On quitting the Stat. we traverse the Elbe on a bridge (carried away by the floods of 1876, but being replaced), and then follow the rt. bank of the river for a short distance, crossing the long Viaduct of Röderau, which rests on 64 piers.

[About 10 m. N.W. of Riesa, on the Elbe, is Mühlberg, where the battle was fought, in 1547, when the Protestants under John Frederick, Elector of Saxony, were defeated by Charles V., and their leader made prisoner, and compelled to throw himself at his conqueror's feet.]

11 m. Pristewitz Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. through Grossenhain, a busy cloth-manufacturing town of 9122 Inhab. to Cottbus, in Rte. 81.]

The hitherto flat country becomes more varied, and a tunnel, the only one on the line, about 500 yards long, is traversed at Oberau. Near this (rt.) a glimpse is obtained of the town of Meissen, on the opposite side of the Elbe, 4 m. off, pleasantly visited from Dresden by steamer (see Rte. 87A).

10 m. Coswig Junct. Stat. Here the Rly. from Leipzig, via Döbeln and Meissen, falls in (Rte. 87A).

The rly. now runs with vineyards, range of hills, covered at the foot of a sloping down to the Elbe, producing, under skilful management, a tolerable wine, and dotted over with elegant villas and country-houses.

rt. On a height is seen the tower of the castle of Weistrupp, retreat of the Duke of Lucca, who abdicated in favour of his son 1849. l. lies Lössnitz, where is a large manufactory of champagne!

8 m. Dresden Junct. Stat., in the Neustadt, on rt. bank of Elbe, 1 m. from the Altstadt. Cabs (Droschke), (tickets given in rotation at Stat.) to the Altstadt: 1 pers. 50 pf.; 2 pers. 60 pf.; portmanteau, 25 pf. (see below).

Inns—in the Altstadt: Bellevue, well situated, near the river and theatre, comfortable; Stadt Rom; H. de Saxe, good; and Stadt Berlin, good table-d'hôte,—all three on the Neumarkt; H. de France (and Restaurant), Wilsdruffer Strasse; Stadt Gotha, 8 Schloss Strasse; Victoria, H., corner of See and Waisenhaus Strasse, large; H. du Nord, Lüttichau Strasse; Grand Union H., on the Bismarck-Platz, near the Bohemian Rly. In the Neustadt: H. Kronprinz, 1 Haupt Strasse; H. Royal, 9 Anton Strasse; near Leipzig Rly. Stat.; H. Stadt Wien, 12 Klostergasse, overlooking the river, H. Drei Goldene Palmzweige, 7 Kaiser Wilhelm-Platz, 5 min. from Leipzig Stat.—good German house.

Boarding Houses.—The Misses Lindner's (for ladies and families only), 7 Carola Strasse, comfortable; Mrs. Hughes*, old established and comfortable, 34 Prager Strasse; Mrs. Meissner's, 2 Lüttichau Strasse; Mrs. Freeman's, 3 Bismarck-Platz; Kammermaier, 8 Rächnitz Strasse.

Private apartments, list of, may be seen at the British Agency, 22 Victoria Strasse.

Restaurants.—Müller, on the Neumarkt;—Café de l'Europe, 1 Frauen Strasse; Helbig, close to the river, large, dear; Fiebiger, in the Grosse Brüdergasse (good wine and beer); Café Reale and Belvedere, on the Brühlsche Terrasse (concerts), and the Linkeschebad (see below). In the Neustadt: Kaufmann, in the Haupt Strasse; Henne, 44 Bautzener Strasse; Ancot (good beer), and the Rathskeller, in the Market-place.

Confectioners.—Berger, Wilsdruffer Strasse, the most frequented; Kreutzkamp, best ices; Trepp, corner of the Altmarkt and Scheffelgasse; Lässig, in the Prager Strasse.

Theatres.—Hof Theater, burned down

1869; whilst rebuilding, temporary theatre, open daily, commences at 6.30 P.M.; Albert Theater in the Neustadt, handsome building; Residenz Theater, for comedy; Nesmüller's Sommer Theater, in the Grosse Garten.

Gardens.—Feldschlösschen; Bergkeller and Felsenkeller, all on the l. bank of the Elbe, fine views; Schillerschlösschen; Grosse Wirthschaft.

Post Office (open 7 A.M. to 7 P.M.; Sundays, 12 to 2).—Post Platz, near the Museum, and 20 Christian Strasse (English quarter). Letter-boxes throughout the town. Telegraph Office: 2 Waisenhaus Strasse (open day and night).

Omnibus Stations: Altmarkt, Schloss Platz, Post Platz, Kaiser Wilhelm Platz, Neumarkt, 8 lines to the outskirts, running nearly every $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

Tramways to Blasewitz and Plauen.

Cabs, stationed in the public places: Fiaker, or 2-horse carriages, for a course within the district 1 to 4 pers. $1\frac{1}{2}$ mk.; Droschken, 1 pers. 50 pf. the course, and if bridge be crossed, 10 pf. more. For longer drives make a bargain. By time: 20 min. 50 pf. Double fares after 10 P.M., treble after midnight. An excellent job-carriage may be hired at 12 to 15 mks. for the day, and a trinkgeld to the driver.

Baths: Warm, Diana-bad, 15 Bürgerwiese. In the river—Schwimmanstalt, opposite the Belvedere.

Physicians.—Dr. Watson; Dr. Faust; Dr. Pierson, 2 Lüttichau Strasse; Dr. Seiler, 3 Park Strasse; Dr. Eales, Victoria Strasse; Dr. Strobell, accoucheur, 2 Amalien Strasse.

Eng. Club, 20 Bürgerwiese; American Club, 22 Victoria Strasse, address book, &c.

Steamboats—down the Elbe to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Meissen (see Rte. 87A) and ($2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Riesa, 4 times daily; up the Elbe to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Loschwitz (see below), and Blasewitz (see below). ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Pillnitz, (Rte. 88), ($2\frac{1}{4}$ hrs.) Pirna (Rte. 88), every hour. ($2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Wehlen, (3 hrs.) Rathen, ($3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Königstein (Rte. 88), ($4\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Schandau (in Saxon Switzerland, Rte. 88), 5 times daily. ($5\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Herrnskretsch (Rte. 88), ($6\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) Tetschen (Rte. 88), twice daily, and thence to Aussig, and, when sufficient water, to Lobositz, and (6 hrs.) Leitmeritz in Bohemia, once daily.

Railways (see below).

Eng. Ch.: All Saints, a Gothic edifice with spire erected by the Goschen family (1869), Wiener Strasse. S. of town, near Bohemian Rly.; Sund, 11 A.M., 6 P.M. At 20 Kreuz Strasse: Sund. 11.30 A.M., 4.50 P.M. American Episcopal ch., 5 Ostra-Allee. Sund. 11.30. Presbyterian ch. in the See Strasse. Sund. 11.30 A.M., 6.30 P.M.

An English Charge d'Affaires and an American Consul-General reside here.

German masters.—Dr. Peschel; Herr Siemers; Fräulein A. Hammer.

Music master.—C. Rollfuss.

Shops: best are in the Schloss, Willsdrufer and Moritz Strassen; and in the Neu- and Alt-Markt.

Eng. and foreign books, photographs, newspapers: Edgar Pierson, 13 Waisenhaus Strasse; a good resort for guide books, addresses, &c. E. Arnold, printseller, Schloss Strasse, for engravings of pictures in Dresden Gallery.

Saxon manufactured table and bed-linen, &c., Jos. Meyer, 13 Neumarkt.

For the list of sights, &c., &c., consult the Dresden Advertiser, an Eng. newspaper published every Saturday (8 Victoria Place), as the hours of admission are subject to alteration.

All the collections may be seen during the months, the days, or hours, when they are not open to the public, by paying a fee of 6 to 9 mks. for a ticket (Einlasskarte), which admits 6 persons, and also secures the attendance of the directors; but an appointment must be made with them beforehand, and a reduction is sometimes made in the fee for a party less than 6 in number. The directors of the collections are men of intelligence, possessing and willing to impart every information respecting the objects of which they have charge.

The services of a Lohndiener (valet de place), who usually receives 5 mks. per diem, 2½ mks. for ½ day, will be found useful, but the increased facilities now afforded for visiting the collections render the traveller practically independent of them.

Days and hours of admission to the Collections in Dresden:

Antiquities, Saxon, daily, fee, 50 pf.

Antique Sculpture (Antiken) in Japanese Palace, from May 1st to Oct. 31st, Wed. and Sat., 10—2. On other days, fee, 50 pf.

China and Pottery, May 1st to Oct. 31st, Mond., Tues., Thurs., Frid., 2—5, 1 mk.; Wed. and Sat., 9—5. Other days, 1—6 pers., cards of admission, 6 mks.

Green Vault (Grünes Gewölbe), daily, 9—1, 1 mk.; attendance-fee, 9 mks. 1 to 6 persons.

Historical Museum (Armoury), May to Oct., Sund. and holidays, 11—2. Mon., Tues., Thurs., Fri., 9—1, 50 pf. Attendance for party of 1—8, 9 mks.

Library in Japanese Palace, gratis daily, 9—1. Strangers are shown round by an attendant Wed. and Sat., 9—11, 2—4, fee, 50 pf.

Picture Gallery, Sund. and holidays, 11—2. Monday, 10—2, 1½ mk. Daily, except Thurs., May to Oct., 10—4; Nov. to April, 10—3; Tues., Frid., and Sun., 11—2, free; Wed. and Sat., 50 pf.

Natural History Museum, Mond., Wed., Thurs., and Sat., 8—2, free; Tues., Frid., 8—10, 50 pf. (Anthropological, Tues. and Frid., 9—11.)

Prints and Drawings, daily, except Sun. and holidays, 10—2; Wed. and Sat., free; the other days, 50 pf.

Monday, Plaster Casts, 10—2; Picture Gallery, 10—2; Green Vaults, 9—1.

Tuesday.—Picture Gallery, 10—4, gratis. Collection of Engravings and Drawings, 10—2. Gems, 8—12. Cabinet of Minerals, 10—12; of Zoology, 8—10.

Wednesday.—Antique Sculpture, 10—2 (tickets). Collection of Porcelain, 9—5.

Thursday.—Historical Museum, 9—1 (tickets). Meng's Plaster Casts, 8—12.

Friday.—Picture Gallery; Cabinet of Minerals, 10—12. Cabinet of Zoology, 8—10.

Saturday.—Antique Sculpture, 10—2. Cabinet of Minerals, Cabinet of Zoology, 9—12, Green Vaults and Picture Gallery.

This capital of Saxony, residence of the King (who is descended from the Margraves of Meissen of the Wettin line), and seat of the government (Pop. 195,100—10,000 Rom. Cath.), is situated on the Elbe, 340 ft. above the sea, and consists of the (1) Altstadt, or old town, on the l. bank of the Elbe, the centre of traffic, and containing the best public buildings and objects of interest; (2) Friedrichstadt, separated from the Altstadt by the little stream Weisseritz and the Marienbrücke viaduct; (3) Neustadt, or Newtown, approached by the old bridge over the Elbe; and (4) Anton and Oppelvor-stadts, new suburbs.

Dresden is called by Herder "the German Florence;" and in its pleasing situation, in the number and excellence of its collections, and more especially in its richly stored Picture Gallery, it may deserve to be compared, at a respectful distance, with the Florence of Italy. Few European capitals contain a greater number of objects calculated to gratify the curiosity of an intelligent traveller. It is the residence of many men of learning and talent, who contribute much to render society agreeable. The opera is good, and music is much cultivated; the climate is generally mild and agreeable, but the drinking water is not good. Dresden has been much resorted to since 1830 by the English for education and economy, but rents have risen greatly during the last few years, especially in the "English" and "American" quarters. The town itself is more pleasing at a distance, than striking when examined in detail; but in the suburbs which have sprung into existence since 1830, are some fine streets: it has one or two imposing public buildings, its situation is pretty, and its environs are delightful. The most healthy localities are in the Neustadt, including the streets—Prager Strasse, Waisenhaus Strasse, Victoria Strasse, Lüttichau Strasse, Sidonien Strasse, Moltke and Bismarck Platz.

The Old Bridge over the Elbe, entirely of stone, commands an excellent view of the town and valley of the Elbe. It was rebuilt in 1319 with alms raised by a Papal indulgence, but it has been often repaired and altered since then. It is of a very solid construction, in order that it may resist the force of the stream (which often rises 16 ft. in 24 h., when the snow begins to melt), and the shocks of floating masses of ice in the spring; during the months of January and February the river is usually frozen over. The fourth pier from the side of the Altstadt was blown up by the French Marshal Davoust, in 1813, to facilitate his retreat to Leipzig, and the two adjoining arches fell.

The Marien Brücke, a still finer Bridge (built 1852), $\frac{1}{4}$ mile W., lower down the river, carries over the railway which connects the Leipzig with the Prague line, and has also a carriage and footway. The cost was 150,000%. Its 12 large arches are of 100 ft. span; the 2 smaller of 50 ft. It is 1420 ft. long, 54 ft. wide, and 40 ft. above the river. A third bridge is in process of construction.

The Frauenkirche (Ch. of our Lady) (Prot.) is an Italian edifice (built 1726–45), entirely of stone, even to the dome, which is of such solid construction that the shells and balls directed against it by Frederick the Great (in 1760) rebounded from its surface, without doing it any injury. The inside (restored 1865) is fitted up with tiers of galleries like a theatre. A good view may be had from the outside of the cupola, and an easy staircase leads up to it.

The Hofkirche (Catholic Court Ch.), between the bridge and the palace, is a profusely decorated but tasteless building, in the Italian style (built by Chiaveri 1739–56). It is connected with the palace by a bridge thrown over the street, and is attended by the royal family. They have professed the R. Catholic faith, though their subjects are Lutherans, since the time of Augustus II., who, as the price of obtaining the crown of Poland, forswore (1697) the religion of which his ancestors had been the earliest and most faithful supporters. The music in this church is celebrated. It is under the superintendence of the director of the opera, who merely transfers his band from the orchestra of the theatre to the organ loft. High Mass is performed on Sundays and festivals, from 11 to 12, and no stranger should miss hearing it. The evening service at 4; likewise fine music. During service, the male and female parts of the congregation are arranged on opposite sides of the church. The organ, by Silbermann, is considered very good. The altar-piece is by Raphael Mengs.

The Terrace of Brühl runs along the l. bank of the Elbe, approached by a broad flight of steps from the foot of the bridge, and is adorned with 4 allegorical groups of Morning and Day, Evening and Night, by Schilling. It commands a delightful view, and is a favourite promenade and lounge of the inhabitants, who resort to the Café Reale for ices in the afternoon, and to the Belvedere Café and Restaurant in the evening for supper, tea, beer, and music.

The Palace of Brühl, contiguous to the terrace, was built 1737 by the prodigal minister of Augustus III., and subsequently bought by the crown. The Queen Dowager Maria occupies part of this palace. Near it is the Academy of Arts.

The Royal Palace (Schloss), opposite the bridge, is an ancient building (begun 1534) of very ungainly architecture and great extent (open daily 9—1, Sunday 11—1). Fine view from the tower, 357 ft. The frescoes, by Bendemann (1845), in the Thron-Saal, painted on a gold ground, represent the various conditions of life, its occupations and labours from the cradle to the grave, and form a frieze round the room. At the lower end are figures of law-givers, from Moses downwards, heroes and great men; at the upper, four large compositions from the history of King Henry the Fowler, bearing upon the 4 estates of the realm, Peasants, Citizens, Nobles (defeat of the Hungarians at Merseburg), Clergy. These paintings are superior to most of the modern German frescoes. The Ball-room is painted with subjects from the mythology and private life of the ancient Greeks. The state rooms are shown, when the court is absent, by an officer called the Bettmeister. Part of the building is undergoing restoration, and several of the collections now scattered in other places are to be collected here.

The Gewehr Gallerie, entered from No. 7 Augustus Strasse, contains a large and valuable collection of fire-arms, from flint-locks to breech-loaders, including a number of French rifles taken in the war of 1870–71, the want of finish and the roughness of which are remarkable (open Tuesday and Friday, 9 to 1, free; on other days, tickets, 1 to 6 pers. 6 mks).

The Green Vault (das grüne Gewölbe)*, a range of vaulted apartments, on the ground-floor of the Palace, are so called, probably, from the colour of the painted walls or of the hangings with which the chambers were originally decorated. They form a separate and curious exhibition, and are shown on week-days from 9 to 1, 1 mk. Tickets, which cost 9 mks. for a party numbering from 1 to 6, can be obtained at the entrance. The inspector conducts parties not exceeding 6 in number, and explains every thing to them.

The Saxon Electors, besides being politically far more powerful and important in former times than at present (they were shorn of half their territory in 1815), were also among the richest princes of Europe; the Freiberg silver-mines alone were an immense source of wealth, previous to the discovery of America. The numerous and valuable collections of various kinds, still existing in the capital, are proofs both of their riches and their taste. One mode by which they showed their magnificence, and expended their money, was in the accumulation of all kinds of rare objects, such as jewels and exquisite carvings, in the precious metals and in other costly materials, which were deposited in a secret strong room under their palace, where it is believed that vast treasures of money were also accumulated. This is the origin of the collection now known as the Green Vault, some of the objects of which were collected by Duke George the Bearded (d. 1539), but the costliest date from the time of Augustus the Strong, 1724. It is probably the richest which any European monarch at this time possesses. The value of the whole must amount to several millions.

A large portion of the objects are in the highest degree worthy of attention as works of art,* while others are at least wonderful as the elaborate productions of patient toil and skill, and of arts which in the present day may be said to be almost extinct, or at least to have degenerated. The treasures are contained in 8 apartments, and have been rearranged within the last few years. The objects are so numerous, that it is quite impossible to allude to more than a few of the most striking in each chamber.

1st room (Bronze-Zimmer) contains objects in bronze, mostly Italian and French work of the 16th to the 18th cent., as a Crucifix, by John of Bologna, a masterpiece—a little dog scratching itself, by Peter Vischer—a copy of the Farnese bull—the Rape of Proserpine—a statue of Charles II. of England on horseback, in the character of St. George, cut out of a piece of solid cast iron.

* See Lewis Gruner's 'Illustrations of the Green Vaults,' a beautiful work.

2nd (Elfenbein-Zimmer) contains objects in ivory—a Crucifix attributed to, and also 2 unfinished horses' heads in relief by, Michael Angelo—a fight between two drunken musicians by Albert Dürer (?)—a number of beautiful vases, some of large size, cut out of a single piece of ivory—a cup, on which is carved the story of the Foolish Virgins—the Fall of Lucifer and the Wicked Angels, a group of 142 figures, carved in one piece of ivory, 16 inches high, and remarkable rather for the labour bestowed on it than as a work of art: it is said to be the work of a Neapolitan monk—a model of a Dutch frigate by Zeller of Deutz, 1620. There is an interesting work of the present day, a goblet of ivory and stag's horn, cut in the manner of a cameo with figures representing a hunt, by Schulz, an artist of Meiningen.

3rd (Kamin Zimmer) contains enamels and Florentine mosaics; engraved shells; ostrich eggs, carved and ornamented: No. 41 is an egg said to have been laid by an ostrich kept in the menagerie of Moritzburg; objects in amber, particularly a cabinet, entirely of this precious material; a chimney-piece (Kamin) of Dresden china, by Neuber (1788), ornamented with precious stones, all of them the produce of Saxony. The paintings in Enamel consist of 3 classes, antique, French 16th-cent., and modern. Obs. a Madonna and Ecce Homo, by Raphael Mengs when young; portraits of Alexis, son of Peter the Great, and also of Augustus the Strong, by Dinglinger; a fruit-dish, with a battle-piece, by Noel Landin of Limoges.

4th (Silber or Buffet-Zimmer) filled with gold and silver plate which adorned the banquets of the Saxon palace. At the coronation of the Emperors a part of this collection was carried to Frankfurt by the Electors of Saxony, who held the hereditary office of Arch-Marshal of the empire. A silver dish, made at Nuremberg by Kollerthaler, 1615, has served at all the Electoral and Royal christenings. A drinking-horn of Danish manufacture, 1550. A Russian drinking-cup, of 1696, given by Peter the Great to Augustus II, Reliquary by Jamnitzer of Nuremberg (d. 1586). Two Arabian drinking-vessels of the time of the Crusades. *A cup by (?) Benvenuto Cellini.

5th (Grosser or Pretiosen-Saal). The walls are adorned with portraits of 10 Saxon Electors of the reigning Albertine line. Obs. vessels formed of half-precious stones, such as agates, chalcedony, rock crystal, lapis lazuli, &c.;—2 goblets studded thickly with cut gems (some of them antiques) are valued at 6000 thalers each. An antique onyx cameo, bearing the portraits of Augustus. The cups of Moss agate are particularly beautiful.

Here may be seen the largest enamel known,—a Madonna, by Dinglinger. A set of vessels cut out of solid rock crystal are valuable for their size and brightness; the modern manufacture of crystal glass, however, has attained such excellence, as nearly to equal them in appearance. The bust of Diana is of Derbyshire fluor spar. A crystal cup which belonged to Luther.

6th (Eck-Cabinet) contains numerous caricature figures of men and animals formed of single pearls, of odd shapes and unusual size, chiefly found in the Elster, a Saxon river. For instance, the body of a court dwarf of the King of Spain is represented by a pearl as large as a hen's egg. Besides these, there are a number of other most costly jewels and trinkets, on which a vast deal of ingenuity and wealth must have been expended; and two old watches, called Nuremberg eggs (there is a finer one in the Rüstkammer) from their shape and the name of the place where they were first made, in 1500. Obs. the 4 beggars by Krüger.

7th (Wappen or Holz-Zimmer). This contains a large assemblage of cleverly cut figures in ivory and wood, also the Polish regalia. Among the carvings in wood are two combats of knights, by Colin of Mecklin, who executed the reliefs on Maximilian's tomb at Innsbrück; 6 small medallions representing the creation of man are attributed to A. Dürer.

8th (Juwelen-Zimmer). This last apartment surpasses all the others in the value and splendour of its contents.

Among them are the works of Dinglinger (1665-1731), an artist who may be fairly termed the Saxon Benvenuto Cellini. He was court jeweller at Dresden, and he and two relatives of inferior skill were almost entirely employed by the Electors of Saxony; and a close examination of the workmanship displayed in his performances will show that they are the productions of no mean artist. One of these pieces is called the Court of the Great Mogul, and represents the Emperor Aurungzebe upon his throne at Delhi, surrounded by his guards and courtiers, in the most appropriate costumes according to the description of Tavernier, to the number of 132 figures, all of pure gold enamelled. The variety of character, and the true expression of each of the figures, deserve the minutest inspection. This elaborate trinket, begun in 1701, employed Dinglinger 8 years, and cost 58,400 thalers. Another piece, by the same artist, portrays artisans of different trades, all remarkable for the delicacy and perfection with which they are executed.

Other things to be noticed in this room are—an immense specimen of uncut Peruvian emeralds, given by Rudolph II. to the Elector of Saxony; a portion of a mass of solid native silver from the Himmelsfürst mine at Freiberg. It is recorded, that no less than 2176 cwt. of silver were obtained in the course of 50 years from that mine alone. The Saxon Regalia include—the Electoral sword borne by the Saxon princes at the Imperial coronations; the decorations belonging to a miner's uniform, made for the Elector John George, 1676; a large collection of chains, collars, and orders; among which are the Garter, Golden Fleece, Polish Eagle, &c., worn by Saxon princes. The largest sardonyx known, $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, and $4\frac{1}{4}$ broad; it is oval, and beautifully regular.

Last of all comes a glass case filled with most precious suits of the most costly jewels. The 1st division contains Sapphires; the largest of them, an uncut specimen, was a gift of Peter the Great;—the 2nd, Emeralds;—

3rd, Rubies; the two largest spinels weigh 48 and 59 carats;—4th, Pearls; one set of native Saxon pearls, from the Elster in Voigtland, are of course inferior to the Oriental. Among 63 rings there are two which belonged to Martin Luther; one a carnelian bearing a rose, and in its centre a cross; the other his enamelled seal ring, bearing a death's head, and the motto, "Mori sæpe cogita."

The 5th division is devoted to Diamonds. The diamond decorations of the gala dress of the Elector consist of buttons, collar, sword-hilt and scabbard, all of diamonds; the 3 brilliants in the epaulette weigh nearly 50 carats each. But the most remarkable stone of all, which is considered unique, is a green brilliant, weighing 160 grains = 40 carats. 6th division, also fitted with diamonds, includes the Saxon order of the Rue Garland, and 7 orders of the Golden Fleece, &c., &c., &c.

The Zwinger.—This building, begun in 1711, was intended merely as the fore-court to a new and magnificent rococo palace, designed by Augustus II., but never carried further. It is an enclosure consisting of an arcade, which, with the portal in front, is original and picturesque, but surmounted by heavy and inelegant pavilions at the sides. The whole is an extravaganza. During the insurrection of May 1849, the S.E. angle of the Zwinger was burned down, but has been rebuilt, 1855, in the same style, and covered with a copper roof, and with the Museum forming its 4th side composes a handsome quadrangle. The body of the building is now occupied by the Picture Gallery, the collections of drawings and engravings, the gallery of casts, and the Museum of Natural History.

The PICTURE GALLERY, the finest collection of paintings in Germany, is open to the public daily, except Thursday, from May to Oct., 10 to 4, Nov.

 See Kugler's Handbook of Painting, Part I., Italian School, edited by Eastlake: Parts II. and III., Germany and Netherlands, edited by Dr. Waagen: Part IV., France and Spain, by Sir Edmund Head, Bart.

Plan of the New Picture Gallery, Dresden.—1st Floor.
Theater-Platz.

to April, 10 to 3; but Mond. and Sund. 11 to 2; Tues., Frid., and Sund., entrance free; Wed. and Sat., 50 pf.; Mond., 1½ mk. Eng. catalogue, 2½ mks. It is furnished with seats, and well warmed in winter.

The New Gallery, occupying the 4th side of the Zwinger, was begun 1846 and opened 1855. It is a handsome sandstone edifice with Corinthian columns in front, and sculptured decorations by Rietschel and Hähnel of Dresden. The architect was Semper. On entering the central archway from the side of the river, the door on the l. leads into the Gallery of Casts. Passing into the Great Hall, through the doorway on the rt., the entrance to the Print Room is facing you.

The rudiments of a collection of paintings were made in the reign of Duke George, the friend of Lucas Cranach; but Augustus II. may be regarded as the founder of the Gallery. It was greatly increased, and received some of its brightest ornaments, in the reign of Augustus III., who purchased the famous Sistine Madonna of Raphael, Holbein's Madonna, and the Modena collection (including the Correggios). "While lingering among the great productions of a captivating art, it is a pleasant feeling that they have had the rare fortune to be treated with reverence by every hostile hand. Frederick the Great bombarded Dresden, battered down its churches, laid its streets in ruins, but ordered his cannon and mortars to keep clear of the Picture Gallery. He entered as a conqueror, levied the taxes, administered the government, and, with an affectation of humility, asked permission of the captive Electress to visit the Gallery as a stranger. Napoleon's policy, too, led him to treat Saxony with much consideration, and was the guardian angel of her pictures. Not one of them made the journey to Paris."—Russell's Germany.

All the finest works of the old masters are arranged in the 2 upper storeys of the building. In the centre, under the dome, are hung 6 tapestries after Raphael's Cartoons, and 6 old Flemish tapestries.

A few of the choicest works out of an aggregate of 2450 paintings are here enumerated. The numbers do not run in succession, and the position of the pictures is frequently changed, leading to much confusion. The name of the painter is on each picture.

Italian and Spanish Schools. No collection out of Italy contains a finer Raphael, or can compete with this in the works of the Venetian masters and Correggio.

One room (A) is set apart for Raphael's masterpiece, the Madonna di San Sisto, and another at the further extremity (N) for Holbein's Madonna.

RAPHAEL'S MADONNA DI SAN SISTO, 67, is the gem of the Dresden Gallery. It is thought to be almost entirely by his own hand, and is in his latest and best manner, and was executed only a few years before his death. The sainted Pope Sixtus, from whom the picture is named, is represented on the one side gazing with holy ecstasy upon the figure of the Virgin, bearing in her arms the divine Child. "The head of the Virgin is perhaps nearer the perfection of female beauty and elegance than anything in painting; it is truly impressive and beautiful."—Wilkie. Opposite to the Pope kneels St. Barbara; her youthful beauty and fervour contrast admirably with his aged form. Below this group are two angelic children, their eyes upturned towards the central figures of the picture; they are among the happiest efforts of art. This picture was painted for the altar of the Benedictine Convent of St. Sixtus at Piacenza, and was purchased (1753) for 17,000 ducats (about 8000*l.*). It was restored by Palm in 1826.

Albano—A Dance of Cupids.

Baroccio—Hagar in the Wilderness.

Battoni—Recumbent Magdalen.

Giovanni Bellini—Virgin and Child with Saints.—Portrait of the Doge Loredano.

Bordone—Virgin and Child.

Sandro Botticelli—Miracle of St. Zenobius: in 4 scenes.—Virgin and Child.

Simone Cantarini—Joseph and Potiphar's Wife.

Caravaggio—The Card-players: full of truth and nature.—St. Sebastian.

Annibale Caracci—Fame soaring upwards: very spirited.—St. Matthew writing his Gospel under the superintendence of the Virgin, with St. John and St. Francis.—Head of Christ.

Carlo Cignani—Joseph and Potiphar's Wife: a masterpiece.

Cima da Conegliano—Christ: a whole-length figure, of great majesty.

Carlo Dolce—St. Cecilia: one of the best pictures of the painter.—Our Saviour blessing the bread, the same as the Burleigh picture.

CORREGGIO.—Excepting at Parma, so many and such excellent works of this artist are to be met with nowhere in Europe. The following 6 paintings are arranged here according to the periods of the artist's life at which they were executed, as it is peculiarly interesting to watch the change in style and the progress to perfection made by so great a master in his art:—The Virgin and Child with St. Francis, painted, it is said, at the age of 18, restored by Palm in 1827. The far-famed picture of the Virgin and infant Jesus in the Manger, known by the name of "La Notte," the Night, was begun about the year 1522 for the chapel of S. Prospero at Reggio, and restored in 1827 and 1858. "Correggio has here converted the literal representation of a circumstance of sacred history into a divine piece of poetry, when he gave us that emanation of supernatural light streaming from the form of the celestial child, and illuminating the ecstatic face of the Virgin mother, who bends over her infant undazzled; while another female draws back, veiling her eyes with her hand, as if unable to endure the radiance. Far off through the gloom of night we see the morning just breaking along the eastern horizon—emblem of the 'day-spring from on high.'" Mrs. Jameson.—"The Notte of Correggio is what I expected the most from, and the condition of which has given me the greatest disappointment. Yet, how beautiful the arrangement! All the powers of the art are here united to make a perfect work. Here the simplicity of the drawing of the Virgin and Child is shown in contrast with the foreshortening of the group of Angels; the strongest unity of effect with the most perfect system of intricacy. The emitting the light from the Child, though a supernatural illusion, is eminently successful; it looks neither forced nor improbable. Whatever the Notte may have been, the hand of the picture-cleaner is here manifest; and those who like bright daylight effect will have it here to their hearts' content. Correggio did not, like Rembrandt, in these effects attempt to give the colour of lamplight; the phosphorescent quality of light was more his aim, as in his 'Christ in the Garden.' But here the light on the Virgin and Child is white, chalky, and thin; and the rest of the picture has somewhat the poverty of a copy. The group of shepherds indeed appear, in character and in the beauty of painting, inferior to the general run of Correggio's figures; the man at the side is even coarse. Still, however, the matchless beauty of the Virgin and Child, the group of Angels overhead, the day-break in the sky, and the whole arrangement of light and shadow, give it the right to be considered, in conception at least, the greatest of his works. * * For the conception, purpose, and originality,—as an arrangement of colour, effect, and of sentiment,—I consider it one of the first works the art of painting has to boast of; and, in the adaptation of light and shadow to the illusion of the subject, one of the triumphs of modern art." Wilkie.—Virgin and Child, with St. George. The figures of the children and Madonna are particularly admired for their grace and sweetness of expression.—This picture was injured by the length of the time it remained packed up at the Königstein in 1759. It has been twice restored.—The Recumbent Magdalen, one of the sweetest and most pleasing, as well as the most faultless pictures ever painted. It is distinguished for its peculiar softness of outline, and is executed in the artist's best manner. "It is in its pristine condition; almost as left by the master, without even varnish. The head, neck, and arms are beautiful; the face and right arm one of the finest pieces of painting I have witnessed. The shadows are extremely loaded; the lights, though painted flat and floating, are, compared with them, thin and smooth. The background and darks of the picture, even the blue drapery, want richness and transparency."—Wilkie. The Virgin and Child with St. Sebastian, painted about 1528, is one of the most striking examples of the master's magic chiaroscuro, remarkable, to use the words of an eminent artist, for the "exquisite truth of tint in the passage from light to dark; so that in this picture, as in nature, the spectator is soon unconscious of the presence of shade. The picture has been three times restored.—Portrait of a Man, [supposed to be the physician of the artist.

Lor. da Credi—Virgin and Child, with SS. John and Sebastian.—Holy Family.—Virgin and Child.

G. M. Crespi—Ecce Homo.—The Seven Sacraments (7 pictures).

Dosso Dossi—The Doctors of the Church, SS. Gregory, Augustine, Ambrose, and Jerome, meditating on the Immaculate Conception; a grand work.

M. A. Franceschini—The Magdalen Converted.

Francia—Adoration of the Shepherds.—The Baptism in Jordan.—Holy Family.

Garofalo (Benvenuto)—The Virgin kneeling before the infant Saviour, an Angel kneeling opposite.

Gimignano (Vincenzo da San)—Virgin and Child: an exquisite little picture.

Giorgione—Meeting of Jacob and Rachel.

Guido Reni—Several Ecce Homos.—Bacchus as a child.—Venus and Cupid.—Ninus and Semiramis.

C. Maratti—Virgin and Child with Cherubim.

Moretto—Madonna of Monte Gaitone.

Murillo—Virgin and Child.—The martyr S. Rodriguez.

Palma Vecchio—The Virgin and infant Saviour with St. John Baptist: a work of fascinating beauty.—Palma's 3 Daughters.—Two Holy Families with St. Catherine.

Parmigiano — Virgin and Child, known as the Madonna della Rosa.

Seb. del Piombo—Christ bearing his Cross.

Ribera—St. Mary of Egypt, Martyrdom of St. Lawrence.

Giulio Romano—Holy Family, called the Madonna della Cattina. A good copy of the Madonna della Seggiola, by Raphael.

Rotari—Weeping Magdalen.—Several portraits.

And. del Sarto—Sacrifice of Isaac.

Sassoferrato — Madonna and Child with Cherubim.—Madonna in Prayer.

F. Solimena—Mater Dolorosa.

Titian—The Tribute Money, known as “Il Christo della Moneta:” remarkable for the richness of colour, fine expression, and high finish, painted about 1514 for the Duke of Ferrara. — The Virgin and Child, the Baptist, St. Jerome, and St. Paul. Some of the colour is very beautiful. — Portrait of Pietro Aretino. — A reclining Venus, like that in the Fitzwilliam Museum. It has suffered dreadfully from cleaning. — Portrait of a young woman dressed in white, with a fan.—Several portraits.

Paul Veronese—The Finding of Moses.—The Adoration of the Magi: a glorious combination of colour.—The Virgin and Child enthroned between St. John the Baptist and St. Jerome. Three female figures, Faith, Hope, and Charity, are presenting to the Virgin a Member of the Venetian family of Cocina, who had been reconciled to the Church after having listened to the doctrines of the Reformation. The other members of the family accompany him: a masterpiece of the artist.—The Marriage in Cana.—Christ bearing the Cross.—Christ and the Centurion.—The Circumcision.

L. da Vinci—Holy Family, exquisitely finished.

German, Flemish, Dutch, and French Schools.

The works of the early German and Flemish masters here, are far inferior to those at Munich, Berlin, and Vienna; but in the productions of the later period of these schools the Dresden Gallery is very rich indeed.

[N. G.]

The room at the N.E. extremity of the gallery is set apart to contain the masterpiece of German art by Hans Holbein, the younger—Jacob Meyer, burgomaster of Basle, with his Family, kneeling before the Virgin and Child. This is Holbein's chef-d'œuvre, and is an improvement on the earlier picture of the same subject in the collection of Prince Charles at Darmstadt. Here is also a portrait of Morrett, an English goldsmith, formerly attributed to L. da Vinci; Crucifixions by A. Dürer and Roger v. der Weyden; and a Virgin and Child by Van Eyck.

Berghem — Landscapes — Cattle returning from the Mountains, crossing a swollen brook — A rocky Scene, mountains in the distance.

Backhuysen—Sea-fight between the English and Dutch Fleets.

Ferdinand Bol — Joseph presenting his Father Jacob to Pharaoh: worthy of Rembrandt. — The Repose in Egypt.

Both—Landscape: in the foreground, two men on horseback.

Hans Burghmayer—Martyrdom of St. Ursula and the 10,000 Virgins, a curious work by a rare master.

Claude—The Flight into Egypt. — Acis and Galatea.—Landscape.

L. Cranach—Christ on the Mount of Olives.—Christ with the instruments of Martyrdom.—Portrait of a Saxon prince.

Balthaser Denner — Head of an old Woman, with white drapery around it.

Gerard Dow—A Dentist drawing a Boy's Tooth. — Portrait of G. Dow painting. — A Hermit in a Cave at prayer. — The Artist, as a young man, playing on the Violin.—There are 16 pictures of this master; all capital pieces.

A. Dürer—A small Crucifixion, from the Boehm Collection, Vienna.—Christ bearing his Cross, painted almost in monochrome, the painter's last work, dated 1527.—Portrait of Bernhard v. Ressen, in a black dress.

Karl Dujardin—Cattle-pieces.

John van Eyck—The Virgin and Child, a triptych, with St. Catherine and St. Michael on the wings.

J. Jordaens—Satyr with Fruit.

Angelica Kaufmann—The Vestal.

S. Koninx—Hermit reading.

J. van der Meer—Interior of a wood.

G. M. Crespi—Ecce Homo.—The Seven Sacraments (7 pictures).

Memling—Portrait of Antony of Burgundy, natural son of Philip the Good, a fine head, attributed to the master.

M. A. Franceschini—The Magdalene converted.

G. Metz—The Poultrywoman.—The Poultryman, dealing with a young Woman.

F. Mieris—A Soldier smoking.—An old Man mending a Pen.—A travelling Tinker scrutinising a worn-out Kettle: one of the artist's finest works.—The Artist in his Studio.

Netscher—The Artist's own Portrait.—A Lady playing, while a Man by her side is singing.—Portraits of Madame de Montespan: in one of the latter is her son, the Duke of Maine.

Ad. v. Ostade—The Tap-room.—The Painter in his Studio.

Paul Potter and A. van de Velde—Cattle in wooded landscape.

Nic. Poussin—A Sleeping Venus.

Rembrandt—Rape of Ganymede.—Portrait of his (?) Mother; she is weighing gold.—The Entombment of Christ.—Landscape.—His own Portrait, with his Wife sitting on his knee, and a glass of wine in his hand.—His Wife holding a carnation: a charming picture.

Rubens—St. Jerome: compare this picture with Van Dyck's St. Jerome placed next to it.—Portrait of Rubens' two sons.—A Picture known by the name of the Garden of Love, repetitions of which exist at Vienna and Madrid.—The Judgment of Paris, a small, highly finished study, nearly a repetition of the picture in our National Gallery.—The Boar Hunt: a very animated sketch.—Neptune stilling the tempest (called the "Quos ego"), upon the passage of the Cardinal Ferdinand of Austria from Spain to Italy.—A Sketch for the large picture of the Last Judgment, at Munich.—A Hero crowned by Victory.—Portrait of a young woman in black, with flowers in her left hand: a charming picture, lights well arranged, flesh colour exquisite.—The Vintage.

Ruisdael—The Hunt: a wooded scene, with a piece of water in the foreground. The figures are by Van de Velde. One of the finest pictures Ruisdael ever painted.—The Château of Bentheim.—Landscape, known as "the Jews' Burial-ground."—Open landscape.

Van de Velde—Seapiece.

Schalcken—A Girl examining an Egg by a Candle.

Teniers—Two Village Festivals.—Temptation of St. Anthony; in which, as in the same subject at Berlin, the painter's wife and mother-in-law appear.—The Alchemist's Laboratory.—A Guard Room. A boy and armour in the foreground; soldiers playing at cards. One of the most perfect of his pictures: clear, delicate, and free in execution.—Boors smoking, drinking, and gambling.—Peter brought out of Prison by the Angel: oddly treated.

Terburg—A Soldier writing a letter, for which a trumpeter is waiting.—A young Lady in white, before a table.

Vander Werden—Christ on the Cross.

Von der Werf—Judgment of Paris.—Abraham and Hagar.—The Artist and his Family.—The Annunciation.

Van Dyck—Charles the First.—His Queen, Henrietta Maria.—Their Children, Charles II., James II., Mary, afterwards Princess of Orange.—Portrait of Old Parr, at the age of 151 (?).—Portrait of the painter David Rykaert, in a fur pelisse, sitting in an arm-chair: a fine portrait; low and brown in tone, but broad and powerful.

C. L. Vogel—Two Children sitting.

Wouverman—There are no less than 55 pictures by him, among which are many of his best works, as the Horse Market.—The Camp.—Horsemen at an Inn.—A Fair.—The Halt.—The Mill.—Skirmish of Cavalry, and several battle-pieces.

On the ground-floor of the Picture Gallery are a series of 50 landscapes by Bernardo Caneletto, many of them Views of Dresden and its vicinity; the greater part possess no high merit, except the view of the Kreuzkirche and of the Brühl Terrace. Also a large series of drawings in crayon (pastel). The best are the following, by Raphael Mengs:—Cupid sharpening his Arrow, is excellent;—and His own Portrait, —La Belle Chocoladière, a waitress at a coffee-house in Vienna, and a celebrated beauty of the last century, who married into a high Austrian family (the Dietrichsteins), by Liotard, in crayons. The remainder are, for the most part, by Rosalba Carriera, a female artist of Venice, and of inferior merit.

Below the Picture Gallery also is a Collection of Plaster Casts of the most famous ancient and modern statues. They are called the Mengschen Abgüsse, the original stock having been made by and under the superintendence of the artist Raphael Mengs. Obs. the group representing Ajax carrying away the body of Achilles, put together and restored from antique fragments in the Pitti Palace at Florence. The exertion and muscular display of the one figure, contrasted with the impotent lifeless limbs of the other, are not to be surpassed. Jonah on the whale, by Raphael: the original is preserved in Ireland; casts of Venus, and the colossal bust of Juno (Ludovisi), also deserve attention.

The Cabinet of Engravings (Kupferstich-Sammlung), also in a range of vaulted apartments, on the ground-floor, is shown to the public on weekdays, 10 to 2; Wed. and Sat., free; Mon., Tues., Thurs., Fri., 50 pf. A series of 1000 choice engravings and drawings, framed and glazed, are displayed on the walls, chronologically arranged. The rest of the collection, amounting to 350,000 engravings and drawings is stowed away in portfolios. Mr. Lewis Gruner, so well known in England as an accomplished artist, engraver, and author, is the director. He has prepared a complete and instructive catalogue of the whole. That amiable and erudite gentleman will give every information respecting it.

This is "one of the most complete collections in Europe, containing everything that is interesting in the history of the art, or valuable from practical excellence, and forms a supplement to the Picture Gallery. The oldest is of the date 1466, and is said to be the earliest yet known. Whoever wishes to study the history of this beautiful art, and to be initiated in the mysteries of connoisseurship, can find no better school than the cabinet of Dresden. It overflows with materials, and is under the direction of a gentleman who not only seems to be thoroughly master of his occupation, but has the much rarer merit of being in the highest degree particularly attentive and communicative."—Russell.

The collection is rich in the early German masters, Mechenen, Schoengauer, Albert Dürer, Wohlgemuth, &c., and has some valuable Marc Antonios.

The 90 portfolios of Drawings by the old masters, especially of the early German, Flemish, and Dutch schools, form a very interesting and prominent portion of this cabinet. Besides 300 choice examples of chefs-d'œuvre of all schools exhibited under glass, there is a valuable series of 450 portraits, unique probably of its kind, of all the most distinguished characters of the 19th cent. in Europe—sovereigns and royal families, statesmen and generals, artists and men of eminence in science and literature—taken from the life, chiefly by Prof. Vogel.

The Historical Museum (Armoury)* was removed in 1876 from the Zwinger to the Johanneum. Open May to Oct., Sun. and holidays, 11 to 2; Mon., Tues., Thurs., Fri., 9 to 1, 50 pf.; attendance for 1 to 8 persons, 9 mks.

This is one of the finest collections of the kind in Europe. Though less interesting, as an historical collection, it surpasses the Ambras collection at Vienna in armour of rich and studied workmanship, and leaves the Armoury in the Tower of London very far behind. It contains all the weapons, offensive and defensive, of chivalrous warfare; all the trappings and accoutrements of the tournament and other wild sports of feudal ages. Wealth and skill appear to have been exhausted in the materials and decoration of the armour. The elaborate workmanship in gold, silver, and ivory expended on the smaller arms, as the hilts of swords, stocks of guns, bits and stirrups, the rich damasking of the plate-armour and gun-barrels, and the carving and inlaid work so profusely bestowed, are sufficient to excite wonder and admiration. There are no suits in it older than the time of our Henry VIII.; but several of Queen Elizabeth's period, for man and horse, are covered with reliefs executed in the richest style. The new arrangement is not yet complete, but in the Zwinger the objects were exhibited in the following order:—

The 1st room (Entréesaal) contained specimens of painted glass of the 15th and 16th centuries; portraits of Saxon princes of the Ernestine and Albertine dynasties. Those of Albert and his wife are by L. Cranach: the rest are for the most part copies.

Around the room were arranged many articles of old furniture, cabinets, &c., almost all of which are ascertained to have belonged to the persons whose portraits then decorated the walls. Among them that of Churfurt August I. (1520–86), the founder of the Museum. The work-table of the Electress Anne (1585). A cabinet given to Martin Luther by his friend the Elector John Frederick; together with a small silver-gilt drinking-cup, which was presented to him by the Elector; and his sword. A great number of ancient drinking-vessels, horns, goblets, cups, for all varieties of potations:—the reader of Walter Scott will be pleased to discover among them the type of the blessed bear of Bradwardine.

The 2nd room (Jagdzimmer) filled with implements of sports, pastimes, the chase, gardening, turning, &c.; spears, knives, bows, hunting-horns, and game-bags. A carved hunting-horn of ivory (12th cent. ?); the hunting-knife and horn of Henry IV. of France; the cross-bow of the Elector Maurice (d. 1553); of John Frederick, 1554, ornamented with a representation of Orpheus on one side, and a chase on the other. Game-bags embroidered by princesses; a collection of dogs' collars, arranged in chronological order from the time of Henry the Pious, 1541, to John George I., 1656.

3rd. Tournament Gallery (Turnier-Saal), occupied almost entirely with parade arms and armour, employed in the tilts and tournaments of the times of chivalry. Of a collection of swords here shown, the oldest is a French blade, dated 1293. There is also a huge two-handed sword, with blade 7 ft. long. The labour and skill bestowed on the ornaments of some of the sword-hilts should not be overlooked. In this gallery of iron statues, horse and foot, the most remarkable suits are those worn by Saxon princes of the 16th and 17th centuries, and arranged in chronological order. Obs. the armour of Henry the Pious (d. 1541), 2 parade suits of iron and copper-gilt, the one made at Augsburg, the other in Italy, for Elector Christian II. (d. 1611); a parade suit of John George I. (d. 1656); and a gorgeous Milanese parade suit of Charles Emmanuel, Duke of Savoy (d. 1630); of Christian I. (d. 1591) there are 5 suits here. A mounted knight, in black armour, usually formed part of the funeral procession of Saxon princes; several black suits in the collection have been used for this purpose. In the same way, on gala-days and at great festivities, such as the accession, marriage, or the like event in the life of a Saxon prince, a knight in gold and silver armour, as gaily and as splendidly decorated as possible, made part of the show. On these joyous occasions, the horse was called Gala Horse (Freude Pferd), and on the more mournful, Mourning Horse (Trauer Pferd).

Several shields and helmets of iron, beautifully chased and ornamented with reliefs, such as are usually employed only in decorating articles formed of the precious metals. It is well known that the invention and taste in design of the most talented artists was called in to aid the skill of the armourers of those days.

Near the end of the room are several tilting suits. Two of these in particular deserve notice. They are the complete equipment of two knights on horseback for the battle ordeal (Gottesgerichtskampf), a judicial combat, in which he who was thrown generally broke his neck, owing to the great weight (over 200 lbs.) of the suit. They are so ponderous and unwieldy, that the slightest motion was hardly possible; the wearer could not even turn his head, but must content himself with looking straight forward through the scanty opening of his heavy helmet. The suits consist of a breastplate, to which is attached a shield, and over it a black target of wood, still bearing the dents of the lance, and a back-piece. To this was screwed a sort of hook, serving as a rest for the lance, attached to the saddle behind. Without this provision it would have hardly been possible to support, in a horizontal position, the heavy lances used in the tournament. The thighs were not encased, but protected by two shields, or pieces of iron, projecting from the saddle on each side. The two different kinds of lance in use are exhibited in this gallery, one pointed, and intended to pierce through both armour and wearer, and used only in the combat for life and death; the other ending in several small spikes, and intended to attach itself to the outside of the armour, when driven against it.

The 4th room (Schlachtsaal). Another long gallery filled with warlike arms for use in the field, not for show, less ponderous and unwieldy than the preceding. Those on horseback are of the 16th and 17th centuries, but the arms displayed on the walls go back to the Crusades. A large part have been worn in battle. Most of the suits were made for Saxon princes and other historical characters, and are chronologically arranged. The first is that of Duke George the Bearded (d. 1539). Then comes the armour of Henry the Pious; of John Frederick the Magnanimous, worn by him when taken prisoner at Mühlberg, 1547. There are 3 suits of the Elector Maurice; near them is preserved the blood-stained scarf which he wore at the battle of Sievershausen, and the bullet, fired (according to tradition) by a traitor on his own side, which killed him, 1553. The fluted suits of Electors

Augustus (d. 1586) and Christian I. are very handsome. Near them is the sword with which the Chancellor Crell was beheaded (1601), in spite of Queen Elizabeth's intercession on his behalf. It bears the motto, "Cave Calviniane." Near it is an iron scaling-ladder of the Thirty Years' War.

The suit which stands 10th in the row is that of the Elector John George I. (1585-1656), who was a leader in the Thirty Years' War. The 15th, a brown suit, is the armour of Gustavus Adolphus, which he left at Weissenfels before the battle of Lützen (in the fight he wore a suit of buff leather, now in the Arsenal at Vienna). The commander's staves and swords of his opponents, Counts Tilly and Pappenheim, are also preserved here. Here also is the cutlass of Thomas Münzer, the leader of the rebellious peasants in Thuringia, in 1525; a character who united the knavery of Jack Cade with the religious madness of the chiefs of the Covenanters in Scotland. To Englishmen the small suit of Edward VI. (d. 1553) and the sword of William III. will be of interest.

Among the most interesting historical relics is the scale-armour worn by the heroic John Sobieski at the siege of Vienna in 1683; near it are displayed the trophies, arms, horse-tail standards, &c., gained by the detachment of Saxon troops who fought under the Duke of Lorraine on that occasion. Their commander, the Elector John George III. (whose cuirass is also here), was the first who planted a Christian flag in the Turkish camp. Farther on is the cuirass, weighing 100 lbs., of the Elector of Saxony and King of Poland, Augustus II., or the "Strong," born 1670, died 1733. It would be difficult to find a man at present who could walk in his armour, "which you can hardly raise from the ground; or wear his iron hat, weighing 14½ lbs. But Augustus, if you believe the Saxons, was a second Samson." He is said to have "lifted a trumpeter in full armour and held him aloft in the palm of his hand—to have twisted the iron banister of a stair into a rope—and to have made love to a coy beauty by presenting in one hand a bag of gold, and breaking with the other a horseshoe." This horseshoe, thus broken in 1711, lies under glass on a table.

Against the walls and pillars of this room are arranged a variety of swords and other weapons, many of which are remarkable for their workmanship, others for their history. Battle-axes and maces of various dates and patterns. A dagger which, after being thrust into the body, separates into three parts on touching a spring, so that it would be impossible to extract it from a wound. A short sword, notched on one side, intended to catch the blade of an adversary, and break it short off before it could be disengaged. The dagger of Rudolph of Swabia, who lost his hand while raising it to wound his brother-in-law, the Emperor Henry IV., in the battle of Merseburg, 1080. The workmanship is very fine.

The weapons with which the Bohemian peasants armed themselves during the Hussite War consist of flails shod with iron; a Polish battle-scythe, of the period of Kosciuszko's revolt; the sword of Don John of Austria, who commanded at Lepanto.

The 5th room (Pistolenzimmer) contains fire-arms, from their earliest invention in Europe. One of the oldest weapons of this kind is a rude sort of pistol, supposed to date from the end of the 15th cent., a mere iron barrel, $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, with a touchhole in the side. It was fired not by a flint falling upon steel, but by the friction of a file upon a piece of firestone (pyrites). The file was inserted in a groove by the side of the touchhole, it was then covered with powder, and the firestone screwed down tightly in contact with it. When the file was smartly drawn out, the friction served to ignite the powder. The first step of improvement after this was a pistol fired by means of a piece of lighted tow; then came the wheel-lock, and afterwards the falling-lock with flint and steel. Specimens of all these varieties are preserved here; also of revolvers and breechloaders dating from the 17th cent. The pistols of Elector George John I., splendidly inlaid with silver and ivory. Another pair, made at Stockholm, remarkable for their plainness, belonged to Charles XII. of Sweden, and were borne by him on the day of his death at Frederickshal, 1718.

6th (Sattel- und Kleiderzimmer). This room is filled with costly stuffs used at the coronations and other festivities of Augustus II. and III., Kings of Poland; trappings and harness for horses, of most rich materials; splendidly embroidered bits and stirrups, and housings for sledge-horses. One set of harness is of gold, splendidly enamelled, set with rubies; another of silver set with pearls. In the 6 large cabinets are state costumes of Saxon Electors from the 16th to the 18th cent., and in 2 smaller ones are shoes of different nations; also those of Kant and Wieland, and the boots of Murat; likewise 15th-cent. mitres worn by the bishops of Meissen.

The 7th room (Türkisches Zelt) is fitted up with a Turkish tent, taken at the siege of Vienna, 1683; and its contents are chiefly Turkish and Eastern arms.

8th (Indianisches Zimmer). Two rooms contain an ethnographical collection; the garments and weapons of various barbarous nations, partly formed by Professors Pöppig and Schomburgh and others in S. America, Borneo, Java, and Sumatra,—as hammocks, clubs, poisoned arrows, shooting-tubes, dresses of coloured feathers, teeth, and claws, arms of the S. Sea Islanders, &c.

9th (Paradesaal). Contains riding equipments and parade trappings of the 16th to 18th cent. Among the historical relics in this last and splendidly ornamented apartments are, the robes worn by Augustus the Strong at his coronation as King of Poland. Here also is an Italian suit of armour for man and horse, hardly to be surpassed for elaborate workmanship. Its surface is covered with reliefs representing the labours of Hercules, the Golden Fleece, Theseus and Ariadne, and other mythological subjects. On each side of it stands a silver suit of the 16th cent., one belonging to Elector Christian I., the other to Prince Christian of Anhalt. The steel ornaments for man and horse belonged to Christian II., and were bought (1606) of Heinrich Knopf of Nuremberg for upwards of 10,000 thalers. The swords deposited here are among the chief ornaments of the collection; the iron hilts being of carved work, executed at Nuremberg with surprising correctness; there are several hundreds of them. The little cocked hat of Peter the Great (obtained by an exchange of hats with Augustus the Strong), a wooden bowl, turned with his own hand, and two of his swords, are among the curiosities here; also a saddle of red velvet of Napoleon, and the boots which he wore at the battle of Dresden (1813), as well as the satin shoes worn by him at his coronation in Paris; a sword of Charles XII. of Sweden, and one of Frederick the Great.

Electrotypes of the objects of this collection are made of various sizes by the inspector, Mr. Büttner. There is also a collection of 2000 guns of various fashions and ages, which may interest sportsmen and soldiers, and a series of twenty pictures representing tournaments, with dates and descriptions.

The Museum of Natural History, occupying the lower storey of the Zwinger, is shown to the public Mon., Wed., Thurs., Sat., 8-2; Thurs. and Frid., 8-10. (Anthropological collection, Tues., Frid., 9-11.) May to Oct., Tues., Frid., free; other days, and in winter, 50 pf.

This collection is not on a par with many others on the Continent, but the departments of Mineralogy and Geology contain good illustrations of the natural history of Saxony. Great part of the contents of this Museum was destroyed by the mob during the insurrection of 3rd to 9th May, 1849, and the valuable Herbarium of Prof. Reichenbach was burned. The loss has been replaced by the very valuable Botanical Collections of the late King Frederick Augustus II., the gift of his widow.

Minerals (daily 10-12, May to Oct., Tues. and Frid., free; other days, 50 pf.; Nov. to April, 50 pf.)—The specimens from the Saxon mines, of the ores of silver, cobalt, lead, and iron, are very complete, especially those from Freiberg and the Erzgebirge. One specimen of native silver formed part of a mass of pure metal large enough to serve as a dinner-table for the Elector, when he visited the Schneeberg mine, in which it was found.

The Fossils are arranged in the l. wing of the Zwinger. Obs. Bones of the cave bear, from Sundwig; cave hyæna, deer, horse, elephant; reindeer, from Oelsnitz; hippurites, from Lebanon; insects, from the lithographic slate; Ichthyosaurus trigonodon, from Banz in Bavaria; Trematosaurus brauris, a colossal lizard, from Bernburg; fishes of the Kupfer Schiefer; fossil trees, from the Rohtodtliegende of Chemnitz, one a trunk of 5½ ft. diam.; Cycadææ, from Cracow; Flora of the coal-field of Saxony and Bohemia, described by the Director, Geinitz.

The JAPANESE PALACE, situated in the Neustadt, on the rt. bank of the Elbe, close to the Leipzig gate, was built by Field-Marshal Count Flemming in 1715, and subsequently sold to Augustus II., who enlarged and embellished it, and used it as a summer residence. It receives its name from some grotesque Oriental figures and ornaments with which it is decorated. It contains:—

1. The Museum of Antiquities (Antikensammlung (open Wed. and Sat., from 10 to 2, from the 1st of May to the 31st of Oct., free; on other days and during the rest of the year, 50 pf.) placed on the l.-hand side of the entrance hall, on the ground-floor. This collection has suffered both from the ignorant mutilations of a barbarous age, and from the reparations and restorations of a more enlightened period, but it contains many objects of high interest, both in point of art and as illustrations of antiquity.

In the 1st Hall are modern works, chiefly busts of Saxon Electors, in bronze, and marble, and copies. In the 2nd Hall is a collection of Greek vases, and other examples of ancient pottery.

Third Hall. No. 15. A head of Niobe, like the one at Florence, and, though inferior to it, showing that beautiful expression of intense mental agony, of which, it is said, the masters of the Bolognese school sometimes availed themselves in their representations of the Virgin, especially in those paintings of the Descent from the Cross, or Burial of the Saviour, in which the body lies in the Virgin's arms. 16. A female bronze head, called the Daughter of Niobe. 41. A quadrangular altar with niches for Lares. 42. A Torso of Athene Promachos, known as the Dresden Minerva. She is clad in the peplos, woven for her by Athenian virgins. A strip in front, representing rich embroidery, is divided into 11 compartments, the subjects being the battles of the Gods with the Titans. 43 is a restoration of 42, in clay, by Prof. Rauch of Berlin.

Fourth Hall. 89. Torso of a wounded Gladiator, nearly in the attitude of the Dying Gladiator. This is a fragment of great value. It is executed in the most finished style of art; and the anatomy, especially of the back, is acknowledged to be unequalled for accuracy.

Fifth Hall. 101. Cupid playing with a Lion is not very remarkable for execution, but the design is captivating and the expression pleasing. 98. Minerva represented as the goddess who presided over the intellectual part of warfare, Greek strategy, and tactics. The figure is somewhat masculine in its shape and proportions—there is more of manhood than womanhood in the appearance of her broad shoulders and narrow hips. The ægis is thrown on carelessly and awry. 106. The Pentelic marble basis of a tripod. The relief carved on one side represents Hercules withheld by Phœbus from carrying off the sacred tripod from Delphi; on another side is the reconsecration of the restored tripod; on the 3rd is the consecration of a sacred torch. They are executed in the style called Æginetan. This specimen is curious, as showing the early progress of the art. The faces are all alike, and without expression; the draperies are stiff, and the hair resembles a coil of rope. 116. A Young Wrestler. 114. A young Satyr in the attitude of pouring wine.

Sixth Hall. 162, 163, 164. A Matron of Herculaneum and her 2 Daughters, found in an almost perfect state in the theatre of Herculaneum—very fine and noble figures. They are interesting as showing the costume of a Roman lady, still more so as specimens of the perfect treatment of draperies by ancient artists.

Seventh Hall. 210. Satyr and Nymph. 211. One of the sons of Niobe lying dead, a fine repetition of a well-known statue.

Eighth Hall. 256-259. Statues of 4 Romans engaged in the game of Ball (pila). They were at one time erroneously called Gladiators, and are so restored with sword-hilts in their hands; but these are nobles of the time of Hadrian, not slaves. 231 represents the Empr. Caracalla.

Ninth Hall. 266. Bust of Caligula in red porphyry. The effigy of this emperor is rare, as most of his statues were destroyed after his death from hatred of his cruelty while living. 290. Aphrodite. The head, trunk and arms are antique. The back of this statue is considered by good judges little inferior in exquisite finish to that of the far-famed Venus at Florence. 291. An Athlete anointing himself. 293. Ariadne abandoned by Theseus, is regarding him with reproachful looks as he departs. The head is modern, but the expression of it is good. The shoulders are exquisite.

Tenth Hall. The end represents one side of a Columbarium, and here and in the adjoining room are some Assyrian, Egyptian, Etruscan, and Roman antiquities.

Eleventh Hall. Here are one or two modern works which deserve notice, as 22. A bronze bust of Gustavus Adolphus, made from a cast taken after his death—23. A bust of Cardinal Richelieu, of bronze, a characteristic likeness, of good workmanship—24. A bust of Charles I. of England—52. Deianira carried off by the Centaur, in bronze, the work of John of Bologna.

2. The Library, in the first floor of the Japanese Palace, contains about 500,000 volumes, 2800 MSS., and a very large collection of maps. Open every weekday from 9 to 1, 50 pf. All persons are allowed to consult and peruse books in the reading-room. The inhabitants are permitted to take books home with them, a privilege also extended to strangers who can get some respectable inhabitant of Dresden to come forward as security for them.

There are about 2000 early printed books, from the invention of printing to the end of the 15th cent. Among the MSS. are—a Greek MS. of the 10th cent., interlined with Latin, supposed to have been written in Ireland, one of the greatest curiosities. Alb. Dürer's Treatise on the Proportions of the Human Body, in his own handwriting, and ornamented with his sketches (1528). Three volumes, representing the tournaments held in Dresden from 1487 to 1564, are curious. A volume filled with miniatures of the most celebrated and learned men of the 15th and 16th cents., drawn, it is conjectured, by the younger Cranach. Several volumes of autograph letters, among which are some of Luther, Melancthon, Grotius, Sixtus V., and Bianca Capello. Among the Oriental MSS. is an 8-sided Koran, and another which belonged to Sultan Bajazet. A Mexican MS., with hieroglyphics, curiously painted on aloe-leaves. The Gospels, written in the 12th cent., with vignettes in the style of Greek art. Fragment of the Zendavesta, MS. of the 15th cent. A collection of Fables in Arabic, with miniatures. A collection, in 19 vols. folio, made by Fred. Augustus II., of portraits of the princes and princesses living in the 17th cent., most carefully coloured, with maps of various countries, and plans of the principal towns, said to have cost 20,000 dollars. King René of Anjou's work on Tournaments, with drawings. The Bible translated into Bohemian, in the 14th cent., and written upon parchment in the middle of the 15th. Item, Dr. Faustus's conjuring book. A very large apartment is occupied by European History: that of Saxony is particularly complete. French History fills 3 large rooms.

3. The Collection of Coins, especially the Saxon portion, is rich. It is not open to the general public, but may be seen, Tuesdays and Fridays, 10 to 1, on application to the Director.

The Gardens attached to the Japanese Palace are open to the public, and extend down to the margin of the Elbe, whence the view is pleasing, including the bridges and many of the finest buildings in the town.

The Collection of Porcelain (Porzellan- und Gefäss-Sammlung) was removed 1876 to a new Museum, the JOHANN-NEUM, constructed on the site of the old picture gallery at the N.W. corner of the Neumarkt., open Wed. and Sat., 9-5; other days, 9-2, by tickets, 1 to 6 pers. 6 mks.; and from May 1 to Oct. 31, Mond., Tues., Thurs., Frid., 2-5, 1 mk.

Besides a large collection of 90,000 pieces of china, embracing the earliest as well as the finest productions of native Saxon manufacture, there is an immense quantity of Chinese and Japanese specimens of an old date, but a deficiency in the later and finer qualities. Some of the earlier brown ware were turned in a lathe and polished. There is some Italian and Sèvres ware, but the European porcelain is chiefly that of Meissen. This collection contains the earliest attempts of Böttcher, the alchemist, who is said to have made the discovery whilst seeking for the philosopher's stone (see under Meissen, Rte. 87A). The ware which he produced, and which led to the discovery of true porcelain, is an imperfect opaque porcelain, coloured, by means of oxide of iron in the clay, of a brown or reddish hue.*

At the entrance near the staircase are 2 leopards as large as life, a colossal bust of Augustus the Strong, and a nosegay. The Chinese and Japanese porcelain occupies 11 rooms—a part consists of figures of animals of all sorts, grotesques, &c. &c. The Japanese vases are of great size and price, the antiquities of Chinese porcelain manufacture highly curious. Two plain yellow plates, and one of the same colour broken, are of the greatest rarity, since this class of ware is made for the use of "His Celestial Majesty" alone, and the exportation of them is prohibited under pain of death. A number of beautiful objects in biscuit, such as busts, figures from the antique, groups, the model of a monument to Augustus III. A nosegay of flowers of very delicate workmanship, of a more recent date, and of European origin. Several specimens of French china from Sèvres were the gift of Napoleon; among them are splendid vases, with paintings illustrating the events of his life, &c. &c.

The Italian earthenware (Majolica) is ornamented with paintings founded on the designs of Raphael, though not actually executed by him. One set of china contained in this collection was given to Augustus II., by Frederick William I. of Prussia, in exchange for a company of grenadiers fully equipped.

There is a dépôt for the sale of Dresden China in the town (in the Augustus Strasse). The Jews get up fictitious ware, forging the royal mark. Beware of such articles: the painting is bad, and does not stand. The best security is to purchase from the royal dépôt. The manufactory is at Meissen (Rte. 87A).

Theodor Körner, the German Tyrtæus,

* A very full account of the curiosities of the Dresden China Gallery will be found in Marryat's 'History of Pottery and Porcelain.'

was born, 1791, at No. 4 Körnerstrasse, in the Neustadt. Relief portraits in bronze of Körner and Schiller (who resided in the house for a time) adorn the exterior. In the interior is a Museum of relics (MS. letters and poetry, uniforms, portraits, &c.) of the young soldier-poet. Open daily, 10 to 2; admission $\frac{1}{2}$ mk.

In the Schloss, at the end of the Grosser Garten, S.E. of the town, is a collection of Mediæval Antiquities (Alterthümer Museum), chiefly brought from Saxon churches, such as altarpieces of wood carved and gilt, mass-robes, bishops' mitres, medals, abbatial seals, church plate, relics, &c. Here are several interesting relics of Luther, and a collection of Rietschel's casts and models.

The new Polytechnische Schule, built (1876) by Heyn, on the Bismarck Platz, is a well managed institution, with 34 professors and teachers, a good library, and laboratory in an adjoining building. The old building on the Anton Platz is now used as an industrial school.

Monumental Statues.—Augustus II. the Strong, on horseback, in the Neustadt, near the end of the old bridge, made of hammered copper, by Wiedemann, 1736. The Moritz monument, at the corner of the Botanical Garden, restored 1870. The Elector Maurice is handing over the government to his brother August by presenting him with the Electoral sword before marching against Charles V. King Frederick Augustus the Just, who reigned 58 years (died 1827), of bronze, in the centre of the Zwinger, by Rietschel, 1843. Bronze statue of Carl Maria von Weber, by Rietschel, 1860, in the Theater Platz, in front of the theatre (rebuilding). In the promenade in the Friedrich Stadt is a colossal bust of King Anthony, erected 1835, the year before his death. On the Neumarkt is a bronze statue by Hähnel of Friedrich August II. (died 1854), erected 1866. On the Georg's Platz, a bronze statue by Hähnel, 1871, of Theodor Körner. A colossal bronze bust of Rietschel, by Schilling, was unveiled Feb. 21, 1876, the anniversary of his death (1861), on the Brülsche Terrace, opposite the Academy of Fine Arts, and where his studio formerly was.

Promenades.—There is no lack of pleasant walks in and about the town. Besides the Terrace of Brühl and the gardens of the Japanese Palace, there are a sort of boulevards, which surround the town in the direction of the levelled fortifications, and another pleasant small garden adjoining the Zwinger.

Outskirts and Environs.—At the distance of $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the barrier of the town, on the l. bank of the Elbe, on the way to Pirna, lies the Grosser Garten, a large park filled with fine trees, traversed by shady walks and drives, containing the Schloss (see above) and several cafés and restaurants, to which people resort in summer, especially when attracted by a very good band, which often plays here.

Adjacent to it is the Zoological Garden, established in 1860, an interesting collection of animals, well arranged.

About a mile S.E. of the town, and $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the Great Garden, are the fields and slopes which were the scenes of Napoleon's victory of Dresden, Aug. 26 and 27, 1813. The allied force extended all round the old town, from the barrier of Pirna on the Elbe to the marsh of Priesnitz on that river below the town. Immediately behind the small village of Räcknitz is the Monument to the French General Moreau, who had entered the Russian service against France shortly before the battle. He was struck by a shot from a battery at the angle of the wall now occupied by Dr. Struve's garden. Napoleon caused the distance to be measured, and it was found to be not less than 2000 yards. A large square block of granite, surmounted by a helmet, has been erected on the spot where he received his mortal wound. His two legs, which were separated from his body by a cannon-ball, are buried here, but his body was conveyed to St. Petersburg. The inscription says, "Moreau, the hero, fell here, by the side of Alexander, 27th August, 1813." The view of Dresden from this point is very good.

About $\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the Silesian Rly. Stat., on the outskirts of the Neustadt, in the old Cemetery (Neustädter Kirchhof), is a representation of the Dance of Death (Todtentanz), a procession of 27 figures, in several groups, each headed by the skeleton king, who drags on rather roughly, and with a triumphant air, the unwilling throng, composed of persons of all ranks, ages, and professions. This rude carving, in relief, is of no greater antiquity than 1534. An obelisk of granite serves as a memorial to 40 soldiers and officers shot down by the Republican rioters in the streets of Dresden, May 1849.

Tiedge, the poet (d. 1841), and Adelung, the philologist (d. 1808), are buried in this churchyard.

In the new cemetery, about 20 min. further, are buried the soldiers who died in the military hospitals here in the wars of 1866 and 1870.

Weber, the composer, who died 1826, in London, and whose body was removed from Moorfields in 1844, and Fried. Schlegel (d. 1829), lie in the Catholic churchyard in the Friedrichstadt.

The rt. bank of the Elbe, above Dresden, rises in picturesque hills from the edge of the river. These are topped with rich woods, while their lower slopes, turned to the southern sun, are covered with vineyards, and form a continuation of the Saxon vine district, which begins at Meissen, and extends up to Pillnitz. These sunny slopes are dotted over with neat white villas, in the midst of pleasure-grounds—the retreats of opulent industry. Here the venerable and respected Moritz Retsch, the well-known illustrator of Göthe, Schiller, and Shakespeare, had a pretty villa. Here also are several places of public resort, somewhat between a tea-garden, café, and tavern—where good beer can always be had.

Such are the Schillerschlösschen, and 5 min. further the large Waldschlösschen brewery, carried on by a company: the beer brewed here is celebrated. The building, a striking object from the end of the Brühl terrace, contains rooms for visitors, and there is a terrace much frequented owing to the fine view from it. Beyond this are the Dresden water-works.

About a mile further, on the top of the hill beneath which the Elbe flows, on the site of Findlater's House (so called from a Scotch nobleman who resided here) is the Albrechtsburg, a splendid residence built by Prince Albert of Prussia (d. 1873). Paths lead from the rear to the Wolfshügel, an eminence rising above the road, commanding one of the best views of Dresden. Another modern villa, built by the late Mr. Souchay, is distinguished by its 3 towers.

About 3 m. further, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. from the point where the post-road to Bautzen turns off on the l. above Loschwitz, a small red-tiled, dilapidated country-house is seen, in the midst of a vineyard close to the road. This was for some time the retreat of Schiller, who wrote (1785-7) the greater part of his 'Don Carlos' in it. The building was lent to him by his friend the elder Körner (father of the poet, who resided in the house below). The view from it is very pleasing.

The village immediately opposite Loschwitz, called Blasewitz, has been rendered famous by Schiller, who has named the female suttler in the camp of Wallenstein, Gustel of Blasewitz—the said Gustel being a real person who, in the poet's time, used to sell cakes at the inn close to the ferry.

Following the carriage-road, you pass at Wachwitz the König's Weinberg, the elegant residence of the widow of the late King of Saxony, remarkable for the plantations of foreign trees and plants laid out by its founder. Before reaching Pillnitz, near the village of Hosterwitz, is the house in which C. M. von Weber composed his operas of 'Der Freischütz' and 'Oberon.'

It is the first house on the rt., close to the road, after you pass an avenue of poplars running at rt. angles to the road. It is surrounded by walled vineyards.

6 m. N. of Dresden is Moritzburg; a deserted château of the Saxon Electors, with fish-ponds, containing many relics of old times.

Wesenstein Schloss in the Müglitzthal, belonging to the King of Saxony (3 hrs. from Dresden), makes a pleasant excursion, visiting the castle of Dohna on the way back. The Bohemian Rly. may be used, alighting at Niedersedlitz, the first stat. on the line, and passing through the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Lochwitz Grund; ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Kreyscha; (1 hr.) Maxen, near the spot called Finkenfang, where the Austrians, under Daun, in 1759 took the Prussian General Fink and 15,000 men prisoners. The Rly. may be re-joined at Mügeln Stat.

The excursion by road or rail to the romantic Plauensche Grund and the village of Tharand is described in Rte. 90.

Meissen (Rte. 87A) is a pleasant excursion by steamboat, visiting the castles of Scharfenberg and Siebeneichen on the way.

The most interesting of all the excursions round Dresden is that to the Saxon Switzerland. (Rte. 88.) A traveller pressed for time, and unable to make the whole tour, should at least devote a day to visit the Bastei, Uttewalder Grund, and Königstein, which might easily be accomplished by starting by the railroad in the morning for Pötzscha Stat., so as to breakfast in the inn at the Bastei, proceeding thence along the rt. bank of the Elbe to Schandau, crossing the Elbe by ferry at Schandau, dining at Königstein, and returning by the evening train to Dresden.

By aid of steamer and railway a good deal of the Saxon Switzerland may be visited in afternoon excursions from Dresden, leaving the quiet morning hours to be devoted to the collections.

Railways: 4 Stations (the 2 first in the Neustadt, the other 2 in the Altstadt). (1) Leipziger Bahnhof for N.W. Leipzig (Rte. 86) (to London 38 hrs.) and N. Berlin (Rte. 65)—(2) Schlesischer Bahnhof for E. Görlitz and Breslau (Rte. 82)—(3) Böhmischer Bahnhof for S.E. Saxon-Switzerland, through Bodenbach to Prague (Rte. 88), and S.W. to Freiberg and Chemnitz (Rte. 90). (4) Berliner Bahnhof for Berlin direct (Rte. 65B).

ROUTE 87A.

DRESDEN TO LEIPZIG, via DÖBELN—RAIL.

Distance, 80 m.; time, 4½ hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Dresden and the Rly. as far as 8 m. Coswig Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 87.

Here the line turns off W. and crosses the Elbe to 5 m. Meissen Stat. (Inns: Hirsch, in the Market-place; Stern). A very old town of 15,000 Inhab., prettily situated on the S. bank of the Elbe. It was anciently the seat of a succession of Margraves of different dynasties until the Margraviate came in 1090 to the House of Wettin, which in 1423, in the person of Frederick the Warlike, succeeded to the Duchy of Saxony, with Electoral rank. It was also, from 967 to 1587, the seat of a line of Bishops.

The old restored Castle (Albrechtsburg)

on the precipitous rock above the town, entered by a bridge thrown across the road in a cleft below, was formerly the residence of the Saxon princes, built 1481. The view from it on all sides is charming, and its Gothic architecture presents much that is worthy of admiration, especially in the two elegant corkscrew staircases, the vaulting of the ceilings, the cross room, and a polygonal turret room; the windows are Renaissance, inclining in shape to those of Batalha and St. Mary's, Redcliffe.

Contiguous to the castle is the Dom*, recently restored, the finest Gothic cathedral ch. in Saxony, begun in the 13th and continued to the 15th cent., with an exquisite spire of open work. Fine view from top. From an ante-nave, the Fürstengruft, b. 1423, with curious groined vaulting, you enter, by a door enriched with many figures and reliefs, into the nave, having graceful piers and aisles of equal height (14th cent.), late Dec. The choir is earlier, being of 13th-cent. Gothic. The stone roodloft of 7 rich arches (1342–70) commands a good view of choir and nave. The tabernacle (Sakramentshäuschen) near the altar is very elaborately carved in stone. The painted glass in its windows, and the Descent from the Cross by L. Cranach, in which are introduced the portraits of Luther and his friend the Saxon Elector, are worth notice. In the Prince's vault (at the W. end) many princes of the Saxon house, of the Wettin line, are interred, including Ernest and Albert, founders of the two main lines of the Saxon dynasty. Here are 10 or 12 fine brasses engraved with their effigies and arms; those of about 1500 are finer than any in England or Flanders. The best is that of Sidonia, daughter of George Podiebrad (d. 1510), a work not unworthy of the burin of Alb. Dürer. On a sarcophagus of bronze in the centre of the chapel is an effigy in bas-relief of its builder, Frederick the Warlike (der Streitbare). Obs.: an early altar piece with wings, of our Saviour between the Virgin and St. John, by L. Cranach.

The Ch. of St. Mary (13th cent.) and the Ch. of the former Augustinian monastery of St. Afra (14th cent), are also worth a visit.

The Porcelain Manufactory, up to 1863 in the castle, now occupies a handsome building expressly designed for it in the Triebischthal, $1\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the town.

China ware, or porcelain, was originally brought from the country after which it is named, and was first made in Europe at this place, in 1710, by one Böttcher, an alchemist, who, after wasting a great deal of the gold of his patron (Augustus II., King of Poland and Elector of Saxony) in his search for the philosopher's stone, stumbled, by accident, upon a more sure method of producing the precious metals by the discovery of an art which has served to enrich his countrymen. He died in prison in Dresden in 1719, after being detected in correspondence with Berlin as to the secret process. This manufactory, so celebrated in the time of Augustus II., was annihilated in the Seven Years' War, being then plundered, and its workmen and models, along with the archives, carried away by Frederick the Great. It continued to enjoy royal patronage at a heavy expense to the private purse of the Saxon Sovereign, but the King has lately ceded it to the Government. It is now carried on for profit, and cheapness being the object, it now makes a revenue, but the articles made are very inferior to those of former times. The managers of the establishment are very civil in showing it to strangers, who will find here a very large assortment of articles for sale or inspection.

A Tunnel—24 m. long—has been in progress many years from the level of the Elbe at Meissen to Freiberg, in order to drain the silver-mines around that town, which have been for ages choked with water.

Steamboats on the Elbe down to Riesa—up to Dresden.

The Rly. turns S. through the pretty valley of the Mulde to 13 m. Nossen Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S. 14 m. to Freiberg, in Rte. 90.]

11 m. Döbeln Junct. Stat. (Inn: Sonne). [Branch Rly. N. to Riesa and S. to Chemnitz, see Rte. 87.]

21 m. Grimma Stat. (Inn: Kronprinz); Pop. 6500; 'on the Mulde. Pretty walks to the Gattersburg, the castle of Döben, and the former Cistercian convent Nimbschen, from which the nun Catherine de Bora (who married Luther, 1525) escaped.

12 m. Borsdorf Junct. Stat. Here Rte. 87 is joined to 7 m. Leipzig, described in Rte. 86.

ROUTE 88.

SAXON SWITZERLAND AND THE ELBE.

(A) DRESDEN TO BODENBACH [PILLNITZ, THE BASTEI, SCHANDAU, KUHSTALL, PREBISCHTHOR, AND HERRNSKRETSCHEN]—RAIL.

The easiest and most profitable way of visiting Saxon Switzerland, particularly for those who cannot devote much time to it, is to set out from Dresden at 7 or 8 o'clock morn. by rail, with a ticket for the stat. Pötzscha; there to leave the train, cross the river Elbe to Wehlen, ascend to the Bastei rock, and go on as far as the little town of Schandau, and dine there. In the afternoon, or next day (omnibus every day at 9 A.M. for the valley and waterfalls), take a carriage and drive to the Wasserfall, where hire ponies for Kuhstall and Winterberg; thence descend to the Elbe by the Prebischthor to Herrnskretschen, where you meet the steamer for Dresden, and reach that city at 8 in the evening. (Ascertain at Schandau the hour at which the steamer leaves Herrnskretschen.)

General Information.—The district called "Saxon Switzerland" begins about 8 m. above Dresden, and extends beyond the Bohemian frontier. The name of "Switzerland" is inappropriate, as the scenery of the two countries is very different, and it may perhaps lead to exaggerated expectations, and comparisons disadvantageous to the Switzerland of Saxony. It has none of the glaciers, or snows, serrated ridges, and granite peaks of the real Switzerland, and its mountains are of very inferior height; but it has scenery so peculiar, and so unlike what is found elsewhere, that though it falls short, in sublimity, to that country, the Saxon Switzerland may be visited with surprise and gratification even by those who are acquainted with the other. The river Elbe flows through the centre of it, and its banks are more interesting in this part of its course than in any other between its source and the sea.

"About 4 m. beyond Pillnitz the valley of the Elbe closes; the mountains become more lofty and bare; the majestic river, quitting at length the rugged and mountainous course which has hemmed him in from his birth in the Mountains of the Giant, and destined to visit, throughout the rest of his career, only scenes of industry and fertility, comes forth rejoicing from the gorges which you are about to enter. From this point up to the frontiers of Bohemia, the rocks in the neighbourhood of the river, principally on the rt. bank, consisting of a coarse-grained sandstone, are cut in all directions into gorges, as if the chisel had been used to hew passages through them. They should rather be called lanes, so narrow are they, so deeply sunk, and so smoothly perpendicular do the gigantic walls of rock rise on both sides. The walls themselves are cut vertically into separate masses, by narrow openings reaching from the summit to the very bottom, as if a cement, which once united them, had been washed away. These perpendicular masses, again, are divided and grooved into layers, or apparent layers, like blocks regularly laid upon each other to form the wall. They generally terminate in some singular form. Some have a huge rounded mass reclining on their summit, which appears scarcely broad enough to poise it; others have a more regular mass laid upon them, like the astragal of a Doric pillar; others assume the form of inverted pyramids, increasing in breadth as they shoot higher into the air. Occasionally they present a still more singular appearance; for, after tapering in a conical form to a certain elevation, they begin to dilate again as they rise higher, as if an inverted truncated cone were placed on a right truncated cone, resembling exactly, but on an infinitely greater scale, what often occurs in caverns, where the descending stalactite rests on an ascending stalagmite." —Russell's Germany.

The rock of this district, which exhibits these phenomena, is the Quadersandstein of German geologists, agreeing with the Greensand formation of England. "It crumbles down into a soil soft to the feet, and of sufficient consistency not to be deep or heavy, affording the easiest and least fatiguing walking to the pedestrian." It is difficult to tire in such a country, where there is also abundance of shades and delicious water in every valley.

Many of the gorges, or narrow valleys, above described, are inaccessible in carriages, so that the entire tour of the Saxon Switzerland can only be made on foot. Nevertheless, most of the finest scenes lie within the distance of a short walk from a railway stat., from the Elbe steamers, or from some carriage-road; and notice is taken in the following route of those spots where travellers may leave their carriage, and of others to which it may be sent round to meet them.

Rly., Dresden to Bodenbach (see below). This line, as far as Aussig in Bohemia, traverses the whole length of Saxon Switzerland, being carried along the l. bank of the Elbe. From its stations, by means of ferries across the Elbe, all the most interesting spots are easily accessible. Thus Pötzscha is the Stat. for the Bastei; Königstein for that fortress; Krippen for Schandau and Kuhstall; Niedergrund for Herrnskretsch and Prebischthor; Bodenbach for Tetschen.

Steamers also from Dresden ascend the Elbe to Leitmeritz in Bohemia, traversing the same beautiful district, and touching at all the chief points of interest on the way (see the list of stopping places under the head Steamboats, Dresden, Rte. 87).

The scenery of the banks of the Elbe is far better seen from the deck of the steamer than from the railway train; and the excursion may be pleasantly varied by taking the railway up the Elbe valley, and descending in the steamboat.

Good Inns, with comfortable sleeping accommodation, may be found at the Bastei, Schandau, Gross Winterberg.

Guides abound at the principal inns of the district, who will conduct strangers to the most interesting spots, by the shortest ways. The paths are not difficult to find, however, by any one who can speak German, so as to ask his way. 4½ mks. a day is the usual Trinkgeld.

Donkeys, ponies, and chaises-à-porteurs may be hired at all the principal stations at moderate charges fixed by tariff.

Boats, called Gondeln, may be hired in the towns and villages along the banks.

PLAN OF A TOUR OF THE SAXON SWITZERLAND.

2 days, or at the outside 3, sleeping at Schandau and Gr. Winterberg, are amply sufficient to see all that is best worth notice by a person who does not object to rise early, and is moderately strong a-foot.

The Rly. runs along the l. bank, but most of the steamboat stats. are on the rt. bank, and the opposite villages have different names. Towards the autumn when the water in the Elbe gets low, the steamers do not go beyond Tetschen (Bodenbach). Inquiry should be made on this point before leaving Dresden.

Start from Dresden by an early train of the Prague Railway with ticket for (¾ hr.)

16 m. Pötzscha Stat. Cross the Elbe in ferry to (¼ hr.)

Wehlen (Inn: Sächsische Schweiz). Walk up Uttowalder Grund to Teufel's Küche, Das Thor, &c. Return to T. Küche. Take the left-hand path to (1½ hr.)

The Bastei to breakfast. Descend the path to Rathen. Take a char or a carriage to (2 hrs.)

Schandau.

¾ hr. in char to Haidemühle. On foot to ½ hr. Kuhstall.

1½ hr. Grosser Winterberg.

1 hr. Prebischthor.

1½ hr. Herrnskretsch. (To Tetschen.)

1½ hr. by boat descend the Elbe or by rail (½ hr.), or steamer (1 hr.), to Königstein. Walk from stat. up to Fortress, see it, return, and dine.

Dresden by rail or steamer.

N.B.—Travellers passing through Saxon Switzerland, on their way to Prague or Teplitz, should visit Königstein (a chief object in the tour) from Schandau.

The Prague Railway to 41 m. Bodenbach (8 trains daily from the Neustadt in 1½ hr.; 1 train from the Alstadt), sweeps past the S. side of Dresden, skirts (l.) the great Garden; (rt.) passes Moreau's monument; and thence follows the windings of the Elbe, along the l. bank of that river.

9 m. Pirna Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Schwarzer Adler, outside the walls; Forsthaus—fine view). This small town of 9500 Inhab. lies on the high road from Dresden to Teplitz, and on the l. bank of the Elbe. A good point from which to make excursions in the neighbourhood. Carriages and boats are kept for hire here. Fine stone Rly. bridge below the town for the line, completed 1876, by Lohmen and Arnsdorf, to Radeberg, see Rte. 82.

A little above Pirna stands the Castle of Sonnenstein, on an elevated rock, at the back of which the high road passes, before it descends into the town. It was originally a fortress and a state prison, and was rebuilt in the 16th cent. Patkul, afterwards so cruelly murdered by Charles XII., was confined in it. It was obstinately defended by the French in 1813. It is now a Lunatic Asylum.

[The steamboat up the Elbe before reaching Pirna stops at Pillnitz (Inn: Goldener Löwe); in summer the residence of the Court of Saxony, from May to September. The Schloss was built 1818, in the place of a previous one destroyed by fire, and which was the place of meeting, in 1791, of the Empr. Leopold II., Frederick William II. of Prussia, the Count d'Artois (afterwards Charles X.), Calonne, and many French exiles, who projected a crusade against revolutionary France as the means of restoring the Bourbons to absolute power. The present building is not very imposing externally, but it contains some very good modern frescoes by the Saxon artist Vogel: those in the Great Saloon represent the Arts—Painting, Sculpture, Architecture, and Music. The chapel is adorned with several subjects by the same artist, exhibiting more of the refined conception and bold execution of the old masters than is usually found in modern works of this class. There are gardens and hot-houses attached to the palace, and agreeable walks along the heights above pleasure-grounds. The Porsberg, an hour's walk to the N.E., commands fine prospects.

The road to Lohmen lies by the side of the Liebenthaler Grund, one of those glens or gorges for which this country is remarkable; but as it is inferior in beauty to many others, it is better to go direct in 1½ hr. to Lohmen, than take this round of 2 hrs. A clear stream runs, or rather rolls, down the glen, leaving scarcely room to walk by the side. The path passes large quarries, from which millstones are obtained, and leads up the glen as far as the Lochmühle, a mill sunk deep in the gorge, and wedged in between perpendicular cliffs. The path lies through the miller's house, where refreshments may be obtained; and then, ascending out of the gorge by a flight of some 180 steps, proceeds along the top of the cliffs, by Dauba, to Lohmen Stat. (on rly. from Pirna N. to Arnsdorf). A small village with a poor country Inn, and an old castle on the brink of a precipice, from which a peasant is said to have fallen while asleep into the depth below, and to have recovered from his injuries.

After traversing the greater part of the long village of Lohmen, a footpath turns off suddenly to the rt. to Ottowalde, or Uttewalde, distant 2 m. The Ottowalder Grund, another ravine, is traversed by a good horse-track, and is remarkable for the height of its sides and the narrow space separating its walls asunder, so that the sun scarce penetrates into its depths. It possesses some remarkable objects: 1st. Das Thor, "the gate;" where 3 large cubic-shaped masses of rock, having fallen from above, are jammed in between them so as to form a natural roof, under which, as under an arch, the traveller must pass. Then comes the "Stone House," being various large masses of rock exactly resembling the roof of a house. 3rdly. Teufel's Küche, or "Devil's Kitchen," a large natural excavation, which puts one in mind of the Abbot's Kitchen at Glastonbury. Shortly after this the ravine divides into 2 ways: the rt. leads to Wehlen; the l.-hand path, emerging from the depths of the Ottowalder Grund, crosses the carriage-road from Dresden and Lohmen, and brings you at the end of ½ hr.'s walk to the verge of the gigantic precipice called THE BASTEI, or Bastion; close to which there is a tolerable Inn, much thronged, however, in summer.

The Bastei, from which is obtained one of the finest views in the district, "is the name given to one of the largest masses of rock which rise close by the river on the rt. bank. One narrow block, on the very summit, projects into the air. Perched on this, not on, but beyond, the brink of this precipice, you command a prospect which, in its kind, is unique in Europe. You hover on the pinnacle, at an elevation of more than 600 ft. above the Elbe, which sweeps round the bottom of the precipice. Behind, and up along the winding river on the same bank, rise similar precipitous cliffs, cut and intersected like those already described. From the farther bank, the plain gradually elevates itself into an irregular amphitheatre, terminated by a lofty but rounded range of mountains. The striking feature is, that in the bosom of this amphitheatre, a plain of the most varied beauty, huge columnar hills start up at once from the ground, at a great distance from each other, overlooking, in lonely and solemn grandeur, each its own portion of the domain. They are monuments which the Elbe has left standing to commemorate its triumph over their less hardy kindred. The most remarkable among them are the Lilienstein and Königstein, which tower, nearly in the centre of the picture, to a height of about 900 ft. above the level of the Elbe. They rise perpendicularly from a sloping base, formed of débris, and now covered with natural wood. The approach to their summits is difficult, and the access is artificial. Besides these, the giants of the territory, the plain is studded with many other columnar eminences of the same general character, though on a smaller scale; and they all bear, from time immemorial, their particular legends—for the mountains of Saxony and Bohemia are the native country of tale-telling tradition, the cradle of Gnomes and Kobolds. In the deep rents and gloomy recesses of the Lilienstein, hosts of spirits still watch over concealed treasures. A holy nun, miraculously transported from the irregularities of her convent to the summit of the Nonnenstein, that she might spend her days in prayer and purity in its caverns, is commemorated in the name of the rock; and the Jungfernsprung, or Leap of the Virgin, perpetuates the memory of the Saxon maid, who, when pursued by a brutal lustling, threw herself from the brink of its hideous precipice, to die unpolluted."—Russell's Germany.

These stiff bare rocks, rising from the earth, manifest, though now disjoined, that they once formed one body, all the softer parts of which have mouldered away, and left only the naked, indestructible framework.

The scene beheld from the Bastei will most assuredly detain the traveller for hours. The view over the plain, however, is not the only wonder of this remarkable spot. Behind, and at one side of the Bastei, numerous gigantic pinnacles of rock, separated from the main body by rents and chasms of tremendous depth, shoot upwards to a great height, in every variety of fantastic forms. So slight and slender are these natural pillars and obelisks, that it is difficult to understand how they maintain themselves upright at a height of several hundred feet. Numerous tufts of large trees have struck root in the crannies of these rocks, where there appears not an inch of earth to nourish them. These slender pinnacles have been rendered accessible from the mainland by stone bridges spanning the chasms. A band of robber-knights in former times set up a nest-like castle upon some of the loftiest and apparently most inaccessible of them; it was called Burg Neurathen, and scanty remains of its masonry are still visible. The entrance on one side was through a natural arch and over a drawbridge; the approach on the other lay through a cleft 3 ft. wide, and was closed by a portcullis formed of a slab of stone, which ran in grooves still visible in the rocky walls. The narrow planks with which the robbers bridged the chasms around them were easily removed when danger threatened, and their stronghold was then impregnable. From this lofty eyrie they watched the approach of vessels on the Elbe, and dashed down to pillage or make captive, being long enabled by their position to bid defiance to legal authority. This fortress was at length destroyed in 1468; but in 1639, during the horrors of the Thirty Years' War, many poor refugees, driven out of their houses in the plain, sought shelter from the enemy among these crags.

There is a carriage-road from the Bastei (2 hrs., 4 Thal.) to Schandau, leaving Hohnstein, on the opposite side of the ravine, on the l., and winding down a long and gradual descent towards the Elbe, among rocks and thickets, and commanding magnificent views, by turns into the ravine on the l., and into the valley of the Elbe, including the noble rock of Lilienstein, on the rt. It is one of the finest landscapes in the Saxon Switzerland.

From the Bastei a steep path ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) also descends by a stone bridge of 7 arches, resting on the rocky obelisks or pinnacles by way of piers, through the narrow cleft above mentioned, to the margin of the Elbe and the village of Rathen Stat. (Inn), 7 m. above Pirna (the Rly. is on the opposite l. bank, ferry across, the steamboat pier on the village side), and the traveller bound for Teplitz or Prague, and not intending to descend the Elbe again, may cross here and follow the l. bank as far as Königstein, after which, recrossing the river higher up, opposite to Schandau, he may either retrace his steps down the rt. bank as far as the Tiefer Grund, and proceed through it to Hohnstein and the Brand, or go at once to Schandau.

[From the foot of the Bastei at Rathen a path threads the bottom of other ravines as far as Hochstein. The waterfall of the Amsel Grund, though much praised by the natives, is but a sorry affair, especially after the cataracts of Switzerland; indeed, there is not one waterfall in the whole of this district worth the trouble of stepping aside to see it.

Hochstein* is a projecting promontory of rock, 400 ft. high, commanding a very striking view, approachable by a frail bridge thrown over a deep dark gulf, or yawning abyss, called Wolfsschlucht. It is made accessible by ladders and by steps cut in the sides; and, from traces of walls and iron hooks fastened in the rock, it is probable that there was once a fort here, serving as a watch-tower or outwork to the castle of Hohnstein on the opposite side of the valley. Hohnstein (Inn, Hirsch) is a village of 1400 Inhab., with a Castle, which is surrounded on all sides by precipices. The fearful dungeons were once used as state prisons.

A carriage-road leads from Hohnstein to the Brand (small Inn), another very good point of view, but inferior to the Bastei. The road then passes down the Tiefer Grund, a valley so narrow that the sun appears rarely to penetrate it, to the banks of the Elbe, which it follows for about $1\frac{1}{2}$ m., till it reaches Schandau.]

The course of the Elbe above the Bastei is very tortuous, nearly encircling the singular tabular hills.

rt. Lilienstein is the highest of the 12 isolated table mountains of the Saxon Switzerland, surpassing by 168 ft. its opposite neighbour Königstein. Its summit, 1254 ft. above the sea, is accessible from the village of Ebenheit, by narrow paths cut in the rock, and by scaling-ladders placed against the precipice. These means of access were first prepared in 1708, by order of Augustus II. of Saxony, after having himself made the ascent; an exploit of which he was so proud, that he set up an obelisk, which still remains, to commemorate it. The view from the top extends down the Elbe as far as Dresden and Meissen, and upwards to the Bohemian mountains. The French laid out around the base of Lilienstein, in 1813, a fortified camp, the ramparts of which still remain in part; it communicated by 2 bridges of boats with Königstein. During the Seven Years' War (1760) an army of 17,000 Saxons laid down their arms here to Frederick the Great, in sight of Augustus, their sovereign, who was shut up at the time in the fortress.

3 m. l. Königstein Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Blauer Stern; Kronprinz). A small town and a first-class fortress of 1300 Inhab. on the Elbe. Above it, at a height of 852 ft. from the river, 1187 ft. above the sea, rises the (until 1866) virgin fortress of Königstein. It commands the river and railway, so that it prevented the passage of the Prussian army into Bohemia. That same year, however, it was handed by treaty over to Prussia, and is now garrisoned by Prussian infantry, jointly with Saxon artillery. Viewed from a distance it bears a strong resemblance to one of the "hill forts" of India, and will give a European an exact idea of those singular strongholds. It was deemed impregnable from its situation, surrounded by perpendicular natural escarpments improved by artificial cuttings; but more than all from its isolated position, so far removed from any other height—the Lilienstein and Pfaffenstein, on opposite sides, being each 3000 yards distant—that before Armstrong's invention it could not be commanded by artillery. Napoleon endeavoured to batter it from Lilienstein; but, after raising 3 pieces of cannon with great difficulty to the summit, the balls fell short. The approach to it is through a steeply sloping way cut in the living rock, which rises on either side like a wall, and partly by a sloping wooden bridge, which, when removed in time of war, leaves the gateway unapproachable, high up in the face of the cliff. The platform on which the fortress is built is several acres in extent, and a mile in circuit. This space is partly cultivated in fields and gardens; it produces a little corn, and pasturage for one or two cows, so as to suffice in part to support a garrison of 1200 men, the war complement, for whom 2 years' provisions are always kept in store. A well, cut to the depth of 613 ft. in the solid rock, supplies them with water from an inexhaustible spring; and casemates, also excavated, serve as storehouses for provisions. To this fortress Saxony owes the preservation of her priceless collection of works of art, virtù, and antiquity, her picture gallery and Green Vault.

The treasures of the Saxon rulers have frequently been deposited here, to be out of harm's way; and indeed Frederick Augustus II. himself took refuge here during the Seven Years' War, and the late King lived here 3 months in 1849. This fortress served once as a state prison. Strangers are admitted on paying a fee of 1 Thaler 10 Sgr., which admits 8 persons: nothing should prevent the traveller visiting it. The view from its walls is most beautiful, being panoramic, and is one of the most striking in the Saxon Switzerland.

3 m. l. Krippen Stat. Here is a ferry over the Elbe, leading to rt. Schandau (steamboat passengers' luggage examined here). (Inns: *The Forsthaus—excellent, and beautifully situated on the Elbe; not surpassed for comfort, cleanliness and good cookery; Bahr's Hotel; Badhaus, an inn out of the town about $\frac{1}{4}$ m. up the valley of the Kirnitsch, at a spot where a mineral spring supplies some baths, much frequented by Dresdeners in summer.) Schandau is a town of 3200 Inhab. on the rt. bank of the Elbe, at the junction of the streamlet called Kirnitsch. From its central situation, Schandau is convenient head-quarters for those who propose to explore at their ease the Saxon Switzerland. Horses may be hired here. A good walker, from Schandau, might visit in one day the Kuhstall, Winterberg, Prebischthor, and Herrnskretsch, and return by steamer or rail to sleep at the Baths. Hire of a horse for this ride of 5 hrs., 9 to 12 mks.

Excursions.—a. To the Pfaffenstein and Königstein, crossing the Elbe in ferry—a delightful drive of 6 or 7 hours. Carriage can approach near to the top of the Pfaffenstein, then a short sharp climb brings you to the top—grand view.

b. To Kuhstall and Winterberg; carriage-road, traversed by omnibus.

[A carriage-road runs up the beautiful valley of the Kirnitsch, to the Haidemühle, about 6 m. from Schan-

dau. Beyond this the paths must be traversed on foot, or on ponies or chaises-à-porteurs for ladies, which must be ordered beforehand. A path turns abruptly to the rt., across a brook and up a steep wooded hill, and, after a mile of ascent, brings you to the Kuhstall.

The Kuhstall (cow-stall) (small Inn) is a natural arch or cave in the rock, 30 ft. high and 40 wide, 800 ft. above the sea, under which one passes to a sort of terrace commanding a most striking view of the valley far below. During the Thirty Years' War the peasants drove their cattle hither for safety, whence its name. Many of the persecuted Protestants, expelled from Bohemia by the Emp. Ferdinand II. and the Jesuits, took refuge here with their families. This cave forms the frame to a singular picture. The traveller sees around him rocks heaped upon rocks, many crowned with fir-trees, reminding an Englishman of the scenery near Tunbridge Wells, only on a much grander scale. A narrow fissure in the sandstone, which can just be ascended by a person of moderate size, leads to a platform on the top of the Kuhstall. The Wochenbett is a cavern so named, because the "women in the straw" were placed there for greater security when this spot was an asylum for the persecuted.

An abrupt descent through a chasm, literally a crack in the rock, on the l. of the Kuhstall, leads into the valley, where a sand-strown and easily discernible path traverses fields and forests as far as the foot of the hills called Lesser and Great Winterberg. The Lesser Winterberg is the steeper of the two, and more tiresome to surmount. The Great Winterberg (small Inn), 1768 ft. above the level of the sea, and 1628 above the Elbe (3 m. from Kuhstall), is a knob of trap piercing through the sandstone, and one of the highest mountains in the district; in ascending it, the guide points out a projecting rock, to the very verge of which one of the Electors of Saxony was driven by an infuriated stag which he had wounded in the chase. Just as the animal was bending down its antlers to toss him over the precipice, the prince succeeded in shooting it through the heart. On the summit there is a good Inn, where travellers may obtain decent fare and beds, if they make up their mind to pass a night here for the sake of seeing the sun rise over the Bohemian mountains. The view is very striking, extending to the mountains of Silesia; the various isolated hills nearer at hand rise up like pillars out of the valley of the Elbe, whose winding course is commanded for a long distance. From the Winterberg the path plunges down amidst the seared remains of the forest, and soon crosses the Bohemian frontier. An hour's walk brings you to the Prebischthor* (small Inn), another natural arch, hollowed out of the rock, but more remarkable, and of much more colossal dimensions, than the Kuhstall. It is 66 ft. high, 98 broad, 1402 ft. above the sea. The Thor itself is very grand; but the view from the platform on the top is magnificent, finer even than that from the Bastei. The scenery near at hand is exceedingly wild, and the distant outline of the Erzgebirge borders the horizon. A steep path descends from this, and follows the course of the Biel, a small brook, and afterwards of the Kamnitz, a larger stream, turning several saw-mills, until it enters the Elbe.] 1½ hr.'s walk from Schandau leads to rt. The Schrammstein, a bold perpendicular promontory of sandstone, overtopping the neighbouring hills. Near the river it has a columnar fracture, but inland it assumes the form of a gigantic Cyclopean wall.

6 m. Niedergrund Stat.

See 2 of the singular columnar hills peculiar to the district, the Zirkelstein and Kahlstein.

rt. Herrnskretsch, a small village on the estate of the Bohemian prince Clary, having an Inn on the Elbe, 2 hrs.' easy walk from the Winterberg. Large timber rafts are constructed here, and are floated down the Elbe when the water is high. Here is a ferry, by which the Schöna Rly. Stat. on the opposite bank may be reached by the traveller should he fail to catch the steamer to take him to Dresden or Prague. Row-boats (Gondeln).

1. Several tunnels are driven through the rock near

5 m. Bodenbach Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Post, best; Badhaus). Here the Austrian frontier is crossed, and here the Custom-house and search of baggage. Directly opposite, on the rt. bank of the Elbe, connected by a suspension-bridge, is the small town of Tetschen (Stern Inn) and the handsome Schloss of Count Thun. The scenery of the Elbe hereabouts is very interesting. From Bodenbach the Rly. now runs by Tetschen, and Kreibitz to Rumburg or Warnsdorf. (See Rte. 263 in Hand-book for South Germany.)

ROUTE 90.

DRESDEN TO HOF IN BAVARIA, BY THE VALLEY OF PLAUE, FREIBERG, AND CHEMNITZ.—RAIL.

Distance, 137 m.; time, 8½ to 8¾ hrs.; 6 trains daily.

Dresden is described in Rte. 87. From the Böhmischer Bahnhof in the Altstadt (some trains start also from the Neustadt), the line crosses the small river Weisseritz, and follows its course to

2 m. Plauen Stat., a village of a few houses and water-mills, at the entrance of the very picturesque glen called the Plauensche Grund, with precipitous rocky sides or slopes, overgrown with underwood. (In a coal-mine here 276 miners were destroyed by an explosion of fire-damp, 1869.) The Railway passes through it by the side of the Weisseritz, a stream very useful in turning the wheels of many mills, which give a lively air to its banks. The valley opens out into a broad green meadow, near the industrious village of 1 m. Potschappel Stat., close to which there are coal-mines, iron-forges, glass-works, &c. Agates are found in the rocks around, and in the beds of the streams; coke is made here to supply the smelting furnaces at Freiberg.

4 m. Tharandt Stat. (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Zum Bad), a watering-place and village with 1700 Inhab.: its mineral baths are much frequented in summer by the inhabitants of Dresden. It is romantically situated on a spot where 3 valleys meet, 2 of them sending forth streams which unite and flow through the Plauensche Grund into the Elbe. It takes but 10 min. to ascend from the inn to the ruins of the Old Castle, perched on a promontory of rock, from which you look down into the deep and picturesque valley on either side. The ruin is the remains of a hunting-seat of the ancestors of the present King of Saxony. The sides of the hill immediately behind the castle are covered with wood, through which pleasant walks are cut; one part of the hill is laid out as a Forstgarten, from which there is a fine view. Visit also the beech avenue called the Heilige Hallen.

The Forst-Academie is a nursery forest, containing 1000 species of trees and shrubs attached to the Forst-Academie subsisting here, in which a certain number of students are instructed in the forester's art, and in everything relating to planting trees and rearing timber.

The Rly. follows the stream, rising by a steep incline of 1 in 40 for some miles until it reaches 7 m. Klingenberg Stat. 1440 ft. above the level of the sea. The line then runs across a somewhat dreary cultivated plateau, intersected by ravines.

On the banks of the river Mulde, which the railroad crosses on approaching Freiberg, on a viaduct 78 ft. high, are several silver-mines; the chief is that called Himmelfahrt (Ascension), producing 8000 lbs. of pure silver, worth 200,000 dollars, per annum. The traveller's attention is arrested by the ceaseless tinkling of a bell. This is attached to the works of the mines, and its use is to give notice to the miners that all is right in the works below. If a rope break, or any other accident befall the machinery, the bell ceases to ring, and attention is thus instantly called to it. The coal used at the mines covers the works with dense smoke.

9 m. Freiberg Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. 14 m. to Nossen Junct. Stat. in Rte. 87A; S. in progress through Seyde to Georgenthal.] (Inns: H. de Saxe; Hirsch.) An ancient and decayed city, which contained 40,000 Inhab. in the days of its prosperity; it has now only 20,566, about 8000 being employed in the mines. It is the capital of the mining district of Saxony, and its rise and fall have kept pace with the productiveness of its silver-mines, which were discovered and worked as far back as the 12th cent. By the aid of the appliances of science and by the energy of those employed, the veins of silver-bearing lead have been followed deeper and deeper, and still yield as much as $\frac{1}{4}$ million sterling in a year. More than 800 veins of silver have been traced in the district, some of them running from 20 to 28 miles, and measuring $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$ in breadth, chiefly in the gneiss rock. (See Dr. Percy's 'Metalurgy.') A project for clearing the lower veins of water, by piercing a tunnel through the mountains to the Elbe at Meissen, is in progress, and is certainly one of the most stupendous undertakings of the kind in Europe, its length being about 24 m. It has been calculated by Breithaupt, that the Freiberg mines have produced, in the 640 years during which they have been worked, down to 1825, 82,000 cwt. of silver, or the worth of 240 millions of dollars.

Freiberg was long the residence of the Wettin princes, Misnian and Saxon, who bestowed on it many immunities and privileges, and several of whom are interred in the Dom-Kirche*, a handsome Gothic building, rebuilt 1490-1520. In the choir behind the altar is the tomb of Maurice of Saxony, a lofty sarcophagus, richly adorned with sculpture and marble in the Cinquecento style, surmounted by his kneeling effigy, by one Floris, an artist of Antwerp. Above it, in a niche, is placed the armour worn by him at the battle of Sievershausen, where he was killed, after gaining the victory, by a shot from behind; the hole made by the bullet (1553) is still visible. The standards taken in the battle were hung over his grave; they have dropped to pieces with age, and the worm-eaten staves will not long outlast them. In the Electoral burial-chapel, erected by Duke Henry the Pious, he and 39 of his posterity, down to George IV., are buried. It is enriched with Saxon marble and serpentine, and contains some fine bronze gilt statues by P. Boselli; the pavement is inlaid with 29 very fine brasses, not unlike those of England. The cloisters are converted into a sort of Museum of Antiquities.

Other curiosities of this church are two pulpits of Gothic workmanship, curiously carved in stone; one, in the form of the cup of a flower, is supported by figures of the master mason and his apprentice who executed it; and a fine organ by Silbermann. Most deserving of notice, however, is the Golden Gate, partially restored, a richly ornamented, deeply recessed, round-arched portal, in the Romanesque style, date 1175-89, which belonged to the preceding church, destroyed by fire in 1485. Beside it is the tomb of the celebrated geologist Werner, who died here in 1817. Once a quarter a sermon is preached in this church to the miners, who all attend in a body.

The Rathhaus, near the church, is a good specimen of N. German Gothic (built 1410). The old houses are entered by an ornamental arch with a niche and seat on either side, a fashion prevalent in Saxony and Silesia.

In the market-place, opposite the Rathhaus, a flat round stone in the pavement marks the spot where Kunz of Kaufungen, the robber-knight, who stole the two young Saxon princes, Ernest and Albert, from their father's palace in Altenburg (Rte. 91), was beheaded, 1455.

The School of Mines (Berg-Academie), founded 1765, is the most renowned in Europe, and students repair hither from all quarters of the globe. Humboldt, Werner, Jameson of Edinburgh, Mohs, and many other eminent mineralogists and geologists, were pupils in this institution. Instruction is given by professors both in the practice and theory of the art; in surveying, mining, and the preparation of ores, as well as in geology, mineralogy, &c.

The Museum of the School of Mines is very rich in remarkable specimens of all the mineral productions of Saxony, and includes the splendid and useful collection of Werner himself. It is not deficient in the geological department and in fossils. The Collection of Models of the Mines, and the Machinery used in them, will give an uninitiated person a clear idea of the nature of a miner's operations, or at least will prepare one who purposes visiting them for understanding the processes when on the spot. There is an office for the sale of minerals attached to this establishment.

There are said to be about 130 Mines of silver, copper, lead, and cobalt, round Freiberg: the prevailing rock in which they are situated is a primary gneiss. To see a mine thoroughly will occupy about 3 hrs. A permission must first be obtained from the Bergmeister, in Freiberg. Strangers are provided with a miner's dress at the entrance of the mine. Most of the mines are distant a mile or two from the town, and proper guides are appointed to conduct persons thither. The mine most conveniently visited, perhaps, is that called the Kurfürst (Elector), because it is large and dry; it lies near Gross-Schirma. The Alte Mord-Grube (Old Murder Mine) has very remarkable hydraulic pumps for extracting the water. The principal ores of silver are, argentiferous sulphuret of lead, native silver, and red silver.

The Amalgamir-Werk at Halsbrück, about 3 m. out of the town, where the pure silver is obtained from the less productive ores by amalgamation with quicksilver, is well worth seeing. The process is carried on here upon the most scientific principles. At Halsbrück are also situated many smelting-furnaces.

The Miners of the Saxon Erzgebirge are a somewhat primitive class. Their form of salutation is by the words "Glück auf." They are enrolled in a sort of semi-military corps, of which the common workmen are the privates, and the superintendents and managers the officers. They are called out several times a year for inspection or parade, and in addition assemble in a body at certain stated times to attend miners' prayers in the church, at the funeral of a superior officer, during the visit of a royal personage, and on days of rejoicing for the discovery of a rich vein. On these occasions they appear in uniform, their leather aprons fastened on behind, leather pockets in the place of cartouche-boxes, and a large knife stuck in the girdle. The common miners march with their pickaxes shouldered, the carpenters with their axes, and the smiths with their hammers borne in the same fashion. These processions have a martial appearance, are headed by a band playing a miners' march, and accompanied by flying colours. The officers have similar uniforms, distinguished according to their rank. All, up to the chief, or Berg-Hauptmann, whether in working costume or in full dress, wear the singular hinder-apron, which, from its position, bears a very significant name. Even the sovereign, were he to appear on the spot, as head miner of Saxony, could not dispense with this appendage. To be deprived of it is the greatest disgrace to which the miner can be subjected; he thereby loses his privilege, and the dishonour is equal to that of knocking off the spurs from a knight's heels.

The Rly. to Chemnitz, 4 m. W. of Freiberg, traverses a Viaduct of 14 arches, 170 ft. high in the centre.

10 m. Oederan Stat. (Inns: Post; Hirsch), a manufacturing town of 3130 Inhab., picturesquely situated.

5 m. Flöha Junct. Stat. This little village is remarkable as the birthplace of the eminent statesman and lawyer Sam. Puffendorf (1631), whose father was the minister here. On the rt. of the village of Flöha rises the castle of Augustusburg, built 1572 by the Elector Augustus. It has a well 286 yards deep, cut in the rock; and a lime-tree 400 years old is still growing in its garden. The chapel contains 2 pictures by L. Cranach.

[Branch Rly. S., 25 m., to Annaberg (for Carlsbad), see Handbk. S. Germany, Rte. 259.]

3 m. Nieder Wiesa Junct. Stat.

[Branch Rly. N. through Frankenberg, for Rosswein, completed as far as 10 m. Hainichen, an industrious town of 7050 Inhab., and birthplace of the poet Gellert, 1715.]

5 m. Chemnitz Junct. Stat. (Inns: Römischer Kaiser, Blauer Engel, Stadt Gotha, Victoria), the principal manufacturing town in Saxony (58,573 Inhab.), situated in a beautiful and well-watered valley. The cotton goods, especially stockings, for which it is chiefly celebrated, and to which it owes its present prosperity, rival even the English in quality and cheapness. In the quantity of hosiery produced Saxony already equals Great Britain. The spacious factory of *Becker and Schrap*s, the largest in Saxony, has 18,600 spindles. Stockings for the American market, which are almost exclusively supplied hence, are made here at the low rate of 3s. 4d. a dozen. "The chief inferiority to the British lies in their want of elasticity. The stocking-weavers for the most part are not congregated into manufactories, but live in cottages of their own, the fee-simple of which they have purchased by their own earnings. They cultivate in their own gardens the potatoes and other vegetables which form their usual food, and support from the same source the animals which provide them with the small quantity of meat they consume: they live commonly with great frugality on potatoes and coffee. When the demand for manufacture is slack, they employ themselves in the field and garden; when it is active, they devote themselves to their frames and looms. The state provides them with gratuitous instruction, which has the happiest effect both on their industry and frugality." Bowring.—Chemnitz is also famous for the manufacture of spinning and other machinery, locomotive engines, &c. One factory alone employs 2500 men. For 400 years it was a free imperial city, and still displays in its buildings marks of its antiquity. The ancient walls have been pulled down, and their site converted into a pleasant Boulevard connecting the old town with its fine thriving suburbs.

The Great Church, Stadtkirche, has a richly carved portal, imitating a framework of boughs, carved in stone, 1525; within, a stone pulpit with bas-reliefs, 1536, and an altar-piece of which the original centre is destroyed, but the wings, painted with 4 saints, are probably by Wohlgemuth. Next to it the chief buildings are the Rathhaus and Gewandhaus (cloth hall), and the modern Exchange (Börse).

[Branch Rly. N. through, 25 m., Döbeln Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 87A) to 40 m. Riesa Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 87); N.W. direct line to Leipzig, viâ Wittgensdorf (Branch to Limbach), Borna, and Kieritsch; S. to Aue.]

The line continues W. through small towns, mostly engaged in the stocking trade to 19 m. Glauchau Junct. Stat. (Inns, Deutsches Haus; Adler), an industrious town of 20,000 Inhab., on the Mulde, largely engaged in the manufacture of woollen stuffs.

[Branch Rly. N. through Penig to Leipzig; N.W., 9 m., to Gössnitz Junct. Stat. (see Rtes. 86, 91), passing through Meerane, a cloth manufacturing town of 17,000 Inhab.]

The line turns S. to 9 m. Zwickau Junct. Stat. (Inns: Deutsches Kaiser; Tanne; Post; Anker), a picturesque town, partly surrounded by an old wall, on the banks of the Zwickauer-Mulde, with 25,500 Inhab. St. Mary's Church, the finest Gothic edifice in the Erzgebirge, date 1453-1536, is distinguished by its tall tower, which Luther often ascended on account of the pleasing view it commands. Within the ch. is a very fine altar-piece by the old German master Wohlgemuth, representing the Virgin and 9 life-size figures of female saints, surrounded by a richly carved Gothic frame-work, executed 1479, sculptured in wood. The Holy Sepulchre, in the sacristy, is an elaborate piece of carving. In the Baptismal Chapel is a good picture by Cranach, "Suffer the little Children." In the Ch. of St. Catherine (date 1465), the high altar-piece, the Feet Washing and other subjects, is by Hans v. Culmbach, an artist of the Nuremberg school. The Rathhaus and Kaufhaus deserve notice.

Coal-beds are extensively worked in the neighbourhood of Zwickau.

[Branch Rly. S.W., 30 m., by Nieder-Schlema (Branch to Schneeberg) to Schwarzenberg, thence road to Carlsbad (see Rte. 91A).]

The line for Hof continues W. to 5 m. Werda Junct. Stat., and for the rest of the line to 48 m. Hof; see Rte. 91.

ROUTE 91.

LEIPZIG TO HOF, BY ALTENBURG AND WERDAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 102 m.; time, 4 to 6 hrs.; 8 trains daily.

Leipzig is described in Rte. 86.

From the Bayerische Bahnhof, on the S. side of the town, the line proceeds S. ascending the valley of the Pleisse, and crossing that stream to 12 m. Kieritsch Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E. through Borna to Chemnitz in Rte. 90.]

10 m. Altenburg Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. de Russie, rather dirty; H. de Saxe), the capital of the Duchy of Saxe-Altenburg, near the Pleisse, has 19,490 Inhab. The Palace (Schloss) stands on an escarped rock, and consists of an older part dating from the 13th cent., and a modern portion; it is worth visiting, and contains an armoury. Out of one of its apartments the Robber-knights, Kunz of Kaufungen and William von Mosen, stole the young Saxon princes, Ernest and Albert, in 1455. The ducal family reside in the modern part, built in the 18th cent.

The Rathhaus in the market-place is a picturesque specimen of Renaissance style, 1564.

The new Museum—built 1876, near the Rly.—for von Lindenau's collection, bequeathed to the town in 1853, contains some really good pictures of the Italian school.

The Gothic Ch. (Stift St. Georg), 1412, containing exquisitely carved stalls, &c., of that date, deserves notice. The Mantel Thurm and Schloss Gate are very ancient.

The Damm is the name of an agreeable promenade around a sheet of water on the S. side of the town.

The inhabitants of the Duchy of Altenburg, by descent Wends, a branch of the Slavonic family, are distinguished by their very peculiar and old-fashioned costumes handed down to them by their ancestors. The petticoats of the women, like a Highlander's kilt, reach no further than the knee; their bodies are enclosed in a cuirass of basket-work, and their heads are surmounted by a conical cap of portentous dimensions. The people have lost their language and speak German, but retain many old customs as well as their dress.

Near Altenburg and Gera the Saxon tin-mines are situated. [Branch Rly. W., 15 m., to Zeitz Junct. Stat. in Rte. 86.]

11 m. Gössnitz Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. 21 m. to Gera Junct. Stat. (in Rte. 86), and S.E. 9 m. to Glauchau Stat. for Chemnitz and Zwickau (in Rte. 90).]

12 m. Werdau Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E. 5 m. to Zwickau Junct. Stat. in Rte. 90.] 1. rises the castle of Schönfels on a wooded height.

5 m. Neumark Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. in progress S.W. to Mehltheuer, completed as far as 7 m. Greiz (Inn: Löwe), a manufacturing town of 10,600 Inhab., picturesquely situated on the Elster, with 2 castles and Rathhaus. It is the capital of the little principality of Reuss-Greiz. Rly. N. to Gera, S. to Plauen.]

5 m. Reichenbach Stat. (Inns: Lamm; Engel) is a thriving manufacturing town; it has 11,700 Inhab., who are chiefly employed in the manufacture of muslin, and in spinning and weaving cotton and wool into kerseymeres, merinos, flannel, and "English thread."

Beyond this the Railway is carried over the deep Göltzschthal on a high-level bridge 2046 ft. long ($\frac{1}{2}$ m.) and 278 ft. high, where the valley is deepest. It is composed of 4 tiers of arches, one over the other, but in the centre the stream is crossed by 2 arches, one above the other, 90 ft. span.

There are 80 arches in this structure—the grandest of its sort in Germany. Nearer to Plauen the river and vale of the Elster are bridged by another viaduct of a different and more elegant design, 891 ft. long and 225 ft. high, consisting of a lower tier of 2 arches, 93 ft. span, surmounted by an upper tier of 6 arches. It is chiefly of brick-work.

6 m. Herlasgrün Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E., 66 m., through Oelsnitz and Elster to Franzensbad and Eger (see Hndbk. S. Germany).]

8 m. Plauen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Deil's H.; Deutsches Haus), a town of 24,000 Inhab., also deriving prosperity from manufactures of linen, cotton, and muslin. It is irregularly built on uneven ground, and is traversed by the stream of the White Elster, which waters a romantic valley, and produces pearls; a royal fishery is established at Oelsnitz for collecting them. A great part of the town has been rebuilt since a fire in 1844. The old Castle (called Radschin), rising high above the town, was in ancient times the residence of the Bailiff, or Voigt (Advocatus), from whom the surrounding district got the name of Voigtland; it is now converted into public offices. [Rly. S. to Oelsnitz and Eger.]

The railway passes over the high land which forms the watershed of the Elster and the Saale. The country is rather pleasing, partly cultivated, and partly covered with fir-woods.

8 m. Reuth Stat. About 4 m. beyond this the railway crosses the Bavarian frontier.

12 m. Hof Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Hirsch, at the rly., good; Lamm; Brandenburger Hof). This is the first Bavarian town; it contains 15,500 Inhab., and possesses important manufactures of cotton and woollen goods. Its situation is so elevated that only the hardier kinds of fruits come to perfection. The country around is bleak and barren; the rock is primary limestone abounding in fossils; and there are many iron-mines in the district. The town was burnt down for the tenth time recorded in its annals in 1832, and consequently a large part is newly built. A handsome Rathhaus and a church were erected in 1833, but the place has nothing to detain the traveller. The frontiers of Saxony, Reuss, Prussia (the town of Gefäll is Prussian), and Bohemia, are not more than 10 m. distant from Hof. An extensive smuggling trade is carried on with Bohemia.

Rly. S.E. to Eger Junct. Stat. for Carlsbad, Prague, Vienna, &c., S. to Neuenmarkt Junct. Stat. for Baireuth, Bamberg, Nuremberg, &c. (See Handbook for South Germany.)

ROUTE 91A.

LEIPZIG TO CARLSBAD.

Distance, 110 m.; time, 13 hrs.

Leipzig to Schwarzenberg, 78 m. 5 trains daily in 5 hrs.

Schwarzenberg to Carlsbad, 32 m. Diligence daily in 8 hrs.

 A quicker way will be to take the railway to Eger (see Handbook for S. Germany).

Leipzig is described in Rte. 86.

The Rly. as far as 47 m. Werdau Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 91.

Here the line turns E. to 5 m. Zwickau Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 90, and thence the Rly. proceeds S.E. up the valley of the Mulde to

21 m. Niederschlema Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.W. 3 m. to Schneeberg Stat. (Inns: Sächsischer Hof, good; Fürstenhaus), an important mining town of 9500 Inhab., chiefly engaged in the mines, and in preparing the ores of silver, cobalt, &c., obtained from them. There is also a considerable manufactory of smalt here. That used in the Dresden china is prepared here from the cobalt. The town was founded 1471, in consequence of the discovery of the mines. The Hauptkirche is a very fine building, in the latest Gothic, 1516-40. Its altar-piece, the largest work of the elder Cranach, represents the Crucifixion, and at the back the Last Judgment, with 8 wings or shutters; they are interesting as specimens of Protestant art, and of the treatment of sacred subjects after the Reformation. Schneeberg snuff, a preparation of herbs found on the mountains of the Erzgebirge, taken as common snuff, is said to be good for sore eyes, and to cure headaches. In the neighbourhood are the picturesque castles of Stein, Eisenberg, and Wiesenberg.

The mining district of the Erzgebirge (ore mountains) displays the bounty of Nature less on its surface than below ground, where she has stored away, for the use of man, vast supplies of silver, lead, tin, iron, cobalt, and coal. The soil is poor, and vegetation is partly checked in the vicinity of the mines by the vapours from smelting-furnaces; still the country is varied with hills, well wooded, and generally pretty.]

2 m. Aue Stat., a little town at the confluence of the Schwarzwasser with the Mulde. Here also are extensive cobalt-mines and smalt-works. Near this is dug the porcelain earth from which the china manufactory of Meissen is supplied. The serpentine stone, which is turned in the lathe and manufactured into various articles, comes from the quarries at Zoblitz. [Rly. to Chemnitz.]

6 m. Schwarzenberg terminus of Rly. (Inns: Stadt Leipzig, near Stat.; H. de Saxe), a small town of 3500

Inhab. above the Schwarzwasser, with the Ottenstein rock opposite to it, at the foot of which is a Bath-house and Bauer's Hotel. Important iron-works here.

The Schnellpost for Carlsbad starts at 11 A.M. daily, passing through wild scenery to 11 m. Johann-Georgenstadt (vulgarly called Hansgörgenstadt) (Inns: Rathskeller; Schiesshaus). A mining town, named after the Elector John George, in whose reign it was built as an asylum for the Protestants driven out of Bohemia by Ferdinand II., 1654. It has about 3400 Inhab. It suffered the loss of 300 houses by a fire, 1867. It stands in a rough and very elevated district, a sort of Saxon Siberia, whose produce lies beneath the barren surface, and consists of silver, tin, lead, iron, cobalt, bismuth, uranium, &c. The men are chiefly miners; the women employ themselves in making bobbinet. Hence to the Bohemian frontier is not more than $\frac{1}{2}$ a mile.

21 m. Carlsbad Stat., on the Rly. between Eger and Dresden (see Hndbk. for S. Germany, Rtes. 259, 260).

ROUTE 92.

CASSEL TO BAMBERG, viâ EISENACH, MEININGEN, AND COBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 174 m.; time, 9 hrs.; 1 train connects through daily.

Cassel is described in Rte. 70.

The Rly. proceeds S. through Wilhelmshöhe (Rte. 70) to

3 m. Güntershausen Junct. Stat., where the line to Coblenz (Rte. 96) and Frankfurt-on-the-Main (Rte. 70) branches S.W., and the line for Eisenach continues S.E., through a picturesque country, crossing the Fulda to 27 m. Bebra Junct. Stat.

The Rly. S.W. to Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and the line E. as far as 25 m. Eisenach Junct. Stat., are described in Rte. 86.

Here the line for Bamberg turns S., and passing through a tunnel 1670 ft. long under the Wartburg Hill, traverses a hilly district, almost covered with the woods of the great Thuringian Forest, to 8 m. Marksuhl Stat. The picturesque and fertile vale of the Werra is here entered.

7 m. Salzungen Stat. (Inns: Kurhaus, comfortable; Sächsischer Hof), a prettily situated watering-place on the shore of a lake, with salt-works. In the village Möhra, the cradle of the family of Luther, a bronze statue of him by Müller was erected 1861.

2 m. Immelborn Stat. [Omnibus 4 times daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to N.E. 3 m. to Liebenstein (Inns: Bellevue, a fine hotel, with all comforts; Kurhaus; Müller's, Hirsch; private apartments in nearly every house). These baths are charmingly situated on the skirts of the Thuringian Forest, and the court of Saxe-Meiningen passes a portion of the season here, in the building called Fürstenhaus. The village contains about 1000 Inhab., and the spring used as mineral baths since 1799 furnishes one of the strongest chalybeate waters in Germany, more used for bathing than drinking. Liebenstein affords the usual amusements of a watering-place—daily music on the walks, balls, concerts, and theatrical performances during the season. A little way behind the baths is the Erdfall, a deep recess in the mountain side, piled round with masses of rock, somewhat resembling a colossal Cyclopean wall, overgrown at the top with trees, so as to form an agreeable retreat in hot weather. Pleasant walks lead thence along the heights to the old Castle of Liebenstein, which belonged from the 13th century to the family of Stein, but fell in 1673 with the Seignory into the hands of the Duke of Gotha, and subsequently to the family of Fischern, from whom it was purchased in 1800 by Duke George I. of Saxe-Meiningen. It is founded on the rock, and parts of its foundation walls fill up the chasms in the limestone. Its towers command a delightful view over the forests of Thuringia, along the vale of the Werra, and as far as the Rhöngebirge.

The chief excursion from Liebenstein is ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) to the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen's Schloss Altenstein, passing about $\frac{1}{2}$ way through the village of Glücksbrunn, where is to be seen one of the most remarkable of the Caverns in which the limestone (dolomite) of this district abounds. The château is very finely situated on the brow of a hill, with a grassplot and fountain in front, and surrounded by a beautiful park. A crucifix is planted on a projecting rock, marking, according to tradition, the spot from which St. Boniface, the apostle of Germany, preached Christianity to the pagan inhabitants of the country. $\frac{1}{2}$ an hour's walk from the castle, in the midst of the forest, but not far from the road, stood until 1841, when it was blown down, "Luther's Buche" (Luther's Beech), so called from the tradition that it was beneath it that the bold Reformer, on his return from Worms, was surprised by a party of armed men in masks, who mounted him on their horses and carried him away a prisoner to the castle of Wartburg. This surprise was concerted by his friend and patron the Elector Frederick the Wise of Saxony. A memorial Pillar attached to a well called Luthersbrunnen records the event of the capture, and the place where it occurred.

From Liebenstein the road is very pretty through Ruhla and the Hohe Sonne to Eisenach and the Wartburg, or to Reinhardtsbrunn, the Inselsberg, and Gotha (see Rte. 86).]

5 m. Wernshausen Stat. [Branch

Rly., 3 trains daily in 20 min., to N.E. 4 m.

Schmalkalden (Inns: Adler; Krone, comfortable). This ancient and unaltered town, of 5400 Inhab., still preserves its double row of antique ramparts, and its fosse. Its houses are mostly built of wood, with timber framework. Most of its inhabitants are smiths, and follow their trade in shops on the ground-floor. In the market-place stand the Church (1413) and the two chief Inns, Adler and Krone; in the latter the famous Protestant League of Schmalkalden was signed, 1531. In the Sannersches Haus, the articles of the League were drawn up by Luther, Melancthon, Agricola, and other divines. On a height above the town rises the old Electoral castle, Wilhelmsburg. The valley in which Schmalkalden stands may be regarded as one great smithy; its inhabitants are chiefly workmen in metal, cutlers, makers of gimlets, &c. The iron ore is supplied from numerous mines in the vicinity. Below the town are extensive salt-works. Here died 26 Aug., 1873, Carl Wilhelm, the author of the "Wacht am Rhein," the chant which had such a powerful spirit-stirring effect upon the German troops in the war of 1870-71, on their march "nach Paris." Schmalkalden was an outlying possession of Hersen Cassel until 1866, when it was annexed to Prussia.]

The line continues S. to 4 m. Wasungen Stat., still in the pretty valley of the Werra, which divides 2 of the boldest mountain ridges in Central Germany—the Thüringer Wald and the Hohe Rhön. The land is fertile, and much tobacco is cultivated.

rt. On a height above the Werra stands the modern ducal castle, Schloss Landsberg, designed by Heidehoff, and ornamented with frescoes and glass paintings by Munich artists, in good taste. It commands beautiful views.

6 m. Meiningen Stat. (Inns: Sächsischer Hof; Hirsch), a town of 8200

Inhab., built in the form of a harp, on the rt. bank of the Werra, encircled by wooded hills. It is the capital of the Duchy of Saxe-Meiningen-Hildburghausen, and residence of the Duke. It consists of an old and new town, between which stretches the English Garden. A fire in 1874 destroyed a great deal of the town. In the old town is the Schloss, used as government offices, and containing various collections of art, paintings of the Italian schools and by modern artists, and natural history. The reigning Duke lives in the new Palace. There are an agreeable Park and gardens attached to it, and within these a modern Gothic Chapel with painted glass from Munich. The Jews form an important quota of the community.

The Church is ancient, but defaced by pews and galleries. Behind the altar are some monuments of knights, and in the sacristy some specimens of church-plate, vestments, &c.

Excursions to Amalienruh, a prettily situated shooting-box, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. distant, and fine view from the Dolmar hill.

[Rly. S.W. to Ebenhausen for, 40 m., Kissingen, passing near the village of Bauerbach, where Schiller resided in 1783, and through Mellrichstadt, and part of the forest, to Neustadt (Inn, neat and clean), an old walled town on the Franconian Saal, overhung by the interesting and extensive remains of the castle of Salzburg. See Handbk. for S. Germany.]

19 m. Hildburghausen Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: H. d'Angleterre, comfortable; Rautenkranz). The Palace (built 1695) was, down to 1826, the residence of the Dukes of Saxe-Hildburghausen, until the extinction of the line of Gotha, when they removed to Altenburg, and Hildburghausen was united to Meiningen. The town contains 4500 Inhab., many Jews. It is a lifeless place. The older quarter is of considerable antiquity.

[Diligence daily N. 46 m. to Gotha viâ Ohrdruf and Schleusingen (Rte. 86A), and Diligence daily in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to 9 m. W. Römhild, in whose Church (15th cent.) are remarkable monuments of the Counts of Henneberg, cast in bronze, in 1520, by Peter Vischer and his sons.]

9 m. Eisfeld Stat. (Buffet. Good beer from the large brewery opposite). The line here crosses the Werra and turns S. to 13 m. Coburg Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: H. Leuthäuser, very good; H. Bellevue; Grüner Baum). This is one of the residence towns of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the other being Gotha. Pop. about 16,000. It is remarkable for its beautiful situation in the fertile valley of the Itz, and for clean and opulent-looking houses. The inner part of the city is very old, and the streets narrow and crooked. The Stat. is distant about a mile from the market-place, in which are some picturesque old houses, and a bronze statue of the late Prince Consort (d. 1861) in the robes of the Order of the Garter, modelled by Theed, cast at Nuremberg, and unveiled, 1865, in the presence of the widowed Queen Victoria, who presented the statue, the townspeople procuring the syenite pedestal.

The Palace called Ehrenburg is the modern Gothic town residence of the Duke, built 1549, formerly a monastery, but converted to its present purpose in 1549, and completed in its present form in 1816 from Heideloff's design. It forms 3 sides of a quadrangle, with a turreted entrance, and contains portraits of the Coburg family, including Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, some modern paintings, and a collection of Engravings, which are not shown, and has some handsome apartments, especially the Riesensaal, the roof of which is supported by colossal caryatides. There are some fine specimens of marqueterie in the doors, and Coburg is to this day celebrated for that manufacture. The Casimirianum, or high school, is one of the oldest structures in the town, with fine gables and a life-size statue of the founder, Duke Johann Casimir (d. 1663). The Moritz-Kirche (15th cent.) contains 4 fine ducal monuments—bronze reliefs of the 16th and 17th centuries. Near the entrance is the "Schandstein," on which blasphemers were required to do penance. The Park and Pleasure-grounds are reached by flights of steps ascending from the Hauptwache.

The Theatre belongs to the Duke, and is extremely well conducted. In the Arsenal (Zeughaus) there is some fine armour and arms of all ages, and some Turkish trophies, won by the Prince of Coburg, Austrian field-marshal. Three of the city gates still exist, and vestiges of the walls, surmounted by small watch towers, are in many places visible.

In the middle of the square (schloss-platz) on which the Ehrenburg stands, is a bronze statue of Ernst I., father of the late Prince Consort. Opposite to it is the small palace belonging to the Duke of Edinburgh, and occupied by Queen Victoria in 1876.

The most interesting object here by far is the ancient Castle* of Coburg, until 1547 the residence of the Counts of Henneberg and Dukes of Saxony, situated on a commanding eminence, 523 ft. above the town, half an hour's ascent; it is well worth seeing. The views from it extend over the Thüringer Wald as far as the Franconian Switzerland. It has been repaired, decorated with modern frescoes, and in part converted into a Museum for art and antiquities; but some of the chambers remain in their original condition, especially those occupied by Luther (1530), who passed 3 months here in retirement, during the Diet of Augsburg, and finished here his translation of the Prophets and Psalms, and composed the famous hymn 'Eine feste Burg ist unser Gott.' The bedstead he slept upon during his concealment here, and the pulpit from which he preached in the old Chapel, are preserved here. The collections are shown to the public, free to the Castellan 2 mks. for a party. The wood and copper-plate engravings include a fine set of the works of Albert Dürer. The collection of mediæval armour is extensive and valuable. The specimens of glass and porcelain are good. The ornithological collection, formed by the reigning Duke and the late Prince Consort, has been enriched by specimens contributed by the Duke of Edinburgh. The "horn room" is panelled with oak, inlaid with woods of different kinds, and enclosing mosaic pictures. Another room contains portraits of persons engaged in the Seven Years' War. The Castle was besieged in vain by Wallenstein in the Thirty Years' War (1632). Outside the walls may still be seen the remains of the chains to which a traitor, who attempted to betray the place, was hung in full view of the besieging army.

Among the many country-houses belonging to the Duke, the hunting-seats of Rosenau, 4 m. N. of Coburg, and Kullenberg, 2 m., most deserve notice for the elegant style in which they are fitted up, and the beauty of their situation. The parks and forests around them abound in fine timber and game of every description. At Rosenau, a Gothic manor-house gabled and battlemented, on a wooded hill commanding wide forest views, the lamented Prince Consort was born 1819, and here Queen Victoria has resided at various times. There is a little Inn at the entrance to the grounds.

[Branch Rly. in progress N.E. to Saalfeld (in Rte. 86), completed as far as 12 m.

Sonneberg (Inns: Post; Bär). This town, of 7000 Inhab., nestles close under the hills. It is chiefly remarkable for the peculiar manufacture of toys, dolls, boxes of various kinds, including pill-boxes, boot-jacks, chessboards, and the endless variety of articles for the amusement of children which fill the toy-shops of every quarter of the globe, and are commonly called Dutch toys. There are several manufactories of papier-mâché, to make dolls' heads, and pipe-heads; and one or two mills for grinding boys' marbles. Hones for sharpening knives are prepared here out of a species of slate; and there is also a quarry producing slate-pencils in the neighborhood. Altogether the trade in toys is supposed to produce 400,000 fl. yearly. The Duke of Saxe-Meiningen has established a School of Design for the improvement of the workpeople. Adolph Fleischman is the chief manufacturer. The pretty modern Gothic Church was built from Heideloff's designs, 1845; the vaulted roof is of wood.]

From Coburg the line proceeds S. to 13 m. Lichtenfels Junct. Stat. (Inns: Krone, not good; Anker; good beer at the brewery in the town). A town of 2000 Inhab. on the Main, carrying on some trade in timber floated down the river.

[Rly. E. through Culmbach and Neuenmarkt to Hof and Baireuth, &c.]

The line continues S. to 4 m. Staffelstein Stat., a village possessing a celebrated pilgrimage Church of the Vierzehn Heiligen, under the Staffelberg, a remarkable table hill, which hems in the river on the l., while on the rt. rises a height, crowned by the suppressed convent of Banz, now the residence of Duke Max of Bavaria. The Main, on issuing from this opening in the hills, flows past the small town of 5 m. Zapfendorf Stat.

9 m. Bamberg Junct. Stat. (See Hndbk. S. Germany.)

ROUTE 93.

GOTHA TO LEINEFELDE, BY MÜHLHAUSEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 41 m.; time, 2 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Gotha is described in Rte. 86.

This branch-line proceeds N. to 12 m. Langensalza Stat. (Inns: Mohr; Sonne), an industrious manufacturing town, with a Pop. of 9000, giving name to a battle on 27 June, 1866, in which the Hanoverian army, about 20,000 strong, commanded by King George, repulsed the Prussians and gained an advantage, but abandoned their post at Eisenach on the faith of an armistice negotiated by Ernest Duke of Saxe-Coburg, that the armies were to remain in statu quo. During the night, however, the Prussians brought up 50,000 men, and the Hanoverians (June 29) were forced to surrender. The village and bathhouse of Merxleben were held by the Prussians as the key of their position until driven out by the Hanoverians. Near Langensalza, in 1075, King Henry IV. won a victory over the rebellious Saxons. Merxleben is about 2 m. out of the town; it has a saline sulphureous spring of some reputation, supplying Baths, much resorted to in summer.

11 m. Mühlhausen Stat. (Inns: Schwan; König von Preussen), an ancient walled town of 17,500 Inhab., pleasantly situated in the midst of a very fertile country on the Unstrut. It was a free Imperial town until 1803, when it was joined to Prussia. The Marienkirche in the Oberstadt is the finest church, in pure and bold German Gothic of the 14th cent. Its nave has 5 equal aisles. Münzer, the fanatic preacher, who excited the Thuringian peasants to revolt in 1524-25, made Mühlhausen his head-quarters, and collected around him a misguided host of 30,000 men, expelling the legitimate magistrates. His undisciplined bands, however, were soon dispersed in the battle of Frankenhausen; he himself was brought hither a prisoner, and, after being tortured, was publicly beheaded.

16 m. Leinefelde Junct. Stat.

Rly. E. to Nordhausen and Halle (see Rte. 67), W. to Arendshausen for Göttingen (see Rte. 72) or Cassel (Rte. 67).

SECTION V.

NASSAU—FRANKFURT—HESSE-DARMSTADT—RHENISH BAVARIA—BADEN—THE RHINE FROM MAYENCE TO BASLE.

ROUTE	PAGE	ROUTE	PAGE
95. Coblenz to Frankfurt-on-the-Main , viâ the rt. bank of the Rhine and Main [Schlangenbad , Schwalbach , and Wiesbaden] —RAIL . . .	339	103. Mannheim to Metz, by Ludwigshafen , Kaiserslautern , and Homburg —RAIL . . .	387
96. Giessen to Coblenz, by Weilburg , Limburg , Nassau , and Ems —RAIL . . .	353	104. Mayence to Strassburg [Kehl], by Alzey , Monsheim , Dürkheim , Neustadt , Landau , Annweiler , Trifels , and Hagenau —RAIL . . .	389
97. The Taunus Mountains, from Wiesbaden to Frankfurt , by Eppstein , Königstein , Soden , and Homburg . . .	359	104A. Strassburg to Baden-Baden , by Kehl and Appenweier —RAIL . . .	399
98. Bingen to Frankfurt-on-the-Main , by Ingelheim and Mayence —RAIL . . .	363	105. Frankfurt to Basle , by Darmstadt [the Bergstrasse and Odenwald], Heidelberg , Carlsruhe , Appenweier [for Strassburg], and Freiburg —RAIL . . .	399
99. Bingerbrück to Metz , viâ Kreuznach and Saarbrücken [Vale of the Nahe] —RAIL . . .	364	106. Carlsruhe to Baden-Baden —RAIL . . .	419
99A. Metz to Luxemburg , by Diedenhofen (Thionville) —RAIL . . .	373	107. Strassburg to Basle , viâ Schlettstadt [Markirch], Colmar , and Mühlhausen —RAIL . . .	424
99B. Metz to Strassburg , by Saargemünd and Hagenau —RAIL . . .	374	108. Offenburg to Constance , by the valley of the Kinzig , Donau-eschingen , and Singen [Schaffhausen] —BLACK FOREST—RAIL . . .	427
99C. Nancy to Strassburg , viâ Avricourt , Saargemünd [Pfalzburg], Zabern , and Vendenheim —RAIL . . .	375	109. Freiburg in Breisgau to Schaffhausen , by the Höllenthal [Lenzkirch to St. Blaise and Albbruck] . . .	432
100. Saarbrücken to Trèves , by Saarlouis —RAIL . . .	377	110. Heidelberg to Würzburg , by Mosbach —RAIL . . .	433
102. The Rhine (E). Mayence to Strassburg , by Worms , Mannheim , and Spies —RAIL . . .	378

ROUTE 95.

COBLENZ TO FRANKFURT-ON-THE-MAIN,
viâ THE RT. BANK OF THE RHINE AND MAIN [SCHLANGENBAD, SCHWAL-
 BACH, AND WIESBADEN].—RAIL.

Distance, 84 m.; time, 4 to 5 hrs.; 2 trains daily connect through.

Coblenz is described in Rte. 37.

The Rly. crosses the Rhine by a permanent bridge a little above the town, and follows the rt. bank of the Rhine, passing orchards and vineyards, to

3 m. Nieder Lahnstein Stat. (see Rte. 38); and thence up its rt. bank through the village of Nievern, Ahl, and the iron-works of Hohenrain, where it crosses the Lahn to

1 m. Ober-Lahnstein Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (see Rte. 38). [Rly. E. to Giessen, passing through Ems, Nassau, and Dietz, described in Rte. 96.]

The rt. bank line proceeds S. through the Stats. described in the ascent of the Rhine in Rte. 38, viz.:—2 m. Braubach, 8 m. St. Goarhausen, 6 m. Caub, 4 m. Lorch, 4 m. Assmannshausen. 3 m. Rüdesheim, 2 m. Geisenheim, 3 m. Oestrich-Winkel, 2 m. Hattenheim, 2 m. Erbach to 2 m. Eltvile Stat. Omnibus in connection with the trains 6 times daily in 1½ hr. to N. 4 m. Schlangenbad, and 4 times daily to Schwalbach, which is 4 m. further N.

Schlangenbad (Inns: Nassauer Hof; H. Victoria; H. Planz, comfortable; Pariser Hof) is neither a town nor village, but consists of a group of lodging-houses, in a delightful though retired situation, almost buried amongst wooded hills. The Old and New Badhaus furnish accommodation for visitors, and are enormous buildings, resembling cotton-mills in their size and number of windows. The price of each room, marked on the door, varies from 1 to 5 or 7 mks. daily. Table-d'hôte, at 1, and the same dinner is served in private. The Rauenthaler wine is good here.

It is generally necessary to bespeak rooms by letter beforehand, from the Badmeister, an officer appointed by the Duke of Nassau, who has the charge of both houses.

This place receives its name of Schlangenbad (Serpents' Bath) from the great number of snakes and vipers, as well as the harmless kind, which not only abound in the neighbourhood, but even haunt the springs themselves, for the sake of the warmth yielded by the water, or for the frogs, the food of the viper. Though in a wooded valley, it lies high, and is constantly refreshed by cooling breezes, even in the midst of summer.

The Baths are situated in the ground-floor of the Old and New Badhaus, and have a somewhat dark and gloomy air. The temperature of the water is only 80° Fahrenheit, so that it needs to be heated for bathing.

The sequestered little valley of Schlangenbad affords more complete retirement than any of the baths of Nassau. It is annually visited by about 800 guests, including many princes and persons of distinction from all parts of Germany and Russia, but it is a dull place except to those intent on bathing for health.

The best Baths are to be had at the New Bathhouse, erected 1868; 2 mks. Elsewhere a bath costs 1½ mk.

"The baths of Schlangenbad are the most harmless and delicious luxuries of the sort I have ever enjoyed; and I really quite looked forward to the morning for the pleasure with which I paid my addresses to this delightful element. The effect it produces on the skin is very singular: it is about as warm as milk, but infinitely softer: and after dipping the hand into it, if the thumb be rubbed against the fingers, it is said by many to resemble satin. I must say that I never remember to have existed in a place which possessed such fascinating beauties; besides which (to say nothing of breathing pure dry air), it is no small pleasure to live in a skin which puts all people in good humour—at least with themselves. But besides the cosmetic charms of this water it is declared to possess virtues of more substantial value: it is said to tranquillize the nerves, to soothe all inflammation; and from this latter property the cures of consumption which are reported to have been effected, among human beings and cattle, may have proceeded.

“The effect produced upon the skin by lying about 20 minutes in the bath I one day happened to overhear a short fat Frenchman describe to his friend in the following words:—‘Monsieur, dans ces bains on devient absolument amoureux de soi-même!’ I cannot exactly corroborate this Gallic statement, yet I must admit that limbs, even old ones, gradually do appear as if they were converted into white marble.

“The Schlangenbad water contains the muriates and carbonates of lime, soda, and magnesia, with a slight excess of carbonic acid, which holds the carbonates in solution. The celebrated embellishment which it produces on the skin is, in my opinion, a sort of corrosion, which removes tan, or any other artificial covering that the surface may have attained from exposure and ill-treatment by the sun and wind. In short, the body is cleaned by it, just as a kitchen-maid scours her copper saucepan.”—Bubbles.

Schlangenbad is a “ladies’ bath.” It has a wonderful effect in calming the mind, invigorating the limbs, and smoothing wrinkles from the skin. The invalid who has imbibed in his skin the ferruginous particles of the Schwalbach water, usually repairs hither afterwards, in order to wash away the rust by a course of bathing at the Serpents’ Spring. There is nothing extraordinary in the mineral contents of these waters which would enable chemists to account for their virtue; it probably proceeds from some peculiar admixture derived from the chemistry of nature, which at present art is unable to explain, and equally incapable of imitating.

Tradition relates that the spring was discovered some hundred years ago by a sick heifer, who every day separated herself from the herd to drink of it. The herdsman, surprised both at the periodical absence of the animal, and at the improvement in her condition, traced her footsteps one day, until he discovered her drinking at the warm spring, which now affords the same relief to human invalids which it did in the first instance to the quadruped.

The chief Promenade is the Terrace.

A band of music plays on the walks, to enliven the daily promenade of the water-drinkers; but the chief attractions of the place are the more natural and secluded walks among the woods and hills of the neighbourhood. Donkeys are the favourite means of conveyance, for gentlemen as well as ladies, here as elsewhere, among the baths of the Taunus.

English Church Service, during the season, at 5 P.M. in a chapel.

Schlangenbad is situated within a few miles of some of the most beautiful scenery of the Rhine, overlooked for the most part by the great herd of travellers, who content themselves with steaming up and down the river. Within the distance of a day’s excursion are situated the following interesting spots:—

1. Georgenborn, a village on the carriage-road to Wiesbaden, 1152 ft. above the sea-level, which commands a beautiful prospect over the Rhine and the Main; and Frauenstein, a small hamlet, with an old castle, and a very ancient and large lime-tree.

2. The Cistercian Monastery of Eberbach, in a highly picturesque situation, at the bottom of a wooded dell, described Rte. 38. In the way to it the stranger will pass Raenthal, a small village, with famous vineyards in its neighbourhood; and the chapel of Buben- hausen, a magnificent point of view; the ruined castle of Scharfenstein (once a stronghold of the Archbishops of Mayence), and the beautiful Gothic chapel (1449) of Kiedrich (Rte. 38).

3. To the castle and vineyard of Johannisberg, and the Niederwald, described in Rte. 38.

There is a bridle-road direct from Schlangenbad to Eberbach and the Niederwald, through the woods; but a guide would be necessary to find it out.

From Schlangenbad a good but hilly road leads to N. 4 m.

Bad Schwalbach (Langen-Schwalbach).

Inns: H. du Duc de Nassau, clean and good; table-d'hôte at 1½ and 5. Allee Saal (H. du Promenade); table-d'hôte at 1; at times the rooms serve for dancing—in fact, become the Assembly-rooms. H. Metropole, well spoken of for cleanliness and cuisine. H. des Postes, well managed. H. Wagner. H. Taunus.

Lodging-houses.—There are several good lodging-houses, where, however, there are no tables-d'hôte; but visitors can be provided with breakfast and tea, and have their dinners sent in to them from one of the hotels. Those of Mesdames Conradi and Roller possess advantages which English will appreciate in lodgings.

Travellers should, whether they reside in the hotels or lodging-houses, arrange beforehand as to the charges.

Reading-room and Newspapers in the Allee Saal.

Langen-Schwalbach (in English, Swallows'-brook), though elevated to the dignity of a town (Pop. 1800), has still the appearance of a long straggling village. All the considerable buildings are inns or lodging-houses. It has been for centuries frequented by Germans, and some 5000 visitors now come for the waters annually; but until the appearance of the 'Bubbles from the Brunnen' our countrymen had passed through it year after year without taking any notice of it.

In order to enter into the spirit of the Brunnen of Nassau, no visitor can dispense with the 'Bubbles;' he must take the book in his hand. Travellers are referred to it for all general descriptions.

Schwalbach has the advantage over Ems and Wiesbaden of being more free from bustle and formal restraint, which, with those in search of quiet and retirement, will gain for it the preference over these two watering-places. The season is usually over by the end of August; it begins in June. The winter and spring are cold, and full 3 weeks later than at Wiesbaden and in the Rheingau.

The town is appropriately called Long Schwalbach, from the arrangement of its houses in one extended line ½ m. It contains a Rom. Cath. and 2 Protestant Churches, and a Synagogue for the Jews. Near the upper end of its long street are situated the principal Hotels, the Promenades, the Wells (Brunnen), and the Bath-house (Badhaus).

The springs, which supply water for drinking as well as bathing, are — 1. The Weinbrunnen, so named from some fancied resemblance to wine in its taste; and, 2. The Stahlbrunnen: both of these contain iron and carbonic acid gas; but the Stahlbrunnen is more largely impregnated with both than the Weinbrunnen.—3. The Paulinenbrunnen is now little used.

The Badhaus is supported by an open colonnade, which serves as a walk in wet weather, and as a shelter for a great many itinerant traders, who set up their stalls here in the season.

The baths are much in request, and during the height of the season are occupied from 6 in the morning till 1 P.M. Every hour of the day is bespoken beforehand, and allotted to some one or other, whose name is entered in a book opposite to the hour. Those who are not punctual to their time run the risk of losing their turn. The baths are filled from the Stahl and Weinbrunnen, the waters being previously heated artificially. The price of a single bath is 1 fl. The qualities of the water are bracing and strengthening in a high degree.

The diurnal proceedings of the visitors at the baths are nearly as follows: they rise as early as 6, and resort to the wells to drink their allotted portions, keeping themselves in constant motion backwards and forwards between every glass. After 2 or 3 hrs. of this exercise they have fairly earned their breakfasts. The business of the bath will occupy an hour of the forenoon; and before dinner another course of water is usually prescribed.

A good Band of Music plays in the gardens near the springs early in the morning and from 7 to 8 P.M. Visitors staying over 8 days contribute 3 to 6 mks., for a family 9 to 18 mks.

The dinner-bell sounds at 1, and the irksome table-d'hôte is rarely over in less than an hour and a half: when it is concluded, the Germans usually allow themselves a short time to ruminate, to drink their coffee, and to smoke their pipes. At this time of day the donkeys, the slaves of the visitors at the baths, whose lives are spent in carrying, are to be seen in long array, ready to be engaged. The charges for horses, asses, and carriages are fixed by tariff, according to the length of the excursions. Donkeys, inferior to those at Ems, 1 mk. the hour. At 6 o'clock the ceremony of drinking the waters begins again.

The description given of these baths in the 'Bubbles,' although very amusing and no doubt correct at the time, is no longer applicable in all respects. It is much to be regretted that some efforts are not made by the inhabitants to improve the drainage of the town, which is most imperfect, and at times most offensive.

The English Church, completed 1875, has been built from subscriptions added to a sum left for the purpose by an American lady who died here. There is still a debt to be paid off.

The steep round-backed hills which hem in the town of Schwalbach and its Brunnen are intersected in all directions with paths. From the summit of the heights a number of pleasing views are obtained. One of the most interesting is that from the little rustic wooden pavilion which stands on the top of the hill, by the side of the road leading from Schwalbach to Wiesbaden. This agreeable "pointe de vue" is not much more than 20 min. walk from the Pauline, and those who fear to face the hill on foot may make the ascent on the back of a donkey.

About $\frac{1}{2}$ an hour's walk from Schwalbach is Adolphseck, a ruined castle, said to have been built by Count Adolph of Nassau, before he became Emperor, as a residence for a fair lady, his favourite.

The excursion, however, which surpasses all others around Schwalbach, is that to the Castle of Hohenstein. The visitor may take either the excellent carriage-road leading to it, or follow the windings of the little stream called the Aar, on foot or upon donkeys, passing first the castle of Adolphseck, and then threading the valley downwards for a distance of 6 m. Its great charm is the variety of scenes it unfolds, its changes at every turn; at times expanding into broad meadows, then contracting to a narrow strait with overhanging masses of rock on both sides. At last the grand old castle of Hohenstein appears in sight, in a very romantic situation, perched on the summit of a high black precipice, and forming a termination of the vista. This imposing feudal stronghold of the Counts of Katzenelnbogen was taken and sacked in the Thirty Years' War, and is now totally dismantled, though some precautions have been taken to preserve it from further decay. A village composed of a few poor cottages crouches at the foot of the rock; and a small Inn will furnish the traveller with a dish of trout or crawfish from the Wiedenbach brook, or a bottle of sour wine, if needed; but it is well to take provisions with you.

There are many other old castles among the valleys of the Taunus, each of which may be made the object of a day's excursion, particularly those of Katzenelnbogen (Cat's Elbow, built by the Counts of that name, who died out in 1479; it is situated in a wild and solitary district), Burg Schwalbach, and Arteck. Pleasing excursions are, 1. to Frankfurt by Neuhof, Idstein, Esch, and Königstein (Rte. 97); 2. to Dietz Stat. on the Lahn Railway, and Limburg (Rte. 96), by Holzhausen; 3. down the Wisperthal to Lorch on the Rhine (Rte. 38)—a tolerable carriage-road, 21 m.

Nieder-Selters, the spring which produces the far-famed Seltzer water, may be visited from Schwalbach, but it is a long day's journey, by cross-roads, which even in the best season are very rugged. The spring itself is situated on the high post-road leading from Limburg to Frankfurt, and it is of course most easily accessible in that direction. The admirable description of the author of the 'Bubbles' will probably afford more gratification than even a visit to the spot. The road which he took led him past the Eisenhammer, an immense hammer, lifted by a water-wheel, which forges iron by its fall (one of the lions generally visited by the water-drinkers of Schwalbach), through the villages of Neuhof and Würges, both of which are post-stations, where fresh horses may be had, to the spring of Selters, situated about $\frac{1}{4}$ m. from the village of Selters, which is also a post-station, and provided with a small inn. About a million and a half of bottles are exported annually, and the quantity is increasing.

Instead of returning to Schwalbach by the same road which brought him, the traveller may make an agreeable variation by descending the valley of the Lahn by rail to Nassau or Ems. (See Rte. 96.)

Diligences from Schwalbach to Dietz Stat. (Rte. 96), to Schlangenbad and Eltville Stat., on the rly. to Rüdeshheim and Coblenz; and to Wiesbaden, daily in summer.]

Rly.: Coblenz to Frankfurt continued.

The Rly. from Eltville continues E. through

1 m. Niederwalluf, 1 m. Schierstein, 1 m. Mosbach Stats., described in Rte. 38, and then a branch line turns sharply N. to

3 m. Wiesbaden Stat. Inns: 1st Class: H. Victoria, baths in the house, 250 bed-rooms; Taunus H., both near the Stat.; H. des Quatre Saisons, grand and dear; H. de Nassau, comfortable, quiet, and respectable, well situated in the great square; Rose*, reasonable, clean, and quiet, near the Kursaal,—baths in the house; Weisser Schwan, 1 Kochbrunnenplatz, well spoken of, rooms fronting the garden are to be preferred; Bear, baths, good; Adler, large, good hotel for Germans; H. Rhein.

2nd Class — Holländischer Hof; Grünerwald.

The place has been justly called "a city of lodging-houses," almost every building being appropriated either to the reception or entertainment of visitors.

In the Lodging-houses meals are not provided; but there are restaurateurs (Christmann's, Dalheim, &c.) in the town who will send in dinners. Englischer Hof has baths in the house; Europäischer Hof; Römerbad.

Charges vary according to the season; July and August being the dearest months. Since the abolition of the gaming-tables the town has increased the kurtaxe, payable by visitors, and now amounting to 6 or 18 mks. for 6 weeks, according to the number of the party.

Cabs from the Rly. Stat., 3 to 4 pers. 1 mk.; in the town, by time, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., 80 pf.

Reading-room, in the Kursaal, well furnished with English and American newspapers.

Wiesbaden, once capital of the Duchy of Nassau, since 1866 absorbed in the dominions of Prussia, has 38,400 Inhab., 9000 Roman Catholics. It is indebted for its present prosperity to the celebrity of its baths and mineral waters. The number of visitors attracted to this spot in search of health and pleasure amounts to 50,000 annually. Wiesbaden has a "season" of longer duration than most of the other baths, and is almost always full from June to September, and even later, if the autumn prove fine.

A handsome wide street, the Wilhelmstrasse, $\frac{1}{2}$ m. long, lined with rows of trees, leads from the Rly. stat., along the E. side of the town, to the Theater Platz and the Kursaal.

The most remarkable edifice is the Kursaal, built 1810, by Zais. It occupies the E. side of a square, the N. and S. sides of which are lined by colonnades filled with gay shops, serving as a promenade in wet weather and as a sort of bazaar during the whole of the season. Opposite the Kursaal, in one corner of the square, is the theatre, in the other the huge hotel of the Vier Jahreszeiten.

The Kursaal forms the centre of attraction and gaiety. It consists of a very splendid saloon of large dimensions, surrounded by pillars of Limburg marble. On Sunday the Kursaal is numerously attended. On Saturday it is open for dancing; tickets are required. On Friday concerts of excellent music are given.

When dinner is over every one betakes himself to the garden behind the Kursaal, to sip coffee or ices. Tables are placed out in the open air, within hearing of a band of music, which always plays on these occasions; and while the gentlemen indulge in a pipe, the ladies, in the homely and industrious fashion of Germany, generally occupy themselves by knitting while they chat. At such times the space behind the Kursaal is so completely filled with company, and the tables are so crowded together, that there is barely room to pass; high and low are promiscuously mingled together, and the whole forms the most pleasing and characteristic scene of "Wiesbaden Life."

The hours of drinking the waters are from 6 to 8 in the morning, and again partially in the evening about 6 or 7. A short interval is allowed to elapse between the morning draught and the bath.

The Trinkhalle, a sort of arcade of iron and glass, connects the Kur Garden with the principal spring, the Kochbrunnen (boiling spring). It has all the appearance of a caldron in violent ebullition, and its temperature is 56° of Réaumur, equal to 156° of Fahrenheit. Its waters are used both for drinking and to supply the principal baths in the town; but so copious is the source that after all this consumption a vast quantity runs over and escapes through the gutters and drains. A stranger is astonished at first, as he walks along the streets, to perceive clouds of vapour arising on all sides out of the ground. This may be supposed to add somewhat to the warmth of the place in summer: if other places are hot, Wiesbaden may be said to be boiling hot. There are 13 other springs in the town, all of a high temperature. The spring next in heat and volume is that rising in the garden of the Adler Hotel (48° Réaumur).

The water-drinkers repair to the well at 5 or 6 o'clock A.M., and, receiving their portion scalding hot, walk about, glass in hand, until it is cool enough to be drunk. In taste it has been compared to chicken-broth, but it is more like boiled sea-water. By 8 o'clock the promenade is usually cleared, and the business of bathing begins. The water in the bath is covered with a greasy film or scum, which collects on the surface while cooling: and which, however uninviting it may appear, is the test of its being quite fresh, and not having been used before. After the ceremony of the bath, the doctors allow their patients to take their breakfast, which they have thus in a manner earned.

The hot springs and their medicinal properties were well known to the Romans, who called them Fontes Mattiaci. Pliny, the naturalist, says of them, that they retain their heat for the space of 3 days:—"Sunt et Mattiaci in Germaniâ fontes calidi quorum haustus triduo fervet."—Nat. Hist. lib. xxxi. c. 2.

The waste waters from the springs, retaining for a length of time a warm temperature, are carried off to the Rhine, where they not only never freeze, but, by their warmth, even preserve that part of the river where they enter free from ice. They serve as a nursery or stew for carp, which, fostered by the heat, grow to an enormous size in them. They deposit a copious calcareous sediment or stalactite, which would in a short time choke up the pipes and channels in which they are carried through the town, were they not regularly cleaned out.

The Romans established a station here—they built a fort or castle on the hill to the N.W. of the town, still known as the Römerberg, which was for a long time garrisoned by the 22nd Legion, as is proved by inscriptions on stones and stamps upon the tiles found near the spot. In the 3rd cent. the barbarian Germans attacked and destroyed the Roman fortresses on the rt. bank of the Rhine, and Wiesbaden shared the fate of the rest. Ashes and calcined bones still dug up on the Römerberg attest its ruin. In after-times Charlemagne used constantly to repair hither from his favourite residence at Ingelheim, to enjoy the baths. He built himself a palace (Sala) in the street which still retains the name of Saal Gasse, though the building has disappeared.

In the town at the bottom of the Heidenberg Strasse, and behind the Adler Hotel, is a piece of stone wall, 650 ft. long, 10 ft. high, and 9 ft. thick, called the Heidenmauer (Heathen's Wall).

A few miles to the N. of Wiesbaden are the remains of a fortified wall, passing through a great extent of country. It is called the Pfahlgraben. Before the Romans quitted the country N. of the Rhine, they raised this stupendous barrier along their frontier. It was begun, according to Tacitus, by Drusus, stepson of Augustus, to defend his conquest from the inroads of the Germans, and was finished by Hadrian and Caracalla.

It resembles the Picts' wall in England, but surpasses it in extent. It consists of a rampart from 12 to 18 ft. high, strengthened by towers at regular distances, and with a fosse originally lined with palisades, whence its name. It commences at Neuwied on the Rhine; it runs thence by Montabauer to Ems, across the Lahn by Miehlen, Schwalbach, Wehen, Idstein, and Heftrich to the foot of the Feldberg, and thence may be traced in a N.E. direction, by Wehrheim, towards Butzbach. Several of the summits of the Taunus are crowned by forts or circular ramparts. This wall, raised to protect the Mattiaci against the inroads of the Catti, has been supposed, but erroneously, to form part of the great stone wall constructed by the Empr. Probus from the Danube to the Rhine, to guard the provinces of the empire against the Alemanni. (See Gibbon, ch. xii.)

The Museum in the Schlösschen, built 1812 by Zais, in the Wilhelm Strasse, contains a very good Public Library of 60,000 volumes, including among the MSS. the Vision of St. Hildegard, on parchment, with remarkable miniatures of the 12th cent., and a Collection of Antiquities, chiefly local, or derived from the Duchy of Nassau. The most curious relic, perhaps, is a bas-relief found at Hedderheim, near Frankfurt, representing the youthful god Mythras, in a Phrygian bonnet, in the act of sacrificing a prostrate bull, surrounded by symbolical figures, and surmounted by the 12 signs of the Zodiac. The worship of Mythras was introduced by the Romans from Persia, and set up by the Pagan priesthood in opposition to Christianity, then in its infancy. Here is also the bronze top of the standard of a cohort of the 22nd Legion; a curiously carved altar-piece (25 ft. long and 9 ft. high), from the sequestrated abbey of Marienstadt, near Hachenburg, dating from the 13th cent.; the monuments of Diether and Eberhard von Katzenelnbogen brought from the convent of St. Clara, and some painted glass. There is also a collection of Pictures, but few of them answer to the names attached to them.

The Theatre is open daily, except Monday and Friday, and begins at 6½ P.M.

One of the most prominent buildings in the town is the Protestant Church, opposite the palace, of smooth brick, surmounted by five towers, finished 1863. Boos, architect.

A handsome R. Catholic church was built 1849 in the Louisen Platz, in the round-arched style, Hoffmann architect. See altar-piece; the Madonna by Steinle, St. Boniface by Rethel.

The superb  Russo-Greek Chapel, on the hill called Neroberg (from a tradition that that emperor dwelt there), about 1 m. (30 min. drive) from the Kursaal, was built by Hoffmann (1855) for the Duke of Nassau, to contain the remains of his first wife, a Russian princess (d. 1845), and her recumbent effigy in marble by Hopfgarten, is a touching work of art. It is lined with costly marbles, and is surmounted by 5 gilt cupolas. At the back is the Russian burial-ground.

English Church Service is performed every Sunday by an English clergyman, at 11 A.M. and 6 P.M., in the handsome red-brick and sandstone English Church, built (1864) by subscription, in the Wilhelmstrasse, at a cost of 2500l.

Wiesbaden differs from the other watering-places of Nassau, in being a regularly built town. It is also somewhat noisy and bustling during the season, but has the same advantages with the rest in beauty of situation, and a picturesque neighbourhood, affording agreeable walks and rides, and the most complete retirement within a few hundred yards of its precincts. By ascending any of the adjacent heights, elevated only a few hundred ft. above the town, a charming prospect is disclosed to view, of the Rhine and fertile Rheingau, in which the spires and boat-bridge of Mayence form a prominent object; and the horizon is backed on the E. by the Odenwald and by the Melibocus surmounted by its white tower; on the S.

by the ridge of the Donnersberg or Mont Tonnerre, in Rhenish Bavaria. From the Geisberg, about a mile from the town, this view is seen to great advantage.

One of the pleasantest walks, and nearest at hand, is through the shrubberies, which begin behind the Kursaal, to the Dietenmühle and ruined castle of Sonnenberg, a distance of 2 m.

From the summit of the Hohe Wurzel hill there is a remarkable prospect over the Rhine and Main, but a still more extensive and beautiful view is obtained from the Platte, a hunting-seat of the Duke of Nassau, about 4 m. off (Inn close by); with an excellent carriage-road leading up to it. It is a plain white building conspicuous from all sides, situated on the verge of a hill 1300 ft. above the Rhine, overlooking the plain, and backed by thick woods; within, it is tastefully and appropriately fitted up; part of the furniture is ingeniously formed out of buck-horn. It is shown to strangers at all times. The view is best seen from the platform on the roof. The neighbouring woods abound in herds of deer: many of them assemble round the Platte in the evening to be fed. The pedestrian may find a short cut over the Geisberg, and past the weeping oak, to the Platte. The road is quite direct, and the pedestrian has only to avoid turning off either to the rt. or l. into the cross-roads which occur at intervals.

A little to the left of the road to the Platte lies the convent (now secularised) of Klarenthal, and the Fasanerie (Pheasantry), a shooting-box of the Duke's, which also deserves a visit.

At Biebrich, the palace of the Duke of Nassau, close to the railroad to Mayence and Rudesheim, lies pleasantly by the side of the Rhine. The numerous interesting spots situated in the Rheingau between Biebrich, Rudesheim, and above all the Niederwald, all within the distance of a morning's ride from Wiesbaden, are described in Rte. 38. An agreeable excursion of a day or two may be made through the part of the range of the Taunus lying between Wiesbaden and Homburg. (Rte. 97.)

From Wiesbaden Schnellpost twice daily in 2½ hrs. to N.W. 11 m. Schwalbach (described above), and daily to, N.E. 22 m., Camberg, on rly. in progress between Höchst and Limburg (see Rte. 96).

The Rly. from Wiesbaden proceeds S. through stats., 2 m. Curve (short branch to Biebrich), 2 m. Castel (for Mayence on the opposite bank), described in Rte. 38, and thence the line (Taunus Bahn) turns E., and, crossing the boundary of Nassau a little way outside the walls, ascends the river Main, following its rt. bank along the slopes of the vineyards to 3 m. Hochheim Stat. (Inn: Schwan), a village of 2600 Inhab., on the summit of a hill of moderate elevation. In its immediate vicinity, and along the sunny banks sloping down to the Main, for a space of 3 m., are the vineyards which produce the wine called Hock,—a name improperly given by the English to Rhenish wines. The best wine is grown in the vineyards below the church, which are sheltered from cold winds by the houses of the town. They were anciently the property of the Chapter of Mayence, but now belong to the Duke of Nassau, and are highly valuable. The narrow strip of ground upon which the railway passes through them was very costly.

3 m. Flörsheim Stat. (Buffet). Omnibus during season awaits train for N.W. 1 m. Weilbach, a quiet bathing establishment with sulphur springs.

4 m. Hattersheim Stat. (Inns: Schützen Hof; Nassauer Hof). Omnibus twice daily up the Lorsbacher Thal to N. 8 m. Eppstein (see Excursion into the Taunus, Rte. 97).

3 m. Höchst Junct. Stat. (Inns: Goldner Adler; Frankfurter Hof; Landsberg), an industrious little town of 3000 Inhab., on the Nidda, which is crossed by a bridge. The chief building is the Schloss of the Elector of Mainz, destroyed in 1635, and of which the tower only is still intact. The Ch. of St. Justinus dates from the 11th cent., the choir is of the 15th. The other Schloss was built in the last cent. by a rich tobacconist, and now partly used as a manufactory. Höchst was 6 times taken during the 30 Years' War. In 1622 Tilly here won a victory over Duke Christian of Brunswick; here also, in 1795, the Austrians defeated the French. [Branch Rly., 7 trains daily during the season, to N. 4 m. Soden Stat. at the foot of the Taunus, and thence diligence twice daily in 1 hr. to 3 m. Königstein. (See Rte. 97.)]

The Feldberg, the highest of the range, and the Castle of Falkenstein at its foot, are visible near this. The boundary of the territory of Frankfurt is marked by an ancient watch-tower on the post-road to the l.

5 m. Frankfurt (am-Main) Stat. on the W. side of the town outside the Gallus-Thor between the Weser-Bahnhof on l. and the Neckar Bahnhof on rt.

Cabs (Droschken) from Stat. into town: 1 to 2 pers., 90 pf.; 3 to 4 pers., 1 mk. 20 pf.; portmanteau 20 pf. By time: 1 to 2 pers., ¼ hr., 50 pf.

Inns: 1st Class.—Russischer Hof, in the Zeil; Englischer Hof, on the Rossmarkt, good; Römischer Kaiser, in the Zeil, expensive, table-d'hôte at 1 P.M.; Schwan, handsome large house, rebuilt 1872. Frankfurter Hof, in the Kaiser Platz, near the Rlys., a large new hotel (1876); Westendhall (with Restaurant), outside town, near Taunus Rly.; Holländischer Hof (with Café and Restaurant), in the Göthe Platz; H. de l'Union, in the Steinweg; H. du Nord (with Restaurant), in the Gr. Gallus Strasse.

2nd Class.—H. Drexel in the Gr. Friedberger Strasse, cheap and good; Pariser Hof, in the Schiller Platz; H. Landsberg, on the Liebfrauenberg; H. Victoria, Württembergischer Hof, Grüner Baum, &c.

Restaurants: Böhm on the Kornmarkt; Jouy in the Gr. Gallus Strasse (and see under Hotels).

Cafés: Parrot and Müller on the Zeil; Germania, corner of the Rossmarkt.

Confectioners: Röder on the Göthe Platz, good ices; Rahnstadt on the Theater Platz; Georgi in the Bleiden Strasse, good chocolate;—Butschli in the Kl. Hirschgraben.

Theatres: New Opera House on the Promenade.—Stadt Theater; daily performance; box office open 11–1.

Concerts at the Saalbau, 19 Jung-hof Strasse. A handsome Renaissance building and fine large hall holding 2000 persons.

Garden Concerts: Café Concordia twice a week, and Café Frascati daily—both in Bockenheim.

Post Office: Chief office 52 on the Zeil; 4 branch offices and numerous letter-boxes.

Telegraph Office in the Exchange (Börse).

Omnibus: 2 lines run through the town every $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. during the day (1) from the Hanauer Rly. Stat. to Bockenheim, and (2) from Bornheim to the Sachsenhausen Rly. Stat.

Railways (see below).

Eng. Ch. on the Göthe Platz. Sund. 11 and 3.

Eng. Consulate (English reading-room here), and United States Consul-Gen. in the Gallus Strasse.

Club (strangers may be introduced by a member) Casino, 21 Gallus Strasse; frequented chiefly by the wealthier merchants. French and English newspapers. Alter Bürger Verein, 74 Eschenheimer Strasse, very handsome building, up to 1848 occupied by the Archduke John. Large library and billiard, reading and dining-rooms.

Physicians: Dr. Ph. Fritsch, 8 Rothhof Strasse; Dr. Spiess, 51 Neue Mainzer Strasse: both speak English.

Baths: Warm, cold, vapour, &c.—Franz Alt, 5 Mainzer Gasse;—Greb, 27 Leonhardskirche. Swimming baths.—Kleeblatt and Gerlach at the Untermainthor.

Shops: Jügel, bookseller, opposite the Hauptwache (guard-house), the Galignani of Frankfurt, speaks English, guide-books, maps, views, circulating library, &c.; Böhler's, 54 Zeil, stag-horn reliefs, bronze copy of Dannecker's Ariadne, and also at Ihlie's, 63 Zeil.

Money changers: J. J. Weiler and Sons, 41 Zeil, respectable.

Frankfurt, formerly a Free Town, and the seat of the German Diet from 1816 to 1866, when it was annexed to Prussia, lies on the rt. bank of the Main, and is connected by 3 bridges with the suburb of Sachsenhausen on the l. bank. Pop. 100,000, of whom 3000 are Jews. In the days of its independence it was one of the most lively as well as handsome cities in Germany, and it is now, since its incorporation with the German Empire, increasing in prosperity and size. A great part of the S.W. quarter has been rebuilt, and many of the houses in the Kaiser Strasse, in the principal street, called the Zeil, in the Neue Mainzer and Taunus Strasse, and on the quays facing the Main, inhabited by rich merchants, bankers, or diplomatists, are palaces. The belt of Boulevard Gardens, replacing the ramparts, is studded with handsome detached villas.

The Old Town, on the other hand, with its narrow streets and quaint wooden buildings, with gables overhanging their basement storeys, forms a complete contrast to the new. Many of the houses are of great antiquity, especially in the quarter around the Cathedral and Römerberg; they preserve in part the character of "the ancient Imperial Free City."

The Domkirche of St. Bartholomew (Cath.), remarkable on account of the coronations of Emperors which have taken place within it since 1711, is not much distinguished for beauty or symmetry of architecture (the nave, low and short, dates from the 13th cent., and the choir from 1338). The finest portion is its tower, begun 1415, and carried on for nearly 100 years, but left unfinished. The Ch. was damaged by fire 1867, and is now under restoration. Among the monuments remark that of King Günther of Schwarzburg (killed 1349 by his rival Charles IV.), and that of Rudolph of Sachsenhausen, abundantly ornamented. St. Bernard preached the second Crusade to an enthusiastic audience, and performed miracles, in this church. In the Election Chapel (Wahlkapelle), according to the Golden Bull of 1356, the Emperor was chosen.

The Town-house, called Römer—marked by 3 steep gables fronting the Market-place—was bought by the town in 1405 and rebuilt in place of an older Rathhaus. It has also far less of architectural beauty to recommend it than of historical interest, as the scene of the ceremonies attending the election of the Emperors in the Wahlzimmer, and the place where the festivities succeeding their coronation were celebrated. The walls of the banqueting-room or Kaisersaal on the 1st floor (open Mond., Wed., and Frid., 11–1, free; at other times ring bell for attendant, small fee),—an irregular apartment, in the shape of a rhomboid, where the Emperors since 1558 were entertained, and waited on at table by princes of the Empire—are covered with 52 royal and imperial portraits in the order of succession, from Conrad I. to Francis II., recently painted by Lessing, Bendemann, Rethel, and other eminent living artists, in the place of some vile daubs of the sign-post school. Under nearly every one is the motto which the Emperor adopted at his coronation. At the end of the Hall is the Judgment of Solomon by Steinle. These paintings are the gifts of different royal, noble, and private persons, citizens of Frankfurt, &c., and many have great merit. The Hall has been restored (1843) in adherence to the ancient style, the decoration of the ceiling being copied from the original design. Here is preserved the famous Golden Bull, or deed by which the Empr. Charles IV. (1356) settled the mode of election of the German Emperors, and the number (seven) of the Electors.

In front of the building is the Market-place, called the Römerberg, which, down to 1700, no Jew was ever allowed to cross, and where, upon the occasion of the Imperial coronation, an ox was roasted whole, from which the Arch-Steward (Erz-Truchsess) cut a slice for the Emperor: a fountain flowed with wine, from which the Arch-Cupbearer (Erz-Mundschenk) filled his glass, and the Arch-Marshal distributed corn from a silver measure; and the populace enjoyed the privilege of appropriating the scarlet cloth upon which the Emperor walked from the Dom. So greedily was it cut away behind him as he passed onwards, that he ran the risk of having his heels cut also. The ceremonies observed at an Imperial coronation may be seen in some old prints on the staircase of the public library, and in the election chapel at the Dom. Drawings of the regalia too are hung up on the library staircase.

St. Leonhard's Ch. (Cath.), near the river, begun in 1317, the Gothic choir 1434, restored 1808, occupies the spot where the palace of Charlemagne is said to have stood: but of which no traces now exist. In 794 he held a great synod of the Frankish realm at Frankonofurt (the Frank's ford).

The Saalhof, a gloomy modern building (1717), near the Main, retains the name alone of the palace of his son and successors. The restored chapel, however, appears to be as old as the 10th cent. The collection of pictures (Städtische Gemäldegalerie) here is opened free Mond., Wed., Frid., 11–1, at other times small fee. There are some good specimens of Teniers, Van-dyk, &c., and some fine painted glass of the 16th and 17th cents., the gift of a citizen.

There are two institutions for the encouragement of arts and sciences, which reflect credit upon the town of Frankfurt.

1. The Städelsches Kunstinstitut, 35 Neue Mainzer Strasse (open free daily, 11–1, at other times small fee for admission). This Museum of Pictures, for which a new building is in course of erection, to the S.W. of the town on the l. bank of the Main, is named after its founder, a citizen of Frankfurt (d. 1816), who bequeathed his collections of paintings, drawings, and engravings to the city, along with 83,000*l.*, for building and maintaining a Public Gallery and School of Art.

The pictures which it contains consist of some specimens of the early masters of Germany and the Low Countries, of a not very numerous or remarkable collection of Dutch and Italian masters, and of some of the best works of the modern German School. The following are perhaps the most worthy of notice:—

Italian School:—Perugino—Virgin and Child. Gio. Bellini—Holy Family. Moretto—Virgin and Child, with the four Fathers of the Latin Church (from Cardinal Fesch's collection: cost 30,000 fl.), a very remarkable work, perhaps the finest by the master on this side the Alps. Paris Bordone—Sketch for his great picture at Venice, representing the Fisherman presenting St. Mark's Ring to the Doge. (Handbook for N. Italy.)

Modern German Artists:—Hübner—Job with his Friends. Lessing—Huss before the Council of Constance. Very carefully composed and elaborately finished; losing, indeed, much of its power by its minute finish. Achenbach—Storm on the coast of Norway. Rethel—Daniel in the Lions' Den. Schnorr—The Good Samaritan. Lessing—Ezzelin in Prison, after the Battle of Cassano. Overbeck—The Triumph of Christianity in the Arts. Considered a chef-d'œuvre of the artist: all the heads are portraits of persons renowned as authors, divines, or artists. The visitor will easily discover how much the artist has borrowed from Raphael's School of Athens and Dispute of the Sacrament. Schadow—The wise and foolish Virgins. Steinle—10 coloured cartoons, for the frescoes at the Castle of Rheineck. Schnorr—Cartoons of subjects from Orlando Furioso. Ramboux—10 coloured drawings from the Divina Commedia.

A remarkable altar-piece, consisting of a centre and two wings, representing the events of the Crucifixion, by a Cologne artist of the beginning of the 15th cent.; formerly attributed to Schoreel. Here are some curious works of the early German School, and a portrait by Q. Matsys, 138, erroneously called Knipperdolling.

Dutch and Flemish Schools:—A poor collection. Hobbema—Landscape. Ruysdael—Storm clearing off. Wood and Waterfall. Wynants—Landscape. Rubens—Portrait of his infant Daughter, who afterwards became a nun.

In a room called the Fresco-Saal, is a fresco by Veit, representing the introduction of the arts into Germany by Christianity, with two allegorical figures of Italy and Germany at the sides. Here are casts of the latest of Ghiberti's 2 celebrated bronze doors of the Baptistery, Florence; and of parts of the other, and of that by Andrea Pisano; and a singular and very remarkable composition, in terra-cotta, representing the Virgin and Saints, by Giorg. Andrioli, 1511, from the Ch. of the Madonna del Rosario at Gubbio, in the province of Urbino. The very interesting collection of engravings contains some etchings by Flemish masters not to be met with in any other cabinet.

2. The Senckenberg Museum of Natural History (close to the picturesque Eschenheim Gate, built in 1350, tower restored 1866) contains very good collections in the various branches of natural history, tolerably well arranged. Many rare specimens, not to be found in other museums, were brought to Europe by the enterprising traveller Rüppell, a native of Frankfurt, from Egypt, Nubia, the shores of the Red Sea, and Abyssinia. There is a small ethnological collection at the top of the house. Open to the public gratis, Wed. 2 to 4; Frid. and Sun. 11 to 1. A small fee to the keeper will procure admission from 8 to 1 and 3 to 6 on other days.

Dannecker's Statue of Ariadne*, placed in a Museum (Ariadneum), erected expressly for it, in the villa of Mr. Moritz von Bethmann, outside the Friedberg Gate, is the great boast of Frankfurt, and deserves to be ranked among the distinguished productions of modern art. The artist, whose works are little known in England, was a native of Würtemberg. The statue is placed in a Grecian temple, built for its reception, and is usually shown from 10 to 1 daily, small fee expected, Sund. gratis.

The Public Library (Stadt-Bibliothek — open free Mond. to Frid. 9–1; Wed. also from 3–5; at other times small fee), in a handsome building, facing the Main, close to the Ober-Main-Thor, is a useful collection of 100,000 vols. In the entrance-hall is a marble statue of Göthe, by Marchesi, 1839. The Library possesses a few curiosities, among which are portraits of Luther (by L. Cranach ?), and of his wife Cath. a Bora; 2 pair of Luther's shoes, two missals with curious old carvings in ivory on the covers, and a fine copy of the first edition of the Bible printed by Fust at Mainz.

The Kunstverein (or permanent Exhibition of the pictures of modern artists), 8 Junghof Strasse, commenced in 1855, is open daily, 9 to 6, small fee.

An inscription over the house, No. 23 Gr. Hirschgraben, states that the poet Johann Wolfgang Göthe was born there 28th of Aug. 1749 (open free Wed., 2–4; at other times fee 1 mk.). His father's coat of arms, which, by a curious coincidence, bears the poetical device of 3 lyres, still remains over the door. The poet's room, a garret, contains relics of him, his portrait, autographs, a washstand, &c. His mother (d. 1808) is buried in the old cemetery.

A fine bronze statue of Göthe by Schwanthaler of Munich was erected, 1844, in the Göthe Platz, near the Theatre; the subjects of the reliefs are taken from Göthe's works.

A bronze statue of Schiller was erected, 1863, by Dielmann, in the Schiller Platz, behind the grand guard-house (Hauptwache).

In the midst of the Rossmarkt, the largest open space in the town, and which is crossed on entering the town from the rly. stat., is the Gutenberg Denkmal, erected 1858, a colossal group of bronze statues of Gutenberg, Fust, and Schöffer; the inventors of printing, by Launitz. Round the base are ranged heads of 13 eminent printers.

Outside the Friedberger Thor is the Hessen-Denkmal, consisting of a block of stone surmounted by a helmet, sword, &c., and erected by King Fred. William II. of Prussia in 1793 (restored 1844), to the memory of the Hessians who fell in storming the town, 2nd Dec. 1792, then occupied by the French under Custine.

Luther resided in a corner house in the Dom Platz, now marked by his portrait and the inscription, "In silentio et spe erit fortitudo vestra."

A new Opera House has been erected on the Promenade; the site alone cost 40,000*l*.

Frankfurt is the cradle of the Rothschild family; their house was No. 148 in the Judengasse, a street which long retained its primitive air of antiquity, and the usual rags and refuse of a Jews' quarter, but one side of this street was pulled down (1872), so that the peculiar character of the Jews' quarter is fast disappearing and the whole gradually becoming modernized.

The Jews, who form no inconsiderable portion of the community here, were long treated with great illiberality by the Free Town. The gates of the quarter to which they were exclusively confined were closed upon them at an early hour every night. This arbitrary municipal regulation was enforced, until Marshal Jourdan, in bombarding the town (1796), knocked down the gates of the Jews' quarter, after which they were not replaced. The handsome Synagogue was built 1855. Now the Jews may hire or purchase houses in other parts of the city.

The principal business carried on at Frankfurt is banking and jobbing in the funds. The Exchange (Börse) on the Neue Kräme, behind the Römer, in the style which at Munich is called Byzantine, was built (1840) from the designs of Stüler, of Berlin, of a brown stone, with stripes of red stone arranged in the fashion of the Cathedral at Sienna. The statues in front represent Hope and Prudence, the quarters of the Globe, Commerce, &c. The interior is a curious mongrel style of semi-Mauresque (admission 12-2). The Braunfels, which formerly served that purpose, is an old building, No. 29, Neue Kräme, in which the Empr. Maximilian and Gustavus Adolphus resided; it is filled with traders at the fair time. Near the Börse is the modern Ch. of St. Paul (Prot.), built in 1833, in which the German National Assembly of 1848 met.

Frankfurt has hitherto been a staple or entrepôt, for Central Europe, receiving the productions and manufactures of all parts of the world, to distribute them in detail over the whole Continent.

The Frankfurt Fairs are held at Easter, and 3 weeks before Michaelmas. They are less important than formerly. There are also horse fairs in spring and autumn and horse races in August.

The Germanic Diet, now extinct, used to meet, from 1816 to '66, in the building formerly the Palace of the Prince of Thurn and Taxis.

Sachsenhausen, the Southwark of Frankfurt, on the l. bank of the river, derives its name from a colony of conquered Saxons, planted here by Charlemagne. It is connected by 3 bridges, one being a modern iron suspension-bridge, and another the old bridge (built 1342), which is crowned by a modern statue of Charlemagne, erected 1843, and on the side of Sachsenhausen stands the Palace (built 1709) of the Knights of the Teutonic Order, now a printing establishment.

Close to this bridge are remains of the old palace of the Counts of Isenberg; one side is of good Elizabethan Gothic.

Public Gardens.—The agreeable belt of gardens which encircles the town of Frankfurt is one of its most pleasing and ornamental features. No stranger should omit to visit them. They occupy the site of the ancient fortifications. Bands play Wednesdays and Sunday afternoon at the Zoological Gardens (Restaurant) in summer, and at the Palm Garden (Restaurant), $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.'s walk further in the same direction, filled with the collection of palms formerly at Biebrich, belonging to the Duke of Nassau and purchased by the city in 1869. Beyond this is the village of Bockenheim, the first stat. on the Cassel Rly. (Rte. 70), where there is a Vaudeville Theatre and several large cafés.

The Old and New Cemeteries, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the Friedberg Gate, are worth visiting. The ground commands a charming view of Frankfurt and the Taunus. Among the monuments under the arcade at the N. upper end, that of the Bethmann family, with beautiful bas-reliefs by Thorwaldsen, is well worth notice. A costly monument has been set up to the Countess Reichenbach, themorganatic wife of the late Elector of Hesse. Sömmering, the naturalist, and Feuerbach, the lawyer, are buried here. On the N. side is a Monument to the Prince Lichnowsky and Gen. Auerswald, Prussian deputies to the Diet, so dastardly murdered by Revolutionary assassins, Sept. 18, 1848. Also to several Prussian officers who lost their lives in storming the barricades on that occasion. In the Jewish Burial Ground is a marble sarcophagus, which cost 2000*l.*, to the memory of the founder of the Rothschild family, Amschel Meyer Rothschild.

About $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. beyond, on the N.E.

of the town, is the village of Bornheim, a favourite resort of the townspeople on holidays.

Railways :—

This city is the central point of a network of 7 lines of rly.

The Stats. are

W. of the town—outside the Taunus-Thor :

1. Taunus Rly. for Mayence, Wiesbaden, Coblenz, Cologne, Brussels, &c.

2. Main-Weser and Homburg Rly. for Cassel, Leipzig, Berlin, &c., and Homburg.

Outside the Gallus-Thor—

3. Main-Neckar, Linksmainische, and Offenbach Rly. for Darmstadt, Mannheim, Heidelberg, &c. (Rte. 105)—for Mayence, Bingerbrück, Saarbrücken, Metz, Paris—and for Offenbach.

E. of the town—outside the Allerheiligen-Thor :

4. Frankfurt - Hanauer Rly. for Hanau, Munich, Salzburg, Prague, Dresden, Vienna, &c.

S. side of the town in the Sachsenhausen suburb—

5. Offenbacher Rly. for Offenbach and Hanau. A Verbindungsbahn connects this line with the Stats. on the W. side of the town.

Excursions.

(a) Wiesbaden, Schlangenbad, Schwalbach, and the Rheingau, by the Taunus Rly. (see above, and Rte. 38).

(b) The Taunus Mountains, by the same rly. as far as Höchst stat. and thence branch to Soden (see Rte. 97).

(c) To the Nauheim Baths, by the Main Weser Rly. (see Rte. 70).

(d) To Homburg—described in Rte. 97—by the Homburger Eisenbahn 11 m. N. 8 trains daily in 40 min.

ROUTE 96.

GIESSEN TO COBLENZ, BY WEILBURG, LIMBURG, NASSAU, AND EMS.—RAIL.

Distance, 73 m.; time, 4 to 5 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Giessen is described in Rte. 70.

The Rly. proceeds W. down the valley of the Lahn, passing on rt. the ruins of Vetzberg and Gleiberg, to 7 m. Wetzlar Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns, Herzogliches Haus, tolerable; Solms Hof). This was until 1803 a free Imperial town, and from 1693 to 1806 seat of the Imperial Chamber. At the Vienna Congress it was made over to Prussia. Pop. 6000. It is old and badly built, and about 20 min. distant from the Rly.; but is charmingly situated in the Lahn valley, surmounted by the ruined hill-fort Kalsmunt, from which fine view, as well as from the Metzeburg (Inn). The Domkirche is amicably divided between Catholics and Protestants, and shows a mixture of dates and styles of architecture and sculpture, from early rude Romanesque down to late Gothic. The N.W. tower, called the “Heidenthurm,” belongs to the oldest part of the building, and is of the beginning of the 12th cent. It is constructed of rough blocks of basalt and sandstone, with singular portal and sculpture. The nave and aisles, noble and lofty, were heightened and rebuilt at the end of the 13th cent., but retain portions of the old walls, in the lower parts of which are remains of Romanesque arcades. In the nave is an ancient font, and 2 singular 16th-cent. groups of figures (enclosed in modern cases). The transepts are spacious and deep; the S. of fine geometric work, the N. rich 14th-cent. The stately Roodloft (14th-cent.) consists of 3 canopied arches, opening to the same number of vaulted bays. Beyond this is the choir, lower than the nave, a fine example of early German Gothic work of middle of 13th cent., and contains some life-sized stone statues and other ancient monuments, in good preservation. The W. front is Romanesque. In 1336, when the foundations of a new W. front were laid, some 40 ft. W. of the ancient one, the S. tower of the latter was destroyed to allow of the S. aisle being prolonged; but, owing to the abandonment of the work, the more recent front was never completed, and the remainder of the old W. front left standing. Obs. the statue of the Madonna and Child in the centre pier of the present W. doorway, and the statues of our Lord and the Evangelists on the S. side of the completed tower. Wetzlar derives some celebrity from being the scene of Göthe's romance, 'The Sorrows of Werther,' founded on events which actually occurred here. The hero was a Legations Secretary, named Jerusalem, who shot himself here, and is buried in the churchyard outside the Walbach Gate. In front of that gate is Charlotte's Fountain, and the house of her father, Amtmann Buff. Near the fountain is the "Wertherlinde," under which Göthe often sat (1774). The author has described, under the name of Wahlheim, the village of Garbenheim, 2 m. distant. The French General Hoche died at Wetzlar, of consumption, 1797.

[Branch Rly. N.W. to Betzdorf Junct. Stat., whence line W. to Cologne, and N. through Siegen, and Altena to Hagen on the Düsseldorf and Elberfeld line (see Rte. 47)—in progress N.E. through Frohnhausen and Kirshain, to connect with a line direct to Berlin.]

From Wetzlar the line continues W. to 3 m. Albshausen Stat., opposite which is the Ch. of Altenberg, a fine Gothic 12th-cent. building, originally part of a convent, and containing several monuments.

3 m. Braunfels Stat. (Buffet). Omni- bus 6 times daily in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the town, which is 2 m. S. (Inn, Harzheim's). The road leads through the Mühlengrund and park of the mediatised Prince of Solms-Braunfels, whose fine large Schloss rises on the height above, with beautiful view from the terrace, and interesting collections of armour, &c., in the Rittersaal, and altar-piece in the chapel. The Rly. enters the former territory of Nassau at 5 m. Löhnberg Stat.

2 m. Weilburg Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Deutsches Haus; Traube) is beautifully situated on a high bank above the river, being built on a peninsula, which is joined to the l. bank by a narrow neck of land, and has a Schloss of the 16th cent., restored in 1711, formerly the residence of the Counts of Nassau-Weilburg, who, in 1816, inherited the whole Duchy of Nassau. The gardens extend down to the river. The Counts of Nassau are buried in a church here. In the vicinity there is an extensive park. The view of Weilburg is surpassed by few scenes in N. Germany, the principal features being the old castle on a rock, the bridge, and the winding river. The hill on which Weilburg stands has been perforated by a Tunnel for the passage of the waters of the Lahn. It was at Weilburg that, in 1836, Mr. Holland, M.P. for Hastings, Mr. Monck Mason, and Mr. C. Green, descended in the "Nassau Balloon," having made the voyage from London to this place in 18 hrs., starting at 1½ P.M., and arriving here at 7½ on the following morning.

[Schnellpost daily in 5 hrs. to S.E. 24 m. Usingen, and thence Schnellpost twice daily to Homburg in Rte. 97. The road passes through some fine forests, mostly belonging to the Duke of Nassau, whose park is passed. At Usingen is a palace belonging to the Duke. From the top of the hill, before descending into Homburg, there is a fine view of the Odenwald, as far as the Duchy of Baden.]

The line traverses several tunnels before reaching

7 m. Aumenau Stat. Iron-stone quarries.

4 m. Villmar Stat., a walled town of 2100 Inhab. and extensive marble quarries.

This part of the valley of the Lahn is picturesque, enclosed by wooded hills, and is interesting to the geologist. It was formerly partitioned out between the 4 reigning houses of Solms, Isenburg, Nassau, and Königstein.

2 m. Runkel Stat. (Inns: Weinberg; Wiedscher Hof), an ancient town of 2000 Inhab. and half-ruined Castle (Burg Runkel) of the Prince of Wied.

A little above Limburg, on the rt. bank of the Lahn, is the Romanesque Church of Dietkirchen, standing on a rock, and said to have been founded in the 4th cent., and containing bones of St. Matthew and St. Lubentius!

5 m. Limburg Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Nassauer Hof; Preussischer Hof). A very ancient town of 4500 Inhab. on the Lahn. The superb Cathedral of St. George (Cath.), with its 7 towers, rises pre-eminently above the other buildings. A ch. was built here 909, but the existing cathedral is not older than 1213-42, restored 1766. Its architecture is particularly interesting, as it exhibits the latest character of the Romanesque, mixed with the commencement of the Gothic style. Few churches in Germany possess equal excellence of proportions, or an interior so perfectly harmonious. The large triforium gallery, over low aisles, was certainly for the use of part of the congregation. Obs. the staircases giving access to it; also the delicate carved details of the W. door. The ch. contains several monuments of princes of Nassau, one of King Conrad I. (the founder, d. 918), and a very finely sculptured font.

The views of the winding Lahn from this church and from the picturesque bridge, built in 1315, and that of the church itself, from a mill on the bank of the river, are very fine. The MS. called the Limburg Chronicle, extending over the period from 1336 to 1612, is of special importance for the history of German manners in the 14th cent. The Lahn between Limburg and Ems is very picturesque. A boat may be hired here to descend the river to Ems and Coblenz.

[Branch Rly. in progress N. to join the Cologne and Siegen line, completed as far as 5 m. Hadumar Stat. (Inn, Nassauer Hof), a small town of 2300 Inhab., with an interesting old Schloss. S. a line is in progress through Nieder-Selters and Idstein to Höchst Junct. Stat. on the Wiesbaden and Frankfurt line (Rte. 95); in the meantime Schnellpost twice daily in 1½ hr. to S. 10 m. Nieder-Selters (see Rte. 95), and thence in ¾ hr. to 3 m. further Camberg, and on in 1½ hr. to 6 m. further Idstein.]

2 m. Dietz Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Holländischer Hof, good and clean; H. Lorenz). Pop. 3500. Romantically situated on the Lahn, which is crossed by a bridge 600 years old, overlooked by the Castle of its ancient counts, built on the summit of a rock, now the principal prison of Nassau. Not far off is Oranienstein, a schloss of the Duke of Nassau, built 1676, now a school. In 1338 Dietz fell by inheritance to the younger line of Nassau (Princes of Orange), of which a branch long afterwards took the name of Nassau-Dietz, From this branch the present King of the Netherlands is descended.

[Branch Rly. S. 6 m. to Zollhaus, whence road leads S. to Schwalbach, in Rte. 95.]

The Lahn is not unlike the Wye, though at first the scenery exhibits a sameness of beauty, the hills on both sides being covered with wood, and not distinguished by much variety of shape; but the numerous villages and ruined castles on its banks contribute to embellish the views.

2 m. Fachingen Stat. A mineral spring, and lower down on the rt. bank of the Lahn is another spring Geilnau. 300,000 bottles of the water are exported annually: it is very like that of Selters.

2 m. Baldunstein Stat. (Inn, Noll's). Behind the village of 600 Inhab. is the castle of Baldunstein, built 1319 by Archbp. Baldwin of Trèves, a picturesque object, and formerly important from its position barring the valley. A good road (Omnibus, Wed. and Sat.) leads hence up the Lahnthal to the castle of Schaumburg (good Inn near the castle), once the residence of the princes of Anhalt-Schaumburg, extinct since 1812. It was rebuilt with great splendour by the late Archduke Stephen, and is now in the possession of the Oldenburg family.

The rly. is carried through the Tunnel of Cramberg to 3 m. Laurenburg Stat., ferry across to the village of 300 Inhab. Close to the river stand the ruins of the castle of Laurenburg, the cradle of the Nassau family, who bore the name of Counts of Laurenburg down to 1160. The founder of the family was Otto of Laurenburg, brother of King Conrad I. About $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. distant are silver and lead mines near the large Protestant village of Holzappel (Inn, Löwe).

rt. Further on are the village of Obernhof, and the small but very perfect old castle of Langenau, with its walls, gates, towers, and external fortifications complete, but filled with vile modern buildings, seated on a flat which seems to have been once an island.

1. The Premonstratensian Abbey of Arnstein—founded in 1139, secularised in 1803—stands conspicuous on the side of a mountain, opposite Langenau, and presents a many-windowed picturesque front. It was the feudal seat of a long line of counts, the last of whom, Louis of Arnstein, having no son, married and portioned off his 7 daughters, dividing among them a part of his estates; then converting his castle into a convent, he endowed it with the rest of his property, and finally became a monk himself. It is now a Penitentiary for Rom. Cath. Priests! There are no remains of the original castle. The Church is entire; its 2 towers date from 1359.

When the Lahn is low, it is fordable opposite to Arnstein; at other times those who come from Nassau must cross by the ferry at Obernhof, higher up.

6 m. Nassau Stat. (Inns: Krone; Müller's)—a small ancient town of 1500 Inhab. A chain bridge crosses the Lahn, on the l. bank of which rises the old and picturesque Castle of Nassau, the cradle (Stammschloss) of the Nassau family. It was built by a Count of Laurenburg in 1101. In the 13th cent. the family divided into 2 branches, from the elder of which springs the present Duke of Nassau, while the younger is represented by the King of the Netherlands. The castle stands on the summit of a conical rock, and a little lower down is the less extensive ruin of the Castle of Stein, the baronial seat of another very ancient family, who have held for 500 years their estates and castle on the banks of the Lahn. The modern schloss, situated in the valley hard by, is also shown to strangers, and contains ancient armour, trophies of war, and other curiosities. Stein is now the property of Count Kielmansegge, son-in-law of the enlightened and patriotic Prussian minister, whom Napoleon contemptuously designated "Un nommé Stein." He had the merit of introducing into the Prussian government those reforms which have contributed largely to raise that country to its present eminence. Baron Stein (died 1831), the last male of his family, is buried at the village of Frücht, 3 m. S.W. of Ems, and a monument erected to him, 1872, below the castle.

Agreeable and easy paths have been cut through the woods leading to and around these 2 ruins. The views from them, and from the Gothic tower erected by Baron Stein on a commanding point, are as pleasing as the ruins themselves are picturesque. Strangers are freely permitted to roam about and enjoy themselves in these grounds.

There is a very agreeable walk from Nassau to Ems up the valley of Diene-thal, and by Sulzbach, on the S. side of the Lahn.

The beauties of the Lahn valley continue upwards beyond Arnstein and Limburg along banks decorated with picturesque castles in ruins, and smiling industrious villages.

From Nassau the road to Schwalbach (in Rte. 95) ascends a steep hill, and quits the Lahn. The view from the height, looking down upon it and its castles, is most beautiful; but after that, adieu to picturesque scenes. The road passes over a bleak tract of high land, very scantily peopled, the villages and habitations in general being snugly nestled in the narrow and steep ravines which intersect in all directions this upper country.

The Rly. from Nassau crosses the Lahn, and continues to follow its windings, passing on rt. the picturesque village of Dausenau (a pleasant walk over the hills from Ems), with its old walls and tower, and crossing the mouths of the pretty valleys of the Wiesbach and the Rosselbach to 5 m. Ems Stat., l. bank of Lahn.

Inns:—H. de Russie, good, near the centre of the town; *H. d'Angleterre, at the W. end of Ems, comfortable for families; H. Vier Thürme (same landlord), connected with the Baths, frequented by English, dear; Darmstädter Hof (Post), near the Old Kurhaus; Vier Jahreszeiten; and Europäischer Hof, near the Kursaal. On the l. bank of the Lahn: H. Gutenberg, in a pleasant garden, good and quiet; Kurhaus, Government establishment, fixed tariff: one-third cheaper from Sept. 1 to June 15. Best table-d'hôte.

Tables-d'hôte at 1 in all the hotels, and in the Kurhaus; also at 4 or 5 P.M., chiefly for the English.

Lodging-houses: Pariser Hof; Mainzer Haus, on the l. bank of the Lahn, quiet; Prince of Wales; Panorama, good, on the S. side of the river, and therefore preferable in hot weather; H. Langenau, very good; pension and bed, 4 mks. a day; Burg Gutenfels; Schloss Johannisberg; Sans Souci; Villa Balzer; Mön- repos; Fortune; Flora, &c. The houses on the l. bank of the Lahn are cheaper and quieter than those on the rt.

This watering-place, with a permanent pop. of 5500, is very prettily situated on the banks of the Lahn, the older part hemmed in between it and the cliffs of the Bäderlei, and a more modern and airy quarter spreading out over the open ground on the l. bank. It is neither town nor village, but a collection of lodging-houses with the Kurhaus in the midst. In front of them runs the high road, and between it and the river a long narrow strip of garden, forming a sort of terrace by the river-side, and serving as a promenade for the guests. A band plays here during the season usually from 7 to 8½ A.M., and from 6 to 8 P.M., when the guests digest their potations of spa-water. Six o'clock in the afternoon is the hour at which Ems appears in full glory: all the world is then abroad, the promenade is crowded with visitors of all nations, and some of the highest rank, in the gayest costume. Those who are ambitious to extend their walks beyond this, unless they confine themselves to the borders of the beautiful Lahn, must begin immediately to ascend, so near at hand are the hills.

Along both sides of the river, squadrons of donkeys are posted with their drivers. By their assistance every visitor has the means of scaling the heights, and of exploring the beautiful scenery with which the neighbourhood abounds. Every donkey is numbered; and on fine afternoons the asses of reputation, strength, and beauty, being in great request, are usually engaged beforehand.

A printed tariff fixes the charges for all the usual excursions around Ems, whether on horses or asses, or in carriages.

Ems is hot in summer, from being so shut in with hills; but the woods around afford shade, and in a quarter of an hour the tops of the hills may be scaled, whence the rambler may enjoy the purest breezes and the most expanded views over the Rheinland. The rich woods which cover the sides of the vale of the Lahn, and the verdant pastures which form its banks, give Ems a more pleasing aspect than Schwalbach, which is surrounded by naked round-backed hills, with few trees upon them.

The principal building is the very handsome Kursaal, built 1844, at the side of the Lahn: it contains a café, and a ball-room, supported on marble columns, in which weekly balls are given. It is open at all times, gratuitously to strangers. Within it is a Theatre where French plays are acted. Also Concerts of first-rate music.

Immediately under the Old Kurhaus rise 2 of the principal Springs, the Kesselbrunnen (116° Fahr.) and the Kränchenquelle, the waters of which are used for drinking, and likewise supply the baths. Girls (Brunnen Mädchen) distribute the water to the drinkers.

An elegant open hall connects this building with the Kursaal. During the season it is occupied by itinerant shopkeepers from all parts of the Continent, who here display their wares in a sort of bazaar.

In the lower storey of the Kurhaus are the Baths, tickets for a certain number of which are purchased beforehand. The Badmeister fixes the hour for taking them, which should be punctually kept, or the bather may lose his turn.

The most comfortable Baths are those in the Neues Badhaus on the l. bank of the Lahn, erected 1854, connected with the walks on the other side by a covered Suspension Bridge. The building forms 2 quadrangles, the courts being gardens. The water is pumped up by steam from 2 mineral springs rising within the building.

The waters of Ems were known as early as the time of the Romans, who called the place Embasis. They are warm, and are furnished by 2 springs, having respectively a temperature of 23° and 37° Réaumur, and are considered peculiarly efficacious in female complaints. They are agreeable to the palate and easy of digestion. The springs rise out of the grauwacke rock, which forms the substratum of the surrounding hill.

The waters are taken in the morning before breakfast, and after dinner. From 3 to 6 goblets in the early part of the day, and 1 or 2 in the afternoon, are the usual allowance.

Nearly everybody, high or low, dines here at the table-d'hôte; the dinner hour is 1 o'clock; after which the company adjourn and take coffee on the walks, listening to the music, or amusing themselves in walking or riding.

The society at Ems is usually more select than that at Schwalbach, Wiesbaden, or Baden-Baden. It is on the whole a quiet place, but dear. The season begins in May, and is generally over by the middle of September. The number of visitors in the season amounts to 8000: in 1823 there were only 1200.

Physicians.—Dr. Geisse and Dr. Soest both speak English; Dr. Vogler and Dr. Busch reside here.

English Ch. Service on Sunday 11 A.M. and 6 P.M. in the English Church, l. bank of the Lahn.

The walks over and among the hills near Ems, for instance, up the Bäderlei, to the Schweitzer Haus (a pleasant café, commanding fine views), to the Forsthaus, to the Lindenbach Valley, by the silver-smelting furnace, to the ruined castle of Sporkenburg, to Baldenstein, and in general up and down the Lahn, are very agreeable, and afford many unrivalled prospects. For short walks, you may choose the Marien-Weg, on the further side of the Lahn, or the Henrietten-Weg, and Mooshut, overlooking Ems, whence there is a fine view.

Kemmenau is a fine point of view at the top of the mountain behind Ems. The Roman rampart called Pfahlgraben (see under Wiesbaden, Rte. 95) passes along the crest of the hills above Kemmenau, and, descending into the valley of the Lahn, crosses that river near Ems, and proceeds towards Heinrichshof.

Braubach, on the rly. to Coblenz, and the Castle of Marksburg, on the Rhine, distant about 7 m., will form a pleasant day's excursion. (See Rte. 38.) The carriage-road runs past the Forsthaus; a footpath at the back of Heinrichshof leads through the wood to Becheln.

The castles of Nassau and Stein (see above, Nassau Stat.), 6 m. higher up the Lahn valley, on the high road to Limburg, serve as the rendezvous of many a picnic party. The Convent of Arnstein, and the Chapel of Winden, both commanding beautiful views, and only 3 m. above Nassau, may be visited on the same day from Ems.

From Ems the line continues along the l. bank of the Lahn to 7 m. Oberlahnstein Junct. Stat., where the Rly. on the rt. bank of the Rhine (Rte. 95) is joined to 4 m. Coblenz Stat., described in Rte. 37.

ROUTE 97.

THE TAUNUS MOUNTAINS, FROM WIESBADEN TO FRANKFURT, BY EPPSTEIN, KÖNIGSTEIN, SODEN, AND HOMBURG.

This eastern portion of the Taunus range is included within a triangle drawn between the towns of Wiesbaden, Frankfurt, and Homburg, and will well repay those who may be tempted to explore it, for it presents in its narrow pastoral valleys, clear purling streams, and wooded heights, scenery of the utmost beauty, differing from that nearer to the Rhine in its character of sylvan solitude, and perhaps surpassing it in variety.

There is a carriage-road direct from Wiesbaden to Königstein through Eppstein, though it is bad in some places, as between Nauroth and Bremthal, after wet weather.

Plan of a Carriage Tour from Homburg. To Königstein 2 hrs. (visit Königstein Schloss and Falkenstein); through the valleys of Fischbach, Eppstein, and Lorsbach, returning to Königstein, under the hills by Soden, in about 3 hrs.; or, instead of returning by Soden, you may continue on to Wiesbaden.

Pedestrians may explore the finest parts of this fertile and picturesque hill-country district in 2 days, by adopting the following course. Take the Taunus Railway from Wiesbaden (see Rte. 95) to Hattersheim Stat. (Omnibus to Eppstein and Idstein, see Rte. 95), walk thence to Hofheim (2 m.), ascend to the chapel ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.'s walk) to Eppstein (5 m.), visit the castle;—to Königstein (5 m.). In the evening explore the castle, and Falkenstein. Early next morning ascend the less and greater Feldberg (5 m.), then walk to the Alt-könig (4 m.), back to Königstein (4 m.), dine there. In the afternoon take the diligence to Soden, whence a branch railway runs to Höchst Junct. Stat. (see Rte. 95).

From Hattersheim Stat. (Inns: Schützenhof, Nassauer Hof) a tolerable country road, but destitute of shade, turns off to the N.W., and leads to the pretty village of Hofheim (2 m. Krone). The chapel on the height commands a view which will well repay the trouble of ascending to it. The valley of Lorsbach, above Hofheim, as far as Eppstein (5 m.), is very beautiful indeed.

Eppstein (Inn, The Oil Mill, dear) is delightfully situated at the junction of 4 valleys. The wild and sequestered village is wedged in a narrow defile between rocks and mountains. The massy towers and donjons of the old baronial castle, perched like an eagle's nest on the most accessible point of rock, overhang it.

The family of Eppstein was of high antiquity, several of its members were Archbishops of Mayence. One of them crowned the King Fredk. Barbarossa, at Aix-la-Chapelle, and afterwards was made Patriarch of Jerusalem. The line (Counts of Königstein) became extinct in 1535: several of their monuments still exist in the village Church. The Castle is cut off from the mountain by a deep dry trench, evidently artificial.

From Eppstein it is 4 hrs.' walk by Bremthal, Auringen, Hessloch, and Sonnenstein to Wiesbaden. The view from the Mahler Plätzchen at Eppstein is beautiful, and the ascent of the Rosser (1600 ft.) is best made from here.

Königstein is about 6 m. N.E. from Eppstein; the way thither lies through the pretty vale of Fischbach. "The whole landscape, the hanging woods, variously tinted by autumn, the jutting rocks, the sombre sequestered recesses in the glen, and the lonely stillness which pervaded the scene, sometimes reminded one of some of the least wild of Salvator's romantic scenes, or of the cool and lovely valleys of Gaspar Poussin."—Autumn near the Rhine. From Fischbach to Schneidhain the way lies across the open table-land—thence it ascends to Königstein (Inns: Stadt Amsterdam, good; the landlord has a trout-stream: Löwe or Post, has a garden attached to it). This village is on the high road from Frankfurt to Limburg. Above it, on the height, rises the ruined Castle of Königstein, a modern fortress with bastions and casemates, engrafted on a feudal stronghold of the Middle Ages, with battlements and watch-towers. It belonged formerly to the Counts of Falkenstein, and afterwards to the Barons of Eppstein; was taken by Gustavus Adolphus in the Thirty Years' War, and by the French, who dismantled it and blew up its works, in 1796. There is a fine view from it over the valleys of the Main and Rhine, while the neighbouring castles of Falkenstein and Kronberg are most picturesque objects in the foreground.

It is an agreeable walk hence to the Castle of Falkenstein, about a mile N.E. from Königstein. This bold and picturesque ruin is an imposing relic of a feudal stronghold and baronial residence of the days of chivalry, and the exquisite view from it renders it one of the most interesting points of the tour. It was the cradle (Stammhaus) of a noble family named Nuringen, before it was added to the possessions of the house of Nassau.

An excellent carriage-road goes from Königstein (Omnibus twice daily) to 3 m. S.E.

Soden Stat. (Branch Rly. S. to Höchst, see Rte. 95) (Inns: Europäischer Hof, good and moderate; H. Colosseus, good; Frankfurter Hof; Holländischer Hof). A watering-place, well provided with lodging-houses: brine-springs rise near it. Here is a handsome Kursaal with garden and pleasure-grounds attached, and many villas of Frankfurters in the neighbourhood.

Soden is 30 min. by rail from Frankfurt. By hiring a carriage here you may explore Königstein, Eppstein, Fischbach, and Lorsbach, in a few hrs.' drive, and return by rail in the evening to Frankfurt.

There is a good road down the hill from Königstein eastward to 2 m. Kronberg Stat. (Inn, Schützenhof). [Branch Rly. S.E. 7 m. to Rödelheim Junct. Stat. for (3 m.) Frankfurt (see below)]. This village, of about 2500 Inhab., is prettily situated, surrounded by orchards and nursery gardens. Here is another ruined Castle; its owners, a knightly family, were engaged in constant feuds with the city of Frankfurt. 1 m. from Kronberg is Bad Kronthal; quiet Kurhaus and good chalybeate springs.

The Great Feldberg, the highest of the Taunus mountains, rises immediately to the N. of Falkenstein and Kronberg. The summit, 2600 ft. above the sea, is accessible for carriages, and is about 3 m. distant. It commands one of the most extensive panoramic views to be met with in N. Germany, including the Rhine and Main, the great cities and towns on their banks as far as Strassburg, whose spire is said to be visible in clear weather, and the mountain ranges of the Black Forest, Vosges, Donnersberg, Odenwald, and Taunus.

A huge fragment of quartz rock at the top of the Feldberg is called Brune-hilda's bed, from a tradition that a beautiful Frankish queen of that name took refuge here from her enemies. Upon the Altkönig (2400 ft.), the nearest neighbour S.E. and the mountain next in height to the Feldberg, are the remains of ancient intrenchments, of unknown origin, composed of vast heaps of stones piled up in circles.

There is a direct road and Rly. (see above) from Kronberg to Frankfurt; but the journey may be agreeably extended by continuing onwards through a pretty country, 1½ hr.'s walk to

Ober-Ursel Stat., on the Rly. from Frankfurt (see below), where the old Gothic Ch. is curious, and thence to Homburg Stat.

Inns: Victoria, perhaps the best house for English, comfortable; table-d'hôte at 5; H. Quatre Saisons; H. Bellevue, overlooking the gardens; H. de Russie; H. de l'Europe, good table-d'hôte at 1 and 5; H. d'Angleterre, well situated; Hessischer Hof, moderate. 2nd-class Inns: Adler, plain, but clean and moderate; Eisenbahn H., close to Rly.

The rent of good lodgings in good situations varies from 100 to 180 mks. per week for 3 or 4 rooms; and for large apartments 180 to 200 mks. are charged, and from 9 to 12 mks. for a single bedroom, from June to Sept. House-rent has risen considerably. A small tax (Cur-tax) is paid by visitors to keep up the park, &c. The newest and best houses are on the Promenade.

This town of 5000 Inhab. is prettily situated on a breezy table-land (600 ft.), and nearly girded by a chain of wooded picturesque hills formed by the projections of the Taunus. It consists of a long main street stretching up the hill from the Rly. Stat., and composed mostly of hotels, with on one side the wells and the Kursaal, and on the other at the end the Château or Schloss. The discovery of Mineral Springs, partly by boring Artesian wells, has converted Homburg, since 1844, into a frequented watering-place. The waters are very valuable in cases of disordered liver and stomach, gout and nervous affections. There are 5 springs: the Elisabethbrunnen, the most popular, and compared with the Rakoczy at Kissingen. It contains more carbonic acid than any other saline spa known, and on that account sits lightly on the dyspeptic stomach; the Stahlbrunnen, the strongest, and like the ferruginous water of Spa; Kaiserbrunnen, similar to the Carlsbad water; Badesquelle, a salt spring like that of Kreuznach; and Ludwigsbrunnen, a mild harmless water like Seltzer, but more saline, which anyone may drink. Dr. Lewis is the resident English physician. The women who distribute the water have no wages, and depend on the liberality of visitors.

On the reputation of these waters some French gaming speculators (MM. Blanc) built in 1843, at a cost of 20,000*l.*, a Kurhaus, one of the most splendid in Germany, decorated internally with frescoes, &c., by artists from Munich. It contains halls, dining (table-d'hôte at 1 and 5, much frequented), coffee, and smoking rooms; also a reading room, where English and foreign papers and periodicals are taken in. One of the wings contains a handsome large Theatre, in which performances of Italian opera take place in summer.

English Church opposite the rly. stat., where service is performed on Sundays by a resident clergyman, 11 A.M. and 3.30 P.M. The Roman Catholic church was formerly the French Reformed church. The synagogue has been built since 1860.

The chief building is the gloomy Palace, or Schloss, of the former Landgrave of Hesse Homburg, built 1680, extended 1835, and now fitted up for the Imperial family. Its lofty detached tower, 120 ft., in the principal court is a remnant of a former building, and commands a fine view. Over the inner gateway is an equestrian figure of Prince Frederick of Hessen-Homburg, who by a bold charge decided the victory of Fehrbellin (1675) over the Swedes for the Great Elector of Brandenburg. It contains a collection of Roman antiquities dug up on the Saalburg, 5 m. off. The gardens immediately attached to the castle were laid out in the style of English pleasure-grounds by the Landgravine Elizabeth (daughter of George III.). Between these and the foot of the Taunus extends a long avenue of fine Lombardy poplars.

Parallel with the main street, extends the Park, prettily laid out with shady paths, groves and flower-beds. Here rise the mineral springs. The waters are drunk at the sources in the open air, and this is the resort, morning and evening, of all the fashionable world, when the band plays. For rainy weather there is a covered promenade and conservatory. Homburg is said to have lost much of its gaiety since the suppression in 1872 of gaming and the general desertion of its French visitors, but it is again "as flourishing as in the wicked old days of high play and low dresses" ('Times'). On the slopes of the hills are many pleasant walks and drives cut through the woods which clothe the sides of the Taunus. Upon the death of its last Landgrave, in 1866, Homburg fell to Hessen-Darmstadt, which was compelled the same year to yield it to Prussia.

Excursions.—

(a) 5 m. N. is the Saalburg; ruins of a large Roman castellum (excavated 1852), a member of the great line of defences—"Limes Imperii Romani"—raised against incursions of the Germans by Drusus and strengthened by Germanicus. It is reached by a long strait road, which commands a good view over Rhineland. Though extending over several acres, the ruins are reduced to the foundations of walls, and are surrounded by a double fosse. Within, the foundations of the Prætorium, 163 ft. by 140 ft., are laid bare.

(b) The salt-works of Nauheim (see Rte. 70), with the interesting boiling fountain, are distant 1½ hr.'s drive N.E. from Homburg. The road runs through Friedberg Stat. (Schnellpost thither 10 m. in 2 hrs. daily).

(c) Usingen, 9 m. to the N., is a pretty drive; Schnellpost twice daily in 2¼ hrs., and thence N. to Weilburg Stat. (See Rte. 96.)

(d) Bonames Stat., on the Rly. from Frankfurt to Giessen (Rte. 70), is 3 m. E.

Rly. from Homburg to Frankfurt, S. 11 m., 8 trains daily in 40 min. through

2 m. Ober-Ursel Stat. (Inn: Schützenhof), see above.

2 m. Weisskirchen Stat. In the neighbouring Stierstadt numerous Roman vestiges have been found.

3 m. Rödelheim Junct. Stat. on the Nidda. (Branch Rly. to N.W. 7 m. Kronberg. See above.)

The line crosses the Nidda, and turning E. joins the Taunus Rly. to 4 m. Frankfurt. See Rte. 95.

ROUTE 98.

BINGEN TO FRANKFURT-ON-THE-MAIN,
BY INGELHEIM AND MAYENCE.—RAIL.

Distance, 41 m.; time, 1½ to 2¼ hrs.; 10 trains
daily.

Bingen is described in Rte. 38.

There are 2 rlys. from Bingen to Mayence; one along the rt. bank of the Rhine, the most interesting, described in Rtes. 38 and 95; and the following on the l. bank.

On quitting Bingen Stat. it skirts the base of the Rochusberg, but soon diverges from the borders of the river and proceeds E. to 7 m. Ingelheim Stat. (Inn: Löwe). A busy village with plaster and paper mills, about 1½ m. from the bank of the Rhine. Charlemagne loved to dwell here, and built himself (768 to 774) a magnificent palace, which he decorated with 100 columns of marble and porphyry, the spoils of Roman buildings, and with rich mosaics, sent to him by Pope Hadrian from Ravenna for that purpose. The site of the edifice is now occupied by mud hovels and dung-heaps, and partly by a Jews' burying-ground. It stood near the smaller of the two churches—the one nearest to Mayence; and the only relics remaining of it are a few mutilated fragments of pillars within the church, and a column of granite inserted in a corner of an old ruined gateway. The palace was destroyed in the 30 Years' War, and in the French invasion of 1689. Some fragments have been removed to Paris, Mayence, and Heidelberg. In the church is also shown the monument of one of Charlemagne's 4 wives—a rudely carved stone, on which a female figure, crowned and in regal attire, is discernible. The Gothic ornaments round the stone indicate clearly that it is of a much later time than the reign of Charlemagne. At Ingelheim in 1105 the Emp. Henry IV. was forced to sign his own abdication.

The red wine of Ingelheim is very tolerable.

On the post-road near the village stands a small obelisk erected by the French, bearing the inscription, "Route de Charlemagne, terminée en l'an I. du règne de Napoléon." From the rly., a little further on, the view is charming, extending over the Rhine, through the whole of the Rheingau, as far as the distant range of the Taunus.

9 m. Mombach Stat., opposite Biebrich. The railway now returns to the Rhine, and runs by its side, and through the fortifications to

2 m. Mayence Junct. Stat., described in Rte. 38.

From Mayence the Hessische Ludwigs-Bahn turns sharply E., and a fine view of the junction of the Main with the Rhine is obtained as the line crosses the latter river by a permanent bridge of iron lattice, 1212 ft. long, of 4 great spans, and 16 smaller land arches, constructed 1862, to the Mainspitz, or tongue of land between Main and Rhine. On it are remains of a star fort erected by Gustavus Adolphus, not far from a modern bomb-proof fort, which commands both rivers.

4 m. Bischofsheim Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E. 16 m. to Darmstadt in Rte. 105.]

The line continues through a country of inferior interest to that on the opposite bank, and joining the Darmstadt line crosses the Main to 17 m. Frankfurt-on-the-Main, described in Rte. 95.

By this Railway a large part of the Prussian army was carried to Mayence in 1870, on the invasion of France.

ROUTE 99.

BINGERBRÜCK TO METZ, viâ KREUZNACH AND SAARBRÜCKEN [VALE OF THE NAHE].—RAIL.

Distance, 136 m.; time, 5 to 6½ hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Bingerbrück and Bingen are described in Rte. 38.

The Terminus is on the l. bank of the Nahe, close to the Rhenish Rly. Stat. of Bingerbrück, about 2 m. below Bingen. The most beautiful scenery of the Nahe is confined to the vicinity of Kreuznach and Oberstein.

The Nahe, after a course of 60 m., pours itself into the Rhine at Bingen, through a portal formed by the Rochusberg on the rt. side, and the Rupertsberg on the l., and the railroad proceeds S. along the l. bank of the Nahe, passing the villages of Münster, Laubenheim, and Brezenheim, to 9 m. Kreuznach Stat., 10 min. distant from town.

[In summer trains stop also at a 2nd stat. (Bad Kreuznach) 1 m. further and near the Bath Houses.] (Inns: Pfälzer Hof, next the Post-office; Adler; both in the town; Berliner Hof, near the Bath Island;—Boarding Houses or Hotels for persons taking the waters: Oranienhof, Englischer Hof, Rheinstein, Kauzenberg, Holländischer Hof).

This thriving town of 12,900 Inhab., belonging since 1815 to Prussia, in a picturesque situation, has risen into great repute as a watering-place since 1840, on account of its mineral waters, which contain iodine, and especially bromine, in larger proportions than any other known, and are singularly efficacious for female complaints, and in cases of scrofula. The number of visitors already exceeds 6000 annually.

The springs rise in and near an island in the Nahe, close to the bridge. Here stands the Kurhaus, or assembly and reading-rooms, around which invalids collect morning and evening, to drink the water of the Elisen Brunnen, under the shade of acacias and poplars.

Here are also Brine Baths, the brine (Mutterlauge) being used sometimes with the mineral water combined.

The ruined choir of the picturesque Church, near the bridge (date 1332), was fitted up (1857) for the English Service.

A good view of Kreuznach may be had from the pleasure-ground on the top of the Schlossberg, rising on the l. bank of the Nahe, and crowned by the ruined castle of Kauzenberg, which belonged to the Counts of Sponheim from the 13th to the 15th cent., afterwards to the Electors Palatine, and blown up by the French in 1689. In 1632 Kreuznach was taken by assault by Gustavus Adolphus. A party of English volunteers serving under him was most instrumental in its capture. The attack was led by Lord Craven, the champion of the Queen of Bohemia; and not only he, but every English officer present, was wounded on this occasion.

Bookseller.—Voigtländer; has also a Reading Room, with English papers.

Physicians.—Dr. Engelman speaks English, &c.

At the bazaar on the island great display of agates, the produce of Oberstein, &c.

Excursions from Kreuznach—

(1) To the (1¼ hr.) Gans, (½ hr.) Rheingrafenstein (carriage-road to the top), and (½ hr.) Ebernburg, all three points of view described below.

(2) To the (3½ hrs.) Ruins of Montfort, (2 hrs.) Rothenfels (finest view of all, see below), (1¼ hr.) Altenbrumberg.

(3) To the castles of (3 hrs.) Disibodenberg.

(4) And Dhaun, both best reached by railway; see below. To the Alzensthal and the Donnersberg (see Rte, 101),

The Rly. on quitting Kreuznach Stat. crosses the Nahe, passing in sight of The Salinen, or Salt-works, of Theodorshall, 1 m. above Kreuznach; and on the rt. bank those of Karlshall (Inn: H. Rees), belonging to the Grand Duke of Hessen-Darmstadt. They consist of a collection of very long sheds, filled with faggots, through which the salt water is made to trickle, after being raised by pumps, in order to evaporate it, and convert it into saturated brine, fit for the boiling-house. The springs naturally contain but $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of saline particles, which require to be raised to 18 per cent. to convert it into saturated brine. From Theodorshall it is about $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the top of the Rothenfels, a porphyry ridge embracing a grand panorama.

3 m. Münster-am-Stein Junct. Stat. (Kurhaus, kept by Schmuck, good; Löwe), is another extensive salt-work belonging to Prussia, and a growing place, with bathing establishment, and warm salt-spring, built on a flat, nearly encircled by the Nahe, at the foot of the magnificent precipice of red porphyry, 420 ft. high, which is crowned by the Castle of Rheingrafenstein, an ancient stronghold of the Rheingraves, destroyed by the French in 1689. It is literally perched, like an eagle's nest, on a pinnacle of the rock, and is accessible from the salt-works by a ferry and a very steep foot-path, but more easily by descending upon it from the hill above. The modern schloss and farm-house have been built by the Prince of Solms-Braunfels. From a neighbouring and still higher peak, 1070 ft. above the Nahe, called the Gans (Goose), the best view over the Nahe is obtained. [Branch Rly. S. 30 m. through Ebernberg and Altenbamberg to Hochspeyer Junct. Stat. on rly. between Mannheim and Kaiserslautern (Rte. 101).]

[$\frac{3}{4}$ m. N.E. of the Rheingrafenstein, at the junction of the Alsenz with the Nahe, rises Ebernburg (above the stat. on the branch line from Münster-am-Stein, see above), a castle which belonged to Franz of Sickingen, the last of the knights errant, the terror of Worms and Frankfurt, who, though but a simple knight, besieged the cities of Metz and Trèves with an army of 12,000 men, bidding defiance to the Emperor. In this stronghold he sheltered from persecution many of the early Reformers, who were his bosom friends. Melanchthon, Bucer, and Œcolampadius, took refuge here under his roof; and Ulrich von Hutten composed several of his works in this retreat. Its defences were so much augmented and strengthened, that it was thought capable of bidding defiance even to the armies of the Empire. After Sickingen's death, however, his castle, though stoutly defended at first, was at length surrendered to the Hessian Landgrave and the Archbishop of Trèves, who carried off all the spoils, and then burnt it. The castle is turned into an Inn. The valley of the Alsenz contains some picturesque scenes and several ruined castles. Near Obermoschel, an interesting place with fair Inn, is the quicksilver-mine of Landsberg, now unproductive. Between Obermoschel and Meissenheim there are coal-mines, which extend all the way from the Glan to the borders of the Alsenz; the quicksilver is also situated in the coal formation.]

The rly. now turns W., and runs at the foot of the porphyry cliff of the Rothenfels, and through two tunnels to 6 m. Waldböckelheim Stat. 2 m. N. of this is the Castle of Sponheim, the cradle of a noble old Rhenish family, extinct 1437. Here also is the famous Benedictine Abbey of Sponheim, founded by the Counts of Sponheim in the 11th cent.

2 m. Staudernheim Stat. (Inn: Salmen). Near this to the l. lie the extensive ruins of the convent of Dissibodenberg, founded by an Irish monk (Dissibodus), who preached the Gospel in this district in the 6th cent.

A little below Sobernheim the Nahe receives the waters of the Glan.

2 m. Sobernheim Stat. (Inn: Ad- ler), an old walled town, Pop. 2700. In the 10th cent. the inhabitants, aided by the Pope, who granted them an indulgence of 2 years, built a bridge over the Nahe; since then the river has changed its bed, and left the bridge on dry land.

2 m. Monzingen Stat. (Inn: Pflug., good wine grows here). Beyond this, at Martinstein, a basin-shaped valley opens out, at whose extremity rise the majestic 12th-cent. ruins of the (2½ hrs.) Castle of Dhaun, commanding a fine view. A path leads down from them, past the village of Dhaun and Johannisberg, into the Nahe valley again, in about 4 m. to 6 m. Kirn Stat. (Buffet) (Inns: Post; Stroh). A little town of 3000 Inhab., with a curious old Church (tabernacle and monuments of Pfalzgraves). Above it rises the Castle of Kyrburg (Restaurant). The scenery of the vale of the Nahe from the Castle of Dhaun to Oberstein is magnificent.

The Nahe has been bridged several times for the rly. before it reaches 9 m. Oberstein Stat., at some distance from the town (Inns: Heindls, on the rt. bank; Post, on the l. bank of the Nahe). One of the dirtiest small towns it is possible to conceive. "It is very picturesque from its old ruined wooden buildings, and beautifully situated on the Nahe, shut in by high and romantic cliffs, chiefly of porphyry or amygdaloid, abounding in agates and crystals. The agate quarries, $\frac{3}{4}$ m. above Idar, are much less productive than formerly, and their exhaustion has given rise to the importation of other half-precious stones, of finer quality, from the East Indies and Brazil (Prov. Rio Grande), in the rough, which are here cut and polished by means of grinding-stones of red sandstone, moved by water-wheels in numerous small mills scattered along the neighbouring streams. There are large polishing mills at Idar (2 m. N.W. Omnibus 4 times daily in 20 min.). Mr. Wild is one of the principal dealers. Close to Oberstein are 2 fine precipitous isolated rocks. On the summit of each are remains of an ancient castle. Immediately under one of them in the face of the precipice, about $\frac{1}{2}$ of its height, above the valley, a large cavity has been hollowed out, in which the ancient Lutheran church may be said to be embedded."—T. T. It is approached by stairs cut in the rock. One side is built up with a wall of masonry, in which are 2 large windows to light the interior. A spring of water gushes out of the floor.

The locality is interesting to the mineralogist, as, in addition to very fine and large agates, the porphyry rocks here furnish many other rare minerals and crystals, as chabasite, harmotome, &c.

Oberstein belongs to the distant duchy of Oldenburg. The territory on the opposite side of the river formerly belonged to Saxe-Coburg, but has been sold to Prussia.

The difficulties in making the rly. above Oberstein were very great: 20 bridges and 10 tunnels occur between Fischbach and Birkenfeld, and in several places the bed of the Nahe has been turned.

10 m. Birkenfeld Stat. 3 m. from the town. Omnibus 5 times daily in 35 min. (Inn: Emmerich's.) This is the chief town (2500 Inhab.) of the modern principality of that name, and belongs to Oldenburg.

The line attains an elevation of 1310 ft. above the sea at 3 m. Türkismühle Stat., whence it descends in the Vale of the Saar.

9 m. St. Wendel Stat. (Inns: Jochum; Engel). An old town on the Blies, 4000 Inhab., with a fine 14th-cent. Gothic Church.

5 m. Ottweiler Stat. A long tunnel to 4 m. Neunkirchen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Jochum's). A central point of this important coal and iron district. Here are the enormous iron-works of M. Stumm, employing 6000 to 8000 men.

[Branch Rly. S.E. 8 m. to Homburg

Junct. Stat., thence to Mannheim, &c. See Rte. 103.] The line continues S.W. to 9 m. Dudweiler Stat., about 1 m. E. of which is a seam of coal which has been on fire since 1710. It is called "der brennende Berg," and was described by Göthe in the 'Wahrheit und Dichtung, 1770.'

The aspect of the country becomes prettier as the line approaches

3 m. Saarbrücken Junct. Stat. (Buffet), some distance N. of the towns of St. Johann on rt. bank and Saarbrücken on l. bank of the Saar. Omnibus to the Hotels.

St. Johann (Inns: Zimmerman's H.; H. Guepratte, good; Rheinischer Hof). Saarbrücken (Inn: Post).

The joint Pop. is 17,000, and two bridges over the here navigable Saar connect Saarbrücken with St. Johann, a town dating from A.D. 623. The important industries of the place, as the centre of a great coal basin producing about 3 million tons per annum, and employing upwards of 14,000 workmen, besides large numbers engaged in the extensive iron and glass works scattered about the neighbourhood, were first developed by Count William Henry, who died in 1768 after building the Schloss, which down to 1793 was the residence of the Counts of Nassau-Saarbrücken. From 1801 to 1816 the place was in possession of the French, and then fell to Prussia. Both towns are irregularly built and have little architectural interest, but higher up the valley of the Saar, 1½ m. (25 min. by the road) S.E. of Saarbrücken, is the fine Gothic Ch. of St. Arnual, built in 1315, and in a good state of preservation, with 21 interesting monuments of the Nassau-Saarbrücken family.

This place became the opening scene of the late Franco-German war, owing to the French frontier up to 1871 projecting northwards so as to take in the wooded heights situated 2 m. to the S. and commanding the town.

On Aug. 2, 1870, the French 2nd

Corps d'Armée under Frossard, numbering 28,000 men, with 90 guns, and acting as the advanced guard of the army of the Rhine, descended from the height and occupied Saarbrücken, on which occasion the Prince Imperial received his so-called "Baptism of Fire" whilst watching the shelling of St. Johann and the Rly. Stat. by a battery posted on the Review Ground overlooking the town. The spot where he and the late Emperor Napoleon III. stood is marked by the Lulu-Stein, now nearly carried away by relic hunters.

The Prussian force, consisting of an infantry battalion and 3 squadrons of lancers, evacuated St. Johann, but on the 5th returned in strength, and the French, in consequence of the news of the loss of the battle of Weissenburg the day before, withdrew to the heights of Spicheren (Speichern), intending to retreat further, but being followed up by the Germans, an outpost skirmish to maintain the touch swelled into the decisive engagement of Aug. 6, as Frossard was tempted to linger in his formidable and apparently impregnable position on the intrenched crest of the ridge, with his centre at the village of Spicheren, his rt. fronting St. Arnual, and his l. wing resting on Forbach.

The divisional commander Kamecke, with the slender advanced guard of Zastrow's 7th army corps crossing the Saar about 11 A.M., and occupying the Review Ground, at once drew upon himself the fire of the French artillery from the heights. This led to an advance across the open, and from 2 P.M. the N. side of the Rothe (Spicheren) Berg was four times stormed by the Germans before they could succeed in effecting a lodgment. This steep, almost perpendicular slope of 200 ft. is covered with graves, proving the severe nature of the struggle each time the fusilier battalions of the 74th and 40th regiments (obs. the monument erected by the latter on the highest point) made the attempt to ascend in the teeth of the murderous Chassepots of the 10th Chasseurs lining the top.

At 3 P.M. the sound of the firing brought Goeben with the advanced guard of the 8th army corps, and about the same time Alvensleben hurried up all the cavalry and infantry of the 2nd army corps which were within his reach. At 6 Zastrow arrived and assumed the further direction of the fight, so that by 7 P.M. when Steinmetz himself, the commander of the 1st army, was on the ground, a strong diversion under cover of batteries posted on the Galgen, the Winterberg (monument erected on top, 1873), and the Folsterhöhe, had been made through the woods on the rt. flank of the French. This diversion enabled the battalions struggling on the edge of the Rothe Berg to hold their ground, and coupled with a turning movement effected by occupying Styring, the neighbouring glass and iron works and the rly. embankment, and so threatening the French rear and their communications with Forbach, compelled Frossard to withdraw; for, in striking contrast to the prompt support afforded by the Germans to each other, the divisions of Bazaine's army corps which should have advanced to cover Frossard's l. wing, were throughout the day marched and counter-marched in rear of the position without ever reaching the field of battle. The loss of the French in killed and wounded was 4078, that of the Germans was greater, being 4866, including General von François and 194 officers.

The excursion on foot, Guide (quite unnecessary) 3 mks., to the heights will take about 3 hrs., including the Luku-Stein on the Review Ground; the (1 m.) Ehrenthal, passed on the road to the Spicheren Berg, and filled with handsome monuments to the fallen; and the descent from the heights through the steep narrow defile, in which a number of single graves show where the Germans dropped in little groups under the plunging artillery fire, to the old Toll-house where the former frontier ran across the Metz road between it and the Inn, Goldne Bremm, which latter still bears carefully preserved marks of the fight.

Carriage for $\frac{1}{2}$ day 9 mks.

Railways from Saarbrücken, S. to Saargemünd Junct. Stat. for Strassburg, &c., N.W. to Trèves, &c. (see Rte. 100A), and S.W. the line to Metz proceeds W. a short distance, then curves sharply S. and crosses the Saar, passing on rt. the important smelting-furnaces of Stieringen Wendel, and on l. skirting the Spicheren heights, and the battle-field of the 6th Aug. The former French department of the Moselle in Lorraine is entered before reaching 6 m. Forbach Stat. An industrious town of 5691 Inhab., manufacturing cloth, leather, and glass, and the French custom-house down to 1871.

3 m. Benningen,—Merlenbach Junct. Stat. [Rly. E. to Saargemünd (Rte. 99B), thence to Saarburg and Strassburg, and N.W. in progress to Diedenhofen, completed as far as Carling.]

4 m. Oberhomburg Stat., prettily situated among wooded hills of red sandstone, intersected by numerous ravines.

28 m. Courcelles Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. in progress N.E. to Saarlouis, completed as far as 13 m. Bolchen Stat.] The line now skirts the S. edge of the battle-field of the 14th of Aug. 1870, the first of the series of struggles between the Germans and the French which arrested Bazaine in his attempted retreat with the army of the Rhine towards Verdun.

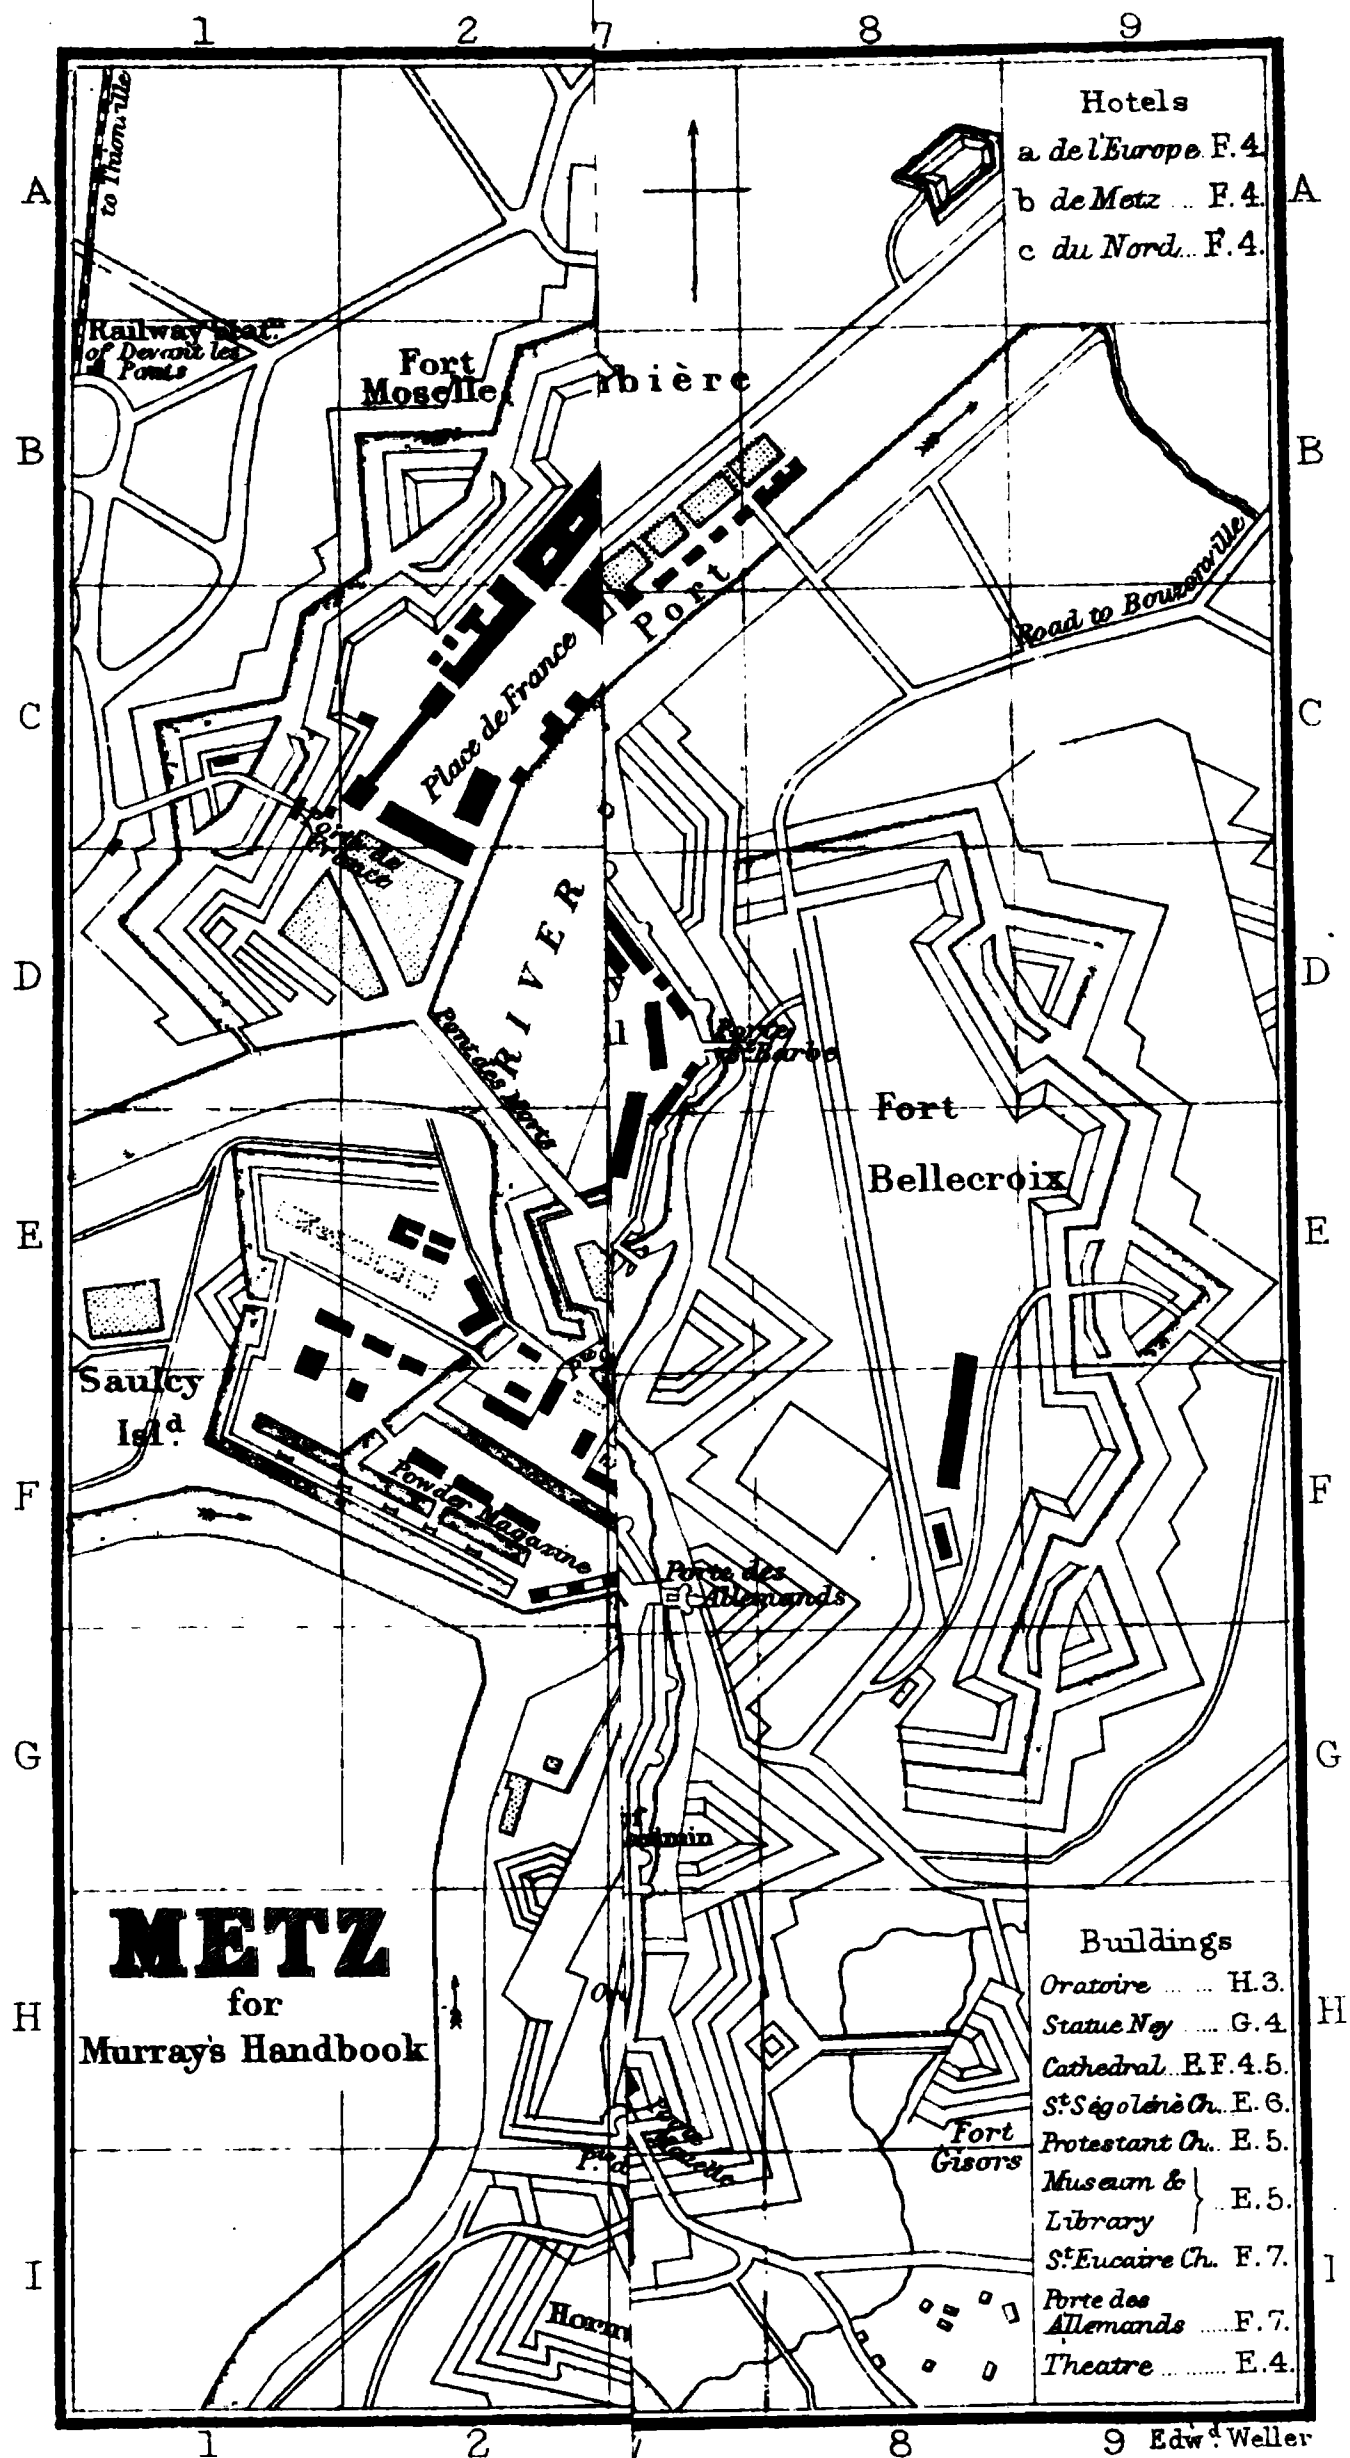

Fort Goeben is passed on the rt., and then the rly. crosses the Seille and turns N. up the plain of the Sablon to the S. side of the fortifications of 8 m. Metz Junct. Stat. (Buffet); omnibus from rly.

Inns: H. de l'Europe; H. de Metz, large hotels opposite one another in the Rue des Clercs, indifferent and dear; Post, in the same street, small and unpretending. Pop. 50,000.

N.B.—For fuller details as to Metz and the battles around it, see Rte. 181, Hndbk. for France.

This important frontier fortress, beautifully situated in a fertile valley, encircled for the most part by hills, at the junction of the little river Seille with the Mosel, was the Divodurum, or civitas Mediomatricorum of the Romans, and was the capital of Austrasia until absorbed in the dominions of Charlemagne. Greatly strengthened in its fortifications by Vauban and Belleisle, it became the chief town of the Département de la Moselle and the bulwark of France on its north-eastern frontier, until in Oct. 1870 the untoward capitulation of the French army placed it in the hands of the Germans, to whom it was annexed as part of Lorraine by the Treaty of Frankfurt in the following year. It is now garrisoned by a German force of 12,000 Prussians, Saxons, and Bavarians.

The principal objects of interest within the city are

In the Place Royale, the bronze

Statue of Marshal Ney—the “bravest of the brave” — born at Saarlouis, 1769, shot at Paris 7th Dec., 1815. The W. side of this square is prettily laid out as an Esplanade, with charming views from the terrace overlooking the Mosel.

The Cathedral of St. Stephen in the Place d'Armes is a very fine Gothic edifice dating from the 14th cent. Fergusson remarks of it: “Externally, it must be confessed, the immense height of the clerestory gives to the ch. a wire-drawn appearance, very destructive of architectural beauty; but internally, partly from the effect of perspective and partly from the brilliancy of such glass as remains, criticism is disarmed. The result, however contrary to the rules of art, is most fascinating.” It is surmounted by an elegant open-work spire, 363 ft. high, built in 1427. Unhappily the exterior of the edifice is spoilt by an incongruous W. front, added in 1764 by Louis XV.

The interior, cruciform in shape, is 370 ft. long and 141 ft. high. The Nave was completed in 1332 on the site of, and partly incorporating, the circular Ch. N. D. de la Ronde, the choir of which has become a side chapel, and its fine W. door is seen on the S. side of the present building. The beautiful Choir was completed at the beginning of the 16th cent., and is especially remarkable for its finé coloured glass executed by Bousch of Strassburg. Obs. the dates, some in Roman and some in Arabic numerals, ranging from 1520 to 1539.

[N. G.]

Almost all the monuments were destroyed at the Revolution; but obs. the remains of frescoes on the pillars; an inscription on the wall of the N. aisle to Pierre Perrat, the architect of the Cathedral (died 25th July, 1400); the red oblong porphyry Font, probably Roman; the stone throne of the early bishops; some processional crosses, &c., of the 12th and 14th cents., in the sacristy, and the huge figure of a dragon, formerly carried in procession through the streets, probably symbolical of the conversion of the Pagans to Christianity by St. Clement, though popularly commemorative of the capture and drowning by that Saint of a dragon which infested these parts.

From the platform of either tower a fine view is obtained over the city, divided into a number of islands by the branches of the Mosel, the fortifications and the surrounding Pays Messin.

The whole of the opposite side of the square is occupied by the heavy façade of the H. de Ville, and on the S. side facing the Guard House is a bronze Statue of Marshal Fabert (born here 1599, d. 1662) with trophies, in bad taste, on either side.

Passing on the l. the Covered Market, the Place de Chambre (public conveyances stand here, 1 fr. 25 c. the course) leads to the bridge crossing to the small island, of which the handsome façades of the Theatre, Police Offices and Prefecture, occupy nearly the entire length.

At the end of the Rue Marchand, on the l., is the interesting old Ch. of St. Ségolène, containing fine stained glass.

In this quarter of the town the remains of a large number of ancient buildings will be noticed, formerly churches and convents, now used as warehouses. Obs. some in the Rue des Quatre Maisons, at the corner of which, and the Rue de la Bibliothèque, is the Protestant Ch., and at the other end of the latter street, in what was formerly the ch. of the Convent des Petits Carmes, is the Public Library, containing nearly 40,000 vols. and 1200 MSS. from various suppressed convents, and the Museum of painting and antiquities. The archæological room, recently built and appropriately decorated, is rich in Roman remains found in the neighbourhood.

The Rue Jurue leads into the Rue des Allemands, near the bottom of which, on the l., is the Ch. of St. Eucaire, of the 12th cent., with some portions of the delicate Gothic tracery covering its S. door still remaining. Just beyond is the Porte des Allemands, the most interesting of the 7 gates of the city, and a picturesque specimen of the military architecture of the Middle Ages. Obs. the Gothic arcades of the Guard House.

The Place St. Louis is an irregular square in the oldest part of the town, with picturesque arcades lining the W. side, and surrounded by crooked streets on different levels.

Considerable trade is done in wine, brandy, indigo, glass, &c., &c.; and there are several cloth manufactories in the neighbourhood. The workshops of Maréchal, the well-known painter on glass, are also here.

The real strength of Metz consists in its exterior defences, the principal of which are Fort St. Quentin (now Fort Prinz Friedrich Karl), a very strong detached fort to the W. of the city, perched on the summit of the most considerable elevation in the vicinity, and from which a very fine view is obtained, embracing all the other forts and rendering a closer inspection of the latter needless. (Omnibus 30 pf. from the Porte de France to 2 m. Longeville, from which village a steep path leads up the face of the hill. A good carriage-road also winds up to the top. Permits to enter the fort obtained at the Commandant's Bureau behind the H. de Ville.)

Following the crest of the hill a short mile N. is Plapperville (now Alvensleben), another strong fort, from which the road leads down the hillside covered with vineyards through the Village of the same name, 2 m. from the Porte de France, and for some time the head-quarters of Bazaine. Fort St. Eloi, St. Julien (now Fort Manteuffel), and Queuleu (Fort Goeben), are on the N., N.E., and S.E. of the town respectively.

These and some smaller forts together command all the approaches to Metz, rendering it quite impregnable to direct assault. They are being greatly enlarged, strengthened, and adapted to the German polygonal system.

During the siege of 1870 no attempt was made to take the city by force, nor did a single shot or shell fall into it.

On 12th Aug., 1870, the French Imperial head-quarters were fixed in this city, and 5 corps, numbering 200,000 men, with 468 guns, stood on the rt. bank of the Mosel under the protection of the eastern forts. The growing mistrust in the Emperor's guidance induced him to give the 3rd corps to Daccaen, and make its leader Bazaine Commander-in-Chief of the "Army of the Rhine." The Emperor and Imperial Prince, however, remained with the army till 2 days before the Battle of Gravelotte, and the Ministers in Paris interfered in the military operations, thereby causing the fatal indecision which reigned for the next 3 days in the French camp, leading directly to the final catastrophe.

The result of the Battles of Courcelles (14th Aug.), Vionville (16th), and Gravelotte (18th), was to cut off this the choicest army of the French from all its communications, and force it in the night of the 18th Aug. to retire under the guns of Metz, which the Germans at once proceeded to surround.

The fortress, to whose fortunes

Marshal Bazaine was thus tied, in itself would have been strong enough with a well-organized garrison of 20,000 men to resist attack for an indefinite period, but was necessarily weakened by the presence of the mass of men and horses who exhausted more rapidly the supplies of provisions than the defence of the place required, and who, at the same time, were so cooped up within the narrow valleys between the outlying forts that they could not deploy quick enough to succeed in an attempt to break out. On the other hand Prince Frederick Charles was compelled, after the departure of the King of Prussia with the 3rd and 4th armies in pursuit of MacMahon, to guard with 200,000 men a circle of 30 miles in circumference, so that his numbers were necessarily weak at any given point, and the possibility of a combined attack by MacMahon from without and Bazaine from within rendered the position of the Germans for a time highly critical.

The effects of bad weather and exposure told heavily on both armies, and the sickness in the German besieging force rose as high as 50 per cent., but the scarcity of food made the position of the French still worse, and a mistrust in their leader, coupled with a suspicion as to his political aims, led to a total demoralization of the French army, so that a Council of War decided on negotiations with the enemy. On 27th Oct., by the Capitulation of Metz, 3 marshals of France, 50 generals, 6000 officers, 173,000 men, and immense quantities of military stores, fell into German hands.

To visit the battle-fields a pedestrian may, now that the Verdun Rly. is completed, take the train to (9 m.) Amanvillers, and proceed S. along the French front on the 18th Aug. to Gravelotte, and then follow the gorge S. to 4 m. Ars-sur-Moselle on the rly. to Metz, or he may see the most interesting part of the ground by taking the omnibus (40 pf.) through Longeville to 3 m. Moulins, on the Verdun road, and then, cutting off nearly 1 m. by following the old Roman way behind the village of Roze- rieulles, regain the main road at the Farm Point de Jour, where the first indications of the bloody fight will be met. Here are numerous graves on either side, as well as in the cemetery adjoining the Farm St. Hubert, the enclosed garden of which was obstinately defended by the French. It was on this part of the field, late on the evening of the 18th, after the battle had been won by the successful turning of the French rt. flank, that Bazaine made a desperate effort to gain time for an orderly retreat of his army, by keeping the Germans back and preventing their reaching Moscou and Point de Jour. For this purpose he determined to assume the offensive against the German rt. wing. Throwing out swarms of skirmishers, he, under cover of their incessant fire, doubled strong columns across the heights of Rozerieulles, and, plunging them into the Bois de Vaux, sent them to storm the ridge opposite Gravelotte. The movement was successful, the German battalions were hurled back in disorder, the victorious French followed, but the heavy fire of the German artillery shattered them as they advanced, and the stubborn resistance of the infantry in the valley below brought the French columns to a momentary stand. The position was critical, the danger of the breaking of the German line at this point imminent, and the King and Moltke hurried to the spot. The arrival of the 2nd Pomeranian corps in support was feverishly awaited. At last the heads of columns appeared. The French were thrown back, the heights of Rozerieulles occupied, and with the growing darkness the battle came to an end.

Just beyond St. Hubert the road drops suddenly into the hollow which separated the French from the German position, and a little farther on is the straggling village of 4 m. Gravelotte (Inn: H. Cheval d'Or, good). On the l. of the entrance is a cemetery containing a large number of those who fell on the day or subsequently died here of their wounds, and nearly opposite the Inn is the house in which Napoleon and the Prince Imperial slept on the night of the 15th Aug.

At Gravelotte the road to Verdun divides into two. The S. branch passes through the villages of $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. Rezonville, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m. Vionville, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. Mars la Tour; the N. branch passes through Doncourt and Conflans. It was by these roads that the French army was retreating to Châlons when at 9.30 A.M. on the 16th Aug., the French videttes became aware of the approach of the enemy from the S., and shortly after the Battle of Vionville (Mars la Tour) began by the German cavalry driving the French back upon their supports in Rezonville. At a cost of 17,000 men the King of Prussia succeeded on this day in compelling Bazaine to employ all his troops to meet attacks from flank and rear, and with the S. road lost to him and the N. road threatened, arresting him in his march on Verdun. Indications of the fight will be seen all along the high road, and then the visitor must return to Gravelotte and proceed northward (see below, carriage drive), as after the Battle of Vionville Bazaine withdrew his troops and skilfully posted them on the ridge running in a north-westerly direction between the road to Verdun and that to Briey: the l. wing, formed of Frosard's 2nd corps, along the edge of the hollow E. of Gravelotte, and in the Bois de Vaux, with the Imperial Guards and Artillery in rear as a reserve on the heights of Plappeville. Lebœuf's 3rd corps was in the Bois de Genivaux. Ladmirault's 4th corps occupied the ground about Verneville, Amanvillers, and Habonville; whilst the rt. wing, consisting of Canrobert's 6th corps, rested on the villages of St. Privat, Ste. Marie aux Chênes, and St. Ail. Rifle-pits and trenches increased the natural strength of the position, and the walls of the villages and farmyards along the entire front helped to enable the French infantry to fight at a considerable advantage. In this position the French awaited the attack of the Germans, whose 8 army corps advanced in echelon from the left with a front extending from Gravelotte to Jarny, and at noon (18th Aug.)

the Battle of Gravelotte (St. Privat) commenced.

The nature of the ground rendered the battle principally an infantry and artillery fight around isolated positions, and the object of the German commander throughout was to hold fast the French l. wing at Gravelotte and maintain a front attack whilst the German l. wing endeavoured to turn the French right.

At 2.30 P.M. the Saxons took Ste. Marie after a short struggle, and by 4 P.M., the French artillery being silenced, 14 batteries were pushed forward in echelon near St. Privat.

The day was drawing on before the attack on this latter village commenced, but at 5 P.M. the position was ordered to be stormed, and the regiments Franz and Augusta, of the 4th Guards' Brigade, were the first to deploy and advance from Ste. Marie up the open and steep incline towards St. Privat. The withering fire of the French chassepots caused, however, such tremendous losses, especially in officers, that these picked German troops quailed before it, and a halt was called to await the Saxons, whilst the German artillery played upon the village and set it in a blaze, though the French continued resolutely to hold it.

In the meantime the Saxon army corps wheeled to its right, and, advancing through the woods between Roncourt and Malancourt, took the latter village after heavy loss, and then, bringing its artillery to the front, directed 16 batteries against the French rt. wing. Canrobert, though unsupported by the reserves, and falling short of ammunition, held out bravely against this destructive flanking fire, but the Prussian Guards, supported by artillery of the 10th corps and other divisions, renewing the attack in front at 7 P.M., St. Privat was taken, the French rt. wing in flight towards Metz, and the battle won.

In this great struggle no prisoners, colours, or guns were taken, except 2 Prussian guns, which the French succeeded in capturing. The French opposed 180,000 men to 230,000 Germans, and the loss of the latter in killed and

BATTLE OF GRAVELOTTE (or ST PRIVAT) Aug 18th 1870 First Position

☒ French

6th Corps (Canrobert)

4th (L'Amiral)

3rd (Lebauf)

2nd (Frossard)

R. Reserve

& Imperial

Guard

☐ Germans

XIIth Army Corps (Saxons)

I

IX

VIII

VII

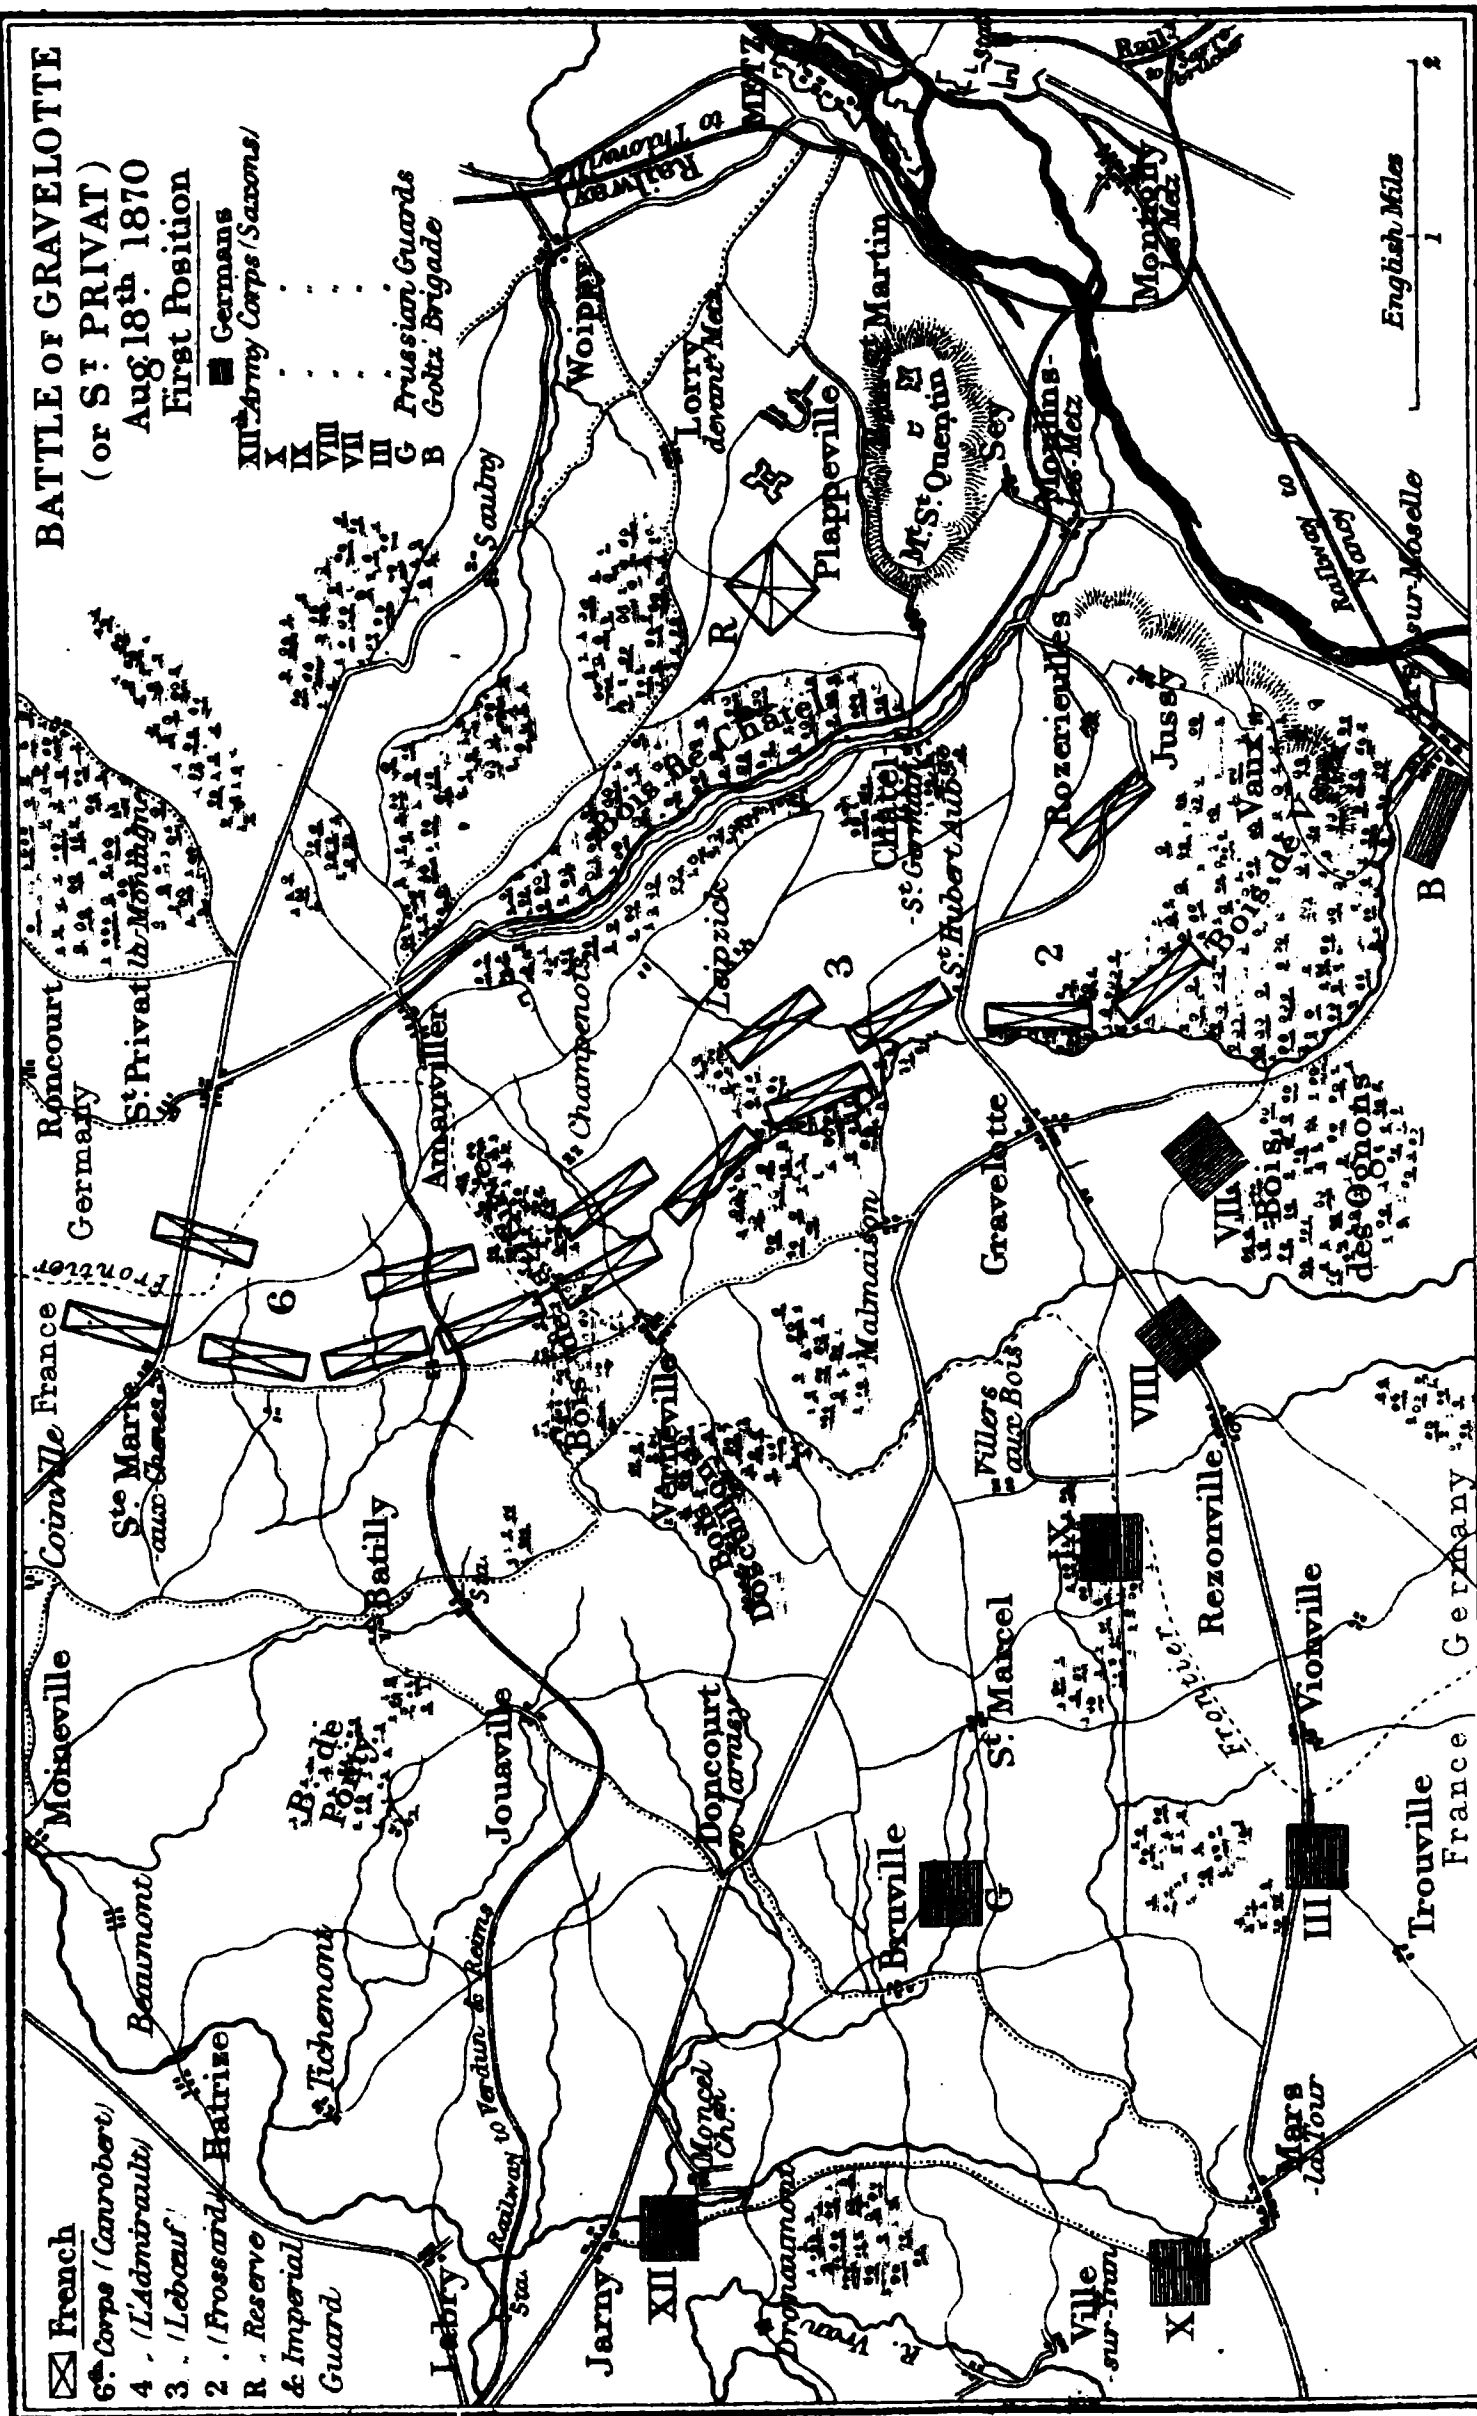

III

G

Prussian Guards

B

Goetz Brigade

English Miles
1
2

wounded exceeded 19,000 men; the loss of the former is not known, but probably did not exceed 12,000, for the French occupied selected ground, and poured a murderous fire from a superior infantry weapon upon the Germans advancing across the open to storm the position.

Carriages may be obtained at the Hotels (20 to 28 mks.), and a long and beautiful drive taken up the rt. bank of the river past the fort of St. Privat (now Prinz August von Württemberg) and the (3 m. S.) Château Frescati, where the capitulation of Metz was signed, through Jouy aux Arches (Roman Aqueduct) to Corny (head-quarters of Prince Frederick Charles during the siege, across the suspension-bridge, by Noventant, to the romantically-situated little town of Gorze (Inn: H. de la Croix d'Or, good), from which the road ascends through a beautiful gorge to the plateau above, dotted everywhere with graves. The road crosses the plateau, leaving the Bois des Ognons on the rt. and Flavigny on the l., and strikes the S. branch of the Verdun road at Rezonville.

The battle-field of the 16th August (Vionville and Mars la Tour, see above) lies to the l., and Gravelotte to the rt., from which latter place the battle-field of the 18th Aug. may be visited by leaving the N. branch of the Verdun road at the farm of Malmaison, now rebuilt, and crossing and recrossing the French frontier several times through the Bois des Genevaux, the Bois de la Cusse, Verneville, Habonville, and St. Ail, to Ste. Marie aux Chênes (fair Inn), where the Briey road is struck, and return by this road past St. Privat (handsome monuments to the Prussians who fell here, mostly officers of the Guards and of the Queen Augusta's Regiment), descending through the pretty gorge leading into the valley of the Mosel at Woippy, the route by which the beaten French rt. wing retreated on Metz, or turn S. by the shorter road leading through Amanvillers and along the position occupied by the French.

Railways from Metz:—N. to Dieden- hofen (Thionville) and Luxemburg (see Rte. 99A). W. to Verdun, and S. to Nancy (see Hndbk. for France). E. to Saarbrücken (see above), and to Strassburg (see Rte. 99B).

ROUTE 99A.

METZ TO LUXEMBURG, BY DIEDENHOFEN (THIONVILLE).—RAIL.

Distance, 39 m.; time, 2 hrs.; 6 trains daily.

Metz is described in Rte. 99.

For fuller details as to this Route see Hndbk. for France, Rte. 181.

The line from the principal stat. makes a wide sweep S. before reaching 2 m. Devant-les-Ponts Stat., for the use of the N.W. side of Metz, and then descends the valley of the Mosel.

16 m. Diedenhofen (Fr. Thionville)
Junct. Stat. Omnibus from rly. (Inns:
H. St. Hubert; H. de Luxembourg;
H. du Commerce). Pop. 7376. A fortress on the Mosel, now annexed to Germany.

The Hôtel de Ville is used jointly for a school and Protestant Ch. Adjoining it is the Beffroi, from the top of which a fine view is obtained over the town and surrounding country.

Pepin le Gros resided here and built a small palace, which Charlemagne subsequently often visited. The defences are mainly the work of Vauban, though the place was fortified at a much earlier date. It has been much strengthened of late years, and is capable of containing a garrison of 8000 men.

In 1558 it was taken by the Duc de Guise from the Spaniards, but restored to Philip II. by the Treaty of Cateau Cambresis. In 1643, after 3 months' siege and 40 days of open trenches, it was again captured from the Spaniards by the Grand Condé (then Duc d'Enghien). In 1659 it was definitively ceded to France, in whose possession it remained until, on the 24th Nov., 1870, the garrison of 120 officers and 4000 men, under Maurice, capitulated to the German commander Kamecke.

The principal industry consists in the manufacture of cloth, leather, glass, &c., with breweries and sugar-works in the neighbourhood.

Rly. W. to Longuyon, Sedan, Mézières (see Rte. 180, Handbk. for France).

Northward the line proceeds to 20 m. Luxemburg Junct. Stat. (Buffet). Described in Rte. 29, Handbk. for Holland and Belgium.

ROUTE 99B.

METZ TO STRASSBURG, BY SAARGEMÜND AND HAGENAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 123 miles; time, 5 to 8 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Metz, and the rly. as far as 37 m. Binningen Junct. Stat., are described in Rte. 99. For fuller details throughout the Route see Rte. 182, Handbk. for France.

Making a sharp curve S. the line passes through Farebersweiler, and, striking the Sarre at Welferdingen, reaches 13 m. Saargemünd (Fr. Sarreguemines) Junct. Stat. (Buffet) (Inn: H. du Lion d'Or; H. de Paris; H. de la Ville de Strasbourg). Pop. 6802. Prettily situated in the undulating thickly-wooded valley of the Saar, at the junction of the Blies with that river, which, before the war of 1870, separated France from Germany. The town possesses several important porcelain manufactories, and is the centre of a snuff-box manufacturing district.

[Branch Rly. N. to 12 m. Saarbrücken Junct. Stat. (Rte. 99) Rly. to Saarburg (see Rte. 99c), on the line from Avricourt to Strassburg.]

The line crosses the Saar shortly after leaving the town, and proceeds E. through a pretty country to 24 m. Bitsch (Fr. Bitche) Stat. (Inn: H. de Metz). Pop. 2740. The most westward of the defences of the Vosges, at the foot of a steep red-sandstone rock, crowned by the Citadel, a work constructed by Vauban in 1679. The view from the top is fine.

Many English were confined here during the wars with the first Napoleon. During the Franco-German War of 1870 it offered a stubborn resistance to the Bavarians, who planted their batteries on the heights to the W. of the citadel, and commenced to bombard it on the 8th Aug., but, after the town had been nearly reduced to ashes, and the barracks and other buildings in the citadel had been much damaged, they were finally obliged to content themselves with leaving a force to surround it whilst they avoided it in their march onward by a wide détour.

The line now enters the forest of Waldeck.

11 m. Philippsburg Stat. On l., crowning the height, are the ruins of the fine castle of Falkenstein, which once belonged to the Counts of Lützelburg.

5 m. Niederbronn Stat. Omnibus from rly. (Inns: H. Vauxhall; H. de la Chaîne d'Or; H. Weissler.) Pop. 3391. This little town is charmingly situated on the Falckenstein stream, at the entrance to a lovely valley inclosed by mountains of moderate elevation. It consists mainly of one single street formed by the high road from Bitsch to Wörth, but a shady avenue also leads from the rly. stat. to the Établissement des Eaux, and thence into an extensive and shady promenade extending some distance on the S. side of the town.

The place is annually visited during the season, from June to September, by a large number of invalids, for the sake of its mineral waters, the principal basin of which is in the centre of the Esplanade. Its medicinal virtue was known to the Romans.

The walks and drives in the neighbourhood are lovely (carriages may be obtained at the hotels), especially the excursions to the Jägerthal (4 m.), and the Bärenthal (6 m.), with the castles of Windstein, Hohenfels, Wasenberg, Fleckenstein, &c.

There are several large smelting-furnaces in the neighbouring valleys.

[This is the best point from which to visit the battle-field of Wörth. The path leading directly eastward across the hills may be followed, or the main road, or the rly. taken to

2 m. Reichshofen Stat., from which a good road leads to the now rebuilt and picturesque village of (5 m.) Froschweiler, which was the centre of MacMahon's position on the 6th August, 1870, when the Germans (advancing from Lembach and Sulz after the Battle of Weissenburg, fought 4th Aug.) outflanked and drove him back with great slaughter.

The path to the rt. should be taken leading to Elsashaussen, in the neighbourhood of which are a number of monuments to the fallen, and the tree under which MacMahon stood during the fight. About $\frac{1}{2}$ m. beyond is Wörth (Inn: H. Cheval d'Or), a Protestant village of 1114 Inhab., situated at the confluence of the Sauer and the Salzbach. It suffered much during the battle, as towards the conclusion there was a good deal of hand-to-hand fighting in the streets.

Near the bridge is a square Tower, the only remaining part of a castle, built here in the 16th cent., and close to this is a remarkable ancient stone Altar, discovered in the neighbourhood.

The road leads to (6 m.) Sulz, where the rly. may be taken to visit the (8 m.) battle-field of Geisberg, near Weissenburg, described in Rte. 104.

From Reichshofen the line proceeds through the Forest of Hagenau, to 7 m. Hagenau Junct. Stat., and for the remainder of the line to 22 m. Strassburg, see Rte. 104.

ROUTE 99c.

NANCY TO STRASSBURG, via AVRICOURT, SAARBURG [PFALZBURG], ZABERN, AND VENDENHEIM.—RAIL.

Distance, 93 m.; time, $4\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Nancy, Lunéville, the branch line to St. Dié, in the Vosges, and the Rly. as far as the new (1871) German frontier and custom-house at 37 m. Avricourt Junct. Stat., are described in Handbk. for France, Rte. 165.

Passports and luggage examined here; the accommodation poor.

[Short Branch Rly. S.E. 11 m. to Cirey and N.W. 14 m. to Dieuze, where a mine of rock-salt was discovered in 1831.]

9 m. Hemingen Stat.; on leaving which the rly. enters the valley of the Sarre, before reaching

5 m. SaARBURG Junct. Stat. (Branch rly. to Saargemünd, Rte. 99B.) (Inns: H. Sauvage; Grand H.). A walled town of 3070 Inhab., the Roman Pons Saravi, on the rt.^a bank of the Sarre, or Saar. It stands on the boundary line of the 2 languages, French being spoken in the Upper and German in the Lower town. Extensive Military Storehouses and bakeries. SaARBURG was ceded to France in 1616.

The railway now quits the plains of Lorraine and penetrates the chain of the Vosges Mountains by a series of tunnels, the longest of which is that of Archweiler, or Hommerling, 3034 yds. in length. The canal from the Marne to the Rhine traverses the same hill, but in its subterranean course the rly. passes under the Canal. It soon after emerges into the valley of the Zorn, which it crosses upon a bridge spanning with one arch the river and with another the canal. This part of the line is exceedingly beautiful. The rly. is carried in a tunnel under the Castle of Lützelburg to 10 m. Lützelburg Stat., a little village romantically situated on the Zorn in a narrow defile below the ruins of the Castle of the same name.

[This is the nearest and best point for reaching by omnibus, which awaits the train, 3 m. Pfalzburg (Fr. Phalsbourg) (Inn: H. de la Ville de Bâle), a quiet little town of 3564 Inhab., hemmed in by its fortifications planned by Vauban, but dismantled by the Germans, 1873, and before the alteration of frontier of considerable military importance, from its position commanding the defiles under the crest of the Vosges, but best known as the scene of the 'Conscript of 1813,' the joint work of Erckmann and Chatrion, the former a native of the town. The road from Lützelburg zigzags steeply N. up a lovely gorge, and then suddenly reaches a smiling plateau, after traversing which, nearly a mile, the town is entered by the Porte de France, a handsome military gate in the style of the 17th cent., leading to the large Place Lobau, in the centre of which is a statue to Marshal Lobau, born here.

The Ch. (on the W. side) was almost entirely destroyed by the bombardment of the town by the Germans, which led to its capitulation on 12th December, 1870, after 4½ months' investment. The great road from Paris to Strassburg passes out on the E. side of the town at the Porte d'Allemagne, and crosses the rly. at Zabern, distant 6 m. (Omnibus corresponds with the trains.)]

6 m. Zabern Stat. (French Saverne) (Inns: H. Bœuf Noir; H. Sonne), a town of 5489 Inhab., on the river Zorn, and on the E. slope of the Vosges; it stands on the Roman Station of Tabernæ. This was once the capital of the Strassburg Bishopric. It suffered severely in the Thirty Years' War, but has ceased to be fortified since 1696. The Château, formerly the residence of the Bishops of Strassburg, was rebuilt (the former one having been destroyed by fire in 1780) by the notorious Cardinal de Rohan. It is a large and handsome edifice of red sandstone, and is now a barrack. Conveyances may be obtained at the Inn for excursions to Mauermünster (Marmoutier), and to the Castles of Great and Little Geroldseck, &c. (See Rte. 168, Handbk. for France.)

The rly. now enters the rich and well-cultivated plain of Alsace, inhabited by people of the Germanic race.

22 m. Vendenheim Junct. Stat. The rly. from Mayence, Mannheim, Landau, Hagenau, and Niederbronn joins here. (See Rte. 104.)

6 m. Strassburg Junct. Stat. (Buf-fet), described in Rte. 104.

ROUTE 100.

SAARBRÜCKEN TO TRÈVES, BY SAAR-LOUIS.—RAIL.

Distance, 53 m.; time, 2 to 3 hrs.; 4 trains daily.

Saarbrücken is described in Rte. 99.

The rly. descends the beautiful valley of the Saar, following the rt. bank of the river through Louisenenthal, Völklingen, Bous and Ens Dorf, to 13 m. Saarlouis Stat. Omnibus (20 min.) to the town. (Inns: Rheinischer Hof; Zwei Hasen). A strong fortress of Prussia, with a long stone bridge over the Saar, which flows half round the town, and sometimes during the winter lays part of it under water. The fortifications, constructed by Vauban, in the course of one year (1680), for a bet with Louis XIV., may be inundated by sluices. Its name was changed during the first French revolution to Sarrelibre. The Inhab. (7000) are partly descended from English prisoners placed here by Louis XIV. It is the birthplace of Marshal Ney (1769), whose father's house is marked by a tablet. By the Peace of Ryswyk (1697), France was left in possession of Saarlouis, but it was transferred to Prussia in 1815.

[Branch Rly. in progress S.W. to Bolchen, whence Rly. to Courcelles for Metz, in Rte. 99.]

2 m. Dilligen Stat. The town is on the l. bank of the river with the ruins of Siersburg (12th cent.) behind it.

7 m. Merzig Stat. (Inn: Trierscher Hof), a town of 3500 Inhab., with curious ch. of the 12th cent. A long tunnel before reaching

5 m. Mettlach Stat. (Inn: Saarstrom). The extensive Benedictine Abbey, founded in the 7th cent., is now a pottery. The ruins of castle Montclair, destroyed in 1350, peer down upon the valley from an almost inaccessible cliff.

About 3 m. before reaching Saarburg, high above the river and road, rises a cliff, partly excavated in chambers, called Castel, originally a Roman castellum, hanging like a bird's-nest against the face of the rock, repaired in 1838 by Fred. Wm. IV., King of Prussia, as a chapel in which to bury the remains of the blind King John of Bohemia, only son of the Emp. Henry VII., who was killed in the battle of Crecy, 1346, and for a long time interred in the Ch. of Notre Dame at Luxemburg.

At the village of Nennig, 12 m. S.W. of Saarburg, is a Roman villa, retaining fine mosaic pavements, combats of gladiators, 8 groups, &c.

11 m. Beurig-Saarburg Stat. The latter town is on the opposite bank. (Inns: Trierscher Hof; Post.) A dirty and picturesque town of 2000 Inhab. on the slope of a hill on the Leuk, which in traversing it forms a cascade near the Post, just before joining the Saar. Above rise the picturesque ruins of a Castle which belonged to the Elector of Trèves.

Carriage to Castel, 7 mks.

The rly. follows the winding of the Saar along a narrow and rocky valley with high wooded hills on each side, and through a celebrated wine district to 8 m. Conz Junct. Stat. The present bridge over the Saar here was built in 1782, to replace a Roman bridge blown up by the French 1675, and mentioned by Ausonius, "Qua bis terna fremunt scopulosis ostia pilis."

The line now joins that from Luxemburg, described in Rte. 29, Handbook for Holland and Belgium, and crossing the Mosel follows its rt. bank to 5 m. Trèves Junct. Stat. described in Rte. 41.

ROUTE 102.

THE RHINE (E.). MAYENCE TO STRASSBURG, BY WORMS, MANNHEIM, AND SPIRES.—RAIL.

Railway on l. bank by Ludwigshafen, where there is a rly. bridge over the Rhine to Mannheim. 3 trains daily, in about 2 hours. Rly. from Ludwigshafen to Strassburg by Hagenau, Rte. 104. Mayence to Strassburg in 6 to 8 hrs. Rly. from Mannheim to Kehl and Strassburg, on the rt. bank of the Rhine, preferable to that on l. bank.

The Rhine, above Mayence, loses all its beauty; the wide plain through which it flows, bounded by the very distant chains of the Vosges and Haardt on the W., and the Odenwald and Black Forest on the E., is as dull and nearly as flat as Holland. The river does not fall more than 22 ft. between Spires and Mannheim.

The following route passes through the territory of Hesse as far as Worms, thence through Rhenish Bavaria to Mannheim.

STEAMERS ascend the Rhine from Mayence to Mannheim twice a day, in 5 hrs., returning in 4.

The river winds very much in this part of its course, and the ascending voyage is tedious and slow. Of late years many canals have been formed across the isthmuses created by the turns of the river, and thus its course is being shortened. Still it is preferable to travel upwards by railway, though the fares by rail are double those of the steamer.

The E. bank of the Rhine, along which the railroad runs from Mayence, is at first a succession of gentle hills planted with profitable vineyards, the best among them being those of Laubenheim and Bodenheim. The soil of the low ground of the Rhine valley, all the way to Switzerland, is fertile in the extreme.

10 m. Nierstein Stat. (Inn: Anker), a small town of 2200 Inhab., gives its name to a very good second-class wine, produced in the surrounding vineyards. The Sironabad, a sulphur spring, near Nierstein, was known to the Romans: not far from it, at the Yellow House Inn, is a flying bridge over the Rhine. The Chapel of the family Von Herding is decorated with frescoes by Götzenberger, a modern artist, representing the Adoration of the Shepherds—the Coronation of the Virgin—penitent Magdalen—Faith, Hope, and Charity.

2 m. Oppenheim Stat. Inn: Zum Gelben Hause (the Yellow House), mentioned above, outside the town, tolerable. On a hill to the N.W. of this town (of 2400 Inhab.), under the stately ruins of the ancient Imperial Castle of Landskron, stands the Ch. of St. Catherine (Prot.) a pure example of the Gothic style, displaying at the same time the utmost richness of decoration consistent with elegance and propriety. The towers are in the style of the 12th cent.; the nave and E. chancel, begun 1262 by Richard of Cornwall, King of the Romans, were completed in 1317; the W. chancel, now a ruin, in 1439. The nave is remarkable for its lightness and beauty; the painted glass of the windows must have been splendid; in one of them it still remains nearly perfect. Some of them have a species of fan-shaped tracery. The rose-window is most elaborate in its tracery. There are some good monuments in the church of the Dalbergs and Riedesels, a family of the Wetterau, who bore asses' ears for their crest; obs. the staircase at W. end of N. aisle, and the Immaculate Conception carved over W. door. The roof of the nave is gone, and within its walls is a wilderness of grass and weeds. These injuries owe their origin to the French, who burnt the church and town during the war of the Palatinate 1689. In 1843 the choir was put under repair, to which the Darmstadt Government contribute 700 florins a year.

A ruined chapel within the churchyard is half filled with the skulls and bones of Swedes and Spaniards, who fell here in battle, 1631, champions of the causes of Protestantism and Popery.

The fortress of Landskron, connected by a wall and by underground passages with the town, commands a good view, and was once an Imperial residence, founded by the Emp. Lothair, and restored by Emp. Rupert, who died here in 1410.

rt. Gustavus Adolphus recorded his passage of the Rhine, in the winter of Dec. 7, 1631, by a monument on the rt. bank at Erfelden, a little above Oppenheim, but not seen from the steamer, which traverses an artificial cut. It consists of a pillar with a lion on the top. The Swedes crossed the Rhine singing a psalm; and there is a tradition that their sovereign and leader was ferried over on a barn door. The field of battle still goes by the name of the Spaniards' churchyard, from the number of bones found in it.

The rly. now quits the borders of the river, which winds exceedingly. A canal, cut across an isthmus formed by its bendings, saves a circuit of several miles.

[rt. At Gernsheim Stat., on rly. between Darmstadt (Rte. 105) and Worms (Inns: Lamm; Karpfen), on the rt. bank of the Rhine, a colossal statue by Scholl, of sandstone, 12 ft. high, of Peter Schöffer, the partner of Fust in the discovery of printing (1457), who was born here, was erected 1836.]

4 m. Guntersblum Stat. (Inn: Krone), a town of 2400 Inhab., with a fine Rathhaus and Schloss of Count Leiningen. The election of a German king (1024), which ended in the choice of Conrad II. (the Salic), was held on the great plain between Oppenheim and Guntersblum: the Dukes, Counts and Prelates of Germany, all accompanied by their vassals, encamped on either side of the Rhine, no city being large enough to hold them.

1. Immediately below Worms, outside the walls, though once in a flourishing suburb, utterly destroyed by the Swedes (1632) and French (1689), is the fine Gothic Church of Our Lady* (Liebe Frau), founded 1220, rebuilt 1467, restored 1867. Over the W. door are curious carvings representing the Wise and Foolish Virgins. It is situated within the vineyard which produces the pleasant wine called after it Liebfrauenmilch (our Lady's milk). It is the property of Mr. P. J. Valckenberg, an eminent wine-merchant. The total extent of the vineyard is under 8 acres, including the ancient convent garden of 2 acres. The ground is almost a dead level, and the vines are trained on the open-frame system. The Riesling grape is that principally grown. The best wine is worth on the spot about 24l. per thirty-two gallons. The women pickers earn about a shilling a day, the men double that amount.

The town of Worms is about 1 m. distant from the Rhine, which anciently washed its walls. It is partly concealed from view by trees.

11 m. Worms Junct. Stat. at the back (W.) of the town (Buffet). (Inns: Alter Kaiser near the Dom, best, and opposite the Luther monument; H. Hartmann; H. de l'Europe at the Stat.; Rheinischer Hof, near the steamers' landing-place, 1 m. from the town.) This lifeless and, except for the Cathedral and Luther's monument, uninteresting city has now only 13,381 Inhab. (3500 Rom. Cath., 900 Jews), though it once contained 40,000. It was called by the Romans Augusta Vangionum and Borbetomagus. In the times succeeding their dominion it was the residence of many Merovingian and Carolingian kings; Charlemagne himself was married here, and held, near Worms, those assemblies of Frankish magnates, called, from the month in which they were convoked, Mai Lager (Mayfields).

This once important Imperial Free City is still venerable from historical associations, such as few other cities in Europe can boast of. It was the scene of many Imperial Diets: two of them are particularly important—that of 1495, which, by abolishing the right of private war (Faustrecht), first established order in Germany; and that of 1521, when Luther appeared before the young Emperor, Charles V., and the assembled princes, prelates, and burghers, to declare his adhesion to the Reformed doctrines, which the Diet finally declared to be heretical. The town is only now recovering from the infamous burning of it by Melac (1689), the ruffian instrument of Louis XIV. and Louvois.

Three min. walk from the stat., straight down the street, will be found on the rt.

The Monument to Luther*, completed 1868. The colossal bronze statue, 18 ft. high, of the great Reformer, grasping his Bible, forms the centre and summit of a group of forerunners and contemporaries—Wickliffe, Peter Waldo, Savonarola, and John Huss. Surrounding these, at a lower level, are Frederick the Wise, Elector of Saxony; Philip the Generous, Landgrave of Hesse, leaning on his sword; Ph. Melanchthon and John Reuchlin. Three female figures personify the first cities which took part in the Reformation—Augsburg, Magdeburg* (a chef d'œuvre by Dondorf) and Spires. The arms of 24 other cities decorate the grey granite parapet. The design was made by Rietschel, 1856, who died 1861, after completing the statues of Luther and Wickliffe. The rest were modelled by his pupils, Schelling, Dondorf, and Kietz.

The Dom or Cathedral (Cath.) is a plain and massive Romanesque building of red sandstone, dedicated 1016 in the presence of the Emp. Henry II., though little remains of that age, as the ch. was consecrated anew in the 12th cent., and the greater part is of that period, while the vaulting and W. end are of the 13th cent.; the pointed arch makes its appearance in the W. end of the nave. It has 2 towers at each end, and within has 2 choirs and 2 high altars, one for the chapter, the other for the laity.

The interior, 470 ft. long, has been repaired in a very skilful manner, 1860, by binding the tottering walls together with iron ties and the roof repaired. The side chapels date from the 14th and 15th cents. On the S. side is a pointed portal, whose sculptures deserve examination, date 1472. In the Baptistry, close to the S. door l., are placed some very remarkable sculptures (date 1487), removed from the cloister, now destroyed: they represent, 1. the Anunciation; 2. the Nativity; 3. the Tree of Jesse; 4. the Descent from the Cross; 5. the Resurrection. The traces of faded painting on the walls and piers are among the earliest productions of German art. Here are many gravestones, with figures in relief; the monument of Eberhard of Hepingen, a kneeling figure, is of good work. There was a Bishop of Worms in Roman times, and the list is known since 770. The temporal bishopric, along with the freedom of the city, ended in 1801, and from that time until 1814, Worms was incorporated with France.

The red stone walls to the N. of the Dom are substructions of the ancient Bishops' palace, destroyed by the French in 1689, and again in 1794. In it was held the diet of 1521, at which Luther appeared before Charles V. Some have incorrectly supposed that this event occurred in the Rathhaus, which stood where the Lutheran church now stands, in the market-place, and in which a poor picture representing the Diet is hung up.

The W. end and choir of St. Paul's Ch. are interesting for the antiquity and beauty of their architecture. They date probably from the year 1016; the rest of the church is recent. It is now a warehouse.

The W. doorway of St. Martin's Church, opposite the Post Office, is worth seeing.

The Synagogue, near the Mainz Gate, is a small 12th-cent. building, a plain Roman vault, resting on two piers of single shafts with sculptured capitals, like those at Jerusalem. A recess at the side is devoted to the women: windows mostly round-headed. The ark for holding the books of the Law is of poor Renaissance style (18th cent.). The Jews have been established in this spot from a very early period, and enjoyed privileges denied them in most other parts of Germany. They have a very ancient burial-ground, like that at Prague.

Strangers should visit the fine gardens and hot-houses of Mr. Heßl, visible 11 to 5, commanding a fine view of the Dom.

Near the old Luginsland watch-tower grow the vines producing the wine called by that name, but a good deal of it, as well as that produced at Caterloch on the S. side of the town, is sold as Liebfrauenmilch. The Old City Walls command a good view. The wine trade and the making of glazed leather (Glanz-Leder) form the business of Worms.

The best beer in Worms is to be had at Café Convent.

The country round Worms was the favourite theme of the Minnesänger, who speak of it under the name of Wonnegau (Land of Joy). It is the scene of the Nibelungenlied;* and the island facing the Rheinischer Hof, now occupied by the Darmstadt Rly., is called the Rosengarten, a name which often occurs in the Heldenbuch.

Near Pfiffligheim (first stat. on Rly. to Monsheim, see below) stands Luther's Elm, under which the Reformer is reported to have reposed on his way to the Diet, when, in reply to the warnings of friends who wished to deter him, he said that he "would go to Worms were there as many devils within the walls as there were tiles on the houses." At Hernsheim, about 2 m. N.W. of the town, are the Schloss and Park of the Dalberg family, now represented by the accomplished English Peer, Lord Acton, and a church of the 14th cent., containing several of their monuments, an elegant stone pulpit, 1482, and credence table, isolated columns supporting the chapels of St. Nicholas and St. Catherine.

* This fine old German epic poem was written towards the end of the 12th century, but the legends out of which it is formed appear to have been handed down, in popular lays, from very remote times, and to have been common to all the tribes (German, Saxon, and Scandinavian) of the Teutonic race. No less than 20 poems of the Edda, which, as it has been satisfactorily shown, must have been composed prior to the year 863, contain the same tragical story of the mythic-heroic personages who figure in the Nibelungen.

Rlys. from Worms.—N. to Mayence (see above). W. to Monsheim for N. Bingen or S. Strassburg (see Rte. 104). S. to Mannheim (see below). From the opposite bank (Rosengarten) N.E. to Darmstadt and E. to Bensheim for Darmstadt or Heidelberg (see Rte. 105).

N.B.—Travellers proceeding down the Rhine, and acquainted with its scenery between Mayence and Bingen, may leave the Rhine at Worms and proceed direct by rly. to Bingen viâ Monsheim, Alzey, and Armsheim (Rte. 104), thence ascend the beautiful valley of the Nahe by Kreuznach to Oberstein (Rte. 100), returning to Bingen, or proceeding on by Birkenfeld to Trèves, and descending the Mosel to Coblenz.

As far as Worms both banks of the Rhine belong to Darmstadt. A few miles above it commence the territories of Baden on the rt. bank, and of Rhenish Bavaria on the l. The railroad passes—

6 m. Frankenthal Stat. (Inn: Hotel Otto), Pop. 5600, originally a colony of Flemings, driven out of their country by religious persecution in 1562, who introduced manufactures not before known in Germany, and raised this small town by their industry to a state of great prosperity. It was held for some months in 1622-23 by the scanty English force under Sir Horace Vere, sent over by James I. to support the cause of his son-in-law the Elector Palatine: but neither in number nor in the skill of their commander were they fit to cope with a veteran general like Spinola, to whom and his army of “tough old blades” they were opposed, and they were accordingly obliged to surrender the town to the Spaniards. A canal connects it with the Rhine 3 m. off. Schnellpost twice daily in 2½ hrs. to S.W. 11 m. Dürkheim, in Rte. 104.

3 m. Oggersheim Stat. (Inn: Krone). An inscription over a house in the Schiller Strasse marks where Schiller resided in 1782, and wrote, in the midst of great privations, part of ‘Kabale und Liebe.’

rt. The Neckar enters the Rhine about ½ m. below Mannheim.

3 m. Ludwigshafen Junct. Stat. (Buf-fet.) (Inns: Deutsches Haus; H. Wolf, near the Stat.) A flourishing trading town, which has risen up since 1843 on the site of the tête-de-pont forming part of the outworks of Mannheim while it was a fortress. It was the scene of many fights during the wars of the French Revolution, and in 1814 the Russian division of Gen. Sacken here forced the passage of the Rhine. Two fine new churches here, the one Catholic and Romanesque, the other Protestant and Gothic. The landing-place of the steamer is just below the bridge, ¾ m. distant from Mannheim, near the bonding warehouses (Frei-hafen), a handsome building by Hübsch, erected at the water-side. For Rlys. see those from Mannheim below.

A handsome double iron lattice Bridge, on stone piers, resembling that of Cologne, carries both rly. and carriage traffic across the Rhine into rt. Mannheim Junct. Stat., 1½ m. from the hotels. Omnibuses and Droschken. (Inns: Pfälzer Hof, in the middle of the town, best; Deutscher Hof, clean, civil people.)

The situation of this town, on the rt. bank of the Rhine, and between it and the Neckar, is low. A high dyke protects it from inundations. The Rhine here, at 317 Eng. m. from the sea, is 1200 ft. in breadth. Mannheim was formerly the capital of the Rhenish Palatinate; but in 1803 it was annexed to Baden. It has 40,000 Inhab., and has become a place of considerable trade since 1846. It was once strongly fortified; and was in consequence several times ruined and twice literally reduced to ashes and levelled with the dust by sieges and bombardments—first in the Thirty Years’ War, afterwards by the French in the war of 1689. It did not exist as a town till after 1617, and, within a century, was twice rebuilt, after which it was again bombarded by the French in 1794, and by the Austrians in 1795; indeed, from the first moment of its civic existence it appears to have been an object of struggle. The French general who took the town in 1689 called the townspeople together and informed them that it was the unalterable determination of his master, Louis le Grand, to raze Mannheim to the ground; but, as a special favour, he would intrust the work of destruction to themselves, and would allow them 20 days to complete the work. As the inhabitants could not bring themselves to put into execution this diabolical sentence, the duty was performed by the soldiers, who drove out the lingering tenants, set fire to the houses, blew up the fortifications and churches. During the siege of 1795 half of the palace was burnt, and only 14 houses remained uninjured—26,000 cannon-balls and 1780 bombs were thrown. At length the French garrison of 9700 men surrendered to General Wurmser. Fortunately for its future welfare it is now defenceless, owing to the removal of its ramparts.

To the cause stated above the modern town owes its present monotonous regularity. It consists of 11 straight streets, crossed by 10 other streets at right angles to them, splitting the town up into 110 rectangular blocks, numbered and lettered as in similarly built towns in North America. The two principal streets are the Neckar Strasse running N. and S., and connecting the Schloss with the Suspension Bridge over the Neckar and the Planken Strasse, a broad street planted with trees, intersecting the former in the middle of the town. In the public squares are fountains, which want only water to render them useful as well as ornamental; indeed, good water is scarce here. The town is remarkable for its cleanliness. Göthe calls it "Das freundliche, reinliche Mannheim."

Mannheim does not possess many objects of interest, and need not detain a traveller long.

The principal building is the Schloss, a huge structure of red sandstone, more remarkable for size than architecture, erected by the Elector Palatine Karl Philipp, when he removed his court from Heidelberg and made Mannheim his capital (1720). A part of the palace serves as a Museum to contain the Gallery of Paintings, the majority of which, except some specimens of the Dutch school, are very mediocre; a Collection of Plaster Casts, and a Cabinet of Natural History, with some good specimens of minerals and fossils. The best part of all the Mannheim collections was transferred to Munich in 1778. The ancient castle of Mannheim was one of the spots where Pope John XXIII. was imprisoned during the Council of Constance, 1415.

The Gardens behind the palace, between it and the Rhine, afford a pleasant, shady retreat in summer, and contain some fine trees. The Rly. and carriage-road to the bridge over the Rhine pass through them. The private gardens along the banks of the Neckar are a great ornament to the outskirts of the town.

In the Schiller-Platz stands the bronze Statue of Schiller by Cauer, erected 1862. Near it are Statues of Iffland and Dalberg, erected 1864 and 1866: the first was a chief actor, and the second a manager of the Court Theatre.

If we except the former Jesuits' Church, which is not of first-rate architecture, and overloaded with marble inside, there is no remarkable building here.

The Theatre, built in 1776, and restored 1854, is on a good footing. The orchestra is not surpassed in this part of Germany. Here Schiller's 'Robbers' was first brought out in 1782. Opposite the principal entrance to the theatre is the house of the playwright Kotzebue, where he was assassinated (1819) by the mad student Sand; the victim and murderer are both buried in the Lutheran churchyard. Schiller lived on the Parade Platz, in the house called Zum Karlsberg.

The reading-room of the club called the Harmony, in the Planken, is thrown open to strangers properly introduced.

A very agreeable lounge here is the shop of Messrs. Artaria and Co., where the productions of art and literature in Germany and Italy are to be met with, and a tourist can supply himself with maps, views, &c.

Excursions:—

(a) To Heidelberg in Rte. 105, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. by Rly.

(b) To Spires (see below), 1 hr. by Rly.

(c) To 9 m. Schwetzingen. [First Stat. on direct Rly. to Carlsruhe, and may be taken on way to Heidelberg, as Rly. complete from Schwetzingen to Heidelberg.]

Inns: Erb-Prinz; Hirsch. A small town of 2500 Inhab. Its Schloss had been from early times a seat of the Electors Palatine, when the Elector Charles Theodore made it his summer residence in 1743, and employed the 20 following years, and vast sums of money, in converting into an ornamental garden a flat sandy desert, indebted to nature for no favour but the very distant prospect of a picturesque chain of hills. Those who desire to see all the sights here may prolong their walk for 2 or 3 hrs.; at any rate it is well to take a guide at the gate. The objects best worth notice are the Mosque, the temples of Mercury and Apollo, the Bath, the Roman aqueduct, and the Temple of Pan. The vista looking over the great basin towards the Vosges Mountains has the pleasing effect of a natural diorama. The Gardens themselves are perhaps the finest in Germany, laid out in the formal French style, carried to perfection by Le Nôtre at Versailles, with straight basins edged with stone, and ruffled by ever-spurting fountains, with prim parterres, peopled with statues, flanked by cropped hedges, and intersected by long avenues. They extend about 114 Eng. acres. The Botanic Garden, included within their circuit, contains a fine collection of Alpine plants. The conservatories and the orangery are worth notice.

The Schloss, originally a small hunting-lodge, augmented from time to time by wings, orangeries, and other additions to accommodate a court, is honoured with few and short visits from the reigning Grand Duke of Baden, and is not worth notice; but the grounds are kept in good order, and well deserve a visit.

Railways from Mannheim.—N. viâ Ludwigshafen and l. bank of Rhine to Mayence (see above), and S. to Spires and Strassburg (see below);—W. to Saarbrücken and Metz (Rte. 103);—rt. bank of Rhine E. to Friedrichsfeld for Darmstadt, Frankfurt, Heidelberg, and Strassburg (see Rte. 105);—S. direct to 38 m. Carlsruhe. 4 trains daily in 2 hrs. viâ Schwetzingen (see above).

Steamers daily at 2.15 P.M. down the Rhine in 48 hrs. to Rotterdam, and several times daily to Worms, Mayence, Coblenz, Cologne, &c. There is no inducement to follow the Rhine above Mannheim, as Spires may be visited by railway from Ludwigshafen. The traveller going southward had better proceed by Heidelberg along the Baden railway. (Rte. 105.)

Railway from Mannheim, viâ Ludwigshafen to Spires and Germersheim.—After leaving the stat. the Castle of Heidelberg is seen in the distance, under a red scar on the hill-side of the Kaisersstuhl, and the line follows the line for Strassburg and Metz (Rte. 103), as far as 9 m. Schifferstadt Junct. Stat., and then turns S.E., and runs in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to

5 m. Spires (Germ. Speyer) Stat. (Inns: Wittelsbacher Hof; Rhein-ischer Hof). This venerable city, one of the oldest, and formerly one of the chief, cities in Germany, lies upon the l. bank of the Rhine. Its population, which in the 14th cent. amounted to 27,000, is now reduced to 14,000 (3-5ths Protestants), and it is in all other respects a mere shadow of its former self. Under the Romans it had the name Noviomagus, or Augusta Nemetum; but in their time it was mainly a frontier stronghold on the Rhine to resist the attacks of the neighbouring Allemanni. Charlemagne, however, and the German kings who followed him, especially those of the Franconian and Swabian lines, made it their place of residence and the scene of many Imperial Diets, bestowing upon it, at the same time, the privileges of a free Imperial town, which made it the centre of a flourishing trade, and poured wealth into its walls. The Charter (Freibrief), conferred by Henry V. in 1111, gave to its citizens a monopoly of the carrying trade up and down the Rhine, and entitled them to destroy any baronial castle which might be built within 3 Germ. m. of their gates. The history of Spires during the Middle Ages is an alternate record of Imperial festivities and courtly show, and of tumult and violence within its walls, and deadly feuds and combats without. Its citizens, in those unquiet times were as well versed in arms as in trade. At one time they were called upon to issue from their walls to chastise the lawless rapacity of some feudal baron, who had waylaid their merchants and pillaged their property on the high road, and who often paid for his insolence by having his castle burnt about his ears and levelled with the ground; at another they were engaged in a quarrel with a neighbouring town, or with their bishop, or even with the Emperor himself. On several occasions armies of 20,000 men, composed of the levies of more than 100 different barons and towns, in vain laid siege to Spires, being repulsed by the bravery of the citizens. Now and then fortune declared against them, and they suffered from the plundering inroads of hostile armies. In the 14th cent. the city maintained in its pay an army of knights and soldiers, to whom it partly intrusted its defence, and whom it engaged to fight its battles. At length the Imperial edict, which abolished the right of private war in 1495, gave peace to Germany. The Imperial Chamber, Reichs-Kammergericht, by which its enactments were enforced, and all infringements of them punished, was established in 1513, at Spires, and this tribunal, the paramount court of appeal in Germany, existed here from that date until removed in 1689.

The trade and prosperity of Spires began to decay in the 17th cent.; but the final blow and the greatest injury was inflicted upon it by the French under Louis XIV. In 1689 the town was taken by the French, who shortly after issued a proclamation to the citizens, commanding them to quit it, with their wives and children, within the space of 6 days, and to betake themselves into Alsace, Lorraine, or Burgundy, but upon pain of death not to cross the Rhine. To carry into execution this tyrannic edict, a provost-marshal, at the head of 40 assistant executioners, marched into the town; they bore about them the emblems of their profession, in the shape of a gallows and wheel, embroidered on their dress. On the appointed day the miserable inhabitants were driven out by beat of drum, like a flock of sheep. The French soldiers followed them, after having plundered everything in the deserted town, which was then left to the tender mercies of executioners and incendiaries. In obedience to the commands of Montclair, the French commander, trains of combustibles were laid in the houses and lighted, and in a few hours the seven-and-forty streets of Spires were in a blaze. The conflagration lasted 3 days and 3 nights; but the destruction of the town did not cease even with this. Miners were incessantly employed in blowing up the houses, walls, fountains, and convents, so that the whole might be levelled with the dust and rendered uninhabitable. The Cathedral was dismantled, the graves of the Emperors burst open and their remains scattered. For ten years Spires lay a desolate heap of rubbish, until at last the impoverished inhabitants returned gradually to seek out the sites of their ancient dwellings. Since that time the town, although rebuilt, has never raised its head.

This, however, was not the last of the calamities which this ill-fated city was destined to endure and from foes of the same nation. In 1793 the revolutionary army under Custine burst upon the town, and, after 6 different assaults, carried it by storm, and repeated all the wanton acts of atrocity which their predecessors had enacted a century before. Previous to the siege of 1683 the town had 5 suburbs enclosed within ramparts, 13 gates, and 64 towers of defence provided with artillery. After twice suffering desolation so complete, it can hardly be expected to display many marks of its antiquity and former splendour in its buildings. From 1794 to 1812 the cathedral was desecrated and turned into a warehouse. In 1815, however, Spires fell to Bavaria, and the Dom was once more fitted for divine service, by King Maximilian I.; and his successor, Louis I. has restored it with a splendour only equalled by the modern churches of Munich: with some injury, however, to the antique character of the edifice.

The Dom or Cathedral* (admission by ticket, small fee; apply to sacristan), whose twin towers present a noble appearance from the Rhine, is almost the only edifice which has bid defiance to the destroyer. The French undermined it; but the order to fire the train was countermanded by Marshal Duras. In point of dimensions it is perhaps the most stupendous building in the Romanesque style existing. The 2 tall pointed towers and the semicircular termination at the E. end date from the 12th cent.: the Crypt, under choir and transept, is probably the only remaining portion of the original edifice, founded in 1027 by Conrad II. the Salic. The upper part of the church, as it now stands, arose after 1165. The W. front, tower, 225 ft. high, and the Porch (Kaiser's Halle) under it, were re-built 1854-58, by Hübsch—and modern statues of the kings and emperors interred here have been placed in it. All that was consumable in the W. end, cupola, nave, and choir, was burnt by the French, 1689, although they had promised to respect the building, and had thereby induced the citizens to fill it with their valuable goods and chattels, which, after being plundered by the spoilers, served as fuel to assist in consuming it.

The interior, originally severe and without ornament, has been decorated with frescoes by artists of the modern German school, including 30 large compositions by Joh. Schraudolph. The width (138 feet) and height (105 ft.) of the nave strike the beholder. The ch. is 474 ft. long. In the King's choir, between the nave and transept (or Hauptchor), is the Imperial Vault, in which 8 German Sovereigns were buried: Conrad II., Henry III., IV. and V., Philip of Swabia, Rudolph of Habsburg, Adolph of Nassau, and Albert of Austria. Since their graves were sacrilegiously broken open and plundered by the French in 1689 and 1794, it is difficult to say who remains behind. The Empr. Charles VI., the last of the male line of Habsburg, caused search to be made for the bones of his predecessors; some were found and reinterred, but to whom they belonged was not ascertained. The Duke of Nassau has raised to his ancestor Adolph a modern monument by Ohmacht; it consists of a kneeling figure of the King in armour, on a Romanesque sarcophagus of black Nassau marble. A statue of Rudolph of Habsburg has been erected by King Lewis of Bavaria; executed by Schwanthaler of Munich. The 32 frescoes of Scriptural and legendary subjects by Schraudolph and his scholars, covering the walls of choir and nave, are among the finest modern works in Germany. The Crypt, under the choir, supported by short massive columns, deserves a visit. Traces of the mines formed by the French in their design to blow up the building may still be perceived here; and here is placed the original gravestone of Rudolph of Habsburg, bearing his effigy carefully copied from the life. The font dates from the 9th or 10th cent. In the Sacristy are a set of vestments of the 14th cent., beautifully embroidered with subjects from Scripture, figures of the Apostles, &c.; they were brought from Aschaffenburg. The treasures of the sacristy disappeared at the Revolution. In the Chapel of St. Afra, of which a beautiful fragment exists on the N. side of the building, the remains of the Empr. Henry IV. were laid by his faithful subjects, the citizens of Worms, and remained 5 years unburied, until the removal of the papal ban of excommunication. The Dom is surrounded by agreeable pleasure-grounds extending down to the Rhine; on the S. side is the Oelberg, an emblematical representation of the Mt. of Olives in stone, date 1509. Near it is the Domnapf, a huge bowl filled with wine on the occasion of the installation of a new bishop, and marking the boundary between the former jurisdictions of the town and of the bishop. The bishopric of Spire was founded about 300, and refounded about 600. The temporal dominion of the bishop, along with the freedom of the city, ended in 1801. From that date until 1814 Spire was incorporated with France.

In the Hall of Antiquities, an open hall, N.E. side of the Dom, are deposited Roman remains found in Rhenish Bavaria, chiefly at Rheinzabern; pottery, with the moulds in which they were shaped, reliefs in stone and terra-cotta, glass vessels, lamps, votive tablets, spear-heads, sword-blades, a bronze statue of Mercury, and the eagle of a Roman legion. Also, some mediæval antiquities—a mutilated sculpture of the Mount of Olives, with scenes from the Passion; Gothic tracery and foliage in sandstone (1411), formerly in the cloisters.

The broad Maximilian Strasse extends W. from the Dom to the Alt Portal, an almost solitary relic of the old imperial city.

A ruined and unsightly wall, near the Prot. ch. (built 1717), is the only remaining relic of the Retscher, or Imperial palace, in which 29 Diets were held. It will be remembered that the "protest" of the Lutheran princes and cities asserting the right of Religious Liberty against the decree of the Diet held here in 1529 gave rise to the name of PROTESTANT.

There are pleasant walks round the town.

From Spires direct Rly. in progress N.E. to Heidelberg, and the line S. proceeds direct in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to Germersheim; whilst, following the Rhine, we pass (rt.) Philippsburg, named after Philip von Sotern, Bishop of Spires, who founded it at the beginning of the Thirty Years' War; it was formerly a fortress of the empire, and makes an important figure in the campaigns of Turenne. Its works were razed by the French in 1800. Marshal Berwick was killed under its walls, 1734. Large and unwholesome morasses, below the level of the Rhine, overspread the country.

8 m. Germersheim Junct. Stat., 1 m. from the Rhine (Inn: Elephant, poor). A miserable small town of 2000 Inhab., of which a barrack and a church-spire rising above the ramparts are alone visible from the river. The town was founded by King Rudolph of Habsburg, who died here, 1291. It has been often captured by the French. In 1835 it was converted into a strong fortress. [Branch Rly. W. 12 m. to Landau Stat., in Rte. 104, in progress S. for Carlsruhe.]

Bridge of boats over the Rhine.

There is a gold-washery here, in the sands of the Rhine. Ducats of Rhine gold are not uncommon in Baden.

Continuing the ascent of the Rhine, the traveller passes

Lauterburg, near which the Lauter river enters the Rhine, the boundary (since 1815) between Alsace and the Palatinate.

rt. Leopoldshafen (formerly called Schröck), a poor village without proper accommodation for travellers.

rt. Knielingen (Inn: Zum Rheinbad). Rly. W. to Winden on line between Landau and Strassburg (in Rte. 104), and E. to Carlsruhe (in Rte. 105), by floating bridge at Maxau.

Here is a villa of Margrave Max, of Baden. The rt. bank of the Rhine, all along the territory of Baden and Darmstadt, is lined with stone dykes, for the protection of the banks. More than 100,000 acres of good meadow-land have thus been gained.

rt. Iffetsheim, 6 m. from Baden-Baden, in Rte. 106.

1. Fort Louis, a fortress raised by Vauban, on an island, taken and razed by the Austrians 1793. The spire of Strassburg Cathedral is visible from this (27 m. off) in clear weather; and perhaps the best view of it is from the Rhine, higher up. Like Mt. Blanc, its height is not appreciated when you are near it.

1. Strassburg. In Rte. 104.

1. Below the bridge of Kehl a canal opens into the Rhine, connecting it with the Ill, and enabling steamers to penetrate into the heart of Strassburg.

ROUTE 103.

MANNHEIM TO METZ, BY LUDWIGSHAFEN, KAISERSLAUTERN, AND HOMBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 120 m.; time, 6 to 8 hrs.; 4 train daily.

Mannheim is described in Rte. 102.

The Rly. crosses the Rhine to Ludwigshafen, and then turns S. to 9 m. Schifferstadt Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E. to Spires and Germersheim (Rte. 102).]

The line proceeds S.W. to

10 m. Neustadt Junct. Stat. (Inn: Löwe). [Rly. N. to Mayence through Dürkheim and Armsheim, and S. through Landau and Hagenau to Strassburg (Rte. 104).]

The line now enters the Haardt mountains, and penetrates for 6 m. up the narrow winding valley of the Speierbach, through whose red sandstone rocks 11 short tunnels have been driven.

11 m. Frankenstein Stat. (Inn: Krone). Fine view from the castle of Frankenstein, and pleasant walk of $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the ruins of Diemerstein.

The watershed is reached at

3 m. Hochspeyer Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N. 30 m. to Münster-am-Stein Junct. Stat., thence to Bingen and Coblenz, &c. (see Rte. 99). The 2nd Stat. is Sembach, a little to the N.W. of which is the fine Gothic Ch. of Otterberg, begun by Conrad II., 1040, but completed much later.]

The line traverses a long tunnel to 6 m. Kaiserslautern Junct. Stat. (Inns: Schwan; Carlsberg), a town of 15,984 Inhab., in a very pretty situation. There are iron-works here, and the beer is esteemed. The strong castle, built by Frederick Barbarossa, was destroyed by the French in the War of the Palatinate, and a prison now occupies its place. Three successive engagements took place near this in 1793-94, between the French and Austro-Prussians. This is an important fruit mart, and there are considerable woollen manufactories here. [Branch Rly. N.E. to Enkenbach, there joining the line from Hochspeyer to Münster-am-Stein.]

9 m. Landstuhl Junct. Stat. (Inns: Engel; Krone; Post), a town of 1500 Inhab., which formerly belonged to the Barons of Sickingen, whose Castle in ruins overhangs the town; its walls are 24 ft. thick, and many of its chambers are hewn out of the rock. The brave and chivalrous Franz of Sickingen, the Cid and Bayard of Germany, the friend of Luther and of Götz of Berlichingen, lost his life (1523) in it, in a bold struggle to defend it from the besieging forces of his deadly and powerful enemies, the Archbishop of Trèves and the Landgrave of Hesse. His death was caused by a heavy beam detached by a cannon-ball from the roof, which fell on him and crushed him. He was buried under the altar of the Catholic church, where his monument, repaired after being mutilated by the French, may be seen. [Branch Rly. N.W. 17 m. to Cusel.]

12 m. Homburg Junct. Stat. (Inn, Pfalz), a town of 2840 Inhab., has a handsome Ch., built 1840. The fortress upon the Schlossberg, celebrated in the history of the Thirty Years' War, was razed 1714. The ruins on the Carlsberg, seen to the N.E., mark the site of an extensive castle built by the last Duke of Zweibrücken, and destroyed by the French in 1793.

[Branch Rly. S. 4 m. to Einöd Junct. Stat., whence branch W. 13 m. to St. Ingbert (Inn, Post), an important manufacturing town of the Pfalz, pop. 7000, and E. 2 m. to Zweibrücken (Inns: Zweibrücker Hof; Pfälzer Hof). A town of 9300 Inhab., in a very picturesque situation, once the capital of the duchy of Zweibrücken, or Deux Ponts. The dukes resided in the Palace, partly destroyed by the French, and now seat of the Supreme Court of Justice of the Rhenish Palatinate. Here is a District Goal. The name Zweibrücken is supposed to be derived from the two bridges leading across the river Erbach to the palace. As Charles Gustavus Duke of Pfalz - Zweibrücken mounted the throne in 1654, the Duchy fell, in 1681, to his son, Charles XII. of Sweden. Upon the latter's death, in 1718, the Duchy reverted to the Palatinate family, and in 1795 came to Maximilian Joseph, who, succeeding his brother as Elector of Pfalz-Bavaria in 1799, united all the lands of the House of Wittelsbach, and became the founder of the present Royal House of Bavaria. The series of the Classics known as "The Bipont Edition" was printed here by a society of learned men in 1779.]

MANNHEIM to STRASBURG

$$\begin{array}{r} 8 + 8 + 7 \\ \hline \end{array}$$

(BADEN)

(WILDBAD)

London, John Murray, Albemarle Street.

Edward Miller

From Homburg the line turns W. and enters a productive coalfield at 4 m. Bexbach Stat., thence to 3 m. Neunkirchen Junct. Stat. The remainder of the Rly. to 61 m. Metz, is described in Rte. 99.

ROUTE 104.

MAYENCE TO STRASSBURG, via ALZEY, MONSHEIM, DÜRKHEIM, NEUSTADT, LANDAU, ANNWEILER, TRIFELS, AND HAGENAU.—RAIL.

Distance, 132 m.; time, 9 hrs.; 1 train connects through daily.

Mayence is described in Rte. 38. The more direct line of Rly. via Ludwigshafen (Mannheim) in Rte. 102, joins this Route at Neustadt Junct. Stat. (see below).

The circle of the Rhine (Rhein-Kreis) includes much pleasing scenery among the chains of the Haardt and Vosges mountains, and many old towns and castles, interesting from their history, including the prison of Richard Cœur-de-Lion.

From Mayence this line proceeds S.E. to 21 m. Armsheim Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. N.W. to Bingen (see Rte. 38), and S.W. 3 m. to Flönheim].

4 m. Alzey Junct. Stat. (Inns: Darmstädter Hof; Post; Kaiser), an ancient town of 3500 Inhab. on the Selzbach, formerly belonging to the Rheinpfalz, but since 1815 to Hessen-Darmstadt. The Rathhaus is of the 16th cent. Good wines, [Branch Rly. S.W. to Marnheim on Rly. from Monsheim to Langmeil (see below), passing

7 m. Kirchheim-Boland Stat. (Inn: Löwe), a town of 3200 Inhab., having a fine church and iron-works in its vicinity.

From this Mont Tonnerre (Donnersberg) is about 6 m. distant. It is mentioned by Tacitus, who calls it Mons Jovis. During the French domination (1801 to 1814) it gave the name to a Department, of which Mayence was the chief town. The mountain is 2090 Par. ft. above the sea, and is composed of porphyry. The plateau at the top is planted with trees. It is encircled by a wall, whose origin is unknown, though it is supposed to be Roman. The best view is obtained from the Königstuhl (the highest point), the tower, 92 feet high, was erected 1865 for a trigonometrical survey. The view from the Melibocus on the opposite side of the Rhine is still finer.]

11 m. Monsheim Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. E. 4 m. to Worms (Rte. 102), W. to 18 m. Langmeil Stat. on line between Münster-am-Stein (Rte. 99) and Hochspeyer (Rte. 103).]

5 m. Grünstadt Stat. (Inn: Jacobs-lust), Pop. 3400. [3 m. W. is Göllheim (Inn: Hirsch), Pop. 1600, where King Adolf of Nassau was slain by the lance of his rival King Albert of Austria in 1298. A stone cross under an open chapel marks the spot. From here the traveller may proceed by the Donnersberg (see below) to Kreuznach, in Rte. 99.]

9 m. Dürkheim Stat. (Inns: H. Reitz, near Stat.; Vier Jahreszeiten; H. Häusling, warm and cold baths). This town, of 7500 Inhab., was once the residence of the Princes of Leiningen-Hartenburg, whose palace was burnt by the French, 1794; it was originally a fortress, but its works have long since been razed. It is now chiefly remarkable as a place of resort for invalids, who take the grape-cure (Trauben-Kur), and for its agreeable situation at the foot of the hills on the skirts of the plain of the Rhine, and at the entrance of the valley of the Isenach, up which runs the road to Kaiserslautern, and for its pleasing environs. The chief beauties of the Rheinpfalz begin at Dürkheim, on the borders of the Haardtgebirge, and should be explored on foot, with the aid of the numerous rlys.

Within a short distance lie the salt-works of Philipps hall. The summit of the nearest height, the Kastanienberg, is crowned by the Heidenmauer (Heathen's Wall), a rampart of loose stones 8 to 10 ft. high, 60 or 70 wide at the base, enclosing a space of about 2 m. The Romans are said to have built it to keep in check the barbarians: and Attila is reported to have passed the winter in it, after having expelled the Romans, and when on his way to take possession of Rome itself. It has given a name to a novel of Cooper. Near it is the Devil's Stone (Teufel's-Stein), a natural rock, bearing the impression of a gigantic paw, on which the pagans are said to have sacrificed. A pleasing view from it over the plain of the Palatinate, along the Rhine and Neckar as far as Heidelberg, and the near prospect of fertile and industrious valleys.

At the entrance of the Isenachthal, at the top of a hill nearly encircled by the stream, stand the graceful ruins of the Benedictine Abbey of Limburg, with its vast Romanesque church, founded 1030, by Conrad the Salic, in the style of the Dom of Spires, and destroyed by the Swedes 1632. The height on which it stands commands fine views, and is now converted into gardens. A ch. tower (a good point of view), a crypt, and part of the cloister remain. Within sight of the ruins of the abbey are those of Hartenburg, the castle of the Counts of Leiningen, its greatest enemies, who were engaged in constant feuds with the monks, and burnt the abbey in 1504. One of the Raugrafs of Hartenburg, having made the abbot his prisoner, built his head into the wall of the castle, with his face towards the abbey, that he might see the conflagration of it. In 1794 the castle was destroyed by the French.

The Rly. continues S. from Dürkheim, through an important wine district, to 4 m. Deidesheim Stat. (Inn, Baierischer Hof), famous for the wines produced in the neighbouring vineyards, the excellence of which is mainly due to the great care bestowed on the cultivation. Large quantities of the finer Deidesheimers are sold under the name of the more costly vintages of the Rheingan. Each acre involves an outlay of about 25*l.* per annum, half of which is for labour alone. Geologists will remark the eruption of basalt, proceeding from the mountain called Pechstein-Kopf: the basalt assumes the shape of balls, and is largely used on the vineyards.

4 m. Neustadt an der Haardt Junct. Stat. (Inns: Löwe, near the Rly.; Krone; Schiff). This town of 8000 Inhab. is old and uninviting within, but its situation at the foot of the Haardt mountains is delightful. Its Church, dating from 1356, contains monuments of several Pfalzgrafs. In the fore-court, called the Paradise, some remains of ancient fresco paintings may be traced. The neighbourhood abounds in ruined castles, many being reduced to their present condition in the Peasants' War (1525).

On the hill above the town rise the ivy-clad ruins of the Castle Winzingen, called Haardter Schlösschen (originally the summer residence of the Electors Palatine, now attached to a modern villa), and Wolfsburg, destroyed in the Thirty Years' War. It commands a fine view, extending as far as Heidelberg castle; the interior is not shown. About 2 m. S. of Neustadt is the Marburg, formerly Castle of Hambach, built by the Emp. Henry IV., who is said to have set out from here to Italy, in 1077, to appease the anger of the haughty Pope Gregory VII. It was presented by the Rheinkreis to the Crown Prince, afterwards King Maximilian II. of Bavaria, on his marriage, and he has built a modern castle on the old foundations, part of which are Roman probably. View fine, but inferior to that from the Madenburg.

Near Neustadt very extensive quarries are excavated in the Buntersandstein and Muschelkalk; the latter abounds in fossils.

[Rly. N.E. to Schifferstadt Junct. Stat., thence N. to Ludwigshafen (Mannheim) and Mayence, and S. to Spires (see Rte. 102). W. to Saarbrücken for Metz (Rte. 103).] The Strassburg line continues S., passing

5 m. Edenkoben Stat. (Inn: Schaaf, good), a town of 4500 Inhab., surrounded by vineyards, producing a wine of inferior quality. Near it is the Royal Villa Ludwigshöhe, and the ch. and tower of the ruined convent Heilsbruck.

The Queich, which formed the ancient boundary between the Palatinate and Alsatia, and was defended by ramparts called the Landau lines, is crossed.

5 m. Landau Junct. Stat. (Inns: Schwan; Pfälzer Hof). This former free town, upwards of 1 m. from the rly., Pop. 12,000, garrison 3500, is situated on the Queich, and has been an object of contest in every great European war from the 15th cent. Consequently its history is nothing but a succession of sieges, blockades, bombardments, captures, and surrenders. During the Thirty Years' War it was taken seven times, by the Imperialists, Swedes, and French. In 1680 it was seized by King Louis XIV., and afterwards fortified by Vauban, and was considered impregnable until 1702, when it was taken by Prince Lewis of Baden. From 1714 to 1815 it remained in the hands of the French. It stood a siege of 9 months in 1793, in the course of which 30,000 shells, &c., were thrown into it. In the following year the powder magazine blew up. On the tower of the arsenal (a desecrated ch.), hangs the tin cap of Liberty, painted red, stuck up by the French, 1793. The only church is decorated (?) with a monument to the Baron de Montclair. [Schnellpost daily in 1 hr. to 4 m. N.W.]

Bad Glasweiler, a sheltered bathing-place in the Haardt mountains, frequented even in winter (good accommodation). From Landau

An agreeable excursion may be made to the Madenburg, 8 m., S.E. near Eschbach (Günter's Inn), the most perfect castle in the Rheinpfalz, which long was the property of the Bishops of Spires, ruined by the French 1689. The view from it is the finest in the district. A guide should be engaged at Eschbach to cross the hills to Trifels, 5 m. to the E. The walk from it through the woods to Annweiler, taking Trifels by the way, is about 8 m.

[Branch Rly. 9 m. (6 trains daily in 35 min.) up the pretty valley of the Queich, a beautiful pass of the Vosges, to Annweiler Stat. (Inns: Trifels; Rother Ochse). This is a town of 2600 Inhab., on the Queich. The ruined castle of Trifels, memorable as the prison of Richard Cœur-de-Lion, is 5 m. distant. It occupies the summits of three distinct conical rocks, as its name implies, called Trifels, Anebos, and Scharfenberg. An agreeable path, 1½ hr.'s walk, leads up to it from the town. The chief remains are a tower, of large blocks of stones 80 ft. high. The subterranean dungeon, in which, according to tradition, Richard was confined, and watched night and day by guards with drawn swords, is still pointed out. After being captured by his treacherous enemy, Duke Leopold of Austria, on his return from the Holy Land, Richard was sold by him for 30,000 marks of silver to the Emp. Henry VI., who basely detained him a prisoner from 1192 to 1194. It was probably beneath these walls that the song of the faithful minstrel Blondel first succeeded in discovering the prison of his master, by procuring the vocal response from the royal troubadour. In 1193 his jailor, the Emp., brought Richard in chains before the Diet at Hagenau, to answer the charge of the murder of Conrad of Montferrat, which he repelled with such manly and persuasive eloquence, so clearly proving his innocence, that the Diet at once acquitted him, and ordered his chains to be knocked off. In 1194 he was released from Trifels in consideration of a ransom of 130,000 marks of silver.

The castle of Trifels stands on the summit of a singular mountain of sandstone (Buntersandstein) called the Sonnenberg, 1422 ft. above the sea-level. It was a favourite residence of the German emperors, and must have been a place of great magnificence as well as strength. Frederick Barbarossa, and many of his predecessors and successors, held their court here, and the Regalia of the empire were deposited within its walls for security. It was also used as a state prison for many unfortunate captives besides Richard of England. Taken by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War, it has remained a ruin, but has something imposing even in its present state. The chapel has been stripped, and the marble pillars removed from it to the ch. of Annweiler. On the top of Scharfenberg rises a tower 100 ft. high; the ditch around it is hewn out of the rock.

Annweiler contains nothing remarkable, but the scenery of the valley of the Queich, for 12 m. above it, should not be left unseen. The scenery between Annweiler and Dahn is particularly interesting from the extraordinary forms assumed by the sandstone rocks, which have been split and fissured in all directions. At Willgartswiesen (Inn: Lamm; good and cheap), 6 to 8 m., is a pretty modern Ch. with twin towers. A walk of 2 hrs. by Hauenstein, with a guide, brings you to Dahn (Inns: Pfalz; St. George), near which rises the overhanging rock called Jungfernsprung.]

Rlys. from Landau N. to Mayence (see above); E. to Germersheim in Rte. 102, and S. the line to Strassburg continues by

7 m. Winden Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. W. 6 m. to Berg-Zabern (Inn: Engel), an old town beautifully situated, with large Schloss; E. 17 m. to Maximiliansau on the l. bank of the Rhine, whence floating bridge to Maxau, and rly. to Carlsruhe (in Rte. 105).]

The Lauter down to 1871 formed the boundary between Germany and France, and is crossed before reaching 10 m. Weissenburg Stat. Omnibus from rly. (Inns: Engel; Löwe; Krone; Schwan.) A quaint old walled town, and former free city, Pop. 5400, prettily situated on the river Lauter. It was annexed to France in 1692, and up to 1871 was in the Depart. of Bas Rhin in Alsace, but now re-united to Germany. This was the scene of the first battle in the late Franco-German war.

A pedestrian may see the town and the battle-field in about 3 hrs., thus:—

From the Rly. Stat., which is 5 min. walk outside and S. of the town, turn to the rt., past a handsome monument of the 3rd Posen Regt., with inscription "Das erste Preussengrab für Deutschland's Einheit," and taking the road to the rt., cross the rly., and follow a footpath, leading in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.'s gentle ascent straight up the face of the Geisberg, to the 3 poplars where General Douay fell, a little to the rt. of the farm on the top, which still bears marks of the fight. From this point a fine view is obtained, embracing the heights of Schweigen and the town on l. with the river Lauter, and the village of Altenstadt in the foreground, backed by the forest, which crosses the plain like a black cloud. Parallel with the S. bank of the Lauter may be traced the famous Weissenburg lines, consisting of a system of parapets strengthened at intervals by redoubts extending nearly 18 m. from the town of Weissenburg to the Rhine at Lauterburg. These lines, now levelled in many places by the riparian owners, were constructed between 1704–6, by 11,000 men under Marshal Villars, and were forced in Dec. 1793 by the French under Gen. Hoche in the teeth of Wurmser's Austrians, who occupied them, supported by the Prussians under the Duke of Brunswick.

On the 3rd Aug. 1870, General Abel Douay, in command of the 2nd division of MacMahon's Army Corps, occupied the town and lines of Weissenburg, and protected them by heavy batteries and the greater part of his force posted on the Geisberg. Here, in order to cover MacMahon's flank march from Strassburg to Bitche, Douay awaited the attack of the Crown Prince of Prussia at the head of the 3rd army, forming the l. wing of the German forces. At 9 A.M. on the dark and rainy morning of the 4th Aug. the whole of Douay's front was simultaneously attacked. By 10 the Lauter was crossed, and an hour later Altenstadt occupied. About noon, the barricaded gates of the town having been blown in by artillery, a hand-to-hand fight in the streets ended in what remained of the garrison being made prisoners. Upon this the French forces were concentrated in a semicircle corresponding with the form of the Geisberg, and then the assault on this strong and stoutly-defended position was undertaken. Here the chassepot infantry weapon showed a decided superiority in range over the needle-gun, but the mitrailleuse battery fell short of the expectations entertained of it by the French. Outflanked, outnumbered, and their commander killed, the French withdrew, and at 1.30 the Crown Prince of Prussia rode on to the top of the Geisberg. The remainder of the battle was merely a rear-guard fight kept up to cover the retreat towards Hagenau. The French loss consisted of 1200 killed and wounded, upwards of 1000 prisoners, and the whole of the baggage. The loss of the Germans was probably greater.

The results of the victory were considerable, for Weissenburg, lying between the Vosges, the Haardt, the Rhine, and the Lauter, is the key to Alsace. The great road from Strassburg to Bitche was now open to the Germans, the rt. flank of MacMahon's army exposed, and Strassburg isolated.

Crossing the Geisberg, turning to the rt. and descending into the Hagenau-~~road~~, a short distance before reaching the town is seen the Friedhof (cemetery), in which is the Tomb of General Douay, together with the graves of a large number of French soldiers, including Zouaves and Turcos.

Entering the town by the picturesque Porte de Hagenau, part of the fortifications erected in 1746 by Cormontaigne, and proceeding straight down the main street past the Hôtel de Ville, built in 1714 to replace an older edifice destroyed in the fire of 1677, on the rt. is seen the Porte de Landau, and on l. across the Lauter the

Ch. of SS. Peter and Paul: a fine specimen of the Gothic of the second half of the 13th cent., with a remarkable massive square tower at the W. end, the only remains of the 12th-cent. Ch. previously existing.

The ch. and town owe their origin to a Benedictine monastery founded in 623 by Dagobert I., King of Austrasia, and secularised in 1526. Here the monk Otfried wrote in 865 the paraphrase of the Gospels in Allemannish rhyme, which is the earliest extant composition in the German language.

The present ch. is cruciform with a nave of 7 bays, a short apsidal choir, and octagonal tower at the crossing.

In the interior, obs.: an elegant Gothic sepulchre on W. side of S. aisle; a statue of Dagobert against the pillar under the organ; the remains of painting on the walls, especially in S. transept; some fragments of fine stained glass, and the curious sculpture of the birth of the Saviour over the door at the N.W. corner of the transept leading to the mutilated remains of the elegant Gothic 14th-cent. Cloisters, adjoining which is a curious small chapel of the 11th cent.

Parallel with the S. side of the ch. is the Stanislas Strasse, where about $\frac{1}{2}$ way down on l. is the College Stanislas, part of which dates from 1722, and occupies the site of the house where, after abandoning the Duchy of Zweibrücken, in 1720, Stanislas Leczynski resided. Here, in 1725, the Duke d'Antin came to ask for his daughter Maria as the wife of Louis XV.

Following the Lauter northward, a very picturesque quarter of the town is reached, with the Lauter running through the middle of the street terminated a little to the l. of the Porte de Bitche by a tower, a remnant of the fortifications existing in the Middle Ages.

Regaining the Porte de Hagenau the Rly. Stat. will be found a short distance on l.

The line for Strassburg continues S. to 10 m. Sulz unter dem Walde Stat. A petroleum spring exists here worked by a German Co. From this point a good road W. 13 m. crosses the Battle-field of Wörth to Reichshofen Stat. (see Excursions from Niederbronn, Rte. 99B).

The line enters the forest before reaching 10 m. Hagenau Junct. Stat. (Inn: H. de la Poste, good). An industrious town of 11,427 Inhab., on the Moder, formerly a free city of the German Empire, annexed to France in 1648, but in 1871 reunited to Germany.

Entering the town from the rly. stat., which is outside the walls, a short distance down the street, on the l. is seen the irregular and picturesque outline of the

Ch. of St. George, the W. front, nave, and octagonal tower of which date from 1137, when the Emp. Conrad III. built the original church, subsequently added to by Frederick I., Rudolph of Habsburg, and Albert I. Unfortunately, the primitive simplicity and severity of the interior is marred by a redundancy of modern ornamentation in bad taste.

Continuing down the Landweg (or principal street) at the opposite end of the town, is the

Ch. of St. Nicholas (13th cent.), of unimportant exterior, but of which the interior has been judiciously restored. Obs. on the l., just inside the entrance, a remarkable stone sepulchre in high relief, dating from 1418.

There are a few picturesque remains of the ancient fortifications, but the palace has disappeared in which Richard Cœur de Lion, when a prisoner of the Emp. Henry VI., appeared before the Diet summoned here in March 1193.

The Protestant Ch. is close to the S.E., or Bischweiler Gate.

The cattle-market held here is greatly frequented, and there is a considerable trade in woollen goods.

Rly. W. to Saarbrücken and Metz (see Rte. 99).

The line proceeds S. to

6 m. Bischweiler Stat., a well-known little cloth-manufacturing town of 9911 Inhab., on the Moder, and crosses the Zorn just before reaching

5 m. Hoerdt Stat., and passes through the forest of Brumath to 5 m. Vendenheim Junct. Stat.

Rly. W. to Nancy and Paris (see Rte. 99c).

6 m. Strassburg (Fr. Strasbourg) Junct. Stat. (Buffet). There is a comfortable room for washing and dressing. Omnibus from rly.

Inns: H. Ville de Paris, handsome, expensive, but comfortable. Breakfast in salle, 1 fr. 50; in private, 2 fr. Table-d'hôte at 12, 4 fr.; at 6.30, 5 fr.; service 1 fr.; H. Maison Rouge (Kleber Platz), back rooms look into a glazed court; H. Vignette (Rebstock), good German inn; H. de France; H. d'Angleterre, near stat., not good.

Café-Restaurants: Broglie, and others in the Place Broglie.

Post-Office, near the Cathedral, and numerous letter-boxes throughout the town.

This important frontier fortress, Pop. 85,529 (31,000 Prot., 3000 Jews), is capital of Alsace and Germ. Lorraine. It was the Argentoratum of the Romans, situated on the river Ill about 1½ m. W. of the Rhine, and was a free Imperial city from the 11th cent. until 1681, when Louis XIV. obtained possession of the town by stratagem. It remained in the possession of the French without, however, losing its German aspect, until, by the Treaty of Frankfurt in 1871, it, and nearly the whole of Alsace, was annexed to Germany.

With the occasional aid of a conveyance, the most important objects of interest may be seen in a few hours.

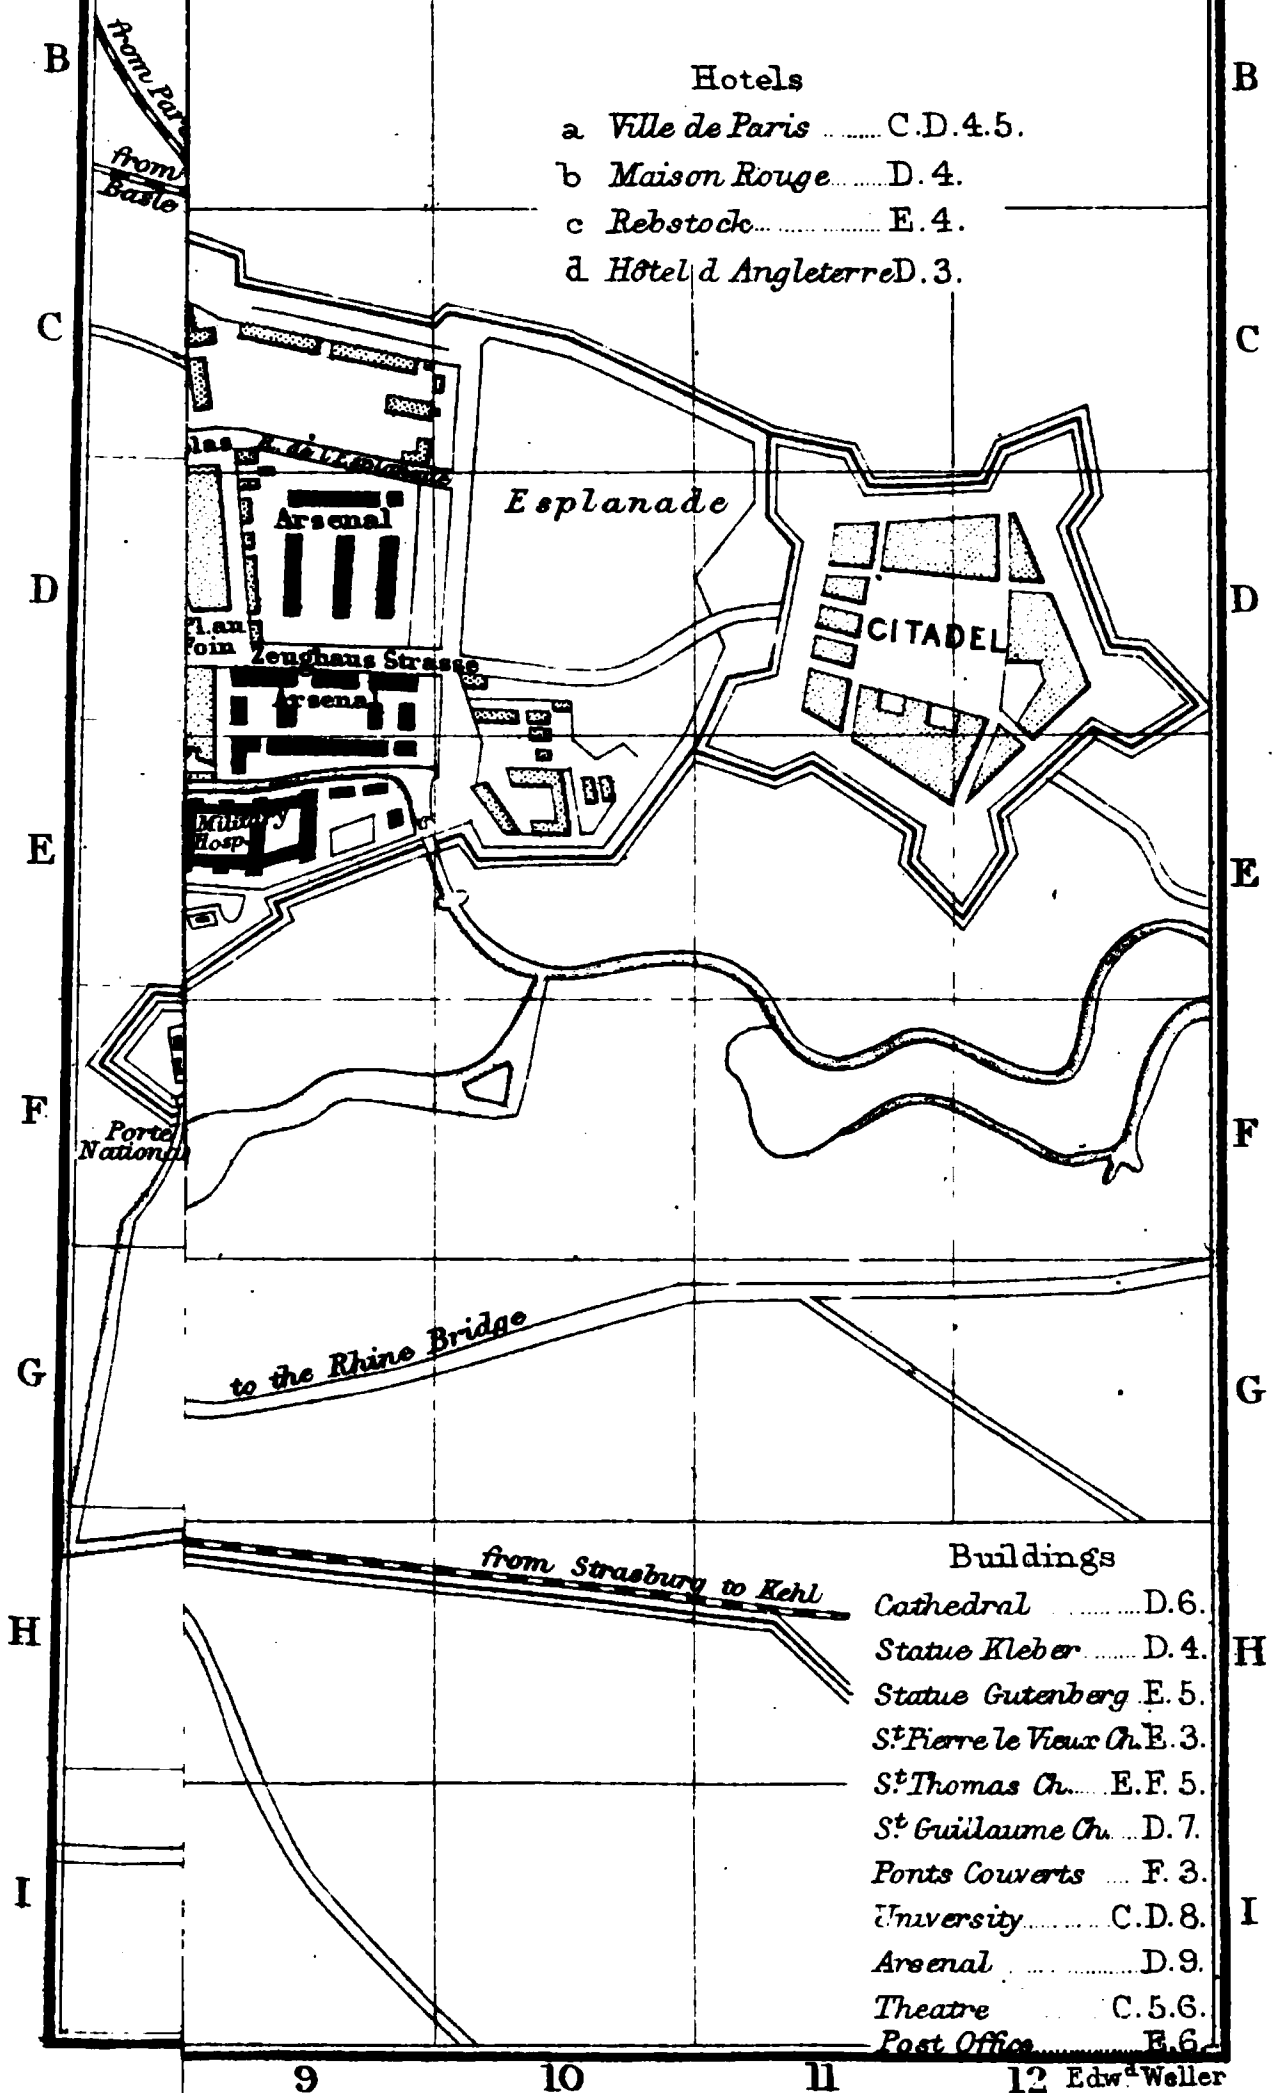

Entering the city from the Rly. Stat., on its N.W. side, you cross one arm of the river Ill, which, dividing as it enters the town, forms a circle of about 3 m.,

STRASBURG

For Murray's Handbook.

Hotels

- a Ville de Paris C.D.4.5.
- b Maison Rouge D.4.
- c Rebstock E.4.
- d Hôtel d Angleterre D.3.

making an island of the central portion. Joining the canal du Rhin au Rhone, and the canals de Bourgogne and du Centre, the Ill brings the city into water communication with Switzerland, Holland and Belgium, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

Crossing either of the two bridges, and proceeding S. by the Rue de la Gare, the N.W. corner is reached of the largest square in the town, the . Place Kleber, so called since 1840, from the monument erected in the centre to Gen. Kleber, born here 6th March, 1753, stabbed at Cairo, 14th June, 1800. The bronze statue is by Graes, surmounting a pedestal adorned with bas-reliefs of the battles of Altenkirchen, 1796, and Heliopolis, 1800. The N. side of the square was occupied by a building containing the offices of the Governor of the town and the Museum of Painting and Sculpture, but the whole was burnt (25 Aug. 1870) during the bombardment of the town, leaving only the bare walls of the handsome façade standing.

Passing the H. Maison Rouge, and leaving the square at the S.W. corner, the Rue des Tanneurs will lead into the Langstrasse (Grande Rue) which under different names bisects the town. At the western extremity of this street stands the Old St. Peter's Ch., which was divided between Protestants and Catholics; for Strassburg has always been a great stronghold of Protestantism, in spite of the efforts of Louis XIV. to stamp it out. The nave (date 1428 over S.W. door), the Protestant part, still remains; but the choir, becoming too small for Catholic wants, has been pulled down, and a handsome new Romanesque ch. erected with its back against the Protestant portion.

The Quai Turckheim terminates in the Ponts Couverts over the Ill, so called because formerly covered and connected with the fortifications, and flanked with the four tall massive square towers still remaining.

Whilst crossing the bridge, obs. on l.

the picturesque view down the canals and on rt. the Grande Ecluse,—locks, originally the work of Vauban, but since reconstructed. By their means, during the siege of the town, the whole of the country surrounding the fortifications was laid under water except the N.W. side, from which direction only the Germans could make their approaches.

Following the Rue and Place Finkwiller, and crossing the Ill, a short street leads direct to the W. front of the Protestant Ch. of St. Thomas (apply to Sacristan, 1 Place St. Thomas, small fee), founded by Bishop Adeloeh (died 830), whose tomb is in the interior. The square W. tower belongs to the original edifice standing in 1031; the octagonal Gothic E. tower is of later date. The choir, older than the nave, is of the 13th cent. It suffered somewhat during the bombardment, but some portions of fine stained glass still remain. Occupying the place of the high altar is the Monument of Marshal Saxe, erected to his memory by Louis XV., the masterpiece of the sculptor Pigalle, and the result of 25 years' labour. It represents the General descending with a calm mien into the grave, while France, personified in a female figure, endeavours to detain him, and at the same time to stay the threatening advance of Death. It is looked upon as a very successful effort of the chisel: though somewhat theatrical, there is a tenderness of expression about the female figure which is truly charming. This monument was saved from destruction at the Revolution by a citizen of Strassburg, named Mangelschott, who covered it up with bundles of hay and straw, the church having been turned into a straw store. Schöpflin, and a brother of the pastor Oberlin, are buried in this church. Two bodies, said to be of a Count of Nassau Saarwerden and his daughter, are shown, on account of the perfect state in which flesh and clothes have been preserved after the lapse of more than a century.

The Rue des Serruriers leads into the Gutenberg's-platz, in which is the bronze statue of Gutenberg, by David of Angers, erected in 1840 to commemorate the earliest attempt at printing made here in 1430, with the assistance of Peter Schöffer, a native of the town, though Gutenberg perfected his invention at Mayence.

From this square the Rue Mercière leads direct to the magnificent red-brown sandstone W. front of the Cathedral (Münster), one of the noblest Gothic edifices existing, begun in 1015, on the site of an earlier church founded by Clovis 496. The present W. front is due to the architect Erwin of Steinbach, to whom the work was entrusted in 1277, continued by his son John after his death in 1318, and then completed by his daughter Sabina (all three lie interred within the ch.), except the towers, only one of which has been erected, and this (468 ft. above the pavement) not finished until 1439. The door for the ascent of the tower is at the S.W. corner of the building (small fee to the platform), where the city fire-watch is stationed, and from which a magnificent panorama is enjoyed, embracing the town, of which the Cathedral occupies nearly the centre, the valley of the Rhine, the Vosges, and the Black Forest. Another small fee is charged for admittance to the first gallery of the tower, and an extra charge is made to ascend the spire, a proceeding not without danger to persons liable to giddiness, owing to the extreme openness of the light and delicate stonework. Amongst the names of visitors cut in the stone may be seen those of Göthe, Lavater, Voltaire, &c. The cross surmounting the whole was struck during the bombardment, but has since been repaired.

Descending to the body of the church, the W. front deserves special examination.

"The gigantic mass, over the solid part of which is thrown a netting of detached arcades and pillars, which look like a veil of cast iron, contains a circular window 48 ft. in diameter, and rises to the height of 230 ft.: i.e. higher than the Towers of York Minster."—Hope.

"The building," says Dr. Whewell, "looks as though it were placed behind a rich open screen, or in a case of woven stone. The effect of the combination is very gorgeous, but with a sacrifice of distinctness from the multiplicity and intersections of the lines." The Triple Portal in the W. front deserves to be studied, on account of its sculptures, statues, and reliefs; as do also the statues of the Church and the Synagogue, the Wise and Foolish Virgins, which are originals of the 13th cent., and the porch on the S. side, attributed to Sabina, the daughter of Erwin. Although the greater portion of these carvings are modern, the originals having been destroyed by the democrats of the Revolution, who likewise melted down the great doors of brass into sous-pieces, yet they have been restored with a perfect exactness. The group of the Death of the Virgin is executed in a masterly manner.

This cathedral is little more than a nave of the grandest proportions, 100 ft. high, 140 ft. wide, of 7 great arches, a beautiful example of German Gothic of the 13th cent. Obs. the size of the piers supporting the tower, 80 ft. in circumference. The E. end is poor and diminutive. It is raised on a Romanesque crypt referred to the 12th cent. The most remarkable objects in the interior are the rich painted glass, executed partly in 1348, partly in the 15th cent., the vast and beautiful marigold windows, the pulpit of carved stone (date 1486), and the famous Clock in the S. transept. This is really a scientific astronomical clock, the work of a native clockmaker, Schwilgué (1842), replacing that of Dasipodius (1571), which was worn out. It shows, above, the Ch. calendar, position of the stars, course of sun and moon. Although there is a partial performance of the puppets every half-hour, the machinery is put into full motion only at 12 o'clock. The quarters are struck by an angel on the lower gallery, while a Genius reverses the hour-glass. The hours are struck above, by a figure of Death, while a boy, a youth, a man, and an old man, around him, represent the quarters. The seven days of the week are figured by the Heathen Gods, who presided over them—Sunday by Apollo, &c. In the upper recess is a figure of Christ; and at 12 o'clock the 12 Apostles issue forth, and in turn make obeisance. The adjoining turret, which contains the weights, is surmounted by a Cock, which at 12 crows and flaps his wings. The S. transept where it stands is supported by a beautiful single pillar, ornamented with statues: above the Gothic border, which runs along the wall, is a figure of the architect of the minster, Erwin of Steinbach: he is interred here; in 1835 his tombstone was discovered in the little court behind the chapel of St. John. His statue has been erected in the porch on the S. side of the nave.

In the S.W. corner of the Münster Platz is a gabled Renaissance house (1581), called Frauenhaus (House of our Lady) or de la Fabrique, or de l'Œuvre, belonging to the Cathedral, with an elegant winding staircase. Here are preserved the ancient architectural drawings on parchment of the Cathedral on a working scale, and parts of the works of the original Minster clock, and casts of some of its best sculptures.

Facing the S. door of the Cathedral is the Schloss, formerly the Bishop's Palace, now containing the University Library (200,000 vols.). It was built in 1731 by Cardinal Rohan. The river façade is handsome, and may be seen whilst crossing the Ill at the Pont St. Madeleine, from which the street of the same name leads to the extensive Barracks on the site of the convent of St. Catherine (1242). Near the western end of these barracks is the Porte Dauphine, and farther on the Porte de l'Hôpital (Metzger-Thor), the latter leading to the Rly. Stat. for Kehl.

Turning N. and crossing the canal at the back of what was the French Government Tobacco Manufactory, the Rue des Poules and the Rue des Bestiaux will lead to the Zeughaus

Strasse, of which street both sides are occupied by the extensive buildings of the Arsenal—the third largest establishment of the kind the French possessed—beyond which, separated by the Esplanade, lies the Citadel, originally constructed under the direction of Vauban, between 1682–84, but converted into a heap of ruins by the German batteries erected on the Baden side of the Rhine, near Kehl, during the bombardment of the town. The Germans commenced rebuilding it 1873, and it, together with a system of 7 detached forts, at a distance of 4 to 5 m. outside the walls, and in combination with 2 forts on the Baden side of the Rhine, will be substituted for the girdle of horn-works and lunettes, and make the position one of unusual strength.

Returning by the Rue de l'Esplanade into the Place St. Nicholas, on the l. is seen the University founded in 1566, endowed with new privileges in 1621, suppressed during the French Revolution, and in 1872 re-organized by Emp. William of Germany. Schöpfung, Oberlin, Schweighäuser, Chr. Koch, the jurist, &c., were students here, and Göthe, who resided at the house No. 80 on the S. side of the Fischmarkt, completed his studies and took the degree of Doctor of Laws here in 1772. It contains also a Library and a Museum of Natural History on the 2nd floor.

Passing the Botanic Garden, the street leading to the river has at its extremity the Ch. of St. Guillaume, containing the remains of fine stained glass and the tomb of Count Ulrich, Landgrave of Lower Alsace (died 1344), and of his brother Philip (died 1332), and a curious bas-relief in wood.

Crossing the bridge facing the ch., and following the river past, on the l., the Ch. of St. Etienne, the quay Lezay Marnéséa terminates at the Prefecture, which, together with the handsome Theatre, was burnt during the bombardment, but now rebuilt.

The bridge opposite leads across the canal to the Porte des Juifs, outside which are the two Public Parks of Le Contades and La Robertsau, communicating with each other across the Ill, but the trees round the fortifications were cut down during the war.

On the l. of the Place Broglie—a fine promenade with the best cafés in the town—is the Hôtel de Ville, with the entrance in the Rue Brûlée (Brand-strasse), so called because 2000 Jews, accused of causing the plague in 1348 by poisoning the wells, were burnt here.

Unhappily the block of buildings adjoining was destroyed during the bombardment, including the beautiful Temple Neuf and the famous Library, though the Protestant School escaped with the loss of its roof.

At the corner of the Rue de la Mésange and the Rue de l'Eglise is the handsome façade of the Hôt. de la Ville de Paris, and at the opposite corner is the shop of Henri, one of the best makers of the celebrated pâtés de foie gras, made of the livers of geese, which are enlarged to an unnatural size by the process of shutting the birds up singly in coops, and stuffing them twice a day with maize, the grains whole, but steeped in water. Each bird is taken out of the coop at feeding-time and placed on a form, wrapped round with a cloth to prevent its wings flapping, and crammed as turkeys are in Norfolk. The geese are generally kept in a dark cellar, and the winter is the season for fattening them, coolness being essential. There is such a coop in almost every house in the town. Sulphur is steeped in the water given to the birds, to increase their appetite. Instances are known of a goose's liver having attained the weight of 2 or even 3 lbs.

The Rue de l'Eglise leads to the Ch. of St. Pierre le Jeune, passing between which and the Palais de Justice, and crossing the canal, the Rly. Stat. may be regained by the Rue de la Toussaint in the Steingasse Faubourg, a part of the town almost entirely destroyed during the bombardment, including the immense Finkmatt Barrack, the scene of Louis Napoleon's attempt against the Government of Louis Philippe in 1836.

The trade of this great city consists mainly in wine, corn, flax, hops, hemp, linen, carpets, hardware, leather, lace, tobacco, and beer.

Shortly after the defeat of the French at Wörth (8 Aug. 1870) had opened the road to the Germans, their investing army began to concentrate around Strassburg, and after the refusal of Gen. Uhrich to surrender the town, the bombardment began (24th Aug.). By the 27th 241 siege guns were directed against the town, and in the night of the 29th the first parallel, running from the village of Schiltigheim to the Paris rly., was opened.

It was not, however, until the bombardment had lasted 7 weeks, causing great destruction in the town and killing and wounding upwards of 1300 civilians, and after two breaches had been effected in the walls near the Stein Thor (Porte de Pierres), the outworks of which the enemy's approaches already included, that the French commander hoisted the white flag at the Cathedral. On 28th Sept. the garrison of 451 officers and 17,000 men laid down their arms and marched out, leaving 1070 guns and the town in the possession of the Germans.

Excursion to Kehl. By Rly. see Rte. 104A. By road the distance from Strassburg to the Bridge over the Rhine at Kehl is rather more than 3 m. On the way thither to the rt., in the middle of the Ile des Epis, formed by a branch of the Rhine, is a monument inscribed "Au Général Desaix—l'Armée du Rhin—1801," bearing a medallion portrait of him; and bas-reliefs representing the passage of the Rhine, the battle of the Pyramids, and his death at Marengo. His body lies on the summit of the Great St. Bernard.

From the Bridge of boats there is a fine view over the Rhine. For the description of Kehl, and the Rly. bridge, see Rte. 104A.

Excursions into the Vosges mountains (see Rtes. 165, 167, 168, Hndbk. for France, and Rte. 107 below).

Rlys. from Strassburg—N. to Spires, Mannheim, Mayence (see Rtes. 102 and 104); N.W. through Niederbronn and Saargemünd to Saarbrücken and Metz (see Rte. 99); W. to Nancy and Paris (see Rte. 99c); S.W. to Mutzig, &c.; S. through Schlettstadt and Mühlhausen to Basle (see Rte. 107); E. (Travellers may join most of the trains at the Metzger-Thor Stat. on the S. side of Strassburg), through Kehl to Appenweier, whence N. to Baden-Baden, Carlsruhe, Heidelberg, and Frankfurt on the Main, and S. to Freiburg and Basle (Rtes. 105 and 106).

3 m. Kehl Stat. (Buffet.) (Inns: Post, or Weisses Lamm; Saumon).

At the confluence of the Kinzig and Schutter with the Rhine, though dignified by the name of a town, resembles more nearly a village. Pop. 2000. It was once a strong fortress of the German empire, strengthened as a bulwark against France, and has consequently been bombarded, burned, and razed several times by French armies on crossing the Rhine.

From batteries at Kehl, placed so as to be out of sight of Strassburg, that city and its citadel were bombarded by the Germans in 1870. The operations of the engineer officer were directed from the top of a steeple out of reach of French shells, communications being carried on by telegram with the working parties in the trenches. Kehl suffered a good deal from the return fire.

The line continues E. to 12 m. Appenweier Junct. Stat. For the Rly. hence N. to 17 m. Oos Junct. Stat., see Rte. 105, and thence S.E. to 3 m. Baden-Baden, see Rte. 106.

ROUTE 104A.

STRASSBURG TO BADEN-BADEN, BY KEHL AND APPENWEIER.—RAIL.

Distance, 35 m.; time, 1½ hr. 6 trains daily.

Strassburg is described in Rte. 104.

From the principal stat. on the N.W. side of the city the line makes a wide S.W. sweep round to the Metzger-Thor Stat., which is outside the city, on the S. side of the Ill. (Here travellers may join most of the trains.) The line then proceeds E., and, passing the old citadel, crosses the Rhine close to the bridge of boats by an iron lattice bridge of 5 spans on 4 piers, erected 1861. The first military operation of the Germans in the Franco-German war of 1870 was the blowing up, in July, of the E. end of this bridge; it was restored 1871. The two outer arches swing to allow vessels to pass.

ROUTE 105.

FRANKFURT TO BASLE, BY DARMSTADT [THE BERGSTRASSE AND ODENWALD], HEIDELBERG, CARLSRUHE, APPENWEIER [FOR STRASSBURG], AND FREIBURG.—RAIL.

Distance, 207 m.; time, 8 to 12 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Frankfurt-on-the-Main is described in Rte. 95. From the Main-Neckar Bahnhof, outside the Gallus-Thor, the rly. proceeds S., crosses the Main by an iron bridge, and passes l. on the height the watch-tower of Sachsenhausen, whence the view over Frankfurt, the Main, the distant Taunus, and the immediate foreground of neat villas and vineyards is very pleasing. At Sachsenhausen the railway to Offenbach turns off to the E., and a little further the Linksmainische Bahn turns off W. for Mayence.

The country is flat and uninteresting.

16 m. Darmstadt Junct. Stat.—(Inns: Darmstädter Hof; Traube; Köhler's, near the rly. stat., outside the Rheinthor; Prinz Karl; Post). The capital of the Grand Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt, the residence of the Grand Duke, and seat of the government, Pop. 39,600 (chiefly Protestants), is a dull, uninteresting town, which need not detain the traveller long. The appearance of torpidity is increased by the extent of surface over which it is spread. The streets are straight and very wide, the squares numerous; and many of the houses are built singly. The old town, with its dark and confined streets, is very properly kept in the background, and none of the great thoroughfares pass through it. Near the end of the Rheinstrasse, leading from the railway, rises a Column, 134 ft. high, erected 1844, and surmounted by a statue of the Grand Duke Louis I., died 1830, founder of the new town, by Schwanthaler. Extensive view from top (small fee).

The Catholic Ch. was built by Moller, 1827, a native architect. Its exterior is of brick; the interior, a rotunda, 173 ft. in diameter and 123 ft. high, is surrounded by pillars, 50 ft. high. See monument to the Grand Duchess Mathilde, died 1862, by Windmann.

The New Palace, of no great architectural pretensions, next door to the Traube Hotel, is used only for balls and fêtes.

The Old Palace (Altes Schloss) is the residence of the Grand Duke, who, as well as the Hessen-Cassel, or elder line, is descended from Landgrave Philip the Magnanimous. It is a sort of castle of various ages, from the 16th to the 18th; still surrounded by a dry ditch, now converted into a shrubbery and garden. It contains likewise the Museum of Paintings and of Natural History (both closed on Saturdays). Among the 700 pictures which fill the gallery, the following seem best worth notice:—The Purification of the Virgin, by William of Cologne, a rare master.—Schoreel, the Death of the Virgin.—L. Cranach, portrait of Albert of Brandenburg, Abp. of Mayence, as St. Jerome with his lion; and of Luther and his Wife;—Portraits of Louis XIV. and XV., Cardinal Mazarin, Maria Leczinska, Marie Antoinette, Cardinal Fleury, and Madame du Barry, by French artists.—In the Dutch School: Schalken, portrait of William III. of England;—Vandyk, Virgin and Child; sketch of the portrait of Lord Pembroke;—P. Potter (?), Cow and Herd with a horn;—Eckhout, a Man's Head;—Teniers, Peasants;—P. de Hooe, Dutchman and his Wife;—Rembrandt, portrait of his Second Wife.—Italian School: P. Veronese, sketch of the great picture in the Louvre of the Marriage in Cana;—Titian (?), a Venus (doubtful);—Velasquez, a Child in a white frock;—Domenichino, David and Nathan;—Raphael (?), St. John in the Wilderness, varying slightly from the paintings of the same subject at Florence, and in the Stafford Gallery; the Archangel Michael. St. Genoveva by a modern German artist, Steinbrück. There is some very good painted glass in this gallery, and numerous antique ivory carvings, enamels, &c. In the Collection of Coins are many of the thin and barbarous Bracteatae of the Middle Ages.

Museum of Natural History.—The most valuable and interesting part of this collection are the fossils, found in the neighbourhood of the Rhine, such as remains of the whale and elephant, some from the bed of the Rhine: very perfect skulls, and other bones of rhinoceros from Oppenheim; of Sus antiquus and Mastodon from Eppelsheim: perfect jaws and other remains of the Dinotherium. These unequalled specimens were found in sandpits at Eppelsheim, near Alzei, along with marine shells. The fossils of this museum have been described in a work published by Dr. Kaup. The Palace also contains a good Public Library of 350,000 vols., with some valuable MSS. (open 9-12 and 2-4).

Near to the Catholic ch. is the palace built by Queen Victoria, at a cost of 20,000*l.*, for Prince Louis and his wife, the English Princess Alice.

In the Palace of Prince Carl is the fine picture by Holbein* of the Madonna and Child, with portraits of the Meyer family of Basle; but it is inferior to the replica, with variations, at Dresden.

The Theatre (Hof-Theater), near the Palace, was built in 1819 from the designs of Moller, and burned down in 1871.

Near the theatre is the Exercier Haus (Drilling House), a sort of large riding-school. It was built for the purpose of drilling the garrison under cover in bad weather, and is remarkable for the great size of its roof, 157 ft. broad and 319 ft. long; constructed, it is said, by a common carpenter, after architects of pretension had declared the task impossible. The building now serves as a depôt for artillery.

The Gardens of the Palace (Herren-garten) are very prettily laid out, but sadly neglected; one lofty white poplar is remarkable; within them is the grave of Landgravine Henrietta Caroline, a Prussian princess (died 1774). The spot was chosen by herself in her lifetime, and Frederick the Great engraved upon her urn the words, "Sexu foemina, ingenio vir."

There is very little commerce at Darmstadt; the inhabitants depend in a great measure on the court. A mile or two out of the town is the preserve, where wild boars are kept for the ducal chasse. Strangers are often taken in the evening to see the animals fed. Kranichstein, a shooting seat, 3 m. distant, is the summer residence of the Grand Duke. Pretty walks lead to it. Ludwigs-Eiche (Louis' oak), Ludwigshöhe and Marienhöhe are also favourite excursions, commanding pretty views.

[N. G.]

Rlys.—N. to Frankfurt (see above); S. to Heidelberg (see below); N.W. 41 m. to Bischofsheim Junct. Stat., where joins rly. from Frankfurt for Mayence (see Rte. 98); S.W. 27 m., passing Gernsheim on the Rhine (see Rte. 102), to Worms; E. to Aschaffenburg and Würzburg (Hndbk. S. Germany).

[S.E. Rly. in progress to Heidelberg via Wiebelsbach, completed as far as (2 hrs.) Erbach, passing through scenery of much interest—Stats., Ramstadt, Reinheim, Lengfeld, Wiebelsbach (branch to Aschaffenburg)—through the Mümling-Thal to Zell. Thence to Michelstadt (Water-cure) and Erbach, present terminus. (Inns: Burg Wildenstein; Krone.) A town of 2380 Inhab., in the pretty Mümling-Thal, a valley lying upon the new red sandstone (Buntersandstein) and Muschelkalk of geologists.

The Castle of the mediatized Counts of Erbach, a modern building, erected on the site of an ancient residence, the greater part of which, except the donjon tower, was removed in the last cent., contains a very interesting Armoury, highly deserving of a visit. In the modern Rittersaal are many suits, on horseback and on foot. The history of every one is known: many have belonged to ancestors of the family, others have been worn by robber-knights (Raubritter), not a few of whom expiated their crimes on the scaffold. Those which have a more general historical interest are, the suits of Philip the Good of Burgundy, the Emperors Frederick III. and Maximilian I., Gian Giacomo Medici, Margrave Albert of Brandenburg, Gustavus Adolphus, and Wallenstein. The last two, with many other suits in the collection, were brought from the arsenal at Nuremberg. Here is besides the panoply of Franz of Sickingen, and his friend Götz of Berchlingen, with the iron hand, brought from Heilbronn, and a small suit made for Thomele, the dwarf of the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, and worn by him on some festive occasion when he was presented in a pie to the company seated at table; Cosmo II. de' Medici; Pietro Strozzi; Philip the Good of Burgundy, 1467; Kunz von Schott, the robber, beheaded 1523; In the Römisches Zimmer, obs. marble statue of Hadrian (the head antique), busts of Sulla, Sertorius (found in Albano in 1787), relief of the head of Augustus, sitting statue of Trajan (the head and trunk were found in different places), Grecian bust of Alexander (found at Tivoli, 1791), a helmet from the battlefield of Cannæ. The painted windows from old churches and monasteries are very remarkable. There are other curiosities in the castle, such as fire-arms of various periods, painted glass, antiques, vases, &c. In the chapel is the coffin in which Eginhard, secretary and son-in-law of Charlemagne, and the faithful Emma his wife, were buried; it was removed from the monastery of Seligenstadt in 1810. Eginhard was an ancestor of the Erbach family.

Until Rly. completed, Schnellpost daily through ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Beerfelden, to 6 hrs. S. 25 m. Neckargemünd Stat. on Rly. from Heidelberg to Würzburg (see Rte. 110). Schnellpost daily in 5 hrs. to Weinheim Stat. on the Bergstrasse Rly. (see below).

For the road from Erbach to Zwingenberg, see below.]

The Rly. to Basle continues by 4 m. Eberstadt Stat. A little beyond this (l.) is the ruined castle of Frankenstein.

The picturesque district called the Odenwald begins a few m. S. of Darmstadt, not far from this station. It lies to the E. of the railroad and of the high road to Heidelberg, and some of its most interesting scenes, particularly the Melibocus, may be visited on the way thither. The entire excursion may not suit the taste or convenience of all travellers; but the ascent of the Melibocus mountain cannot fail of affording gratification by its fine panoramic view.

The Railroad, for the greater part of the way, runs near the old post-road from Darmstadt to Heidelberg, which is celebrated for its beauty. It is called Bergstrasse (mountain road, Latin strata montana, although, in fact, perfectly level), because it runs along the base of a range of hills, which form the E. boundary of the valley of the Rhine. Its chief beauty arises from the fertility and high cultivation of the district it overlooks, rich in its luxuriant vegetation of vines and maize, enlivened by glimpses of the Rhine, and bounded by the outline of the Vosges mountains. (l.) The wooded and vine-covered range of mountains, with their old castles, forming the boundary of the Odenwald, runs parallel with the railroad and at a short distance from it; rt. stretches a vast sandy flat, through which the Rhine wanders, bounded by the heights of the Donnersberg and the Vosges at 50 or 60 m. distance. The villages and towns are beautifully situated at the foot of the mountains, overhung by vine-covered slopes, and embosomed in orchards, which extend in cheerful avenues along the road from one town to another. "Almost every mountain of the Bergstrasse, and many of those in the Odenwald, are crowned by a castle; which, embosomed in the woods of beech, or surrounded by vineyards, adds the interest of its antiquity and chivalrous associations to the charms of the landscape." — Autumn near the Rhine. The Hessian Bergstrasse, which comprises the northern portion of the district, produces considerable quantities of both red and white wines; the former of which are the best, and mainly the produce of the black Burgundy grape.

4 m. Bickenbach Stat. Schnellpost 5 times daily in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to E. 2 m. Jugen- heim, whence the Melibocus may be ascended (see below).

2

5 m. Zwingenberg Stat. (Inn: Löwe), close under the woody Melibocus, 1 hr.'s walk. Carriage to the top 7 mks., and on to Felsberg 10 mks. Guide unnecessary.

Take refreshments with you—none are to be had above—and ask for the key of the tower, and if on foot for directions as to the short cut viâ Luziberg. The visit, including ascent and descent by Schloss Auerbach, the best way to return to the road, occupies 3 hrs.' walking. The tower alone commands the view on the side of the Odenwald, over its forest-clad hills; the keys are kept at Auerbach, and at Alsbach. The whole excursion to the Melibocus, Felsberg, Felsenmeer, and through the valley of Schönberg to Auerbach Stat. (see below), occupies about 6 hrs.

The Melibocus, or Malchen, is a conical hill of granite, 1632 Paris ft. above the sea: it is the highest of the Odenwald chain of hills, and is conspicuous far and wide, on account of the white tower on its top, erected 1772, as a Belvedere. The view from it is most extensive, owing to the vast expanse of flat in the valley of the Rhine below. "The more distant objects are, Spires, and Mannheim with its slated dome, to the L.; Worms and its Gothic cathedral, opposite; and the dark towers of Mayence, lower down. The tower is built on the very edge of the declivity. The smoking villages, the gardens, vineyards, and orchards of the Bergstrasse, appeared immediately beneath us. We traced the course of the Rhine, which now gleamed in the bright sun, and appeared little removed from the base of the mountain, from above Mannheim, almost to Bingen, a distance of nearly 60 Eng. m. At Bingen it loses itself in the defiles of the Rheingau mountains, which bound the view on that side. The course of the placid Neckar and its junction with the Rhine are very visible, as also that of the Main. Towards the N. the view reaches the mountains in the neighbourhood of Giessen, in Hesse, 60 m. distant. To the E. lies the Odenwald, over the chaotic wooded hills of which the prospect stretches as far as the vicinity of Würzburg—a distance of 60 or 70 m.; while on the W., across the Rhine, the eye ranges over the smooth plain, till it is bounded by the blue broken tops of the Mont Tonnerre and the Vosges mountains, at a nearly equal distance."—Autumn near the Rhine.

Those who intend to extend their walk through the ODENWALD continue by a convenient path to another mountain, the Felsberg, 3 m. off, surmounted by a hunting-lodge (Jägerhaus), which also commands a fine view. The valley which separates it from the Melibocus is one of the wildest in the Odenwald. A little way from the Jägerhaus, on the declivity of the hill, by the side of the path leading to Reichenbach, lies the Riesensäule (Giant's Column), a gigantic column of hard syenite, similar to the rock of which the mountain is composed, and without doubt quarried on the spot; it is about 30 ft. long, nearly 4 in diameter, and tapering towards one end. Its origin and use are unknown, but it must be of great antiquity. Not far off lies a vast block of the same stone, called Riesenaltar, bearing on it incisions and marks of the saw. The appearance of these vestiges of human power and art in the depths of a sequestered forest is peculiarly striking, and not easily accounted for. It is probable that they are the work of Roman artificers, during the time they were established in this part of Germany, which was included in the Agri Decumates.

The Felsenmeer (Sea of Rocks) is a singular accumulation of fragments of syenite, some of vast size, heaped upon one another, and extending from near the top of the Felsberg almost to Reichenbach. They are of the same kind of rock as the mountain itself, so cannot have been transported from a distance. They appear like an avalanche of stones, hurled by some convulsion of nature from the summit.

From this point again the traveller has the choice either of returning to Zwingenberg Stat., by way of Reichenbach and Auerbach, or of proceeding about 18 m. from Auerbach, along a tolerable road, passing through Schönberg, Reichenbach, the hill of Winterhasten, and Reichelsheim [Schnellpost daily in $4\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. to Bensheim Stat. (see below)] to Erbach (described above), whence Rly. to Darmstadt, or (when completed) to Heidelberg.

About 9 m. N.W. from Erbach, between Reichelsheim and Bilstein, and near the former place, in a wild and secluded mountain district, surrounded by forests, lies the Castle of Rodenstein, the seat of the singular superstition of the wild Huntsman, the Knight of Rodenstein, who, issuing from out the ruined walls of the neighbouring castle of Schnellert, his usual abode, announces the approach of war by traversing the air with a noisy cavalcade; to the Castle of Rodenstein, situated on a solitary mountain opposite. "The strange noises heard on the eve of battles are authenticated by affidavits preserved in the village of Reichelsheim; some are of so recent a date as 1743 and 1796, and there are persons who profess to have been convinced by their eyes as well as their ears. The flying army of Rodenstein may probably be owing to a simple cause. The power of the wind is very great, and its roar singularly solemn and sonorous in these vast districts of forest. In the pine-forests it sometimes tears up thousands of trees in a night."—Autumn near the Rhine.

The legend of the Wild Huntsman has been attributed, with some probability, to another cause—the passage at night of vast flocks of the larger birds of passage, as cranes, storks, &c., through the air in their annual migrations. The rustling of so many wings, and the wild cries of the fowl, heard in the darkness of night and in the solitude of the forest, may easily have furnished the superstitious peasant with the idea of the aerial huntsman and his pack.

The Rly. from Zwingenberg Stat. continues S. to 1 m. Auerbach Stat. (Inn: Krone, good), sometimes resorted to as a watering-place, on account of a mineral spring in the neighbourhood. In the pretty village itself there is nothing remarkable, but it is worth while to explore the beauties of its neighbourhood. A gradual ascent, practicable for a light char, leads in 2 m. past the Brunnen to the ruins of the Castle of Auerbach, one of the most picturesque in the Odenwald. It was burnt by the French under Turenne, 1674; one of its tall slender towers fell in 1821, and the other threatened to follow it, but has been repaired. The hill on which it stands is composed of granite and gneiss. A shady and easy path conducts from the ruins to the Melibocus, 2 m.; guides and mules are to be hired by those who require them, and carriages can safely ascend.

A pretty round may be made by the Fürstenlager (castle), Champignon, Neun Aussichten (a circular place in the forest with 9 lines cut for views), over the Schönberger Höhe, and Schönberg Castle, to the Rly. again at 1 m. Bensheim Junct. Stat. (Inns: Sonne; Post), a town of 4800 Inhab., rebuilt since fire of 1822, with a church in the round style, built by Moller, 1830.

Schnellpost daily in 4 hrs. to N.E. 15 m. Reichelsheim (see above).

[Branch Rly. W. 14 m. to Rosengarten for Worms (Rte. 102), crossing the Rhine by a steam ferry, 5 trains daily in 1 hr. The first stat. is 3 m. Lorsch (a contraction of Lauresheim). In the midst of the village stands a desecrated fragment of the Church of the famous Abbey of St. Nazarius, burnt by the Spaniards 1621, consecrated 774 in the presence of Charlemagne. It is Romanesque, and dates from 1090, when the original building was destroyed by fire and the mortuary chapel consecrated by Pope Leo IX. The remains consists of 4 or 5 bays of a round-arched nave supporting an upper arcade of straight-sided arches, such as are seen in Saxon churches in England. The original abbey gateway is a unique and precious relic of the age of Charlemagne. This abbey surpassed in wealth many bishoprics and principalities, and is mentioned in the Nibelungen-Lied. Duke Thassilo of Bavaria, deposed by Charlemagne for treason, ended his days here as a monk. King Louis the German was buried here 876.]

3 m. Heppenheim Stat. (Inn: Halber Mond, good, capital trout and wine of the country). This small town of 4600 Inhab., like most others on the Bergstrasse, has an ancient and decayed appearance, but is prettily situated. The church was founded by Charlemagne. On a commanding height behind (1½ m.) rise the towers of Starkenbourg Castle, built 1064 by the abbots of Lorsch as a defence against the attacks of the German Emperors. It afterwards belonged to the Archbishops of Mayence, who considered it their strongest fortress, and maintained a garrison in it down to the time of the Seven Years' War. It was taken by the Spaniards under Gonzales de Cordova (1621), by the Swedes under Gustavus Adolphus (1631), and was twice fruitlessly besieged by Turenne (1645 and 1674). The ascent—½ an hr.'s drive by a rough road—from Heppenheim is not very difficult, and is well repaid by the beautiful view. The ground round these picturesque ruins is tastefully laid out in a garden. Upon a hillock, surmounted by 3 trees, in the middle of a field, called Landberg, in ancient times the Burgraves of Starkenburg held, in the open air, their tribunal called Gaugericht.

A little way out of Heppenheim the railroad crosses the frontier of Darmstadt into Baden.

3 m. Hemsbach Stat. Near here is the country seat of M. Rothschild of Frankfurt, surmounted by two towers. He has large estates here.

2 m. Weinheim Stat. (Inns: Pfalzer Hof, ¼ m. from stat.; Carlsberg, in the market-place; Löwe). An ancient town, surrounded by towers and a ditch; it lies on the Weschnitz, and has 6350 Inhab. A handsome modern Church. Its wealth consists in the orchards and vineyards around. The best white wine of the Bergstrasse is the Hubberger, which grows near Weinheim; the best red wine being known as Lutzelsachsener, from the village of that name, about 10 m. N. of Heidelberg. The Weinheim vineyard is situated in the environs of the town at the entrance to the romantic valley of the Birkenau, a district mentioned by Longfellow in 'Hyperion,' and commanded by the old ruined castle of Windeck, remarkable for its cylindrical donjon tower (fine view). Pretty excursion through the Birkenaur and Gorxheimer valleys.

[Schnellpost daily in 5½ hrs. to N.E. 25 m. Erbach Stat. on Rly. via Wiebelsbach to Darmstadt or Aschaffenburg (see above).]

The railroad beyond Weinheim takes a bend to the S.W. away from the Bergstrasse, and makes direct for the Neckar.

5 m. Ladenburg Stat. (Inn: Adler), old town with walls and towers, and a handsome church (St. Gallus), on the rt. bank of the Neckar, which the railway here crosses by a fine bridge.

2 m. Friedrichsfeld Junct. Stat. At this stat. the Prince of Wales first saw the Princess Alexandra. Omnibus to Schwetzingen Gardens, 1½ m. off (Rte. 102). Rly. N.E. 5 m. to Mannheim (see Rte. 102), and S.E. the Main-Neckarbahn is followed to Heidelberg. The ruined castle of Strahlenberg, above the town of Schriessheim, may be discerned on the l. Heidelberg is hidden from view under the Königsstul, until you are just opposite to it.

6 m. Heidelberg Stat., about ¼ m. outside the Mannheim Thor.—Omnibus into the town.

Inns.—Near the stat.: *Müller's (Victoria) Hotel, clean, reasonable, and comfortable; H. de l'Europe in the gardens; H. Schrieder. In the town, near the Castle: Prince Karl, very good; *Schloss, H., close to the castle, excellent, opened 1875, cool and airy situation; Adler, near the P. Karl, clean and moderate; H. de Russie.

2nd class: — Darmstädter Hof; Bayrischer Hof.

Post Office—Poste Restante for delivery of letters is close to the Botanic Gardens, not far from the stat.

English Chapel—Plockstrasse, near the Anlagen. Sundays at 11 and 3.

If pressed for time, you may walk in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the railway, ascending the hill at once to the Anlagen, — pretty gardens, lined with villas, on a terrace formed on the hill-side, above the town; thence to the Castle, and the Garden Terrace; returning down the footpath (Burgweg) into the Kornmarkt, and through the town back to the Railway. From the great Ch. a street leads N. in 5 min. to the Bridge, which is a good point of view. The Kanzel, a projecting rock, and the Molkenkur, a summer-house still higher up the hill than the Castle, are fine points of view, but will extend the walk by about $\frac{1}{2}$ an hour.

Carriages (Droschken) are waiting at the Rly., and in the Ludwig's Platz and Kornmarkt, which, at the rate of 2 mks. 20 pf. for 2 pers. the hour, will drive you to the Castle, up the Neckar, to the top of the Königsstuhl, and back, in 3 or 4 hours.

The beauty of the Bergstrasse has been perhaps exaggerated; that of Heidelberg cannot be too much extolled; it is charmingly situated on the l. bank of the Neckar, on a narrow ledge between the river and the castle rock. It is almost limited to a single street, nearly 3 m. long, from the Railway Stat. to the Heilbronn gate. It has 20,000 Inhb., one-third Rom. Catholics. Few towns in Europe have experienced to a greater extent, or more frequently, the horrors of war, than the ill-starred Heidelberg. Previous to the Thirty Years' War it displayed in its buildings all the splendour arising from flourishing commerce and the residence of the court of the Electors Palatine of the Rhine. It has been five times bombarded, twice laid in ashes, and thrice taken by assault and delivered over to pillage. In 1622 (the fatal period of the Thirty Years' War) Tilly took the town by storm after a cruel siege and bombardment which lasted nearly a month, and gave it up to be sacked for 3 days together. The garrison retreated into the castle, headed by an Englishman named Herbert; but the death of their commander, who was shot, compelled them to surrender in a few days. The Imperial troops retained possession of the place for 11 years; after which it was retaken by the Swedes, who were hardly to be preferred as friends to the Imperialists as foes. But Heidelberg was destined to suffer far worse evils from the French. In 1674 the Elector Charles Louis incurred the displeasure of Louis XIV.; and a French army, under Turenne, was in consequence let loose upon the Palatinate, carrying slaughter, fire, and desolation before it. The Elector beheld with distress, from the castle in which he had shut himself up, the inroads of foreign troops, and flame and smoke rising up along the plain from burning towns and villages. Unable to oppose the French with equal force at the head of an army, but anxious to avenge the wrongs of his country, he resolved to end the contest with his own sword. Accordingly he sent a cartel to Marshal Turenne, challenging him to single combat. The French general returned a civil answer, but did not accept it. The ambition of Louis XIV. led him, on the death of the Elector's son, 1685, to lay claim to the Palatinate on behalf of the Duke of Orleans; and another French army, more wicked than the first, was marched across the Rhine. Heidelberg was taken and burnt, 1688, by Melac: but it was at the following siege, under Chamilly, in 1693, that it was reserved for the French to display the most merciless tyranny, and practise excesses worthy of fiends rather than men, upon the town and its inhab. The castle was betrayed through the cowardice or treachery of the governor, with the garrison, and many of the townspeople who had fled to it for refuge. The cruelty of the treatment they met with was, in this instance, heightened by religious intolerance, and no mercy was shown to the Protestants. On this occasion the castle was entirely ruined.

The Anlage or public gardens, extending from the stat. to the town, form one of its most pleasing features. Here is a bronze statue, erected 1860, of Field-Marshal Wrede, born here 1767, and leader of the Bavarian army in 1813-15.

The University, founded 1386, is one of the oldest in Germany: the number of students is about 700. It is for its schools of law and medicine that Heidelberg is most distinguished. Many of the professors are men of great reputation. Gervinus died here in 1871.

As an edifice the University is not remarkable. It is a plain and not very large house in the small square (Ludwigs Platz) near the middle of the town. The Library (open daily 10 to 12; Wed. and Sat. also from 2 to 4), in a building by itself, consists of 200,000 volumes, 1800 MSS. 802 vols., a portion of the Palatine Library, which was carried off by the Bavarians in the Thirty Years' War, and sent to the Vatican as a present to the Pope, and as a trophy of the success of the Catholic cause, was restored to Heidelberg by Pope Pius VII. in 1815. It is related that Tilly, being in want of straw after taking the castle, littered his cavalry with books and MSS. from the library of the Elector, at that time one of the most valuable in Europe. The curiosities of this collection as it at present stands are,—a Codex of the Greek Anthology, 11th cent.; MSS. of Thucydides and Plutarch, of the 10th and 11th, and many autographs of remarkable persons; Luther's MS. translation of Isaiah; his Exhortation to Prayer against the Turks; and a copy of the Heidelberg Catechism, annotated by him; the Prayer-book of the Electress Elizabeth (James I.'s daughter); a Missal, ornamented with miniatures, by John Dentzel of Ulm, 1499.

In the University Museum are Creuzers' cabinet of antiquities; Professor Bronn's fossils of the neighbourhood of Heidelberg; and Leonhard's fossils and minerals, particularly rich in specimens illustrative of the geology of this part of Germany.

The Museum Club, opposite the University, contains reading, ball, and concert rooms, well supplied with papers and journals.

Neither the public nor private buildings in the town are at all remarkable in an architectural point of view, chiefly owing to the destruction caused by repeated sieges. One house, however, escaped, which in the richly-decorated façade, ornamented with statues, coats of arms, &c., may give some notion of former splendour; it is the inn called Zum Ritter, from the figure of a knight on the top: it was built in 1592. It stands in the market-place, near the Church of the Holy Ghost, in which many electors and counts palatine were buried. Their fine monuments were destroyed by the French in 1793. The church is divided by a partition wall between the Catholics and Protestants. The resistance of the townspeople to the Elector Charles Philip, who wanted to deprive the Protestants of their half of this church, occasioned him to remove the Electoral court from Heidelberg to Mannheim in 1719-20.

To the door of St. Peter's Ch. (Prot.), on the hill at the end of the Anlagen, Jerome of Prague, the companion of Huss, attached his celebrated theses, which he maintained, at the same time expounding the Reformed doctrines to a multitude of hearers in the adjoining churchyard. Here also is the simple tomb of Olympia Morata, who combined the feminine grace and beauty of a woman with the intellect and learning of a philosopher. Persecuted as a heretic in Italy, the land of her birth, she was forced to fly, along with her husband, a German, and at length settled at Heidelberg, where she delivered lectures to a large and admiring audience. Her extraordinary acquirements in learning, her beauty, misfortunes, and early death, shed a peculiar interest upon her grave.

The objects of greatest interest here are the Castle, and the views of the Rhine and Neckar valley.

The *Castle, anciently the residence of the Electors Palatine, presenting the combined character of a palace and a fortress, is an imposing ruin. (Admission daily, small fee.) The building displays the work of various hands, the taste of different founders, and the styles of successive centuries : it is highly interesting for its varied fortunes, its picturesque situation, its vastness, and the relics of architectural magnificence which it still displays, after having been three times burnt, and having ten times experienced the horrors of war. Its final ruin, however, did not arise from those causes ; but after the greater part of the building had been restored to its former splendour in 1718-20, it was set on fire by lightning in 1764 ; and since the total conflagration which ensued, it has never been rebuilt or tenanted. It is approached by a carriage-road from behind, and by a winding foot-path on the side of the Neckar. The oldest part remaining is probably that built by the Electors Rudolph and Rupert. It has all the character of a stronghold of the Middle Ages, and the teeth of the portcullis still project from beneath the archway leading to it. The Friedrichsbau, named from the Elector who built it in 1607, is distinguished by excessive richness of decoration : its façade to the S. is ornamented with statues of ancestors of the Electoral family from Charlemagne. The part of the building most deserving of admiration, for the good taste of its design and the elegance of its decorations, is that which overlooks the river, and extends along the E. side of the quadrangle built by Otto Henry (1556), in the style called Cinque-cento. The statues of heroes from sacred and profane history, which decorate the front, though of (keuper) sandstone, are by no means contemptible as works of art.

The English traveller will view with some interest that part of the castle called the English Palace from its having been built for the reception of the Princess Elizabeth Stuart, daughter of James I., and grand-daughter of Mary Queen of Scots. The triumphal arch, having pillars entwined with ivy-leaves, was erected by her husband, the Elector Frederick V., afterwards King of Bohemia, to celebrate their nuptials ; it led to the flower-garden which he caused to be laid out for her pleasure, and it still goes by the name of Elizabethen Pforte.

The granite pillars supporting the canopy of the well in the corner of the court of the castle are said by some to have been brought from Charlemagne's palace at Ingelheim, though they are undoubtedly derived from the quarry in the Odenwald.

In a cellar under the castle is the famous Heidelberg Tun, constructed 1751 ; it is the largest wine-cask in the world, 36 ft. long and 24 ft. high ; being capable of holding 800 hogsheads or 283,200 bottles, which is far less, after all, than the dimensions of one of the porter vats of a London brewer. In former days, when the tun was filled with the produce of the vintage, it was usual to dance on the platform on the top. It is supposed to have been filled with the white wine of the Odenwald, although none of the Bergstrasse wines possess keeping qualities. It has, however, remained empty since 1769.

One of the towers which formed the outer defences of the Castle (der gesprengte Thurm) was undermined and blown up by the French ; but so thick were the walls, and so strongly built, that, though nearly the whole of one side was detached by the explosion, instead of crumbling to pieces it merely slid down from its place, in one solid mass, into the ditch, where it still remains. Subterranean passages, for the most part still preserved and accessible, extend under the ramparts.

The Gardens (originally laid out by the engineer Solomon de Caus) and Shrubberies round the castle, and the adjoining Terrace to the eastward, afford the most agreeable walks and splendid points of view it is possible to conceive over the Neckar, issuing out of its vine-clad valley, and winding through a plain of the utmost fertility to join the Rhine, which appears here and there in distant flashes glittering in the sun. Spires and towers proclaim the existence of cities and villages almost without number, and the landscape is bounded by the outline of the Vosges mountains.

There is an Inn or Boarding-house within the Castle; comfortable rooms. Table-d'hôte at 1.

The best general View of the Castle may be obtained from the extremity of the Terrace raised upon arches, and projecting over the Neckar. The building, however, is so grand an object, and the surrounding country so exceedingly beautiful, that the stranger will hardly be satisfied with seeing it from one point. The Oberes Schloss, a restaurant on the hill behind the Castle, considerably higher, is another good point of view. The visitor should mount the heights on the rt. bank of the Neckar, either by a path leading from the end of the bridge, which is steep, or by a more gradual ascent from Neuenheim. An agreeable path, easily accessible, called the Philosopher's Walk, conducts along the slope of the hill fronting the town. The hill behind it, which stands in the angle between the valley of the Rhine and Neckar, called the Heiligenberg, presents a more extensive prospect. On the top are ruins of a castle and church of St. Michael, which succeeded to a Roman fort built on the spot. In 1391 the wild sect called Flagellants made a pilgrimage to this holy mountain, clad in black and wearing a white cross in front and behind. In the Thirty Years' War Tilly opened his trenches to bombard the town from this point.

About 50 yards above the bridge, on the rt. bank, in a solitary inn called Hirschgasse, the students' duels are fought. 4 or 5 sometimes take place in a day; and it is no uncommon thing for a student to have been engaged in 25 or 30, as principal, in the course of 4 or 5 years. Duelling-days are Tuesday and Thursday, between 10 A.M. and 1. Strangers are not admitted, unless introduced by a member of "the corps," which comprises only about 150 out of 700 students. There are 5 different corps, distinguished by the colours of their caps: 1, white, Saxoborussians; 2, red, Vandals; 3, green, Westphalians; 4, blue, Rhinelanders; 5, yellow, Suabians.

The Königsstuhl, the highest hill in this district, lies behind the town and castle. The summit may be reached in 1 or 1½ hr.'s walk, or in a carriage, and the view is the most extensive in the neighbourhood. A lofty tower has been erected for the convenience of visitors, who often repair hither to see the sun rise, and if possible to extend the limits of the panorama, which includes the valleys of the Rhine and Neckar, the Odenwald, Haardt Mountains on the W., the Taunus on the N.W., the ridge of the Black Forest on the S., with the Castle of Ebersteinberg, near Baden, and the spire of Strassburg Minster, 90 m. off. Tilly bombarded the town from this hill, after his attack from the rt. bank had failed: remains of his trenches are still visible.

The banks of the Neckar above Heidelberg are very interesting, and afford many pleasant excursions—one of the most agreeable being to Neckargemünd (Inn, Pfalz), 6 m. off (2nd stat. on Rly. to Würzburg, Rte. 110); the excursion may be agreeably prolonged to Neckar Steinach, on the rt. bank (Inn: Die Harfe). The course of the Neckar is described in the Handbook for S. Germany, Rte. 159.

A road, overlooking the Neckar, runs from the castle along the shoulder of the hill to the Wolf's Brunnen, an agreeable walk or drive of 2 m.; charming views. It is a pretty retired nook, named from a spring which rises there. There is a small inn close to it, famed for its beer and trout—like a Swiss cottage. Trout are reared here by thousands, in a succession of well-contrived ponds and tanks; in the last of which they are fattened for the table. They are also largely exported. Here, according to tradition, the enchantress Jetta, who lived on the spot, and first foretold the greatness of the house of the Palatinate, was torn in pieces by a wolf. You may return hence to Heidelberg by the road along the margin of the river.

Hausacker's, now Metz's, collection of armour and paintings, old iron and steel work, and executioners' swords, outside the Karls Thor, well deserves a visit.

The cherries of Dossenheim, a village about 2 m. beyond Handschuhsheim, on the Bergstrasse, are sent by steamboats to the London market.

The pretty gardens of Schwetzingen, about an hour's drive (6 m. Rly. through Eppelheim and Plankstadt, 5 trains daily in 20 min.), form a pleasant excursion. (See Rte. 102.)

Heidelberg is a cheap place of residence, provisions being moderate and abundant.

Rlys.: — N. W. to Friedrichsfeld Junct. Stat., thence N. to Frankfurt (see above), and W. to Mannheim (Rte. 102). E. to Meckesheim Junct. Stat., whence N.E. to Würzburg (Rte. 110), and S.E. to Heilbronn and Stuttgart (Hndbk. S. Germany). S. to Carlsruhe, Strassburg, Basle, &c. (see below). S.W. to Spire (in Rte. 102), viâ Schwetzingen.

Steamboats on the Neckar to Heilbronn, daily at 6.20 A.M., in 13 hrs., tedious; descending in 7 or 8. (See Hndbk. for S. Germany, Rte. 159.)

The Baden Railway — Heidelberg to Basle.

The country to the S. of Heidelberg scarcely retains any trace of the beauty of the Bergstrasse, but the line is carried through a flat but fertile country, with a range of hills to the eastward.

19 m. Wiesloch Stat. rt. The large building called Kislau was formerly a Ducal Palace, but is now a penitentiary.

10 m. Langenbrücken Stat. (Inns: Ochs; Sonne), Pop. 1500. Here are sulphur-baths, very efficacious for diseases of the skin and of the respiratory organs, for gout, rheumatism, &c. Lodging at the Bathing Establishment. Table d'hôte and wines very good. A cheap and agreeable summer residence for families.

10 m. Bruchsal Junct. Stat. (Inns: H. Keller, at Stat.; Badischer Hof; Rose, near Stat.). This inanimate town of 9700 Inhab. was formerly the residence of the Bishops of Spire, whose Palace, built in the last cent., is now converted into Law Courts. The large building on l. is a Prison on the separate system. Bruchsal was joined to Baden in 1803. [Rly. S.E. to Mühlacker Junct. Stat.; thence S.W. to Pforzheim and E. to Bietigheim for Heilbronn or Stuttgart (Hndbk. S. Germany), N.W. to Rheinsheim.]

10 m. Durlach Junct. Stat. (Inns: Carlsburg), once the capital and residence of the Margraves of Baden-Durlach, who reunited all the Baden possessions upon the extinction of the line of Baden-Baden, 1771. An old ruined castle, with its conspicuous watch-tower, upon the height of the Thurmberg, commanding a fine view, was the cradle of the family. The more recent Schloss or Palace in the town is now half pulled down; what remains is turned into a cavalry barrack. In the gardens are some Roman altars and milestones, found in the neighbourhood. In 1688 Durlach was burned by the French, and has never recovered from this blow.

rt. A noble avenue of Lombardy poplars, the oldest and highest in Germany, none being under 90 ft., and some more than 120 ft. high, 2 m. long, lines the road from Durlach to Carlsruhe.

[Rly. S.E. to Pforzheim, thence S.W. to Wildbad, N.E. for Heilbronn, and S.E. for Stuttgart (see Hndbk. S. Germany).]

After passing (rt.) Gottsau, once a Benedictine convent, now an artillery barrack, and the interesting Cemetery of Carlsruhe, we reach the handsome buildings, designed by the architect Eisenlohr, which compose the

2 m. Carlsruhe Junct. Stat. (Inns: Erbprinz, good; H. d'Angleterre; H. Grosse, excellent. 2nd class: Weisser Bär; Grüner Hof, moderate.)

Post office in the Ritterstrasse, open 8 to 8; Telegraph office in the Herrenstrasse.

This capital of the Grand Duchy of Baden, 3 m. E. of the Rhine, the seat of government and of the two Chambers, and residence of the court, contains 40,000 Inhab. It is a pretty and clean, but rather dull town, and one of the youngest capitals of Germany, as it was not begun till 1715. It owes its origin solely to the accident of the Margrave Charles of Baden-Durlach building a hunting-seat on the spot, which he fixed on from its seclusion, the surrounding country being at the time an almost uninterrupted forest. He called this retreat "Charles's Rest," but differences with his Durlach subjects induced him to encourage the formation of a town here, and in a few years the hunting-lodge became the nucleus of a new city, which derived from it the name of Karlsruhe. It is regularly built, in the form of a fan, or rather of a wheel. The 9 main streets, like spokes, all radiate from the S. side of the palace. The growth of the city since 1870 has, however, disturbed this arrangement, and the block system is now being adopted. The buildings are of three periods: the oldest in the French style of the early part of the 18th cent.; next come the classic imitations of Weinbrenner, of the beginning of the 19th cent.; and last, the productions of the existing school of architecture, of which Hübsch is the head.

From the railway you enter Carlsruhe by what was formerly the Ettlinger Gate, opposite which is the bronze statue, by Reich, of the Baden minister Winter (d. 1838), erected 1851, and traversing the street leading to the palace (Karl-Wilhelm St.), pass the monuments of the Grand Dukes Karl (d. 1818), obelisk and a bust; Lewis (d. 1830), a sandstone statue; and that of the Margrave Charles William (d. 1738), founder of Carlsruhe, a pyramid of red sandstone, erected 1823. The two last are in the market-place; on the W. side of which is the Rathhaus (built 1821), on the E. the Protestant Ch., with high tower, and further on, in the courtyard of the palace, is the bronze statue of the Grand Duke Karl Friedrich (d. 1811), by Schwanthaler, 1844. The Polytechnic School was built by Hübsch in 1836. Over the portal are statues of Kepler and Erwin von Steinbach.

The Palace or Schloss was erected by Margrave Karl Friedrich, 1754, in place of the hunting-seat. The view from the turret which surmounts it, called Bleithurm, deserves to be seen (small fee), as it will give a correct notion of the singular plan on which Carlsruhe is built. The town is nearly surrounded by the Haardt Forest, which is intersected by roads radiating from the palace, and corresponding with the streets of the town. Beyond this are seen the silvery windings of the Rhine, and behind it the Vosges mountains; while to the S. the picturesque outline of the Black Forest mountains, and on the N. those of the Bergstrasse, complete the panorama. The Theatre, on the W. side of the palace, built 1853, by Hübsch, is open 3 times a week. Closed June and July.

One of the finest buildings is the Kunsthalle (open Sund. and Wed., 11 to 1 and 2 to 4), near the Botanic Garden, erected by Hübsch, 1845, of grey sandstone, with stripes of red. It is decorated with frescoes by Schwindt, and contains a collection of paintings, and other works of art. There are—portraits of Colbert, Ph. de Champagne; 2 portraits by Van der Helst; many Dutch pictures. Those of the old masters are of second-rate value, but there are good specimens of the modern German school: Achenbach, Dietz, Schwindt; Lessing, Crusaders; Sohn, Question of Conscience; Dietz, Battle-pieces, in which the Baden soldiers figure; Cartoons by Overbeck, Schnorr, &c.; Landscapes by Frommel; also a portrait of Luther, after death, by Cranach.

Opposite the end of the Akademie Strasse is a marble bust of Hübsch the architect (d. 1863).

The Friedrichs Platz, a handsome new square, contains on the S. side the Museum, designed by Berckmüller, and intended to unite the various collections belonging to the town. The Natural History collection, rich in fossil remains, and the Court library of 90,000 vols., have been removed here from the palace.

An archway in the W. wing of the palace leads to the Palace Gardens and those called Amaliensruhe, which are thrown open to the public, and afford agreeable walks. On the l., near the entrance, are large conservatories (Wintergarten), and adjoining them the Botanic Garden. Another pleasant short walk is to the village of Biertheim, where there are good baths.

Mr. Stultz, the tailor, founded an hospital in this town, near the Mühlberg gate, which he endowed with a sum of 100,000 fl.; he was in consequence created a baron.

English Ch. Service in the Chapel near the Stiftung.

In the shops of Franz Nöldeke and M. Bielefeld will be found a number of interesting publications, engravings of all sorts, with guide-books, and views of the Rhine and of Baden, &c.

The Club is called the Museum; strangers may be admitted to it by a member. All the German, many French, and a few English papers are taken in here.

Good baths in the town and in the Rhine at Maximiliansau (25 min. by train).

The Friedhof, not far from the Rly. Stat., is very well arranged and kept.

Very conspicuous is the Prussian Monument, erected 1851, from designs by the King of Prussia (Fred. Wm. IV.) himself, to the memory of his soldiers who fell in putting down the Baden revolutionary insurgents, 1849. It is a temple of red sandstone, surmounted by the archangel Michael, in zinc gilt. Another monument records the death of 64 persons at the fire in the theatre here, 1847. Here is the grave of the poet Jung Stilling who died in this place 1817. Since 1869 the cemetery has been extended towards the E.; and, on the site of the former Ettlinger Gate, a handsome monument has been erected to 500 soldiers killed in the Franco-German war of 1870.

Rlys.:—N. direct to Mannheim via Schuetzingen (Rte. 102). W. to Maxau, whence steam ferry across the Rhine to Maximiliansau for Winden Junct. Stat., whence N. to Landau, &c. S. to Strassburg (see Rte. 104). E. to Durlach Junct. Stat. for Heidelberg (see above) and Pforzheim, &c. (see Hndbk. S. Germany).

Railway to Baden and Basle continued.—About 2 m. from Carlsruhe, rt., at Bulach, is a modern Romanesque Ch., with 2 towers, built by Hübsch, 1838. The interior contains frescoes by Dietrich of Stuttgart.

4 m. Ettlingen Stat. (Inn: Krone); Pop. 4900; paper and silk mills. Schloss of the 18th cent. Many Roman antiquities have been found about here.

The Grand-Duchy of Baden is one of the most fertile districts in Germany, and that part of it through which the railroad passes produces tobacco in large quantities, maize, hops, hemp, and flax, besides every species of grain. It is a country of wine also, and oil, as the hills are clothed with vineyards, and the roads are shaded by luxuriant walnut-trees, from the nuts of which an excellent and clear oil is pressed, nearly as good for culinary purposes as fine olive-oil. The peasantry in this country commonly wear cocked-hats, even in the fields,—a singular decoration for a ploughboy.

10 m. Rastatt Junct. Stat. (Inns: Post; Kreutz; Löwe). This town, of 13,000 Inhab., on the Murg, is a dull place, and has lost its importance as a frontier fortress since the annexation of Alsace to Germany in 1871. It was destroyed by the French in 1689, but rebuilt by the Margrave Louis William, husband of the Sibylla (mentioned below) who erected the Palace, a large edifice of red sandstone surmounted by a colossal statue of Jupiter. Fine view from the platform. This palace was until 1771 the residence of the Margraves of Baden-Baden, but is now deserted and in part serves as a barrack. 2 Congresses, important in the annals of Europe, have assembled in it: one in 1713, when Marshal Villars and Prince Eugene settled the terms of peace in the small unpainted cabinet, its walls stained with ink-spots, still pointed out to visitors; the second, in 1797-99, which was followed by the mysterious murder of two of the French Republican envoys, Roberjot and Bonnier, as they were quitting the town. About 10 min. walk outside the Rheinau gate a monument marks the spot. No satisfactory light has ever been thrown upon the murder.

In one apartment are Turkish trophies, horsetail standards, arms, &c., gained by the Margrave Louis in his campaigns against the Turks, together with his armour and portrait. Many things were stolen by the revolutionary blackguards who called themselves Freischaaren, about 6000 men, consisting of mutineer soldiers, students, Poles, and Hungarians, who got possession of Rastatt in May 1849, but surrendered the place to the Prussians in July of the same year, after a bloody struggle.

[Branch Rly. S.E. 8 m. up the Murgthal to Gernsbach (see Excursions from Baden in Rte. 106), passing on rt. near Ruppenheim, the Favorite, a deserted Schloss of the Margraves of Baden-Baden, built in 1725 by the Margravine Sibylla, wife of the heavy Louis of Baden, who fought against the Turks along with Prince Eugene. It is chiefly interesting as illustrating the manners and tastes of former days, and from the singular character of Sibylla, its founder. In her youth she was very handsome, and not a little vain of her beauty: as a proof of which she has left in her boudoir 60 or 70 portraits of herself, in as many different costumes. The old-fashioned furniture of the château, originally tawdry rather than tasteful, is nearly worn out. There are no works of art in the house; but one or two old cabinets filled with glass, and some singular Delft ware in the forms of birds and beasts, are kept in the lower rooms. In the garden is an odd, many-sided building, resembling a Chinese temple: this was Sibylla's Chapel. A youth of frivolity seems, in her case, to have terminated in an old age of superstition. Before an altar within it, in a chamber designedly rendered as gloomy as a dungeon, she spent the greater part of her days and nights, during the latter years of her life, inflicting upon herself all kinds of privations and penances. Here is still preserved the scourge of whipcord, ending in wire points (like a cat-o'-nine-tails), with which she used to discipline herself; also, her hair shirt, and a cross of wire net-work, with points turned inward, which she wore next her skin, while 2 circular pieces of the same were placed for her to kneel upon. Her bed was a thin rush mat, laid on the floor; and her only companions were 2 wooden figures, as large as life, of the Virgin and St. John. These were her guests, and with them she used to sit down to table; equal portions of every meal being served to all three; but their share was afterwards given to the poor. The Favorite is about 6 m. from Baden.]

The line from Rastatt crosses the Murg, and continues S. to 8 m. Oos Junct. Stat. (Buffet).

[Branch Railway to Baden, 3 m. S.E. (Rte. 106).]

The railway crosses the Oos rivulet.
1. see the castle tower of Yburg.

4 m. Steinbach Stat. (Inn: Stein), at the foot of the hill of Yburg, the birthplace of Erwin (died 1318), the architect of Strassburg Minster. A sandstone statue of him (erected 1844) crowns a height.

3 m. Bühl Stat. (Inns: Badischer Hof; Rabe), a town of 3000 Inhab., with a very old ch. Pretty excursion from this place up the Bühler-Thal.

3 m. Ottersweier Stat. (Inn: Sonne). Pop. 1720. Here the valley of Hub opens out on the E.; within it lie the Baths of Hub (whey-, grape-, and cold-water cure establishments), and the ruined Castle of Windeck.

[At Sasbach, 2 m. rt. of the railroad, stands an obelisk of granite, erected in 1829 by the French, to mark the spot where their great General Turenne (born at Sedan, 1611) was killed by a cannon-ball, while reconnoitring the Austrian army, under Montecucoli, 27th July, 1675. This is the 4th monument which has been set up to his memory, the others having been destroyed. His death arrested instantly the success of the French arms, no general in his army being found capable of following up his plans. The most contradictory and futile orders were issued; till the troops, discouraged by inaction and failure, exclaimed in irony "Lâchez la pie (the piebald charger of Turenne, upon which he had so often led them to victory); elle nous conduira." The bowels of Turenne were interred in the chapel of St. Nicholas, at Achern; his body was conveyed to France.]

3 m. Achern Stat. (Inns: Huber; Post, good; Adler), a little town at the mouth of the Kappler Valley, with a statue of the Grand Duke Leopold (d. 1852) erected 1855 in the Market-place. [Horses and carriages may be hired here for an interesting excursion of 8 m. by Ober-Achern, Cappel, and Ottenhöfen to the ruins of the Abbey of Allerheiligen

(All Saints), destroyed by fire 1803: now a picturesque ruin. (Inn: Mittenmeyer's.) Below the convent the hill has been cleft by a zigzag fissure for 400 ft.; through this chasm a stream forces its way in numerous falls. The scenery around is scarcely surpassed anywhere in the Schwarzwald.]

A little beyond this the railroad crosses the Rench, a stream descending from the Kniebis.

4 m. Appenweier Junct. Stat. (Inn: Adler, good).

[Branch Rly. W. 15 m., 10 trains daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., to Strassburg, crossing the Rhine at Kehl, see Rte. 104A.]

[Rly. in progress E. to Oppenau. In the meantime Schnellpost thrice daily up the valley of the Rench through (1 hr. 5 m.) Oberkirch (Inn: Post), 3 m. from which is the fine Gothic Ch. of Lautenbach, built in 1471; (2 hrs. 7 m.) Oppenau (Inn: Krone), and reaching in 3 hrs. 17 m. Petersthal (Inn: Müller's H.), the chief of the group of small watering-places called the Kniebis Baths, beautifully situated 1400 ft. above the sea, and much frequented during the season, lasting from May to September. Waters, iron with carbonic acid gas. The Schnellpost goes on to Griesbach, which lies 1 hr. further up the valley, and thence to, in $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. more, Freudenstadt, which is 30 m. from Appenweier.]

After passing Appenweier, rt. the spire of Strassburg Minster is visible.
1. The well-preserved Castle of Staufenberg, built in the 11th cent., by a Bp. of Strassburg, crowns a distant eminence.

5 m. Offenburg Junct. Stat.—Buffet, good. (Inns: The Fortuna, good and moderate, capital cuisine, civil host, understands English. Right of fishing in the Kinzig for 24 m., and of shooting, is given to guests staying at the Fortuna; Schwarzwaldler Hof, large and comfortable; Adler H. Rooms can be had at Meyer's Maison garnie.) The Zeller and Klingelberger wines, grown near this, are very good. The town, of 5200 Inhab., is at the entrance of the valley of the Kinzig, with a statue to Sir Francis Drake, the first introducer of the potato into Europe. Picturesque costumes may be seen here on market days (Saturdays), and the scenery up the neighbouring valley is pretty.

[The Black Forest Railway runs S.E. through the valley of the Kinzig to Villingen for Constance, &c. This is the best Rly. Rte. into the Black Forest (see Rte. 108).]

The rly. to Basle crosses the Kinzig on a lattice bridge, passing on l. the modern Gothic Castle of Ortenburg (see Rte. 108).

9 m. Dinglingen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Post; good and cheap).

[Branch Rly. S.E. 2 m. to Lahr (Inns: Post; Sonne), a flourishing and industrious town, of 7500 Inhab., on the Schutter.]

W. beyond the Rhine appears the outline of the Vosges Mountains, E. the red sandstone cliffs of the Black Forest. On a steep conical hill to the l. rise the ruins of Schloss Hohen-geroldseck, destroyed by the French, 1697.

3 m. Kippenheim Stat. This village, of 2000 Inhab., is the birthplace (1778) of Mr. (afterwards Baron) Stultz, the tailor: a neat monument of cast iron has been set up by the roadside to his memory.

2 m. Orschweier Stat. [Omnibus 6 times daily, in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., to S.E. 2 m. Ettenheim, a small town of 3000 Inhab., at the mouth of the Münster-Thal, where a party of French emigrants, among whom was the Duc d'Enghien, were seized, 1804, by 2 columns of troops sent by Napoleon across the Rhine, who thus committed a breach of the law of nations, and a violation of the German territory. The Duke was inhumanly shot 6 days after, at Vincennes.] Beyond this the railroad crosses the Ettenbach.

4 m. Herbolzheim Stat. The Elz river is crossed.

3 m. Kenzingen Stat. (Inn: Lachs; good and clean).

3 m. Riegel Stat. A drainage Canal conveys the Dreisam into the Elz and the Rhine, and has rescued the district from a state of swamp. rt. The Kaiserstuhl (see excursions from Freiburg, below), an isolated, volcanic, hilly range, fertile and thickly peopled, rises out of the plain of the Rhine. The railway bends E., passing between it and the Black Forest range. The summits of the Bellchen and Blauen are conspicuous.

4 m. Emmendingen Stat. (Inn: Krone). Pop. 2440.

l. beyond the town, the Castle of Hochburg, one of the most extensive ruins in Germany, appears.

4 m. Denzlingen Junct. Stat.

[Branch rly. to N.E. 4 m. Waldkirch (Inn: Post), an industrial town of 2700 Inhab., with fine view from the ruins of the Castle of Kasteberg close by.

About 3 m. N. of Freiburg, on the l., is the ruined Castle of the Dukes of Zähringen, ancestors of the ruling family of Baden. From the ruins a beautiful view is obtained over the surrounding district, called the Breisgau; for over 500 years a province of Austria, but ceded to Baden by the Peace of Presburg, 1805.]

4 m. Freiburg Junct. Stat. (Inns: Zähringer Hof, opposite the Rly. Stat., first-rate; Pfau, near Stat., good and reasonable: the intelligent landlord speaks English; H. Föhrenbach, near the rly., good, and civil landlord; Deutscher Hof, middling, civil landlord; Engel; Heil. Geist; Rheinischer Hof; Wilder Mann, very fair).

Eng. Ch. Service on Sundays in a large room at the Post; resident chaplain.

This flourishing and increasing town, founded 1091, formerly capital of the Breisgau, and for over 400 years under the rule of Austria, was annexed to Baden in 1805, and became an archbishop's see in 1827. It is situated in one of the prettiest spots on the outskirts of the Black Forest, at the mouth of the Höllenthal (Valley of Hell), upon the Dreisam, runlets from which are carried through all the streets. It has 25,000 Inhab. (2000 Protestants settled here since 1850), but owing to the frequent sieges of the town between 1632 and 1744, it possesses few fine buildings besides the Cathedral (Münster), remarkable as being almost the only large Gothic church in Germany which is finished. It is equally admired for the delicate symmetry of its proportions, and the good taste of its decorations. It owes its existence partly to the munificence of the princes of Zähringen; but also to the zeal and liberality of the citizens of Freiburg, who taxed themselves to the utmost to complete it. The architect's name is unknown; Erwin of Steinbach, who built Strassburg, may have been his pupil. It was begun under Conrad III., of Zähringen, 1152. The nave (early pointed), W. front, tower, and rich porch below it, date from 1236-72, and are by far the finest part of the building; the choir is inferior, and of a later period, 1513. The oldest parts are the transepts, together with their external turrets, 12th cent. The W. tower, 380 ft. high, one of the very few of the kind ever completed, exhibits a skilful transition from a square base into an octagon, which is surmounted by a pyramidal spire of the most exquisite open-work tracery, all of stone, of extreme boldness as well as lightness. The ascent of the tower (small fee) gives a good idea of the beauty of the building:—the view is better from the Schlossberg.

Beneath the tower is the main entrance into the church, by a magnificent portal, richly ornamented with sculptures. The portal leading into the choir from the N. also deserves attention; the sculptures below the arch represent the Creation by the Deity in the form of an old man, shaping the sun, moon, and stars out of balls, and breathing life into Adam.

The interior of the church contains the monument and armed effigy of Berchtold V., last Duke of Zähringen (d. 1218); an artistic carved pulpit, the work of George Kempf, 1561; and a singular piece of sculpture of the Lord's Supper, consisting of 13 figures, by an artist named Hauser, 1561. The windows are filled with stained glass, of beautiful colours; the oldest is of the 15th cent.; that of the choir, superior in point of drawing, dates only from the beginning of the 16th. That in St. Alexander's or the Miners' Chapel, is from designs of Baldung Grün, 1515, and very fine. Some good modern painted glass has been inserted.

In the chapel of St. Martin (Locherers), on the N. of the choir, a remarkable carving in wood represents the Virgin, sheltering beneath her mantle a whole host of worshippers of all ranks, including popes, cardinals, bishops, &c., date 1520. Provost (Domprobst) Becklin's chapel contains his monumental effigy in armour, and a Crucifix of silver, hammered and gilt, of Eastern workmanship.

The painting over the high altar, set within an elegant Gothic framework, is by Hans Baldung Grün (an old painter of Gmünd in Suabia, d. 1552). The chief subject, in the centre when the doors are opened, is the Ascension of the Virgin and her Coronation by the First and Second Persons of the Trinity: on the shutters at either side are the 12 Apostles. The outside of these is occupied by 4 subjects—the Annunciation, Visitation of Elizabeth, Birth of Christ, and Flight into Egypt (perhaps the best). At the back of these paintings are others by B. Grün also, visible from the choir aisle, the chief piece being a row of portraits of magistrates of Freiburg. On the one side are St. George and St. Lawrence; on the other, St. John Baptist and St. Jerome as a cardinal. It is curious, rather than beautiful, as a work of art. The Bishop's throne, carved in wood, 1851, deserves notice.

The University Chapel in the S. aisle contains 2 good pictures by Holbein, in his early style—a Nativity, and an Adoration of the Magi; the latter very fine, especially the figure of the Virgin. It was painted for the Oberriedt family, whose portraits are introduced below.

The University, founded 1457, by Archduke Albert VI. of Austria, has 298 students. It is the Roman Catholic seminary of the Grand Duchy of Baden. Heidelberg is Protestant.

Near the gate leading to Frankfurt stands the Protestant Church, an elegant building in Romanesque (Byzantine) style, with an octagon tower. It was skilfully transferred, in 1836, stone by stone, from an old convent at Thenenbach, 15 m. off in the forest.

The Kaufhaus, S. of the cathedral, is a very quaint Gothic building of the 16th cent., resting on pointed arches, decorated externally with fresco portraits gilt of the Empr. Maximilian I., his son Philip, Charles V., and Ferdinand I. The Gothic portal under the arcade exhibits a singular arrangement. A sandstone statue of the Franciscan friar, Berthold Schwartz, who lived in the early part of the 14th cent., here or at Cologne, and said to be the inventor of gunpowder, has been set up in front of the University.

The two Gothic Fountains, in the Kaiser Strasse, deserve notice, the one adorned with statues of bishops, knights, and saints, the other with a statue to Duke Berthold III., founder of Freiburg. The town is flourishing from the wine and timber trade and the manufacture of chicory.

Walks in the Vicinity.—To the Schlossberg, about $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.'s walk from the minster. The ascent begins near the Schwaben Thor. The eye ranges over the vale of the Dreisam, bounded in the distance by the waving outline of the Black Forest hills rising one behind another. The filigree work of the spire is seen from this to the greatest advantage. To the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Jägerhäuschen restaurant; and on to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Ruins of Zähringen (see above); to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Loretto Chapel on the Schliessberg.

[N. G.]

More distant excursions are—

(a) Through the Guntersthal to the (2 hrs.) Schönberg, and on (in 4 hrs.) to the summit of the Schau-ins-Land (Erzkasten), and by the Cappeler Valley to the Baths of Littenweiler.

(b) Through the Eschbach valley, and over the Lindenberg to St. Peter (Inn: Hirsch), and thence by the Glottler valley to Denzlingen Stat. (see above).

(c) Through the Höllenthal as far as 11 m. Steig, described in road to Schaffhausen, in Rte. 109.

(d) To E. 40 m. Donaueschingen Stat., on rly. for Constance or Schaffhausen, described in Rte. 108 (Schnellpost twice daily, in $9\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.).

(e) To the Kaisersstuhl range, reached from the Riegel Stat. (see above), whence Schnellpost four times daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., to W. 4 m. Endingen, and thence ascend through Schellingen, returning by Neun Linden and Ober-Schaffhausen, and through Ihringen to Alt-Breisach Stat. (see below).

(f) Branch rly. W. 13 m., passing along the S. side of the Kaisersstuhl range, through Gottenheim and Ihringen (see above) to Alt-Breisach Stat. (Inns: Post; Ochse; Wilder Mann), a decayed town of 3300 Inhab., once a frontier fortress, and the key of Germany on the W., on a high rock above the rt. bank of the Rhine. It is first-mentioned in Cæsar's time as Mons Brisiacus, a stronghold of the Sequani, which the German chief Ariovistus seized. From 1648 to 1697 Breisach was annexed to France. There is nothing now to show its former importance save the Minster of St. Stephen, Gothic, 13th cent., on the height. The choir is raised on a crypt supported by reeded piers. The transepts Romanesque. It contains a fine old Rood Screen, some monuments, and a silver shrine, which held the relics of the martyrs Gervasius and Protasius, found by St. Ambrose at Milan. Its chief curiosity, however, is its beautiful Altar Screen, carved in wood. The central compartment, a Coronation of the Virgin, a very masterly work of art, with the date 1597, has the monogram of the sculptor, Hans Leifrink, or Leychman. The l.-hand shutter bears patron saints of the town; the rt.-hand is occupied by St. Stephen and St. Lawrence. The whole is surmounted by pinnacles, that in the centre reaching up to the roof. A monument to the Grand Duke of Baden, Carl Frederick, has been placed on the top of the Eggardsberg, where once stood the Citadel. It sustained a memorable siege, 1638, from the Swedes under Duke Bernhard of Saxe-Weimar. Flying bridge across the Rhine on road to Colmar, by Neu-Breisach (see Rte. 107).

The rly. to Basle continues S. to 8 m. Krozingen Stat. (Inn: Post). Schnellpost 4 times daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., to S.E. 3 m. Staufen, above which village are the ruins of Staufenburg Castle.

4 m. Heitersheim Stat. This village was for near three centuries the seat of the Grand Prior of the German Division of the Knights of St. John. It was secularized 1806. Schnellpost twice daily in 1 hr. to S.E., 4 m., Salzburg (Inn: Hirsch), a village of 1500 Inhab., the birthplace of Schöpplin, the Reformer, beyond which, higher up the valley, are the prettily situated Baths.

4 m. Mülheim Stat. (Inns: Kittler's; Krone). [Omnibus 4 times daily in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to E. 5 m.

The Baths of Badenweiler (Inns: Stadt Carlsruhe, fine view; Römerbad, both good), a rapidly increasing watering-place. The thermal waters were known to the Romans, and the Baths erected by them were discovered, 1784, in a very perfect state of preservation. They consist of a swimming bath, 4 large and 8 smaller baths, and include a vapour bath, anointing-room, dressing-room, &c. They are regarded as the most perfect out of Rome, and are 324 ft. long by 100 broad. An inscription found on the spot proves that they were dedicated to Diana Abnoba. This pleasant little place, 1400 ft. above the sea-level, is now furnished with a handsome and very convenient wooden Bath-house (Kurhaus), built 1853 from Eisenlohr's plans. Behind it rises the Castle, ruined by the French, 1688, a capital point of view, with beautiful walks around it. Cold water, which is scarce here, has been conveyed in a conduit from the Blauen to Badenweiler. Excursions may be made to the castle of Bürgeln, 6 m., and to the top of the Blauen mountain (6 m.), 3597 ft. high, the loftiest in the district. Still finer is the panorama of the Vosges, Jura, Alps, and Black Forest from the Belchen. The excellent white wine called Markgräfler, the best which Baden produces, is grown near this.

At Neuburg, 3 m. W. of Mülheim, Duke Bernhard of Saxe-Weimar died, 1639, poisoned, it was supposed, by Richelieu.]

4 m. Schlingen Stat. (Inns: Krone; Sonne). Here an action was fought between Moreau and the Archduke Charles, 1796.

The Railway approaches the Rhine, here encroached upon by hills, which are bored by 3 short tunnels.

9 m. Efringen Stat. Through fine scenery.

The Baden custom-house is at 5 m. Leopoldshöhe Stat., but passengers' baggage is examined at 4 m. Basle Terminus in Little Basle (Handbook for Switzerland, Rte. 1).

ROUTE 106.

CARLSRUHE TO BADEN-BADEN.—RAIL.

Distance, 23 m.; time, 1 hr.; 10 trains daily.

Carlsruhe and the Rly. as far as 20 m. Oos Junct. Stat. are described in Rte. 105. From Oos a Branch Rly. runs S.E. through a valley, which begins to contract and the hills to rise on either side. On the l. the old castle of Baden is seen crowning the summit of a fir-clad hill. On the rt. rises the hill of Yburg, on which another castle is perched. Both of them were, perhaps, Roman forts originally.

3 m. Baden Terminus (called Baden-Baden, to distinguish it from places of the same name in Switzerland and near Vienna). Omnibus from Rly. Telegraph office at Stat.

Inns: Badischer Hof (much frequented by the English), good, excellent table-d'hôte; H. Victoria, a handsome house; H. de l'Europe, opposite the Conversationshaus and Trinkhalle; H. d'Angleterre, an excellent house; H. de Russie, clean and good, comfortable and moderate; H. de Hollande*, good; H. Royal (charges at these hotels nearly alike: rooms from 1 mk. 70 pf. upwards, breakfast from 1 mk. 25 pf., service 70 pf.); H. de France; Zähringer Hof; H. Stadt Baden (conveniently situated, reasonable and good—visitors can be taken "en pension"), at the stat.; Hirsch; H. St. Petersburg.

There are many other inns, and nearly $\frac{1}{2}$ of the houses in the town are let as lodgings, but do not provide dinners, which may be obtained at the Restaurants (Buhl's, Zerr's, Goringer's, &c.) in the town. The price of rooms varies, according to season and situation. Some of the inns are provided with baths, but there is no building here appropriated exclusively to bathing. The best wines of the country are Affenthaler (red), Klingelberger, and Markgräfler.

There can be but one opinion as to the beauty of the situation of the town of Baden, embosomed among hills forming an offset or commencement of the Black Forest range, and seated in the narrow valley of the Oos. The town has about 10,000 permanent Inhab., and is built chiefly on the slope of a hill, the sides of which, above the streets, are dotted with bright villas and gardens. The mineral springs were known to and appreciated by the Romans, who fixed a colony here, and called it Civitas Aurelia Aquensis, after the Emp. Aurelius Severus Alexander. It was for 6 centuries the abode of the Margraves of Baden, lineal descendants of the old Dukes of Zähringen; but upon the rebuilding of Rastatt, after its burning by the French in 1689, the Baden-Baden branch removed their Court thither until the extinction of that branch in 1771. At present the Grand Duke of Baden occasionally visits his Villa here, but resides principally during the summer at his Castle of Eberstein. Baden may be considered one of the most fashionable German watering-places. The influx and concourse of visitors have greatly increased of late, and, in consequence, the number of inns and other buildings has multiplied proportionately. It is by far the most beautiful of the baths of Germany in its situation, even surpassing in this respect the Brunnen of Nassau (described in Rte. 95). The surrounding country, without the sublimity and grandeur of Switzerland, is distinguished by a pleasing and romantic wildness. The neighbourhood will afford almost endless gratification in the beauty of its prospects and the number and variety of the rides and walks, cut for miles in every direction through the forests and up the surrounding hills.

Whatever be the taste or disposition of the traveller, he will assuredly find something to please him here. There are saloons, promenades, balls, concerts, and other luxuries of a capital; and, on the other hand, 20 different paths, leading in 10 min. into the depths of dark woods or deep valleys, where he may enjoy solitude and shade even in the height of summer. The months of July and August are the season when the baths are most frequented, but visitors are constantly coming and going from May to October, if the weather be fine. More than 50,000 persons visit Baden in one season. The number of English visitors increases so much of late that the place assumes the appearance of a settlement of our countrymen. This influx has the effect of diminishing its advantages of cheapness and retirement, as the price of everything has been raised nearly one-half. After October the soil and climate are extremely damp—the grassy banks are oozing with water, which the granitic substratum will not absorb, and the hotels and lodging-houses suffer greatly from moisture.

The Hot Springs (29 in number) yielding daily 28,528 cubic ft. of water, burst out of the rock at the foot of the castle terrace, called Schneckengarten, behind the parish church. That part of the town goes by the name of "Hell," and in the coldest weather snow never rests upon it. Neither summer nor winter produces any variation in the temperature of the springs. The hottest are 54° Réaum., the coldest 37°. Water from them is conveyed through the town in pipes, to supply the different baths, and loses little of its warmth in the passage; but the supply greatly exceeds the demand, so that some of the sources are used by the townspeople to scald their pigs and poultry. A building in the form of a temple is erected over the principal spring (Ursprung), one of the hottest as well as most copious sources. The vault of masonry which encloses the spring is of Roman construction.

Neptune seems to have been the adopted patron of Baden and of this medicinal fountain. Remains of Roman vapour-baths, well preserved, were discovered in 1847 just beneath the new castle. The mineral water which comes out of the rock was conducted by a canal to a subterranean chamber of about 20 ft. in breadth and 40 in length, from which the vapour ascended to the bathing-room by a great many pipes which open all round its walls. The floor is supported by small columns 3 ft. high.

The Neue Trinkhalle (i. e. Pump-room) (erected 1842), on the public walks, and nearly on a line with the Conversationshaus, is covered with 14 faded frescoes, by Götzenberger, representing legends of the Black Forest. The hot water is conducted in pipes from the source; and other mineral waters, goats' whey, &c., are to be had. The company assembles here between 6½ and 7½ A.M. to drink the waters, and the band plays.

On the l. bank of the Oosbach, opposite to the town, are the Promenade and the Conversationshaus, a handsome building (erected 1824) with a Corinthian portico, surrounded by pleasure-grounds, forming the lounge and chief resort—in fact, the grand focus of attraction for the visitors at Baden. It is one of the most splendid establishments of the kind in Germany, and includes a very fine and large assembly-room, where there is dancing at times, to which people repair in their morning dress. There is a Restaurant in the rt. wing, where dinners may be had à la carte; and in the l. the Circulating Library and Reading-room of M. Marx, open to all, where The Times, Galvani's Messenger, and other English papers are taken in. The shady avenues leading to the Conversationshaus are occupied by shops of traders from various parts of Europe—Tyrol, Switzerland, Paris—all selling their national commodities, and commonly not very cheap. In the afternoon, when dinner is over, the walks and colonnades in front of the Conversationshaus become the fashionable resort, and are crowded with people sipping coffee and ices, or smoking; and a band of music is stationed close at hand.

After 6 P.M. the Lichtenthaler Allee is crowded with gay equipages, and groups of equestrians. "The Corso" may be compared with the Ring in Hyde Park or the Bois de Boulogne.

The Theatre, built 1862, is closed June and July. In the other months of the season open 3 times a week; near it is the Kunsthalle or modern Picture Gallery.

In the Leopold Platz is a bronze status of the Grand Duke Leopold, erected 1861.

Gambling was abolished at Baden, as elsewhere, in 1872.

Immediately above the highest houses of the town rises the Neues Schloss (new castle), summer residence of the Grand Duke of Baden—called new only by way of distinguishing it from the still older castle on the very summit of the hill above, in which the Duke's ancestors resided during the insecure times of the Middle Ages, down to 1471, when the present new Schloss was founded. It was burnt and ruined in the fatal year 1689 by the French army that ravaged the Palatinate, but was afterwards restored in its present form. It is an ugly building, remarkable for its situation and the curious Dungeons beneath it. Under the guidance of the castellan (small fee), the stranger is conducted into these singular vaults down a winding stair, under the tower in the rt.-hand corner of the inner court, through an ancient bath constructed by the Romans. This entrance has been broken through in modern times; originally the dungeons were only accessible from above, by a perpendicular shaft or chimney running through the centre of the building, and still in existence. In the Rack Chamber (Folter-Kammer) loftier than the rest, the instruments of torture stood. In a passage adjoining there is an oubliette, or well in the floor, now boarded over, originally covered with a trap-door.

The last and largest of these vaults is called the Hall of Judgment. Here the judges sat upon stone benches, remains of which may still be traced round the wall. Behind the niche where the president (Blutrichter) sat is the outlet to a subterranean passage, by which the members of the court entered; it is said to have communicated at one time with the Altes Schloss on the top of the hill, but is now walled up.

According to popular belief, these dungeons were the seat of a Secret Tribunal (Vehmgericht), such as that described so well by Scott in 'Anne of Geierstein,' and by Göthe in 'Götz of Berchlingen;' but the famous Vehme of Westphalia held its meetings, not in the dark, nor in dungeons, but in broad day, and in the open field. (See Dortmund.)

There is little doubt that these prisons were the place of meeting of a mysterious tribunal, over which the lord of the castle most probably presided. Similar prisons are to be found in almost every well-preserved baronial fortress of the Middle Ages.

The upper part of the castle, containing portraits of the Baden family, rich ceilings and wood carvings, is also worth notice on account of the fine view from its windows, and from the Pavilion on the terrace. The small garden adjoining the castle, called Schneckengarten (snail-garden, because snails were once bred in it for the table), and the terrace, are agreeable walks, commanding fine views.

The Parish Church (Cath.), built 14th cent., restored 1753, was from 1471 to 1771 the burial-place of the Margraves of Baden. The most conspicuous monument is that of Margrave Louis William, who distinguished himself against the Turks, and was the impracticable colleague of Marlborough and Eugene. In the teeth of his epitaph, "Atlas Germaniæ, semper vicit, nunquam victus," it must be recorded that he was beaten by Marshal Villars at Friedlingen, 1702, and at Hanau, 1706. He died 1707. His monument is by Pigalle (the sculptor of that of Marshal Saxe at Strassburg), and is not in good taste. Margrave Frederick, although Bishop of Utrecht, is represented on his tomb clad in armour, but with a mitre on his head instead of a helmet. Another of the family, Leopold William, also fought against the infidel, in token of which his monument (one of the best in the collection) is supported by Turks, chained. He was the colleague of Stahremberg and Montecucoli, and died at Warasdin in Hungary, 1671.

At the E. end of the town is a Convent of nuns of the Holy Sepulchre: their dress is black, in sign of mourning; to be worn until the Holy Sepulchre shall be again rescued from the Infidels by the Christians. The sisters conduct a female school; the service in their convent chapel, aided by the voices of a female choir, is very impressive and pleasing.

The English Church Service is performed every Sunday at 11 and 3 in the very pretty English Church, built and consecrated 1867. English visitors usually subscribe towards the stipend of the clergyman.

The Russo-Greek Chapel consecrated 1866, on the hill behind the Pump-room, was built by Prince Michel Stourdza to contain the grand monument of his son. Leo von Klenze was architect. The interior is decorated with paintings.

Races have been held here annually, during the season, since 1857.

Dr. Hermann Müller, a resident German physician, understands the English language and practice. Dr. Chelius, the celebrated physician from Heidelberg, is here in the season.

Hired carriages, donkeys, and riding-horses are to be had in abundance during the season at all the principal inns. About 2 or 3 in the afternoon they collect at the end of the avenue leading to the Conversationshaus, to await employers. All the charges are fixed according to distance, by a printed tariff (Taxe).

A traveller pressed for time may visit the most interesting objects around Baden in 6 hrs., with a carriage and 2 horses, costing 11 or 12 mks. (consult the tariff). After seeing the Old Schloss, which will take up 3 hrs. on foot, he may drive by Lichtenthal to Neu-Eberstein; thence descend the Murgthal to Gernsbach, by Ottenau, Rothenfels (good Inn), and Kuppenheim, to the Favorite; whence he may return to Baden in time for the evening promenade and Corso.

Excursions.—A stranger cannot be at a loss for excursions: let him follow almost any path leading out of the town, and he will find it a pleasant walk. One of the most agreeable, and usually the first taken, is that to the

(a) Altes Schloss (2½ m., an hour's walk), the conspicuous ruin which rises out of the woods on the summit of the hill above the town. A carriage-road, commencing behind the Neues Schloss, leads up the hill to it in zigzags, but a shorter foot-path is open for pedestrians, or those who trust to mules and asses, the usual beasts of burden employed in this excursion. The shade of the woods through which the path winds alleviates the fatigue of the ascent in the heat of the day, while seats are opportunely placed, wherever a projecting rock displays the view to advantage.

The Altes Schloss was from the 12th cent. the residence of the ancestors of the reigning house of Baden. Its situation afforded its owners security from foes during 3½ cents. of rapine and disorder. At length, in the 15th cent., when the right of private warfare was abolished, the Lords of Baden ventured to descend from their tower on high, and settled in the New Château, close to the town. This interesting and picturesque old ruin was dismantled and reduced to its present state by the French in the devastating war of the Palatinate. The view which the galleries round its mouldering battlements afford is the most pleasing and extensive in the neighbourhood of Baden. On one side are seen the dark hills of the Black Forest, luxuriantly clothed with the woods from which they get their name, contrasting with the verdure of the valleys they enclose, while the town of Baden at our feet, numberless villages, church spires, convents, and mills, clustering on the borders of winding streams, fill the foreground: on the other side, the hills subside into the plain of the Rhine, whose course may be traced in the distance, backed by the Vosges Mountains.

London, John Murray, Albemarle Street.

A path leading from the gateway of the castle to the left, and winding round the shoulder of the hill, conducts to Ebersteinburg (2 m.), another ruin, near a village of the same name. This is an agreeable prolongation of the morning's excursion. Walks are also cut in the hill above the castle to the curious rocks called Felsenbrücke on the summit, whence a good view over the level land to Strassburg may be enjoyed.

(b) The views from the top of the other hills around Baden, the Jagdhaus (Hunting-lodge, from which the spire of Strassburg may be seen), (c) the Yburg, 6 m. (accessible for carriages only part of the way—to the foot of the hill), and (d) the Mercuriusberg, 5 m. (on whose summit a tower is built), partake more or less of the character of that from the Altes Schloss. Nevertheless, a person residing some time at Baden will find each of them a pleasant excursion, affording most excellent situations for a picnic party. (e) More distant and very interesting are the ruins of Allerheiligen Abbey, taking the rail to Achern Stat. (see Rte. 105).

(f) Lichtenthal. An avenue of shady oaks, commencing near the S. end of the town of Baden, leads up the valley, $1\frac{1}{2}$ m., to the Convent of Lichtenthal, founded 1245. It was richly endowed in ancient days by the Margraves of Baden, but has undergone the fate of all such religious establishments; its revenues only escaped entire confiscation by the interference of the Grand Duke, and the number of its inmates is now reduced to 20 nuns. In the older and smaller of the two churches attached to the convent are many curious monuments of the Margraves, bearing their mailed effigies, and the crest of goat's horn displayed on their helmets: one prince lies on a slab or table, clad in mail, with bars of iron running down the sleeves, a curious transition from chain to plate armour.

The Orphanage attached to the convent is one of the foundations of the charitable London tailor Stultz, who was created a nobleman by the Grand Duke of Baden.

The convent and the village of Oberbeuern, close to Lichtenthal, lie at the entrance of a beautiful miniature Swiss valley, the picture of quiet seclusion. A clear rippling stream flows through the midst, and sets in activity several saw-mills; rich verdant meadows and well-cultivated cornfields line its banks, and extend up to the hem of the forest, which clothes all the hills around with its dark foliage. A carriage-road leads by Geroldsau, a picturesque village, to a waterfall called the Butte (6 m. from Baden). The drive is pleasant; but the waterfall is dried up for a great part of the season, when its attractions are most needed.

A pedestrian disposed to take a good long walk may go to Yburg, proceed thence with a guide over the hills to Geroldsau and the waterfall, and return to Baden by Lichtenthal, making altogether 12 or 13 miles.

(g) The most pleasing excursion, however, beyond doubt, among the many which lie within the reach of the visitor at Baden, is that to the Valley of the Murg and Neu Eberstein (7 m.) and back, which will occupy a morning or afternoon.

An admirably constructed road leads by Lichtenthal and Beuern direct to Schloss Eberstein, a drive of 2 hrs., winding gradually over the ridge of steep hills, a spur or promontory shooting out from the Black Forest range, which divides the valley of Baden from that of the Murg.

The Castle of Neu Eberstein, an ancestral fortress of the Grand Ducal family, projects forward on the summit of a beetling crag, in a situation enabling its owners, in ancient days, to command the passage up and down the stream and valley, and to take toll from all comers. The old feudal ruin has been built up into a modern residence. Strangers are freely admitted to see it. In front of it, on a stone pedestal, is placed a huge statue of a wild boar (Eber.) The Gothic furniture, ancient armour, and painted glass with which it is decorated, though curious, will hardly distract the stranger's attention from the exquisite view which he will gain from the platform in front. The road descends in zigzags from the castle-gate to the Murg, and joins a shorter footpath through the wood, at a little white chapel called Der Klingel, the resort of pilgrims at certain seasons.

In the small town of Gernsbach (Inns: Stern; Löwe), 2000 Inhab., the saw-mills, which abound, are employed in cutting into planks the noble trees of the Black Forest, which, having been floated down the Murg, are here sorted, cut, and made up into rafts, to find their way down the Rhine to Holland.

There is good fishing in the Murg (trout and grayling), from Gernsbach to Forbach.

[Branch Rly. from Gernsbach down the valley of the Murg to Rastatt (Rte. 105) by Rothenfels, which has a fine hotel, pleasantly situated on the Murg, in pretty grounds, near a mineral spring called the Elizabethenquelle. Near Kuppenheim, at the intersection of the branch and main line, is the château called the Favorite, described in Rte. 105.]

Those who intend to wander further up the valley above Eberstein will find a footpath descending from the castle straight to the village of Oberzroth, where they again reach the side of the Murg. The road is rough, and in places very steep. The villages passed in succession are Hilpertsau, where the road crosses over to the rt. bank of the Murg; Weissenbach; Langenbrand, on a lofty granite rock, a very striking object; Gausbach, where the wooden houses resemble those of Switzerland; and Forbach (Inn: Krone, dirty), the last village belonging to Baden, 12 m. from Baden. Forbach generally forms the limits of a day's excursion, if the traveller intends returning the same day to Baden. The vale of the Murg is the entrance to other very beautiful valleys of the Black Forest.

In the side valley of the Rauhmünzach, a few miles above Forbach, and in the midst of the mountains, may be seen a kind of tank (Schwellung), formed by damming up the stream, which is opened at stated periods to float down vast masses of timber. The valley of the Murg loses its beauty in its upper extremity. The frontier of Würtemberg is reached at the post station Schönmünznach (Inns: Post and Zum Waldhorn), 2 posts from Wildbad. See Handbook for South Germany, Route 162, where the road from Baden to Wildbad is described.

ROUTE 107.

STRASSBURG TO BASLE, viâ SCHLETTSTADT [MARKIRCH], COLMAR, AND MÜLHAUSEN.

Distance, 88 m.; time, 3 to 5 hrs.; 7 trains daily.

Strassburg is described in Rte. 104.

There is nothing very remarkable between Strassburg and Basle, the line running through the plain of Alsace, up the valley of the Ill, and parallel with the Canal du Rhône au Rhin, and with the Rhine. It is carried over many hundred small bridges, which allow the streams descending from the Vosges to pass. It skirts the roots of that chain, and commands some good views of them and of their old castles. For fuller details and the excursions into the Vosges from various points on the line, see Rte. 170, Handbk. for France.

27 m. Schlettstadt Junct. Stat. (Fr. Schlestadt). Omnibus from Rly. (Inns: H. de l'Aigle; H. Bock; H. du Lion d'Or). Seated on the l. bank of the Ill, anciently an Imperial Free City, it has 10,040 Inhab. and some manufactures. In 1648 Schlettstadt was ceded to France. It was besieged in vain by the Allies in 1815, but, after a bombardment from the 19th to the 24th Oct., 1870, it capitulated to the Germans. The fortifications erected by Vauban are being dismantled (1873). The Ch. of St. George is rather an elegant Gothic building of the 14th cent., and that of Ste. Foy is remarkable for its antiquity, having been built 1094, on the model of the church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. It has a curious Romanesque tower. The glazing of earthenware was invented at Schlettstadt. Martin Bucer the reformer was born here 1491.

[Branch rly. 14 m., 1 hr., to Markirch (Fr. Ste. Marie aux Mines) Terminus Stat. (Inns: H. du Commerce; H. du Grand Cerf). Pop. 12,332. Situated at the head of the beautiful valley of the same name just under the pass leading to St. Dié. This is the German Custom-house, the frontier following the crest of the Vosges above the town.]

From the vicinity of Schlestadt, and from other points on the railway between Strassburg and Mülhausen, good views are obtained of the Vosges Mountains, stretching nearly parallel to the Rhine on the W., and gradually sinking into the plain traversed by the railway.

4 m. St. Pilt (Fr. St. Hippolyte) Stat. (Inn: Couronne), lies at the foot of a hill crowned by the ruined castle of Hohe Königsburg (15th cent.), the most extensive in the Vosges range, and very picturesque (a walk of 1½ hr.)

3 m. Rappoltsweiler (Fr. Ribeauvillé) Stat. (Inn: Lamm), a manufacturing town of 7146 Inhab. The best wine in the Vosges is produced about here.

The hill rising on the W. is crowned by the ruined castle of Rappoltstein, which was besieged in turn by Rudolph of Habsburg and Adolphus of Nassau. Lower down, on neighbouring heights, are the castles of Giersburg and St. Ulrich. Along the crest of the advanced line of hills forming the Vosges range above Rappoltsweiler runs the curious and mysterious bulwark, of unknown antiquity, called Heidenmauer, or Heathen's Wall. It is composed of unhewn stones, heaped together without cement, from 8 to 10 ft. high.

9 m. Colmar (Lat. Columbaria) Junct. Stat. (Inns: Deux Clefs, good; Trois Rois, near stat.). A flourishing town of 23,669 Inhab. Its chief manufactures are cotton goods. There are many large factories on the outskirts, especially in the valley of Münster. In 1226 Colmar was erected into an Imperial Free City. Louis XIV., who took it in 1673, razed the fortifications; they are now replaced by agreeable Boulevards surrounding the old town of narrow streets. Colmar was finally joined to France by the Treaty of Ryswick, 1697.

In the Minster, begun 1363, but unfinished, a Gothic edifice, containing some monuments and painted glass in the choir, is a painting by Martin Schön, or Schöngauer, a native of Colmar (d. 1488).

The old convent of the Dominicans, or of the Unterlinden, with its adjoining fine cloister, is converted into a Museum, and contains, besides the Public Library of 60,000 vols., several other paintings by Martin Schön; with other pictures attributed to Alb. Dürer and Grünwald.

Here is preserved an aërolite, which fell near Colmar in 1492.

The Halle aux Blés is in a desecrated Dominican church; the nave is very elegant. The fine choir of the Protestant Church is now a warehouse; and several other religious edifices are degraded to similar purposes.

General Rapp was born at Colmar, 1772. Statues of him and of Adm. Bruat have been erected in the town; that of Martin Schöngauer, the painter and engraver (1420-88), has been placed in the cloister of the Unterlinden.

[Branch railway through Türkheim—once a Free Town, where Turenne gained a victory (1675) over the Imperialists,—to Münster 12 m. (Inn: H. Cicogne), an old manufacturing and formerly free town, of 4762 Inhab., on the Fecht, in a pretty, narrow valley (the Gregorienthal) shut in by hills, where factories and country seats alternate with vineyards and gardens. The town owes its origin to a Benedictine Abbey founded 660 by the Frankish King Childerich. A beautiful road from Münster, of 20 m., leads across the Schultz Pass to Gérardmer; the scenery on ascending is very fine.]

[Branch Rly. in progress, in meantime Diligence 3 times daily in 2 hrs. to E. 10 m. Neu Breisach, a fortified town, near the l. bank of the Rhine, whence flying bridge to Alt Breisach Stat., and rly. to Freiburg, described in Rte. 105.]

17 m. Bollweiler Junct. Stat. Some of the best wines of Alsace are grown near this.

[Branch Rly. in progress to Remiremont, completed to Guebweiler, 4 m. up the valley of the Lauch. Extensive cotton spinning. Pop. 9000. The Ch. is Romanesque, 11th cent.

The Ballon de Guebweiler, or de Sultz, the highest of the Vosges mountains, is 4705 ft. above the sea, and 10 m. from Bollweiler.]

7 m. Lutterbach Junct. Stat.

[Branch rly. to Sennheim (Fr. Cernay) Junct. Stat., and thence branches to Sentheim and to Wesserling, passing by Thann (Inns: Couronne; Soleil); Pop. 8154; a pretty manufacturing town with a superb Gothic Ch., St. Theobald (1455), surmounted by a spire of delicate open work more than 200 ft. high. Extensive cotton spinning and calico printing here. The ascent of the Ballon de Guebweiler may be made from Thann.]

5 m. Mülhausen (Fr. Mulhouse) Junct. Stat. Omnibus from rly. (Inns: H. Romann, large and well conducted; H. Wagner, adjoining above; H. de la Paix, near rly.) Pop. 58,773.

This, the most important manufacturing town in Alsace, situated on and intersected by numerous branches of the Ill, in a vast plain between the Vosges and the Rhine, became in 1273 a free Imperial city, and was an ally of the Swiss confederation from 1466 to 1798, when it was united to France. It was annexed to Germany 1871.

Any of the streets W. from opposite the Hotel Romann will lead into the Place de la Réunion, in which is the Hôtel de Ville—the only building of any historical importance in the town—a two-storeyed edifice with a very picturesque covered double exterior staircase leading to the first floor (obs. the date 1552 on the left-hand balustrade). The walls of the principal chamber are covered above the wainscot with coats of arms of the Mayors, and with an inscription relating the history of the town.

In the same square is the beautiful new Gothic Protestant Church, finished 1866, in the interior of which obs. the fine old carved stalls (date 1636) brought from the former ch.

The city fire-watch is stationed on the N. tower, from which a very fine view is obtained over the whole city and the surrounding country, including the Ballon d'Alsace, the highest peak of this portion of the Vosges range.

Opposite the door of this tower is an inscription on the wall of a house, stating that the astronomer Lambert was born there in 1728, and a wretched monument to him will be found in the Rue du Faubourg de Belfort, just outside the so-called Porte Haute. At the point where this street meets the canal commences the Workmen's City, founded by a philanthropic society in 1853, for the purpose of providing each workman and his family with a good separate residence. The city now contains some 700 houses, with a baking, washing, and bathing establishment attached, divided into the old city on the rt. bank and the new city on the l. bank of the canal, the two being similar in character but somewhat differently arranged. The new Catholic Church is a large and handsome Gothic edifice, finished in 1858 from the designs of Schacre, to whom also the Protestant Ch. and the Synagogue are due.

The branches of industry from which the great prosperity of Mülhausen are derived are the manufacture of calicoes and muslins and calico printing. Calico printing was first introduced here, 1746, by Samuel Köchlin (whose descendants are still the leading manufacturers), in conjunction with J. Schmalzer and H. Dollfus. The supply of fuel is obtained chiefly from the coal-field of St. Etienne.

The octagonal church of Ottmarsheim, of 12th cent., near Mülhausen, is an imitation of the Dom at Aix-la-Chapelle.

[Rly. W. to Belfort, Troyes and Paris, see Rte. 162, Hndbk. for France.]

17 m. St. Ludwig (Louis) Stat. Frontier town on the side of Germany. Luggage examined and passports looked at in coming from Switzerland.

3 m. Basle (Bâle) Central Stat. (see Swiss Handbook). (Inns: H. LaCicogne; H. Euler, good; Schweitzer Hof, both near stat; H. des Trois Rois.) Omnibuses to hotels meet every train.

ROUTE 108.

OFFENBURG TO CONSTANCE, BY THE VALLEY OF THE KINZIG, DONAU-ESCHINGEN, AND SINGEN [SCHAFFHAUSEN].—RAIL.

Distance, 111 m.; time, 5 to 7 hrs.; 5 trains daily.

Offenburg Junct. Stat. is described in Rte. 105.

The Black Forest Rly., opened 1874, is remarkable both as a skilful engineering work and for the beautiful scenery through which it passes. It is carried over 6 grand viaducts and traverses 38 tunnels. It turns S.E. down the valley of the Kinzig, a stream which descends from the Black Forest, and joins the Rhine at Kehl. The scenery at its upper extremity is very pleasing, though inferior to that of the Höllenthal (Rte. 109).

Near the pretty village of 3 m. Ortenberg Stat. (Inn: Krone), the modern Gothic Castle, on the site of an old one blown up by Marshal Créqui, 1668, is conspicuous on the l. of the road, upon an eminence overlooking the mouth of the Kinzigthal.

2 m. Gengenbach Stat. (Inn: Adler), Pop. 2500. An old walled town; timber-framed houses. The Benedictine monastery, now secularised, has a fine ch. attached to it.

5 m. Bieberach Stat. (Inn: Krone). The scenery from Bieberach to Hornberg is very picturesque, almost romantic. The Kinzig is crossed

5 m. Hasslach Stat. (Inn: Kreutz), on the l. bank of the Kinzig.

4 m. Hausach Stat. (Inn: H. Schmeider, at the Stat.). The ruined castle anciently belonged to a branch of the family of Fürstenberg, who were seigneurs of the town.

[Schnellpost daily in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to N. 3 m. Wolfach, thence twice daily in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. to E. 10 m. Schramberg, and in $2\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. to N. 13 m. Rippoldsau Baths, described in Hndbk. S. Germany.]

The line quits the Kinzig stream, and turning S. follows the valley of the Gutach through a country which has quite a Swiss character. The broad-roofed wooden houses, the costume of the people, and, above all, the frequent occurrence of gottre, tend to increase the resemblance.

5 m. Hornberg Stat. (Inns: Post, comfortable sleeping quarters; Bär). This little town (Pop. 1500) is beautifully situated under a height, crowned by an old Castle keep, and at the foot of the main chain of the Black Forest range. The skeleton of these mountains is granite; and they attain their greatest elevation (4616 ft. above the sea) near Feldberg.

Hence to Triberg, the Rly., partly hewn in the rock, ascends the valley of the Gutach, one of the most sequestered and beautiful in the Black Forest, and on this stage occur the most remarkable cuttings, viaducts, and tunnels (20). Then, after describing a series of wide curves, like the Semmering, doubling back upon itself, it reaches

8 m. Triberg Stat. (Inns: H. de la Forêt Noire, well situated 10 min. from the stat., 80 bed-rooms, dining-hall, saloon, and baths; H. Bauer; Ochs; Sonne; Löwe, good, near the Waterfall). The village, of 1800 Inhab., lies in a very romantic situation, hemmed in by high precipices, from one of which a pretty waterfall (the Fallbach, 500 ft., one of the finest in Germany, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the village) descends. Triberg is the centre of a manufacture peculiar to the Black Forest, that of wooden clocks, exported to the number, it is said, of 200,000 yearly, under the name of Dutch clocks, not only throughout Europe, but even to America and China. The sulphur-coloured straw-hats worn by the peasantry are also made here. Leaving Triberg another long tunnel succeeds, several viaducts and sharp curves, from some of which the line may be traced overhead and far down below in the depths of the valley. A very long tunnel through the heights of Sommesau makes the summit-level, 1790 ft.

The Briegach, one of the headwaters of the Danube, rises within a short distance of 7 m. St. Georgen (Inns: Adler; Hirsch), through which the old post-road passes, and where a flourishing watchmaking business is carried on. Ruins of an old Benedictine convent exist.

14 m. Villingen Junct. Stat. (Inns: Post; Lilie; Löwe), a walled town, 5360 Inhab., surrounded by bleak hills. It has the appearance of having been built on the site of a Roman encampment. It is a square crossed by two main streets at right angles, with four gates, one at each end of these streets. A Gothic minster (1420), and an antique Rathhaus and tower near the Friedhof.

About 4 m. E. of Villingen, near a village called Swenningen, is the Source of the Neckar. This is indeed a land of fountains and of watercourses; and though the height of the mountains is not great, and they have no glaciers or perpetual snow, yet the reservoirs of the Black Forest feed with large supplies the two principal rivers of Europe. The flakes of winter snow which descend upon some of the ridges, nay, even the drops of rain falling on opposite sides of a house, in some situations, are destined to end their career at the two opposite extremities of a continent; and, while part find their way to the German Ocean, others, which reached the ground within a few feet of them, take an opposite course, and fall into the Black Sea.

From Villingen Rly. N.E., via Rottweil, to Stuttgart, &c. (see Hndbk. for S. Germany), and S. the line proceeds to 8 m. Donaueschingen Stat. (Inns: Schütze; Post). This town is the chief place of the small Landgraviate of Baar, and contains 3403 Inhab. The principal building is the Palace of the mediatised Prince of Fürstenberg, a plain modern edifice, containing some antique Pictures of the old German school, Holbein, Zeitblom, &c., miniatures, a rich collection of Engravings, and a very choice Library abounding in old Germ. MSS. Here is also a collection of arms and armour.

In a corner of the garden, and between the walls of the palace and the church, is a round basin filled with clear sparkling water, which may be seen bubbling up from the bottom. Its waters, running out of the basin, are conducted for about 50 yds. in a subterranean channel into the Briegach, which from that point receives the name of the Danube. This little basin, under the castle window, goes by the name of the Source of the Danube. The real origin of that river seems to have been involved in a portion of the same mystery which conceals the source of the Nile. The claims which the basin in the courtyard has to be considered the source are, that the name of Danube is not given to the river until the waters of this little rill are received into it, and that the two upper streams, the Brege, whose fountain-head is at the solitary chapel of St. Martin, about 5 m. N.W. of the village of Furtwangen, and 25 m. from Donaueschingen, and the Briegach, rising near the convent of St. George, 20 m. off, in spite of the previous length of their course, are both liable to be exhausted by drought, until supplied by the rill from the castle garden of Prince Fürstenberg.

The whole country round Donaueschingen may be compared to a wet sponge, so abundant and numerous are the sources of water in springs, rills, ponds, and marshes, all of which go to swell the tide of the Danube. About a mile out of Donaueschingen, at the village of Hülfigen, the road crosses the Brege, which in regard to its previous length may be looked on as the main stream of the Danube; the Briegach falls into it about a mile lower down.

[Schnellpost from Donaueschingen twice daily in 3½ hrs. to W. 17 m. Neustadt (Rte. 109), and thence on, once daily in 4 hrs., to 23 m. Freiburg (Rte. 105). Rly. in progress S. to join the line between Waldshut and Schaffhausen; in the meantime Schnellpost daily in 4½ hrs. as far as 18 m. Stühlingen (Rte. 109).]

The Rly. for Constance turns E. to 12 m. Immendingen Junct. Stat. [Rly. N. to Stuttgart, &c. (Hndbk. S. Germany)]. The Rly. crosses the Danube for the last time, and through a tunnel returns into the wooded valley of the Rhine near 9 m. Engen Stat., where Moreau beat the Austrians, in 1800, with a loss of 7000 men on either side, when the height of Hohenhöwen, an extinct volcano, once more vomited forth flames; but in spite of the tremendous fire of the Austrian artillery planted on it, it was carried by the French.

9 m. Singen Junct. Stat. (Inn: Krone), a town of Baden, Pop. 1532, near the foot of Hohentwiel (ascent 1 hr., fine view), crowned by a hillfort, ruined by the French under Vandamme. It is a singular basalt mountain, which from its shape may at once be known as an extinct volcano, like the neighbouring Hohenstoffeln and Hohenkrähe. [Rly. W. to Basle through 12 m. Schaffhausen Stat., described in Hndbk. for Switzerland (Inns: at Neuhausen Stat. which is close to the Falls—Schweitzer Hof, best; H. Bellevue; and on l. bank of Rhine Schloss Laufen, good. In the town—Couronne, good, and not expensive).]

Railway, by Stein, to Winterthur.

From Singen the line proceeds E. to 6 m. Radolfzell Junct. Stat. (Inn: Post, good), an ancient town, retaining its old walls and gates, with a handsome late Gothic Church, 1436, situated at the extremity of the branch of the Lake of Constance called Unter See, with a fine ch., in the true German Gothic style. In the broad part of the Rhine, where it is still rather a lake than a river, is the Isle of Reichenau, anciently famed for a monastery, founded by one of the successors of Charlemagne, of which the Ch. (partly Romanesque) and Treasury remain. In the Treasury are to be seen the shrine of St. Fortunata, an ivory ciborium, a cope, a crozier, and a missal of the 10th cent.

[Branch Rly. N. 35 m. to Mengen Junct. Stat. for Ulm, &c. (Hndbk. S. Germany).]

The Rhine here, suddenly contracted from a lake to a river, is crossed by a handsome iron railway- and road-Bridge, surmounted by 4 statues of Baden worthies.

12 m. Constance Stat., close to the lake, the steamers and the chief sights. Inns: Bath Hotel, on the shore of the lake beyond the bridge, comfort and splendour, airy; fine views of lake; baths, 200 beds; Insel Hotel, the old Dominican Convent in which Huss was confined, handsome Gothic salon, close to lake and bridge; Brochet (Hecht), looking over the lake, good; *Adler (Post); Badischer Hof. This is capital head-quarters for fishing. Anglers may obtain from the inn-keepers here rods, nets, punts, and all appliances for fishing, trolling, &c., on moderate terms.

This city of 10,052 Inhab., instead of 40,000, which it once possessed, although situated on the l. or Swiss bank of the Rhine, belongs to Baden. It is connected with the opposite shore by an iron bridge, and occupies a projecting angle of ground at the W. extremity of the Bodensee, or lake of Constance; its agreeable position and interesting historical associations make amends for the want of life perceptible within its venerable walls. It has of late, however, revived considerably; a pier and small harbour formed on the lake for steamboats, close to the Rly. Stat., facilitate commerce.

The *Minster or Cathedral is a Gothic building of much interest, begun 1048, part rebuilt in 16th cent. Its W. front is carried upward to form a broad tower, surmounted by 2 modern spires. Beneath, in the recessed W. portal, the oaken doors, elaborately carved in 20 compartments, with a representation of the Passion of our Lord, were executed in 1470 by one Simon Bainer. The nave is Romanesque, the double aisles are later: hideous whitewash prevails. Here the sentence of burning was pronounced from the pulpit upon Huss. Robert Hallam, Bishop of Salisbury, who presided over the English deputation to the Council, is buried in front of the high altar, under a tombstone bearing an English brass. He wears the Order of the Garter. The choir and its aisles were rebuilt end of the 13th cent. Choir-stalls and their satirical carved reliefs are of the same age as the doors. In the N. transept is a representation of the death of the Virgin; in the S. one of the Entombment, figures of life size. The crypt is of the 10th or 11th cent. Two sides of the Cloisters, whose arches are filled in with beautiful tracery, are yet standing. In a circular building in the Pointed style, within them, is a Holy Sepulchre, used for Good Friday ceremonies, and ornamented with Scriptural figures.

From the choir a Gothic stair leads up to the Sacristy (Schatz Kammer), containing old church-plate (11th cent.), and numerous relics, as, one of the arrows which pierced St. Sebastian, the skull of St. Conrad enclosed in a silver figure, a piece of the true Cross, &c.; also much fine Brabant lace, an illuminated missal, 1426, and a beautiful Gothic fireplace and piscina. In the Vestry-room are a range of cupboards or presses of carved oak, none of a later date than the 15th cent. There is a beautiful view from the tower of the cathedral, E. over the lake and mountains of Tyrol, and W. over the valley of the Rhine. St. Stephen's Ch. is a fine Gothic building of the 14th cent.

In the Kaufhaus, an isolated wooden building like a warehouse, close to the harbour and station (date 1388), the Great Council of Constance held some of its sittings, 1414-18, in a large room supported by wooden pillars. That famous assembly, composed, not of bishops alone, like the ancient councils, but of deputies, civil and ecclesiastical, from the whole of Christendom, including princes, cardinals (30), patriarchs (4), archbishops (20), bishops (150), professors of universities and doctors of theology (200), besides a host of ambassadors, inferior prelates, abbots, priors, &c., was convened for the purpose of remedying the abuses of the Church. It exerted its influence by deposing the infamous John XXIII. and Benedict XIII., and by electing in their place Martin V. It has incurred a lasting and odious celebrity by the treacherous seizure of John Huss and Jerome of Prague, in spite of the safe-conduct granted to the former by King Sigismund, the president of the assembly.

In the Rosen-garten, a Gothic guild-house of the 12th cent., creditably restored as a museum, are preserved the chairs occupied by the Pope and King; the Bible of Huss; a model of the dungeon, now destroyed, in which he was confined, and the actual door and other fragments; a car which is said to be that in which he was drawn to execution; the figure of Abraham which supported the pulpit in the Minster, also the stone from the Minster on which he stood to receive sentence. See also relics of the Hussite wars; shields and spiked flails; Swedish cannon-balls of stone; executioners' swords. Remains of Lake-dwellings found on the spot, including portions of oaken piles; hand-made pottery; whorls. There is an interesting collection also of local fossils; Ichthyosaurus from Bol; leaves from Oeningen; bones from Thayingen.

The Stadthaus, painted outside with modern frescoes, presents a picturesque inner court with towers in the angles.

The house in which Huss lodged, bearing a rude likeness of him, is pointed out in the Paul's Strasse, near the Schnetzthor. He was thrown into prison, soon after his arrival, in the Dominican Convent, now the Insel Hotel, an interesting specimen of a Gothic convent, with cloister and chapter-hall, which deserves a visit. Near the bridge rises an old tower, which once defended the passage, and beyond the bridge in Petershausen are huge Prussian Bar-racks, hastily erected 1875.

The field outside of the town, in the suburb of Brühl, in which Huss suffered martyrdom, with a fortitude which moved even his judges and executioners to admiration—even the place where the stake was planted is marked by an inscription upon a block of stone.

Constance belonged to the crown of Austria from 1549 to 1805, when, by the Treaty of Presburg, it was transferred to Baden. The spirit of industry is reviving, and several manufactories of cotton, of muslin, and one of silk, have sprung up.

Excursions.—(a) To Reichenau (see above). (b) To the island of Meinau (Inn), about 4 m. N. of Constance, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. drive. This small island is approached by a narrow causeway and a bridge, leading to the Château, a summer residence of the Grand Duke of Baden, with a modern chapel, attached to which are the buildings of a model farm. The gardens are well laid out and planted with rare conifers. The house was once a commandery of the Knights of the Teutonic Order. From the terrace of the garden there is a magnificent view over the lake, of the mountains of the Vorarlberg and Appenzell, among which the Sentis is pre-eminent. (c) To Ueberlingen (steamer 4 times daily), where is a fine Ch., also caves in the rocks, used as a refuge from the Huns.

Railways.—W. through Radolfzell, and Singen, for Offenburg or Schaffhausen to Basle (see above). S.E. along the S. shore of the lake through Rorschach to St. Gall, &c. (see Handbk. for Switzerland).

Steamers on the lake (Boden-See) to Bregenz—to Friedrichshafen [Rly.

to Ulm and Stuttgart, &c., Handbk. S. Germany—to Langenargen—to Lindau—[Rly. to Augsburg, Munich, &c., Hndbk. S. Germany—to Ludwigshafen—to Meersburg—to Rorschach—to Schaffhausen, and to Ueberlingen (see above).

The Lake of Constance is described in the Handbk. for Switzerland.

ROUTE 109.

FREIBURG IN BREISGAU TO SCHAFFHAUSEN, BY THE HÖLLENTAL [LENZKIRCH TO ST BLAIZE AND ALBBRÜCK].

Distance, 53 m.; time, 12 to 13 hrs.

Freiburg to Stühlingen, 42 m.; Schnellpost daily in 10½ hrs.

Stühlingen to Schaffhausen by Rly. via Griesen 20 m.

Freiburg is described in Rte. 105. Omnibus from Freiburg to the Stern Inn at Steig daily in 2 hrs., returning in the afternoon. The stages are so hilly that at least 12 hrs. are occupied on the road travelling post, exclusive of stoppages.

The valley of the Dreisam, up which the road is carried, is at its commencement near Freiburg a level and fertile plain of considerable width, bounded by gently sloping wooded hills. In the neighbourhood of

7 m. Burg, it begins to ascend, and in this part is styled Himmelreich (Heaven), in reference to its elevation, and in contrast to the frowning gorge which succeeds, commonly known as the Hölle (Valley of Hell), which about 9 m. from Freiburg assumes a character of romantic beauty and grandeur. Its charm lies in the rich foliage of the woods covering its steep sides, out of which project buttresses and pinnacles of bare rock, at the foot of which runs the Dreisam, bordered with turf and studded with frequent water-mills. Even here, its scenery, though wild, exhibits none of those horrors which its name would seem to imply. The narrow pass extends little more than a mile. Perhaps the most remarkable spot is that called the Hirschsprung.

Through this valley Moreau executed his famous retreat of the Black Forest, in 1796, and gained by it as high a reputation for military talent as he would have acquired by a victory. The French Marshal Villars declined attempting this pass in 1702, saying he was "not devil enough."

3 m. Steig (Inn: Post or Stern, a solitary house, clean, and good fare, including capital trout, at a cheap rate). The ascent of the Feldberg, the highest mountain in the Schwarzwald (4590 ft.), may be made from this in 3 hrs. There is an Inn on the summit. [The Feldberg may be descended on the S. side to Todtnau, whence Schnellpost in 3½ hrs. twice daily through Zell to 16 m. Schopfheim, terminus Stat. of branch Rly. S.E. 13 m. 5 trains daily in 1 hr. to Basle.]

Immediately beyond the Stern the road begins to ascend a steep slope, which carries it out of the Höllenthal, leaving behind the finest scenery. 2 mks. are paid for an extra horse up the Höllensteig. At the top the road divides into 2 branches. [The l. road goes to Donaueschingen, Stat. on Rly. to Constance (see Rte. 108). It passes through Neustadt (Inn: Post, good), a town of 1500 Inhab., on the Wutach. Here and in the neighbourhood are manufactured numbers of the wooden clocks for which the Black Forest is famous. The inhabitants, an industrious race, employ themselves also in polishing garnets and crystals, as well as in rearing singing-birds. A very excellent cheese, sold as Swiss, is produced in this district.]

We continue to follow the shortest and most direct road. A small lake, called Titi-see (Inn: Rössle), is passed on the rt., and another equally steep hill succeeds, which must be surmounted before reaching 7 m. Lenzkirch (Inns: Post, best; Cheval Blanc, good). Here many wooden clocks, for which the Black Forest is famed, are made: one may be bought for 7 mks.

[There is a good road through grand scenery from Lenzkirch to Albrück or Waldshut Stats. on the rly. from Basle to Schaffhausen, by the Lake of Schluch to 7 m. St. Blasien (H. St. Blasien; Krone). The magnificent Benedictine Abbey of St. Blaize, now secularized, is turned into a factory, where spinning-jennies and fire-arms are made. The Church, built by Ixnard, 1768-80, is a rotunda of somewhat larger dimensions than the Pantheon at Rome, with a portico of granite pillars. On the dissolution of the monastery the monks removed into Carinthia, taking with them the bones of some ancestors of the house of Habsburg who had been buried here.

From St. Blasien Schnellpost twice daily in 3½ hrs. to S.W. 16 m. Albrück Stat. (see below), and once daily in 3½ hrs. to S. 13 m. Waldshut Stat.

2 hrs.' walk is Menzenschwand (Inn), birthplace of the painter Winterhalter. Fine panorama from the Hill of Hochenschwand.

5½ m. below St. Blasien, at Immen-eich (small Inn), begins the grand new road, the Albstrasse, through wild, rocky scenery, penetrating the cliffs in 5 or 6 tunnels, carried above the rushing Alb. The gorge of Tiefenstein traversed by the road, 4 m. from Albrück, is compared to the Via Mala. at length the road emerges on the Apley of the Rhine at

[N. G.]

9 m. Albrück Stat. (See Handbook for Switzerland.)]

8 m. Bonndorf (Inn: Post, homely, but clean.) This village was burnt down in 1827.

At the summit of the ascent which the road makes in this stage the Lake of Constance may be descried in clear weather. Near the end of this stage is the castle of Hohenlupfen, belonging to Prince Fürstenberg, but inhabited only by a peasant. It occupies a most commanding position on the brow of a hill, at whose foot lies 8 m. Stühlingen (Inns: Post and Hirsch). Here the Rly. in progress from Donaueschingen to Griessen, between Waldshut and Schaffhausen, is met, or the traveller may continue by the road. A little further on, the Wutach, a small stream, is crossed, which forms the boundary of Switzerland.

10 m. Schaffhausen. Inns: in town, Couronne. At Neuhausen Stat., 2 m. further on, close to the Falls, Schweitzer Hof, far the best; H. Bellevue. (See Handbook for Switzerland.)

ROUTE 110.

HEIDELBERG TO WÜRZBURG, BY MOSBACH.—RAIL.

Distance, 97 m.; time, 5 to 6 hrs.; 3 trains daily.

Heidelberg is described in Rte. 105. The Rly. passes under the Castle in a tunnel, and soon penetrates into the mountains. There is nothing of particular interest on the way except the scenery within a few stages of Heidelberg, along the Neckar. (The course of the Neckar is described in Handbk. for S. Germany.)

6 m. Neckar-Gemünd Stat. (Inns: Pfalz), an old town of 2300 Inhab., and a favourite drive from Heidelberg. See excursions from that town (Rte. 105). Near it is seen the castle of Dilsberg, unsuccessfully besieged by Tilly in the Thirty Years' War, and formerly used as a state prison. Here the Rly. quits the Neckar.

[Rly. in progress N. 25 m. to Erbach (described in Rte. 106), whence completed to Darmstadt or Aschaffenburg, in meantime Schnellpost daily in 6 hrs.]

The line now turns S. into the Elsenz Valley to

6 m. Meckesheim Junct. Stat. [Branch Rly. S.E. 20 m. to Jagstfeld Junct. Stat. for Heilbronn and Stuttgart (Handbk. S. Germany)], and thence E. crossing the Neckar before reaching 21 m. Mosbach Stat. (Inns: Prinz Carl; Post), the most considerable town on the road, Pop. 3000, prettily situated on a tributary of the Neckar. Here is a fine large ch.

17 m. Osterburken Junct. Stat. Branch Rly. S. 23 m. to Jagstfeld Junct. Stat. for Heilbronn and Stuttgart. (See Handbk. for S. Germany.)

23 m. Lauda Junct. Stat., an old town on the Tauber.

[Branch Rly. N. 18 m. to Wertheim, and Rly. S. through Crailsheim to Augsburg, Munich, &c. (Handbk. for S. Germany.)

The Bavarian frontier is at 10 m. Wittighausen Stat.

17 m. Heidingsfeld Junct. Stat. The Rly. from Ambach joins here, and the river Main is crossed. A fine view is obtained of the town in approaching

4 m. Würzburg Stat. (Inns: Russischer Hof; Kronprinz; Fränkischer Hof), described in Handbk. S. Germany (Rte. 167).

INDEX.

* * In order to facilitate reference to the Routes, most of them are inserted in the Index twice; thus the road from HAMBURG ——— to Berlin is also mentioned under the head BERLIN ——— * to Hamburg. Such reversed Routes are marked in the Index with an asterisk (*) to distinguish them.

AACHEN.

Aachen, 27, see Aix-la-Chapelle
Aart, 21
Achern, 414
Adenau, 90
Adersbach, rock labyrinth of, 261
Adershorst, prom., 232
Adler, river, 268
Adolphseck, 342
Ahlefeld, 210
Ahr, river, mouth of, 57
—— excursion up the valley, 88
Ahrenfels Castle, 55, 58
Ahrweiler, 89
Ahrbleichart wines, 89
AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, 27. Congresses of, 27. Hôtel de Ville, 27. Plan, 28. Cathedral, 29. Charlemagne's tomb, 29. Mineral springs and baths, 30. Kurhaus, 31. Boulevard, 31. Environs, 32
—— to Cologne, 27
—— to Berlin, 44
—— to Trèves, 108, 110
—— to Gerolstein, 110
Aken, 165
Alb, river, 433
Albbrück, 433
Albendorf, 267
Albshausen, 354
Albstrasse, the, 433
Alexisbad, 225
Alf, 94, 102
Alfeld, 211
Alken, 107
Allerheiligen, 414
Alle, river, 245
Aller, river, 209, 213
Alsenz valley, 365
Alster, river, 117
Alt-Breisach, 417
Alt-Damm, 232
Alt-Paka, 264
Alt-Ranstädt, 283
Altena, 191
Altenahr, 90
Altenbeken, 194
—— to Hanover, 197
Altenberg on the Lahn, 354
Altenberg, abbey of, 43
Altenburg in Saxony, 330

AUMENAU.

Altenessen, 169
Altwasser, 262
Altenkirchen, 114, 236
Altenstein, 334
Altkönig, 361
Altona, 117
Alzey, 389
Amber fishery on the Baltic, 244, 246
Amanvillers, 371
Amöneberg, 202
Anclam, 233
Andernach, 58
Andreasburg, 225
Angermünde, 230
Annaberg, 269
Annenthal, 275
Annweiler, — Castle of Trifels, 391
Apolda, 280
Apollinarisberg, 56
Appenweiler, 399, 414
Arbergen, 209
Archweiler tunnel, 376
Arenahausen, 189
Arkona in Rügen, 236
Arminius, 193; colossal statue of, 198
ARMOURIES :
—— Berlin, 151
—— Dresden, 307
—— Erbach, 401
—— Wartburg, 274
Arnau, 264
Arnhem, 20
—— to Cologne, 20
Arnsberg, 187
Arnsburg, 208
Arnsdorf, 249
Arnstadt, 292
Arnstein, Abbey of, 356
—— Convent of, 359
Arnswalde, 246
Arolsen, 188
Arras, fort, 105
Aschersleben, 227
Assmannshausen, 75
Au Stat., 114
Aue, 332
Auerbach, 404
—— Castle, 404
Auerstädt, 281
Aumenau, 355

BATHS.

B.

Babelsberg, 157
Bacharach, 73
Baden, duchy of, 405, 412
BADEN-BADEN, 419. Inns, 419. Beauties of situation, 419. Hot springs, 420. Conversationshaus, 420. New Schloss and its dungeons, 421. Secret Tribunal, 421. Church, 421. Convent, 421. Physicians, 422. Excursions around : Altes Schloss, 422. Ebersteinburg, 423. Lichenthal, 423. Murgthal, 423. Gernsbach, 424.
—— * to Carlsruhe, 419
Badenweiler, 418
Bad Glasweiler, 391
—— Neuenahr, 89
Balduinstein, 356
Bâle, 427
Balesfeld, 110
Ballenstedt, 224
Bamberg, 337
Banteln, 211
Bardowieck, 129
Barmen, 186
Barnech, 283
Basle, 427
BASTEI, THE, 321
BATHS : Aix-la-Chapelle, 31
—— Alexisbad, 225
—— Baden-Baden, 419
—— Badenweiler, 418
—— Bertrich, 93
—— Brückenau, 273
—— Cudowa, 268
—— Dobberan, 128
—— Driburg, 194
—— Ems, 358
—— Hofgeismar, 188
—— Homburg, 361
—— Landeck, 267
—— Liebenstein, 333
—— Liebwerda, 256
—— Nauheim, 200
—— Neuenahr, 89
—— Niederbronn, 374
—— Oeynhausen, 171

BATHS.

BATHS: Putbus, 235
 — Pyrmont, 199
 — Reinerz, 267
 — Salzbrunn, 264
 — Schandau, 324
 — Schlangenbad, 339
 — Schwalbach, 341
 — Swinemünde, 231
 — Warmbrunn, 258
 — Wiesbaden, 343
 Bauerbach, 335
 Baummanns and Biels-Höhle, 223
 Bantzen, 255. Battle, 255
 Bavarian (?) broom girls, 200
 Bayenthurm, 50
 Bebra, 273, 333
Beds, 6
 Beerfelden, 402
 Beethoven, birthplace, 53
 Beilstein, 105
 Beke, river, 194
 Belgard, 232
 Bendorf, 60
 Benningen, 368
 Benrath, 24
 Bensheim, 404
 Bentschen, 252
 Berg, ancient duchy of, 187
 Berge-Borbeck, 169
 Bergedorf, 132
 Bergen, 236
Bergstrasse, 402-410
 Berg-Zabern, 392
BERLIN, 134. Inns, 134. Post-office, 134; droschkies, 134. Café-Restaurants, 134; shops, 135. Time-table of sights, 135. Society in, 136. Unter den Linden, 136. Brandenburg gate, 137. Monuments, 137. Churches, 139. Jews' Synagogue, 140. Schlossbrücke, 140. Imperial Palace, 140. Prince Fred. William's palace, 141. Museum, 141; vases and bronzes, 141. Sculptures, 142. Pictures, 143-146. New Museum, 146. Egyptian Museum, 146. Kunst-Cabinet, 148. Royal Library, 149. University, 150. Museum of natural history, 150. Arsenal, 150. Iron-foundry, 151. The Gewerbe-Schule, 151. Theatres, 152. Music, Sing-Academie, 153. Winter gardens, 153. Railways, 153. Environs, 154. Tegel, 155. Botanic garden, 154. Kreuzberg, 154. Cemeteries, 154. Bellevue, 155. Charlottenburg, 155. Reviews, 156
 Berlin* to Hamburg, 182
 — to Magdeburg by Potsdam, 157
 — to Leipzig, 162
 — to Dresden, 167, 168
 —* to Düsseldorf, by Hesse Cassel and Elberfeld, 186

BODENBACH.

Berlin* to Cologne, by Minden, Hanover, Brunswick, and Magdeburg, 168 — to Danzig, by Stettin and Swinemünde, 229
 — to Danzig, 237
 — to Tilsit, 252
 — to Breslau, via Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, 247
 — to Görlitz, 254
 Bernau, 229
 Bernburg, 165
 Berncastel, 103, 114
 Bertholdsburg, 281
 Bertrich baths, 93
 Betzdorf, 114, 354
 Beurig-Saarburg, 377
 Beuthen, 254
 Beverungen, 206
 Bexbach, 389
 Bickenbach, 402
 Biebrich, 84, 346
 Bieberach, 427
 Biederitz, 185
 Bielefeld, 171
 Bienenbüttel, 130
BINGEN, 78. St. Roch's Chapel, 78
 — excursions from, 78
 — to Frankfurt-on-the-Main by Ingelheim and Mayence, 363
 — to Mayence up the Rhine, 79
 — to Trèves, 113
 —* to Coblenz, 79
 Binger Loch, 77
 Bingerbrück, 78, 364
 — to Metz, 364
 Birkenfeld, 366
 Birresborn, 113
 Bischofsheim, 363
 Bischofsstein Castle, 107
 Bischofswerda, 255
 Bischweiler Stat., 394
 Bistritz, 268
 Bitburg, 110
 Bitsch, 374
 Bitterfeld, 164, 186
BLACK FOREST at Baden, 422
 — the Kinzig, 427
 — sources of the Danube in, 429
 Blaise, St., abbey of, 433
 Blankenau, 206
 Blankenburg (Prussia), 223
 — (Saxony), 292
 Blankenheim, 111
 Blankenese, 117
 Blasewitz, 316
 Blasien, St., 433
 Blauen Mt., 418
 Bleichart wine, meaning of, 89
 Blocksberg, 222, see Brocken
 Blücher, 126, 128, 138, 262.
 His grave, 263
 Bober, river, 249, 258
 Bockenheim, 200
 Bode, 223
 Bodenbach, 326

BROHL.

Bodenfelde, 206
 Bodenwerder, 207
 Boitzenburg, 133
 Bollweiler, 426
 Boltenhagen, 128
 Bonames, 200
 Bonndorf, 433
Bonn, 50. University, 50. Museums, 50; plan, 51. Poppelsdorf, 52. Minster, 52. Kreuzberg, 52
 — to Coblenz, 53
 Boppard, 69
 Borcette, 32
 Bornhofen Convent, 70
 Borndorf apples, 294
 Borsum, 194
 Boulder stones, 132
 Brackwede, 170
 Brahe, river, 237
 Bramburg, castle of, 206
 Brandenburg, 161
 Brasses, engraved monumental, at Gadebusch, 123. Lübeck, 123. Schwerin, 127. Paderborn, 193. Posen, 247. Meissen, 317. Verden, 212. Constance, 430
 Braubach, 69
 Braushausberg, 160
 Brauneberger wine, 103
 Braunsfels, 354
 Braunsberg, 242
 Brauweiler, 34
 Bredelar, 188
 Brege river, 429
 Breisach, Alt, 417, 426
 — Neu, 426
 Breisgau, 415
 Breitenfeld, 167
BREMEN, 213. Territory and commerce, 213. Cathedral, Bleikeller, Rathhaus, 214. Museum, &c., 215
 —* to Minden, 205
 — to Berlin, by Uelzen, 216
 — by Wittenberge, 216
 Bremerhafen, 216
 Bremm, 105
BRESLAU, 250. Churches, 250. University, 251. Commerce, wool fairs, 251
 —* to Dresden, 254
 — to Dzeditz, 254
 — to Prague, 263, 266
 —* to Berlin, 247
 — to Cracow, 268
 — to Vienna, 270
 Brieg, 269
 Briegach, 428
 Brilon, 188
Brocken, ascent of, 222. Spectre of the, 222. Witches, 222. View from, seldom seen, 222
 Brodenbach, 107
 Brohl, trass-mills of, 58
 — valley of, 58, 91
 — to the Lake of Lanch, Mayen, and Lützerath, 91

BROMBERG.

Bromberg, 237
 Brömserburg, 80
 Brömserhof, 80
 Broom girls, 200
 Bruchsal, 410
 Brückenau, 273
 Brückenberg (Norwegian Ch.), 259
 Brügge, 187
 Brühl, 49
 — Palace of, 298
 Brunnen of Nassau, 339-347
 Brunsherg, 206
 BRUNSWICK, 177. Palace, 178. Museum, 178. Albert Dürer's St. John in the Wilderness, 178. Cathedral, 179. Black Brunswickers, 180
 'Bubbles of the Brunnen,' 339
 Büchen, 132
 Büchenbeuern, 113
 Buchholz, 216
 Bückeburg, 172
 Buckow, 237
 Buderich, 22
 Bühl, 414
 Buir, 33
 Bulach, 412
 Bunzlau, 248
 Burg, 161, 432
 Bürgeln Castle, 418
 Burg-Lesum, 215
 Burial-grounds, 19
 Burndorf, 167
 Burresheim, 92
 Bursfelde, 206
 Burscheid, 32
 Buruncum, 27
 Bütgenbach, 109
 Butzbach, 200
 Bützow, 128
 Byron, 46, 54, 61, 65.

C.

Calau, 294
 Calcar, 25
 Calcum, 22
 Call Stat., 111
 Camberg, 355
 Camenz, 255, 267
 Camp, 70
 Canth, 263
 Capellen, 68
 Carden, 106
 *Carlsbad to Leipzig, 332
 Carlshafen, 206
 CARLSRUHE, 411. Its origin, palace, 411. Bleithurm, 411. Theatre, other buildings, 411
 — to Baden-Baden, 419
 — to Basle, 412
 CASSEL, HESSE, 202. Palace, 202. Museum, 202. Pictures, 203. Marble bath, 204. Wilhelmshöhe, 204
 — to Berlin, 186

COLOGNE.

Cassel, Hesse, to Hanover, 209
 — * to Düsseldorf, 186
 — to Bamberg, via Eisenach, Meiningen, and Coburg, 333
 Casselburg, 112
 Castel on the Rhine, 84, 347
 Castles on the Rhine, 74
 Catenes, 107
 Caub, 73
 Caxton, William, 35
 Celle, 130
 Charlemagne's grave, 29
 Charlottenburg, 155
 Chemnitz, 329
 Chlumetz, 264
 Chorin, 230
 CHURCHES, English, abroad,—
 Hamburg, 117. Wiesbaden, 346. Homburg, 362. Heidelberg, 406. Baden, 422
 Cleve, 376
 Circular notes, 4
 Clausthal, 218. School of Mines, 219. Mint, 219. Reservoirs, smelting-houses, 219
 Cleve, 25
 Clocks, Dutch, 428, 432.
 Clotten, 106
 Clubs, 18
 Cobern, 108
 COBLENZ, 62-67. Fortifications of, 62; plan, 63. Church of St. Castor, 63; fountain, 64. Courts of justice, 64. Pleasant excursions from, 66
 — to Mayence, up the Rhine, 67
 — to Münster-Maifeld and Elz, 93
 — to Treves, by post-road, 98
 —, * up the Mosel, 102
 — to Frankfurt, by the Brunnen of Nassau, 339
 Coburg—described, 335
 Cochem, 105
 COINAGE, old, 2
 Colberg, 232
 Coleridge quoted, 43
 Colmar, 425
 COLOGNE, 34. Historical associations, 34. Decline and revival, 35. Cathedral, 36. Shrine of the three kings, 38. Dom-bild, 38. Archbishop's Museum, 39. Church of St. Cunibert, 39. St. Ursula and 11,000 Virgins, 39. Jesuits, 39. St. Gereon, 39. Apostles, 40. Church of St. Peter, and Rubens' Crucifixion, 40. Santa Maria, 41. Other churches and buildings, 41, 42. Museum of pictures, 42. Eau de Cologne, 43.
 — to Frankfurt, by Siegburg and Giessen, 114
 — to Altenberg Abbey, 43
 — * to Aix-la-Chapelle, 27

DAUSENAU.

Cologne to Coblenz, up the Rhine, 45
 — * to Düsseldorf, 20
 — to Berlin, by Elberfeld, 184
 — to Berlin, by Minden, 168
 — —, by Hanover, 169
 — to Brunswick, 191
 — * to Arnhem, 20
 — to Nijmegen, 24
 Conflans, 372
 Constance — described, 430.
 Minster, 430
 — council of, 431
 Conz, 377
 Corbetha, 282
 Copernicus at Frauenburg, 242
 Corneli-Münster, 109
 Corny, 373
 Correggio's "Notte," 303
 Corvey, 207
 Cosel, 269
 Cölin, 232
 Coswig, 164, 295
 Cöthen, 165
 Cottbus, 254
 Courcelles, 368
 Cracow, 270, and S. Germ. Handbook
 Cranenburg, 25
 Crefeld, 26
 Creuznach, 364
 Cudowa, 268
 Curve, 347
 Cus, 103
 Cuxhaven, 117
 Cyriaksburg, 277
 Czernabog, 255
 Czerwinak, 238

D.

Dahmsdorf-Müncheberg, 237
 Dahn, 392
 Dammgarten, 129
 Dänholm, 233
 Dannecker's Ariadne, 351
 Danube, source of the, 429
 DANZIG, 238. Granaries, Cathedral, 239. Picture by J. Memling, 239. Artus Hof, 240. Fortifications, 240. Langgasse, 239. Duke of, 239
 — to Königsberg, by Marienburg, 241
 — * to Berlin, 229, 237
 DARMSTADT, 400. Catholic church, palace, pictures, 400. Fossils, 400. Theatre, Exercier Haus, 401. Gardens, Casino, wild boars, 401. Castle of the Counts of Erbach, 401 — to the Odenwald, 399
 — to Heidelberg, 399
 — * to Frankfurt, 399
 Daun, 112
 Dausenau, 357

DECHENHÖHLE.

Dechenhöhle, the, 191
 Deidesheim, 390
 Delitzsch, 164
 Dennewitz, 162
 Denzlingen, 415
 Dernau, 89
 Desenberg Castle, 188
 Dessau, 185
 Detmold, 198
 Deutz, 24. Inns, 34, 43
 Deux Ponts, 388
 Devants les Ponts, 373
 Dhaun, 366
 Dhorn, 38
 Dietelich, 108
 Diedenhofen, 373
 Diemel, river, 188
 Dietkirchen, 355
 Dietz, 355
 Dieuze, 376
Diligence, 8
 Dill, valley, 114
 Dillenburg, 114
 Dilligen, 877
 Dilsberg Castle, 434
 Dinglingen, 415
 Dinslaken, 22
 Dirschau, 238, 240
 Diasibodenberg, 365
Distances, 7
 Ditmarschen, 117
 Dobberan, 128
 Döbeln, 318
 Dobrilugk-Kirchhain, 294
 Döllnitz, vale, 294
 Dolme, 207
 Dömitz, 156
 * Donaueschingen, source of Danube, 429
 — * to Offenburg, 427
 — to Schaffhausen, 427
 Doncourt, 372
 Donnersberg, 389
 Dortmund, 170
 Dossenhein, 410
 Drachenfels, 54
 Drakenburg, 209
 Dransfeld, 209
 Drei Gleichen, 277
 Dreisam, river, 415, 416; valley, 432
 Dreiser-Weiher, 112
 Dreschenich, 108
 DRESDEN, 295. Post-office, 296. Elbe bridges, 298. Churches and church music, 298. Terrace of Brühl, 298. Palace, 298. Collections—mode of obtaining admission, 297. Green Vault, 299. Picture gallery, 301. Plaster casts, 307. Print Room, 307. Zwinger, 307. Armoury, 307. Museum of natural history, 311. Japanese palace, 311. Antiquities, 311. Porcelain, 313. Library, 313. Theatres, cafés, 295. Shops, gardens, 296. Environs, 315. Moreau's monument, 315. Dance of Death, 315. Baths of Link, 316. Schiller's summer-house, 316. Weber's house, 316.

EILSEN.

 Dresden to the Saxon Switzerland, 318
 — * to Berlin, 167, 168
 — to Breslau, 254
 — * to Leipzig, 294
 — to Leipzig by Döbeln, 217
 — to Bodenbach and Herrnskretschien, 318
 — to the Bastei, 318
 — to Schandau, 318
 — to Hof, 326
 — to Zittau and Reichenberg, 265
 Driburg, 194
 Dudweiler, 367
 Duisburg, 23
 Dümpelfeld, 90
 Dune, river, 194
 Duns Scotus, tomb, 42
 Düren, 33
 Dürkheim, 389
 Durlach, 410
 Dusemond, 103
 DÜSSELDORF, 23. School of painting, 23
 — to Berlin, by Elberfeld, 186
 — * to Arnhem, 20
 — * to Nijmegen, 20
 — to Bremen, via Osnabrück and Münster, 194
 Düsseldorf, 24
 Dutch clocks, 428, 432
 Dzieditz, 254

E.

Eau de Cologne, 43
 Eberbach, 82, 340. Cellars of, 83
 Ebernburg, Sickingen's Castle, 365
 Eberstadt, 402
 Eberstein, New, 423
 Eckhardsberge, 281
 Edenkoben, 391
 Ediger, 105
 Efringen, 418
 Eger, 331
 Ehrang, 113
 Ehrenbreitstein, 65
 Ehrenburg, on the Mosel, 107
 Ehrenburg, 292
 Ehrenfels, 77
 Ehrental, 70, 368
 Eichelskamp, 22
 Eichicht, 294
 Eider, river, 117
Eifel, the Upper, 111
 — the Lower, 91
 — excursions in, 91
 Eilenburg, 294
 Eilsen, 172, 208

ETTLINGEN.

Einbeck, 210
 Eindhoven, 26
Eisenach, 274. Wartburg, 274
 Eisfeld, 335
 Eisleben, Luther's birthplace, 181, 190
 Eitorf, 114
 ELBE, mouth of the, 117. Islands formed by, 161. Sources of, 260. In Saxony, the most beautiful parts of its course, 319
 — from Schandau to Dresden, 325
 ELBERFELD, 186
 — to Berlin, 186
 Elbing, 242
 Elbingerode, 223
 Elend, 223
 Elgersburg, 292
 Eller, 105
 Elm, 273
 Elmshorn, 117
 Elsashausen, 375
 Elsenz, valley, 434
 Elster, valley, 283, 293. River, 255, 293
 —, white, river, 331
 Elten, 20
 Eltville, 63, 339
Elz, valley, 93, 106. Castle of, 106
 Elze Stat., 211
 Emmaburg, 32
 Emmendingen, 415
 Emmerich, 21
 Ems; Hotels, &c., 357. Donkeys, 357. Climate, 357. Waters, 358. Baths, 358. Society, 358. English Church, 358
 — river, 170
 Engelrath, 44
 Engen, 429
 Enger, 171
 Engers, 60
 Enghien, Duke, his treacherous seizure, 415
 Enkirch, 104
 Ennepe, vale of, 187
 Eppstein, 360
 Erbach, 82
 — in the Odenwald, 401
 Erdmannsdorf, 260
 Erdorf, 112
 Erfelden, 379
 Erft, valley, 34
 Erfurt, 277
 Erkelenz, 44
 Erkner, 247
 Erpeler Lei, 57
 Erzgebirge, 332
 Eschwege, 274
 Eschweiler, 33
 Esse, river, 188
 Essen, 169
 Ettenbach, river, 415
 Ettenheim, 415
 Ettersburg, 280
 Ettlingen, 412

EUSKIRCHEN.

Euskirchen, 111
Euten, 126
Extersteine, 192
Extra post, 8
Eydtkuhnen, 245
Eyck, Van, Paintings of, at Berlin, 259
Eylau, 244

F.

Fachingen, 355
Falkenburg, 74
Falkenlei, 94
Falkenstein, 290, 360
Farebersweiler, 374
Fees of German physicians,
16
Fehrbellin, 134
Feldberg, 361, 432
Felsenmeer, 191, 403
Finkenheerd, 248
Finnentrop, 191
Finow Canal, 229
Fischbach, 261, 359
Fischbeck, 208
Fliessem, 110
Flinsberg, 258
Flöha, 329
Flönheim, 389
Flörsheim, 347
Forbach, 368, 424
Fort Hülher, 22
— Franz, 61
Frankenberg Castle, 32
Frankenhausen, 189
Frankenstein, 263, 398
Frankenthal, 381
FRANKFURT on the Main,
347. Inns, 347. Old and New Town, 348. Cathedral, 348.
Römer, 349. Saalhof, 349.
Städel Museum of pictures,
350. Senckenberg Museum,
350. Dannecker's statue of Ariadne, 351. Public library,
351. Birthplace of Göthe and of the Rothschilds, 351.
Jews, 351. Fairs, 352. Diet,
352. Theatres, 348. Casino,
348. Shops, 348. Public gardens, 352. Cemeteries,
352. Excursions, 353
— to Leipzig, by Gotha,
Erfurt, Weimar, 272
— to Cassel, 200
— * to Coblenz and the Brunner of Nassau, 339
— to Basle, by Darmstadt,
Heidelberg, Karlsruhe, 399
Frankfurt on the Oder, 248
— * to Breslau, 248
Frauenburg, 242
Frauenstein, 84, 340
Frederick the Great, at Rheinsberg, 133. At Lissa, 249.
At Rossbach, 282. Relics of,
at Berlin, 148. His tomb and

GERMANY.

sword, 157. His palace of Sans Souci, 158. His death, 159.
Freiberg, 327. Church, 327.
School of Mines, 328. Mines and miners, 328
Freiburg, 264
— on the Unstrut, 281
Freiburg in Breisgau, 415.
Beautiful Minster, 416. University, 417
— to Schaffhausen, by the Valley of Hell, 432
Freiheit, 264
Freiwaldau, 269
Frescati, château, 373
Frendenstadt, 414
Frenz Castle, 34
Freyenwalde, 229
Friedberg, 200
Friedenstein Castle, Gotha,
275
Friedland, battle, 244
— Wallenstein's Castle, 256.
Friedrichsfeld, 405
Friedrichroda, 276
Friesach, 133
Friedorf, 53
Fritzlar, 208
Fründenberg, 187
Froschweiler, 375
Fröttstedt, 275
Fulda, 273. River, 209
Fürstenberg, 206
Fürstenberg, Palace of Prince,
429
Fürstenstein Castle, 264
Fürstenwalde, 247

G.

Gadebusch, 133
Galen, Bishop, 195
Gaming-tables, 16
Gans, 365
Garbenheim, 354
Garz, 233
Gausbach, 424
Geeste, river, 215
Geestemünde, 215
Geilnau, 355
Geisenheim, 81
Geldern, 26
Gelnhausen, 272
Gengenbach, 427
Genthin, 161
Georgen, St., 428
Georgenborn, 340
Gera, 293. Valley, 292
Gérardmer, 426
GERMANY. — Preliminary information, 1-19. Money, 2-4.
Passports, 4. Inns, 4. Tables d'hôte, 5. Beds, 6. Valeus-de-place, 6. Weights and measures, 7. Distances, travelling maps, 7. Modes of travelling,

GÖTTINGEN.

posting, 8. Schnell posts,
Voiturier, 8, 9. Railways,
10. Peculiarities of German manners, 11. Public gardens and taverns, 13. Kirme-, 14.
Watering-places, 14. Music,
17. Clubs and reading-rooms,
18. Burial-grounds, 19.
Germersheim, 387
Gernrode, 226
Gernsbach, 424
Gernsheim, 379
Geroldsau, 423
Gerolstein, 111
Gerresheim, 186
Gerstungen, 274
Giebichenstein Castle, 165
Gießen,—University, &c., 200
— to Coblenz, 353
— descent of the Lahn from 353
Gillenfeld, 112
Gitschin, 264
Glaubach, 44
— to Duren, 45
Glasweiler, 391
Glatz, 267
Glauchau, 330
Gleiwitz, 269
Glogau, 249
Glücksbrunn, 334
Glückstadt, 117
Gmunden-Maar, 112
Gnadau 165
Gnadenberg, 249
Gnadenfrei, 263
Gnesen, 252. Cathedral, 252.
St. Adalbert, 253
Goar, St., 71
Goarshausen, St., 71
Goch, 25
Godelheim, 206
Godesberg, 53
— to the Seven Mountains,
54
Goeben, fort, 368
Gogolin, 269
Goldene Aue, 189
Goldenfels Castle, 113
Gollenberg, 232
Göllheim, 399
Götschthal, 331
Gondorf, 107
Gorkau, 213
Görlitz, 255
Gorze, 373
Goslar, 220. Relic of Cathedral and altar of Krodo, 220
Rammelsberg, 221
Gössnitz, 331
Gotha, 275
— to Hildburghausen, 290
— to Rudolstadt, 292
— to Leinefelde, 337
Göthe, the poet's birthplace,
351. House and collections,
351
GÖTTINGEN, 210. University
210. Library and Museum,
210

GÖTTINGEN.

Göttingen to the Harz, 217
 —* to Cassel, 210
 Grabow, 133
 Gräfenberg, 269
 Gräfenhainchen, 164
 Graudenz, 238
 Gravelotte, 371
 — battle of, 372
 Grebenstein, 188
 Greifenstein, 292
 Greifswald, 233
 Greiffenberg, 256
 Greiz, 331
 Grevesmühlen Stat., 128
 Griesbach, 414
 Grimma, 318
 Grohn-Vegesack, 215
 Gross-Beeren, 162
 Grossenhain, 295
 Gross-Görschen, battle of, 283
 Grossheringen, 281
 Gross-Kreutz, 161
 Gross-Salza, 165
 Grotenberg, 197
 Gröna, 155
 Grüne, 191
 Grünstadt, 389
 Grüssau, 261
 Guben, 248
 Guebweiler, 426
 Guls, 108
 Güntersblum, 379
 Güntershausen, 202, 333
 Gürzenich, 33
 Güsten, 165
 Gustavus Adolphus landing in Germany, 231. His death at Lützen, 282. On the Rhine, 379
 Gutach, valley of the, 428
 Gutenberg, the inventor of printing, 87
 Gutenfels, 72
 Gütersloh, 170

H.

Haardter Schlossen, 390
 Hadamer, 355
 Haff, lake, 231
 Hagelskaul, 112
 Hagen, 187
 — to Betzdorf, 190
 Hagenau, 375, 394
 Hagenohsen, 207
 Hagenow, 133
 Hainau, 249
 Hainichen, 329
 Halberstadt, 227
 HALLE, 165. University, 165.
 Orphan House, 166. Salt-springs, 166
 Halloren, 166
 HAMBURG, 117. Trade, 118.
 Fire of 1842, 118. Cos-tumes, 118. Funerals, 119.
 Buildings, 119. Institutions, 119. Theatres, 120. Ramparts, 120. Cemeteries, 120.

HEIDELBERG.

 Environs, 121
 Hamburg* to London, 116
 — to Lübeck, 122
 — to Bremen, 130
 — to Hanover, 129
 — to Stralsund, 127
 — to Dobberan and Rostock, 127
 — to Oldenburg, 131
 — to Berlin, by Buchen, 132
 — — by Lüneburg, 156
 — to Leipzig, 164
 Hämelerwald, 177
 Hameln, 208
 Hamm, 170
 Hammerstein, 58
 Hanau, 272
 Handschuhsheim, 410
 HANOVER, 173. Palace, 175.
 Waterloo monument, 176.
 Leibnitz's monument, 176.
 Church, 174. Library, 175.
 Picture Gallery, 174. Her-renhausen, 176
 — to Bremen, 212
 —* to Hamburg, 129
 —* to Göttingen, 209
 —* to Cassel, 209
 —* to Cologne, by Minden, 168
 Hansdorf, 246
 Hanseatic League, 123
 Harburg, 129
 Harz, the, 217-228. Gene-ral account of, exaggerated descriptions of its scenery, 217. Points usually visited, 217. Plan for tour of, 217.
 Roads, 218. Mines, 219
 Harzburg, 181, 221
 Harzgerode, 226
 Hassenhausen, 281
 Hasserode, 222
 Hasslach, 427
 Haste, 172
 Hastenbeck, 207
 Hattenheim, 82
 Hattersheim, 347, 360
 Hatto, Bishop, and the rats, 77
 Hatzenport, 107
 Hausach, 427
 Hauenstein, 392
 Hausberge, 208
 Havel, river, 134, 157
 Hehlen, 207
 HEIDELBERG, 405. Its mis-fortunes, 406. University and library, 407. Club, 407. Churches, 407. Olym-pia Morata's grave, 407.
 Castle, 408. Tun, 408. Gar-den, walks, 408. Hirschgasse, 409. Königsstuhl, 409. Wolfs-brunnen, 409
 — to Basle, 410
 —* to Schwetzingen and Mannheim, 383
 —* to Darmstadt and Frank-furt, 399

HOHENTWIEL.

Heidelberg to Würzburg, 433
 Heidenmauer, 390, 425
 Heidingsfeld, 434
 Heiligenstadt, 189
 Heimbürg, 74
 Heinsen, 207
 Heinrichsburg, 226
 Heisterbach, ruined abbey of, 53
 Heitersheim, 418
 Helenenberg, 110
 Heligoland, 116
 Hell, Valley of, 432
 Helldorf, 24
 Helme, river, 189
 Helmstadt, 181
 Helse, 188
 Hemer, 191
 Hemmingen, 376
 Hemsbach, 405
 Hennef, 114
 Heppenheim, 405
 Heppingen, 89
 Herbolzheim, 415
 Herdringen, Castle of, 187
 Herford, 171
 Herlasgrün, 331
 Hermdorf, 259
 Herrmann's Monument, 193
 Herrenhausen, 173, 176
 Herrnhut, 265
 Herrnskretsch, 325
 Herschel, 177
 Hersfeld, 273
 Herstelle, 206
 Herthaburg, 235
 Herzberg, 218
 Herzogenrath, 44
 Hetserath, 94, 114
 Heuscheuer, 267
 Hexen-Tanzplatz, 224
 Hiddensöe, 236
 Hildburghausen, 335
 Hildesheim, 211
 Hillesheim, 111
 Hilpertsau, 424
 Hippolyte, St. 425
 Hirschbach, 291
 Hirschberg, 258
 Hirschsprung, the, 432
 Hochburg, 415
 Hoche, obelisk to, 60, 61
 Hochdahl, 186
 Hochheim vineyards, 347
 Hochkirch, battle of, 255
 Hochspever, 365
 Höchst, 347
 Hochstein, 323
 Hoerdt, 394
 Hof, 331
 Hofgeismar, 188
 Hofheim, 360
 Hohe Königsburg, 425
 Hohenelbe, 264
 Hohenfriedberg, 264
 Hohenlupfen, 433
 Hohen Siegburg, 22
 Hohen Syburg, 190
 Hohenstein, 323, 342
 Hohentwiel, 429

HÖLLENTHAL.

Höllenthal, 416, 417, 432
 Holm, 240
 Holzapfel, 356
 Holzemme, river, 227
 Holzhausen, 343
 Holzminden, 194, 207
 Homburg, 22, 44
Homburg, Hesse, 361
 — in Rhenish Bavaria, 388
 Honnef, 56
 Horchheim Stat., 68
 Horn, 197
 Hornberg, 428
 Horrem, 34
 Hosterwitz, 816
 Höxter, 206
 Hoya, 209
 Hubbad, 414
 Hubertusburg, 294
 Hude, 131
 Hümme, 205
 Hundsrück, 113
 Hüne, river, 187
 Hunte, river, 131
 Huss, John, trial and execution of, 431

I.

Idar, 366
 Idstein, 355
 Iffelsheim, 387
 Igel, Roman monument at, 101
 Ihna, river, 232
 Ilbenstadt, 200
 Ill, river, 394
 Ilm, river, 280
 Ilme, river, 210
 Ilmenau, 292
 Ilse, river, 221
 Ilseburg, 210
 Immelborn Stat., 333
 Immendingen, 429
 Immeneich, 433
 Inde, river, 33
 Ingbert, St., 388
 Ingelheim, palace of Charlemagne, 363
Inns, 4
 Inowracław, 253
 Inselsberg, 277
 Insterburg, 245
 Interment, prevention of premature, 19
 Irrlich, 59
 Isenach valley, 390
 Iser, river, 265
Iserlohn, 191
 Isbach, river, 94

J.

Jacobsberg, 171, 208
 Jacobdorf, 263
 Jäger, the Wild, legend of, 404

KLOPSTOCK.

Jagsfeld, 434
 Jahde Bay, 131
 Jannowitz, 261
 Jaromer, 268
 Jauer, 262
 Jeetze, 216
 Jena, 280; battle-field, 281; university, 280
 Jerxheim, 181
 Jews at Frankfurt, 351
 — at Worms, 381
 Johann-Georgenstadt, 383
 Johann, St., 367
 Johannisbad, 264
Johannisberg, 200. Wine, 81
 Josephshöhe, 226
 Josephstadt, 268
 Jossa, 273
 Jouy aux Arches, 373
 Jugenheim, 403
 Jülich, 44
 Jung-Bunzlau, 265
 Junkerath Stat., 111
 Jüterbog, 162, 167

K.

Kaisersesch, 93
 Kaiserslautern, 388
 Kaiserswerth, 22
 Kaltenherberg, 109
 Kamp, 70
 Kandrzin, 269
 Karlsberg, 267
 Karlshafen, 206
 Karlshall, 365
 Kattowitz, 269
 Katz, castle of, 71
 Katzbach, 249. Battle of the, 249, 262
 Katzenelnbogen, 71, 343
 Kavalierberg, 258
Kehl, 399
 Kelbra, 189
 Kemmenau, 358
 Kemnade, 207
 Kempen, 26
 Kensingen, 415
 Kesselheim, 61
 Kickelhahn, 292
 Kiedrich, 83
 Kieritsch, 330
 Kinzig, river, 272, 414. Valley of the, 427
 Kippenheim, 415
 Kirchheim Bolanden, 389
 Kirchhain, 202
 Kirchberg, 113
Kirmes, 14
 Kirn, 366
 Kissingen, 335
 Klarenthal, 346
 Klausthal, 218
 Kleinen, junct. stat., 128
 Klein-Katz, 232
 Klingenberg, 326
 Klodnitz, river, 269
 Klopstock's grave, 121. Birth-place, 227

LANGEBRÜCK.

Klosterrath, 44
 Kniebis Baths, 414
 Knielingen, 387
 Kohlfurt, 248, 256
 Königgrätz, 268
Königsberg, 242. Palace, Cathedral, 243. University, 243. Pillau, sturgeon and amber fishery, 244 — to Tilsit and Memel, 245
 —* to Danzig, 241
 Königsborn, 192
 Königsdorf, 34
 Königshütte, 269
 Königstein in Saxony, 324
 — in the Taunus, 360
 Königsstuhl, 69, 236
 Königswinter, 54
 Königszelt, 262
 Konitz, 238
 Köpnick, 155, 247
 Körner's grave, 133
 Korschchen, 263
 Kösen, 281
 Köthen, 165
 Kötschau, 283
 Kranenburg, 25
 Kriebitz-Neudörfel, 266
 Kreiensen, 210
 Kreutz, 237
 Kreuzberg, near Bonn, 50
 — in the Ahr valley, 90
 Kreuznach, 364
 Krieblowitz, grave of Blücher at, 263
 Krippen, 324
 Kröllwitz, 167
 Kronberg, 361
 Kronthal, 361
 Krotzingen, 418
 Kuhstall, 325
 Kuneradorf, battle of, 248
 Küstrin, 237
 Kyffhäuser, 189
 Kylburg, 113
 Kyll, river, 111
 Kynast, castle and legend, 259
 Kyrburg Castle, 366
 Kyritz, 133

L.

LAAOCH, Lake of, 91. Excursion to, 91. Abbey of, 92
 Ladenburg, 405
Lahn, the river, 201; mouth of, 68. Descent of, from Giessen to Ems, 358
 Lahneck Castle, 68
 Lahnstein, 68
 Laibr, 415
Landau, 391
 Landeck, 267
 Landeshut, 261
 Landsberg, 237
 Landskrone, Castle of, 89, 378
 Landstuhl, 388
 Langebrück, 255

LANGENAU.

Langenau Castle, 356
 Langenbielau, 263
 Langenbrand, 424
 Langenbrücken, 410
 Langensalza, 337
 Langen-Schwalbach, 341
 Langerwehe, 33
 Langwedel, 216
 Laubach, 68
 Lauban, 258
 — to Altwasser, 257
 Lauch, valley of, 426
 Lauda, 434
 Lauenburg, 132, 232
 Lauenförde, 206
 Laurenburg Castle, 356
 Lautenbach, 414
 Lauterbach, 235
 Lauter, river, 387, 392
 Lauterburg, 387
 Leer, 131
 Lehrte, 130
 Leignitz, 249
 Leine, river, 173, 211, 275
 Leinefeld Junct., 337
 LEIPZIG, 283. University, 285.
 Theatre, Museum, 285.
 Churches, Library, 286.
 Auerbach's cellar, 287. Promenades, 289. Fairs, 289.
 Book trade, 287. Pleissenburg, 287. Battle of, 288
 —* to Berlin, 162
 — to Eichicht, 293
 — to Cottbus, 294
 — to Dresden, 294
 — to Hof, by railway to Altenburg, 330
 — to Carlsbad, 332
 Lek, 20
 Lemgo, 198
 Lenne, river, 190
 Lenzkirch, 433
 Leobachütz, 270
 Leopoldshafen, 387
 Leopoldshöhe, 418
 Letmathe Cave, 190
 Leuthen, 260
 Lewiu, 268
 Lev, 108
 Lichtenfels, 337
 Lichtenthal, 423
 Liebau, 261
 Liebenau, 209
 Liebeneck, 69
 Liebenstein, 70
 — Baths in the Thüringer
 Wald, 333
 Liebethaler Grund, 321
 Liebewerda Baths, in Bohemia, 256
 Liebfrauenmilch, 379
 Liegnitz, 249
 — to Schweidnitz, &c., 262
 Lillienstein, 323,
 Limburg on the Lahn, 355
 — on the Lenne, 190
 Lindenhach, Abbey of, 390
 — valley, 358
 Lindern, 44

MAGDEBURG.

Linz on the Rhine, 57
 Lippe, river, 170, 194
 Lippe Detmold, 198
 Lippspringe, 193
 Lippstadt, 193
 Lippoldsberge, 206
 Lissa, 247. Battle of, 249
 Löban, 255
 Lobith, 21
 Lobshorn, stud at, 198
 Lochmühle, 90, 321
 Loccum Abbey, 213
 Lohmen, 321
 Lohnbedienter, 6
 Löhnberg, 354
 Löhne, 171
 Lohnkutscher, 9
 London to Hamburg, 116
 Lorch, 74
 Lorchhausen, 74
 Lorsch, 404
 Losheim, 109
 Lössnitz, 295
 Louis, fort, 387
 Louis, St., Stat., 427
 Löwen, 269
 Lübben, 254
 LÜBZOK, 122. Historical notice, 122. Cathedral, 124. Ma-rienkirche, 123. Rathhaus,
 124. Other buildings, 125.
 Trade, 123. Excursions, 126
 Luckenwalde, 162
 Ludwig, St., 427
 Ludwigshafen, 382
 Ludwigslust, 133
 Lüneburg, 129
 Lurlei, 71
 Luther at Eisleben, 190. Magdeburg, 184. Marburg, 201.
 Erfurt, 278. Wittenberg, 162.
 Relics of, at Wolfenbüttel,
 181. Capture of, 274, 334. At Coburg, 336. His beech-tree,
 334. Worms, 380. Warburg,
 274. Frankfurt, 351. His elm, 381.
 Lutter, 194
 Lutterbach, 426
 Lützelburg, 376
 Lützen, 283. The Swede's
 Stone, 283. Campaign of 1813, 283
 Lützerath, 93
 Lysa, 265

M.

Maars, or crater lakes, of the Eifel, 112
 Madenburg, 391
 MAGDEBURG, 181. Fortifications, 181. Cathedral, 182.
 Gardens, 183. Luther at, 184
 —* to Berlin, by railroad, 152
 —* to Hanover and Cologne, 169
 — to Leipzig, 185

MELLRICHSTADT.

Magdeburg* to Nordhausen and the Harz, 225
 Mädesprung, 226
 Main, river, 337
 MAINZ, 84
 Maltsch, 249
 Manderscheid, 112
Manners, peculiarities in, 11
 MANNHEIM, 382. Its history,
 382. Has few objects to detain travellers, 383. Palace, 383. Gardens, theatre, club, 383
 — to Heidelberg and Schwet-zingen, 383
 — to Spire, 383
 — to Metz, 387
 Mansfeld, 190
 Marburg, 201. Church of St.
 Elizabeth, 201
 Marceau, monument of, 61
 Marie, Ste., 372
 Marienburg on the Rhine,
 70
 — on the Vistula, 241
 — on the Mosel, 104
 Marienthal, 89
 Marienwerder, 238
 Markersdorf, 255
 Markkirch, 425
 Markobrunner wine, 82
 Markt-Ranstadt, 283
 Marksburg, 69, 359
 Marksuhl, 333
 Mar-la-Tour, 372
 Martinrode, 292
 Martinstein, 366
 Maxburg, 390
 Mayen, 92
 MAYENCE, 84. Cathedral,
 85. Museum, 86. Public gardens, 87. Tower of Drusus, theatre, 87. Printing invented here, 87.
 Gutenberg's statue, 87
 —* to Coblenz and down
 the Rhine, 67
 —* to Bingen by Ingelheim, 363
 — to Strassburg, by Mannheim, 378
 — — by Alzey, Monsheim,
 &c., 389
 — by the Rhine to Worms,
 Mannheim, Spire, and Strass-
 burg, 378
Measures, Table of, 7
 Meckesheim, 434
 Meerane, 330
 Mehlom, 54
 Mehrfelder-Maar, 112
 Meinau, isle of, 431
 Meinberg, 199
 Meinbrexen, 206
 Meiningen, 334
 Meisdorf, 225
 Meissen, 317; Cathedral, 317;
 china manufactory, 318
 Melibocus, 403
 Mellrichstadt, 335

MELTHEUER.

Meltheuer Stat., 331
 Memel, 246
 Memling, Hans, 239
 Mendelssohn, birthplace of, 120
 Menden, 187
 Mendig quarries, 92
 Menzenschwand, 433
 Merkesdorf, 264
 Merlenbach, 363
 Merode, 33
 Merseburg, 282; Cathedral, 282
 Merxleben, 337
 Merzig, 377
 Meschede, 188
 Mettkau, 263
 Metternich, birthplace of Prince, 64. Village, 93. Castles, 106
 Mettlach, 377
 METZ: Inns, 368. Cathedral, 369. Churches, 369, 370. Forts, 370. Siege, 370. Battlefield, 371
 — to Luxemburg, 373
 — to Strassburg, 374
 Michelstadt, 401
 Milspe, 187
 Miltzow, 233
 Minden or Münden, 171. Battle of, 172
 Mines of the Harz, 219
 Mittelheim, 81
 Mittelspay, 69
 Mittelwalde, 267
 Mochbern, 250
 Möckern, 167
 Möhra, 333
 Möllenbeck, 208
 Mölln, 132
 Mollwitz, 269
 Mombach, 363
 Mönchehof, 205
 MONEY, 2. Tables of foreign, with the English value, 3
 Monsheim, 389
 Montjoie, 109
 Montroyal, 104
 Mont Tonnerre, 389
 Monzingen, 366
 Moravian colony, 59, 265
 Moreau's monument, 315
 Morgenroth, 269
 Moritzberg, 316
 Moritzburg, 167
 Mosbach, 84, 434
 MOSEL river, 61. Junction with the Rhine, 61. Ice on the, 62. Descent of, 102. Wines, 102. Steamers on the, 102
 Moselkern, 107
 Moselweim, 108
 Mosenberg, 112
 Mosigkau, 186
 Mouse Tower, 77
 Müden, 106
 Mühlberg, 295
 Mühlheim, 103
 Mühlhofen, 60
 Mühlthal, 70

NIEDERGRUND.

Mulda, river, 294, 327
 Mülhausen, 337, 426
 Mülheim on the Rhine, 24, 44, 418
 Münden, 209
 — to Bremen, 205
 Münster, 194. Anabaptists, 195
 — to Osnabrück, 196
 — on the Fecht, 426
 Münster-am-Stein, 365
 Münster-Maifeld, 93
 Murg, valley of the, 423
 Mürlenbach Stat., 113
 Music, German, 17
 Muskau, 254
 Myslowitz, 269

N.

Nachod, 268
 Nahe, river — mouth of, 78. Excursion up the, 364
 Namedy, 58
 Nancy to Strassburg, 357
 NASSAU, 356. Castle of, 356.
 Nauen, 134
 Nauheim, 200, 362
 Naumburg, 281
 Neckar, source of, 428
 — junction with Rhine, 382, 403
 — at Heidelberg, 409
 Neckar-Gemünd, 434
 Neheim-Husten, 187
 Nehrung, river, 246
 Neisse, 269. River, 248, 267
 Nendza, 270
 Nenndorf, 172
 Nennig, 377
 Ners, river, 44
 Nette, river, 59, 92
 Neu-Benatek, 265
 Neu Breisach, 426
 Neuburg, 418
 Neu-Dietendorf, 277
 Neudorf, 262
 Neuenahr, 89
 Neuendorf, 61
 Neufahrwasser, 240
 Neuhof, 343
 Neumagen, 103
 Neumark, 249, 331
 Neunkirchen, 366, 389
 Neu Paka, 264
 Neu Ruppín, 133
 Neuss, 26
 Neustadt-Eberswalde, 229
 Neustadt an der Haardt, 390
 Neustadt in Prussia, 133, 185
 — in Saxony, 293, 335
 — on the Wutach, 432
 Neuwerk, 116
 Neuwied, 59
 Nibelungenlied, 381
 Nidda, valley, 200. River, 347
 Niedeggen, 111
 Niederschleim, 58
 Niederhonn, 374
 Nieder-Dollendorf, 53
 Niedergrund, 325

OHR.

Nieder-Heimbach, 74
 Nieder-Lahnstein, 68
 Nieder-Marsberg, 188
 Nieder-Mendig, 92
 Niederschleim, 332
 Niederselters, 343
 Niederspay, 69
 Niederwald, the, 79
 Nieder-Walluff, 84, 343
 Nieder-Wiesa Stat., 329
 Niederwöllstadt, 200
 Nienburg, 209, 213
 Nierstein vineyard, 378
 Nievern, 339
 Nimburg, 264
 Nirm, 33
 Nogat, river, 241
 Nollingen, 74
 Nonnenwerth, 56
 Nordernei Isle, 215
 Nordhausen, 189
 — to Magdeburg and the Harz, 225
 Nordheim, 210, 218
 Nordstemmen, 211
 Norwegian church of wood, 259
 Nothberg Castle, 33
 Nürberg, 90

O.

Oberau, 295
 Oberbeuern, 423
 Oberbreisig, 58
 Oberhausen, 22, 45, 169
 Oberhof, 291
 Oberhombourg, 368
 Oberkirch, 414
 Obernhof, 356
 Oberlahnstein Junct. Stat., 68 359
 Oberspay, 69
 Oberstein, 366
 Ober-Ursel, 361
 Oberwerth, 67
 Oberwesel, 72
 Oberwinter, 55
 Oberzroth, 424
 Ockenfels, 57
 Odenwald, excursion in the, 402
 Oder, river, 135, 231, 270
 Oderberg, 270
 Oebisfelde Stat., 168
 Oederan, 329
 Oels, 254
 Oelsnitz, 331
 Oestrich, 81
 Oevnhausen, 171
 Offenbach, 272
 Offenburg, 414
 — to Constance, by the vale of the Kinzig and Donaueschingen, 427
 Oggersheim, 382
 Ohlau, 268
 Ohligswald, 191
 Ohm, river, 202
 Ohr, 207

OHRDRUF.

Ohrdruf, 290
 Ohre-Thal, 291
 Oker, vale of, 220. Village, 220
 Oldenburg, 131
 Oldendorf, 208
 Oldersloe, 122
 Oliva, 232
 Ooe, 413
 Opatowitz, 268
 Oppeln, 269
 Oppenau, 414
 Oppenheim, beautiful Gothic church, 378
 Orla, river, 293
 Orschweier, 415
 Ortenberg, 427
 Ortenburg Castle, 415
 Oschatz, 294
 Oschersleben, 228
Osnabrück, 196
 Ossmandstädt, Wieland's grave, 280
 Osterath, 26
 Osterburken, 434
 Osterode, 218
 Osterspays, 69
 Oswiecim, 270
 Ottersweier, 414
 Ottensen, 121
 Otterberg, 388
 Ottmarsheim, 426
 Ottowalder Grund, 321
 Ottweiler, 366
 Oybin, monastery of, 266

P.

Pader, river, 193
 Paderborn, 193
 Pallien, 101, 110
 Parchim, 128
 Pardubitz, 268
 Parachnitz, 264
 Paschenburg, 172, 208
 Pasewalk, 233
 PASSPORTS, German, 4
 Patersberg, 71
 Paulinzelle, 293
 Paunsdorf, 294
 Peacock Island, 160
 Pelm, 111
 Peladorf, 264
 Pempelfort, 24
 Penig, 330
 Petershagen, 209
 Petersthal, 414
 Pfaffenkaul, 112
 Pfahlgraben, 345, 359
 Pfalz, 73
 Pfalzberg, 376
 Pflügheim, 381
 Phillipsburg, 374, 387
 Phillipshalle, 390
 Physicians' fees in Germany, 16
 PICTURE GALLERIES:—
 — Berlin, 143
 — Breslau, 251

QUOLTITZ.

PICTURE GALLERIES:—

— Brunswick, 178
 — Cassel, 203
 — Cologne, 42
 — Darmstadt, 400
 — Dresden, 301
 — Frankfurt, 350
 — Gotha, 275
 — Hanover, 174
 — Leipzig, 290
 — Mayence, 86
 — Potsdam, 159
 — Schwerin, 127
 Piesport, 103
 Pillau, 242
 Pillnitz, 321
 Pilt, St., 425
 Pirna, 320
 Platte, the, 346
 Plauen, 326, 331
 — lake of, 161
 Plauensche Grund, 326
 Plittersdorf, 53
 Polch, 93
 Polle, 207
 Pommeritz, 255
 Poniatowski's death, 289
 Poppelsdorf, 50
 Porta Westphalica, 171, 208
 Posen, 246
 — to Breslau, 246
Posting in Prussia, 8
 Potschappel, 326
 POTSDAM, 157. Tomb of Frederick the Great, 158. Palace, 158. Sans Souci, 158. New Palace, 159. Charlottenhof, 160. Russian colony, Pötzscha, 320
 Prebisch Thor, 325
 Pregel, river, 243
 Prenzlau, 230
 Preuss-Stargard, 238
 Priesnitz' Water-Cure Establishment, 269
 Printing, invention of, 87
 Priestewitz, 295
 Privat, St., 372
 Prüm, 109
 Puffendorf's birthplace, 329
 Pulvermaar, 112
 Pumpernickel, 170
 Pünderich, 104
 Putbus baths, 235
 Pützburg, 53
 Pützfeld, 90
 PYRMONT, watering-place, 199. Mineral springs, 199. Gas Grotto, 199
 — to Hanover, 197

Q.

Quakenbrück, 131
 Quedlinburg, 226
 Queich, river, 391
 Queis, river, 248.
 Quint, 105
 Quoltitz, 236

RATHENOW.

R.

Radeberg, 255
 Radolfzell, 429
 Rafts on the Rhine, 47
 RAILROADS:—
 — Arnheim to Cologne, 20
 — Aix-la-Chapelle to Cologne, 27
 — Cologne to Bonn, 49
 — — to Coblenz, 50
 — Rüdelsheim to Biebrich, 80
 — Mayence to Frankfurt, 88, 363
 — Cologne-Giessen, 114
 — Hamburg to Lübeck, 122
 — — to Stralsund, 127
 — — to Berlin, 169
 — Berlin to Potsdam and Magdeburg, 157
 — — to Leipzig, by Wittenberg, 162; by Köthen, 164
 — — to Dresden, 167
 — — to Stettin, 229
 — — to Frankfurt on the Oder, 247
 — Cologne to Berlin, 168
 — — to Reichenberg, 265
 — Dresden to Breslau, 254
 — — via Elberfeld, 184
 — Breslau to Prague, 266
 — — to Cracow, 268
 — — to Vienna, 270
 — Cassel to Eisenach, 333
 — Düsseldorf to Berlin by Elberfeld, 186
 — Hagen to Betzdorf, 190
 — Frankfurt a.M. to Leipzig, 272
 — Karlsruhe to Baden-Baden, 419
 — Leipzig to Dresden, 294
 — Leipzig to Hof, 330
 — — to Carlsbad, 332
 — Frankfurt a. M. to Cassel, 200
 — Coblenz to Frankfurt a. M., by Ems, 339
 — Frankfurt to Heidelberg, 399
 — Mayence to Strassburg, 378
 — Heidelberg to Karlsruhe, Baden, Strassburg, and Basle, 399
 Rammelsberg mines, 220, 221
 Rammenau, 255
 Randow, river, 230
 Rappoltsweiler, 425
 Raphael's Madonna di San Sisto, 303
 Raspenau, 256
Rastadt, Palace, 413. Congresses of, 413
 Rathen, 323
 Rathenow, 168

RATIBOR.

Ratibor, 270
 Ratzeburg, 132
 Rauenthal, 84, 341
 Rauhmünsach, 424
 Rawicz, 247
 Rech, 90
 Rechnitz, river, 129
 Rees, 21
 Rehme, 171, 208
 Reibnitz, 258
 Reichartshausen Schloss, 82
 Reichenau, 430
 Reichenbach, 255, 263, 331
 Reichenberg, 256, 266
 Reichenberg castle, 71
 Reichenstein, 74
 Reichshofen, 375
 Reil, 104
 Reimerzhofen, 90
 Reinerz, 267
 Reinhardtsbrunn, 276
 Reinhardswald, 206 }
 Reinhartshausen, 82
 Reinstein castle, 223
 Remagen, 56
 — to Ahrweiler and Altenahr, 88
 Remscheid, 187
 Rench, 414
 Rennsteig, the, 291
 Reppen, 252
 Reuth, 331
 Reynolds, Sir J., description of, at Cologne, 41
 Rezonville, 372
 Rheda, 170
 Rheindiebach, 74
 Rheineck, 53
 Rheinfeld, 122
 Rheinfels, 70
 Rheingau, 74
 Rheingrafenstein, 365
 Rheinsberg, 133
 Rheinstein, Castle of, 74
 Rhenish Prussia, 20
 Rhense, 69
 Rheydt, 44
 THE RHINE, (B) Arnhem to
 Cologne, 20
 — (C) Cologne to Coblenz,
 45
 — Byron's description of,
 45
 — a German account of, 46
 — bridge over, 34
 — rafts on, 47
 — steamers on, 48
 — scenery of, 49
 — best mode of seeing, 66
 — (D) Coblenz to Mayence,
 67
 — castles, 74
 — wines and vineyards, 75, 81
 — scenery near Bingen, 78
 — (E) from Mayence to Strassburg, 378
 — scenery dull, 378
 — gold washed from its sands, 387

SALZBRUNN.

Rhine, caution as to taking places in the steamers direct from London, 48
 Ribnitz, 129
 Richard Cœur-de-Lion's prison, 391
 Riegel, 415
 Riess, 295
 Riesensäule, 403
 RIXSENGEBIRGE, 257-262. General account of the, 257.
 Sketch of a tour in, 257
 Ringelheim Junct. Stat., 194
 Rinteln, 208
 Ritter, birthplace of, 227
 Rittershausen, 187
 Ritzebüttel, 117
 Rödelheim, 362
 Rodenstein Castle, 404
 Röderau, 167, 295
 Roderberg, 55
 Roer, river, 33, 111
 Roisdorf, 49
 Rolandsäule, 161, 214
 Rolandseck, 55
 Römheld, 335
 Rommersdorf, 60
 Rosengarten, 248
 Rossbach, 282
 Rossert, 360
 Rossia, 189
 Rosstrappe, 224
 Rostock, 128
 Roth, 112
 Rothenburg, 189
 Rothenfels, 424
 Rübeland, 223
 Rubens's birthplace, 41
 — altarpiece at Cologne, 40
 Rudesheim, 79. Wine, 80
 Rudolstadt, 292
 Rügen, isle of, 234
 Rulibank, 261, 264
 Ruhla, 275
 Ruhrort, 22
 Ruhr, river, 22. Valley, 22,
 187
 Rumpchen, 90
 Rumpenheim, 272
 Runkel, 355
 S.
 Saale, river, 165
 Saale, 165, 292
 Saalfeld, 293
 Saar, river, 367
 Saarbrücken, 367
 — to Trèves, 377
 Saarburg, 376
 Saargemünd, 374
 Saarlouis, 337
 Sachsenhausen, 352
 Sadowa, battle-field, 268
 Sagan, 249
 Sagard, 235
 Salzbrunn, 264

SCHWARZA.

Salzburg, 418
 Salzderhelden, 210
 Salzig, 70
 Salzkotten, 193
 Salzungen, 333
 Salzwedel, 216
 Samter, 246
 Sangerhausen, 189
 Sans Souci, 158
 Sarsbach, death of Turenne,
 414
 Sassendorf, 193
 Saverne, 376
Saxon Switzerland, 318-326
 SAXONY, 271-337
 Sayn valley, and iron-works of, 60. Castle, 60
 Schaffhausen, 429, 433
 —* to Freiburg, 432
 —* to Offenburg, 427
 Schandau, 324
 —* to Dresden, 318
 Schaumburg, 172, 207, 356
 Schenkeneschanze, 21
 Schierke, 223
 Schlierstein, 84, 343
 Schifferberg, castle of, 200
 Schifferstadt, 384, 387
 Schildau, 260
 Schiller's house and grave, 279.
 Statue, 120
 Schkeuditz, 167
 Schlader, 114
Schlangenbad, 339
 Schlawe, 232
 Schlettstadt, 425
 Schlensingen, 291
 Schlingen, 418
 Schloss Dyk, 44
 Schloss Elz, 106
 Schloss Marienburg, 211
 Schlossberg, 201
 Schluch, lake, 433
 Schlüsselburg, 209
 Schmalkalden, 334
 Schmiedeberg, 261
 Schmücke, 291
 Schneeberg, 332
 — the, 267
 Schneekopf, 291
 Schneekoppe, 260
 Schneidemühl, 237
Schnellposts, 8
 Schönberg, 188
 Schönburg, or Schomberg, 72,
 261
 Schönbornlust, 61
 Schönebeck, 165
 Schönecken, 110
 Schönhäusen Stat., 168
 Schönmünznach, 424
 Schweppenburg Castle, 91
 Schopfheim, 432
 Schramberg, 428
 Schulpforta, 281
Schwalbach, 341. 'The Bubbles,' 341. Springs, 341.
 Excursions, 342
 Schwartau, 126
 Schwarza, 292. River 292

SCHWARZBURG.

Schwarzburg Castle, 292
 Schwarzenbeck, 132
 Schwarzenberg, 332
 Schwarzort, 246
 Schwarzwasser, river, 332
 Schwarz-Rheindorf, 50
 Schwarzwald, 291
 Schwedt, 230
 Schweidnitz, 263
 Schweitzerthal, 71
 Schweim, 187
 Schweppenburg Castle, 91
Schwerin, 127
 Schwerte, 187
 Schwetz, 238
 Schwetzingen, 383
 Schwientochlowitz, 269
 Sebaldsbruck, 213
 Sechtem, 49
 Seesen, 194
 Seidow, 255
 Seidenberg, 256
 Seigen, 191
 Selke valley, 225
 Selters, 343
 Seltzer water, 343
 Sembach, 388
 Senhals, 105
 Senheim, 105
 Senner Wald, 198
 Sennheim, 226
 Setters, 343
 Seven Mountains, 54
 — Sisters, 72
 Shalkenmehrer-Maar, 112
 Siebengebirge, 54
 Siebleben, 276
 Sieg, river, 50, 114
 Siegburg, 50, 114
 Slegersdorf, 248
 Sievershausen, 177
 Silberberg, 264
 Simmern, 113
 Singen, 429
 Sinzig, 57
 Sittendorf, 189
 Slate quarries of the Harz, 220
 Sobernheim, 365
 Soden, 347, 360
 Soest, 192
 Solingen, 191
 Sommereschenburg, 164
 Sommerfeld, 248
 Sondershausen, 189
 Sonnhorn, 186
 Sonneberg—its manufactures of toys, 336
 Sonnenstein, castle of, 321
 Sooneck, 74
 Sorau, 248
 Sorbenburg, 293
 Söse, river, 218
 Soultz-sous-Forêt, 394
 Spandau, 134
 Sparenburg Castle, 171
 Speyer, 384
 Speierbach valley, 388
 Spicheren, heights of, 367
 SPIRES, 384. Its eventful history, 384. Atrocities of the French, 385. Cathedral, 385. Antiquities, 386. Alt Portal, Retscher, 386

STRASSBURG.

 Spires to Strassburg, 378
 — *to Mayence, 378
 Sponheim Abbey, 365
 Spree, river, 155, 254, 255
 Sprottau, 249
 Städel Museum, 350
 Stadthagen, 172
 Staffelstein, 337
 Stahleck, 73
 Stammheim, Schloss, 24
 Stargard, 232, 237
 Starkenburg, 104, 405
 Stassfurt, 165
 Staudernheim, 365
 Staufen, 418
 Staufenberg, castle of, 414
 Steamboats on the Rhine, 48
 — Arnheim to Cologne, 20
 — Cologne to Coblenz and Mayence, 48, 88
 — from England to the Continent—
 — London to Hamburg, 116
 — Lübeck to St. Petersburg, 127
 — to Copenhagen, 127, 231
 — on the Elbe, 121
 — on the Mosel, 102
 — on the Weser, 205, 216
 — Mayence to Mannheim and Strassburg, 378
 Stecknitz, valley, 132
 Steeg, 74
 Steele, 186
 Steig, 432
 Stein, Castle of, 356
 Steinbach, 414
 Steinberg vineyard and wines, 83
 Steinhuder Meer, 212
 Stendal Junct. Stat., 164, 216
 Sternberg, 70
 Stettin, 230
 — to Swinemünde, 230
 — to Stralsund and Rügen, 233
 — *to Berlin, railroad, 229
 — to Breslau, viâ Posen, 246
 Stierstadt, 362
 Stolzenau, 209
 Stolberg, 225
 Stolberg in Rhen. Prussia, 33
 Stolp, 232
 Stolzenfels, 66, 68
 Strahlenberg Castle, 405
 Stralsund, 238
 — *to Hamburg, 127
 STRASSBURG, 394. Monument to Marshal Saxe, 395. The Rhine at, 398. Münster, 396. Spire, 396. Invention of printing, 396. Monument to Dessaix, 398. University and library, 397. Arsenal, 397. Pâtés de foie gras, 398.

TRAUTENAU.

Strassburg* to Mayence, 378
 — to Baden-Baden, 399
 — *to Basle, 424
 — *to Frankfurt, by Carlsruhe and Heidelberg, 399
 Streckelberg, 231
 Stromberg, 113
 Strötzbusch, 112
 Stubbenkammer, 236
 Stühlingen, 433
 Stultz, Baron, hospital founded by, 412. His birthplace, 415
 Stumsdorf, 165
 Stutzhaus, 291
 Suderode, 226
 Suhl, 291
 Sulz unter dem Walde, 394
 Sulza, 281
 Sundwich, 191
 Swenningen, 428
 Swinemünde, baths, 231
 Szczakowa, 269

T.

Tables-d'hôte, 5
 Tafelsichte, 256
 Tambach, 290
 Tangermünde, 164
 Tantom, 230
 Tapan, 245
 Tarnowitz, 254
 Taucha, 288
 Taunus mountains, 294, 359
 Tegel, 155
 Terespol, 238
 Teufel's Küche, 321
 Tetschen, 326
 Teutoburger Wald, 193
 Thale, 224
 Thann, 226
 Tharandt, 326
 Thomas-à-Kempis, birthplace, 26
 Thorn, 258
 Thurand Castle, 107
 Thüringerwald, 274
 Thurnberg, 70
 Tiefenbacherthal, 113
 Tiefenstein, 433
 Tiefer Grund, 323
 Tieffurt, 280
 Tilleda, 189
 Tilly's atrocities at Magdeburg, 182
 Tilsit, 245
 Titisee, 433
Titles, German, 11
 Todtenhausen, 172, 209
 Todtnau, 432
 Tolbiacum, 111
 Tonnerre, Mont, 389
 Tönnistein, 91
 Torgau, 294
 Traben, 104
 Trarbach, 104
 Trass, 91
 Trautenau, 264

TRAVE.

Trave, river, 122
 Travemünde, 126
 Trebbin, 162
 Trechttingshausen, 74
 Treis, 106
 Treptow, 155
 Treseburg, 224
 TREVES, 94. History of, 94.
 Antiquities, 95. Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Helen,
 95-98. Plan, 96. Roman baths or White Gate, 96. Amphitheatre, 99. Black Gate,
 99. Bridge, 100. Library,
 Codex Aureus, 101. Igel,
 101
 Trèves* to Coblenz, 102
 ——— down the Mosel, 102
 ———* to Aix-la-Chapelle, 110
 ———* to Bingen, 113
 Triberg, 428
 Trier, 94, see Trèves
 Trifels Castle, prison of Richard
 Cœur-de-Lion, 391
 Troisdorf Junct. Stat., 114
 Trzebinia, 270
 Tündern, 207
 Türrckheim, 426
 Türkismühle, 366
 Turnau, 266
 Turenne, death of, 414
 Tyrolese Protestant exiles in Silesia, 260

U.

Ueberlingen, 431
 Uelsen, 130
 Uerdingen, 22
 Uerzig, 103
 Ues, river, 94
 Unkel, 56
 Unkelstein, 56
 Unna, 192
 Urft, valley, 111
 Ursula, St., 39
 Usedom, 231
 Usingen, 354

V.

Valets-de-place, 6
 Vallendar Stat., 60
 Varenholz, 208
 Vassowska, 254
 Veckerhagen, 206
 Vehm-Gericht, 170, 187, 421
 Vendenheim, 394
 Vends, 231, 236, 331
 Verden, 213
 Vianden, 110
 Victoria, Roman remains of, 59
 Vinenburg, 221
 Vierland, 132
 Viersen, 44
 Viesselbach, 278
 Villingen, 428

WEISSKIRCHEN.

Vilm, island, 235
 Vilmar, 355
 Vionville, 372
 Virneburg castle, 90
 Vistula, 238, 240. Mouth of
 the, 238
 Vlotho, 208
 Vohwinkel, 186, 192
 Voigtland, 331
 Voiturier, 9
 oges Mountains, 425

W.

Waal branch of the Rhine, 20
 Wabern, 202
 Wadenheim, 89
 Waldbockenheim, 365
 Waldburg, 200
 Waldeck, forest of, 374
 Waldenburg, 262, 264
 Waldkirch, 415
 Waldshut, 433
 Waldorf, 49
 Walporzheim, 89
 Waltershausen, 275
 Wandersleben, 277
 Wandsbeck, 122
 Wangerin, 232
 Wanne Junct. Stat., 170
 Warburg, 188
 Warlubien, 238
Warmbrunn—Baths, 258. River
 Zacken, 259. Kynast, 259.
 Schneekoppe, 260
 Warnemünde, 129
 Warnow, 129
 Wartburg, Luther's prison,
 274
 Wartha, 267
 —, river, 246
 Wassenach, 91
 Wasserglass painting, 147
 Wasungen Stat., 334
Wauering-places, 14
 Weckeladorf, 262
 Weddinghausen, 188
 Wedigenstein, 208
 Weetzen, 199
 Wehlau, 245
 Wehlen, 320
 Weichsel, or Vistula, 238
Weights and Measures, 7
 Weillbach, 347
 Weilburg, 354
 WEIMAR, 278. Palace, 278.
 Library, 279. Theatre, churchyard, 280. Göthe's house and grave, 279. Schil-ler's house and grave, 280
 Weinfelder-Maar, 112
 Weinheim, 405
 Weiss on the Mosel, 108
 Weissenbach, 424
 Weissenburg, 392
 Weissenfels, 282
 Weissenthurm, 60
 Weisskirchen, 362

WITTIGHAUSEN.

Weistritz, river, 263
 Weistrupp, 295
 Weisswasser, 254
 Welmich, 70
 Welse, river, 230
 Wendel, St., 366
 Werdau, 330
 Werden, 169
 Werder, 161
 Werl, 192
 Wernigerode, 223, 228
 Wernshausen Stat., 334
 Werra, river, 188, 209, 291
 Werra, Valley, 334
 Werther, scene of his 'Sorrows,' 354
 Weschnitz, river, 405
 Wesel, 21
 Wesenstein Castle, 316
 Weser river, 171, 173; descent of, 205, 208
 Wesserling, 426
 Westphalia, 170
 Wetterau, 200
 Wetzlar, 353. 'Sorrows of Werther,' 354
 Wied, river, 59.
 Wiehengebirge, 171
 Wienhausen, 130
 WIESSBADEN, 343. Inns and baths, 343. Kursaal, 344.
 Trinkhalle, 344. Kochbrun-nen, 344. Temperature of the springs, 344. Roman remains, 345. Pfahlgraben, 345. Museum, 345. Theatre, 346. Platte, 346. Bi-berich, 346
 Wiesbaden* to Coblenz, 339
 — to Frankfurt, by Eppstein,
 Falkenstein, and the Taunus,
 359
 Wiesloch, 410
 Wildpark Stat., 161.
 Wildungen, 202
 Willgartswiesen, 392
 Wilhelmsbahn, 270
 Wilhelmshafen, 131
Wilhelmshöhe, 204; palace and garden, 204
 Wilhelmsthal, 205
 Wilsnach, 138
 Windeck Castle, 114
 Winden, 392
 — chapel of, 359
 Windmill of Sans Souci, 159
 Wines and vineyards of the Rhine, 75
 Winkel, 81
 Winnigen, 108
 Winterberg, 325
 Winzingen Castle, 390
 Wismar, 128
 Wisper Thal, 74
 Wissen, 114
 Wittekindbad, 167
 Wittekindsborg, 171, 208
Wittenberg, 162
 Wittenberge, 133, 156
 Wittighausen, 434

WITTLICH.	ZAPFENDORF.	ZWINGENBERG.
Wittlich, 94	Wurzen, 294	Zehlendorf, 157
Wittstock, 133	Wusterwitz, 161	Zeitz, 293
Witzenhausen, 188	Wutach, river, 432	Zell, 105
Wöbbelin, 133	Würges, 343	Zella, 291
Wolfach, 428		Zellerfeld, 218
Wolfenbüttel Junct. Stat., 180		Zeltingen, 103
Wolgast, 233	X.	Zerbst, 185
Wollin, 231	Xanten, 21, 25	Zevenaer, 20
Wollmirstedt, 164		Ziegenkopf, 223
Wörlitz, 185	Y.	Zittau, 266
WORMS, 379. Present state and former greatness; seat of Imperial Diets, 380. Ca- thedral, 380	Yburg, 194, 414	Zobtenberg, 263
Worringen, 26	Z.	Zollhaus, 355
Wörth, 375		Zons, 24
Wostromiersch, 264		Zoppot, 232, 240
Wriezen, 229	Zabern, 376	Zörbig, 165
Wronker, 246	Zacken, river, 259	Zorndorf, 237
Wunstorf Junct. Stat., 172	Zahlbach, 88	Züllich, 111
Wupper, valley of the, 186	Zähringen, 415	Züssow, 233
Würzburg, 434	Zapfendorf, 337	Zweibrücken (Deux Ponts), 388
		Zwickau, 330
		Zwingenberg, 403

THE END.

HANDBOOK ADVERTISER, 1879-80.

CONTENTS.

FOREIGN AGENTS :—McORACKEN & Co. pp. 2-3

RAILWAY AND STEAMBOAT COMPANIES:

	PAGE
CALEDONIAN RAILWAY	4
GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY	6
LONDON TO ANTWERP, "BARON OSY"	6
MIDLAND RAILWAY	5
RUBATTINO'S ITALIAN MAIL STEAMERS	7

HOTELS AND MISCELLANEOUS ADVERTISEMENTS.

	PAGE		PAGE		PAGE
AIX-LES-BAINS	8	FLORENCE	26	OSTEND	50, 51
AIX LA CHAPELLE	8, 9	FRANKFORT	27	OXFORD	51
ALEXANDRIA	9, 10	FRIBURG	27	PARIS	52
ALGIERS	9			PAU	53
ALLEVARD-LES-BAINS	9	GENEVA	27-30	PENZANCE	54
AMIENS	11	GENOA	30	PISA	53, 54
AMPHION-LES-BAINS.	11	GRENOBLE	30-31	PLYMOUTH	55
AMSTERDAM	11
ANTWERP	12	HANOVER	30	RHEINFALL NEUHAUSEN	56
		HAVRE	31	RIGI	52
BADEN	12, 13	HEIDELBERG	31, 32	ROME	54
BAGNERES DE BIGORRE	12	HOMBURG	32-33	ROTTERDAM	54, 56
BAGNERES DE LUCHON	44	HYERES	33	ROUEN	55
BARCELONA	13			ROYAT-LES-BAINS	54, 56
BELGIRATE	13	ILFRACOMBE	33, 34
BERLIN	13, 14	INNSBRUCK	33, 34	SAN REMO	57, 58
BOLOGNA	14	INTERLAKEN	34-35	SILVAPLANA	58
BONN	14	IRISH SCENERY	35	SOUTH WALES	61
BORDEAUX	14			SPA	57, 58
BOULOGNE-SUR-MER	14, 15	KILLARNEY	36	ST. MORITZ	56
BRISTOL	15			ST. PETERSBURG	58, 59
BRUGES	15	LAUSANNE	32, 35, 36	STOCKHOLM	60
BRUSSELS	15-18	LISBON	35	STRASBURG	56, 58
		LONDON	35-44, 63	STUTTGART	62
CAIRO	10, 19	LUCERNE	45, 46
CANNES	18, 20	LYNTON	46	TOULOUSE	62
CARLSBAD	21			TOURS	62
CHAMONIX	21	MACON	46	TRIBERG	62
CHERBOURG	22	MALAGA	46	TURIN	63
COBLENTZ	22	MALVERN	46, 47
COLOGNE	23	MARIENBAD	47	VARESE	63
CONSTANCE	18, 22	MARSEILLES	47	VENICE	63
COPENHAGEN	22	MAYENCE	46, 47	VERONA	64
CORFU	24	MENTONE	48, 49	VEVEY	64
		MILAN	48, 49	VICHY	66
DIEPPE	24	MUNICH	49	VIGO	64
DIJON	24			VIENNA	64, 65
DRESDEN	25	NAPLES	50
		NICE	50, 51	WIESBADEN	66, 67
EDINBURGH	26	NUREMBERG	50, 51	WILDBAD	66, 67
				ZARAGOZA	67

MESSRS. J. & R. M^CCRACKEN, 38, QUEEN STREET, CANNON STREET, E.C.,

AGENTS, BY APPOINTMENT, TO THE ROYAL ACADEMY, NATIONAL GALLERY, AND GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART,
GENERAL AND FOREIGN AGENTS,

WINE MERCHANTS, Agents for Bouvier's Neuchatel Champagne,

AND

FOR THE RECEPTION AND SHIPMENT OF WORKS OF ART, BAGGAGE, &c., FROM AND TO ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD,

Avail themselves of this opportunity to return their sincere thanks to the Nobility and Gentry for the patronage hitherto conferred on them, and hope to be honoured with a continuance of their favours. Their charges are framed with a due regard to economy, and the same care and attention will be bestowed as heretofore upon all packages passing through their hands.

DRY AND SPACIOUS WAREHOUSES,

Where Works of Art and all descriptions of Property can be kept during the Owner's absence, at most moderate rates of rent.

Parties favouring J. and R. M^CC. with their Consignments are requested to be particular in having the Bills of Lading sent to them DIRECT by Post, and also to forward their Keys with the Packages, as, although the contents may be free of Duty, all Packages are still EXAMINED by the Customs immediately on arrival. Packages sent by Steamers or otherwise to Southampton and Liverpool also attended to; but all Letters of Advice and Bills of Lading to be addressed to 38, QUEEN STREET, as above.

AGENTS IN ENGLAND OF MR. J. M. FARINA, GEGENÜBER DEM JULICH'S PLATZ, COLOGNE,

FOR HIS

CELEBRATED EAU DE COLOGNE.

MESSRS. J. AND R. M^CCRACKEN'S

PRINCIPAL CORRESPONDENTS.

ALGIERS	Mr. P. DESSEIGNE.
ALEXANDRIA.....	Messrs. R. J. MOSS & Co. Mr. A. MONFERRATO.
ALICANTE	Mr. P. R. DAHLANDER.
ANCONA	Messrs. MOORE, MORELLET, & Co.
ANTWERP	Messrs. F. MONHEIM & Co.
BAD EMS.....	Mr. H. W. THIEL.
BASLE	Mr. CHS. DE J. PREISWERY. Mr. J. J. FREY. Mr. J. WILD.
BERLIN	Mr. LION M. COHN, Comm ^{re} . Expéditeur.
BERNE	Messrs. A. BAUER & Co.
BEYROUT	Messrs. HENRY HEALD & Co.
BOLOGNA	Messrs. RENOLI, BUGGIO, & Co.
BOMBAY	Messrs. KING, KING, & Co.
BORDEAUX	Messrs. ALBRECHT & FILS.
BOULOGNE s. M....	Messrs. MORY & Co.
BRUSSELS	Messrs. VERSTRAETEN DE MEURS & FILS.
CALAIS.....	Messrs. L. J. VOGUE & Co.
CALCUTTA.....	Messrs. J. H. FERGUSON & Co.
CAIRO	Mr. A. MONFERRATO. Messrs. F. RALPH & Co.
CANNES.....	Messrs. J. TAYLOR & RIDDETT.
CARLSBAD	Mr. THOMAS WOLF, Glass Manufacturer.
CARRARA.....	Sig. F. BIENAIMÉ, Sculptor.
CHRISTIANIA	Mr. H. HEITMANN.
CIVITA VECCHIA .	Messrs. LOWE BROTHERS, British Consulate.
COLOGNE.....	Mr. J. M. FARINA, gegenüber dem Jülicher Platz.
CONSTANTINOPLE	Mr. ALFRED C. LAUGHTON.
COPENHAGEN.....	Messrs. H. J. BING & SON.
CORFU	Mr. J. W. TAYLOR.
DRESDEN	{ Messrs. SCHLOSSMANN & SCHIFFLER. Messrs. H. W. BASSING & Co. The Director of the Royal Porcelain Manufactory Depot.

M^CCRACKEN'S LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS—continued.

FLORENCE	{ Messrs. FRENCH & Co. Sig. LUIGI RAMAZZO. Messrs. EMILIO FENZI & Co. Sig. TITO GAGLIARDI, Dealer in Antiquities. Messrs. MAQUAY, HOOKER, & Co. Messrs. EYRE & HUNTINGTON. Mr. K. GOODMAN, Printseller. Messrs. NESTI, CIARDI, & Co. Mr. T. BIANCHINI, Mosaic Worker. Messrs. P. BAZZANTI & FIG., Sculptors, Lungo l'Arno.
FRANKFORT o. M.	{ Messrs. BING, JUN., & Co. Mr. F. BÖHLER, Zell D, 17. Mr. G. KREBS.
GENEVA	MM. LEVRIER & PÉLISSEUR.
GENOA	{ Messrs. G. & E. BABONI BROTHERS.
GIBRALTAR	Mr. C. A. WILSON. Mr. H. A. MOSSA, Grande Albergo d'Italia.
HAMBURG	Messrs. JOHN PEACOCK & Co.
HEIDELBERG	Messrs. J. P. JENSEN & Co. Messrs. SCHÖRMER & TRICHMANN.
HELSINGFORS	Mr. PH. ZIMMERMANN.
INTERLACKEN	Messrs. LUTHER & RUDOLPH.
JERUSALEM	Mr. J. GROSSMANN. Mr. A. TREMP. Mr. C. H. SCHUH.
KISSINGEN	Messrs. E. F. SPITTLER & Co. Mr. M. BERGHEIM, JUN.
LAUSANNE	Mr. DAVID KUGELMANN. Mr. H. F. KUGELMANN.
LEGHORN	Mr. DUBOIS RENOU & Fils.
LUCERNE	{ Messrs. ALEX. MACLEAN & Co. Messrs. MAQUAY, HOOKER, & Co.
MADRAS	Mr. H. TRUMPY.
MALAGA	Messrs. F. KNÖRR & Fils.
MALTA	Messrs. BINNY & Co.
MARIENBAD	Mr. GEORGE HODGSON.
MARSEILLES	{ Messrs. JOSH. DARMANIN & SONS, 45, Strada Levante, Mosaic Workers. Mr. FORTUNATO TESTA, 92, Strada Sta Lucia. Messrs. TURNBULL JUN. & SOMERVILLE.
MENTONE	Mr. J. T. ADLER, Glass Manufacturer.
MESSINA	Messrs. CLAUDE CLERO & Co.
MILAN	Mr. PALMADO. Mr. JEAN ORENGO Fils.
MUNICH	Messrs. CAHLER, WALKER, & Co.
NAPLES	{ Mr. G. B. BUFFET, Piazza di S. Sepolcro, No. 1.
NEUCHÂTEL (Suisse)	Messrs. FRATELLI BRAMBILLA. Messrs. ULRICH & Co.
NEW YORK	Messrs. G. BONO & Co.
NICE	Messrs. WIMMER & Co., Printsellers, Briener Strasse.
NUREMBERG	{ Messrs. W. J. TURNER & Co. Mr. G. SCALA, Wine Merchant.
OSTEND	Messrs. FILLI QUESTA. Messrs. CERULLI & Co.
PALERMO	Messrs. BOUVIER FRÈRES, Wine Merchants.
PARIS	Messrs. BALDWIN BROS. & Co.
PAU	Madame V ^{ve} ADOLPHE LAUROIX & Co.
PISA	Mr. A. PICKERT, Dealer in Antiquities.
PRAGUE	Messrs. BACH & Co.
ROME	Messrs. INGHAM, WHEATKERR, & Co.
ROTTERDAM	Mr. L. CHENUÉ, Packer, Rue Croix des Petits Champs, No. 24.
SAN REMO	Mr. MUSGRAVE CLAY.
ST. PETERSBURG	{ Messrs. HUGUET & VAN LINT, Sculptors in Alabaster and Marble.
STOCKHOLM	Mr. G. ANDREONI, Sculptor in Alabaster.
THOUNE	Mr. W. HOFMANN, Glass Manufacturer, Blauein Stern.
TRIESTE	Messrs. PLOWDEN & Co. Messrs. A. MACLEAN & Co. Messrs.
TURIN	MAQUAY, HOOKER, & Co. Messrs. FURSE BROS. & Co. Messrs.
VENICE	SPADA & FLAMINI. Mr. J. P. SHEA. Mr. A. TOMBINI. Mr. P.
VEVEY	BRANCHINI, at the English College.
VIENNA	Messrs. PRESTON & Co.
ZURICH	Messrs. FRATELLI ASQUASCIATI.
	Messrs. THOMSON, BONAR, & Co. Mr. C. KRUGER.
	Messrs. OLSON & WRIGHT.
	Mr. JEAN KEHLI-STERCHI.
	Messrs. FILLI CHIESA.
	Messrs. ROCHAS, Père & Fils.
	Mr. L. BOVARDI, Ponte alle Ballotta.
	Mr. ANTONIO ZEN.
	Messrs. S. & A. BLUMENTHAL & Co. Mr. CARLO PONTI.
	Mr. JULES GÉTAZ Fils.
	Mr. H. ULLRICH, Glass Manufacturer, am Lugeck, No. 3.
	Messrs. J. & L. LORMEYER, Glass Manufacturers, 13, Kärnthner Strasse. Mr. PETER COMPTON.
	Mr. ORELL HESS.

CALEDONIAN RAILWAY.

WEST COAST ROYAL MAIL ROUTE

BETWEEN

ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND.

DIRECT TRAINS RUN TO AND FROM LONDON (EUSTON), BIRMINGHAM, LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, LEEDS, BRADFORD, ETC., AND
GLASGOW, EDINBURGH, GREENOCK, PAISLEY, DUMFRIES, PEEBLES, STIRLING, PERTH, DUNDEE, ABERDEEN,
INVERNESS AND THE NORTH.

.* Sleeping and Day Saloons are run between England and Scotland.*
TOURISTS MAY BREAK THEIR JOURNEY AT VARIOUS STATIONS ON THE ROUTE.

To Greenock, Paisley, Wemyss Bay, the Firth of Clyde, Arran, and the West Highlands of Scotland.

The Company's Trains run daily from Edinburgh, Glasgow, Carlisle, &c., to Greenock, Wemyss Bay, &c., in connection with the Steamers "Columba," "Iona," "Lord of the Isles," "Gael," and other Steamers, to Dunoon, Innellan, Rothesay, Largs, Millport, Kyles of Bute, Tarbert, Inverary, Oban, Iona, Staffa, Ballachulish, Glencoe, Fort-William, Caledonian Canal, Falls of Foyers, Inverness, Isle of Skye and Loch-Long, Loch-Goil, Kilmun, Blairmore, Arran, Campbeltown, &c.

To Stirling, Callander, Dalmally, Crieff, Perth, Dundee, Aberdeen, Inverness, and the North and West Highlands of Scotland.

Trains run from Carlisle, Edinburgh, Glasgow, &c., to the North, in connection with Coaches from Callander for Trossachs, Loch-Katrine, and Loch-Lomond; from Crieff and Lochearnhead, for Circular Tour via St. Fillans and Loch-Earn; from Killin and Aberfeldy for Circular Tour via Loch-Tay and Taymouth Castle; also, for Tours via Dunkeld, Pitlochry, Pass of Killiecrankie, Blair-Athole, Inverness, Aberdeen, Isle of Skye, &c.; from Tyndrum for Blackmount Deer Forest, Glencoe and Fort-William; and from Dalmally for Loch-Awe, Inverary, Taynult, Oban, Iona, Staffa, &c.

DIRECT TRAINS BETWEEN EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW.

A full service of Trains is run by the Direct Route between Edinburgh and Glasgow at the most convenient Hours of the Day.

For particulars see the Company's Time Tables and Programme of Tours.

Caledonian Central Station, Gordon Street, Glasgow.

It is expected that the Caledonian Company's new Central Passenger Station at Gordon Street, Glasgow, will be opened for Traffic about the middle of the Season.

JAMES SMITHELLS, General Manager.

CALEDONIAN RAILWAY COMPANY'S OFFICES,
GLASGOW, 1879.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

The PICTURESQUE and FAVOURITE ROUTE

Between London and Manchester and Liverpool, and all parts of Lancashire viâ Matlock and the Peak of Derbyshire.

The NEW TOURIST and POPULAR ROUTE

Between England and Scotland, viâ Settle and Carlisle, is Now Open, and a Service of Express and Fast Trains is run between London and Edinburgh and Glasgow, with connections and Through Booking arrangements from principal Stations in the West of England, Midland Counties, Yorkshire and Lancashire, and principal Towns and Places of Tourist resort in Scotland.

Pullman Drawing-Room Cars by Day, and Sleeping Cars by Night,

Run between London (St. Pancras Station) and Edinburgh and Glasgow; and from July to October, between London and Perth; also between London and Liverpool and London and Manchester by the Express Trains of this Company. These Cars are well ventilated, fitted with Lavatory, &c., and accompanied by a Special Attendant, and are unequalled for comfort and convenience in travelling.

At London the Midland Company's Trains start from and arrive at the St. Pancras Station, where the Company have erected one of the largest Hotels in the world, containing upwards of 400 Bed-Rooms, with spacious Coffee-Room and numerous Drawing Rooms, which will be found replete with every accommodation.

Tourist Tickets, available for Two Calendar Months,

Are Issued during the Summer, from principal Stations on the Midland Railway, to—

Edinburgh,	Matlock,	Portsmouth,	Malvern,
Glasgow,	Buxton,	Isle of Wight,	Leamington,
Scarboro',	Yarmouth,	Bournemouth,	Swansea,
Harrogate,	Lowestoft,	Torquay,	Tenby,
Windermere,	Dover,	Plymouth,	Aberystwith,
Keswick,	Ramsgate,	Exeter,	Llandudno,
Morecombe,	Hastings,	Bath,	Rhyl,
Blackpool,	Brighton,	Ilfracombe,	Isle of Man, and most of the principal places of Tourist resort in the United Kingdom.

Tickets at Reduced Fares

Are issued from May 1st to the end of October to Pleasure Parties of not less than Six First, or Ten Third-Class Passengers, desirous of taking Pleasure Excursions to places on or adjacent to the Midland Railway.

For particulars of Trains, Tourist and Pleasure Party arrangements, and other information respecting the Midland Railway Company, see the Official Time Tables, to be obtained at all Stations, or apply to JAMES ALLPORT, General Manager.

DERBY, April, 1879.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.

THE TOURIST'S ROUTE TO THE CONTINENT IS viâ HARWICH.

THE Continental Express Train leaves Liverpool Street Station, London, for Rotterdam every evening (Sundays excepted), and for Antwerp on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, in direct connection with the Fast and elegantly fitted up Passenger Steamers of the Company.

The Steamers are large powerful Vessels, ranging from 800 to 1200 tons burthen, with ample sleeping accommodation; and consequently Passengers suffer less from mal de mer than by any of the shorter Sea Routes.

The Provisions on Board are supplied from the Company's own Hotel at Harwich, and are unequalled in quality. Luggage can be registered through to all principal Towns on the Continent from Liverpool Street Station. Through Tickets are issued at—

The Great Eastern Company's West End Office, 28, Regent Circus, Piccadilly, London, W.

COOK and SON'S Tourist Office, Ludgate Circus, London, E.C.

GAZE and SON'S Tourist Office, 142, Strand, London, E.C.

And the Continental Booking Office, Liverpool St. Station, London, E.C.

For further particulars and Time Books apply to the Continental Department, Liverpool Street Station, London, E.C.

LONDON TO ANTWERP.

BY THE FAST AND POWERFUL PADDLE STEAMER,

'BARON OSY,'

1150 Tons burthen, built in 1875. J. VERBIST, Commander.

This STEAMER, which is elegantly fitted up with spacious Saloons and Private Cabins, leaves London, from IRONGATE and ST. KATHARINE'S WHARF, Tower, every Sunday at noon, returning from Antwerp every Wednesday at noon, from 1st October to 1st April, and 1 o'clock (afternoon) from 1st April to 1st October. Passengers walk on board.

Travellers going by this Steamer may proceed by the Railroad viâ Antwerp and Cologne to Hamburg, Berlin, Leipzig, Dresden, &c.

FARES (including Steward's Fee)—Chief Cabin, 24s.; ditto Return, available one Month, 37s.; Fore Cabin, 16s.; ditto Return, 24s. 6d. Children under 10 years Half-price. Four-wheel Carriages, £4 4s.; two-wheel Carriages, £3. Horses, £3 3s.

Apply to the Agents:

London.—Messrs. ARNATI & HARRISON, 11 & 12, Great Tower Street, E.C.; and Old White Horse Cellar, 155, Piccadilly, W.

Antwerp.—Messrs. HUYSMANS & BULCKE, 10, Quai Magerman.

Brussels.—M. LELOTTE-TOWN, 88, Montague de la Cour.

Arrangements have now been made whereby the RETURN TICKETS issued by this Steamer are, without extra payment, available by the Steamers belonging to the General Steam Navigation Company. The advantage of five regular Departures per Week each way between London and Antwerp is thus secured to the Public. The RETURN TICKETS issued by the General Steam Navigation Company are available by the 'Baron Osy.'

R. RUBATTINO & CO.'S ITALIAN MAIL STEAMERS.

BOMBAY LINE.

From Genoa on the 24th of each month. | From Bombay on the 1st of each month:
 „ Naples on the 27th of each month. | „ Aden on the 8th of each month.

CALCUTTA LINE.

From Genoa on the 15th Feb. 15th August. | From Calcutta on the 15th Jan. 15th July.
 „ „ „ 15th April. 15th October. | „ „ „ 15th Mar. 15th Sept.
 „ „ „ 15th June. 15th Decem. | „ „ „ 15th May. 15th Nov.

SINGAPORE AND BATAVIA LINE.

Calling at Suez, Galles, and Colombo.

From Genoa on the 1st January; 1st April; | From Batavia on the 16th February; 16th
 1st July; 1st October. | August.
 From Singapore on the 20th February; 20th May; 20th August; 20th November.

MEDITERRANEAN LINES.

From Genoa to Alexandria every Mon. evng. | From Alexandria to Genoa every Fri. morn.
 From Naples to Alexandria every Thur. evng. | From Naples to Genoa every Wed. evening.

MARSEILLES, GENOA, TUNIS.

Marseilles to Genoa every Tuesday evening. | Tunis to Cagliari every Wednesday morning.
 Genoa to Cagliari every Thursday evening. | Cagliari to Genoa every Thursday evening.
 Cagliari to Tunis every Sunday evening | Genoa to Marseilles every Sunday evening.

TUNIS, MALTA, TRIPOLI.

Tunis to Malta every Tuesday morning. | Tripoli to Malta every Friday noon.
 Malta to Tripoli every Wednesday evening. | Malta to Tunis every Saturday evening.

TUNIS to SFAX.

Tunis to Sfax every Wednesday noon. | Sfax to Tunis every Saturday morning.

GENOA, CAGLIARI, PALERMO.

Genoa to Cagliari every Monday evening. | Palermo to Cagliari every Saturday evening.
 Cagliari to Palermo every Thursday evening. | Cagliari to Genoa every Monday, noon.

GENOA, CAGLIARI, NAPLES

Genoa to Cagliari every Saturday evening. | Naples to Cagliari every Friday, noon.
 Cagliari to Naples every Wednesday noon. | Cagliari to Genoa every Saturday evening.

GENOA, LEGHORN, NAPLES.

Genoa to Leghorn every Thursday evening. | Naples to Leghorn every Monday evening.
 Leghorn to Naples every Friday evening. | Leghorn to Genoa every Wednesday morning.

GENOA, BASTIA, PORTOTORRES.

Genoa to Bastia every Saturday evening. | Portotorres to Bastia every Wednesday morn.
 Bastia to Portotorres every Sunday evening. | Bastia to Genoa every Thursday morning.

LEGHORN, PORTOFERRAIO.

Leghorn to Portoferraio every Sunday morn. | Portoferraio to Leghorn every Monday morn.

For Freight, Passage, and Particulars, apply at Bombay, to CH. GRONDIANA (Managing Agent in India); at Alexandria, to CESARE PARRINI; at Marseilles, to R. RUBATTINO and CO.; at London, to A. LAMING & CO., 8, Leadenhall Street; at Paris, to F. PUTHET and CO.; at Berlin, to CH. MESSING, Gare of Potsdam; and in other ports to the Company's Agencies.

R. RUBATTINO & CO. (GENOA).

AIX-LES-BAINS.

GRAND HÔTEL DE L'EUROPE.

Proprietor, J. BERNASCON.

FIRST-CLASS House, admirably situated near the Casino, the Baths, and the English Church. This Hotel is strongly recommended to Travellers for the comfort of its arrangements. Good Gardens, with a beautiful view of the Lake and Mountains. Large and small Apartments for Families at moderate prices, and a Chalet in the Garden for Families who may prefer being out of the Hotel. Excellent Table-d'Hôte. Open all the Year. LAWN TENNIS.

Carriages for hire, and an Omnibus belonging to the Hotel to meet every Train.

Savoie.) AIX-LES-BAINS. (Savoie.

HOTEL VENAT ET BRISTOL.

OPEN ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

EUROPEAN REPUTATION. Re-built and Re-furnished. 150 Bed Rooms and 20 Sitting Rooms, surrounded by an extensive Garden and Park, and with View of the Lakes of Bourget. Nearest to the Baths, English Church, and Casino.

LAWN TENNIS GAME.

G. ROSSIGNOLI.

AIX-LES-BAINS.

GRAND HOTEL DE L'UNIVERS.

First-Class Establishment, Open all the Year.

SPLENDID Situation; immense Garden; South aspect well shaded; a very extended view of Lake Bourget and the Mountains. Belvedere, with fine prospect of the principal points of view, and Excursions. Small and large Apartments; Salons for Families; Drawing Room, Reading Room, and Smoking Room, with every comfort that can be desired.

French and Foreign Papers.

Arrangements made for Pension. Private Carriages. Stable and Coach-house.

Omnibus of the Hotel meets every Train.

CLLE. RENAUD, Proprietor.

AIX-LES-BAINS.

HOTEL DAMESIN and CONTINENTAL.

Open all the Year.

This Hotel is particularly recommended to English Families for its comfort and beautiful situation. American Proprietress.

DAMESIN, Proprietor.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.

HOTEL DU DRAGON D'OR.

Close to Kursaal and Bath Houses.

Reputation for comfort, cleanliness, and very moderate Charges. Table d'Hôte.

B. MÜLLEM, Proprietor.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE FRANCE.

RUE ROYALE AND MONTAGNE DU PARC.

MR. JOHN BARBER, the new Proprietor, has entirely refitted and re-arranged the Hotel de France. The Beautiful Situation of the Hotel (adjoining the Park), the Moderate Charges, Excellent Cuisine, and greatly improved Arrangements for the Comfort of Visitors, render this Hotel especially deserving the patronage of Travellers. Rooms from 3 francs and upwards.

Table d'Hôte (at Five o'clock in Winter, Six in Summer) 5 francs.

English and other Languages spoken.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE L'EUROPE,
PLACE ROYALE.

The best situation in Brussels, near the Park, Royal Palace, Boulevards, and Museum.

Table d'Hôte.

ENGLISH SPOKEN.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL MENGELLE
(RUE ROYALE).

THIS large and beautiful First-Class Hotel is situated in the finest and most healthy part of the Town, near to the Promenades the most frequented, and is supplied with every modern accommodation and comfort. Table d'Hôte at half-past 5 and 7 o'clock, five francs. Restaurant à la carte, and at fixed prices, at any hour. Excellent "Cuisine" and Choice Wines.

Baths, Smoking Room, Reading Room, and Carriages.

Arrangements made with Families during the Winter Season.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE LA POSTE,
RUE FOSSÉ-AUX-LOUPS,
NEAR THE PLACE DE LA MONNAIE.

This Hotel, specially frequented by English and Americans, is situated in the centre of the Town, and near the principal Theatres.

BEST TABLE D'HÔTE. MODERATE CHARGES.

ENGLISH SPOKEN. OMNIBUS AT THE STATION.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE L'UNIVERS,

RUE NEUVE,

Has a Wide Entrance from the New Boulevards, which places it in one of the best and most advantageous positions in the city. A First-class House for Families, to be recommended for its Comfort and Moderate Prices. Table d'Hôte, Restaurant, Smoking-room, Reading room.

Arrangements made for the Winter Season, or for a prolonged residence.

SCHOEFFTER-WIERTZ, Proprietor.

BRUSSELS.

GRAND HOTEL DE SAXE, 77 and 79, RUE NEUVE. Admirably situated near the Boulevards, Theatres, and two minutes' walk from the North Railway Stations. This Establishment, which has been considerably enlarged, possesses now a most splendid Dining-room, and offers to Families and Single Travellers spacious, comfortable, and airy Apartments. Tariffs in every Room.—Fixed Prices:—Plain Breakfast 1fr. 25c. Two chops or steak, or ham and eggs, 1fr. 50c. Table d'Hôte at five o'clock, 3fr. 50c. Private Dinners from 5fr. Bed-rooms, including light, 4fr. 25c.; 3fr. 75c.; 6fr.—for the first night; and for the following night, 3fr. 50c.; 3fr.; 5fr.; and 4fr. Sitting-rooms from 3fr. to 12fr. Attendance 1fr. per night. London "Times" and "Illustrated London News" taken in. Travellers having only a few hours to spend in Brussels between the departure of the trains, can have refreshments or dinners at any hour. The Waterloo Coach leaves the Hotel at 9.30 o'clock every morning. Private Carriages for Waterloo 28fr., every expense included. Table d'Hôte at 6.30 p.m., 5fr.

HENRY KERVAND, Proprietor.

BRUSSELS.

GRAND HOTEL—GERNAY.

Moderate Charges. Ancien Propriétaire de l'Hôtel de Portugal à Spa.

This Hotel is close to the Railway Station for Ostend, Germany, Holland, Antwerp, and Spa, forming the Corner of the Boulevard Botanique et du Nord.

CANNES.

GRAND HOTEL CALIFORNIE.

FIRST-CLASS Hotel, magnificently situated in extensive Pleasure Grounds, with a commanding View over the Bays, combines every comfort with elegance.

Open from the 1st of October to the 15th of June.

CHABASSIERE, Proprietor,

And also Proprietor of the "SPLENDID HOTEL" and of the "CONTINENTAL HOTEL" at the Baths of Royat (Puy de Dôme), France.

CANNES.

HOTEL RICHE-MONT.

First-class Family Hotel.

(near S. Paul's Church.)

H. GONGOLTZ (speaks English).

CONSTANCE.

ISLAND HOTEL.

Formerly a Dominican Convent, on the Lake of Constance, near the Town, Harbour, and Station. 100 Rooms, Saloons. Beautiful Dining Room, with historical curiosities.

Room with light, from 1 mk. 50 upwards.

A. GUTSCHENBAUGH.

CANNES.HÔTEL BEAU SITE.

SITUATED at the West end of Cannes, adjoining Lord Brougham's property; the finest part of the Town. Newly enlarged. 200 Rooms. 20 private Sitting-rooms. Reading and Smoking-rooms, and English Billiard-table.

Sheltered Situation, commanding an unequalled view of the Sea, the Iles Lérins, and the Esterel Mountain. Large beautiful Gardens, Promenades, and Lawn Tennis belonging to the estate. Arrangements made for the Season for Families. Moderate Charges. Bath-rooms and Lift.

Omnibuses at the Station.

OPENED THE 1ST OF OCTOBER.

GEORGES GOUOGOLTZ, Proprietor.

CANNES.WINDSOR HOTEL.

THIS First-Class Family Hotel is beautifully situated, not too far from the Town and the Sea, of which, however, it enjoys an extensive view.

Most Comfortable Apartments and Careful Attendance.

ED. SCHMID, Proprietor.

CANNES.GRAND HOTEL DE PROVENCE.

Boulevard du Cannet. Proprietress, English.

SITUATED on rising ground, away from the Sea. Well sheltered, standing in its own grounds, with beautiful views of the Town, the Isles de Lérins, and the Esterel. Broad Terrace, and sheltered walks in the Gardens. Lawn Tennis and Croquet Ground. The Hotel combines the comfort and quiet of an English home, with all the accessories of a First-Class Hotel. Good Cuisine. Drawing, Billiard, and Smoking Rooms. The situation is highly recommended by medical men.

An Omnibus meets the Trains.

CARLSBAD.

HOTEL DE HANOVER.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, situated in the centre of the Town, near all the Springs. Cuisine, and strictly Moderate Charges. English spoken. Omnibus at the Station.

C. R. ZÖRKENDÖRFER, Proprietor.

CHAMONIX.

HÔTEL DU MONT BLANC.

Enjoying an exceptional View of Mont Blanc and the Valley.

GOOD TABLE AT MODERATE PRICES.

Baths and Garden attached to the Hotel.

CACHAT, PROPRIETOR.

CHAMONIX.

HÔTEL DES ALPES.

A very comfortable Hotel, with splendid View from every side of the House. First-rate Cuisine. Hot and Cold Baths in the House. English, French and German Newspapers. Moderate Charges and Reduction for a long Residence.

J. J. KLOTZ, PROPRIETOR.

CHAMONIX.

GRAND HÔTEL IMPÉRIAL.FIRST-RATE HOUSE.

All desirable comfort is secured in this Establishment. Baths. English and American Newspapers. Reading, Smoking, and Billiard Rooms.

BEST VIEW ON THE GLACIERS.

The Hotels-Pensions de l'Union et du Palais de Cristal, belong to the same Company.

CHAMONIX.

GRANDS HOTELS
DE LONDRES ET D'ANGLETERRE.

EUROPEAN REPUTATION.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSES.

Are recommended to Families for their comfort and excellent Cookery. These Establishments are quite newly Furnished and thoroughly put in repair. Baths in the Hotel.

CRÉPAUX-TAIRRAZ, Proprietor.

CHERBOURG.

HOTEL DES BAINS DE MER.

SEASON FROM MAY TO OCTOBER.

THE only Hotel facing the Sea. Drawing Room, Reading Room, Ball Room. Military Band in the Garden twice a week.

The Bathing Establishment is attached to the Hotel.

For Rooms apply to the Director.

COBLENTZ.

Grand Hotel de Belle Vue.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL,

With every Comfort. Magnificent View of the Rhine. Moderate Charges.

Proprietor, H. HOCHÉ.

COBLENTZ.

The Rhine. The Moselle.

MURRAY'S HANDBOOK FOR NORTH GERMANY, from the Baltic to the Black Forest. Maps. Post 8vo. 10s.

JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle Street.

CONSTANCE.

HOTEL AND PENSION CONSTANZERHOF AU LAC.

(Formerly BATH HOTEL.)

Situated on the Lake of Constance.

SURROUNDED by pretty Parks. Sea-Bathing Establishment. Warm Baths of every sort. Boarding Prices: Mk. 4:80. Room, from Mk. 1:20, upwards.

E. KUPPER.

COPENHAGEN.

HÔTEL KING OF DENMARK.

THIS new and most comfortably fitted-up First-Class Hotel, containing 100 Rooms and Saloons, is especially recommended to Travellers, because of its beautiful location, close to the Royal Palace, commanding a splendid View of the Royal Square. Table d'Hôte at 4 o'clock. Restaurant open all day. Reading Room. Excellent Cooking, and Wines. German Attendance. Moderate Charges. Hydraulic Elevator. New Vienna Café.

R. KLÜM, Proprietor.

COPENHAGEN.

MURRAY'S HANDBOOK for Denmark, Sleswig, Holstein, Jutland, Iceland.

Maps. Post 8vo. 6s.

JOHN MURRAY, ALBEMARLE STREET.

COLOGNE ON THE RHINE. JOHANN MARIA FARINA, GEGENÜBER DEM JÜLICH'S PLATZ

(Opposite the Jülich's Place),

PURVEYOR TO H.M. QUEEN VICTORIA;
TO H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES;
TO H. M. EMPEROR OF GERMANY; THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA;
THE EMPEROR OF FRANCE;
THE KING OF DENMARK, ETC. ETC.,

OF THE

ONLY GENUINE EAU DE COLOGNE,

Which obtained the only Prize Medal awarded to Eau de Cologne at the Paris Exhibition of 1867.

THE frequency of mistakes, which are sometimes accidental, but for the most part the result of deception practised by interested individuals, induces me to request the attention of English travellers to the following statement:—

The favourable reputation which my Eau de Cologne has acquired, since its invention by my ancestor in the year 1709, has induced many people to imitate it; and in order to be able to sell their spurious article more easily, and under pretext that it was genuine, they procured themselves a firm of Farina, by entering into partnership with persons of my name, which is a very common one in Italy.

Persons who wish to purchase the genuine and original Eau de Cologne ought to be particular to see that the labels and the bottles have not only my name, Johann Maria Farina, but also the additional words, gegenüber dem Jülich's Platz (that is, opposite the Jülich's Place), without addition of any number.

Travellers visiting Cologne, and intending to buy my genuine article, are cautioned against being led astray by cabmen, guides, commissioners, and other parties, who offer their services to them. I therefore beg to state that my manufacture and shop are in the same house, situated opposite the Jülich's Place, and nowhere else. It happens too, frequently, that the said persons conduct the uninstructed strangers to shops of one of the fictitious firms, where, notwithstanding assertion to the contrary, they are remunerated with nearly the half part of the price paid by the purchaser, who, of course, must pay indirectly this remuneration by a high price and a bad article.

Another kind of imposition is practised in almost every hotel in Cologne, where waiters, commissioners, &c., offer to strangers Eau de Cologne, pretending that it is the genuine one, and that I delivered it to them for the purpose of selling it for my account.

The only certain way to get in Cologne my genuine article is to buy it personally at my house, opposite the Jülich's Place, forming the corner of the two streets, Unter Goldschmidt and Oben Marspforten, No. 23, and having in the front six balconies, of which the three bear my name and firm, Johann Maria Farina, Gegenüber dem Jülich's Platz.

The excellence of my manufacture has been put beyond all doubt by the fact that the Jurors of the Great Exhibitions in London, 1851 and 1862, awarded to me the Prize Medal; that I obtained honourable mention at the Great Exhibition in Paris, 1855; and received the only Prize Medal awarded to Eau de Cologne at the Paris Exhibition of 1867, and in Oporto 1865.

COLOGNE, January, 1869.

JOHANN MARIA FARINA,
GEGENÜBER DEM JÜLICH'S PLATZ.

* * MESSRS. J. & R. M^cCRACKEN, 38, Queen Street, Cannon Street, E.C., are my Sole Agents for Great Britain and Ireland.

CORFU.

HOTEL ST. GEORGE.

THIS FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, very well situated on the best side of the Esplanade, close to the Royal Palace, is fitted up after the English style, affording first-rate accommodation for Families and Single Gentlemen. Excellent Pension, and prices very moderate. A large addition to the Hotel just now finished, makes it one of the most comfortable of the Continent, with splendid Apartments, Conversation Saloon, Reading Saloon and Library, Smoking and Billiard Rooms, and Bath Room. Magnificent Carriages and Horses, the whole new, neat, and elegant. All Languages spoken. Ladies travelling alone will find here the greatest comfort and best attendance. The Hotel is under the patronage of King George I., the Emperor of Austria, and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburgh.

S. P. MAZZUCHY, Proprietor.

DIEPPE.

HÔTEL ROYAL,

Facing the Beach, close to the Bathing Establishment and the Parade.

IT IS ONE OF THE MOST PLEASANTLY SITUATED HOTELS IN DIEPPE, commanding a beautiful and extensive View of the Sea. Families and Gentlemen visiting Dieppe will find at this Establishment elegant Large and Small Apartments, and the best of accommodation, at very reasonable prices. Large Reading Room, with French and English Newspapers. The Refreshments, &c., are of the best quality. In fact, this Hotel fully bears out and deserves the favourable opinion expressed of it in Murray's and other Guide Books.

LAFOSSE AÎNÉ.—LARSONNEUX, Succr., Proprietor.

Table d'Hôte and Private Dinners.

.* This Hotel is open all the Year.*

DIJON.

HÔTEL DU JURA.

MM. DAVID et MERCIER, Proprietors.

THIS Hotel is the nearest to the Railway Station, the Cathedral, and the Public Garden Saloons. Apartments and Rooms for Families. Table d'Hôte. Private Carriages for hire by the hour. English Newspapers. Omnibus to carry passengers to and from each train. English spoken. The greatest attention is paid to English visitors. Bureau de Change in the Hotel. Considerably enlarged and newly furnished, 1875. The best Burgundy Wines shipped at wholesale prices.

DIJON.

HOTEL DE LA CLOCHE.

Mr. GOISSET, PROPRIETOR.

QUITE near the Railway Station, at the entrance of the Town. First-Class House of old reputation. Enlarged in 1870. Apartments for Families. Carriages for drives. Table d'Hôte and Service in private. Reading Room. Smoking Room. English spoken. Exportation of Burgundy Wines.

EDMOND GOISSET.

BRUGES.

GRAND HOTEL DU COMMERCE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.—Proprietor, C. VANDEN BERGHE. The largest and oldest Hotel of the Town. Comfort. Moderate Charges.

Special Omnibus.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE SUÈDE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, in a thoroughly central position near the New Boulevards.

EXCELLENT TABLE D'HÔTE. CHOICE WINES.

VAN CUTSEM, Proprietor.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL MENGELLE

(RUE ROYALE).

B. MENGELLE, PROPRIETOR.

THIS large and beautiful First-Class Hotel is situated in the finest and most healthy part of the Town, near to the Promenades the most frequented, and is supplied with every modern accommodation and comfort. Table d'Hôte at 6 and 7.15, five francs. Restaurant à la carte, and at fixed prices, at any hour. Excellent "Cuisine" and Choice Wines.

Baths, Smoking Room, Reading Room, and Carriages.

Arrangements made with Families during the Winter Season.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE L'EUROPE,

PLACE ROYALE.

The best situation in Brussels, near the Park, Royal Palace, Boulevards, and Museum.

Table d'Hôte.

ENGLISH SPOKEN.

BRUSSELS.

HOTEL DE LA POSTE,

RUE FOSSE-AUX-LOUPS,

NEAR THE PLACE DE LA MONNAIE.

This Hotel, specially frequented by English and Americans, is situated in the centre of the Town, and near the principal Theatres.

BEST TABLE D'HÔTE. MODERATE CHARGES.

ENGLISH SPOKEN. OMNIBUS AT THE STATION.

BRUSSELS.
HOTEL DE L'UNIVERS,
RUE NEUVE,

Has a Wide Entrance from the New Boulevards, which places it in one of the best and most advantageous positions in the city. A First-class House for Families, to be recommended for its Comfort and Moderate Prices. Table d'Hôte, Restaurant, Smoking-room, Reading-room.

Arrangements made for the Winter Season, or for a prolonged residence.

SCHOËFFTER-WIERTZ, Proprietor.

BRUSSELS.
GRAND HOTEL—GERNAY.

Moderate Charges. Ancien Propriétaire de l'Hôtel de Portugal à Spa.

This Hotel is close to the Railway Station for Ostend, Germany, Holland, Antwerp, and Spa, forming the Corner of the Boulevard Botanique et du Nord.

BRUSSELS.
HOTEL DE FRANCE.
RUE ROYALE AND MONTAGNE DU PARC.

MR. JOHN BARBER, the new Proprietor, has entirely refitted and re-arranged the Hotel de France. The Beautiful Situation of the Hotel (adjoining the Park), the Moderate Charges, Excellent Cuisine, and greatly improved Arrangements for the Comfort of Visitors, render this Hotel especially deserving the patronage of Travellers. Rooms from 3 francs and upwards.

Table d'Hôte (at Five o'clock in Winter, Six in Summer) 5 francs.

English and other Languages spoken.

CAEN.
HOTEL D'ESPAGNE,
71 & 73, RUE ST. JEAN.

A. MARIE, PROPRIETOR. FIRST-CLASS ESTABLISHMENT.

Recommended to Families. Moderate Prices.

CANNES.
GRAND HOTEL CALIFORNIE.

FIRST-CLASS Hotel, magnificently situated in extensive Pleasure Grounds, with a commanding View over the Bays, combines every comfort with elegance.

Open from the 1st of October to the 1st of June.

CHABASSIERE, Proprietor,

And also Proprietor of the "SPLendid HOTEL" and of the "CONTINENTAL HOTEL" at the Baths of Royat (Puy de Dôme), France.

CAEN.

HOTEL D'ANGLETERRE,

Rue St. Jean, Nos. 77, 79, 81.

Situated in the Centre of the Town. Rendezvous of the best Society.

100 Elegantly Furnished and Comfortable Bed Rooms and Sitting Rooms.

BREAKFASTS À LA CARTE.

DINNER AT TABLE D'HÔTE, 4 FRANCS.

SUITES OF APARTMENTS FOR FAMILIES.

~~~~~
ENGLISH AND SPANISH SPOKEN.

L. MANCEL, Proprietor.

CANNES.

HÔTEL BEAU SITE.

SITUATED at the West end of Cannes, adjoining Lord Brougham's property; the finest part of the Town. Newly enlarged. 200 Rooms. 20 private Sitting-rooms. Reading and Smoking-rooms, and English Billiard-table.

Sheltered Situation, commanding an unequalled view of the Sea, the Iles Lérins, and the Esterel Mountain. Large beautiful Gardens, Promenades, and Lawn Tennis belonging to the estate. Arrangements made for the Season for Families. Moderate Charges. Bath-rooms and Lift.

Omnibuses at the Station.

OPENED THE 1ST OF OCTOBER.

GEORGES GOUOGOLTZ, Proprietor.

CANNES. WINDSOR HOTEL.

T HIS First-Class Family Hotel is beautifully situated, not too far from the Town and the Sea, of which, however, it enjoys an extensive view.

Most Comfortable Apartments and Careful Attendance.

ED. SCHMID, Proprietor.

CANNES. GRAND HOTEL DE PROVENCE.

Boulevard du Cannet. Proprietress, English.

SITUATED on rising ground, away from the Sea. Well sheltered, standing in its own grounds, with beautiful views of the Town, the Isles de Lérins, and the Esterel. Broad Terrace, and sheltered walks in the Gardens. Lawn Tennis and Croquet Ground. The Hotel combines the comfort and quiet of an English home, with all the accessories of a First-Class Hotel. Good Cuisine. Drawing, Billiard, and Smoking Rooms. The situation is highly recommended by medical men.

An Omnibus meets the Trains.

CANNES. HOTEL NATIONAL.

O PEN all the year. Central position. Southern aspect.
MODERATE CHARGES. Arrangements made by the week.

JOSEPH CARDON, Proprietor.

~~~~~
ENGLISH SPOKEN.

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE. HOTEL DE LA CLOCHE D'OR, ET DU PALAIS ROYAL.

Kept by JAUNAUX ERNEST, Proprietor and Director.

This Hotel has always been recommended for its great comfort.

TABLE D'HÔTE AND RESTAURANT.

PERSIAN SMOKING ROOM. CHOICE WINES.

OMNIBUSES TO AND FROM THE STATION.

CARLSBAD.

Hotel and Dependence "Villa Helenenhof" De Hanover.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, situated in the centre of the Town, near all the Springs. Cuisine, and strictly Moderate Charges. English spoken. Omnibus at the Station.

C. R. ZÖRKENDÖRFER, Proprietor.

CHAMONIX.

HÔTEL DU MONT BLANC.

Enjoying an exceptional View of Mont Blanc and the Valley.

GOOD TABLE AT MODERATE PRICES.

Baths and Garden attached to the Hotel.

CACHAT, PROPRIETOR.

CHAMONIX.

HÔTEL DES ALPES.

A VERY comfortable Hotel, with splendid View from every side of the House. First-rate Cuisine. Hot and Cold Baths in the House. English, French, and German Newspapers. Moderate Charges and Reduction for a long Residence.

J. J. KLOTZ, PROPRIETOR.

CHAMONIX.

GRAND HOTEL IMPERIAL AND DE SAUSSURE.

FIRST-RATE HOUSE.

All desirable comfort is secured in this Establishment. Baths. English and American Newspapers. Reading, Smoking, and Billiard Rooms.

BEST VIEW ON THE GLACIERS.

HOTEL ROYAL.

THIS First-Class Family Hotel is in the most beautiful situation in Chamonix, with large Park and Observatory. Patronised by the Royal Family of England, and other Sovereigns of the World.

These two Hotels belong to the same Company.

COBLENTZ.

Grand Hotel de Belle Vue.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL,

With every Comfort. Magnificent View of the Rhine. Moderate Charges.

Proprietor, H. HOCHÉ.

COLOGNE.

HOTEL DU DOME.

More comfortable than luxurious. In the front of the Cathedral; three minutes from the Central Station. Fixed but Moderate Charges. (65 Journals.)

THEODOR METZ, Proprietor.

COLOGNE ON THE RHINE.
JOHANN MARIA FARINA,
GEGENÜBER DEM JÜLICH'S PLATZ

(Opposite the Jülich's Place),

PURVEYOR TO H.M. QUEEN VICTORIA;
 TO H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES;
 TO H. M. WILLIAM KING OF PRUSSIA; THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA;
 THE EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA;
 THE KING OF DENMARK, ETC. ETC.,

OF THE

ONLY GENUINE EAU DE COLOGNE,

Which obtained the only Prize Medal awarded to Eau de Cologne at the Paris Exhibition of 1867.

THE frequency of mistakes, which are sometimes accidental, but for the most part the result of deception practised by interested individuals, induces me to request the attention of English travellers to the following statement:—

The favourable reputation which my Eau de Cologne has acquired, since its invention by my ancestor in the year 1709, has induced many people to imitate it; and in order to be able to sell their spurious article more easily, and under pretext that it was genuine, they procured themselves a firm of Farina, by entering into partnership with persons of my name, which is a very common one in Italy.

Persons who wish to purchase the genuine and original Eau de Cologne ought to be particular to see that the labels and the bottles have not only my name, Johann Maria Farina, but also the additional words, gegenüber dem Jülich's Platz (that is, opposite the Jülich's Place), without addition of any number.

Travellers visiting Cologne, and intending to buy my genuine article, are cautioned against being led astray by cabmen, guides, commissioners, and other parties, who offer their services to them. I therefore beg to state that my manufacture and shop are in the same house, situated opposite the Jülich's Place, and nowhere else. It happens too, frequently, that the said persons conduct the uninstructed strangers to shops of one of the fictitious firms, where, notwithstanding assertion to the contrary, they are remunerated with nearly the half part of the price paid by the purchaser, who, of course, must pay indirectly this remuneration by a high price and a bad article.

Another kind of imposition is practised in almost every hotel in Cologne, where waiters, commissioners, &c., offer to strangers Eau de Cologne, pretending that it is the genuine one, and that I delivered it to them for the purpose of selling it for my account.

The only certain way to get in Cologne my genuine article is to buy it personally at my house, opposite the Jülich's Place, forming the corner of the two streets, Unter Goldschmidt and Oben Marsporten, No. 23, and having in the front six balconies, of which the three bear my name and firm, Johann Maria Farina, Gegenüber dem Jülich's Platz.

The excellence of my manufacture has been put beyond all doubt by the fact that the Jurors of the Great Exhibitions in London, 1851 and 1862, awarded to me the Prize Medal; that I obtained honourable mention at the Great Exhibition in Paris, 1855; and received the only Prize Medal awarded to Eau de Cologne at the Paris Exhibition of 1867, and in Oporto 1865.

COLOGNE, January, 1880.

JOHANN MARIA FARINA,
 GEGENÜBER DEM JÜLICH'S PLATZ

 MESSRS. J. & R. M^cCRACKEN, 38, Queen Street, Cannon Street, E.C., are my Sole Agents for Great Britain and Ireland.

CHERBOURG.

HOTEL DES BAINS DE MER.

SEASON FROM MAY TO OCTOBER.

THE only Hotel facing the Sea. Drawing Room, Reading Room, Ball Room. Military Band in the Garden twice a week.

The Bathing Establishment is attached to the Hotel.

For Rooms apply to the Director.

CONSTANCE.

HOTEL AND PENSION CONSTANZERHOF AU LAC.

(Formerly BATH HOTEL.)

SPLENDID situation, on the Lake of Constance, and surrounded by pretty Parks, with magnificent view towards the Alps. Sea-Bathing Establishment. Warm, Roman, Fresh Water, and Turkish Baths. Rooms, 1 mk. 50 pfg. and upwards. No charge for the usual lights and attendance. Boarding Terms, including Rooms, 5 Mks. per day.

EMIL KUPPER.

CONSTANTINOPLE.

THE PROPRIETOR of the

HÔTEL D'ANGLETERRE

(MISSIRIE),

In view of the great number of Families and Gentlemen travelling in this Capital, has thought it expedient to fit up a Branch for the accommodation of the same, consisting of the

HÔTEL ROYAL,

For some time the residence of H.B.M.'s Ambassador, Sir H. Elliot, His Majesty the Emperor of the Brazils, and lately, for two months, of His Excellency the Marquis of Salisbury. It is needless to say anything in praise of the fine position and splendid view on the Golden Horn. The Arrangements are thoroughly comfortable, and the Furniture first-class. The Hotel is within two minutes' walk of the British Embassy; and the Arrangements have given the greatest satisfaction to the above high personages. The Proprietor begs to inform Gentlemen travelling, that both Establishments are provided with every desirable comfort, Guides, and Attendants; and at Prices calculated to suit passing Travellers, as well as those making a prolonged stay.

F. LOGOTHETTI.

CORFU. HOTEL ST. GEORGE.

THIS FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, very well situated on the best side of the Esplanade, close to the Royal Palace, is fitted up after the English style, affording first-rate accommodation for Families and Single Gentlemen. Excellent Pension, and prices very moderate. A large addition to the Hotel just now finished, makes it one of the most comfortable of the Continent, with splendid Apartments, Conversation Saloon, Reading Saloon and Library, Smoking and Billiard Rooms, and Bath Room. Magnificent Carriages and Horses, the whole new, neat, and elegant. All Languages spoken. Ladies travelling alone will find here the greatest comfort and best attendance. The Hotel is under the patronage of King George I., the Emperor of Austria, and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburgh.

S. P. MAZZUCHY, Proprietor.

CREUZNACH.

HOLLAND HOTEL, kept by FOLTYSKI & WOOG.—This First-Class Hotel offers superior accommodation at very moderate charges to Families and Single Gentlemen. Is situated in the finest and healthiest part of the town; is surrounded by a beautiful garden. It is fitted up after the English and American style. Splendid large Dining Room, a newly fitted-up Conversation Saloon; very well and comfortably furnished Apartments (with many Balconies). Good airy Baths. Excellent Kitchen. Adjoining the Hotel is a Private Boarding House, the prices of which are very moderate. Pension in Winter.

CULOZ.

HOTEL FOLLIET.

Facing the Station, much recommended, and the most comfortable in Culoz; very convenient for stopping half way between Paris and Turin, with advantage of making all the journey by day.

N.B.—ASK FOR THE "HOTEL FOLLIET."

DUNDEE.

THE QUEEN'S HOTEL.

A First-Class Family and Commercial Hotel.

DIEPPE.

HÔTEL ROYAL,

Facing the Beach, close to the Bathing Establishment and the Parade.

IT IS ONE OF THE MOST PLEASANTLY SITUATED HOTELS IN DIEPPE, commanding a beautiful and extensive View of the Sea. Families and Gentlemen visiting Dieppe will find at this Establishment elegant Large and Small Apartments, and the best of accommodation, at very reasonable prices. Large Reading Room, with French and English Newspapers. The Refreshments, &c., are of the best quality. In fact, this Hotel fully bears out and deserves the favourable opinion expressed of it in Murray's and other Guide Books.

LAFOSSE AÎNÉ.—LARSONNEUX, Suocr., Proprietor.

Table d'Hôte and Private Dinners.

.* This Hotel is open all the Year.*

DIJON.

HOTEL DE LA CLOCHE.

Mr. GOISSET, PROPRIETOR.

QUITE near the Railway Station, at the entrance of the Town. First-Class House of old reputation. Enlarged in 1870. Apartments for Families. Carriages for drives. Table d'Hôte and Service in private. Reading Room. Smoking Room. English spoken. Exportation of Burgundy Wines.

EDMOND GOISSET.

D I J O N .

H Ô T E L D U J U R A .

MM. DAVID et MERCIER, Proprietors.

THIS Hotel is the nearest to the Railway Station, the Cathedral, and the Public Garden Saloons. Apartments and Rooms for Families. Table d'Hôte. Private Carriages for hire by the hour. English Newspapers. Omnibus to carry passengers to and from each train. English spoken. The greatest attention is paid to English visitors. Bureau de Change in the Hotel. Considerably enlarged and newly furnished, 1875. The best Burgundy Wines shipped at wholesale prices.

DINARD, ILLE ET VILAINE (Brittany).

GRAND HOTEL DU CASINO.

THIS First-Class Hotel is the nearest to the Casino and Bathing Establishment. Splendid View from the Terrace adjoining the Garden of the Hotel. Private Dining Saloons and Smoking Rooms. Table d'Hôte at 11 o'clock a.m. and 6 o'clock p.m. Terms from 12 to 15 francs per day. Excellent Cooking. Choice Wines. English Newspapers. Stabling.

L. BIARDOT, PROPRIETOR.

D R E S D E N .

V I C T O R I A H O T E L .

THIS First-rate Establishment, situated near the great public Promenade, and five minutes from the Central Station for Prague, Vienna, Berlin, Munich, Frankfort, combines comfort with elegance, and has the advantage of possessing a spacious and beautiful Garden.

TWO SUPERIOR TABLES D'HÔTE DAILY.

PRIVATE DINNERS AT ANY HOUR.

During the Winter, Board and Lodging at very moderate rates.

Mr. WEISS has an extensive Stock of the best Rhenish, Bordeaux, Burgundy, and Spanish Wines, and will be most happy to execute Orders at Wholesale Prices.

D R E S D E N.HÔTEL BELLEVUE.

Situated on the river Elbe, facing the new Opera, the Galleries, the Green Vaults, Cathedral, and Brühl's Terrace. Well-known First-Class Establishment, with 150 Rooms. Families desirous of taking Apartments for the Winter can make arrangements at very moderate prices.

LOUIS FEISTEL, Manager.

DÜSSELDORF.INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

FOR RHENISH PRUSSIA, WESTPHALIA,

And Neighbouring Districts in connection with a General German Art-Exhibition.

DÜSSELDORF, 1880.

LARGEST EXHIBITION IN GERMANY.

Duration of same from 9th of May until the End of September, 1880. In the vicinity of the Exhibition there are special Railway Stations of the Bergisch-Maerkisch, of the Koeln-Minden, and of the Rhenisch Railroad.

Information respecting Lodgings, and all particulars, gratuitously at the Office,

5, BAZARSTRASSE, DÜSSELDORF.

FALMOUTH.FALMOUTH HOTEL,

Surrounded by its own Grounds, close to the Railway Station, Bathing Beach, and Pendennis Castle.

GENERAL COFFEE ROOM.

LADIES' DRAWING ROOM.

FLORENCE.DR. BEGGI'S GALLERY OF ORIGINAL PAINTINGS

By the most eminent Masters of every School, and three Original Pen and Ink Drawings by RAPHAEL. Nine other larger Drawings by CORREGGIO, and Water-colour Drawings.

No. 15, VIA MAGGIO PALAZZO RIDOLFI (Ground Floor), FLORENCE.

FREE ADMISSION.

EGYPT.

ALEXANDRIA.

CAIRO.

HOTEL D'EUROPE.

This well-known Hotel, patronised by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, is situated on the GRAND PUBLIC SQUARE.

It is highly recommended to English and American Families.

Travellers arriving in ALEXANDRIA will find attentive

DRAGOMAN
and
Omnibus from the Hotel.

Pension:
12 Shillings per day.

GRAND NEW HOTEL.

Patronised by English and American Families.

This magnificent Hotel, with its splendid garden, has been improved by the Proprietor, who has spared no expense to make it the best and most comfortable in Egypt. It is situated opposite the Park and Opera House. Large and small Apartments, and elegant Bath Rooms to each Floor.

Table d'Hôte with attentive Waiters, speaking different Languages.

Special Saloons and Reading Rooms, with English and Foreign Newspapers.

Omnibus and Dragoman at the arrival of each Train.

Pension:
12 to 16 Shillings per day.

EDINBURGH.

WATERLOO HOTEL, Waterloo Place, Princes Street.

ROYAL BRITISH HOTEL (Family and Commercial),
22, Princes Street.

BALMORAL HOTEL, 91, Princes Street.

PALACE HOTEL, 109, Princes Street.

THESE FIRST-CLASS HOTELS, in the principal thoroughfare overlooking the PUBLIC GARDENS, and opposite the CASTLE, command the FINEST VIEWS OF EDINBURGH.

LUXURIOUSLY FURNISHED. CUISINE SUPERB.
PRICES MODERATE.

Continental Languages Spoken.

Patronised by the Royal Family and Nobility.

J. GRIEVE & J. FERGUSON, Proprietors and Managers.

FLORENCE.

PROFESSOR EMILIO COSTANTINI,
6, VIA DEL PODERE.

STUDIO OPEN FROM 10 TO 4 DAILY.

SPECIALITY WATER-COLOUR COPIES OF THE OLD MASTERS.

Facsimiles Guaranteed.

Highest Recommendations from English and Foreign Gentlemen.

FRANKFORT O. M.
GEORGE SCHEPELER,
ROSSMARKT 3,
IMPORTER OF HAVANA CIGARS.

FRANKFORT O. M.
MURRAY'S HANDBOOK
For NORTH GERMANY, the RHINE,
the BLACK FOREST, &c.
Post 8vo. 10s.
JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle Street.

FRANKFORT O. M.
Mr. C. LÖHR, Proprietor.
HOTEL ROMAN EMPEROR.

Well-known Family Hotel.

Table d'Hôte at One . . M 3
" " Five . . M 4 : 50
Breakfast M 1 : 30
Tea M 1 : 30
Bedroom from M 1 : 70 to 8 Mks.

FRANKFORT O. M.
P. A. TACCHI'S SUCCESSORS,
ZEIL, No. 44.
BOHEMIAN FANCY GLASS AND CRYSTAL WAREHOUSE.

Chandeliers for Gas and Candles in Glass and Brass.

Correspondent in England, Mr. LOUIS HENLÉ, 3, Budge Row, Cannon St., London, E.C.

FREIBURG IN BADEN.
HOTEL VICTORIA.

THIS new and comfortable House is in the most beautiful situation and healthiest part of the Town, near the Railway Station. Opposite the Post and Telegraph Offices. Recommended for its excellent Cooking, good attendance, and Moderate Charges.

GENEVA.

A. GOLAY, LERESCHE & SONS,

31, QUAI DES BERGUES,

(Established in 1837.)

MANUFACTURERS OF

WATCHES, JEWELRY, CLOCKS, &c.

Largest Stock in Geneva.

ORDERS PER POST PUNCTUALLY ATTENDED TO.

Paris House, No. 2, RUE DE LA PAIX.

GENEVA.

HOTEL DE L'ECU.

PATRONISED BY ENGLISH FAMILIES.

BEAUTIFUL situation on the Lake. Excellent Kitchen and Cellar. Rooms from 2 francs. Pension in Winter. Baths in the Hotel.

HAAKE BROS., Proprietors.

GENEVA.

HÔTEL DE LA COURONNE.

Vve. F. BAUR, PROPRIETOR.

THIS ESTABLISHMENT of the first rank, situated in front of the "Pont du Mont-Blanc," enjoys a most extensive view of Lac Léman and Mont Blanc. Good Cuisine and Cellar. English and American Newspapers.

Most moderate Prices. Omnibus waiting at all the Trains.

GENOA.

GRAND HOTEL DE GÊNES.

Messrs. L. BONERA AND BROTHERS.

PLACE CARLO FELICE, the most beautiful situation in the City.
 (FULL SOUTH.)

This Hotel, formerly the Palazzo Marchese Spinola, was newly opened and entirely re-furnished about two years ago. Its situation, opposite the celebrated Theatre Carlo Felice, on the Piazza de Ferrari, the healthiest part of the town, in the vicinity of the English Church, the Telegraph, the Post Office, the principal Public Buildings, and near all the curiosities in the town; free from the noise of the Railway and the Harbour. Large and small Apartments. Table d'Hôte. Restaurant. Reading and Smoking Saloon. Bath Rooms. Omnibus from the Hotel meets every Train. Moderate Charges.

GLENGARRIFF.

IS strongly recommended by Eminent Physicians for its equable, mild, but not relaxing climate. The Excursions by land and water are numerous; amongst others, the celebrated drive to the LAKE OF KILLARNEY, thus described by Lord JOHN MANNERS:—

"The twenty miles from Kenmare to Glengarriff form the grandest road, barring the Alpine passes, that I know."

The celebrated THACKERAY writes:—"What sends picturesque tourists to the Rhine and Saxon Switzerland? Within five miles of the pretty Inn of Glengarriff, there is a country of the magnificence of which no pen can give an idea. The journey from Glengarriff to Kenmare is one of astonishing beauty; and I have seen Killarney since, and am sure that Glengarriff loses nothing by comparison with this most famous of lakes."

From HAPPY THOUGHT NOTES,—Punch. "Glengarriff.—Eccles Hotel. Charmingly situated. Facing the Bay, and on the road. Old-fashioned, covered with cressers and roses, and Bed Rooms commanding the Bay. Eccles Hotel, Glengarriff, is worth far more than a passing visit. I am delighted with it. It is, as far as attendance and cuisine and general comfort, the best Hotel I've been in. The Coffee Room seems to have been fitted up to the very latest fashion of taste; the climate is so mild, that even at nine o'clock on an early spring evening you can sit out in front of the Hotel, and enjoy your coffee and cigar. Only hire your car from Killarney to Glengarriff. You can get another at your own convenience, and just as good at Glengarriff, to take you on."

MURRAY'S HANDBOOK FOR IRELAND describes this Hostelry as one of the best of the South of Ireland Hotels. Over Twenty Thousand Pounds have recently been expended on and its extensive Pleasure Grounds, through which are five miles of beautiful walks and drives. A new Esplanade has recently been constructed.

THE ECCLES HOTEL

The Hotel is replete with indoor comforts, Library, Picture Gallery, &c. The Telegraph Office, Marina, and Pier adjoin the Hotel. Sea-Bathing, Boating, Fishing, Shooting, &c. Reduced Tariff during the Winter Months. Terms and Testimonials from Eminent Physicians can be obtained from MRS. ECCLES, Glengarriff, County Cork.

G R E N O B L E .

HOTEL MONNET.

THIS splendidly-situated First-Class Hotel, which is the largest in the Town, and enjoys the well-merited favour of Families and Tourists, has been enlarged and Newly Furnished. The Apartments, large and small, combine elegance and comfort, and every attention has been paid to make this one of the best Provincial Hotels. Public and Private Drawing-rooms; English and French Papers. Table d'Hôte at 11 and 6. Private Dinners at any hour. Excellent Cuisine. Moderate Charges.

The Omnibuses of the Hotel meet all Trains.

L. TRILLAT, Proprietor.

First-Class Carriages can be had at the Hotel for Excursions to the Grande Chartreuse, Uriage, and all places of interest amongst the Alps of Dauphiné.

U R I A G E - L E S - B A I N S .

HOTEL RESTAURANT, MONNET.

Founded in 1846. English Visitors will find every comfort and luxury in this First-Class Establishment. Private Rooms for Families. Excellent Cuisine and Wines. Table d'Hôte, 11 and 6. Carriages and Horses can be had in the Hotel for Excursions and Promenades.

GENEVA MUSICAL BOXES.

By Special Appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES. PRIZE MEDALS, PARIS, 1867 & 1878; PHILADELPHIA, 1876.

Wholesale—Retail—Export.

B. A. BRÉMOND, Place des Alpes, Geneva.

GOLDEN LYRE HOUSE—OPPOSITE THE BRUNSWICK MONUMENT.

H A M B U R G .

HOTEL ST. PETERSBURG.

THIS First-Class Hotel, facing the Alster Lake, is most advantageously situated on the Jungfernstieg. Elegantly Furnished Apartments. Every modern requisite. English and French Newspapers. Charges strictly Moderate.

G. REUTER, Proprietor.

H A N O V E R .

HOTEL ROYAL.

(FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.)

SITUATED in the best part of the City, and opposite the General Railway Station. Large and small Apartments and Single Bed-rooms for Gentlemen. Every comfort. Baths in the Hotel. MODERATE CHARGES.

CHRIST BROS., Proprietors.

UNION HOTEL, HANOVER.

THIS WELL-KNOWN FIRST-CLASS HOTEL for Private Families and Single Gentlemen, is beautifully situated right opposite the Railway Station.

PENSION, FIVE MARKS, and upwards.

FRIEDRICH VÖLKERS, Proprietor.

Also of the Grand Hotel des Bains at Pyrmont.

HEIDELBERG. — Hotel Prince Charles.

CONVENIENTLY enlarged by a New Building contains a splendid Dining Room, Breakfast Room, and a fine Reading Room. Ten Balconies. This Hotel, patronised by their Highnesses the Prince of Wales and Prince Alfred, is the largest in the Town, and thoroughly Renovated and Newly Furnished. Best Cookery. Good Wines. Charges Reasonable. Moderate Arrangements made by the Week. The Hotel is situated in an open square, eight minutes' walk from the celebrated Castle, with the finest view of the ruins from all the balconies and nearly all the windows; two minutes' walk to the Neckar Bridge. Close to the Nurnberg and Wurzburg Railway Station. Omnibus and Hotel Porter meet the Train. Mr. Sommer exports Wine to England. Mr. Ellmer was for many years the Manager of the Hotel Beau au Lac, at Zurich.

* * * Halfway Tickets can be obtained at the Bureau of the Hotel, and Luggage booked to all Stations.

SOMMER & ELLMER, Proprietors.

HEIDELBERG.HOTEL SCHRIEDER.

THIS old-established and excellent Hotel is the sixth from the Railway Station, and has been lately re-arranged in a most comfortable manner. It is situated in a large garden, and commands a splendid view of the Castle. The Cuisine, Cellar, and Service are excellent.

Charges Moderate.

Table d'Hôte at 1 and 5 o'clock.

Restaurant à la Carte.

BACK & WELSCH.

HEIDELBERG.GRAND HOTEL.

THIS First-rate Hotel is quite new, and has been superbly decorated; it affords every modern comfort and convenience, and has the advantage of being situated in a garden. From it may be obtained a beautiful view of the Castle; it is close to the Railway Station, and opposite the Hotel Schrieder. It contains large and small Apartments, very suitable for Families making a long stay.

Moderate Prices.

Table d'Hôte at 1 and 5 o'clock.

BACK & WELSCH.

HAVRE.

GRAND HOTEL DE NORMANDIE.

RUE DE PARIS.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, exceedingly well situated in the centre of the Town. Apartments for Families. Music and Conversation Saloons. "Table d'Hôte." Restaurant à la Carte. English and German spoken.

M. DESCLOS, Proprietor.

HAVRE.

GRAND HOTEL ET BAINS FRASCATI.First-Class Establishment.

Entirely Re-built in 1871. The only Hotel in Havre situated on the banks of the Sea.

Mr. J. DESCLEVES, Manager.

Moderate Charges.Open all the Year.

HEIDELBERG.

HOTEL EUROPE.

THE finest and best situated Hotel in Heidelberg; kept in very superior and elegant style of a First-class Family Hotel. The beautiful extensive Gardens are for the exclusive use of the Visitors. Hot and Cold Baths fitted up in a superior manner in the Hotel. Omnibus at the Station. Terms strictly moderate. Railway Tickets are issued in the Hotel.

HAEFELI-GUJER, Proprietor.

HEIDELBERG.

Hotel de Darmstadt.

Four minutes from the Station, on Bismarck Square, and close by the new Neckar Bridge. Known as a good House. Very Moderate Prices.

DEESIDE

Hydropathic Establishment.

HEATHCOT, NEAR ABERDEEN.

Terms, £2 10s. per Week; for Two in One Room, £2 each.

Apply to DR. STEWART, Medical Superintendent.

HOMBURG.

HOTEL DES QUATRE SAISONS AND VILLA, with the finest view of the Taunus.

Kept by Mr. W. SCHLOTTERBECK.

This first-rate House is exceedingly well-situated near the Sources and the Kursaal. It combines every comfort desirable, with moderate charges. Lately newly restored and embellished by a large building with an additional new Dining-room, and a large Reading and Smoking room. Beautiful Garden for the use of Visitors. Bath in the Hotel. Grounds for Hare and Partridge Shooting at the full disposal of the Visitors. The Proprietor deals extensively in Wines. Arrangements made at the early and later part of the Season at moderate charges.

INNSBRUCK

HOTEL DU TYROL.—First-Class Hotel, in a beautiful position near the Station, with magnificent Views of the Valley of the Inn and the Mountains. Comfortable Apartments, Reading, Smoking, and Bath Rooms, with every modern convenience. From the top of the Hotel a fine bird's-eye view of the Town and Valleys.

CARL LANDSEE, former Director of Hotel du Parc, Lugano.

HOMBURG.

HOTEL BELLE VUE.—First-Class Hotel, exceedingly well situated, opposite the Park of the Kuraaal, and close to the Springs. Families, and Single Gentlemen, will find this Hotel one of the most comfortable, combining excellent accommodation with cleanliness and moderate Charges. Best French and English Cooking. Excellent Wines. Hare and Partridge Shooting free.

H. ELLENBERGER, Proprietor.

HOMBURG.

ROYAL VICTORIA HOTEL.—First-rate for Families and single Gentlemen, close to the Springs and the Kuraaal, one of the finest and best situated Hotels in the town. Newly enlarged (115 Rooms, 14 Balconies, some overlooking the fine Tauern Mountains). Patronised by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and several other Royal personages. The Proprietor, who has been for years in first-class hotels in London, offers Visitors the advantages of good and comfortable accommodation. Airy and quiet Apartments. Splendid covered Verandah, and fine garden. At the early and late part of the Season arrangements are made on very reasonable terms. English spoken. Best French and English cooking. Excellent Wines. Best Stag Shooting, Roebuck Shooting, Hare and Partridge Shooting, as well as good Trout Fishing, free for the guests of the Hotel. Moderate Charges. GUSTAVE WEIGAND, Proprietor.

HYÈRES.

GRAND HOTEL DES ILES D'OR.

THIS SPLENDID FIRST-CLASS HOTEL is the largest in the Town; charmingly situated, and surrounded by a most beautiful Garden. The Cuisine is intrusted to one of the first Cooks from Paris, and the cellar contains the best of Wines. Dining-Room for 200 persons. Drawing-Room facing the south, and decorated by pictures of a celebrated painter. Smoking-Room, Billiards, Baths. Boarding from 10 francs per day. Omnibus meets every Train.

E. WEBER, Proprietor.

BERNESE OBERLAND. INTERLAKEN. SWITZERLAND.

INTERNATIONAL RENDEZVOUS OF TOURISTS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

MOST CELEBRATED CLIMATERIC HEALTH RESORT.

ALTITUDE 1800 FEET ABOVE SEA.

CENTRAL STATION and Starting Point for all Excursions to the grand region of the ALPS and Glaciers of the world-famed BERNESE OBERLAND. Beautiful change of scenery according to each season. Splendid floral period in the Spring season—from April to June. In the Summer season—from July to August—the temperature is always moderate, owing to the refreshing breezes from both lakes; whilst in the lovely Autumn season—from September to October—the air is the purest, the temperature warm, and the vegetation in its full growth. Whey and Grape Cure. Magnificent alleys of chestnut trees, and shady walks. Park-maze in the Rugen Pine Woods. Numerous Hotels, from the luxurious grand hotel to the nice wooden Chalet; Private Apartments to all requirements. Special Protestant, English, Scotch Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic Churches. The KURSAAL (Park Garden) is the centre of reunion of all visitors, and contains Dancing, Concert, and Reading Rooms, with a well-selected Library. Choicest selections played daily by the superior Cur-orchestra. The Prices in the Hotels and Boarding-Houses are not higher, but rather lower, than in most other frequented places. The annual average of visitors is upwards of 100,000.

					Rooms.	Proprietor.
Victoria	G ^d . Hôtel	..	1st Class 230	ED. RUCHTI.
Ritschard	"	"	235	FAMILIE RITSCHARD.
Jungfrau	"	"	150	F. SEILER-STURCHI.
Des Alpes	"	"	180	JB. MAURER.
Rugenhôtel Jungfraublick				"	100	J. OESCH-MÜLLER.
Beau-Rivage	G ^d . Hôtel	..	100	H. REGLI.
Schweizerhof	Hôtel and Pension	"	80	STRÜBIN & WIRTH.
Belvedere	"	"	70	M. MÜLLER-STÄHLI.
Interlaken	"	"	2nd Class 80	A. BRAUN.
Deutscherhof	"	"	70	J. BORTER-RUBIN.
Ober-Béha	"	"	60	WWE. OBER-BÉHA.
Du Nord	"	"	50	DL. VOGEL.
Wyder	"	"	60	H. WYDER.
Beau-Site	"	"	80	ALB. RUCHTI.
Oberland	"	"	50	WAGNER.
Du Pont	"	"	50	BRUNNER-TSCHANZ.
Bellevue	"	"	40	ELMER.
Adler	"	"	20	KERNEN.
De la Gare	"	"	30	E. HALLER.
Kreuz	Hôtel	..	25	F. BOHREN-STRÜBIN.
Rössli	Hôtel and Pension	3rd Class	20	F. STERCHI.
Volz	Pension	..	24	DR. VOLZ.
Reber	"	..	20	GUTZCHEBAUCH.
Berger	Hôtel and Pension	2nd Class	15	BERGER.
Pension Anglaise	"	..	20	E. SIMPKIN.
Krebs	Hôtel and Pension	2nd Class	15	KREBS-BORTER.
Indermühle	Brasserie-Restaurant,	1st Class Establishment.

Provence — HYÈRES — Ville.

HOTEL DES ETRANGERS.

SITUATED full south, shaded from the west winds; very comfortable. Excellent Wines included in charges of the House. Very much frequented. Omnibus at Hyères Station (town).

BERTHET, Proprietor.

ILFRACOMBE.

ROYAL CLARENCE

FAMILY & COMMERCIAL HOTEL.

RELETE with every Home Comfort. Spacious Ladies' Coffee Room. Moderate Charges. R. LAKE, Proprietor.

Large and Spacious Commercial and Stock Rooms have been recently added.

FIRST-CLASS BILLIARD ROOM. GOOD POST HORSES.

Omnibus meets every Train.

General Coach Office and Delivery Agent.

Coaches Daily to Lynton.

ILFRACOMBE.

THE ILFRACOMBE HOTEL is on the Sea-shore, in its own picturesque grounds of five acres. It contains 250 Rooms, and is fitted with every sanitary improvement which science could suggest. Charges fixed and moderate. Table d'Hôte Daily. Every information of the Manager. Tourist Tickets to Ilfracombe for Two Months are issued at all principal Railway Stations in England.

KILLARNEY.

LAKES OF KILLARNEY.

By Her Most Gracious Majesty's Special Permission.

THE ROYAL VICTORIA HOTEL,

Patronized by H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES; by H.R.H. PRINCE ARTHUR, and by the Royal Families of France and Belgium, &c.

THIS HOTEL is situated on the Lower Lake, close to the water's edge, within ten minutes' drive of the Railway Station, and a short distance from the far-famed Gap of Dunloe. It is lighted with gas made on the premises; and is the Largest Hotel in the district. A magnificent Coffee-room, a public Drawing-room for Ladies and Families, Billiard and Smoking-rooms, and several suites of Private Apartments facing the Lake, have been recently added.

TABLE D'HÔTE DURING THE SEASON.

Cars, Carriages, Boats, Ponies, and Guides at fixed moderate charges.

Drivers, Boatmen, and Guides are paid by the Proprietor, and are not allowed to solicit gratuities. The HOTEL OMNIBUS and Porters attend the Trains.

THERE IS A POSTAL TELEGRAPH OFFICE IN THE HOUSE.

Boarding Terms from November to May, inclusive.

It is necessary to inform Tourists that the Railway Company, Proprietors of the Railway Hotel in the Town, send upon the platform, as Touters for their Hotel, the Porters, Car-drivers, Boatmen, and Guides in their employment, and exclude the servants of the Hotels on the Lake, who will, however, be found in waiting at the Station-door.

JOHN O'LEARY, Proprietor.

INNSBRUCK.

HÔTEL DE L'EUROPE.

Kept by Mr. J. REINHART.—A new and well-furnished Hotel, conveniently situated just facing the splendid valley of the Inn, opposite the Railway Station. Excellent Table d'Hôte and private Dinners. Arrangements made at very reasonable prices. Well-furnished Apartments. English Newspapers taken in. Splendid situation, commanding a fine View of the Mountains. English spoken.

LAUSANNE.

Hotel et Pension du Faucon.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE.

English Comforts. Prices Moderate.

A. BAACH, Proprietor.

LEAMINGTON.

Hydropathic Establishment,
FOR VISITORS AND PATIENTS.

Close to Warwick and Kenilworth Castles, Stratford-on-Avon, Coventry, and other places of interest.

Dr. OWENS, Physician and Proprietor.

LISBON.

BRAGANZA HOTEL.

THIS First-Class well-known Family Hotel, lately renovated by the Royal House of Braganza, and fitted up by the new Proprietor, VICTOR C. SASSETTI, highly recommendable for its large, airy, and comfortable Apartments commanding the most extensive and picturesque views of the River Tagus, as well as of Lisbon. Superior Cuisine, and carefully-selected Wines. Under the same Management, within 2½ hours' drive, VICTOR'S HOTEL, CINTRA.

LUCERNE.

SWAN HOTEL.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE, specially for English and American Families, fitted up with all modern improvements. The main building, reconstructed in 1878 in a pure Renaissance Style, commands undoubtedly the finest view of the Lake and Mountains from its number of new Balconies.

Mr. HÆFELI, Proprietor and Manager, is most anxious to please.LAUSANNE-OUCHY.*GRAND HÔTEL BEAU RIVAGE (OUCHY).*DIRECTOR, A. MARTIN-RUFENACHT.

THIS splendid Establishment, constructed on a grand scale, is situated on one of the most beautiful spots on the shores of the Lake of Geneva, surrounded by an English Park and Garden. It is near the Steamboat Landing and the English Church.

PENSION IN WINTER FROM 5 FRs. PER DAY.Board, Lodging, and Service included.

Constant communication with the City and Railway Station by Omnibus.

Baths, Telegraph, and Post Office in the Hotel.

L O N D O N.

HEAL AND SON'S
ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, WITH PRICES OF BEDSTEADS, BEDDING,
AND BEDROOM FURNITURE.

SENT FREE BY POST TO ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

ON APPLICATION TO

195, 196, 197, & 198, TOTTENHAM COURT ROAD,
L O N D O N, W.

N.B.—150 Bedsteads, fitted with every description of Bedding, and 60 Suites of Bedroom Furniture, in addition to their general Stock, are fixed ready for inspection in Six Galleries and Two large Ground-floor Warerooms; the whole forming the most complete Stock of Bedroom Furniture in the kingdom.

LONDON.

THE GRAND HOTEL,

TRAFALGAR SQUARE.

This Magnificent Hotel occupies the Finest Site in the CENTRE OF THE METROPOLIS,

And combines the Elegance and Luxury of the most important and attractive Hotels in Europe and America, with the Repose and Domestic Comfort which are essentially English.

THE HOTEL stands on the site of the former Northumberland House, and commands the entire view of Trafalgar Square. It is but a short WALKING DISTANCE from the PRINCIPAL PUBLIC BUILDINGS, Fine Art and other Galleries, Theatres, and Places of Amusement; and is in the midst of the means of Conveyance to all parts of London and the Suburbs.

THE GROUND FLOOR is occupied by the Grand Salle à Manger, and spacious Secondary Dining and Reception Rooms.

ON THE FIRST FLOOR are the Ladies' Drawing Rooms, Library, and various Suites of Apartments, comprising all the convenience of Family Residences. The upper Storeys contain between 200 and 300 Rooms, either en suite or in separate Apartments.

For Particulars apply to

THE MANAGER, GRAND HOTEL, TRAFALGAR SQUARE,
LONDON.

One of the Sights and one of the Comforts of London.

THE HOLBORN RESTAURANT,

218, HIGH HOLBORN.

THE FAMOUS TABLE D'HÔTE DINNER, served at separate Tables, accompanied with Selection of High-class Music by complete Orchestra.

5.30 to 6.30 every Evening. 3s. 6d.

LONDON.

THE LONDON AND WESTMINSTER BANK, Limited, issues Circular Notes of £10, £25, and £50 each, for the use of Travellers, payable in the principal Towns on the Continent of Europe, also in Asia, Africa, and North and South America. No expense whatever is incurred, and when cashed no charge is made for commission. Letters of Credit are also granted on the same places. They may be obtained at the City Office in Lothbury, or at any of the Branches, viz.:—

Westminster Branch . 1, St. James's Square.
 Bloomsbury " . 214, High Holborn.
 Southwark " . 6, High St., Borough.
 Eastern . " . 130, High St., White-chapel.

May, 1880.

Marylebone Branch . 4, Stratford Place.
 Oxford Street
 Temple Bar " . 217, Strand.
 Lambeth " . 89 & 91, Westminster Bridge Road.

GOLD MEDAL PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878.

(Twelfth International Medal awarded.)

FRY'S COCOA

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA in packets and tins, specially recommended by the Manufacturers, is prepared from the celebrated Cocoa of Caracas, combined with other choice descriptions.

"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

FRY'S COCOA

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA—"Which really consists of Cocoa Nibs deprived of superfluous oil, than which, if properly prepared, there is no nicer or more wholesome preparation of Cocoa."—Food, Water, and Air, Dr. HASSALL.

J. S. FRY & SONS, BRISTOL AND LONDON.

LONDON. TOURISTS AND TRAVELLERS.

Ladies visiting the Seaside, Rinking, Driving, or otherwise exposed to the scorching rays of the Sun, or heated particles of dust, will find

ROWLAND'S KALYDOR

Most cooling and refreshing to the face, hands, and arms; it eradicates all Sunburn, Freckles, Tan, Stings of Insects, &c.

Sizes, 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per Bottle.

ROWLAND'S ODONTO

Whitens the Teeth, prevents and arrests decay. 2s. 8d. per Box.

Ask any Chemist, Perfumer, or Hairdresser, for ROWLAND'S ARTICLES.

SCIENTIFIC PRESENTS.

In the STUDENT'S ELEMENTS OF GEOLOGY, by Lyell (1874), he says:—"As it is impossible to enable the reader to recognise rocks and minerals at sight by aid of verbal descriptions or figures, he will do well to obtain a well-arranged collection of specimens, such as may be procured from Mr. TENNANT (149 Strand), Teacher of Mineralogy at King's College, London." These Collections are supplied on the following terms, in plain Mahogany Cabinets:—

100 Specimens, in Cabinet, with 3 Trays	£ 2	2	0
200 Specimens, in Cabinet, with 5 Trays	5	5	0
300 Specimens, in Cabinet, with 9 Drawers	10	10	0
400 Specimens, in Cabinet, with 13 Drawers	21	0	0

More extensive Collections at 50 to 5000 Guineas each.

Mr. TENNANT gives Practical Instruction in Geology and Mineralogy at 149, Strand, W.C.

PROFESSOR TENNANT, F.G.S., &c.,

Having been engaged as a practical Mineralogist and Geologist during upwards of half a century, is about to retire from the active business of his profession. With this view he takes the liberty of inviting attention to his extensive Collections of Minerals and Fossils, which he is now in a position to offer at greatly reduced prices. The Specimens are arranged in Sets, adapted to the young Amateur as well as to the more advanced student; and it is thought that many persons might feel disposed to take advantage of the present opportunity, which is not likely to occur again, especially with respect to the large and unique Collections, which are equally well adapted to the Gallery of the Nobleman or Gentleman, the Museums of our Public Schools, or the Colleges of our Colonies.

149, STRAND, W.C., April 1880.

LONDON.
THE
COMMERCIAL BANK OF ALEXANDRIA, LIMITED.

CAPITAL, £480,000, in Shares of £6 each.

Paid-up £3 per Share, say £240,000.

RESERVE FUND, £25,000.

Directors.

THOMAS S. RICHARDSON, Esq., Chairman.

JOHN MICHAEL AGELASTO, Esq.

GIOVANNI ANTONIADIS, Esq.

JACOB BRIGHT, Esq., M.P.

JOHN CONSTANTINE CHOREMI, Esq.

JOSEPH MELLOR, Esq.

ANTONIO NICOLOPULO, Esq.

THEODORE MICHEL RALLI, Esq.

CONSTANTINE MICHEL SALVAGO, Esq.

CONSTANTINE GEORGIO ZERVUDACHI, Esq.

Auditors—W. W. DELOITTE, Esq., and JOHN ELIN, Esq.

HEAD OFFICE—2, MOORGATE STREET, LONDON, E.C.

JOHN COW, Manager.

JOHN RECORD, Secretary.

ALEXANDRIA OFFICE—RUE CHERIF PACHA.

BASIL GEORGALA, Manager.

DUKE BAKER, Sub-Manager.

Bankers.

BANK OF ENGLAND. LONDON AND COUNTY BANK.

Letters of Credit granted on Alexandria, and payments made in Cairo and Suez.

Bills for collection encashed in any part of Egypt, and the purchase and sale of Egyptian and all kinds of Securities undertaken.

Interest allowed at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on money deposited for not less than twelve months.

FOREIGN BOOKS AT FOREIGN PRICES.

TRAVELLERS may save expense and trouble by purchasing Foreign Books in England at the same Prices at which they are published in Germany or France.

WILLIAMS & NORGATE

have published the following CATALOGUES of their Stock :—

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. CLASSICAL CATALOGUE. | 11. NATURAL SCIENCE CATALOGUE. Mathematics, Astronomy, Physics, Chemistry, Technology. |
| 2. THEOLOGICAL CATALOGUE. | 12. MEDICAL CATALOGUE. Medicine, Surgery, and the Dependent Sciences. |
| 3. FRENCH CATALOGUE. | 13. SCHOOL CATALOGUE. Elementary Books, Maps, &c. |
| 4. GERMAN CATALOGUE. | 14. FOREIGN BOOK CIRCULARS. New Books, and New Purchases. |
| 5. EUROPEAN LINGUISTIC CATALOGUE. | 15. SCIENTIFIC-BOOK CIRCULARS. New Books and Recent Purchases. |
| 6. ORIENTAL CATALOGUE. | |
| 7. ITALIAN CATALOGUE. | |
| 8. SPANISH CATALOGUE. | |
| 9. ART-CATALOGUE. Art, Architecture, Painting, Illustrated Books. | |
| 10. NATURAL HISTORY CATALOGUE. Zoology, Botany, Geology, Chemistry, Mathematics, &c. | |

ANY CATALOGUE SENT POST-FREE FOR ONE STAMP.

WILLIAMS & NORGATE, Importers of Foreign Books,
14, HENRIETTA STREET, COVENT GARDEN, LONDON, and 20, SOUTH FREDERICK STREET, EDINBURGH.

LONDON.

EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE.

Product of a special refining process, it is Chocolate devoided of its overrichness and substantiality. Sugarless, and, when made, of the consistence of Coffee, it is essentially an Afternoon Chocolate. Sold only in packets, labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London.

TO CONTINENTAL TRAVELLERS.

DORRELL AND SON'S PASSPORT AGENCY,
15, CHARING CROSS, S.W.

A PASSPORT is a ready means of identification, and although it may not be asked for in some countries, in others it is absolutely necessary, and the want of it may cause great inconvenience.

BRITISH SUBJECTS visiting the Continent will save trouble and expense by obtaining their Passports through the above Agency. No personal attendance is required, and country residents may have their Passports forwarded through the post. A Form of Application forwarded by Post. Passports Mounted and enclosed in Cases with the name of the bearer impressed in gold on the outside; thus affording security against injury or loss, and preventing delay in the frequent examination of the Passport when travelling.

Fee, Obtaining Passport, 1s. 6d.; Visas, 1s. each. Cases, 1s. 6d. to 5s. each.

BENHAM AND SONS,

Nos. 50, 52, 54, WIGMORE STREET.

MARBLE AND CARVED WOOD CHIMNEY-PIECES,

In the Cinque-Cento, Louis XVI., "Queen Anne," "Adam," and other styles.

STOVES of every description, to correspond with the above, including many specially designed and modelled by the late Alfred Stevens.

CHINA TILE PANELS FOR FIREPLACES,

Also to correspond with the above, from Special Private Designs.

COOKING APPARATUS & HEATING APPARATUS.

ENGINEERING IN ALL BRANCHES,

For large or small Establishments.

LONDON.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.

The Medical Profession for over Forty Years have approved of this pure Solution as the best remedy for

ACIDITY of the STOMACH, HEARTBURN, HEADACHE, GOUT, and INDIGESTION.

And as the safest Aperient for Delicate Constitutions, Ladies, Children, and Infants.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.

LUCERNE.

Englischer Hof.—Hotel d'Angleterre.

PROPRIETOR—JEAN REBER.

THIS First-rate Establishment, very well recommended by the best class of Travellers, is situated close to the Steamers' Landing-place, and vis-à-vis the Railway Stations, on the loveliest position of the Lake, with superb views of the Rigi, Pilatus, Alps, and Glaciers; contains several Saloons, 62 comfortable Rooms, Smoking and Reading Rooms, where are French and English Newspapers. Omnibus at the Station.

MODERATE PRICES.

LUCERNE.

GRAND HOTEL NATIONAL.

SEGESSER BROTHERS and C^{IE}., Proprietors.

THIS large and splendid HOTEL is one of the most comfortable in Europe. Situated in front of the Lake, with the finest Views. Every attention paid to Tourists.

A LIFT FOR THE USE OF VISITORS.

LUCHON (BAGNÈRES DE) PYRÉNÉES.

Hotel Bonnemaison et de Londres,
Opposite the Springs.

First-Class Hotel. Recommended to Families.

HTE. VIDAL Fils, Proprietor.

LYNTON (NORTH DEVON).

THE VALLEY OF ROCKS HOTEL.

THIS favourite and beautifully situate First-Class Hotel is built on one of the finest sites in the neighbourhood, and largely patronised by the best Families. It has been considerably enlarged, remodelled, and improved; and combines, with Moderate Charges, all necessary means for the accommodation and comfort of Families and Tourists. The splendid Table d'Hôte and Coffee Room, Reading Rooms, Ladies' Drawing Room, and several Private Sitting Rooms, replete with every comfort, range in a long front, overlooking the Sea, and looking into the extensive Private Grounds of the Hotel. It is most conveniently situate as a centre for visiting all the places of interest in the district. Handsomely-fitted Billiard Room open during the Season for Residents in the Hotel only.

Post-Horses and Carriages; also the very best kind of Modern Stabling.

JOHN CROOK, PROPRIETOR.

LUCERNE.

SCHWEIZERHOF. LUZERNERHOF.

First-Class Hotels.

HAUSER BROTHERS, PROPRIETORS.

BEST SITUATION ON THE QUAY.

With splendid View of the Celebrated Panorama of the LAKE AND MOUNTAINS.

LYONS.

HOTEL DE L'UNIVERS.

OPPOSITE THE STATION. . FULL SOUTH.

The Landlady and her Sons speak English.

MALAGA.

HÔTEL DE LA ALAMEDA.

BRUNETTI FRÈRES, Proprietors.

SAME PROPRIETORS—

HÔTEL WASHINGTON IRVING, ALHAMBRA, GRANADA.

FIRST-CLASS HOTELS. APARTMENTS FOR FAMILIES.
Moderate Prices.

MENTONE.

ISNARD'S

HOTEL DE BELLE VUE.

THIS well-known ESTABLISHMENT is beautifully situated in the best quarter of the Town, with a vast Garden, and affords every English comfort.

MARIENBAD (BOHEMIA). HOTEL KLINGER.

Proprietor, J. D. HALBMAYR.

FIRST and LARGEST HOTEL in this Watering Place. Preferred on account of its charming situation at the corner of the Promenade and Park, and has a beautiful View. Newly and elegantly furnished with every comfort and in noble style, containing, with the dependance, 270 Rooms, Saloons, &c. English spoken in the Hotel.

Carriages in the Hotel. Omnibus to the Railway Station.

MARSEILLES.

GRAND HOTEL NOAILLES.

24 RUE NOAILLES (Cannebiere Prolongée).

THE largest and most important of the great Hotels of Marseilles. The only one in the Rue Noailles with a Garden having Dining Rooms in it. An Hydraulic Lift serving every Floor. Omnibus and Carriages enter the Hotel, and are found at all Trains.

The prices of the Hotel are placed in every Room.

MAYENCE.

HÔTEL DE HOLLANDE.

KLEEBLATT & STOECKICHT, Proprietors.

(Formerly FERD. BUDINGEN.)

THIS First-class well-known Hotel, much frequented by English Families and Tourists, has been greatly enlarged and improved, and contains now 140 Rooms and Saloons. Cold, Warm, and Shower Baths. English comfort. This Hotel is situated on the River, opposite to the Landing-place of the Rhine Steamers, and near the Railway Station, and affords from its Balconies and Windows splendid views of the Rhine and Taunus Mountains. This Hotel is reputed for its excellent cooking, exquisite Wines, cleanliness, and good Attendance. English Newspapers.

Choice Rhine and Moselle Wines, wholesale and for exportation.

MENTONE.

HOTEL AND PENSION DU MIDI.

Situated Promenade du Midi, commanding a splendid view of the Sea.

Pension from 8 francs per day.

BIGNON, Proprietor.

MAYENCE. HOTEL DU RHIN.

Proprietor, W. SCHIMMEL.

THIS well-known First-Class Hotel, by the present Proprietor greatly enlarged and improved, with 150 Rooms and Saloons. Drawing, Reading, Smoking Room, and Garden. Cold, Warm, and Shower Baths in the Hotel. The Hotel is near the landing-place of the Rhine Steamers, and near the Railway Station. The Rooms are all furnished with English comfort, and those in the front afford a splendid view on the Rhine and the Taunus Mountains. Moderate and fixed prices in every room. Bougies and service not charged.

The Hotel has a great reputation for its good Kitchen and excellent Wines.

MENTONE. HOTEL WESTMINSTER. FIRST-CLASS ESTABLISHMENT.

BUILT and furnished with taste and according to the latest improvements. In a Southern aspect overlooking the Sea, and a beautiful Garden giving access to the public "Promenade du Midi." Large Public Saloon. Billiard and Smoking Rooms.

ENGLISH AND SEVERAL FOREIGN LANGUAGES SPOKEN.
OMNIBUS TO AND FROM THE RAILWAY STATION.

MENTONE. (Alpes Maritimes.)

HOTEL DES ANGLAIS.

THIS well-known Establishment has been newly improved, and combines every modern comfort with moderate and fixed prices. It is always conducted under the Superintendence of the Proprietors,

Messrs. CLERICY BROTHERS.

MILAN. HOTEL DE LA GRANDE BRETAGNE. E REICHMANN.

Proprietor, J. LEGNANI.

THE House is situated in the centre of the Town, near the Cathedral and all other Places of Interest. Good Table d'Hôte. The Times, &c. Several Languages spoken. The House is only two Storeys high. Five minutes' walk from the English Church.

Omnibus at the Station to meet all Trains.

MILAN.

GRAND HOTEL DE MILAN.

200 Rooms and Saloons, with every comfort and requirements of the present day.

Pension in the Winter Months.

*. THE ONLY HOUSE AT MILAN WHICH HAS A HYDRAULIC LIFT.

J. SPATZ-WÜRMS.

MOFFAT HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT AND SANATORIUM, DUMFRIESSHIRE, N.B.

Resident Physician, Dr. R. THOMSON FORBES.

THIS Establishment, which occupies a beautiful situation on the western slope of the beautifully wooded Gallowhill, and within a short distance of the far-famed "Moffat Well," is replete with every comfort for visitors and patients. The public rooms, halls, and corridors are universally recognized as unsurpassed by any similar Establishment, and the baths are of the most varied and perfect construction. Moffat has long been a favourite resort for those seeking health and pleasure, and in the Establishment, there is the additional attraction of good society and varied amusements.

To accommodate those who prefer to dine late, Dinner is given at 6 o'clock, as well as at 2 o'clock. For full particulars, apply to

C. NAU, Manager.

MUNICH

BAVARIAN HOTEL. HÔTEL DE BAVIÈRE.

OTTO PLOECKER, Proprietor. Excellent First-class Hotel. Finest and healthiest situation on the Promenade Platz, near the Royal Theatres and Galleries. Every modern Comfort. Baths and Carriages in the Hotel. Best Cooking and Wines. Moderate Charges. Personal management by the Proprietor.

NAPLES.

HOTEL DE ROME.

FIRST-RATE HOTEL.

Incomparable situation facing the Sea and overlooking the Bay and Mount Vesuvius.

Great Bath Establishment.

A. BRUSCHETTI, MANAGER.

NICE — (CARABACEL).

JULLIEN'S HOTEL.

Highly Recommended.

CHARGES VERY MODERATE.

JULLIEN, Proprietor.

N I C E.

HÔTEL DE LA GRANDE BRETAGNE.

(Limited Company.)

First-Class Establishment.Full South.Patronised by the élite of English and American Families.JARDIN PUBLIC.

Overlooking the Sea, the Quais, and the Promenade des Anglais.

*New Reading and Smoking Rooms with South aspect.BATHS.*Reputation for Excellent Cuisine.*CONCERTS DAILY IN THE PUBLIC GARDENS FACING THE HOTEL.*J. LAVIT, Manager.

N I C E.

HÔTEL CHAUVAIN.Quai St. Jean Baptiste (full South).*FIRST-CLASS. European Reputation. The Handsomest Hotel of Nice. Splendid Atrium. Restaurant, with Private Families' Parlour.TABLE D'HÔTE (one of the very best in Nice).*Charges Reasonable and Fixed.OMNIBUS AT ALL TRAINS.

N I C E.

HÔTEL DE FRANCE—Quai Masséna.J. ZUNDEL, Proprietor.*FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL of universal reputation, commanding a fine View of the Sea, and in best central position, close to the Public Garden and the Promenade. House Patronised especially by English and American Families.Table d'Hôte, having the Reputation of being the best in Nice. Charges very moderate.

NICE.

HOTEL DE L'ELYSEE.

59, Promenade des Anglais, 59.

*Full South, with fine Gardens, every Comfort, Lift and Baths.Reading, Sitting, Smoking, and Billiard Rooms, all looking South.

Arrangements made for Prolonged Stay.

J. LAVIT, Manager.

NUREMBERG.

SCHLENK'S HOTEL OF THE GOLDEN EAGLE.Facing the Kriegerdenkmal (Monument for the Fallen Soldiers.)

THIS First-class Establishment has recently been considerably enlarged and most elegantly re-fitted up. It contains beautiful Apartments, English and Foreign Newspapers, and recommends itself for its excellent Cuisine and choice Wines. Carriages.

Omnibus at the Station.L. SCHLENK, Proprietor.

NUREMBERG.

HÔTEL DE BAVIÈRE.PROPRIETRESS, MRS. G. P. AUINGER.

THIS First-class Hotel is situated in the middle of the Town, close to the River. It is highly patronized by English and American Families. Every comfort and Moderate Charges. Hot and Cold Baths in the Hotel.

*Omnibuses to and from each Train. Carriages in the Hotel.ENGLISH CHURCH SERVICE HELD EVERY SUNDAY IN THE HOTEL.

OSTEND.

HOTEL FONTAINE.A FIRST-CLASS HOUSE.*ARRANGEMENT WITH FAMILIES.TABLE D'HÔTE at 5:30. OMNIBUS AT THE STATION.The Salle à Manger contains a Collection of Paintings of the Masters.

OXFORD.

RANDOLPH HOTEL.THE ONLY MODERN HOTEL. FIRST CLASS.*Every Comfort. Close to the Colleges. Prices Moderate.*MISS I'ANSON, Manageress.

PARIS.
HOTEL DES DEUX MONDES
ET D'ANGLETERRE.

22, AVENUE DE L'OPERA.

Founded in 1854, formerly 8, Rue d'Antin.

Mr. LEQUEU, Proprietor.

Splendid Situation between the Tuileries and the New Grand Opéra.

The most comfortable Family Hotel, being built specially.
 Patronized by the English Aristocracy.

EXCELLENT TABLE D'HÔTE.
READING, SMOKING, AND BILLIARD ROOMS ; BATHS.

LIFT. MODERATE CHARGES.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR BOARD.

P A U.

A WINTER RESORT, renowned for the numerous cures which a residence has effected, particularly in cases of Affections of the Chest, Heart, Larynx, and Throat. PAU possesses a mild and salubrious climate, lying in the midst of scenery of great grandeur. On three days in each week Fox-hunting and Polo Matches take place, and during the Winter and Spring there are Horse Races. In addition to these attractions, there are good Clubs, a Theatre, Opera, Casino Balls, Pigeon Shooting Matches, Cricket Matches, Skating Rinks, &c., &c.

Villas, Houses, and Furnished Apartments to Let, at various Prices.

For all particulars, which will be sent gratuitously, address the Directeur Gérant de l'Union Syndicale, 7 Rue des Cordeliers, Pau.

PARIS.

TOBACCO IN PARIS.

W. D. & H. O. WILLS'

BEST BIRD'S-EYE AND CIGARETTES

Are now (by the courtesy of the French Government) sold at the Bureau of the REGIE GRAND HOTEL, PARIS, at the rate of 12 Francs the Pound, and 80 Centimes the Box of Ten Cigarettes.

WILLS' "BEST BIRD'S-EYE,"

WILLS' "THREE CASTLES,"

AND

WILLS' "WESTWARD-HO,"

SMOKING MIXTURE,

(All specially prepared for export) may also be obtained in Brussels, St. Petersburg, Berlin, Stockholm, Gothenburg, in most towns in Switzerland, and in the principal cities of the German Empire.

Purchasers should beware of imitations, and see that every packet bears the name of

W. D. & H. O. WILLS,

BRISTOL & LONDON.

PENZANCE.
QUEEN'S HOTEL. (On the Esplanade.)
 Patronised by Her Majesty the Queen of Holland.

In the Sea. It is the only Hotel that commands a full and uninterrupted view of Mounts Bay. Apartments en suite. Penzance stands unrivalled for the variety and quiet beauty of its scenery, whilst the mildness of its climate is admirably adapted to invalids. Ladies' coffee and drawing Rooms. Billiard Room. Hot and Cold Baths. Table d'Hôte at 7 o'clock. An Omnibus meets every Train. Posting in all its Branches. Yachts, &c.

A. H. HORA, Proprietor.

PHOTOS FOR PRESENTS LETTS.

A LARGE Collection of Views of this Neighbourhood, from 1s. each; also of Views of other parts of the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Spain and Portugal, Norway, Switzerland, Egypt, Palestine, India, United States, English Cathedrals, Abbeys and Castles, on approval, to double amount of cash sent. Lists on receipt of stamped addressed envelope to

LETTS, SON, & CO., LIMITED,
72, QUEEN VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, E.C.

PISA.

ROYAL VICTORIA HOTEL.

Clean. Great attention. Recommended.

Messrs. MAQUAY HOOKER's Banking Office is in the Hotel.

ST. MORITZ (ENGADINE)
SWITZERLAND.

HOTEL DE L'ENGADINE

(ENGADINERHOF).

Close to the Baths, comfortable, clean, and reasonable terms.

G. HORNBACHER, Proprietor.

PLYMOUTH.

The only Hotel with Sea View.

GRAND HOTEL.

(ON THE ROE.)

Facing Sound, Breakwater, Eddystone, &c. Mail Steamers anchor in sight. Public Rooms and Sitting Rooms, with Balconies.

JAMES BORN, Proprietor

PLYMOUTH. DUKE OF CORNWALL HOTEL.

Railway Terminus—Plymouth, Devon (Postal Telegraph Office). First-Class Family Hotel.
Table d'Hôte daily. Mrs. C. H. BUDD, Manager.

PLYMOUTH. THE ROYAL HOTEL, FIRST-CLASS FAMILY AND POSTING HOUSE. S. PEARSE, Proprietor.

RIGI.
HOTEL AND PENSION RIGHI-SCHNEIDECK.
Terminus Station of the Rigi Kaltbad-Schneideck Railway.
Excellently suited for Tourists and Pensioners. View on the Alps as beautiful as that from Rigi-Kulm.

MODERATE CHARGES, LIBERAL TREATMENT. By a stay of not less than four days, arrangement en pension can be made at 8 francs to 12 francs a day per person. For further information kindly apply to the Proprietors, HAUSER & STIERLIN.

N.B.—Tourists having tickets from Vitznau to Rigi-Kulm can interrupt the journey at Rigi-Kaltbad, take advantage of the beautiful excursion to Schneideck and back, and then continue the journey to Kulm by a following train.

ROTTERDAM.
VICTORIA HOTEL.—This Hotel, opened in May, 1869, and built expressly for an English Hotel, is situated in the centre of the Town (West End), on the most fashionable Promenade of Rotterdam, just opposite the Landing-place of all the Steamers to and from England. The Rooms spacious and airy, are elegantly furnished, and English Travellers will find here every desirable comfort, combined with the most civil Attendance and moderate Charges. Table d'Hôte. Choice Wines. English Newspapers. English, French, and German spoken. Mr. J. TROEN will spare no pains to deserve the patronage of English Travellers.

RHEINFALL, NEUHAUSEN, SCHAFFHAUSEN.

HOTEL SCHWEIZERHOF. PROPRIETOR, MR. WEGENSTEIN.

THE HOTEL SCHWEIZERHOF, known to English visitors as one of the best Hotels in Switzerland, has been greatly enlarged, and is now a splendid first-rate establishment.

The SCHWEIZERHOF is situated opposite the celebrated Falls of the Rhine, and surrounded by a fine park and garden. The position is unsurpassed, the eye ranging a distance of above 180 miles—a panoramic view including the whole range of the Swiss Alps and the Mont Blanc. Healthy climate. Church Service. Preserved Trout Fishing. Prices moderate. Pension. Hotel Omnibuses at Neuhausen and Schaffhausen.

ROME.

GRAND HOTEL DE RUSSIE, ET DES ILES BRITANNIQUES.

THIS FIRST-CLASS ESTABLISHMENT possesses the advantage of a beautiful Garden, and is situated near the English and American Churches; the principal Apartments face the South, the entire Hotel being warmed by two calorifères, and the whole arrangements and moderate prices give universal satisfaction.

MAZZERI, Proprietor.

ROUEN.

GRAND HOTEL D'ANGLETERRE, on the Quay, Mr. LÉON SOUCHARD, Proprietor, Successor of Mr. DELAFOSSE. — This Hotel is distinguished for the salubrity of its situation, &c.; and the new Proprietor has entirely re-fitted it, and added a very comfortable Smoking-Room. It is situated on the Quay facing the Bridges, and commands the finest view of the Seine, and the magnificent Scenery encircling Rouen, that it is possible to imagine. Travellers will find at this first-rate Establishment every comfort—airy Rooms, good Beds, Refreshments and Wines of the best quality at moderate Prices. An excellent Table d'Hôte at Six o'clock. Restaurant à la carte.

Mr. Souchart speaks English, and has English Servants.

An excellent Descriptive Guide of Rouen can be had of Mr. SOUCHARD.

R O M E.

J. P. SHEA, ENGLISH HOUSE AGENT. Office Removed from No. 11 to No. 43 PIAZZA DE SPAGNA. (Established in 1852.) Baggage, Works of Art, &c., &c., packed, under personal superintendence, and forwarded through reliable Agents to England, America, and all parts.

ROUEN.GRAND HOTEL DU NORD,

91, RUE DE LA GROSSE HORLOGE, 91,

VAST ESTABLISHMENT IN THE CENTRE OF THE TOWN.

BREAKFAST. DINNERS. SALON.

ROUEN.GRAND HÔTEL DE FRANCE,

RUE DES CARMES.

THE longest established in the Town, much patronised by the French Nobility. Situated in a central position near the Public Buildings and Theatres. Grand Salons. Spacious Bed-rooms tastefully decorated. Families will find every comfort and Special Service. Prices moderate. Excellent Table d'Hôte at Six o'clock. Much frequented. Price 3 fr. 50 c. English, German, and Spanish spoken.

MR. SOULÉ, Proprietor.

ROYAT - LES - BAINS (Puy de Dôme).

SPLENDID CONTINENTAL HOTEL,

OPEN FROM the 15th of MAY to the 1st of OCTOBER.

CHABASSIERE, Proprietor.

AND PROPRIETOR ALSO OF THE

GRAND HOTEL CALIFORNIE AT CANNES.

(ALPES MARITIMES.)

ROYAT-LES-BAINS.

GRAND HOTEL.

SERVANT, Proprietor.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE.

ENGLISH SPOKEN.

ROTTERDAM.

H. A. KRAMERS & SON, IMPORTERS OF FOREIGN BOOKS.

Mr. MURRAY's 'Handbooks for Travellers,' BRADSHAW's Monthly Railway Guides, BAE DEKER's 'Reisehandbücher,' and HENDSCHKE's 'Telegraph,' always in Stock. English, French, German and Italian Books imported Weekly, and a great variety of New Books kept in Store.

26, GELDERSCHE KADE, 26.

SALISBURY.

THE WHITE HART HOTEL. Nearly Opposite the Cathedral. The largest and principal Hotel in the City.—This old established first-class Hotel contains every accommodation for Families and Tourists. A Ladies' Coffee Room, Billiard and Smoking Rooms, and spacious Coffee Room for Gentlemen. Table d'Hôte daily during the season from 6 to 8.30 p.m. at separate tables. Carriages and Horses on hire for Stonehenge and other places of interest. Excellent Stabling, Loose Boxes, &c. Tariff on application to

H. T. BOWES, MANAGER, Posting Master to Her Majesty.

THE GRANVILLE, ST. LAWRENCE-ON-SEA, RAMSGATE.—This far-famed

Hotel is situate on the East Cliff, 200 ft. above the sea level, commanding the most beautiful Sea Views in the world. For salubrity of climate and beauty of situation, it is unequalled as a place of residence in winter and summer. It contains Hydropathic, Turkish, Vapour, Ozone, Swimming, and every description of Medical Baths the most complete in Europe. Suites of handsomely Furnished Apartments, Eight Public Rooms, including Ladies' Drawing Room, Reading Room and Billiard Rooms; it has a beautiful Winter Promenade, half a mile long, in its own gardens, spacious Skating Rink, American Bowling Alley, Tennis Lawns, and a pretty Theatre, where concerts, and dramatic performances are given by the best artistes. Celebrated Cuisine and choice Wines. Table d'Hôte daily at 6.30 p.m. The Granville and Westgate-on-Sea Express Train leaves Victoria and Charing Cross Stations daily. Address—THE MANAGER.

SANDOWN HOTEL.
SANDOWN BAY, ISLE OF WIGHT.

WALTER MEW, Proprietor.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.

Billiard Room, Croquet and Tennis Lawn.

Railway from Ryde to Sandown, time 15 minutes.

SHANKLIN.

A perfect Summer and Winter climate.

Hinton's Royal Spa Hotel

On the Beach is one of the best appointed Hotels in the Isle of Wight.

SAN REMO, ITALY.WEST-END HOTEL.

A LARGE Building, expressly built for an Hotel, with all the latest appliances to insure perfection in sanitary arrangements—its Closets being on the most approved English principle. Beautifully situated at the West End of the Town, a good distance from the Sea, commanding an extensive View of the Bay. Lift. Reading, Billiard, and Smoking Saloons. Ladies' Drawing Room. English and Foreign Newspapers. Excellent Cuisine, and choice Wines. Great Cleanliness. Omnibus of the Hotel meets all Trains. The old West-End Hotel, adjoining, built by an English lady for her own residence, is under the same Management, and will form an excellent residence for Families desiring quietness and privacy, with the convenience of a large Hotel.

Special arrangements for a lengthened sojourn.

All Languages spoken.

Proprietor, ROBERT WULFING.

SAN REMO.

GRAND HOTEL VICTORIA.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE, with a large Garden. Entirely newly-furnished by the new Proprietor,

COLOMBO PANICCI.

SPA.

GRAND HOTEL BRITANNIQUE.F. LEYH, Proprietor.

PATRONISED BY THE ROYAL FAMILY OF BELGIUM,
And maintains a high reputation among the Aristocracy of Europe.

SITUATED IN THE HEALTHIEST PART OF THE TOWN.LARGE GARDEN AND SWIMMING BATHS.Adjoining the Boulevard des Anglais and the English Church.ENGLISH SPOKEN.*OMNIBUS AT EACH ARRIVAL.

SPA.

GRAND HÔTEL DE L'EUROPE.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL. Splendid Situation. Fine Apartments. Drawing and Reading Room. Every Comfort. Spacious and handsome alterations have been lately made.

Omnibus of the Hotel at the Arrival of every Train.

STUTTGART.

PENSION SIEGLE.

IS situated vis-à-vis the Royal Gardens, near the Palace and the Theatre.
Very comfortable and healthy in every respect. Prices Reasonable.

18, NECKAR STRASSE.

TOURS.

HOTEL DE L'UNIVERS.

Pleasantly Situated. Has a European Reputation.

Specially arranged for Families.

ENGLISH SPOKEN.

TOURS.

MURRAY'S HANDBOOK FOR FRANCE.

Part I. NORMANDY, BRITTANY,
PYRENEES, &c. Post 8vo. 7s. 6d.

JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle Street.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN.GRAND HÔTEL.

THIS Handsome Building is situated in the finest part of the City, between Charles the XIIth's Square and the National Museum, on one of the Principal Quays, just at the confluence of the Lake Mälar on the Baltic.

The Royal Palace, one of the stateliest in Europe, faces the Hotel on the opposite side of the Harbour. The Royal Opera and the Principal Theatres are in close proximity.

The balconies and roof of the Hotel command the most extensive Views of the City.

The House is replete with every modern improvement and convenience, and no expense has been spared to render it one of the first and most comfortable Hotels on the Continent.

The Building contains Four Hundred Sleeping Apartments, besides Dining Rooms, Sitting Rooms, Coffee and Reading Rooms, a Billiard Room, a Telegraph and Post Office, Baths, Retiring Rooms, a Laundry, and other accommodations. The several flats can be reached by Steam Lifts.

All European Languages spoken. Guides and Conveyances supplied to all places of interest in the City and Neighbourhood. Terms will be found to compare favourably with those of other first-class Hotels.

The Hotel Rydberg.

GUSTAF ADOLF'S TORG.

THIS Old-established House has long been favourably known to Travelers. It contains One Hundred and Fifty Sleeping Apartments.

The Proprietor of these Two First-Class Hotels is in a position to offer every advantage to strangers visiting the Swedish Capital.

R. CADIER,

Proprietor of the Grand Hotel and the Hotel Rydberg.

SUEZ HOTEL, SUEZ,

Facing the Maritime Canal; every ship passing through can be seen from the Hotel.

TOURISTS' FAMILIES visiting Egypt will find in this long-established and First-Class Hotel (under English Management) every comfort and attention.

CLEANLINESS is particularly studied in every Department.

REDUCED RATES are made to Visitors residing in the Hotel over a week.

SUEZ is noted for its purity of atmosphere and equable climate during the winter, and is considered by physicians to be one of the most beneficial places in the world for the cure of Pulmonary Complaints.

THE WELLS OF MOSES, and supposed position of the locality where the Israelites crossed the Red Sea, can be viewed from the roof of the Hotel.

GOOD FISHING AND SHOOTING can be had in the neighbourhood during winter months.

CAMELS AND GUIDES procured for Travellers proceeding to Sinai, Syria, or Palestine. And the best and freshest provisions can be had from the Store in the Hotel at moderate rates. Cheesemongery, Jams, Jellies, Pickles, and Marmalade; and Preserved Provisions are received regularly from BARNES and Co., London, by P. & O. Steamers. Applications addressed to THE MANAGER will receive prompt attention.

VARESE. (Lombardy.)

GRAND HÔTEL VARESE.

In direct communication by Rail with

MILAN, LAKE MAGGIORE, COMO, and LUGANO.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, surrounded with an extensive GARDEN and PARK, situated in the best and healthiest part of Lombardy, 1310 feet above the Sea, commanding a most extensive view of the Alps, Monte Rosa Chain, and containing 200 Rooms and Saloons.

PENSION. Baths on each floor. English Church. Dr. DAUBENT, M.D., attached to the Hotel.

D. MARINI, Manager.

VENICE.

GRAND HÔTEL DE L'EUROPE.

Situated on the Grand Canal near St. Marc Square.

OLD-ESTABLISHED FIRST-CLASS HOTEL.

MODERATE CHARGES.

MARSEILLE BROS., Proprietors.

VEVEY - MONTREUX. LAKE OF GENEVA.

Clarens, Vernex, Territet, Veytaux, Villeneuve, Les Avents, Glion, Villars-sur-Ollon.

HOTELS AND PENSIONS RECOMMENDED.

VEVEY.

Hôtel des Trois Couronnes	100 Rooms.	Hôtel d'Angleterre	40 Rooms.
Grand Hôtel de Vevey	100 —	Pension du Château	30 —
Grand Hôtel du Lac Vevey	80 —	Pension Comte	30 —
Hôtel Mooser (Chemenin)	80 —	Pension Mon Désir	18 —
Restaurant Bellevue.

MONTREUX.

Hôtel des Alpes	100 Rooms.	Pension Masson	25 Rooms.
Hôtel et Pension Vautier	80 —	Pension du Châtelard	30 —
Hôtel National	60 —	Pension Belle-Vue	25 —
Hôtel du Cygne	60 —	Pension Bonivard	21 —
Hôtel Beau-Rivage	60 —	Pension Visinand	20 —
Hôtel Monney	60 —	Pension Clarentia	20 —
Pension Lorius	60 —	Hôtel Victoria	20 —
Hôtel Roy	45 —	Hôtel d'Angleterre	18 —
Langbein's Hôtel Beauséjour	40 —	Pension Mury-Monney	18 —
Pension Mooser	35 —	Pension Mout-Fleury	18 —
Hôtel Suisse	30 —	Pension Monnoud	18 —
Hôtel Roth	30 —	Pension Printanière	16 —
Hôtel des Crêtes	30 —	Pension Depallens	15 —
Pension Ketterer	26 —	Pension Germann	10 —
Pension Pilivet	25 —

VILLENEUVE.

Hôtel Byron	60 Rooms.
-----------------------	-----------

ENVIRONS OF MONTREUX.

Glion ou Righi Vaudois (Alt. 625 m.)

Hôtel du Righi	80 Rooms.	Hôtel Victoria	60 Rooms.
--------------------------	-----------	--------------------------	-----------

LES AVENTS. (Alt. 960 m.)

Grand Hôtel des Avents	80 Rooms.
----------------------------------	-----------

VILLARS-SUR-OLLON. (Alt. 1275 m.)

Hôtel du Grand Muveran	100 Rooms.	Pension des Châlets	20 Rooms.
----------------------------------	------------	-------------------------------	-----------

These various places of sojourn are situated in a fertile and lovely country, sheltered from the north winds by the surrounding mountains.

The climate is particularly soft, and it has been called the "Nice of Switzerland," and may be said to rival that of the most favoured places. In consequence of the temperature, a large number of persons come here whose health requires care and caution.

Visitors come here in the autumn for the grape cure, in the winter to enjoy the mildness of the climate, and in the spring to admire the rapid changes of effect caused by the sun on the surrounding mountains. In summer these places, rendered cool and refreshing by the breezes from the lake, are the centre of interesting excursions; among which must be particularly cited Glion, Les Avents, and Villars-sur-Ollon, three places very much visited at this period of the year, and each possessing Post and Telegraph Offices.

These Hotels and Pensions offer every modern comfort at prices varying from 5 to 10 francs a day.

At Montreux there is a Kursaal, with large Park. Orchestra in the principal Etablissements. Twelve Steamers and Trains every day each way.

VERONA.

GRAND HÔTEL DE LONDRES.FORMERLY HOTEL DE LA TOUR DE LONDRES. A. CERESA, New Proprietor.THE largest and finest Hotel in Verona, near the Roman Amphitheatre, and the new English Church. Most central position. Great comfort. All Languages spoken. Omnibus to and from the Stations. Highly recommended.T. CAVESTRI, Manager.*VENTNOR (Isle of Wight).

Rayner's Temperance Commercial

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE,

17 & 19, VICTORIA STREET.

"A home away from a home."

Spacious Coffee Room. Sets of Rooms en suite. TERMS MODERATE.*VENTNOR.*MURRAY'S HANDBOOK

For SURREY, HANTS, and the ISLE OF WIGHT. Post 8vo. 10s.

JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle Street.

VICHY.GRAND HOTEL DU PARC.*THE LARGEST AND MOST COMFORTABLE IN VICHY.*A FIRST-CLASS HOTEL, situated in the Park, facing the Baths, Springs, and Casino.PRIVATE PAVILION FOR FAMILIES.GERMOT, Proprietor.*VIENNA.*J. & L. LOBMEYR,*GLASS MANUFACTURERS,*Appointed Purveyors to the Imperial Court of Austria,No. 13, KÄRNTNERSTRASSE.The most extensive Establishment for Bohemian Crystal, Fancy Glass, and Chandeliers.

Every variety of Glass for Household use, Ornament, and in Art Workmanship. Specialities in Engraved Glass and Looking-glasses. Chandeliers, Candelabras, in Crystal and Bronze.

LARGE SHOW-ROOMS UPSTAIRS.

The prices are fixed, and are very moderate.—English is spoken.

Their Correspondents in England, Messrs. J. and R. M^cCRACKEN, No. 38, Queen Street, Cannon Street, E.C., London, will transmit all orders with the greatest care and attention.

VIENNA.

GRAND HOTEL, KÄRNTNERRING No. 9,

SITUATED on the most elegant and frequented Square of the City. Three hundred rooms from 1 florin upwards. Apartments from 6 florins upwards. Beautiful Dining Saloon, Restaurant Saloons, Conversation, Smoking, and Reading Rooms.

BATHS & TELEGRAPH OFFICE IN THE HOUSE.

Lifts for Communication with each Storey.

DINNERS & SUPPERS À LA CARTE. TABLE D'HÔTE.

OMNIBUSES AT THE RAILWAY STATIONS.

WIESBADEN.

FOUR SEASONS HOTEL AND BATHS.

FINEST airy situation in the Theatre Square, opposite the Kursaal and Park. Family Apartments. Single Rooms from 2 Marks. Pension. Best Cuisine and Wines. Reasonable Charges.

New Proprietor, W. ZAIS.

WIESBADEN.

GRAND HOTEL DU RHIN & BATH.

FIRST-CLASS New House, exceedingly well situated, just opposite the Railway Station, the Post and Telegraphic direction, on the Promenades, combining comfort with Moderate Charges. Music and Reading Saloons. Rooms from 2 mks. 50 pf. per day, inclusive of Candles and Service. In Winter the whole Building and Winter Gardens are well warmed. The Omnibus for Schwalbach and Schlangenbad starts from near the Hotel.

Large stock of the best Rhine and Moselle Wines for wholesale.

Railway Tickets for all the Towns on the Continent are issued in the Hotel.

WIESBADEN.—ROSE HOTEL AND BATH HOUSE.

SPLENDID First-Class Establishment close to the Cursaal, opposite the Trinkballe, and adjoining the Promenade. No other Hotel except this is surrounded by a Garden of its own, or supplied with Baths direct from the hot springs (Kochbrunnen). Quiet and airy situation, with English comfort and reasonable Charges. Drawing, Reading, and Smoking Rooms, and Billiard Room, containing a full-sized Billiard Table. Table d'Hôte at One and Five o'clock.

WILDBAD.

HOTEL KLUMPP,

Formerly HOTEL DE L'OURS.

MR. W. KLUMPP, PROPRIETOR.

THIS First-class Hotel, containing 45 Saloons and 235 Bed-rooms, with a separate Breakfast and new Reading and Conversation Rooms, as well as a Smoking Saloon, and a very extensive and elegant Dining Room; an artificial Garden over the river; is situated opposite the Bath and Conversation House, and in the immediate vicinity of the Promenade. It is celebrated for its elegant and comfortable apartments, good Cuisine and Cellar, and deserves its wide-spread reputation as an excellent Hotel. Table d'Hôte at One and Five o'clock. Breakfasts and Suppers à la carte. Exchange Office. Correspondent of the principal Banking-houses of London for the payment of Circular Notes and Letters of Credit. Omnibuses of the Hotel to and from each Train. Elevators to every floor. Fine Private Carriages when requested. Warm and Cold Baths in the Hotel.

EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATION.

WÜRZBURG.

KRONPRINZ HOTEL.

HONoured by the presence of His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, on the occasion of his recent visit to this town. This First-Class Hotel is particularly recommended for its Large and Airy Apartments, having the finest situation near the Station, facing the Palace, and adjoining a fine Garden. Reading Rooms, Cold and Warm Baths, &c. Moderate Charges. No extra charges for service and candles.

Proprietor—T. AMMOR.

HOTEL BELLE VUE, WILDBAD.
F. STOKINGER.

FIRST-CLASS Establishment. Best situation, at the entrance of the Promenade, facing the Thermal Baths, next the new Trinkhalle, opened last season. Fitted up with every English Comfort. Cold and Warm Baths at the Hotel.
Table d'Hôte at One and Five o'clock.

ZARAGOZA, SPAIN.
Grand Hotel de l'Europe.

Excellent Cooking and Moderate Charges.

VIUDA DE ZOPPETTI Y HIJOS, Proprietors.

GRENOBLE.

GRAND HOTEL DE L'EUROPE.

PLACE GRENETTE.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE. HIGHLY RECOMMENDED FOR ITS COMFORT AND EXCELLENT POSITION.

OMNIBUS TO ALL TRAINS.

BESSON, Proprietor.

ESTABLISHED 1832.

THE ORIGINAL GUIDE & TRAVELLERS' DEPÔT,

AND

Passport and Couriers' Agency,

LEE & CARTER,

440, WEST STRAND, LONDON

(Nearly opposite the Charing Cross Hotel).

KNAPSACKS

STIFF OR LIMP.

PORTMANTEAUX

OF ALL PATTERNS.

BAGS

OF ALL KINDS.

Intending Tourists are respectfully invited to visit this Establishment before making purchases for their journey.

AN EXTENSIVE STOCK OF TRAVELLERS' REQUISITES TO SELECT FROM.

LISTS GRATIS.

COURIERS, DRAGOMEN,

AND

TRAVELLING SERVANTS

of good character and experience, speaking European and Eastern Languages, can be engaged at the above Establishment.

Also Passports and Visas obtained. Passports mounted on Linen and put in Cases, with Name printed outside.

440, WEST STRAND.

